BIOGRAPHICAL

BRIGADIER-GENERAL WILLIAM HIGH was born Jan. 14, 1786, and was one of the best-known men of Berks county of his time. He was county commissioner from 1816 to 1819; a member of the State Legislature in 1832; served as one of five delegates from Berks county to the Constitutional Convention in 1828; and was associate judge of Berks county from 1846 to 1851. He was most prominently identified with the State militia, holding the office of brigadier-general by election for fifteen years. In 1816, he was elected captain of the Reading Cavalry, of which he had become a member in 1809. He died March 29, 1851, with honor untarnished and integrity undefiled. General High was a man of many sterling qualities of character, being able to draw the line between right and wrong, and never faltered in carrying his convictions into execution. He was twice married, his first wife being Catherine Van Reed, daughter of John Van Reed, and his second wife the daughter of Jacob Van Reed, of Amity township.

Ezra High, son of Gen. William High, was born at Poplar Neck Aug. 15, 1816, and died April 8, 1897. He owned 235 acres of land, although he lived on a farm of seventy acres, the house upon which property he built in 1866. He also erected all of the buildings at the Poplar Neck bridge, and was an influential citizen of the lower end of the county and public-spirited to a large degree. In politics a Democrat, he was school director in 1861, when the special bounty tax was levied in Cumru township. He was an antiquarian of some note and possessed a valuable collection of Indian relics, which he donated to the Berks County Historical Society.

In 1841 Mr. High was married to Hannah Gernand, daughter of George and Barbara (Hain) Gernand, and they had these children: Kate married Jonas DeTurk, and died Feb. 10, 1909, aged sixty-six years; William P. is mentioned below; Mary married Capt. William A. Schall; Annie married Harry Lewis; Sarah, unmarried, is living at Reading; Emma died in 1882, aged twenty-four years. Ezra High and his wife were buried in the High private cemetery at Poplar Neck, on the High homestead, where rest also the remains of Gen. William High.

William P. High, born June 28, 1844, on the old High homestead at Poplar Neck, obtained a good practical education in the public schools of his native township, and at The Trappe in Montgomery county. He was brought up on the homestead, and in 1866 began farming for himself on his father's farm, where he remained for eleven years. From 1876 to 1883 he lived on his father-in-law's farm, the Beidler place, and in 1883 he erected his present residence in Shillington, where he has lived retired since 1884. He has a number of large farms which he superintends, being part owner of the High homestead, which originally consisted of 235 acres of the best farm land in Berks county, besides having large interests throughout Cumru township. Mrs. High is the owner of the Conrad Y. Beidler farm, better known as the Beidler farm of Cumru township, this tract consisting of 106 acres in the best state of cultivation, with fine, substantial buildings. Mrs. High also owns an excellent farm along the Schuylkill in Spring township, near the Lebanon Valley bridge, consisting of 100 acres, on which there is a fine residence and good buildings; a $5,500 barn, built in 1873 on this farm, was destroyed by fire May 21, 1903. Mr. High is well-known in the community in which he makes his home, as well as throughout Cumru township. A stanch Democrat in politics, he has been called upon to fill positions of honor and trust, having been delegate to numerous county conventions, for twelve years a member of the school board, and held other local positions. He and his wife are members of the Emanuel Reformed Church, of which he was deacon for many years, and to the support of which he contributes liberally.

On Aug. 29, 1865, Mr. High was married to Sarah A. Beidler, daughter of Conrad Y. and Catherine (Spohn) Beidler, and to this union have been born children as follows: Katie, who married W. A. Greisener; Hannah, wife of Abraham Potteiger; Ezra, who died when one year old; Conrad, who married Katie Shunk; Mary, who died in infancy; William, who married Olivia Morris; Magdalena; Sallie, wife of William L. Bickel; Charles, who married Goldie Griffith; Mabel, twin to Charles, unmarried; Isaac, a medical student at the University of Pennsylvania; and Paul, who died in infancy.

Conrad Beidler, the great-great-grandfather of Mrs. High, came from Germany. His son, Peter, married a Hattenstein, and they had these children: Conrad, Henry, John and Rebecca. John Beidler, of this family, married Magdalena Yost, and to them were born: Jeremiah; Conrad Y. (father of Mrs. High); Mary, who married Samuel Brobst; Isaac, and Abraham. Mrs. High was the only child of her parents.

SCHALL. The Schall family, which was first represented in America by Tobias Schall in 1748, and of which Capt. William A. Schall, his brother, D. Horace Schall, of Philadelphia, and Gen. John W. Schall, of Norristown, are members, is one which belongs to the old nobility of the Rhine country in Germany. Originally the Schalls were an old, noble patrician family of Cologne, later spreading into Bergen and Juliers. At first the name was von Schall, but later, in the fourteenth century, "Bell" was added to it, that being the name of their manor in Gladbach. That the family is very ancient is proved from the ancestral records communicated by Vetter and Fahne. In the sixteenth century members of the family settled in Livonia and obtained the office of hereditary marshal for the family, and in the eighteenth century they also appear in Bavaria. The name Robert Schalls appears as far back as the year 1150, and Johann Schall von Bell was rewarded with the Thurnhof (a manor) at Friesdorf. In the first half of the eighteenth century the title of Baron was conferred upon the family, and in connection with this Ferdinand, Baron Schall von Bell, was named first, and in 1747 was admitted to the Knighthood of Bergen.

Of the Bavarian branch, Count Carl Theodor, son of Count Ferdinand (above), privy councilor of the Electoral Palatinate, and Ambassador to the Court of Saxony, married, in 1777, Henriette, Countess von Riaucour, heiress of Andreas, Count von Riaucour, Minister of Saxony, etc., who dying without male issue in 1794, and in compliance with his will, his son-in-law, Carl Theodor, Count von Schall, added the name and arms of the deceased to his own, and came into the possession of the Riaucour estate, comprising the following seats: Putzkau, Gansig, Crostau, etc.—the branch now continued under the name of Counts von Schall Riaucour. But recently two Rembrandt paintings have been found, one of which was in the collection of the Count Schall-Riaucour and is supposed to be a fine specimen of his earlier work. It represents the painter's mother with a book.

In 1748 Tobias Schall and his wife Magdaline left their home in Germany, on the French border, and came to America, landing that same year in Charleston, S. C. With them came their son, George Schall, who was born in 1735 in the Pfalz, Middle Shefflentz, Moshbower Ampt, Germany. He was baptized in Under Shefflentz Evangelical Church, but was confirmed in the Reformed Church of Middle Shefflentz. In 1757 he was united in marriage with Catharine Newhard, who was born in Whitehall, Northampton (now Lehigh) Co., Pa. After his marriage he settled in Pike township, Berks county, where he followed farming until the outbreak of the Revolution. He enlisted and became a lieutenant in Col. Daniel Hunter's regiment, serving faithfully throughout the war. He then returned to his home in Pike township, Berks county, and followed farming until his death Dec. 5, 1802. His wife survived him five months, dying May 5, 1803, and they both lie buried in the Hill Church graveyard.

Hon. George Schall, son of George, and grandson of the emigrant Tobias, was born in Pike township, Dec. 26, 1768. He was an agriculturist and blacksmith by occupation, and also operated a grist and saw mill (on the old Schall homestead), which he built in 1796. In his political faith he was a Democrat, and he was elected to represent his district in the State Senate in 1825, and was re-elected for the two succeeding terms, serving from 1825 to 1828. In his trips to Harrisburg he always went on horseback, carrying his food with him. The first day he would ride as far as Lebanon, where he remained over night, and finished his journey to the capital the following day. In religious belief he was an earnest member of the Reformed Church. He married Nov. 10, 1789, Catharine Oyster, who was born Aug. 7, 1768, and died July 10, 1846, in the seventy-eighth year of her age. They were the parents of the following children: David, born June 23, 1790, died Aug. 5, 1792; George, born July 2, 1792, died Sept. 11, 1820; John, born July 24, 1794, died Aug. 7, 1860; Hannah, born March 23, 1797, married Daniel Jacoby, May 11, 1817; Catharine, born May 16, 1799, died Feb. 26, 1875 (married Dr. William Herbst); David, born May 25, 1801, died Jan. 22, 1877; Mary, born April 4, 1803, died Sept. 3, 1815; William, born May 22, 1805, died Sept. 5, 1805; William, born Aug. 7, 1810, married Caroline Trexler and died at the age of seventy-five.

David Schall, son of George and Catharine (Oyster) Schall, was born May 25, 1801, and was reared on the old Schall homestead in Pike township. In early manhood he engaged in the iron business, and in 1825 began to operate the Dale Forge in Washington township. He manufactured bar-iron and blooms, and continued in this line of business for over fifty years. In connection with the forge, he owned and operated a large farm, and demonstrated his ability to engage successfully in more than one line of business at the same time. He was an industrious and energetic man, and by careful management he accumulated considerable wealth, retiring from active life in 1870. Like his father he was a Democrat, and he served as associate judge of Berks county from 1856 to 1866, and was county auditor from 1842 to 1845. He was a captain in the old State Militia. He married Catharine Endy, born May 9, 1805, died Aug. 24, 1873, and by her became the father of four daughters and five sons, namely: George, deceased in the sixty-fifth year of his age, was a farmer on the old Dale Forge farm and was steward of the Montgomery county prison for twelve years; Amelia, deceased, was the wife of Col. William Trexler, of Longswamp, Berks county; Emeline lives in Philadelphia; Gen. John W., colonel of the 87th Pa. V. I. during the Civil war, and now general in the State Militia, served four years as postmaster at Norristown, and seven years as recorder of Montgomery county; Hannah died in 1896; Capt. William A.; D. Horace is a customs officer in Philadelphia; Alfred resides in Philadelphia; and Mary L. also resides in Philadelphia. All the children were reared in the faith of the Reformed Church. Mr. Schall, the father, passed away Jan. 22, 1877, at the age of seventy-five.

Capt. William A. Schall received his intellectual training in the Elmwood Institute at Norristown, and also at a private school in Reading. When the call for troops was made at the beginning of the Civil war, he organized and was made captain of Company G, 167th Pa. V. I., which was mustered in for nine months' service, Oct. 20, 1862. The regiment was first attached to the 8th Corps, Army of the Potomac, and later to the 1st Corps, seeing hard service. They were first sent to Washington, thence to Suffolk, taking part in the Suffolk siege, and the battle of Black River, where Colonel Knoderer was shot. After the siege of Norfolk the regiment was sent to Yorktown, Richmond, Williamsport, and Chickahominy river, and was then ordered to Gettysburg and finally to South Mountain, where they camped one night, then receiving word that Lee was retreating. They joined the Army of the Potomac at Boonesboro, crossing the Potomac at Berlin, and followed Lee as far as Rappahannock, where the nine months' men, whose service had expired, were mustered out in August, 1863. Captain Schall was a faithful soldier, and bears a record of which he may well be proud.

After receiving his discharge Captain Schall returned home and for some years was employed as a clerk in a store. In 1872 he began farming the Dale Forge farm, and he also dealt in lime for about two years. He then removed to Pennsburg, where he conducted a coal and lumber yard for some years. He next engaged in the same line of business at Barto, and in connection with coal and lumber handled grain. This was his home until 1900, when he retired and removed to his present delightful home at Brookside.

In 1881 Captain Schall married Mary B. High, daughter of Ezra High, a farmer of Cumru township, and they have one daughter, Emily May. In politics he is a Democrat, and he has been honored with several local offices. With his family he belongs to the Reformed Church. His fraternal connection is with Gen. William H. Keim Post, No. 76, G. A. R., of Reading. Captain Schall is one of the leading citizens of his community, and is respected and esteemed by a large number of friends.

BOYER. "The Boyers have direct connection in name and history with the Gallic Boii, widely distributed over Rhine regions in the time of the wandering of races, and particularly active between the fourth and second century before Christ. Julius Caesar conquered them in part about 58 B. C. Both the Bavarians and the Bohemians get their names from the Boii, though the Bohemians are not Boii by descent.

"Like other families, many of the Boyers, both in France and Germany, accepted the doctrines and consequences of the sixteenth century Reformation. In the complications that resulted from the revocation of the edict of Nantes by Louis XIV, king of France, in 1685, the Palatinate was terribly devastated. Those who could escape Louis' fury found at last temporary refuge in parts of Germany, Holland and England. In the meantime Penn, the proprietary governor of Pennsylvania, sympathizing with the refugees in Europe, helped to produce a veritable exodus from Europe. Through his agents he made it known among refugees in Europe that he was ready to grant land possessions on easy terms in Pennsylvania, and that liberty of conscience was to be allowed there. Among these refugees were the Boyers. About forty of them settled in Pennsylvania before 1775—some of them in Philadelphia and others at various points in the eastern counties of Pennsylvania. Wherever they settled they became identified with the Colonial efforts to sustain ministers and schoolmasters, and to build the log church, the latter also serving as schoolhouse in many instances. There are now about 100,000 Boyers in America." [Extract from an address of the Rev. Dr. Charles C. Boyer, at Boyer Reunion, Kutztown, Pennsylvania.]

Henry Boyer, the founder of Boyertown, was an early settler in Colebrookdale township, Berks Co., Pa. He settled on the Latshaw place, securing a central location, and opened a public house. He had a number of sons who engaged in other lines of business in the same locality, which through them received the name of Boyertown, long before it was laid out in town lots, in 1835. In 1851 the first attempt was made to have the town incorporated as a borough, thirty-three persons signing the petition, but this was not granted, and in 1866 a second and successful attempt was made, the grand jury reporting favorably, Oct. 20, 1866. Among the sons of Henry Boyer was Daniel, who opened the first store in the town.

Daniel Boyer, son of Henry, and grandfather of George F. Boyer, of Cumru township, was a foremost merchant in the lower end of Berks county. He started his first store in a corner closet, on a very small scale, but he prospered from the beginning, and at his death was in very comfortable circumstances. He passed his entire life in Boyertown, and died there. He married Salome Burkert, and became the father of the following children: Samuel, who became a merchant but died when comparatively young; Henry B.; Daniel, who died quite wealthy, having acquired his fortune as a merchant; Sallie, who married William Schuler; Elizabeth, who married John Steinruck; Lavina, who married Richard Richards; and Willoughby, a merchant at Norristown, who married Harriet Dengler.

Henry B. Boyer, son of Daniel, was born at Boyertown, July 25, 1805, and died July 19, 1895, aged nearly ninety years. For many years he was a merchant in Boyertown, being associated with his brother Daniel, and they met with great success. In 1848 Henry B. Boyer came to Reading and opened a general store in the old Keystone building, near the corner of Sixth and Penn streets. For a number of years before his death he had lived retired. His home was at No. 630 Walnut street, Reading. He was a member of Trinity Lutheran Church. He and his wife Susanna Fritz had nine children, of whom two died young, the others being: Frank, a merchant in Reading, where he died; Henry, a merchant at Bowers Station, who died there and is buried on the Boyer lot in the Charles Evans cemetery, Reading; Mary, who married Theodore Douglass, of Philadelphia, later of Reading; John, who kept a livery in Reading known as the "Old Reliable," now conducted by his son Morris; George F.; Howard F., who conducted the livery on South Sixth street, Reading, now carried on by his son Harry; and Lucretia, who married Dr. Hiester M. Nagle, of Reading.

George F. Boyer, son of Henry B., now a retired citizen of Cumru township, was born in Reading, June 29, 1837, was educated in the district schools, a school in Exeter township, and at Boyertown Academy. In his young manhood he learned tanning in Reading, and for a time clerked in his father's store. For a number of years he was employed as a clerk by the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, and when he left the employ of this company he moved to the farm whereon he now resides. This consists of 100 acres of good and well cultivated land, and its care received his attention until his retirement. In politics he is a Republican. He and his family are members of Trinity Lutheran Church, of Reading. Mr. Boyer married Mary Ann High, daughter of an influential citizen of Berks county, and they have had six children, three sons and three daughters: Emma, who married Henry Garber, of Philadelphia; Katie, who died in infancy; Harry, who resides at Boyer Heights, in Cumru township; George A., unmarried and at home; Mary G., who married George Miller, of Reading; and Walter, unmarried and at home.

George A. Boyer, son of George F., was born in Reading in 1864, and was educated in the public schools of the city and at Prof. D. B. Brunner's business college. He learned the tool-maker's trade with the Reading Hardware Company, and has been employed by that firm since 1882. He is also engaged in the real estate business at Boyer Heights, and is one of the successful and industrious men of the place.

Howard F. Boyer, son of Henry B. and Susanna, was born in Boyertown, Nov. 19, 1839, and received his education in his native place. On beginning work he was first employed as chain bearer for a surveying party, making surveys for the Philadelphia & Reading railroad from Reading to Pottstown. After that he became a clerk in his father's retail grocery store, located on the present site of the "Hotel Penn." When the elder Mr. Boyer sold his store, in 1855, and went into the livery business, the son accompanied him, and they opened the old Coleman stable, on Pearl street. Later they moved to Sixth and Cherry streets and did a thriving business there until 1876, in which year the father retired from the concern and Howard F. and his brother John operated it together until 1885, when the partnership was dissolved, Howard F. opening a new stable on South Sixth street, where he remained until his death. He married Mary J. Coller, daughter of Solomon and Sophia L. (Amweg) Coller, and they had but one child, Harry C. They were members of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Boyer's fraternal connections were with Chandler Lodge, No. 227, F. & A. M.; the I. O. O. F.; and the K. P. In politics he was a strong Republican, and so widely known and esteemed that his election to several offices would have been assured if he could have been induced to become a candidate. Mr. Boyer was one of those who volunteered for service during the Civil war, enlisting for six months in Company C, 25th regiment. His company was one that accompanied the 6th Massachusetts through Baltimore at the time of the riots there caused by the marching of the Northern troops through that city on their way to the front. He died Dec. 6, 1904, when he was aged sixty-five years, and was widely regretted. He was a man of large heart and generous impulses, and his life was filled with good deeds, the half of which were never known.

Harry C. Boyer, son of Howard F., was born in 1865, and was given a good education, it being his father's ambition to prepare him for a professional life. Accordingly, after completing the school course in Reading, he went to Dean Academy, Franklin, Mass., but the confinement indoors and the close application to books proved uncongenial to the youth and he was wisely allowed to choose a path in life more adapted to his tastes. Returning to Reading, he decided upon the tailor's trade, and he served his apprenticeship in Wilmington. He then formed a partnership with a Mr. Peterson, and opened a tailoring establishment in the Wilson building, on Penn street, Reading, where they continued for two years. The partnership was then dissolved, and Mr. Boyer went into his father's livery stable, where he was employed until the latter's death. After that event he assumed the entire management of the business, though retaining the old name. He attends strictly to business, and by his improved ideas and methods has increased the patronage forty per cent. He has now one of the best equipped liveries in the State and stands well in the business community.

Mr. Boyer is popular with the younger element in Reading, and he belongs to the B. P. O. E., the Order of Eagles, and the S. M. A., which latter is a dramatic organization. In religion he belongs to the Universalist Church.

PROF. AMOS C. ROTHERMEL. The Rothermels in America trace their genealogy back some four hundred years, to one Johannes Rothermel, who won both fame and a name in the early wars of Germany. Johannes was a brave soldier and so frequently dyed his arm in the blood of his enemies that his comrades designated him as der Roth Ermel (red sleeve), and in this way he acquired the name of Johannes Rothermel.

John Rothermel, descendant of this early progenitor, was born in the Province of Wachbach, Holland, in 1688, and married Sybilla Zimmerman, native of the same province, and a sister of the famous General Zimmerman of the Dutch army. Six children were born to the couple, and then, on account of the unsettled condition of their native land, and a desire for greater freedom, they concluded to come to America. With their six children, and in company with a large number of other emigrants, they set sail, but before reaching the shores of the New World John Rothermel died and was buried at sea. The remainder of the family landed at Philadelphia, on Aug. 29, 1730, and in the following year located in the part of Philadelphia county that is now included in the bounds of Berks county.

The children of John Rothermel and Sybilla Zimmerman, his wife, were as follows: Anna Maria, Lawrence, Paul, Peter, John and Christian. Anna Maria, the only daughter and oldest child, before leaving Wachbach, married Peter Fetherolf, and she and her husband, after being in America a brief time, settled in Macungie township, Lehigh county, where they lived out the rest of their days. Lawrence, the oldest son, settled in Windsor township, Berks County, where he married a Miss Kuhns, and rose to be one of the foremost citizens of that section. Paul purchased a large tract of land in Maidencreek township and settled upon it; he married Catharine Maurer and by her had issue five sons and one daughter. Peter became a large land owner in the fertile valley of the Manatawny, where he prospered and raised a a family of four children. John settled in Windsor township, where his older brother, Lawrence, had already located. Christian, the youngest child of the family, purchased a large tract of land in Maiden-creek township, adjoining the property of his brother Paul; he married and had six children, four daughters and two sons.

John Rothermel, the fifth son of John and Sybilla (Zimmerman) Rothermel—as has already been stated—located in Windsor township. He married Mary Seigfreid, who bore him four sons, namely: Abraham, Jacob, Daniel, and John. Jacob, the second of these sons, married twice. At this writing it has not been ascertained who his first wife was, but it is known that she bore him three children, namely: John, Joseph, and a daughter, who married a Fegley. For his second wife he married a Miss Price, who bore him three sons: Jacob, David P. and Simon. David P. Rothermel was born Dec. 31, 1803, in Richmond township, and always lived there. He was a cooper by trade, but during most of his lifetime engaged in farming. He worked hard and prospered, and by industry and frugality acquired a very fine farm. He died Dec. 3, 1885.

David P. Rothermel married Barbara Weiand, who was born Sept. 27, 1801, at Pittsburg, Pa., and who bore him the following children: Eliza, John, David, Lewis W. and Amelia, all of whom were born in Richmond township, and grew to maturity there. Barbara (Weiand) Rothermel died March 11, 1881, and she and her husband are buried in the graveyard of the Lutheran and Reformed Church close to the town of Fleetwood.

Lewis W. Rothermel, the fourth child of David P. and Barbara (Weiand) Rothermel, was born July 24, 1837, in Richmond township. On reaching the years of young manhood he learned the blacksmith's trade and followed that useful calling for eighteen years. He resided in the village of Moselem, where was located one of Berks county's largest furnaces, and where he was occupied principally at repairing the heavy wagons and shoeing the many horses and mules that were used in hauling to and from the furnaces. Eventually the manufacture of iron at Moselem became unprofitable and was abandoned, and with the passing of the furnace and the many large teams that were used in operating it, blacksmithing at that place became unprofitable. Lewis W. Rothermel then gave up the trade at which he had worked hard for eighteen long years, and took to farming on the parental homestead in Richmond township. Here he followed the vocation of farming, and tenderly cared for his aged parents until they passed to their reward. Here he still resides in the enjoyment of the fruits of a well-spent life, and the love and respect of a large circle of friends and neighbors.

Lewis W. Rothermel married Lydia R. Rothermel, a distant relative, a descendant of Paul Rothermel and Catharine Maurer. To them the following children have been born: Amos C., Silas, Samuel, Lydia, Emily, and Lewis and Irene, the last two named being twins. Silas is a practicing attorney in Reading. Samuel is engaged in the lumber trade in Reading. Lydia formerly taught in the public schools, but is now married and devotes all her time to her household. Emily is married. Irene is living with her husband near Fleetwood. Lewis is a physician at Lenhartsville, Pennsylvania.

Amos. C. Rothermel, the subject proper of this sketch, was born at Moselem in Richmond township, Berks county, Jan. 6, 1864. He was the oldest child of the family, and as a lad spent many an hour about his father's blacksmith shop, watching the latter strike the iron while it was hot, and blowing the bellows for him. This was to him an interesting experience at his most impressionable period of life, but the environment did not have the customary effect upon the youth, for he never acquired a desire to learn and engage at his father's trade. Circumstances early turned the course of his life into a different channel. To afford the children of the neighborhood special advantages educationally, the proprietor of the Moselem furnace secured the services of a lady from New England, who was a born teacher and a friend to her pupils as well; who not only taught them their daily lessons but fired them with high ideals and an ambition to know more and achieve greater things. For a period of six years, for ten months of each year, Amos C. Rothermel sat under the beneficent instruction of that teacher, and he has never yet ceased to credit to that fortunate experience his success as a scholar and educator.

Having laid the foundation of his education in the village school at Moselem, he entered the Keystone State Normal School, at Kutztown, Berks county, and, after two years studious application, graduated from that institution. Soon after entering the normal school he turned his attention to teaching, beginning in Richmond township, where he taught successfully for three terms. Subsequently to his graduation he for one year conducted the Polytechnic Institute, at Gilberts, in Monroe County, Pa. In the fall of 1887 he returned to the Kutztown State Normal School for the purpose of preparing himself to take a course of training in a higher institution of learning. Completing his preparatory course in a year's time, he, in the fall of 1888, entered Franklin and Marshall College, at Lancaster, Pa., from which he graduated three years afterward with honor. Upon graduation from college he was elected to the faculty of the Kutztown State Normal School as Professor of Natural Science, a branch to which he had given much hard study, and was especially qualified to teach. His success as an instructor and disciplinarian marked him as a man fit for promotion, and in 1893 he was made vice-principal of the institution, but the duties of that position being only of a perfunctory character, they did not interfere with his duties of the classroom and he continued to hold the chair of Natural Science until in 1899, when he was elected Principal of the institution. His promotion to the principalship gave him the executive management of this large school with all the varied and weighty responsibilities which it involves. This change released him almost entirely from class work and he has since been teaching only such branches as are of a distinctly pedagogical character.

Though comparatively a young man Prof. Rothermel's administration of the Kutztown State Normal School from the very beginning has proved highly successful and satisfactory. He governs principally by conciliatory means, which he has found to answer almost every purpose; for he claims that when students are accorded just and considerate treatment they will almost invariably yield respectful obedience. While his policy of government has been mild it has yet been firm, and under him the institution has kept pace with the general educational progress of our rapidly moving age. Its standard has been raised and its different departments have been enlarged and improved to meet fully the requirements of the future. Its reputation has grown with its years and it is justly classed as one of the best State normal schools in the commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

On June 30, 1894, Prof. Rothermel married Miss Ada L. Spatz, daughter of John and Catharine (Moyer) Spatz, of Reading, and a lady of refinement and culture, and many excellent social qualities. No children have been born to them, but a bright little girl who has been adopted into their home receives the full measure of parental care and affection. In the matter of religion, Mr. and Mrs. Rothermel are members of the Reformed Church, it being the church of their ancestry through many generations. In politics Mr. Rothermel is a Democrat.

And such is the history of Prof. Amos C. Rothermel, a scholarly gentleman, a successful educator and a worthy representative of one of Berks county's oldest and most distinguished families.

MERKEL. The Merkels, like so many of the substantial and prosperous families of Berks county, Pa., trace their ancestry to the days when religious persecution was rife in France. The name Merkel has been greatly Anglicized. Originally it was variously spelled, the most common forms being Mercklen, Mercklin and Merklen. During the Revocation period in France (I) John Christian Merklen (Markley), born 1678, accompanied his parents to Amsterdam, Holland, whence he emigrated in about 1732 to America, becoming one of the earliest of the Alsatian emigrants to Pennsylvania. He came down into the Maxatawny Valley, and located at Moselem Springs, then Mosillia Creek, in Richmond township, Berks county. He died in 1766, the father of a numerous family, as follows: Peter, whose children were—Christian, Bernhard, Gideon, Catharine, Elizabeth, Sophia, Maria and Esther; George; Christian, who was county commissioner of Berks county from 1767 to 1770; Casper (Gaspard), who in 1771 became a trans-Allegheny pioneer and settled in West Newton, Westmoreland county, where he erceted the first mill west of the mountains, and also a stockade fort for the protection of the frontier settlers (Some of his descendants became prominent men, notably his son, Gen. Joseph Markley, 1777-1868, who was for many years prominent in business and political affairs in Western Pennsylvania, being in 1844, the Whig candidate for Governor, and defeated by his opponent, Francis R. Shunk, by a small majority); Catherine Stover; Franklina Rough; Mary Hill; Anna Maria Kramer; and Anna Lena. John Christian Merklen had considerable means when he emigrated. As early as May 7, 1734, he took up 150 acres of land, and six years later, April 23, 1740, he took up another patent of 150 acres, and again July 9, 1741, a patent of fifty acres, all in that section of Richmond township, known as the "Flat." On Nov. 16, 1751, he conveyed 175 acres of land in the "Flat" to his son George, "for the natural love and affection and for other considerations, and five pounds of current money of Pennsylvania to him in hand given."

There were three other pioneer settlers of the name who came over somewhat later than John Christian, and settled in the same township on adjoining lands. They were his kinsmen, possibly brothers, and their names were: Johan Nicholaus, Heinrich and Johan Georg. Deeds on record show that Nicholaus in 1759 sold land to Georg, who later sold it to his son Daniel, and he in turn in 1843 to his son John. In 1757 Johan Georg Mercklen was a witness to a land transaction between Nicholaus Merklen, et al. From tradition it appears that John Christian, Johan Nicholaus, Johan Georg and Heinrich were brothers, but those who would know definitely have passed away. It is family tradition that about 1742 when the Mercklens came on horseback from "The Flat" in Richmond township to explore the land along the waters of the Moselem, there were many wild geese along the waters, it being their hatching time, and that these geese attacked the pioneers, who had pitched their tents in the locality, and made an evening meal on goose eggs.

(II) George Mercklen (Merkel), son of John Christian, became one of the earliest settlers in Upper Berks county. His will bears the date Oct. 3, 1778, and it was probated Feb. 24, 1779, his death occurring some time between those two dates. In the will he stated he was "old in years." It was written by him, with a goose quill, in good English and in clear legible handwriting. Items in this document were: "Ample provision for my beloved wife," "Equitable distribution of my estate, personal and real, among my children," "The proper education of my children," "The two sarvers (slaves) Michael and Elizabeth Grof, to be disposed of as follows: Elizabeth shall remain on the old homestead with my beloved wife and son Casper until son Daniel shall arrive at twenty-one years of age, when he shall possess that property and Casper shall have Michael and the mill property, and the 200 acres of land belonging thereto" (located at Moselem in Richmond township). The slaves went with the property, greatly enhancing its value. Casper and Christian were executors of their father's vast estate. With others of his kin George Mercklen owned fully 1,300 acres of land around Moselem. On June 19, 1753, he took up sixty-three acres of land by patent, from Thomas and Richard Penn. In 1767 George Mercklen and his wife Catherine built at Moselem a large two and one-half story stone mansion, which is still standing in a good state of preservation. In the cornice in the front of the house is a big sandstone which bears the names of the builders and the date of erection. To George and his wife were born children: Casper, Christian, Catharine, Magdalena, Christina, Anna Elizabeth, Rebecca and Daniel.

(III) Casper Merkel, son of George, lived at Moselem, in Richmond township, owning and operating Merkel's mill, the first one being built by his father in 1749, the second by himself in 1796, and the present one in 1854 by Samuel Merkel, a grandson of Casper. Casper Merkel was prominent in public life and rendered great service to his county, State and country, being county commissioner from 1801 to 1804, a soldier of the Revolution and being officially connected with the Berks county militia. His brother Christian froze to death in Heinrich Heffner's arms while both were confined in a church used as a prison in New Jersey, during the Revolution. Casper Merkel was buried at Moselem Church, and a high sandstone marks his last resting place, the inscription thereon being now effaced by the elements. The grave is located about fifteen feet from the northeast corner of the old eight-cornered church, the foundation of which is still intact. Casper Merkel married Blandina Hottenstein, of Maxatawny township, and to them were born six children, three sons and three daughters, namely: Jacob; Benjamin m. Catharine Sheradin, and had two sons, George (who conducted the Lenhartsville furnace and whose children were: Benjamin, Wilson, James, Emma, wife of the late Rev. B. Weiss, and Florenda, wife of George Huey) and William (who had sons Rash and Daniel, of Reading); Hannah m. Stanley Kirby; Maria m. John Schwoyer; Elizabeth m. George Dreibelbis; and Solomon died in 1829, the father of Jacob, William (who had a son Solomon), Maria, Sarah, Hannah, Catharine and George (father of Gideon and Sarah).

(IV) Jacob Merkel, son of Casper, was a life long farmer at Moselem, where he had a tract of 200 acres. He was a large and powerful man, being six feet and three inches tall, and possessed of great strength. Like all members of the family he was a Democrat, and took great interest in the success of the party. With his family he attended Dunkel's church. He married Catharine Kershner, daughter of Conrad and Kate (Reeser) Kershner, farming people of Perry township, and to this union were born: Jacob, who settled at Boyertown and reared a large family; John; Samuel, who was county treasurer from 1867 to 1869; Mary, m. to John Kauffman; Elizabeth, m. to Elijah Moyer; Hannah, m. to Jacob Leibensperger; Hettie, m. to Joel Hoch; Sarah, m. to Joseph Miller; and Susanna, m. to William Rahn.

(V) John Merkel, son of Jacob, was born in Richmond township, in 1805, and for some years was a farmer in Windsor township, but later he purchased a farm of 180 acres of good land in Greenwich township, near Dunkel's Church, where he lived until his death. He was a well known man in his day, and like his father was of large physical proportions. At the time of his death he was an official of New Jerusalem (Dunkel's) Church. He married Esther Dunkel, daughter of Jacob and Hannah (Dreibelbis) Dunkel, and they became the parents of the following children: William D.; Caroline, m. to Charles Cline; Maria, who died young; Hettie, m. to Jacob Christ; John, who died aged thirty-seven years; Jacob, born 1836, m. to Lucy Ann Fisher; Samuel, m. to Amelia Dietrich; Hannah, m. to William Raubenhold; Susanna, who died aged thirty-seven years; Thomas D., m. to Louisa Sunday; and James L., m. to Sally Stein.

(VI) William D. Merkel, son of John and Esther (Dunkel), was born on his father's farm in Greenwich township, Sept. 26, 1829, and his education was obtained in the pay schools of the day. He has been a lifelong farmer, with the exception of from 1856 to 1864, when he was engaged in a mercantile business at Virginville. In 1864 he purchased a farm near Hamburg, on which he resided until 1874, and in this year bought the well known property near St. Paul's (Smoke) Church. This is exceedingly valuable, being one of the best locations in the township, and it contained 161 acres, adorned with large, substantial buildings, and supplied with fine Blue Mountain water. In 1899 Mr. Merkel retired from active life, and since that time has lived quietly on the homestead. After his retirement his son Melville conducted the farm for a time, but it is now carried on by Albert, Melville living with his father-in-law in the same township. Mr. Merkel is a Democrat, and from 1880 to 1886 served Windsor township as school director, later being auditor for some years. He and his family are consistent members of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, of which he has been trustee for many years.

On Nov. 10, 1855, Mr. Merkel married Mary Magdalena Dreibelbis, daughter of William Dreibelbis, of Richmond township. To this union were born the following children: Louisa, m. to Alfred K. Dietrich; Oscar, m. to Mary Dietrich; Annabella, m. to Joel Dietrich; John, m. to Ellen Schlenker; Sarah, deceased wife of Samuel Rentschler; Wilson W., m. to Lizzie T. Heffner; Mary, m. to David Wartzenluff; Hettie, m. to George Hollenbach; George, a bank clerk in New York, m. to Minnie Albright; Albert, m. to Amy Faust; and Melville, m. to Lizzie Hepner.

(VII) Wilson W. Merkel, son of William D. and Mary Magdalena (Dreibelbis), was born in Windsor township, Oct. 10, 1868, and is now engaged in farming at Krumsville, this county, where he owns a fine farm of sixty acres. In 1902 he erected a substantial bank barn. The house is comparatively new, and stands in the midst of a well kept lawn. Mr. Merkel is a stanch Democrat, and is active in public affairs, at the present time being a member of the Greenwich school board. With his family he attends Bethel's Zion Lutheran Church at Grimville.

In 1892 Mr. Merkel married Lizzie T. Heffner, who was born in 1872, daughter of Jacob S. and Amaia (Schlenker) Heffner. To this union have been born three children: Florence B., born March 28, 1894; Harvey A., Dec. 22, 1896; and Elsie E., Aug. 19, 1900.

In paternal lines Mrs. Merkel is a direct descendant of Andreas Haeffner, of Eberstadt, Germany, whose son Heinrich, born about 1725, emigrated to America Sept. 17, 1749. On Nov. 28, 1752, Heinrich Haeffner m. Maria Eva Kelchner, daughter of Matthäus Kelchner. Their son, Hans Georg Haeffner, born June 10, 1757, m. Maria Hummel (born Oct. 16, 1759, died Jan. 24, 1848), and died April 4, 1818. Jacob Heffner, son of Hans Georg and Maria (Hummel), born June 29, 1781, m. Anna Margaret ("Beckie") Dietrich (born Jan. 1, 1787, died July 14, 1838), and died Sept. 13, 1867. Their son, Jacob Heffner, born Sept. 20, 1814, died Oct. 13, 1880; he m. Anna Spohn (born July 20, 1819, died April 24, 1889), and among their children was Jacob S. Heffner, father of Mrs. Merkel. Jacob S. Heffner m. Amaia Schlenker, daughter of Reuben and Anna (Fisher) Schlenker, who are buried at Grimville, Pa. To bless this union came children as follows: Sarah A., born 1868, m. Daniel Moyer, and is deceased; Katie C. born 1870, m. George W. Weida; and Lizzie T., born 1872, m. Wilson W. Merkel.

(VI) Jacob D. Merkel, son of John and Esther (Dunkel), was born in 1836, near Dunkel's Church, and was reared to farming, a vocation he followed all his life. He began for himself in Maxatawny township, where he owned 137 acres, and there he died in 1896. He was a man of fine physique and remarkable energy, and he was very successful in all his undertakings. In politics he was a stanch Democrat, and for many years served as school director. He was an official member of Maxatawny Zion's Union Church, and gave liberally toward the erection of the new church in 1890, besides hauling without charge for services 10,100 bricks from Kutztown to be used in its construction. He married Lucy Ann Fisher, daughter of Daniel K. Fisher, and sister of county commissioner Samuel Fisher. They became the parents of the following children: Louisa, who died aged twenty-one years; Irwin H., of Bath, Pa.; John E.; Nicholas, of Allentown; Mary, m. to Daniel Weaver; Thomas F., of Allentown; and Esther, m. to Lewis Rothermel, of Mohnton, Pennsylvania.

(VII) John E. Merkel, son of Jacob D., now the proprietor of "Merkel's Inn," at Reading, was born in Maxatawny township, Berks county, Aug. 11, 1865. He was brought up on the home farm, where he remained until he was seventeen, and then he went to Virginville, Pa., to clerk in the coal and lumber office of F. F. Dreibelbis, remaining there for four years. The next seventeen years were passed in Royersford, Pa., clerking in different stores there. On Oct. 14, 1907, he came to Reading and purchased the fixtures and good will of Thomas Godfrey, at Tenth and Muhlenberg streets, and he has since been conducting that hotel with great success. Socially he belongs to the Jr. O. U. A. M.; and Castle No. 99, K. G. E., both of Royersford. In politics he is a Democrat, and in religion, with his family, he attends the Lutheran Church. He married Emma George, daughter of Jacob and Julia (Billig) George, of Greenwich township. They have one son, J. Samuel, a meter maker at Royersford.

(VI) Thomas D. Merkel, son of John and Esther (Dunkel), was born June 13, 1849, and was a lifelong farmer in Greenwich township, where he died March 9, 1899. His farm which consisted of 170 acres of very fertile land, lay a quarter of a mile south of Dunkel's Church, and a mile north of Virginville. He built the present house in 1870, and an addition ten years later. In 1869 he married Louisa Sunday, born in 1851, died in 1900, daughter of George and Catharine (Siegfried) Sunday. Both Thomas D. Merkel and his wife Louisa are buried at New Jerusalem (Dunkel's) Church. Their children were: Elwood S., born Feb. 3, 1870; George E., born Feb. 20, 1871, m. Katie Seidel, and died leaving one daughter; Richard, born 1872, died aged six; Titus S., born 1873; Mahlon T., born 1875; James W., born 1877, m. Laura A. Adams; Jacob A., born 1879, died aged thirteen; Chester S., born 1881, m. Katie Adam; Mary H., born 1882; Katie C., born 1883, died in infancy; Lizzie S., born 1884, a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, is now engaged in teaching; and Harvey E., born 1885. George and Catharine (Siegfried) Sunday had five children, namely: Louisa, m. to Thomas D. Merkel; Christian; George; John; and Mary, m. to J. Hoffenden. George Sunday, the father, is buried at Zion's Church.

(VII) Titus S. Merkel, son of Thomas D. and Louisa, was born in 1873 in Greenwich township, on the farm adjoining his present home. He is a good practical agriculturist, and is winning success in his chosen calling. He married Clara D. Kerchner, born in 1879, daughter of Landis and Brehitta (Balthauser) Kerchner, the latter a daughter of John Balthauser. They have one child, Verna C., born Oct. 24, 1904. Mr. Merkel is a Democrat, and while taking a keen interest in his party's success has no desire to hold office. He and his wife belong to New Jerusalem (Dunkel's) Church.

(III) Daniel Merkel, son of George and grandson of John Christian, was born in Richmond township. He became a large land owner, and is said to have had two of the finest farms in the entire township, located in the "Flat", about two miles east of Moselem Spring, one of which is now owned by Franklin D. Heffner, a prominent citizen, and the other by John Merkel, a grandson. Daniel Merkel m. a Miss Christ, and their children were: John Jacob; Benjamin; John; Isaac; Daniel (2); Solomon, who settled in Brecknock township, Berks county; William; Catharine, m. to John Schollenberger; and Mrs. George Schaeffer.

(IV) Daniel Merkel (2), son of Daniel, was born in Richmond township, Dec. 22, 1798, and died Nov. 29, 1868, and was buried at Zion's Union Church in Maxatawny. He was always a farmer. Soon after his marriage he located in Maxatawny township, where he owned the farm now owned by his son Elias. He was a member of Zion Church, which he served as deacon and elder. The family lot in the cemetery there has a massive monument. Daniel Merkel (2) married Maria Sell, born 1802, died 1877, and their children were: Catharine, who died unmarried; Matilda, m. to Jonathan Clauser; Ann, m. to John Stern; and Elias.

(V) Elias Merkel, son of Daniel (2), was born Nov. 22, 1833, and is now living retired near Topton. He was familiar with farming from childhood, and on reaching mature years made it his occupation. He retired in 1891, but still lives on his farm, in a part of the large house. There are 124 acres in the farm. Mr. Merkel built the barn 40 x 100 feet, in 1873. He greatly altered the house, adding many modern conveniences. In politics Mr. Merkel is a Democrat, and has been school director. He and his family are Lutheran members of Maxatawny Zion Church, in which for some years he was a deacon and for twenty-five has been elder. On Nov. 20, 1855, Mr. Merkel married Alinda De Long, born April 5, 1834, daughter of David and Anna (Bieber) De Long, of near Bowers. She died Dec. 27, 1901. Their five children were: Andora, who married Henry H. Yoder, of Oley, and died Jan. 15, 1903; Louisa, who married Oscar O. Sell, of Kutztown, and died Jan. 26, 1903; Edwin D., who married Annie G. Trexler, has a son Charles E., and is now living retired at Lyons; Ida, wife of Alvin J. Miller, of Topton, and mother of Harvey J.; and Annie, who married William L. Schaeffer, and they live with Mr. Merkel.

(IV) John Jacob Merkel, son of Daniel, was born in 1793, and he became a farmer and extensive land owner in Richmond township, where he died in 1862. He is buried at Fleetwood. He married Elizabeth Sharadin, daughter of Peter Sharadin. She died in 1875, in her seventy-eighth year. Their children were: Esther, m. to Philip Schaeffer, of Fleetwood; Elizabeth, m. to Peter Kieffer, of Lyons; William S.; Jacob, born 1822, a prosperous farmer of Richmond; Maria, who married Joel Hoch, of Fleetwood; Joshua, a retired farmer at Kutztown; and James, who married Mary Kelchner, of Fleetwood. All are now deceased except Joshua.

(V) William S. Merkel, son of John Jacob, was born Oct. 20, 1820, and he became the owner of a fine farm of 133 acres one-half mile east of Moselem. He followed farming during a long and successful life, and he died March 29, 1880. He married Esther H. Dunkel, daughter of John and Eliza (Hill) Dunkel, of Maiden-creek township, and they had children as follows: Emma L., born in 1848, married John K. Biehl, a carpenter in Richmond township, and is now deceased; Mary, born in 1852, married Gustavus Dreibelbis, of Virginville; John D., born in 1855, was killed by falling from a straw stack Oct. 14, 1907; Howard D., born in 1858, resides in the borough of Kutztown; and Sarah, born in 1860, married Adam Freehaver, of Reading.

Mrs. Esther H. (Dunkel) Merkel survived her husband many years, and passed to her reward Feb. 24, 1908, at the age of eighty-two. She was well known and greatly beloved throughout the township. She was a member (Reformed) and active worker in St. Peter's (Becker's Church in Richmond, and there her burial took place.

(V) Jacob Merkel, son of John Jacob, born Oct. 25, 1822, was a prosperous farmer in Richmond township, where he owned a farm of 132 acres, now the property of Edwin S. Kutz. Within a year of his death Mr. Merkel erected the present substantial barn. He died Jan 1, 1869, and was buried in Fairview cemetery, Kutztown. He married Amelia Schwartz, of Trexlertown, born Oct. 19, 1831, and she died Oct. 9, 1901. Their children were: Frank lives at Fleetwood; Elmira (born June 23, 1855, died July 28, 1875) m. Frank Adam, of Fleetwood, and had two children, Edward and Henry (deceased); Jacob, a school teacher, later engaged in a mercantile business at Yellow House, Pa.; Wilson C. and Milton R. (of Maiden-creek township) are twins; Alfred S. is a policeman in Allentown, Pa.; Sarah m. Solomon Rothermel, of Half Way House; Miss Hannah is at Allentown; and Miss Annie is in Maiden-creek township.

(VI) Wilson C. Merkel, son of Jacob, was born March 23, 1858. He was educated in the public schools and at the Keystone State Normal School, Kutztown, and his training at home was along agricultural lines. He learned the miller's trade and was in the milling business at Circleville, Ohio, where he lived nine years from 1887, and was most successful. He returned to Pennsylvania, in the spring of 1896, and located at Kutztown, where he has since made his home. In 1905 he erected a cosy cottage on Park avenue for his home. Since their return East Mr. Merkel and his wife have spent a great deal of time in travel, having passed a year in the West, visiting California, New Mexico and other interesting points. Mr. Merkel was obliged to give up the mill business as the dust was affecting his health.

On Sept. 26, 1886, Mr. Merkel married Fannie E. Heffner, daughter of the late George and Mary (Spohn) Heffner, of Mill creek, in Maxatawny township. They are members of Trinity Lutheran Church in Kutztown, in which Mr. Merkel has been a deacon since 1899. Both he and his wife are active in church and philanthropic work, and are highly esteemed by all who know them.

(V) Joshua Merkel, son of John Jacob, was born in Richmond township July 7, 1828. For a few months each winter he attended the pay school in the neighborhood, and the remainder of the time he devoted to farm work, continuing at home until he was twenty-eight years of age. He then became a tenant farmer in Richmond township, and after some years purchased a valuable farm of eighty-eight acres, located one-half mile from Moselem church. This he cultivated until his removal to Kutztown, where he has lived retired ever since, making his home with his son, Zacharias K. In 1855 Jacob Merkel married Matilda Kemp, daughter of George Kemp, and she died in 1896. Two children were born of this union: Amanda, m. to John De Turk, of Kutztown; and Zacharias.

(VI) Zacharias K. Merkel, son of Joshua and Matilda, and present proprietor of the "Maxatawny Hotel," in Maxatawny township, was born April 1, 1861, in Richmond township. He attended the public schools near his home, and in 1872 went to the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, where he studied in all three terms. He gave his services to his parents until he attained his majority. At the age of twenty-three he went to Reading, and there attended the Reading Academy and Business College under Prof. D. B. Brunner, preparing himself for the business world. He graduated in 1885, and became a clerk in August Frame's cigar store, at the corner of Sixth and Penn streets, and there he remained several years. For one year he clerked in a shoe factory in Reading. About 1889 he came to Kutztown, and engaged in the manufacture of cigars, also conducting a cigar store on Main street, continuing in this line for about ten years. For five years he clerked in the general store of Oscar D. Merkel, and for three years tended bar at the "Pennsylvania Hotel," at Kutztown. In the spring of 1907 he became proprietor of the "Maxatawny Hotel," and this he has conducted with constantly increasing success. In politics Mr. Merkel is a Democrat, and has been a delegate to different county conventions. With his family he attends Trinity Lutheran Church.

In October, 1892, Mr. Merkel married Kate Michael, daughter of Paul Michael, of Kutztown, and they have three children: Luther P., Viola C. and Flora L.

ELWOOD SOLON MERKEL, of Windsor township, Berks county, was born Feb. 3, 1870, in the township which is at present his place of residence, but his early years were all spent in Greenwich township, where his father's farm lay. His parents were Thomas D. and Louisa (Sunday) Merkel.

Mr. Merkel attended the schools in Greenwich township till he had completed the course of study offered there, and then entered the Keystone State Normal. He remained there three terms and prepared himself to take a teacher's position. In the fall of 1889 he secured Sunday's school, in Windsor township, and conducted it successfully two full terms. But in 1891 he gave up this work and turned his attention toward farming, making that his occupation ever since. He began on Dr. P. K. Dreibelbis' farm at Dreibelbis Station, but after two years there he moved to his grandfather's place, the Sunday farm, and worked there one year. The following nine years were spent on a farm belonging to his father in Perry township, and then Mr. Merkel moved to the farm which he now occupies.

The property purchased by Mr. Merkel includes seventy acres, on which there is an excellent water supply. Since buying it, he has greatly improved the place and has transformed it into one of the best farms in that district. It is largely a dairy farm and Mr. Merkel operates a milk route to Hamburg, supplying the best citizens of that place with his products. He owns twenty-four cows and his sales average 54,600 quarts of milk annually. In 1904 he added a poultry business, going into it on quite an extensive scale. He sells his eggs in the retail market, largely among his milk customers. He has built a large hen house, most admirably arranged, and now has about 400 hens, most of them Buff Leghorns. Mr. Merkel's success, based on good judgment and intelligent effort, combined with economy and thrifty methods, has been well-deserved and his example is an encouraging one to all young farmers. He has been active politically also, supporting the Democratic party, has served his district as assessor since 1905, and as roadmaster since the spring of 1906. The position of school director was likewise offered him but it was declined.

On Dec. 7, 1890, Mr. Merkel married Miss Isadora Seidel, daughter of Henry G. and Emma (Balthaser) Seidel. To this union have been born a son and a daughter: Floyd Milton, who is attending the Pennsylvania State College, taking the Agricultural Course; and Edna Elmira.

WELLINGTON B. KRICK, wholesale liquor dealer of Reading, and until recently the proprietor of the Bissinger Cafe, the best appointed and most popular cafe in Reading, was born Sept. 10, 1858, in Sinking Spring, Berks county, son of John and Elizabeth (Barnes) Krick.

Frantz Krick, the great-grandfather of Wellington B. Krick, on coming to America settled in Berks county, Pa., and his land has now been in the family for two hundred years. Peter Krick, son of Frantz, married and lived in Berks county. His son, John, father of Wellington B., was born in Spring township, and died in Reading, in 1901, aged sixty-seven years. He was a miller by trade. He married Elizabeth Barnes, born at Adamstown, who died aged seventy years, eighteen days before her husband. A sister of hers still survives, aged eighty-eight years. The children of John and Elizabeth Krick were nine in number, the survivors being as follows: Mary m. Joseph Bellman, of Reading; Rosie m. Charles Gring, of Camden, N. J., owner of tugboats and barges on the Delaware river; Ellen m. Edwin Lengel, a machinist of Reading; Hannah m. Daniel Baer, a farmer of Berks county; Wellington B. is mentioned below. The deceased children were: Francis, who died in infancy; George, who died aged eight years; Henry, who was accidentally killed while crossing railroad tracks, just seven weeks after his marriage, aged thirty years; and Sallie, who died aged ten years.

Wellington B. Krick attended the public schools until he was nine years old, at that age going on a farm, where he continued to work until he was twelve. His father then moved to Birdsboro and the lad found work in the Brooke nail factory, where he remained two years. He was then employed by George W. Hain, in a grocery business, for a year, after which he spent a year on a farm in Muhlenberg township. His next employer was William Clyman, with whom he remained for two and a half years, and then he went back to farming, working seven years for Thomas Moyer.

Mr. Krick came to Reading Jan. 13, 1879, and for thirteen months and two weeks worked with Augustus Hassler, as a waiter in a restaurant at the Washington Library, Penn street, entering the employ of Capt. Philip Bissinger Feb. 22, 1880. He remained with this employer for sixteen years, during the last four years of which period he was the superintendent of the restaurant. On Jan. 1, 1895, he became proprietor of this popular cafe, having the largest business of the kind in the city. His patrons averaged eight hundred daily, and there are accommodations for 1,200. His long experience made him a fine caterer, and his services were in request on all festive occasions in the city during his connection with the restaurant business. In 1908 he sold the cafe to Aaron Brownmiller for $107,000 and he is now devoting his attention to the wholesale liquor trade, having bought out William C. Yoder. His place of business is at No. 635 Penn street, Reading.

Mr. Krick married April 6, 1886, Emma S. Shepp, the estimable daughter of John Shepp, a farmer living north of Reading. They have had four children, namely: Elnora died aged nine years; Philip died aged five years; George died aged thirteen months; Estella, a graduate of the Reading high school, class of 1908, who spent one year at the National Park Seminary, Forest Glen, Washington, D. C., is now her father's valued assistant, looking after the books, and in other ways proving herself a capable business woman. The family home is at No. 109 North Fourth street.

Mr. Krick is a member of the Masonic fraternity, in which he has reached the thirty-second degree; he belongs to Teutonia Blue Lodge, No. 367; Excelsior Chapter, No. 42; Harrisburg Commandery, K. T.; the Consistory; the Scottish Rite; and Rajah Temple, Mystic Shrine. For twenty-eight years he has been a member of Camp No. 61, P. O. S. of A., which is the oldest P. O. S. of A. Camp in the State and the only one which did not disband during the war of the Rebellion. He also belongs to the I. O. O. F., besides which he is a valued member of the Reading Press Club and the Reading Board of Trade. He is interested in the Southwestern Electric Railway Company, of which he is a director, and he is also a director of the Murphy-Parker Company, book-binders of Philadelphia.

In politics Mr. Krick is a Republican, but he has always declined office of a political nature. He is a member of the Second Reformed Church of Alsace, and is a very liberal supporter of all its various benevolent enterprises.

No resident and few visitors to Reading were ignorant of the really fine accommodations offered at the Bissinger Cafe during Mr. Krick's proprietorship, and in this connection he was best known. He gave regular employment to thirty people, his patronage came from the most fastidious citizens of both sexes, and the appointments and comforts of the establishment compare favorably with those of much larger cities. Mr. Krick was a careful, solicitous and genial host. In this connection he naturally made an unusually wide circle of acquaintances, but aside from any popularity due to his prominence in this line he has been one of the best and most favorably known men in his section of Pennsylvania for years. His standing is unquestioned and well deserved.

CHARLES PHILIP MUHLENBERG was born at Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 24, 1838, fifth son of Dr. F. A. Muhlenberg. His education was begun at home, but he also attended the common schools of his native city, and in 1853 entered the sophomore class at Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, graduating from that institution in 1856. He began the study of law with Nathaniel Ellmaker, Esq., of Lancaster, and concluded his legal studies in the office of J. Pringle Jones, being admitted to the Berks county Bar in 1859, from which time until the opening of the Civil war, he practiced his profession in Reading. In April, 1861, he became a member of the Ringgold Light Artillery. The following month he was commissioned as first lieutenant in the 5th United States Artillery Regiment, and served as an officer of artillery during the whole of the war. He received the brevet of captain for services in the Peninsular campaign; received the brevet of major for gallant conduct at the battle of Antietam; was in the campaign of the Wilderness and of Petersburg under General Grant, and resigned from the army at the close of 1867 to resume the practice of his profession in Reading. He died in January, 1872, at the early age of thirty-four years.

GUSTAV A. ENDLICH, LL. D., law writer and jurist, was born Jan. 29, 1856, in Lower Alsace township, Berks Co., Pa., son of John and Emma N. (Miller) Endlich.

John Endlich was a native of Hesse Darmstadt, Germany (born March 30, 1819), and received a thorough education, embracing also a special training in music, for which art he evinced both original talent and early predilection. For a time he held a position in the government department of forestry, and in 1839 emigrated to America, locating in the city of Reading, Pa., where for some years he taught music and engaged in musical composition. His works in the department of sacred music, to which at a later period he devoted more especial attention, received highly favorable recognition both here and abroad, and were extensively employed in the liturgy and service of the Lutheran Church. In his political faith he was a Democrat of the old school, and in earlier life participated actively in various local and State campaigns of that party. In 1857 he was appointed by President Buchanan United States Consul to Basle, Switzerland, which post he held for four years. He married, in 1845, Emma N. (born April 15, 1819), daughter of the Rev. Jacob Miller, D. D., who was for forty-two years a prominent minister of the Lutheran Church, and from 1829 until his death, in 1850, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church of Reading. The children of this marriage who survived to maturity were: Emma A., Frederick M. and Gustav A., all of whom shared the intellectuality of the parents. Miss Emma Endlich is possessed of marked literary talent, which she has employed principally in the interests of the publications of the Lutheran Church, a number of her translations from the German and Swedish literature attesting her skill and proficiency in a department of labor to which she has devoted many years of her active and useful life. The late Frederick M. Endlich, who died in 1899, held the degree of Doctor of Natural Sciences from the University at Tübingen; was a specialist in mineralogy and geology, and for some years immediately previous to his death was engaged in that profession in New Mexico, California and Arizona.

During the interval between 1866 and 1872 Mr. John Endlich resided with his family in Germany, in order to give his sons the benefit of a thorough preliminary training in the schools of Stuttgart, Tübingen and Darmstadt. Distinguished for the purity of his life, the amiability of his character and the grace and dignity of his manners, he spent the evening of his days in retirement at his handsome country seat near Reading, his death occurring Jan. 18, 1892, when well advanced in the seventy-third year of his age. His estimable wife, a lady of superior intellectual endowments, survived him until Sept. 14, 1899, dying at the age of eighty.

Having enjoyed the advantages of the training of the foreign schools mentioned, Gustav A. Endlich, the youngest son, upon the return of his family from Germany in 1872, entered Princeton University, where his aptitude and diligence in his studies attracted the favorable notice of the faculty, and secured for him first honors of his class in his junior year. He graduated with distinction in 1875, and in the same year began the study of law in the office of George F. Baer, Esq., a leading practitioner of the Berks County Bar, and was admitted to practice Nov. 12, 1877. In the following year the degree of Master of Arts was conferred upon him by his Alma Mater. He was later admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, and in 1887 to the Bar of the Supreme Court of the United States.

His inclination to legal authorship was early developed, and in 1882 he published his first work, "The Law of Building Associations in the United States"—a volume of about seven hundred pages, of which he issued in 1895 a revised edition. The work has been recognized as standard authority upon the subject of which it treats, and has frequently been cited with approval by the highest courts in Pennsylvania and other States. This was followed in 1884 by a treatise on "The Law of Affidavits of Defense in Pennsylvania," which received equally favorable endorsement by the courts of the State, and in 1885 by two volumes of the Decisions of the Honorable Warren J. Woodward, President Judge of the several Courts of Berks County from 1861 to 1874, and subsequently an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. In 1888 Mr. Endlich published his most considerable work, which more than any other has contributed to the reputation of the learned author. This was the "Commentaries on the Interpretation of Statutes," a volume of between eight hundred and nine hundred pages, containing citations of upwards of eight thousand decided cases in illustration of the text. It is received as a leading authority in the courts throughout the country, and is not unknown to the profession in England, eliciting high commendation from Bench and Bar for its accuracy and completeness. In 1889, in association with Louis Richards, Esq., a fellow member of the Berks County Bar, likewise engaged in the literary line of the profession, he issued a treatise upon "The Rights and Liabilities of Married Women in Pennsylvania," a work mainly devoted to the elucidation of the then recent Act of Assembly of 1887, which materially enlarged the contractual powers of femes covert with respect to their separate property. With few exceptions the theories and opinions advanced by the authors upon questions arising for the first time in Pennsylvania subsequently received the approval of the Supreme and lower Courts.

The manifest qualifications of Mr. Endlich for the judicial office procured for him in the fall of 1889 the Democratic nomination, over a number of able and energetic competitors, to the position of Additional Law Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of the Twenty-third (Berks) Judicial District. Elected at the general election of that year, he entered upon the duties of the office in January, 1890, for the term of ten years. Such was the general acceptability with which he discharged his official duties that upon the expiration of his term he was renominated and reelected, receiving at that time the compliment of an endorsement by the Republican party. Upon the decease, in August, 1908, of his colleague, the Hon. James N. Ermentrout, President Judge of the District, Judge Endlich was commissioned as his successor for the balance of his term. At the primary election in June, 1909, he was nominated for President Judge for the ensuing term of ten years from the first Monday of January, 1910, his election being regarded as a foregone conclusion.

During his twenty years' service upon the Bench his administration has been characterized throughout by unremitting industry, marked ability and official independence—qualities which have secured for him not only the general approbation of the Bar and people of his constituency, but a high reputation as a jurist throughout the State. No member of the Common Pleas Bench, it may be asserted, ranks higher as an authority in the law, or excels him in application to business, celerity of method, and quick apprehension of the point at issue. His written opinions, now numbering upwards of one thousand, are models of research, accuracy and completeness, and contain much material of permanent value in the elucidation of the respective subjects considered. The large proportion of his decisions which have been affirmed by the Supreme and Superior Courts—many of them without comment other than unqualified endorsement—attest the general soundness of his judicial conclusions. By request of his judicial brethren in other districts, he has frequently presided in the courts of various counties of the State, in some instances for entire terms for the despatch of accumulated business, and in others to supply casual vacancies.

In addition to his official labors, Judge Endlich has found time to prepare and deliver addresses upon various topics of the law before law schools and Bar Associations in different parts of the State, many of which have appeared in the legal periodicals. An address upon the Law of Expert Testimony read before the Pennsylvania Bar Association at its annual meeting in July, 1898, attracted much attention from the profession at large as a scholarly and suggestive elucidation of a difficult subject. In 1903 he delivered the Commencement address before the law school of Dickinson College, and was honored with the degree of LL. D. by that institution. For several years immediately succeeding his first election he was editor of the Criminal Law Magazine and Reporter. In 1905 he was elected president of the Pennsylvania German Society, and in 1906, president of the board of trustees of Muhlenberg College, at Allentown, whose degree of Doctor of Laws he had received in 1898. At the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Bar Association in July, 1909, he was accorded the distinguished honor of an election to the presidency of that body—a position which has been filled successively by many eminent lawyers and jurists of the State.

In his political faith Judge Endlich is a Democrat, and previous to his election to the Bench participated actively in the affairs of that party. As a judge, it need hardly be said, he is influenced by no considerations of partisanship or favoritism, his impartiality being as distinguishing a feature of his official administration as his ability. In his church connection he is a Lutheran, having served for some years as an elder of the Trinity Lutheran Church of Reading, and a member of the executive committee of the Ministerium of Pennsylvania. As a citizen he is public-spirited, taking an active part in local organizations for the promotion of associated charities and social reform. Upright in character and life he possesses the personal respect and esteem of all classes of the community. He married in 1883, Amy Duffield, of Bucks County, Pennsylvania, and of their four children two daughters are living.

NATHAN KUNKEL, the only survivor of his father's family, now residing on the original Kunkel homestead near Wessnersville, was born May 8, 1830. He is well known in Albany township, where he is one of the largest taxpayers, and now in his declining years is enjoying life.

The Kunkels were among the pioneer families in Albany township, Berks county. The family was founded there by (I) Georg Kunkel (also spelled Kunckell and Kungel), a native of Germany, who located there some time prior to 1754, and it appears that he reared a large family. In Rupp's History of Berks County his name appears on the list of taxables of 1756, as "George Kunckell." In 1759, according to Montgomery's History of Berks County (1886), his name is listed as George Kungel; in this latter year he paid a tax of £6. At the Kunkel homestead is an old grandfather's clock that bears the date of 1772. It was brought into the house at the same time the house was being built, and is the workmanship of George Miller, of Germantown. It has kept good time all these years. On the brass face appear the letters "I. G. K." Georg Kunkel lived where now resides Nathan Kunkel, near Wessnersville. This tract has been in the family name since about 1754. Georg Kunkel was a farmer, and since his time his farm has been divided and sub-divided. His land at one time included all the upper end of Stony Run. He is buried at Wessnersville. His children were: George and Peter.

(II) George Kunkel, son of Georg, had these children: George Michael, John Adam (born May 8, 1792, died April 11, 1860; m. Magdalena, born Aug. 17, 1792, died May 19, 1844), Andraes, Jacob, and Sally (m. John Wagaman).

(III) George Michael Kunkel, born Aug. 4, 1789, died Jan. 25, 1862. After the death of his father he became the owner of the old homestead, which was divided into three farms, George Michael receiving 155 acres, John Adam sixty acres, and John Wagaman twenty acres. George Michael Kunkel married Regina Krohn, born June 11, 1790, died Jan. 12, 1866. They had children: Benjamin, born 1810, died 1890; Elizabeth, born 1815, died 1884; Salome m. Adam Lynn; Polly (Maria), born 1825, died 1874; Samuel, born Nov. 1, 1827, died April 2, 1903; Nathan, born May 8, 1830, is living and the owner of the old homestead; Michael, born Sept. 9, 1835, died April 2, 1907. Salome was the only one of this family that married. The other six children remained unmarried and lived on the farm now occupied by Nathan Kunkel, who is now the only survivor of the family. He erected a large monument in the cemetery at Wessnersville, where so many of his family rest.

(II) Peter Kunkel, son of Georg the pioneer, born Dec. 20, 1774, in Albany township, died Oct. 28, 1830. After his marriage he moved to Lynn township, Lehigh county, where he engaged in farming and also operated a distillery on his farm. Later he lived near Wessnersville, where he owned a tract of 275 acres, which is now owned by a descendant, Charles Kunkel. All the land in upper Stony Run was once in the name of this family. In 1797 Peter Kunkel married Maria Magdalena Rausch, born Nov. 10, 1778, died April 12, 1846. They had fourteen children, eleven of whom survived their parents (sixteen grandchildren also surviving). Among these children were: Daniel (mentioned elsewhere), David, Andraes, Benjamin, Joseph, Peter, Polly (m. Jacob Elbert), Catharine (m. John Dietrich) and Sophia.

(III) Joseph Kunkel (son of Peter, son of the pioneer) was born in Lynn township, Lehigh county, but in the spring of 1825 he came across the line into Berks county, settling in Albany township, where he owned and operated a grist and saw mill, and followed farming. His mill stood in the Stony Run, and to this day is known as "Kunkel's Mill." He was succeeded in the ownership of this property by his son Reuben. To the mill property belong forty-one acres of land. He married Catharine Snyder, a native of Lynn township, and they had twelve children, namely: Peter (1817-1843, m. Sarah Schollenberger), Magdalena, Nathan, Joseph, Daniel S. (Sept. 25, 1832-190-), Jeremiah (1834-1904, conducted a hotel at Wessnersville many years; m. Sarah E. Holben, 1847-1900), Jacob, Catharine, Reuben (1836-1908), Sarah, David (a farmer in Albany, m. Seniah Stump and died in July, 1903), and Rebecca (m. David Heckert and had one son, Milton). All are deceased. The father, Joseph Kunkel, died March 10, 1866; the mother died May 21, 1885.

(IV) Reuben Kunkel, son of Joseph, born Nov. 9, 1836, died May 1, 1908, and is buried at Wessnersville. He was one of the best known men of the township, for many years owning and conducting Kunkel's Mill in Stony Run, where he passed all the seventy-one years of his life. The present large stone mill was built in 1838 by Joseph Kunkel, his father. The preceding mill, owned by George Greenawalt, was the first mill at that location. In politics Reuben Kunkel was a Democrat, and for many years served as school director. He was very enterprising, and as the years went on he added a stationary sawmill and cider press, and a portable sawmill, to his original mill. He was succeeded in business by Sellers & Stein, but his son Ambrose J. conducts the business for them. Mr. Kunkel married Sarah Weida, born April 20, 1844, died July 13, 1903, and of their ten children six died young. The survivors are: Emma, an invalid; Ambrose J.; Maurice D.; and Lewis W.

(V) Maurice D. Kunkel, son of Reuben, was born in Stony Run, at Kunkel's Mill, Aug. 24, 1880. He attended the Clover Mill school, and was trained to the milling business and to farming, all under the guidance of his father. On June 9, 1902, he married Anna B. Stroher, daughter of George and Caroline Stroher, of Germany, now of Westfield, Tioga Co., Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Kunkel have two daughters and one son: Lennia Caroline, Florence Leonia and Maurice Nathan.

Maurice D. Kunkel was the administrator of the Michael Kunkel estate. Michael Kunkel was one of four bachelor brothers who lived in pioneer simplicity near Wessnersville, where they owned 155 acres of land. An old log house still standing on this tract was one of the first houses in the section. It has a window 12 x 18 inches, from which prowling Indians and wild beasts were met with death-dealing lead. It has a big stone chimney with a very large base. Spinning-wheels, tallow dips, old wood stoves and many primitive relics were found here. A stone building, now sadly dilapidated, was for many years used as a distillery.

ESHBACH. There is a tradition that three Eschbach brothers came to America from Switzerland before the middle of the eighteenth century, and it is said that they first located in Berks county, Pa., but that two of them later settled in other parts, one supposedly in the vicinity of Millersburg, Lancaster county, where Eschbachs are still living. Where the other settled is unknown.

Two Andrew Eshenbachs came to America (according to the Pennsylvania Archives), one in 1740, the other in 1744. The former, a native of Germany, came in the ship "Friendship," landing at Philadelphia Sept. 23, 1740, and made a settlement in Colebrookdale township, Berks county, where it is known an Andrew Eshenbach was located in 1752. In 1759 he was an assessed taxable there, paying £9 tax that year. However, he is said to have left these parts.

In 1737 one Peter Eshbach (Espacher) and his son Christophel (also Christopher) came to this country on the "St. Andrew Galley." In 1732 Christopher Eshbach (Ashbach) was assessed as a single man in Hereford township. The ship "St. Andrew" in 1749 brought two Christian Eschbachers (Eschbach) to America, undoubtedly father and son. In the graveyard at the Hereford (Bally) Mennonite meeting-house is a tombstone bearing the following inscription: "Christian Eschbach, born 1737, died April 27, 1809, aged 71 years, 11 months." This Christian Eschbach was presumably the son of Christian Eschbach (er), who emigrated in 1749. He made his last will and testament April 20, 1809, at which time his home was in Hereford township. In this document, which is on record in Will Book 5, page 226, he provided amply for his wife Catharine, the following children receiving share and share alike: John, Christian, Abraham, Martin, Henry and Peter. Abraham Ehst, born in 1816, at present a resident of Barto, Berks Co., Pa., and who has a most remarkable memory, gives the children of Christian Eschbach (1737-1809) as follows: John, Christian, Heinrich, Abraham, Peter, Martin and Elizabeth.

Henry Eschbach, son of Christian, born Jan. 4, 1771, made his will in 1832, and died March 11, 1841. He lived and conducted a sawmill, which stood where the county cement bridge is now located, at Barto. His wife, Maria Anna (Moyer), born May 4, 1765, died July 21, 1851. Their children were: Catharine, Rebecca, Elizabeth, Molly, Barbara and Elijah. The son Elijah and Andrew Koch, a son-in-law, were named as executors of the will. [Another account gives children as Elijah, Mrs. Koch, Mrs. Haas and Elizabeth, the last named dying unmarried.]

Peter Eshbach, son of Christian, lived in Colebrookdale township, above Grim's Mill, owning his 100-acre farm, which place is now the property of Elam Moyer. He was a thrifty farmer and useful citizen, serving as supervisor, tax collector and in other local offices. He was a Republican in politics. He is buried at the Hill Church, of which he was a member. Peter Eshbach was twice married, his first wife being Elizabeth Bechtel. By her he had four children, Christian (mentioned below), Isaac (mentioned below), William, and Betzy (or Susan) (m. John Roland and lived in Hereford township). To the second marriage was born one son, John, who lived back of Clayton, Berks county.

Christian Eshbach, son of Peter, was born June 20, 1800, in Colebrookdale township and died Jan. 16, 1887; he is buried at the Hill Church. He was a farmer all his life, and prospered in that calling, owning a tract of 133 acres in Colebrookdale township, now the property of Alfred Seisholtz. His wife, Hannah Ritter, daughter of Matthew Ritter, was born Oct. 21, 1809, and died Oct. 10, 1891, when only a few days less than eighty-two years old. Sixteen children were born to this worthy couple, namely: Daniel (deceased), William (deceased), Maria (deceased), Sarah (deceased), Anna, Kate (Catharine) (deceased), Henry (deceased), David, Abraham, Levi R., John, Aaron, Mary (deceased), Carolina (deceased), Hannah (deceased), and Peter.

Levi R. Eshbach, son of Christian, was born Dec. 17, 1841, in Colebrookdale township, and was reared on the farm. He was twelve years old at the time the free schools were established, and he attended for a period of two months a year for four years. Until nineteen he continued to work for his parents, and after his marriage he settled upon the farm near Bechtelsville where he has since lived. It comprises twenty-eight acres in excellent condition, with a good barn, which Mr. Eshbach built in 1886. The barn which formerly stood upon the place was destroyed by fire.

In 1871 Mr. Eshbach married Sarah Matthias, daughter of John and Maria (Spohn) Matthias, and granddaughter of Elijah and Magdalena (Swope) Matthias. Mr. and Mrs. Eshbach had one daughter, Annie, who died when but seven months old. They attend the Hill Church, belonging to the Reformed congregation, and are respected throughout the community where they have lived so many years.

Isaac Eshbach, son of Peter, and grandfather of Peter B. Eshbach, of Boyertown, was born Nov. 22, 1803, and died Sept. 21, 1860. He lived one mile from what is now known as Eshbach Crossing, in Washington township, owning the homestead which is now the property of his grandson, Henry Miller. He married Maria (Mary) Moyer, who died a few years before him, and they are buried at the Hill Church. They were the parents of five sons and two daughters, but we have mention of only three: George M., the father of Peter B. Eshbach; Peter, born in 1829, who died in 1861; and Sarah, who married Augustus Miller and lived where their son is now located, on the Eshbach homestead.

George M. Eshbach, son of Isaac, was born Jan. 24, 1828, in Washington township, where he owned a farm. He lived at Eshbach Crossing, which was named after him, and he followed various occupations, being especially well known as a dealer in horses, which business he carried on on an extensive scale during the greater part of his life. When the old horse cars were in use he supplied the Reading Traction Company with horses. For some years he was the local mail carrier, and he also conducted "Eshbach's Hotel." Mr. Eshbach married Elizabeth Bechtel, who was born Aug. 24, 1826, and died March 15, 1871. Mr. Eshbach long survived her, passing away Nov. 30, 1894, and he is buried at the Hill Church, in Pike township, where a large monument marks his last resting-place. Mr. and Mrs. Eshbach had children as follows: Harry, who lives in Aledo, Ill.; George, of Pottstown, Pa.; Peter B.; Jesse, of Boyertown; Mary, who is unmarried and lives at Reading, Pa.; Emma, wife of Jeremiah H. Moyer, who is mentioned elsewhere; and Annie, m. to John Hinkel, of Philadelphia.

Peter B. Eshbach, who has been engaged in the livery business at Boyertown since 1891, has been familiar with that line from boyhood, having early begun to assist his father. He was also trained to farming, but his attention has always been mainly directed to dealing in and handling horses. During his young manhood, when buying for his father, he made as many as fourteen trips a year from Eshbach, Pa., out to Iowa, where he obtained horses to sell at the home market. In 1891 he started the livery business at Boyertown which he has since conducted. His establishment, which is located at the west end of Reading avenue, is well equipped, for in addition to hiring out horses and carriages he does considerable carting, heavy hauling and moving, employing an average of twelve people and keeping as many as fifty horses, including heavy draft teams. His shedding accommodations are ample.

Mr. Eshbach was born Oct. 14, 1859, at Eshbach Crossing, on the Boyertown & Colebrookdale railroad, and he was married in 1889 to Alice Richard, daughter of Abner Richard, of Montgomery county, Pa. They have had three children, Warren, Norman (who died in his fourth year) and Helen. Socially Mr. Eshbach is a member of Boyertown Castle, No. 228, Knights of the Golden Eagle.

JOHN ECKERT, the progenitor of the family to which George B. Eckert belongs, was born in October, 1707, in the parish of Spielburg, Germany, in a country of fine farms and magnificent forests, near Frankfort-on-the-Main, and there learned trade of blacksmith. In 1732 he married Angelia Hicks, and in 1741 emigrated with his wife and four children to Pennsylvania, settling in Heidelberg township, where he continued his trade as blacksmith and brought up his sons to the same trade. He died in July, 1770, and his will, disposing of a considerable property, was probated Aug. 13, 1770. In this document the names of his children are given as follows: Johanna Magdalena, m. to the Rev. Henry Decker; Valentine, m. to Elizabeth Gernant; Jonas, m. to Mary Catharine Ruth; Conrad, m. to Elizabeth Hehn; Nicholas; Mary Christina, m. to George Troutman; and Ann Mary, m. to Frederick Hehn. In the release, relating to the settlement of the estate, the sons are described as blacksmiths by occupation. In the several generations of this family its members were prominently identified with the iron business in Berks county for upward of 150 years.

CAPT. CONRAD ECKERT (grandfather of Isaac Eckert, whose sketch appears in this publication) was born at Langenselbold, in the Kingdom of Hanover, Feb. 6, 1741. During that year his father, John Eckert, emigrated to Pennsylvania, and settled in Heidelberg township, Lancaster (now Berks) county. He was brought up to farming, and when a young man became a blacksmith, which calling he pursued for some time. At the outbreak of the Revolution he was one of the active Associators of the county. As such he commanded a company which was raised in Heidelberg township, and became a part of the 1st Battalion, commanded by Col. Henry Haller. This battalion marched to service in New Jersey in December, 1776, but the companies returned home without permission, because they had not been paid according to the terms of their enlistment. Captain Eckert is the "Captain Echard" mentioned by General Israel Putnam as one of the captains who informed him that "their companies had run away to a man, excepting a lieutenant, sergeant and drummer."

Captain Eckert's company afterward formed a part of Spyker's Battalion, and participated in the campaign at and about Germantown and White Marsh during the fall of 1777. He was wounded in the battle at Germantown, and his health in consequence became so impaired that he never fully recovered. Subsequently, in 1778 and 1780, his company was connected with the 4th Battalion of county militia.

He officiated as a county commissioner from 1785 to the time of his death in 1791. It is said that during the Revolution he carried on a powder-mill in the southern extremity of Heidelberg township, along the head waters of Spring creek. His farm where he resided adjoined the "Corner Church" property on the east.

Upon his return from military service, Captain Eckert carried on farming on the Eckert homestead, near Robesonia, until his death, Aug. 25, 1791. He was married to Elizabeth Hain, daughter of ———— Hain, in Heidelberg township, by whom he had seven sons—John, Peter, George, David, Daniel, Solomon and Conrad—and two daughters—Catharine (m. to Henry Copenhaven) and Barbara (m. to Daniel Reeser). His remains were buried in the graveyard connected with Hain's Church. Col. Valentine Eckert, whose sketch appears in this publication, was an elder brother.

PETER ECKERT, for many years a prominent and successful merchant at Womelsdorf, and grandfather of George B. Eckert, was born on the Eckert homestead in Heidelberg township, several miles east of Womelsdorf, Nov. 12, 1771. He was brought up on the farm and worked as clerk in a country store until he became of age. He then embarked in the store business for himself at Womelsdorf, which he followed very successfully until his decease, covering a period of upward of forty years. His trading relations extended over a wide stretch of country, even reaching into the Southern States. He was of an enterprising spirit and appreciating the importance of education, sent his children to Philadelphia to give them the advantages of the most advanced schools of that time. He owned a large tract of coal land in Schuylkill county and was one of the first persons to use anthracite coal for domestic purposes. This was hauled to Womelsdorf by his own teams.

Mr. Eckert was married to Susan Phillipina Brown, daughter of George Brown of Millbach, Lebanon county, who removed to Erie, Pa., and there died. Mr. and Mrs. Eckert had ten children, two dying in infancy; David, who died at Philadelphia, unmarried, at the age of thirty years; William, m. to Rebecca Hiester; Isaac (whose sketch appears in this publication); Dr. George Nicholas, a graduate physician, member of Congress from the Philadelphia district in 1849-50, and director of the United States Mint at Philadelphia, m. to Emily Trevor; Peter, who died at the age of seventeen years: Mary, who died unmarried; Eliza, m. to Dr. Lot Benson; and Susan, m. to Rev. William A. Good. Peter Eckert died in 1839, aged sixty-eight years, and his wife in 1851, aged eighty years.

ISAAC ECKERT (father of George B. Eckert) was born Jan. 26, 1800, at Womelsdorf, Berks county, and was brought up on a farm, and educated in the local schools and the preparatory school of the University of Pennsylvania. In his young manhood he entered the large general store of his father, Peter Eckert, at Womelsdorf. He showed so much proficiency in business affairs that his father transferred the store to him and his elder brother William before he became of age. In 1828 they removed to Reading, and established their store at the northwest corner of Fourth and Penn streets, where they traded successfully until 1836. Isaac Eckert then retired from the store business to associate with his younger brother, Dr. George N. Eckert, in the manufacture of iron. In 1842-44, they erected the Henry Clay Furnace along the Schuylkill river in the southern section of Reading, then one of the largest anthracite furnaces in Pennsylvania, and this is said to have been the first furnace at which anthracite coal was used in the manufacture of iron. In 1855 they erected a second furnace near by, which they operated until the younger brother's decease in 1865. The surviving partner then purchased his brother's interest, and carried on the plant very successfully until 1873, when he sold it to his two sons, Henry S., and George B., whom he had educated for the business. He died shortly afterward, Dec. 13, 1873.

Isaac Eckert was also prominently identified with other industrial affairs relating to the manufacture of iron for many years, more especially with the Leesport Iron Company at Leesport, and in the mining of iron ore in different parts of Berks county, whereby he became the owner of many hundred acres of land. He was one of the founders of the Berks County Agricultural Society, and served as president for a number of years. He took great interest in the best breeds of live stock and the finest varieties of standard fruits, and during his presidency superior specimens of them constituted the chief attractions at the annual fairs.

Mr. Eckert's success as a merchant and manufacturer attracted the respect and confidence of the directors of the Farmers' Bank of Reading to such a degree for a number of years that they selected him as president, beginning in 1836, and he continued to fill this important and responsible position in a most successful and creditable manner for nearly forty years (until his decease in 1873), notwithstanding the trying fluctuations of financial affairs at Reading, more especially the panics of 1837 and 1857.

In 1867 and also in 1873 Mr. Eckert made extensive tours through the principal countries of Europe, and acquired much practical information upon many subjects. In the latter year, he served as one of the commissioners to the Vienna Exposition, having been appointed by President Grant. He also served as one of the two commissioners from the Berks District for the organization of the board of finance under which the Centennial Exposition of 1876 was successfully conducted.

Mr. Eckert took great interest in the success of the political principles in which he had been educated, and to which he adhered through life, first as a Whig and afterward as a Republican. His influence and wealth were freely used for the benefit of his party. During the Rebellion he contributed liberally of his means to encourage the national administration in successfully prosecuting the war for the preservation of the Union, and in this behalf he took an active part with other prominent men of Reading at public and private meetings to develop proper sentiments in the community favorable to the great cause. In 1860 he was a delegate to the National Convention at Chicago, when Abraham Lincoln was nominated for President on the Republican ticket, and in 1864 he served as one of the Presidential Electors for the State of Pennsylvania. Politically he was universally respected, and personally he was highly esteemed for his many admirable traits of character.

Mr. Eckert was a member of Christ Episcopal Church at Reading, and a liberal contributor to the endowment fund of the diocese of Central Pennsylvania. He was distinguished for cheerfulness of disposition, and he possessed pleasing manners in his social and business intercourse. A full chime of ten superior bells, weighing over five tons, was presented by his children to the church as a memorial to him, and placed in the Gothic spire of that elegant and costly structure.

Mr. Eckert was married to Judith Hahn (daughter of Dr. John Hahn, of New Hanover township, Montgomery county, a graduate physician of the University of Pennsylvania, member of Congress from 1815-17, and a lineal descendant of Philip Hahn, who emigrated to Pennsylvania in 1729). To Mr. and Mrs. Eckert were born three children: Henry S., George B. and Rebecca (married to P. R. Stetson, of New York). Mr. Eckert died Dec. 13, 1873, and his wife Nov. 5, 1875, aged sixty-nine years. Dr. John Hahn was the son of Philip Hahn, a captain in the Revolution, whose mother was Anna Margaretha Hiester, a daughter of Daniel Hiester, of Montgomery county.

GEORGE BROWN ECKERT, iron-master at Reading for nearly thirty years, was born at Reading Sept. 5, 1840. He received his education in the local schools, in the Balmar French Academy at West Chester, Pa., and in an advanced preparatory school at Danbury, Conn. When the Civil war broke out his patriotic spirit was aroused with that of some of his associates, and while the Ringgold Light Artillery was preparing for the front in a building near his home on Fifth street, he enlisted as a volunteer of this company, which was mustered into the United States service at Harrisburg April 16, 1861, and he served his term of three months with the company, when he was honorably discharged. This enlistment made him one of the First Defenders, so recognized throughout the United States, and as such he received from Congress a medal of honor and a vote of thanks. Upon his discharge from the service mentioned, prominent military officials appreciated his spirit and character so highly that he was commissioned lieutenant of the 3d Regiment, United States Infantry, and he continued in active service until near the termination of the war. By reason of his military service he became a member of the First Defenders Association, of Post No. 76, G. A. R., and of the Loyal Legion, with all of which organizations he was prominently identified until his decease. Mr. Eckert was a member of the Berks County Historical Society, and upon his decease an appropriate sketch was read before the meeting Oct. 10, 1899, which included the following remarks relating to his military services in the regular army:

"He was appointed second lieutenant, 3d U. S. Infantry, Aug. 5, 1861, and assigned to Company I; promoted to first lieutenant March 12, 1862, participating in the Peninsular campaign, in the advance on Chickahominy, Fair Oaks, Gaines's Mills, Seven Pines, Seven Days' battles, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville. In May, 1863, he was ordered to report to Colonel Buchanan, 4th U. S. Infantry, for mustering duty at Trenton, N. J. Lieutenant Eckert resigned from the army Nov. 10, 1864."

Upon his return home from the Civil war, he entered the employ of his father (who was then engaged in operating the Henry Clay Furnace which he and his brother Dr. George N. Eckert had erected in the southern part of Reading in 1842), and he served as a clerk in the works until 1873, when he and his brother Henry S. Eckert formed a co-partnership under the name of Eckert & Bro., purchased the furnace property, and carried it on very successfully until his brother's decease in 1894. He afterward continued its operation for himself and his brother's estate until May, 1899, when the plant was sold to the Empire Iron & Steel Company of New York.

Mr. Eckert became a director of the Farmers National Bank in 1874, and filled that position until his death in 1899. Upon the death of his brother Henry S. Eckert (who had served as president of the bank from 1873 to 1894), he succeeded to the presidency, but on account of the condition of his health was obliged to resign after filling the office for seventeen months.

In his young manhood Mr. Eckert identified himself with Christ Protestant Episcopal Church, and he continued in active membership until his decease, filling various positions in the management of the church, more especially on the finance committee. Upon the death of his father, he united with his brother Henry S. Eckert, and sister Mrs. Rebecca Stetson in presenting the chimes in the church steeple as a memorial to their father. He was a member of the Wyomissing Club of Reading, of the Union League of Philadelphia, and of the Iron-Masters Association of America, in which he was highly appreciated for his sociability and culture.

Mr. Eckert was married to Mary Ann Trexler, daughter of Horatio Trexler (a prominent iron-master at Reading for many years, and president of the National Union Bank of Reading from 1873 to 1900), and they had three children: William Brown; Sarah Hunter (m. to Howard Jewell Potts), and Henry S. (who died in 1893, aged twenty-one years). He died July 5, 1899. [For earlier generations see sketch of Isaac Eckert, his father, in this publication.]

HOWARD JEWELL POTTS, secretary and treasurer of the General Advertising Company at Reading (manufacturers of enameloid art signs), was born March 18, 1864, at Philadelphia, Pa., and received his education in the local schools until he reached the age of seventeen years. He then entered the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company as a clerk, and he continued to fill that position at Philadelphia until 1885, when his proficiency won his promotion to chief clerk to the Superintendent of the Pennsylvania-Schuylkill Valley Railroad at Reading, shortly after the railroad was opened to that point for traffic. He then removed to Reading and filled this important position to the great satisfaction of his superior officers until August, 1903, when he resigned for the purpose of engaging in the manufacturing business. He had assisted in organizing the General Advertising Company in 1901, and had served as one of its directors. Upon resigning the chief-clerkship mentioned, he was elected secretary and treasurer of the company, and for the past six years has devoted all his time to the development of its increasing business, with trading relations extending to all parts of the United States.

In appreciation of his superior business character, Mr. Potts was selected as one of the directors of the Farmers' National Bank of Reading. He was one of the original members of the Wyomissing Club, and also of the Berkshire Country Club, continuing an active member of both of these prominent social organizations until the present time.

In 1896 Mr. Potts was married to Sarah Hunter Eckert, daughter of George B. Eckert, a prominent iron manufacturer and banker at Reading for nearly thirty years until his decease in 1899. They have three children: Mary, George and Amelia.

His father was Howard Jewell Potts, of Germantown, Pa., where he was brought up and educated. He was a member of the Pennsylvania Legislature in 1872. He died in 1890, aged fifty-one years. He was married to Amelia Maples, daughter of Thomas Maples, of London, England, where she was born in 1840. They had five children: Matilda, Howard Jewell, Hiram (m. to Sallie Crozer Griffith), William (who died in 1895, aged twenty-three years), and Allan.

Mr. Potts's grandfather was William Potts, of Burlington, N. J., where he was born July 13, 1792. He died in 1857. In 1827 he married Elizabeth Tyler, who was born at Philadelphia in 1804, and who died in 1851.

His great-grandfather was Thomas Potts, born in 1761, at Burlington, N. J., and died in 1824. He was married to Sarah Van Sciver in 1786.

HENRY S. ECKERT, banker and iron manufacturer at Reading from 1873 to 1894, was born at Reading in 1830, son of Isaac Eckert. He received his preparatory education at Reading, and then entered Marshall College at Mercersburg, graduating from that institution. Upon his return home his father placed him at the Henry Clay Furnace to learn the iron business, and in a comparatively short time he was given the active management of the plant, a position he continued to fill until July 1, 1873, when he and his brother, George B. Eckert, formed a co-partnership, under the firm name of Eckert & Bro., for the purpose of carrying on the business, and their father sold the works to them. They operated this large plant very successfully until the decease of Henry S. in 1894. Their enterprise included extensive mining operations, and they employed altogether from 200 to 300 men.

Mr. Henry S. Eckert took an active interest in political matters—local, State and National—for thirty years. His valuable business affairs inclined him to advocate protection to home industry, and on that account he was an ardent Republican. During the Civil war he was active in supporting the national government, and in 1862 was one of the Emergency Men from Reading to assist in repelling the Confederate invasion of Pennsylvania. In 1866 the Republican party of the county gave him the nomination for Congress, and his popularity was shown by his obtaining a majority of the votes of Reading over the Democratic nominee. He represented the Eighth ward in the select council from 1872 to 1875, officiating as president of that body from 1873 to 1875.

The cause of education received the earnest attention of Mr. Eckert for many years, and he represented the Eighth ward in the school board, having officiated as president of the board continuously from 1872 until 1888. In 1873 one of the large public school buildings, situated on North Tenth street, near Washington, was named after him. Art was largely patronized by Mr. Eckert, especially productions of home talent, and his art gallery, which was built as an annex to his elegant home on Perkiomen avenue, contained a choice collection of superior paintings by Benade, Devlan, Spang, and Shearer.

Mr. Eckert encouraged the substantial development of Reading and vicinity by the establishment of internal improvements, having co-operated with other enterprising men in constructing the Berks County Railroad, the Wilmington & Northern Railroad, and the Penn Street Passenger Railway, and he officiated as a director. He succeeded his father as president of the Farmers' National Bank of Reading in 1873, and filled the position in a most satisfactory manner until his decease in 1894. He was prominently identified with the Union Trust Company and the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Philadelphia; the Pennsylvania Bolt & Nut Works at Lebanon; the Charles Evans Cemetery; and the Reading Hospital. He served as president of the Eastern Pig Iron Association for a number of years, having aided in its organization in 1883.

Mr. Eckert was married in 1857 to Carrie Hunter, daughter of Nicholas Hunter, an iron-master of Reading, by whom he had four children: Isaac, Helen, Hunter and Kate. He died Jan. 10, 1894, and his wife March 28, 1880.

VALENTINE ECKERT, prominent in the Revolutionary war from Berks county, was born at Langenselbold, in the Kingdom of Hanover, in 1733. He came to America with his parents in 1741, who settled in the Tulpehocken Valley at a point east of where Womelsdorf is now situated. He was naturalized in September, 1761. In June, 1776, he was one of the ten members of the Provincial Conference who represented Berks county in that important body; and in July following, he was selected as a delegate from the county to the Provincial convention which was assembled for the purpose of framing a new government founded on the authority of the people. In 1776 and 1779 he represented the county in the Provincial Assembly. He was a resident of Cumru township, and a blacksmith by occupation. He offered his services to the government in the Revolutionary war, and commanded a company of Cavalry Associators for a time. He and his company participated in the battle of Germantown, in October, 1777, where he was wounded. He was appointed sub-lieutenant of the county on March 21, 1777, and served in that office until his promotion to lieutenant of the county in January, 1781—a position he filled until the close of the war. While serving as sub-lieutenant, he also acted as a commissioner for the purchase of army supplies. In 1784, he was appointed judge of the court of Common Pleas of the county, and occupied that office for a term of seven years, when, by the Constitution of 1790, a president judge of all the courts was appointed to take the place of the several judges. In the Pennsylvania militia, he was brigade inspector for the county for a period of twenty years, from April 11, 1793. About the year 1816, he moved to Virginia, and died at Winchester, that State, in December, 1821, in the eighty-eighth year of his age. He was a brother of Capt. Conrad Eckert, whose sketch appears in this publication.

ALBERT N. BURKHOLDER, managing editor of the Reading Eagle, enjoys the distinction of presiding over the destinies of the paper in whose office he once served as printer's apprentice. He was born in Millcreek, Lebanon county, on Feb. 1, 1861, and came to Reading at an early age. Here he entered the public schools and when thirteen years old was admitted to the high school. A year afterward he was the publisher of the first high school paper, whose object was the dissemination of news respecting the teachers and pupils of the institution. At the age of sixteen he became an apprentice to the printer's trade in the composing-room of the Eagle, and served a term of four years. His recollections of those early days are of the most interesting character, and he has never regretted the period of his life that he spent at "the case." Like many others, he found it but a stepping-stone to something higher. Col. Jesse G. Hawley, the founder, proprietor and editor of the Eagle, now deceased, took an interest in the young printer, and soon after completing his apprenticeship we find him on the reportorial staff of the paper. He distinguished himself as a ready writer, an indefatigable and energetic news gatherer, and was devoted to an unusual degree to the advancement of the Eagle. His promotion to the position of city editor followed, in due course of time, and this he filled to the satisfaction of his superiors for a period of nearly fifteen years. The Eagle was primarily founded upon the idea that its local news should be the prominent feature, and while it has been enlarged and improved in every way, it still continues to have this end in view. To be the head of such a department in a newspaper for such a long time is no mean accomplishment. In this position he showed the same traits of enterprise and energy which marked his earlier career—a "nose for news," habits of industry and the journalistic passion more strongly developed than ever. Three years ago he succeeded as editor the late John D. Missimer, one of the best newspaper men that Reading has ever produced, and since then the Eagle has set a new and higher standard than ever in the presentation of those news features which have made the paper a household word in a large section of eastern Pennsylvania. It prints four editions every week-day, a Sunday paper and a weekly. When the present editor was an apprentice it was a six-column, four-page paper. Today it is never less than ten pages of eight columns each and very often as high as sixteen and more pages are printed. Mr. Burkholder is a member of the Reading Press Club, the Berks County Historical Society and the Pennsylvania-German Society. He has devoted a great deal of time to local history; has written many articles on this subject, and has a large collection of books and manuscripts bearing on the early settlement of eastern Pennsylvania. He is greatly devoted to everything that will advance the best interests of the people of Reading and Berks county, and has a wide acquaintance in city and county. He is thoroughly versed in everything pertaining to their needs; is in sympathy with all their aspirations, and is unusually well posted in all branches of local history.

The first member of the family in America was Hans Burghalter, a Mennonite preacher, who was the leader of a successful movement which resulted in the emigration in 1717 of a large number of his people from Switzerland, where they had undergone merciless persecution. The entire party settled in the Conestoga valley in Lancaster county—the second large company of Mennonites to found new homes in that region. They were preceded in 1709 by a large colony of Mennonites, the most distinguished of whom was Hans Herr, whose memory is justly venerated as the pioneer settler of his people in that section, and whose descendants are found in many States of the Union. Hans Burghalter, whose family was allied with the Mennonites almost since the foundation of the sect by Menno Simons nearly four hundred years ago, became prominent in the early history of Colonial Pennsylvania, and today members of the family are found in many Commonwealths, as well as in Canada. In Virginia two became bishops of their church, and the family is numerous in many Western States. Though belonging to the so-called non-combatants or peace sect, the descendants of this pioneer preacher have participated in every war in which this country was ever engaged. Capt. Peter Burkhalter was an officer in the Revolutionary war and was a member of the first Constitutional Convention of Pennsylvania; and others figure in the early Colonial annals with equal prominence.

ELMER JACOB SELLERS, druggist at Kutztown since 1887, was born at Windsor Castle, Berks county, June 18, 1861, son of Mahlon A. and Leah (Heinly) Sellers, both descendants of early families of Pennsylvania.

(I) The home of the Sellers family (the name being originally spelled Söller) was in Germany, in a town called Vinom, near the city of Mannheim, on the Bergstrasse, in the Palatinate, and the progenitor was Philip Henry Söller. He there learned the trade of a butcher, and after following it some years, until about 1730, he with his wife and four children, emigrated to America, landing at Philadelphia. He then proceeded up the Schuylkill Valley to the Skippack, and after remaining there a short time bought two hundred acres of land along the creek, one mile below Sellersville, in Bucks county, and on this plantation he carried on farming during the remainder of his life, dying at the age of sixty-five years. He had ten children—seven sons and three daughters—Philip, Leonard, Philip Henry, John, Paul, Peter, Jacob, Elizabeth, Magdalena and Margaret.

(II) John Sellers, the fourth son, located in Hilltown township, Bucks county, and there he died at the age of fifty-five years. He was the father of seven children, of whom two daughters and one son died in infancy, those surviving to maturity being Abraham, Samuel, John and Elizabeth. His wife was a daughter of William Johnson, a native of Holland, who became a substantial farmer in Skippack. When Mr. Sellers and his wife were married she could speak but little German, and he little and very poor English.

(III) Abraham Sellers, eldest son of John, was born June 30, 1758, and he died Sept. 27, 1831. He married Sophia Bodder, born March 9, 1762, and died Dec. 10, 1836, daughter of Peter and Regina Bodder. Peter Bodder, born June 20, 1727, came from Germany, was bound as a servant to Charles Leidy, and when free, married and settled in Hilltown, Bucks county, where he died Aug. 25, 1805. His wife Regina, also from Germany, born in December, 1735, died Dec. 3, 1808, and they had four children—Jacob, John, Sophia and Catherine. To Abraham and Sophia (Bodder) Sellers were born the following children: Tobias, born Sept. 19, 1781; Sarah, March 26, 1783; Lydia, Nov. 26, 1785; Mary, June 24, 1787; Jesse, March 16, 1789; John, Nov. 17, 1790; Cornelius, April 13, 1793; Amelia, Sept. 1, 1794; Tirza, March 13, 1797; Peter Franklin, Aug. 14, 1800; Joel, Feb. 23, 1806.

(IV) Tobias Sellers, son of Abraham and Sophia, was married on Easter Sunday, 1805, to Elizabeth Faber, daughter of the Rev. John Theobald Faber, and they had eight children: Charles, born Oct. 2, 1806 (m. Hannah Boyer, daughter of Henry Boyer, of Boyertown); Nathaniel, born July 27, 1808 (m. Magdaline McNolty, daughter of Samuel McNolty); William, born March 23, 1810 (m. Jane Marret, daughter of William Marret); Faber, born May 15, 1812; Evaline, born June 17, 1815; Mahlon Abraham, born Aug. 22, 1818 (m. Leah Heinly, daughter of Jacob Heinly and Maria Kelchner, his wife); Henry Augustus, born Sept. 11, 1820 (m. Mary Hesser, daughter of George Hesser); Washington John, born July 30, 1825 (m. Amanda Horne, daughter of Pearson Horne). Tobias Sellers was a physician of note, practising at Sumneytown, Montgomery county, and three of his sons followed the same profession. He was one of the delegates to revise the Constitution of Pennsylvania in 1837.

(V) Mahlon Abraham Sellers, son of Tobias and Elizabeth, was born at Sumneytown, and his long and useful life closed at Philadelphia, Dec. 16, 1901. His wife was born at the old hotel stand in Windsor Castle, April 22, 1825, and died Jan. 22, 1901. Among their twelve children were: Elenora E. Maria, born June 15, 1844, died Feb. 18, 1892; Oliver H. Tobias, born Feb. 8, 1846, lives at Hamburg, where he is superintendent of the Prudential Life Insurance Company; Andora Evelina, born June 2, 1848, died at Windsor Castle Feb. 20, 1852; Washington Mahlon, born Dec. 20, 1850, died March 3, 1863; Tobias Faber, born May 8, 1853, has been in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company at Philadelphia for many years; Clara Leah was born Oct. 6, 1855; Arpa Sophia, born March 16, 1858, died Dec. 10, 1860; Elmer J. was born June 18, 1861; Oscar William, born Oct. 3, 1863, is a druggist at Philadelphia; Lenus Theobald, born June 2, 1870, died Oct. 10, 1885. Jacob Heinly, father of Mrs.

Sellers, kept the hotel at Windsor Castle from 1820 to 1843. This hotel was then known as the "Black Horse Inn," its sign showing the picture of a black horse. It was one of the oldest in that section of the country, and was a two-story frame building, with five rooms and a hall on each floor. It was torn down some years ago.

In 1836 Mahlon A. Sellers began as an apprentice to the printer's trade, and served three years, receiving besides board and clothing the first year $25, the second $50, and the third $75. This was in the office of the Bauern Freund, published at Sumneytown (now at Pennsburg). At the end of his apprenticeship he traveled over the State, and worked in newspaper and job offices at Doylestown, Harrisburg, Aaronsburg, Hamburg and elsewhere. For a time he was one of the managers of the German weekly at Reading called Stern im Oesten, and afterward published the Hamburg Schnellpost. At Harrisburg, Mr. Sellers was one of three partners who published a newspaper known as the Porter Banner, which was popular among the State politicians of that day.

Mahlon A. Sellers named Windsor Castle because it was the business center of the township. When he first located there, Hamburg was the nearest postoffice, and through his efforts a postoffice was established in 1856. He was appointed postmaster and filled the office for forty-five years. For many years he took much interest in militia affairs, serving as captain of the Windsor Cavalry, and being one of the organizers of the Windsor Rifle Rangers. He aided materially in organizing the Windsor Mutual Fire Insurance Company in 1844, and its annual meetings were held at his hotel for many years. The company is still in existence and in good standing. He also assisted in establishing the Windsor Society for Detecting Horse Thieves in 1855, and the Windsor Horse Life Insurance Company in 1859; and he served as secretary for many years. He started a creamery about 1876, which is still carried on there. In 1847 he was elected justice of the peace, and held the office for upwards of thirty years. From 1876 to 1879 he was clerk of the Quarter Sessions of Berks county.

For more than fifty years Mahlon A. Sellers was proprietor of the hotel. For about fifty years a store was carried on in a room adjoining the bar-room, but in 1849 a store building was erected on the opposite side of the road. Mr. Sellers operated the store for about twenty years until 1868. The hotel was very popular through the courtesy and sociability of Mr. Sellers and the superior cooking of Mrs. Sellers.

(VI) Elmer Jacob Sellers was educated in the public schools of his native township, and at the Keystone State Normal School. At the age of sixteen, he became an apprentice in the drug store of Adam Bodenhorn, at Hamburg, and later that of Jacob Stein, at Reading, serving an apprenticeship of three years. He then worked as a clerk in different places, and in 1887 he became a registered pharmacist when he purchased his present stand on Main street, Kutztown, and he has since carried on a successful business.

Dr. Sellers is a man of high literary attainments. He has written considerable poetry which has attracted much attention; and he has also published a number of articles on scientific subjects. He is an inventor, and some of his patented inventions are in use today. In 1898 he invented a hitching post for pavements.

On July 31, 1884, Mr. Sellers was married to Sarah A. Skelton, daughter of James and Sarah Skelton, of Lykens, Dauphin county. She died May 14, 1908, aged forty-four years. They had two children: (1) Roy M., born July 26, 1885, educated in the public schools of Kutztown and in the Keystone State Normal School; took two years' course in the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, and served as assistant under Dr. Robert White in Microscopy at the Temple College of Pharmacy, graduating with first honors, June 1, 1907; became a registered pharmacist in 1908, and received the degree of Pharmaceutical chemist from the Temple University in 1909. He is now assisting his father. He married Nettie G. Trexler, daughter of David S. Trexler. (2) Bertha L. is a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, class of 1908. Mr. Sellers and his family are members of the St. Paul Reformed Church at Kutztown. In politics he is a Democrat. For three years he served as a member of the borough council, for two years acting as president. For many years he was a director of the Kutztown Park Association. He is a member of Huguenot Lodge, No. 377, F. & A. M.; of the National Association of Retail Druggists; and the Berks County Association of Retail Druggists.

LEROY J. WENGER, M. D., who is successfully engaged in the practice of medicine and surgery at Reading, Pa., was born May 5, 1879, in New York City, N. Y., son of M. Leroy and Anna T. (McGuire) Wenger.

Dr. Wenger's preliminary education was secured in the public schools of Reading, Pa., and he was graduated from the high school with the class of 1899, being salutatorian thereof, also holding the alumni medal. He read medicine with his father for some time, and then entered Bellevue Medical College, from which he was graduated in 1903. He then served as interne at the New York Maternity Hospital, having been sub-interne at St. Joseph's Hospital, Reading, during two vacations. Dr. Wenger first settled in the general practice of his chosen profession at No. 1040 North Eighth street, at which location he remained one and one-half years, then removing to No. 1031 North Ninth street, where he continued for a like period. In 1906 he came to his present location, No. 1044 North Eleventh street, where he has built up a large and lucrative practice. The Doctor is a member of the surgical staff of St. Joseph's Hospital.

Dr. Wenger married Katherine A. Rice, of Reading. From this union there is one son, LeRoy Rice Wenger.

KEYSER FRY, trade factor and jobber of bicycles, motor cycles and supplies, auto accessories and sporting goods, located at Nos. 723-725 Chestnut street, is one of Reading's successful young business men. He was born in 1873, in Reading, son of Daniel S. and Angelina (Keyser) Fry.

Mr. Fry secured his education in the common schools of Reading, graduating from the high school in 1891. At this time he became identified with the Reading Rolling Mill Company, as time-keeper, remaining three years, and was then with the Penn Hardware Company, for a short period. He next became office manager for the Relay Manufacturing Company, of which he was later made secretary and general manager, until, in 1899, when the Relay Company discontinued the making of bicycles and sold their plant, he embarked in his present business, which from a small beginning has grown to a very extensive merchandising enterprise. Simultaneously with the starting of this business, the Penn Cigar Company was formed, and in 1905 was incorporated and Mr. Fry was elected president, an office he has since filled. He is also connected with the Fry-Geary Live Stock Company of Casper, Wyoming, and from its incorporation has been president.

Mr. Fry was married in 1901 to Lorena M. Ruth, and they reside on Mineral Spring road. He is prominently identified with the Masonic bodies of this city, being a past master of Reading Lodge No. 549, F. & A. M.

JAMES SCHAEFFER, trustee of the Normal School, is a well-known citizen and prosperous farmer of Maxatawny township, residing on the old Schaeffer homestead where he was born June 26, 1856. He is one of a family of unusual note born to his parents, the late David and Esther Ann (Christ) Schaeffer.

The late David Schaeffer was one of the foremost men of upper Berks county. He was born in Richmond township, in 1820, and died in 1902, aged eighty-one years. He was one of the organizers of the Keystone State Normal School, and was an honored trustee from then on until the time of his death. He was a man of progress, and was a firm believer in education, not only giving his own children the best of opportunities but largely advancing the educational advantages of his whole section. Each of his five sons became men of culture, and four of them are graduates of Franklin and Marshall College, namely: Rev. Dr. Nathan C. since 1893 has been State Superintendent of Public Instruction for Pennsylvania; Rev. Dr. William C. is teacher of Theology at the Reformed Seminary, Lancaster; D. Nicholas is a leading attorney at Reading; Dr. Charles D. is a prominent physician and an ex-mayor of Allentown, Pa.; while James is the agriculturist of the family.

David Schaeffer followed farming all his life, and he purchased the farm now owned by his son James, in 1849, during his lifetime greatly improving it, and the improving has been continued until it ranks with the best in upper Berks county. David Schaeffer, on account of his excellent judgment, was a successful man in all his undertakings and he acquired a large estate. At the time of his death he owned the property at No. 526 Washington street, Reading, the farm of his son James, and a farm of 120 acres situated in Bern township, which is the property of Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer. He was a consistent member of the Reformed faith and was an official of St. John's Reformed Church at Kutztown, which he liberally supported. His burial was in the cemetery connected with this church. In May, 1848, he married Esther Ann Christ, daughter of Solomon and Elizabeth (Bieber) Christ. She died in February, 1903, aged seventy-seven years, surviving her husband but eight months. They left many mourning friends who had been attached to them for many years, and they were honored and respected by all who knew them.

James Schaeffer secured a district school education and later entered the Keystone State Normal School which he left in his senior year in order to engage in agricultural pursuits. His tastes lay in this direction, and he preferred the free and independent life of a farmer rather than a professional one as did his brothers. He has followed farming since 1880, and has owned the Schaeffer homestead of 160 acres of some of the finest land in Berks county since the death of his father. It is favorably located in the center of the large and fertile area of Maxatawny township. Mr. Schaeffer keeps eight head of horses and twenty head of cattle. He is an enterprising and progressive farmer, and makes use of all kinds of improved machinery. This beautifully situated farm is very level and from the homestead its whole extent, with the exception of one field, can be brought under the eye at one time. Its fertile soil makes it excellent wheat land.

On Dec. 15, 1878, Mr. Schaeffer married Rosa Bortz, daughter of Jonas and Thelena (Wetzel) Bortz, farming people of this township, and they have the following children: Rev. David I., stationed at Dayton, Pa., who is the historian of the Schaeffer family at the triennial reunions, married Anna Ruppert and they have one daughter, Ethel; Hettie m. George Welder, of Maxatawny township, and has one daughter, Rosa; Annie, a trained nurse, who had her home with her uncle, Dr. C. D. Schaeffer, at Allentown, m. Dr. William J. Hertz of Allentown; Katie m. Daniel Merkel of Richmond township; William H., who is a graduate of the dental department of the University of Pennsylvania, is engaged in practice in Allentown; Ella I. resides at home; and George J. is a student in the Normal School. All of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Schaeffer have been liberally educated and William and Annie are graduates of the Keystone State Normal School and David of Franklin and Marshall College.

In his political views, Mr. Schaeffer is a Democrat. Since the death of his father, he has been a trustee of the State Normal School, the former having officiated in that office since the organization of the school. With his family Mr. Schaeffer belongs to St. John's Reformed Church at Kutztown, in which he has been a deacon for many years, and since 1900 one of the elders. He has always been an active church worker, and in his younger years took much interest in the Sunday-school. He is one of the representative men of this section.

JOHN A. RIGG—identified with the street railways at Reading since 1874—was born at Gibraltar, in Robeson township, Berks county, Feb. 14, 1854. During his infancy his parents removed to the farm of his grandfather, Adam Styer, in Caernarvon township, Lancaster county, midway between Churchtown and Morgantown, which he purchased in 1896, and where he has since made his summer home. He was educated in the local schools and worked on the farm until he was fifteen years old, when he went to Reading and found employment in the pottery of Daniel Shenfelder. He worked in this pottery for three years, and afterward in the Keystone Rolling Mill, McIlvain's Rolling Mill and Deysher's Lumber Yard for two years, when he directed his attention to service on the street railways. This was in 1874, when the system was about being established in Reading. He first became a conductor on what was then known as the Sixth street line, but served as such for only several months when he was appointed superintendent, and he filled this position during the development of the system until 1891, when he became the vice-president of the People's Passenger Railway at Philadelphia. He, however, remained at Philadelphia only two years, when he returned to Reading to organize the Reading Traction Company, establish a large electric light and power plant, and introduce the use of electricity in the propulsion of cars. This company elected him president and he served for five years, when he was again called to Philadelphia, to take charge of the United Power & Transportation Company, embracing numerous systems in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware; and he has been at the head of the systems until the present time, now covering a period of ten years, the most important period in the development of the street railway service in Pennsylvania. These systems have come to embrace upward of seventy-five companies, incorporated with an aggregate capitalization of $100,000,000; and he is at present either the president or one of the directors in their management.

Mr. Rigg was elected by the voters of the Fourth ward to represent them in select council from 1885 to 1894, officiating as president of the body from 1887 to 1890. He assisted in establishing the Free Public Library of Reading in 1898, serving since then as one of the trustees. He was chiefly instrumental in establishing Carsonia Park, three miles east of Reading, in 1892, as a place of resort and amusement for the people.

In 1872 Mr. Rigg was married to Sarah Amanda Baum (daughter of Augustus Baum and Elizabeth Brown, his wife, of Reading), by whom he had three children: Dr. Walter A. Rigg (m. Bessie Harner), Dr. Samuel Rigg (m. Mazie Geyer) and Dora (died in infancy).

His father was Samuel Evans Rigg, born in Caernarvon township, Lancaster county, in 1806; carried on butchering for some years, and then farming; and died in 1870. He was married twice, first to Ellen Shaner, by whom he had four children, and after her decease to Catharine Styer (daughter of Adam Styer and Elizabeth Yohn, his wife, of Caernarvon township), by whom he had three children: Sarah Jane (m. Martin H. Posen), Samuel E. (m. Ellen Ammon) and John A. (above).

His grandfather was George Rigg, Jr., who married Eleanor Evans (daughter of Evan Evans, 1754-1792, son of Evan Evans, 1717-1765, and grandson of Nathan Evans, 1682-1763, who emigrated from Montgomeryshire, Wales, to Pennsylvania in 1700). He was born in 1776.

His great-grandfather was George Rigg, who was enlisted in the Revolution and died in 1776, while on his way home from the expedition to Canada.

REV. BENNEVILLE H. MILLER, M. D., retired minister of the United Evangelical Church of the East Pennsylvania Conference, who is now engaged in the practice of medicine at Mohnton, Pa., was born June 30, 1842, in Cumru township, Berks county, son of Jonathan and Cassia (Hornberger) Miller.

Daniellie (Daniel) Miller, the American ancestor of this well-known family, crossed the Atlantic ocean on the good ship "Patience," Capt. Hugh Steel, from Rotterdam, via Cowes, and landed at Philadelphia, Aug. 11, 1750. He was married (first) to a Miss Hanagy, by whom he had no children, and he went to Germany for his second wife, being married, in about 1758, to Veronica Mishler, who was born in 1736. She bore him the following children: Christian, born Feb. 17, 1760; Elizabeth, born Sept. 20, 1762; Jacob, born July 19, 1764; Abraham, born May 13, 1766, who became an Amish minister, married Anna Hostetler, and had six children: Christian, Sarah (m. Christian Wisley, an Amish minister), Daniel, Catherine (m. Christian Yoder, an Amish minister), Magdalena (m. Jacob Mast), and Susan (m. (first) Peter Petershine and (second) John Remp); Susanna, born Oct. 17, 1767; Fanny, born Sept. 18, 1769; Barbara, born Jan. 12, 1774; and Magdalena, born Sept. 21, 1776.

Christian Miller, grandfather of Rev. Benneville H., was born Feb. 17, 1760, and died Feb. 10, 1832, being buried in a private cemetery on the old Miller homestead at Shillington, in Cumru township. He became a minister of the Amish Church, and was beloved and esteemed by all who knew him. On June 1, 1783, Rev. Miller was married to Catherine Kurtz, born Aug. 27, 1761, who died April 20, 1837, the mother of these children: Abraham, born April 2, 1784, died Oct. 19, 1831; Polly, born Oct. 10, 1785, died April 26, 1867; Elizabeth, born Aug. 31, 1787, m. John Plank, and died Dec. 21, 1874; Daniel, born April 9, 1790, m. Catherine Kerling, and had eight children.—Elizabeth, Susan, Christian, Daniel, Catherine, Samuel (who has Charles), Harry and Mrs. Jacob Kessler; Catherine, born Sept. 27, 1797, m. Solomon Zook, of Tulpehocken township; Isaac, born July 18, 1802, m. Molly Wademan, had four daughters, and died Oct. 2, 1876; Hannah, born March 18, 1805, m. in 1822 Stephen Mast, born in 1800, died in 1868, and they had ten children; Jonathan was born Nov. 12, 1807.

Jonathan Miller was born on his father's farm in Cumru township, Nov. 12, 1807, and was a lifelong farmer where Shillington is now situated, owning 211 acres of excellent farm land, most of which is now divided into building lots. He was possessed of considerable means, and was a man of high worth and sterling traits of character. Mr. Miller was a member of the Amish Church, while his wife was of the Reformed Church, and both rest from their labors in Dr. B. H. Miller's vault in the Mohnton cemetery. Jonathan Miller married Cassia Hornberger, daughter of Conrad and Elizabeth (Mosser) Hornberger, and to them were born children as follows: Henry m. Mary Gebhart; Jonathan, of Mohnton, m. (first) Mary Gaul, and (second) Mary Fleischer; Benneville H.; Mary m. Owen Deeds, of Shillington; Franklin lives at Shillington, unmarried; Sarah m. Curtis Richmond, of Terre Hill; Daniel m. Amanda Kuser, deceased, of Lancaster county, Pa.; and Catherine m. Alvin Dietrich, of Yellow House, Pennsylvania.

Rev. Benneville H. Miller spent his youth on his father's farm, and his early educational advantages were secured in the public schools of his native township. In his sixteenth year he learned the milling trade, and was employed in the same for four years. He served as a local minister from 1868 to 1871, in the latter year entering the itinerancy of the Evangelical Church. Shortly thereafter he was appointed by the East Pennsylvania Conference to the Kutztown circuit, which then comprised the following places: Kutztown, Fleetwood, Blandon, Pricetown, Friedensburg, Pleasantville, Rockland, Richland, Wessnersville, Kistlers Valley and Albany. In 1872 he was appointed to Hamburg Mission, in 1873 was appointed to Mahantango circuit in Schuylkill county, serving three years; in 1876 to Uniontown; in 1879 to Allentown; in 1882 to Emaus; in 1885 to Cressona; in 1887 to Mohnsville, in 1890 to Mahanoy City, and in 1893 to Weissport, and it was while serving the latter charge that his health failed completely. The long, arduous service had undermined his strength, strained his nervous system and robbed him of his voice. He was compelled, therefore, to resign, and shortly afterward removed to Philadelphia. After recuperation, he entered Hahnemann Medical College as a student, and three years later attended the Southern Homeopathic Medical College, from which he was graduated in 1899. He immediately settled at Mohnton, Pa., where he has since been engaged in the practice of his profession. Dr. Miller took also a special course at the Philadelphia Lying-In Hospital of Practical Obstetrics, and he is an electropath of note, in which practice he has been very successful. Dr. Miller resides on Church street, Mohnton, where he owns a fine modern residence, purchased by him in 1899. He also owns two other dwelling houses within the borough of Mohnton. In politics the Doctor is independent, voting not for the party, but for the man. He cast his first vote in 1860 for Abraham Lincoln, and in 1861, on that great President's call for 75,000 volunteers, he shouldered a musket in defense of his country, enlisting under Capt. McKnight in Company E, 42d P. V. I. Socially the Doctor is connected with the Sr. O. U. A. M., of Mohnton. He and his family are members of Zion's United Evangelical Church of Mohnton, and Mrs. Miller is an active member of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, Women's Missionary and Ladies' Aid societies, doing much in various ways to assist in the work of the church.

On Nov. 29, 1866, Dr. Miller was united in marriage with Emmeline Oyerholser, former school teacher of Lancaster county, where she taught school three terms. She is the daughter of the late Rev. Isaac and Mary (Landis) Overholser, of Terre Hill, Lancaster county, the former a pastor of the United Evangelical Church. To Dr. and Mrs. Miller have been born four children: Dr. Martin L. is mentioned elsewhere; Myra L. m. Henry Stauffer, former manager of the Hershey Manufacturing Company, at Manheim, Pa., but who left for Oregon in October, 1908, and has two children, Miriam and Russell; Celia E., born Feb. 1, 1875, died March 31, 1877; and Matthew A., born May 7, 1879, died Jan. 27, 1884.

SAMUEL R. DEPPEN, Esq., one of the prominent and well-known citizens of Berks county, residing in Heidelberg township, which locality has been the home of the family for generations, has led a life of active service to his community. He has been successful in the administration of his own affairs and has made a marked impress upon the history and development of Berks county. A man of integrity and high principle, of sound judgment and wisdom, he is one of that class of citizens who have made the government of our forefathers' dreams a living reality.

The Deppen name has been spelled in many ways, often appearing as Deppe, Depew and Dupee, and some genealogists declare its original form to be that of the old Huguenot family De Pui. In the list of foreigners (emigrants from the Palatinate and their families, in all 330) arriving (according to Rupp) in the ship "Princess Augusta," Samuel Merchant, master, from Rotterdam, last from Cowes, qualified Sept. 16, 1736, was Christian Dappen, aged thirty (or, as on the Captain's book, Christian Teppe).

(I) Christian Dappen or Deppen settled at Womelsdorf, Berks Co., Pa.; where he passed the remainder of his days as a farmer. In the tax lists of Heidelberg township Christian "Deppy" is assessed as follows: 1767, on 300 acres, 3 horses, 3 cattle, 3 sheep; 1768, on 150 (?)

acres, 4 horses, 4 cattle, 5 sheep; 1779, on 220 acres, 5 horses, 15 cattle; 1780, on 395 acres, 5 horses, 12 cattle; 1781, on 395 acres, 5 horses, 8 cattle. The will of Christian Deppe, of Heidelberg township, is on record in the Berks county court-house, as made Sept. 27, 1775, and probated in 1782, the year of his death. It was witnessed by Philip Moyer, John Casper Reed and Adam Kalbach, and it begins thus: "I, Christian Deppe, an aged yeoman of Heidelberg township, Berks county." As the will contains no reference to his wife, it is presumed she was dead at the time the will was made, in 1775. At the time of his death he also owned fifty acres of land in Northampton county. In his will he refers to his "eldest and beloved son, Johannes, who shall have fifty pounds over and above his other share." The children as named in the will were: Johannes; Barbara (m. Peter Zimmerman); Anna (m. George Yeakly); Treanica; Elizabeth; Thomas; Peter; David, who died in 1804 (his will in German is on record); Joseph; Jacob; and Abraham, who died in 1840 intestate, and whose heir was Richard Boone, of Heidelberg.

(II) John (Johannes) Deppen, son of Christian, resided north of Womelsdorf, where he died. His sons were: Joseph, Isaac, Adam and Michael. Some of their descendants still live in the township, and in the borough of Womelsdorf and Robesonia.

(III) Joseph Deppen, son of John, was a farmer all his life. His wife's maiden name was Weigley, and their children were: Joseph, who became a veterinary surgeon and lived in Philadelphia; Isaac, a minister at Womelsdorf; Adam, who married Sophia Putt; Samuel; Mary, who married John Price, of Reading; Maria, who married Henry Noll; and Elizabeth, who died unmarried.

(IV) Samuel Deppen, son of Joseph, was born in Womelsdorf, Pa., March 30, 1796. He became a farmer, and was one of the most successful men of his locality. He was very prominent in political affairs, first as a Whig and later as a Republican. His wife, Mary (Royer), was born in Lebanon county, Pa., daughter of John Royer. To this marriage children as follows were born: Catherine, who married Philip Royer, a farmer in Lancaster county; Isaac, who married (first) Rebecca Zug and (second) Catherine Tobias; Mary, who married William Landis, of Lebanon county, both now deceased; Susan, who died young; Elizabeth, widow of H. B. Greybill; Matilda, who married Daniel Hostetter, and died in 1896; John R., a real estate dealer, at Mt. Morris, Ill., who married Sarah J. Shellhammer; Annie, wife of Richard A. Leinbach, a coal, grain and lumber dealer of Robesonia; Sarah, wife of Abraham Gibble, a farmer of Berks county; Lydia, who married L. R. Peifer; and Samuel R. The father of this family died Feb. 6, 1868, aged seventy-one years, and the mother passed away March 1, 1862, aged sixty-four years.

(V) Samuel R. Deppen, son of Samuel and Mary (Royer), born in Lower Heidelberg township Nov. 28, 1841, is now living retired in Robesonia, one of the most highly esteemed citizens of his community. He acquired his education in the public schools of his native township, and when he attained mature years purchased his father's farm, for many years devoting himself to agricultural pursuits. Later he moved to Robesonia, and from 1866 to 1881 he was engaged in the coal, grain and lumber business, also operating the stone quarry at Robesonia, and acting as agent for the Columbus Wire Fence Company, of Columbus, Ohio. Mr. Deppen has always taken a keen interest in the affairs of his town, and loyally supports the principles of the Republican party. He has been many times elected to offices of trust and responsibility, among these being: member of the school board, three times; township auditor, two terms; assessor, two terms; county commissioner, 1887; delegate to the National Republican Conventions of 1880 and 1884; and justice of the peace of Heidelberg township, an office to which he was elected in 1900 and still continues to fill to the general satisfaction of the public. He has served as supervisor of the Womelsdorf and Robesonia water plant, and has in many ways shown his interest in public improvements. He himself has high principles of honesty and integrity, and he demands honesty in others. In 1863 he enlisted in Company E, 42d Pennsylvania Volunteer Militia, Capt. John McKnight, and served as corporal from July 4 to Aug. 12, 1863.

Fraternally Mr. Deppen is a member of Williamson Lodge, No. 307, F. & A. M., Womelsdorf; Reading Chapter, No. 152, R. A. M.; De Molay Commandery, No. 9, K. T., of Reading; and the P. O. S. of A. Camp at Robesonia. He has been one of those citizens who feel it a duty to improve in every way the town in which they dwell, and he has erected a number of substantial buildings and a residence. At the present time he represents the Northern Mutual Fire Insurance Company.

Mr. Deppen has been thrice married. On Oct. 1, 1863, he married Sarah Ruth, who died Oct. 5, 1864. His second wife, Mary Ann (Neff), of Womelsdorf, died in 1867. Subsequently he married (third) Mary L. Seltzer, who was born in Womelsdorf, daughter of J. George and Priscilla (Livingood) Seltzer. Three children were born of this union, namely: May M., a graduate of Darlington Seminary, class of 1890, is a music teacher in Robesonia; Laura G., who also graduated from Darlington Seminary, class of 1890, and is a gifted artist, married Frank J. Althouse, a druggist of Harrisburg, and has a daughter, Laura; Ella S. died at the age of eleven years.

Dr. Daniel Deppen was born in Heidelberg township in 1800. He received such education as the schools of his home neighborhood afforded, and later he read medicine with Dr. Tryon, one of the earliest physicians in all that section of the State. He then went to a medical college in Philadelphia, and after completing his course began the practice of his profession at Bernville, but later moved to the old Deppen homestead, which had come into his possession, and there he continued to make his home until his death, in May, 1862. He was buried in a private plot on his farm, and there, too, lie sleeping many of the earlier members of the Deppen family. He married Catharine Smith, born in 1806, who died at the age of ninety-seven. She was a daughter of Philip and Magdalena (Greth) Smith, farming people of Penn township, who erected a house in 1791 on the farm now owned by Isaac Greth. Both the Smiths and Greths were Roman Catholics. To Dr. Daniel Deppen and his wife Catharine were born the following children: Matilda, who married the late Jacob Dundore, and resides at Mt. Pleasant; Mary Ann, who married (first) George Rigg and (second) Isaac Gruber; Dr. Darius, who died in middle life and is buried in the Catholic cemetery at Reading; Dr. James Wellington; Catharine, who died in childhood; Rebecca, who married Erasmus Gruber; Lizzie E. and Emily C., both unmarried and residing at No. 820 Walnut street, Reading; Dr. Joseph; and Dr. William, residing in Reading.

Dr. James Wellington Deppen, son of Dr. Daniel, was born near Bernville, in Penn township, on the old Deppen homestead, Feb. 19, 1837. The common schools and the Bernville high school afforded him a good foundation for his education, and his medical studies were pursued in the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania, from which he graduated. He began practice at the place where he was born, but after a few years he moved to Mt. Pleasant, a village in the same township, where he was engaged in practice for many years. In 1886 he located in Wernersville, where he practised until his death, which occurred July 3, 1897. He never specialized in any particular branch, but was a general practitioner, and one of the beloved type of "family doctors" now rapidly passing away. He built the present "Lebanon Valley House," a well-known hostelry at Wernersville, also the present brick residence on the main street of the town where his widow made her home. She was a highly respected woman, and enjoyed the esteem of all who knew her. Both Dr. Deppen and his wife attended Hain's Reformed Church, where his remains were buried.

In 1860 Dr. Deppen was married to Mary A. Reber, daughter of John and Sarah (Fisher) Reber, and three children blessed this union, namely: Gertrude married George Gaul, and died in 1901, at the age of thirty years; Daniel is employed at the Grandview Sanitarium, at Wernersville; Charles married Mary Huber, has one son, Stanley, and resided with his mother, Mrs. Deppen, who died Dec. 8, 1907, at the age of sixty-five years.

SAMUEL D. HEIL, late of Hereford township, was born June 14, 1813, and died June 26, 1891, aged seventy-eight years, twelve days. He is buried at New Goshenhoppen Reformed Church. The family is an old one in this section, Conrad Heil, his grandfather, having owned much land here during his lifetime. In 1778 he purchased a tract of eighty-five acres in Hereford township from Philip Rauch; in 1785 he purchased 132 acres in the same township from David Meeshter; in 1794 he bought a small tract, of five acres, from George Wiegner, and in 1809 he bought twenty-seven acres. He was a man of affairs and good standing. His family consisted of sons Conrad and Daniel and several daughters. He is buried at New Goshenhoppen Church.

Daniel Heil, son of Conrad, was born in Hereford township June 5, 1775, and died June 26, 1827, aged fifty-two years, twenty-one days. Like so many of this family, he is buried at New Goshenhoppen Church. He was engaged as a farmer in Hereford, owning the farm which later became the property of his son Samuel. He married Catharine Hertzog, born May 6, 1773, who died Nov. 25, 1847, aged seventy-four years, six months, nineteen days. Three children were born to them, Samuel D., Philip and Jacob. Philip, born in 1799, and Jacob, born in 1801, both died in 1802, only about two weeks apart.

Samuel D. Heil followed farming during his active years, living on his place in Hereford township between Clayton and Chapel, on the Clayton and Hereford turnpike. It comprised over ninety acres of valuable land. From 1851 until his death, however, he led a semi-retired life, although he had numerous interests which kept him in touch with the life of the community, and he was well known in his capacity of peacemaker, settling many differences between neighbors which, though trifling in themselves, might have caused trouble if not equitably disposed of. He served as a justice of the peace for thirty years, and fulfilled the obligations of his office in the most honorable manner. He was also school director, and as an earnest member of the Democratic party was active in its councils, acting many times as delegate to county conventions. In his day he was a leading man of the township. With his family he belonged to the New Goshenhoppen Reformed Church, of which he was a trustee for many years. He was in comfortable circumstances, and in 1852 settled down in retirement at the place where his widow still resides, a nice home with thirty acres of ground in Hereford township. He built the present barn the same year. The house was erected the year before, in 1851. After removing to this place he rented his ninety-acre farm, which is now the property of James Greiss.

Mr. Heil was twice married, his first union, to Sarah Kehl, daughter of Anthony Kehl, taking place Jan. 18, 1834. She was born June 14, 1813, and died Sept. 7, 1856, aged forty-three years, two months, twenty-three days. She was the mother of six children, namely: Solomon, born in 1834, who died in 1901; Matilda, who is unmarried; Maria, born in 1838, who died in 1908 (wife of Aaron T. Hertzog); Bileam, born in 1840, who died in 1861; William H., who died young; and Priscilla, born in 1851, who died in 1874.

On April 3, 1869, Mr. Heil married Susanna Hersch, who survives him, as does also the only child born to this marriage, Agnes A., now the wife of Harvey Hiestand, a farmer of Hereford township. Mr. and Mrs. Hiestand have one daughter, Verna.

Mrs. Susanna Heil is a pleasant woman, intelligent and active, both mentally and physically. She is a constant reader, keeping well informed on current news, and possessing a retentive mind. Having been left in comfortable circumstances, she is in a position to enjoy her age in peace and contentment, and she is highly respected for her many sterling qualities.

Elias Hersch, of Marlborough, Montgomery Co., Pa., grandfather of Mrs. Susanna Heil, married Susanna Long, and they had children: Samuel, Michael, Charles, Daniel, Jacob, William, John, Hannah, Polly, Rebecca and Joseph.

Joseph Hersch, father of Mrs. Heil, married Anna Graber, and they lived in Upper Hanover township, Montgomery county. They had three children: Susanna, widow of Samuel D. Heil; Emma E., who died unmarried at the age of fifty-six years, four months, two days; and Charles H., of Macungie, Pennsylvania.

REV. JOHN BAER STOUDT. Staudt (Stoudt, Stout) is one of the early Palatinate family names. Members of the family figured prominently in some of the Crusades. The family spread northward into Holland, where several members obtained noble rank. During the persecutions of Bloody Alba some members of the family fled to England, one of them, Richard by name, enlisting in the English navy. Upon one of his visits to New Amsterdam he met Penelope Van Princis, who later became his wife, and they settled in Middletown, N. J., prior to 1688, becoming the progenitors of a large and honorable family.

The Staudts of Pennsylvania come directly from the Palatinate and seem to be divided into two groups, that of Berks and that of Bucks county. On Aug. 30, 1737, there landed at Philadelphia John Jacob, Johannes and Hans Adam Staudt, and on Sept. 24th of the same year Peter Staudt. These four, it is claimed, were brothers. The following year arrived Peter and Daniel; in 1741 another Peter arrived, and in 1744 George Wilhelm joined the group. It is believed that all the above named were related. John Jacob settled at what is now Perkasie, and was the father of the following children: Abraham, Henry K., Jacob, Hannah, Magdalena, Annie Margret. Abraham was a man of prominence in his day, serving during the Revolution as a member of the Committee of Safety, also of the Committee of Observation, member of the Constitutional Convention of 1787 and of the Convention of 1789-90. The Stouts of Lehigh and Northampton counties are descendants of the Bucks group.

At the head of the Berks group stands John Michael Staudt, who took the oath of allegiance at Philadelphia Sept. 18, 1733. Tradition says that his father died at sea, and that the headship of the family fell upon him, though he was only twenty-one years of age. How large the family was we do not know, but we know that Mathias, aged eight, and Johannes, probably still younger, were in the group, and we have reason to think that the family was even larger.

On Oct. 25, 1737, there was surveyed for John Michael Staudt a tract of land in Bern township on the west bank of the Schuylkill river, "opposite the flat meadows," of 180 acres. Later the estate was doubled. The place is known as Stoudts Ferry. Johannes was probably never married. Mathias married Anna Margeret Schrader, who was born Oct. 13, 1728, and died May 22, 1797. He was born in 1725 and died in 1795. They resided in Bern township, and raised the following children: John, Mathias, Abraham, Catherine Maria (married Thomas Umbenhauer) and Elizabeth. Of these, Abraham, born Jan. 25, 1757, died Oct. 9, 1824; to him and his wife Maria Elizabeth (Brown), born June 22, 1756, died Aug. 15, 1824, were born the following children: Mathias, John, Jacob, Catherine, Magdelena, Anna Maria and Sussanna. Johannes, Mathias and John Michael were members of the Bern Church, where their ashes rest in peace.

John Michael Staudt, the ancestor of Rev. John Baer Stoudt, was born in 1712 and died May 13, 1776. To him and his wife Barbara were born the following children: (1) Johannes (1737-Oct. 13, 1801) married Maria Catherine Kerschner (1751-Dec. 21, 1826) and lived on a farm in Maiden-creek township. Their union was blessed with the following children: George, Catherine (married to Henry Body), Barbara (married to George Snyder), Elizabeth (married to Daniel Maurer), Jacob, John, Daniel and Samuel. (2) Jacob (1735-1802) moved in 1790 from Bern township to Richmond township, having bought the farm now owned by Edwin Kutz. To him and his wife Margaret were born the following children: John Jacob, Adam, John Henry, Daniel, Barbara (married to John Schucker), Mary (married to Michael Knittle), Catherine (who died unmarried), Elizabeth (married to William Ebling). (3) Michael (1742-1807) married Maria Elizabeth Brown (1759-1820) and had four sons and five daughters. He received the old homestead. (4) George Wilhelm (1748-1820) lived in Maiden-creek township, and became the progenitor of a large posterity. He married Christina Weidenhammer (1752-1817), daughter of Johannes Weidenhammer (1726-1804) and Margereth (Ehteigie) (born in Kurpfalz in 1727-died in 1812), and their children were: George, Margaret (married to Daniel Gross), Magdalina (married to John Mohn), Daniel, Maria (married to Daniel Mertz), Adam, Jacob, Catherine (married to Daniel Mickly). George Wilhelm Staudt and his brother Jacob lie buried in the Kutztown Union cemetery. (5) John George and his wife Anna Margreta moved to Tulpehocken township. (6) Jost and his wife Mary Elizabeth lived in Bern township. To them were born the following children: Jacob, Margretha, Catherine and Magdalina. (7) Anna Barbara married Baltzer Leach, of Bern township, and this union was blessed with seven children. (8) Catherine married Christopher Leach and resided in Heidelberg township. (9) Apolonia married Daniel Aurandt and moved to Buffalo Valley. (10) Catherine Elizabeth married Peter Wise and resided in Bern township.

Daniel, son of Jacob (1735-1802), was a distiller by trade. His declining years were spent in the vicinity of Kutztown, where he died in 1853; he was buried in Hottenstein's private cemetery. He married a Miss Bowman, and this union was blessed with the following children: Adam moved to Logansport, Ind., where he died; George married Hannah Borrel and reared a family of nine children; Reuben is mentioned below; Frank died unmarried; Margaretha married Jacob Saul, of Molltown; Polly and Hannah died unmarried; Maria married Joseph Hampshire and lived at Bowers Station; Hettie Ester died young; Isaac served in the Mexican war, and soon after his return left again for the Western country.

Reuben, the third son of Daniel, married Hannah Koch, daughter of John Koch and his wife Catherine (Gehret), and this union was blessed with the following children: Benjamin, who located at Pinegrove, Schuylkill county; Daniel, who located at Circleville, Ohio; William, who located at Pottsville, Schuylkill county; Henry; Kate, who died unmarried; Hannah, married to Mr. Lobo and living in Chicago; Reuben, who was killed in the Civil war; Samuel, who settled in Carlisle, Pa.; Charles, who died of disease contracted in the Civil war; James, who served in the Civil war and afterward located in California; Melinda and Ellen, unmarried, who live at Reading; and Sarah, who married a Mr. Yingst and lives at Carlisle.

Henry, son of Reuben, married Olivia Reppert, daughter of Peter and Elizabeth (Diehl) Reppert, and this union was blessed with six children, John, Hannah, Francis, Oliver, Daniel and Lucius. Henry is said to have died of hiccough and he and his wife lie buried at DeLong's Reformed Church.

John R. Stoudt, son of Henry, was born Feb. 10, 1848. He married Anna Amanda, daughter of Charles and Anna (Carl) Baer, the latter the daughter of George and Barbara (Keiffer) Carl. This union was blessed with the following children: Henry, a molder by trade, residing at Reading, married Minnie Lease and has two children, Mabel and Charles; John Baer is mentioned below; George Baer, a machinist by trade, residing at Topeka, Kans., has two sons, Calvin and Francis; Jacob, of Fleetwood, Pa., a molder by trade, is married to Kate, daughter of Adam Kline; Frederick and Annie are at home with their mother, who lives at Fleetwood.

John Baer Stoudt, son of John R. and Anna Amanda (Baer) Stoudt, was born Oct. 17, 1878, in Maxatawny township, and later removed with his father to Richmond township, where he attended the public schools of the township. In 1896 he was licensed to teach, which profession he followed for three years. In 1900 he graduated from the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, Pa., and in 1905 from Franklin and Marshall College, at Lancaster, Pa. Both at the normal school and at college he took an active interest in literary and oratorical work, winning a number of prizes, collegiate and inter-collegiate, among them the John W. Wetzel prize, second prize in the inter-collegiate oratorical contest and the State Camp oratorical contest of the P. O. S. of A. During the summer of 1906 he studied theology in the University of Chicago, and in 1908 was graduated from the Eastern Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church. He now resides at Emaus, Lehigh Co., Pa., where he is pastor of three Reformed congregations. He is regarded as a pulpit orator of more than ordinary ability.

On Oct. 15, 1908, Mr. Stoudt was married to Miss Elizabeth A. DeLong, daughter of the late Joseph and Mary H. (Yoder) DeLong, of Topton, Pennsylvania.

JOSEPH FREDERICK ISETT, M. D., who has been engaged in the practice of medicine at Hamburg for nearly thirty years, is a native of Berks county, born Oct. 19, 1846, in Greenwich township, son of Dr. Benjamin F. and Lovina (Christman) Isett.

It is traditional in the family that the great-great-grandfather of Dr. Isett removed with other French Huguenots to Germany, and that he started from there to America, but died on board the ship, his remains being buried at sea, while his widow and two sons, Frederick and Jacob, landed in safety at Philadelphia in 1732. This progenitor's name is said to have been Frederick.

Frederick Isett, son of the progenitor, settled on a farm near La Trappe, in Montgomery county, Pa. His farm lay adjacent to Governor Shunk's, and he married a Miss Markley, by whom he had several children, among them Frederick, the Doctor's grandfather. He was born during the Revolutionary war and died ripe in years. He was a farmer by occupation, and was well and favorably known in his district. He married Mary Hallman, and they had children as follows: Dr. Benjamin Franklin; Samuel, of Upper Providence township, Montgomery county, married to Harriet Brower; Frederick, of Limerick township, Montgomery county, married to Harriet Shade; and John, married to Esther Poley.

Dr. Benjamin F. Isett was born in Upper Providence township, Montgomery county, Jan. 29, 1807, and died Oct. 9, 1869. He was educated in Montgomery county, and was engaged in milling before taking up the study of medicine in the University of Pennsylvania. He became assistant physician at the Montgomery county almshouse, where he remained one year before locating at Klinesville, Berks county, in 1833, and thereafter successfully practised at that place for twenty-three years. In 1856 he settled in the town of Hamburg, where he resided at the time of his death. He was a man of wide influence in his community and a staunch friend of education, serving several terms as school director. Early in his practise he espoused homeopathy and was largely instrumental in introducing it in northern Berks. Dr. Isett was married to Lovina Christman, daughter of Joseph and Rebecca (Camp) Christman, and they had children as follows: Henry Francis, married to Mary Keller; Anna M., married to Dr. E. Benjamin Bierman, president of Lebanon Valley College, and a former legislator of Lebanon county; Dr. J. Frederick, and Catharine B., married to Rev. S. G. Grove, of Philadelphia.

J. Frederick Isett was taken by his parents to Hamburg when nine years of age, and there gained his preliminary education in the public schools. In 1862 he entered Dickinson College, and while there enlisted in the 195th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, serving with this regiment until the close of the war. Returning to Hamburg he engaged in the mercantile business, which he followed for three years, when he took up the study of medicine, graduating from the Hahnemann Medical College, Philadelphia, in 1876. He then located in Middletown, Dauphin county, but in 1878 returned to Hamburg, where he has been successfully engaged in practice ever since. Dr. Isett is the medical examiner for a number of life insurance companies, including the Metropolitan and Prudential Companies.

On Oct. 31, 1869, Dr. Isett married Emma R. Miller, daughter of Edward M. and Sarah (Moyer) Miller, and to this union have been born children as follows: Sarah Lavinia, married to Harry C. Carper; Harry M., who is married to Clara Rumble; J. Fred, Jr., a public school teacher; Chester M., who married Ellen Schollenberger; and William M., a machinist by trade.

GEORGE M. JONES, a member of the faculty of the Boys' High School of Reading, is connected on both sides of the family with some of the first settlers of the county and State. His paternal ancestors are traced in direct line to Nils Jones, who came from Sweden, in 1638, and settled in the northern part of what is now Delaware, not far from the site afterward selected by William Penn for Philadelphia. The original settler in Berks county was Mounce Jones, who built the first house in Berks county, at Douglassville, in 1716, which historic structure is still standing. He was our subject's great-grandfather's grandfather.

Nicholas Jones, grandfather of George M., was a forgemaster at Hecla, Schuylkill county. He was born in Amity township, and during his lifetime was prominent in public affairs having been a member of the Legislature from Schuylkill county in the year 1850. He lived to the advanced age of eighty-six.

Daniel Young Jones, son of Nicholas and father of George M., was a resident of Reading, but is now deceased, having died in 1883, at the age of forty-one. He married Elenora S. Miller, daughter of Daniel and Sarah Miller, whose ancestry is traced back to John George Spang, who came to America from Germany in 1751 and settled near Womelsdorf, Berks county.

George M. Jones was born Sept. 8, 1874, in Reading. He passed through the graded schools of that city, graduating from the Latin Scientific course of the high school in 1891. He then entered the University of Pennsylvania, where during 1891-92 he studied architecture. During the summer following, and until February, 1893, he was a rodsman for the city engineer of Reading. Returning to the University he took the course in Finance and Political Economy. His degree of Bachelor of Philosophy he took in 1896, receiving honors at graduation.

Upon his return home Mr. Jones selected the law as a profession, reading under the instruction of Isaac Hiester, of the Berks County Bar. His certificate of admission bears date of Nov. 14, 1898, from which time until 1906 he was actively engaged in practice. Since 1906 he has been a member of the faculty of the Boys' high school, of Reading.

Mr. Jones married, April 10, 1901, Mabel Catherine, daughter of Joseph Hertzog and Anna Mary (Wicklein) Lutz, of Reading. Their children are: Ruth, born June 28, 1904, and Frank Nicholas, born Nov. 19, 1906. Mr. Jones is connected officially with a number of the religious, educational and charitable societies of his community. He is a member of Trinity Lutheran Church, having been superintendent of the Sunday-school from 1900 to 1907, and a deacon from 1906 to 1909. He is a member of the board of education of the Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania, and treasurer of the Beneficial Brotherhood of Trinity Lutheran Church of Reading. He is a member of the Pennsylvania German Society, the American Civic Association, the National Educational Association, the Pennsylvania State Educational Association, and the College and General Alumni Society of the University of Pennsylvania. Mr. Jones is a Life Member of the Historical Society of Berks County, the Athletic Association of the Reading Boys' High School and of the Alumni Association of the Reading high schools. He was Treasurer of the Berks County Bar Association from 1902 to 1908. At present he is corresponding secretary of the Historical Society of Berks County, recording secretary of the Associated Charities of Reading, corresponding secretary of the Reading Sanitarium for the Treatment of Tuberculosis, treasurer of the Five-Minute Club, treasurer of the Reading Teachers' Institute, president of the Athletic Association of the Reading Boys' High School, vice-president of the Teachers' Nature Study Club of Reading, and of the Alumni Association of the Reading High Schools. Other local organizations of which Mr. Jones is a member are the Board of Trade, the Humane Society of Berks County, Hope Rescue Mission, the Civic League, Young Men's Christian Association, Trinity Luther League, Berks County Alumni of the University of Pennsylvania, and Oneonta Camping Club.

GEORGE K. LINDERMAN, ex-county commissioner of Berks county, Pa., who is now residing on his fine farm in Robeson township, was born in Union township, Berks county, in 1846, son of William and Mary Ann (Lloyd) Linderman, grandson of John and Mary (Ridge) Linderman, and great-grandson of Conrad and Martha (Peters) Linderman.

The Linderman family is one of the oldest upon record in Pennsylvania, it being recorded that Jacob Von Linderman came to America in 1710 with his two sons, Henry and Samuel, and settled in Ulster county, N. Y. Samuel Linderman, from whom George K. is descended, had one son John, and two daughters, Mary and Elizabeth.

John Linderman, son of Samuel, married, and among his children were two sons, Conrad and Frederick, both of whom served in the Revolutionary war, the latter holding the rank of sergeant.

Conrad Linderman, great-grandfather of George K., removed from Montgomery county, Pa., in 1780, and settled in Douglass township, Berks county, where he purchased a small property and this he cultivated all of his active period. He died in 1841, at the age of sixty-six years. He and his wife had eleven children, as follows: Isaac, Frederick, John, Elizabeth, Jacob, Sarah, Modeleana, Richard, Margrette, Mary and Conrad. In religious belief the family were first Lutherans, but later became connected with the Reformed Church.

John Linderman, grandfather of George K., was born in Montgomery county, Pa., and later removed with his parents to Douglass township, where he resided until 1805, when he moved to Union township, and there the rest of his life was spent in weaving and farming, the former occupation having been carried on in the family as far back as the records show. Mr. Linderman died in 1854, at the age of seventy-two years, and his wife died in 1862, when seventy-eight years old. They were the parents of these children: Conrad, William, Martha, Frederick, Jacob and John. In religious belief the family were Reformed. John Linderman served as a soldier in the war of 1812-14.

William Linderman, father of George K., was born in Union township in 1804, and spent his whole life engaged in weaving and farming there. He married, in 1828, Mary Ann Lloyd, and they became the parents of seven children: Samuel; Mary (m. B. F. Miller); Catherine (m. William Slipp); Elizabeth (m. (first) T. J. Espenshade and (second) Benjamin Roberts); George K.; and two who died in infancy. In religious belief the family is connected with the Reformed Church. In political matters Mr. Linderman was a Democrat, and held a number of township offices.

George K. Linderman was educated in the common schools of Union township, and the grammar school at Reading, after leaving which he was engaged in Esterly & Bro.'s wholesale grocery for two years. He then connected himself with the Wilmington & Northern Railroad, as conductor, and remained with the company from 1870 until 1874, losing his left leg in their service, after which he was put in charge of the Wilmington & Northern freight house at Coatesville. In 1874 he purchased the old homestead in Robeson township, where he has since devoted his time to farming and weaving. At one time Mr. Linderman was an extensive breeder of fine poultry, but he is now giving most of his attention to truck farming, which he finds very profitable. Mr. Linderman is a Democrat in politics, and on numerous occasions has been elected a delegate to county conventions, serving on various committees. In 1897 he was elected county commissioner, and gave excellent service to the tax payers, no man ever leaving the office with a cleaner record than he. Fraternally Mr. Linderman is connected with the P. O. S. of A.

Mr. Linderman married Emma Swavely, and to them have been born four children; Mary A. and Clara E., teachers; S. Catherina, a graduate of the Birdsboro high school, and now teaching in Robeson township; and Luther L.

PERCIVAL C. NYCE, who for a number of years was engaged in the produce and commission business in Reading, is now living retired in this city. Mr. Nyce was born Oct. 22, 1839, in Marlborough township, Montgomery Co., Pa., son of Samuel and Eliza (Cope) Nyce.

George Nyce, grandfather of Percival C., resided on the old homestead in Marlborough township, where he died at the age of sixty years, his wife, who had been a Miss Price, passing away in her ninetieth year. They were members of the German Baptist Brethren Church. Their children were: John; Daniel; Samuel; Joel; Jesse; Katie (m. a Clemmer); Elizabeth (m. a Reed). In politics Mr. Nyce was a Whig.

Samuel Nyce was born on the homestead in Marlborough township, and there followed farming many years, removing to Reading in 1853 to engage in the produce business. He died in 1898, in his eighty-fifth year, and his wife died in 1893, when seventy-seven years old. They had seven children, six of whom lived to maturity, as follows: Mary (who m. an Anthony); Andora (m. a Goodman); Catherine (m. a Guth); Percival C.; Sylvester, and Calvin S. The father of these children was a member of the Baptist Church, while Mrs. Nyce belonged to the Reformed denomination.

Percival C. Nyce was educated in the common schools of Montgomery county and later those of Reading, and as a boy worked in the commission house of his father, with whom he later went into partnership, this connection lasting from 1860 until 1865, when Percival C. Nyce went to Philadelphia, where he engaged in the business on his own account. From that city he went to New York, thence to Chicago, and later to Mount Carroll, Ill., whence he returned in 1873 to Reading, forming a partnership with his brother-in-law and his brother, Calvin. In this connection Mr. Nyce continued until ill health forced his retirement from active life in 1888.

On Aug. 4, 1859, Mr. Nyce married, at Milton, Pa., Cecelia E. Trego, and their son, Harry E., married (first) Ella Benson, had two children: Percival C., Jr., and Elsie C., and (second) m. Rosie Guth. Percival C. Nyce is a member of the German Baptist Church.

JOHN BORDEAUX WILSON, one of the leading citizens of Longswamp township, Berks county, who has won quite a reputation as a civil engineer, is engaged in a large white china clay business, being a member of the firm of the Star Clay Company. Mr. Wilson was born May 7, 1848, at Philadelphia, Pa., son of David G. and Emma (Moore) Wilson.

David G. Wilson was born Nov. 7, 1804, in Kent county, Del., and learned the trade of wheelwright in Philadelphia, where he established himself in business in 1829. Subsequently, he formed a partnership with a blacksmith, John Childs, the well-known firm of Wilson, Childs & Co. being organized, which afterward became one of the leading enterprises of its kind in the world, handling large government and foreign contracts. Mr. Wilson died July 22, 1860, while at the height of his business success, but the firm has been continued to the present time, the name remaining the same. In August, 1826, he married Emma Moore, born at Bridgeton, N. J., Aug. 23, 1806, who died in Philadelphia, Jan. 1, 1884. Of their eleven children, John Bordeaux was the youngest.

John Bordeaux Wilson was reared and educated in Philadelphia, and after taking a two years' course at the Central high school, in September, 1864, he entered the Polytechnic College, in the class of civil engineering, and was graduated in June, 1867. He followed this occupation until his health compelled him to relinquish it, and became known all over the country. His first appointment was as a member of the engineering corps of the Union Pacific Railroad, engaged in location and construction work through Dakota and Utah, and there he remained until shortly prior to the completion of the road, in May, 1869. For the following two years he was an assistant engineer for the survey of Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, and he subsequently entered the U. S. Engineering Corps, engaged in the survey of the Delaware river, near Philadelphia. He afterward entered the railroad service, having charge of the engineering work on the eastern division of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railway, but after five years was compelled to give up this occupation. He did some work in the silver mines of Colorado, and in 1877 came East. In September, 1878, he purchased a one-half interest in the Star Clay Company, of near Mertztown, where the crude clay is refined by a washing process, and run through filter presses, subsequently being kiln-dried by steam. During the years that have followed, the business has been extended and shipments are now made to all points in the United States. The firm has another plant at Alburtis, Lehigh county, where the product is shipped in the crude state after being air dried. From 1878 until 1884, Mr. Wilson resided in Philadelphia, but in the summer of the latter year, he brought his family to Longswamp township, and they were so well pleased with the locality that they decided to remain.

On Dec. 16, 1875, Mr. Wilson was married to Millie F. Logan, daughter of William C. Logan. She was born May 12, 1852, at Cottonwood, Mo., and died Feb. 25, 1890, at Philadelphia. Five children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Wilson: Laura, born Oct. 9, 1876, is unmarried; Henry Leland, born Nov. 12, 1879, m. Emma Fenstermaker, and has four children,—John Raymond, Evelyn, Millard Logan and James Fenstermaker; Mary Calwell, born Oct. 8, 1881, m. Nov. 24, 1908, John Dallas, of Philadelphia, and is residing at Logan, Philadelphia; Emma Moore was born Jan. 25, 1884—all the foregoing children having been born in Philadelphia; and Clarence B., born Sept. 5, 1888, in Longswamp township, is learning the trade of machinist.

Mr. Wilson was secretary of the board of trustees of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, Philadelphia, for a number of years, and still retains his membership in this congregation.

JAMES SEIDLE HILL, who died in 1888, was for many years a leading citizen and prosperous agriculturist of Cumru township, where he was born April 2, 1824, son of John and Ellen (Seidle) Hill.

John Hill was a native of Cumru township, and followed agricultural pursuits on a property now owned by Frank Lauer. He died in 1889, aged ninety-two years. He was a Democrat in politics, while his religious belief was that of the Reformed Church, to which his wife, Ellen (Seidle), also adhered. They had a family of fourteen children, twelve of whom grew to maturity, as follows: James S.; Eliza, m. John Schwartz; Hannah, m. Phillip Obold; Mary, m. Adam Hain; John m. Amanda Barnhardt; Charles m. Mary Sharp; Henry m. Sally Henning; William is deceased; Nicholas m. Mary Shaffer; Ellen m. George McCallister; Peter; and Jeremiah, m. Mary Spangler.

James S. Hill was reared in Cumru township, and after receiving his education, turned his attention to agricultural pursuits, which he carried on until his retirement in 1854. In 1851 Mr. Hill married Emma B. Seitzinger, daughter of Jacob W. and Anna (Schwartz) Seitzinger, the former the owner of the State Constabulary property, known as the old Seitzinger estate, which at his death became the property of Mrs. Hill. To Mr. and Mrs. Hill there were born these children: Anna died aged two years; Agnes m. Francis P. Schwartz, and had three children—Marie D., James S. and Jacob W. (she is the owner of two fine farms, which are superintended by her husband, Mr. Schwartz); Ellen S.; Alice; Adelia; Frank; and Alma died unmarried.

In religious belief Mr. Hill was a member of the Reformed Church, while his wife adhered to the Lutheran faith. He was a director of the Union National Bank of Reading, and served as assessor of Cumru township in 1855. Mrs. Hill died Jan. 14, 1908, and was buried in the Charles Evans cemetery, Reading.

ASAPH PRUTZMAN (deceased), who for many years was at the head of one of the most successful business enterprises in Reading, Pa., had been a lifelong resident of that city, where he was born July 19, 1829.

Andrew Prutzman, his father, was likewise born in Reading, and received his education in the public schools there. Early in life he learned the trade of a tin and copper smith, and during his lifetime carried on a tinware and stove business. In May, 1813, he married Anna Sibilla Furshel, born July 25, 1795, in Wurtemberg, Germany, daughter of Nicholas and Maria Ann Furshel, the former of whom was a member of the Reformed Church, being chorister and schoolmaster, while his wife was a Catholic in religious faith. Andrew Prutzman died while still in the prime of life, in 1830, aged forty-five years, but his wife survived until Jan. 28, 1868, dying at the age of seventy-three. They were members of the Lutheran Church, and in politics Mr. Prutzman was a Democrat. The children of Andrew and Anna Sibilla Prutzman were: Jacob, born Sept. 14, 1814; Mary Ann, born June 20, 1817; Henry, born May 23, 1819; Nicholas, born Aug. 1, 1821; Hannah, born Aug. 1, 1824; Rebecca, born April 24, 1828; and Asaph, born July 19, 1829. Three of this family are still living.

Asaph Prutzman was educated like his father in Reading, and after completing his schooling commenced to learn the trade of blacksmith. He spent three years at this trade with Valentine Groff, whose shop was then located opposite the Church of Our Father (Universalist), but he found the work so heavy and injurious to his health that he gave it up and learned tinsmithing instead. He spent four years in making himself thoroughly familiar with the details of that trade. He then went into business for himself in that line, building up an extensive trade, for a long period being one of Reading's prominent men. When he retired he left to his sons one of the best known and best managed enterprises in the city. Highly successful himself, he was very philanthropic and always ready to help others, many a young man receiving substantial assistance from him in making his way in the world. Mr. Prutzman's benefactions in other ways were also liberal and the full extent of his philanthropy will never be known.

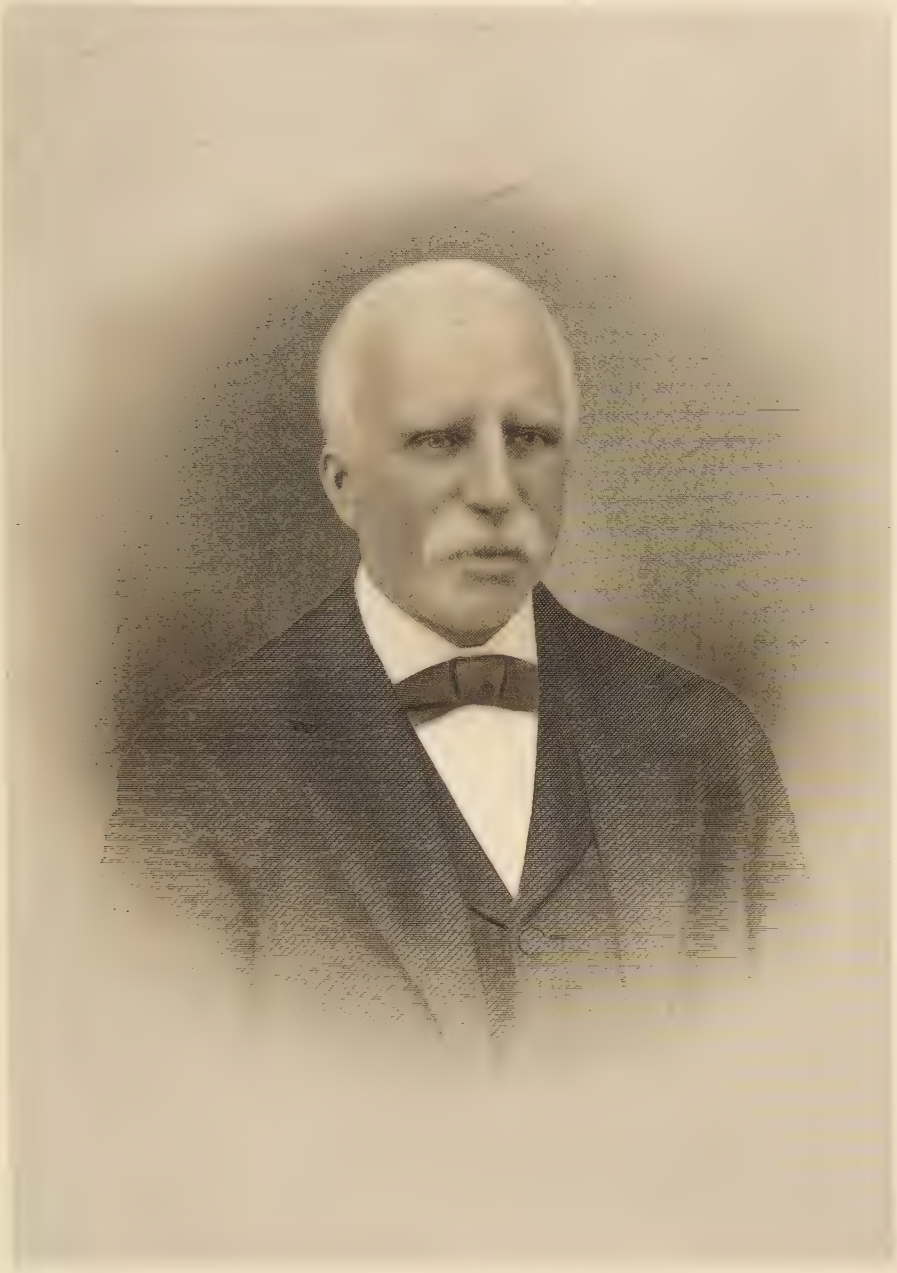
On May 31, 1853, Asaph Prutzman married Miss Margaretta Burns Mengel, daughter of Solomon and Catherine (Burns) Mengel, six of whose children are still living. Both Mr. and Mrs. Prutzman were members of the Memorial M. E. Church, the latter now having belonged to that denomination for fifty years. Mr. Prutzman was a very active church worker until he became afflicted with heart disease, which obliged him to relax his activities. A man devoted to his home and family, he spent the greater part of his leisure time by his fireside. A great reader, he was well posted on all general topics, and was a conversationalist of unusual powers. An indulgent husband and father, his death on June 12, 1905, was a great loss to his family, all of whom survived him. He was laid to rest in the Charles Evans cemetery.

To Asaph Prutzman and his wife were born eight children, three sons and five daughters, as follows: (1) Walter M. is in the stove and roofing business at No. 304 Penn street. He first married Miss Rosie High, who died leaving two children—Paul Burns and Maud M. (deceased). He married (second) Mrs. Rebecca (Leinbach) Snyder. (2) Catharine Amelia is deceased. (3) Jacob Mengel married Eva Nolan, of Columbia, and they have three children—William Asaph, Florence G. and Raymond J. (4) Emily Clarinda is deceased. (5) Mary Emily married Joseph Bunting, and has one child, Helen M. (6) Aspah Edgar is deceased. (7) Margaretta Burns is deceased. (8) Alice Annie May married John H. Eckel, and they have three children—Madeline M., Asaph Burns and Anna Sibilla, the last named of whom was named after her great-grandmother, Anna Sibilla Prutzman.

MECKSTROTH. The Meckstroth family dates back to William and Elizabeth (Quiller) Meckstroth, who came from Ladbergen, a province of Northern Germany, near Hanover, prior to their marriage. After coming to America, Elizabeth Quiller married (first) William Snethkamp, who was killed by a falling tree, and by this union she had two children: William H., who was one of the first graduates of Heidelberg University at Tiffin, Ohio, and who for many years was a justice of the peace, notary, school teacher and merchant, besides being the first agent of his section for farm implements, but is now living retired at St. Marys, Ohio; and Elizabeth, who became the wife of Henry Lutterbeck, and had three children, all now married. About 1847 Elizabeth (Quiller) Snethkamp married (second) William Meckstroth, and they located in New Knoxville, Auglaize Co., Ohio, which at that time was all forest, and they had to fell and burn the trees to get a sufficient clearing to raise the necessities of life. To William and Elizabeth Meckstroth were born seven children: Mary m. Henry Sundermann, who died in August, 1907; Herman Henry m. Mary Bierbaum; Ernest L. m. Lizzie Feldwisch; Annie m. William Haberkamp; Sophia m. W. H. Fledderjohann; George m. Fredericka Peters; and Charles A. m. Annie Lammert.

(II) Herman Henry Meckstroth was born in New Knoxville, Ohio, July 10, 1850, and remained at home until the age of twenty years. He was then married to Mary Bierbaum, a daughter of William and Elizabeth Bierbaum, who also came from Germany and located near New Knoxville. This union was blessed with children as follows: George, who died when ten months old; Annie, who died when quite young; Benjamin (twin to the Rev. William L.), who died when a few weeks old; William Lewis; Lewis, who died at the age of four years; Henry Lewis, who graduated from the Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia in June, 1908, and was then appointed resident physician of St. Joseph's Hospital, Lancaster, but after July 1, 1909, will locate in New Knoxville, Ohio; Edward Charles, who taught school for five years, but now is preparing himself for the medical profession, and who married Martha Howe. The mother died July 19, 1907, after an illness of two days.

(III) William Lewis Meckstroth, pastor of Ziegel Reformed Church, an eloquent and brilliant young divine of the Reformed faith, was born near New Knoxville, Ohio, Feb. 24, 1878. He was baptized by Rev. F. H. W.



Adolph Ruthman

Kuckhermann in infancy and from then seemed set apart for his sacred calling. At the age of fifteen he was confirmed by Rev. F. Mathers, a Lutheran clergyman. He attended the schools of his neighborhood until 1894, when he entered St. Mary's high school, completing a three years' course in two years. He then entered Mission House College at Franklin, Wis., the German college of the Reformed church in the United States, in the fall of 1896, and completed a classical course in the spring of 1900. He then entered Ursinus School of Theology, Philadelphia, in the fall of the same year. At the close of the theological course he left at once for Swanton, Ohio, where he began his active ministry in charge of four congregations. He was examined and licensed to preach by a committee of Heidelberg Classis, Central Synod, on Friday, June 5, 1903, and ordained and installed as pastor of Zion's charge, Swanton, Ohio, Sunday, June 28, 1903, by a committee of Toledo's Classis. He was pastor of Zion's charge until Oct. 1, 1904, a period of seventeen months. During this pastorate a $1,000 parsonage was bought and nearly paid for. On Oct. 1, 1904, he took charge of the First Reformed Mission congregation in Bay City, Mich., where in two and one-half years the congregation was raised from 85 to 125, the debt reduced from $900 to $330, and a number of improvements inaugurated. He supplied Covenant Presbyterian church from Oct. 1, 1904, to Oct. 1, 1905, at a time when there were only thirty-four communicant members and a church property, valued at $1,200, about to be sold for taxes. Within one year all indebtedness was wiped out, and the Sunday-school enlarged from 45 to 125 with the able assistance of Mr. William A. Guest, the efficient superintendent. Mr. Meckstroth was elected secretary and treasurer of the Bay City Ministerial Association Jan. 9, 1905, and twice re-elected. This association has twenty-seven members. The Rev. Mr. Meckstroth was asked in February, 1908, by several members of Saginaw Presbytery of the Presbyterian church if he would not consider entering that church, but he declined the cordial invitation with thanks. In the spring of 1903, prior to graduation and during the illness of Rev. Dr. L. K. Derr, the venerable pastor of Zion's Reformed church, Reading, Pa., he assisted for three months. He was elected pastor of the Ziegel charge, consisting of Longswamp and Ziegel congregations, on April 28, 1907, and began his labors on Sunday July 7, 1907.

On May 5, 1904, the Rev. Mr. Meckstroth married Miss Katharine F. Eshelman, of Reading, the ceremony being performed by the late Rev. L. K. Derr, D. D., of Reading. Mrs. Meckstroth for many years has been an active member of Zion's Reformed church. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Eshelman, now residing at Shillington. Mr. and Mrs. Meckstroth have one son, Herman Franklin, two years old.

The Rev. Mr. Meckstroth is a man of exceptional executive ability who thoroughly understands how to conduct his church upon a business basis and develop its possibilities into certain success. He is a young man of remarkable talents, and as a preacher is well known. He is very earnest and sincere, and seems to have an unsatisfied appetite for hard work. Each charge has parted with him with regret, and he will find ample opportunity to add to his honors in eastern Berks.

CORNELIUS BICKEL, assistant superintendent of the Keystone Furnace, a branch of the Reading Iron Company, one of the largest industries of Berks county, Pa., was born in 1854, in Lower Heidelberg township, Berks county, son of Daniel and Rebecca (Gruber) Bickel, farming people of Lower Heidelberg township.

Cornelius Bickel was one of a family of thirteen children, of whom but he and his brother Gesson are now living. He received a common school education in Cumru township, and worked on a farm until twenty-two years of age, when he came to Reading and accepted a position with Seifert, McManus & Co., continuing with that firm through all of its changes, until it was merged with the Reading Iron Company. Mr. Bickel started in at the old tube works, being promoted to foreman. In 1887 he came to the Keystone Furnace as a laborer, when the Bushongs operated the plant, and two years later was appointed to the position of foreman, in 1896 being made assistant superintendent, a capacity in which he has served to the present time. Mr. Bickel has from 140 to 150 workmen under his supervision, and he is popular with the employes and is considered a valuable man by his employers. He is a skilled mechanic, and it has been through his own ability and faithfulness to duty that he has reached his present position.

Mr. Bickel married Miss Emma Huffert, a native of Cumru township, Berks county, and to them have been born these children: Agnes m. John Bare; James; Lillie m. Milton Bonham; Florence m. John Doerman; and Regina m. Charles Stott. Mr. Bickel is a member of the P. O. S. of A., and the Jr. O. U. A. M. In political matters he is independent, casting his vote rather for the man than the party.

REV. JOSHUA S. BARTHOLOMEW, of Virginville, Berks county, Pa., was born March 22, 1863, at Bath, Northampton Co., Pa., son of Joshua and Sarah Ann (Bleiler) Bartholomew.

Lewis Bartholomew, grandfather of the Rev. Joshua S., was born in 1790, and died in 1875. He was a life-long farmer in Northampton county. He married Ann Smith, and they had six children, namely: Rebecca; Matilda (m. William Snyder); Joshua; Ann (m. Joseph Fehnel); Amelia (m. Edward Schearer); and Harrison (m. (first) Mary Ann Snyder and (second) Louisa Smith).

Joshua Bartholomew, son of Lewis, was born in Northampton county and resided near Bath, engaged as a farmer and blacksmith. He died in 1907. He married Sarah Ann Bleiler, daughter of Solomon Bleiler, a farmer of Salisbury township, Lehigh county. They had five children as follows: Osborn, Oliver B., Lewis H., Alfred A. and Rev. Joshua S.

The boyhood days of the Rev. Joshua S. Bartholomew were spent in the town of his nativity and his early intellectual training was obtained in the public schools at Bath. Later he attended the Academy and Ursinus College, for a period of two years in the former department and two in the latter, after which he entered upon the study of theology in the same institution. After a rigid course of three years he was graduated May 8, 1900, and he was at once elected the Reformed pastor of the Lenhartsville charge which consists of these six churches: Zions in Perry township; New Jerusalem (Dunkels) in Greenwich township; Frieden's (Wessnersville) in Albany township; St. Paul's in Windsor township; New Jerusalem (Red Church) in Albany township; and St. Paul's Christian Endeavor Chapel, Virginville. His total membership numbers more than 700 souls. He visits the different charges regularly every few Sundays, according to a regular schedule, and there are many all through this section who watch for the approach of the faithful old sorrel horse "George," knowing that with it comes one whose sympathy in time of trouble is always ready, and whose advice and instruction have made many a path straight for those on whom life has laid heavy burdens. He resides in his own neat residence in the village of Virginville where he is held in the highest esteem. The Rev. Mr. Bartholomew is well fitted in every way for a ministerial life, possessing a pleasing and winning personality and a scholarly eloquence that makes the preaching of the Word effective.

On Aug. 5, 1883, he married Mary J. Funk, daughter of Abraham and Sarah (Hower) Funk. To this union have been born four children: Calvin S., Henry U., Ruth S. and Joshua F. Mrs. Bartholomew has one brother Jacob H., who is a miller at Weaversville, Northampton county.

PROF. CHARLES G. SPECHT, music teacher and organist at Sinking Spring for upward of twenty years, was born June 27, 1860, in Spring township, near Montello.

He was brought up there and educated in the public schools, and after leaving school he learned the trade of potter, working under his father until he was twenty years old.

When but a boy of ten years, Charles G. Sprecht manifested a great talent for music, both vocal and instrumental, and by the time he was fifteen years old he was capable of performing on all kinds of instruments, becoming particularly fond of the clarionet, and at that early age he was a member of a local band. He took lessons under Prof. Berg in harmony, modulation and composition, also for singing and playing on the piano and organ, later a special course in harmony, counterpoint and composition under Prof. Theodore Kolb, and under Prof. Rothenberger on the cornet and clarionet. The attention of musicians at Altoona was attracted to his musical accomplishments and they invited him to that place; there he became a member of the Mountain City Band, and afterward of the famous and popular Altoona City Band. Not liking the place he remained but a short time and returned to Reading.

Upon returning home he learned cigar making, and followed that business for about two years to assist in making his living and musical expenses. In 1884 he married, and then determined to follow the profession of teaching music in all its branches, with his home at Sinking Spring, and in this he has been very successful. He has been the organist of the Sinking Spring Reformed Church since 1886. In the past twenty years he has taught more than sixty musical organizations, such as bands, orchestras, and hundreds of pupils in the art of singing and playing the piano, organ and pipe organ. He also served as Clarionettist for sixteen years in the famous Ringgold Band of Reading.

Prof. Specht married Esther Elizabeth Reber, daughter of Levi and Sophia (Heckman) Reber, the former a farmer of Bern township, and by her had four children: Minnie E. m. Herbert Hornberger; George R.; Paul L.; and Frederick E. died when nineteen years old.

The Professor's father, John George Specht, was born in 1827, in Baden, Germany, where he learned the trade of potter. He emigrated to America in 1852, and, landing at New York, lived there and in Canada, following his trade until 1858. Then he moved to Berks county, Pa., locating a mile south of Sinking Spring, and here he followed the pottery business until his decease in 1895. He married Hannah R. (Sifferman) Geibel, widow of John Geibel, of Spring township, and by her he had two sons: Charles G. and John P. (m. Amanda Snader, of Adamstown).

As far back as can be traced, in many instances, Prof. Specht's ancestors on both sides of the family, were noted musicians. A half-brother of his father served as musician in the regular army with Gen. G. A. Custer at the time of the terrible massacre in 1876, and a cousin of his mother, Emil Scheck, is holding the position of first clarionettist in the Philharmonic Orchestra of New York City. Prof. Specht had three uncles in the Civil War, one already spoken of, and Peter Specht, who was killed during an engagement at Rappahannock; and George Specht, who served through the entire war. His maternal grandfather enlisted in the American Navy, and was lost at sea in 1848.

J. LAWRENCE GETZ, Congressman from Berks county, 1867 to 1873, was born at Reading, Sept. 14, 1821. His father was George Getz, an officer of the United States navy, and the founder and for a number of years the publisher of the Berks and Schuylkill Journal. His grand-father, on the maternal side, was a soldier in the Revolution.

J. Lawrence Getz received an academic education, and read law in the office of the Hon. William Strong. He was admitted to the Bar Aug. 6, 1846, but he never engaged in active practice. In 1840, with Jacob Knabb as a co-partner, he founded the Reading Gazette, an English weekly newspaper at Reading. Some years afterward he purchased the Jefferson Democrat, and then, as sole proprietor, merged the two into one, and issued the paper under the name of the Reading Gazette and Democrat. He conducted its publication very successfully till 1868. In politics he was a strong advocate of Democratic principles. During the Civil War he was a firm Union man, advocating the preservation of the Union of the States and the enforcement of the Constitution. With the national administration in the hands of the Republican party, whose principles were opposed to his own, the course which he pursued in publishing a Democratic newspaper was commendable. His patriotic sentiments contributed much toward creating a proper spirit of submission in the adherents of the Democratic party. As an editor he displayed a high degree of ability and energy.

In 1856 Mr. Getz was elected as one of the representatives of the county to the State Legislature, and re-elected in 1857. During the latter term he was made Speaker of the House by the unanimous nomination of his Democratic colleagues, an evidence of his popularity and ability. In 1866 he was elected to represent this district in the XLth Congress of the United States, and re-elected to the XLIst and XLIId Congresses, serving three consecutive terms from March 4, 1867, to March 4, 1873. After his retirement from public life he for a time edited the Spirit of Berks. He officiated as controller of the city of Reading for the term from 1888 to 1892. He died Dec. 25, 1891.

Mr. Getz was married to a daughter of Rev. R. U. Morgan, D. D., rector of Christ Episcopal Church at Reading from 1834 to 1850. They had two children, George and Sadie.

ELLWOOD H. DEYSHER, attorney-at-law at Reading, and descendant of one of the first families in Ruscombmanor township, Berks county, was born Jan. 9, 1857, at Reading. He received his preliminary education in the public schools, graduated from the Reading high school with the class of 1873, and continued his studies in the higher branches at the Millersville State Normal School for several years, when he entered the law office of J. Howard Jacobs, Esq. After reading law under him for the prescribed period, he was admitted to practise in the several courts of Berks county Nov. 13, 1882, and afterward in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

After practising ten years, he formed a law-partnership with James A. O'Reilly, Esq., and they carried on a very successful business under the name of O'Reilly & Deysher, until Mr. O'Reilly's sudden accidental death on the Pennsylvania Schuylkill Valley Railroad at Spring City in 1902. Since then Mr. Deysher has continued to practise by himself. Upon reaching his majority he identified himself with the Republican party and took an active part in many campaigns, becoming the chairman of the County Committee in 1887.

Mr. Deysher's father was Martin Deysher, a prominent lumber merchant at Reading from 1854 to 1860, when he was accidentally killed on the railroad at Mud Run, while in the lumber regions buying a large stock for his yard at Reading. He was born in Oley township in 1833, and reared on his father's farm until he was about twenty years old, when he located at Reading, and, after being associated with his brother, Jacob H. Deysher, for about a year, embarked in the lumber business for himself, for which he had manifested much aptitude. He was married to Sarah M. High, daughter of Jeremiah High, farmer of Oley, by whom he had three children, Ellwood H., Rose E. (who died in 1894, aged thirty-five years) and Allen Martin (who died in infancy).

His grandfather was Jacob Deysher, farmer and ironmaster of Oley, who for a number of years operated the Trappe Forge. He was married to Marie Hoch (High), of Oley, by whom he had ten children, seven sons and three daughters: Joseph, Jonas, John, Jacob H., Daniel, Martin, Amos, Mary (m. to Isaac Behm), Rachael (m. to Isaac Stettler) and Anna (m. to Benjamin Barto). Jacob Deysher died in 1862, and his wife died in 1868.

WILLIAM JACKSON YOUNG, an attorney-at-law of Reading, was born at Reading, Pa., Aug. 12, 1867, and was reared in this city. Here he acquired his literary training, having been graduated from the high school in the class of 1885. During a part of 1885 and 1886 he taught school in Berks county, and then served as bookkeeper for several large Reading business concerns, from 1887 until 1890 being chief clerk for the R. G. Dun Agency. He then read law with his father, the late Samuel L. Young, formerly a prominent member of the local Bar, who died Jan. 20, 1902.

Mr. Young was admitted to practice Nov. 10, 1890, later to the Superior, Supreme and United States courts, and through his ability secured an appointment as United States commissioner, serving from 1901 to 1905, succeeding his late distinguished father in this office. Mr. Young is located at No. 522 Washington street, Reading. In political affiliation he is a steadfast Republican, and during the campaigns of the late President McKinley and of President Roosevelt he was very active, making many speeches throughout Berks and Lancaster counties. He is a member of St. Paul's Reformed Church.

REV. WILLIAM GEHMAN, founder of the Mennonite Brethren in Christ, though now living near Vera Cruz, in Lehigh county, Pa., is a native of Berks county, and has been such a factor in the strengthening of the spiritual life of so many of this county's people, to say nothing of his belonging to one of the oldest families, that this book would be incomplete without mention of him. The Rev. Mr. Gehman was born in Hereford township, Berks county, Jan. 22, 1827, son of George and Sarah (Schwartz) Gehman.

Three brothers named Gehman came from Switzerland during the time of religious persecution in the Old World, and on reaching Pennsylvania, one of them settled in Lancaster county, one in Bucks county, and one in Berks county. From the last named descended Jacob Gehman, grandfather of the Rev. William, who married a Lahr. He became the father of four children, two sons and two daughters, namely: George, Jacob, Mollie and Katherine.

George Gehman, son of Jacob, married Sarah Schwartz, and they became the parents of six children, five sons and one daughter, as follows: Nathan, Samuel, George, Rev. William, Charles and Mary Anna, of whom George and Rev. William are the only survivors.

Rev. William Gehman received a common school education, and was brought up in the industrious habits that have characterized his long and useful life. At the age of eighteen he learned the trade of custom miller at the mill now owned and conducted by Newhard Brothers, near Vera Cruz, but after completing his apprenticeship he went to farming in the capacity of farm hand for two years. At the end of that time his marriage took place, and he moved to the farm that has since been his home. Though now well past four score years he is strong and vigorous, and still takes his place in the field in harvest time, putting to shame many a young man by his strength and energy.

The Rev. Mr. Gehman has taken an active part in advancing the cause of religion all his life. His early home training turned his thoughts toward his own soul's salvation, and he consecrated his life to the Master's cause. He began preaching in October, 1849, and still preaches in various Mennonite churches.

On June 17, 1848, the Rev. William Gehman was united in marriage with Anna Musselman, born in Lehigh county, only daughter of Jacob Musselman. Nine children came to bless this union, all of whom grew to maturity, married and had families. These were: Manno, Henry, Francis, Allen, William, Amanda, Sarah, Mary and Hannah. The mother's death in 1904 was the first break in this happy family, and since then Manno and Sarah have also entered into life eternal.

KESSLER. The Kessler family is an old and honored one in Berks county, and its present representative is Miss Mary Catherine Kessler, the only surviving child of William Addams Kessler, deceased, of Lower Heidelberg township, near the Cacoosing creek. She was born on the homestead March 3, 1864.

The Hon. Charles Kessler, of Reading, her grandfather, was born in that city in 1805. He was a man of great prominence for fifty years, in the political and social affairs of the county, as well as in the printing business. When a youth, he entered the printing office of the Reading Adler, which was then published by his father, Charles Kessler, and his uncle, the Hon. John Ritter, and after learning the business worked in the establishment until he was of age. He then became the translator and associate editor of the paper, and under his influence and popularity the circulation of the sheet was largely increased. In 1852, he purchased a half interest in the paper and shortly afterward became the sole proprietor, and continued its publication until 1864. In 1866, he was elected associate judge of the courts of Berks county, and served this office in a most faithful and acceptable manner until 1871, dying from a stroke of apoplexy about the end of his term. Judge Kessler was a man of high attainments. He was especially advanced in the study of entomology, having by his patient researches made a valuable collection of insects. He took great interest in the Berks County Agricultural Society, and served as president for a number of years. In 1857, he purchased a farm in Lower Heidelberg township along the Bernville road near the Cacoosing creek, and his son then removed from Reading to carry on the farming operations. He devoted much attention to the cultivation of peaches, apples, pears and grapes, which were introduced into the county through his personal efforts. He was married to Elizabeth Addams, daughter of Isaac Addams, and had two children: William A. and Catherine, who married Wellington Van Reed. Mrs. Kessler died in 1867.

William Addams Kessler, father of Mary Catherine, was born at Reading in 1832, and after his preliminary education at that place, he attended for several years a private school at West Chester under the control of the Quakers. Upon his return to Reading, he learned the trade of cabinet-maker, but not liking this employment he entered the printing establishment of his father, who was then conducting the Reading Adler. He acted as clerk in the book store for a time, and then became foreman in the press room, a position which he held until 1857, at which time he moved to the farm in Lower Heidelberg township. During this time, while at Reading, he served as secretary of the Reading Water Company for a number of years. He was an adherent of the Democratic party, and became very popular with the leaders, although never accepting any of the offices frequently tendered to him on account of his services to the party. Though living in the country, he kept up his interests in politics until his decease, covering a period of fifty years. In 1860 Mr. Kessler married Sarah A. Noll, daughter of Daniel H. Noll, of Alsace township, and to this union there were born three children: Elizabeth and Charles, both of whom died in infancy; and Mary Catherine. The mother died in 1904, at the age of sixty-five years, her husband surviving her until 1905, when he passed away, aged seventy-three years.

Mary Catherine Kessler received her early education in the township school, but went to Reading daily for the higher branches. She continued her attendance at Reading until reaching the second class in the high school, but was then obliged to discontinue on account of the serious illness of her mother. She remained at home faithfully and devotedly looking after domestic affairs until the decease of both of her parents. Upon the death of her father she became the sole owner of the property, but shortly afterward she sold the place, with the exception of an acre of ground and the home for herself, to Harry Redcay, who was brought up there by her parents; and here she continues to make her residence. Her home bears the name of "Wilsarkan Gables," a name derived from a combination of the names of the only people who have lived in the home for fifty years—"Wil" from Miss Kessler's father, William, "Sar" from her mother, Sarah, "K" from her own name in the family Kate, and the "an" from the initials of her uncle Andrew Noll.

JONATHAN W. WEIGLEY, in his lifetime an active worker in public affairs and also a successful farmer, came of a family of English extraction. It is a tradition in the early history of the Weigley family in this country that their direct ancestor came over with William Penn and settled in Philadelphia county. Whether he was an actual convert to Quakerism or not is not known, although it is manifest that the family here owes its origin to that portion of its German ancestors which came under the influence of Penn when he visited Holland and Germany in 1671 for the advancement of Quakerism. Long prior to 1734 John Michael Weigley had settled in Lower Salford township (Montgomery county, Pa.), at which time he was a landowner, having a considerable tract. His son George died Oct. 20, 1760, leaving a widow and five children, viz.: Elizabeth (wife of Frederick Gable), Catharine, George, Margaret and John. While Adam Weigley, the immediate progenitor of the family in Lebanon county, was born in 1744 in Lancaster county, where his father, a brother of John Michael and a contemporary of William Penn, had settled. The descendants of these brothers are widely scattered with their numerous progeny through Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Adam Weigley, born at Reamstown, Lancaster Co., Pa., in 1744, removed to White Marsh, Montgomery Co., Pa. He married in 1770 Hannah Eva Walter, who was born in Cocalico township, Lancaster Co., Pa., and who survived her husband several years, dying in 1840, near Newmanstown, Lebanon county. Adam was a farmer by occupation and finally settled near Womelsdorf, Pa., where he died in 1798, leaving considerable real estate, as appears from the proceedings in partition in the Orphan's court of the county of Berks commenced in December, 1800, and leaving the following children: (1) Joseph, born in 1770; married in 1790; admitted to the Bar of Philadelphia county in 1798; removed to Westmoreland county, Pa., and died near Greensburg in 1819, leaving issue, viz.—three sons, Alexander, a physician now deceased, and Horatio and Wellington, both lawyers, who lived in Chicago, Ill.; also six daughters, Eliza, Julia, Ann, Hannah, Harriet and Mary. (2) Samuel, born in 1772, married Maria Reed, and had issue: Hannah, Rebecca (married to Jacob Heddinger), Lucy (married to Henry Lautz), Lydia (married to George Bechtholtz), William (married to Royal Phillabaum) and Mary (married to Emanuel Noll). (3) David died young. (4) Jacob Adam was born in 1787. (5) Daniel died young. (6) Elizabeth married Joseph Debbie of Berks county, Pa. They had issue: Elizabeth and Julia (married to Henry Noll). (7) Sarah married John Brou, of Newmanstown, Lebanon Co., Pa. (8) Catharine married Philip Kalbaugh, of Berks county, Pa. (9) Susannah married Jacob Noll, of West Virginia.

Of the above, Jacob Adam Weigley alone settled permanently in Lebanon county, where nearly all of his descendants now reside. Jacob Adam Weigley, born Jan. 22, 1787, in Berks county, Pa., died Dec. 14, 1880. He married Catharine Miller (daughter of John Miller), who was born Jan. 7, 1792, and died March 21, 1869, at Millbach. Jacob Weigley was brought up to hard work on the farm and on reaching manhood began for himself on a farm in Mill Creek township, Lebanon Co., Pa. He also engaged in milling, operating the Millbach mill (now known as Illig's mill) for many years. He and his wife had children as follows:

(1) Mary born Aug. 22, 1811, died Feb. 12, 1898, and is buried at Millbach, Lebanon Co., Pennsylvania.

(2) Isaac, born July 11, 1813, married in August, 1836, Elizabeth Zeller, who was born May 21, 1818. Isaac was a pump-maker and farmer, and lived at Richland, Lebanon Co., Pa. Both he and his wife are buried at Millbach. Their children were: (a) Malinda S., born April 7, 1837, died May 15, 1903, was married to Michael B. Schaeffer, in October, 1867, and had issue: Miller, born Aug. 6, 1869, and Minnie, born Oct. 4, 1875, both residing at Richland, Lebanon couny. (b) Catharine E., born Nov. 16, 1838, married Henry Mell, in October, 1857, and had issue: Mary Anderson, born Feb. 28, 1863, who married Benjamin Dornbach, and had issue, Nora (married to Monroe Smaltz) and John (residing at Richland); Lizzie, born April 6, 1874, married to Sherman Leitner and residing at Richland; Dora, born Dec. 2, 1875, and Ada, born June 11, 1878, both living at home. (c) Francis W., born Jan. 28, 1840, became a soldier in the Union army (7th Pennsylvania Cavalry) and was killed in the war of the Rebellion in 1862. (d) John J., born Feb. 12, 1842, married Maria E. Kilmer, on Sept. 13, 1868, and had issue: Ira, born April 18, 1870, who married (first) Elvie Hershey and had issue—Sarah and Rachael (mother and daughters deceased), and married (second) Lillian Auchenbach, Nov. 15, 1898, their issue being Minnie, born Dec. 26, 1899, and Pearl, born Jan. 11, 1906 (all residing at Richland); Mary, born April 26, 1872, who was married in 1893 to Eugene Eck, conductor on the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, and had issue, Florence, born Feb. 13, 1894, and Lee, born May 11, 1904 (residing at Richland, Lebanon Co., Pa.); Harry, born March 26, 1874, who married Ida Smith and had issue, Horace (born Nov. 14, 1896), Grace (born April 1, 1899), John (born Nov. 15, 1900), Louis (born Sept. 9, 1903) and Mary (born April 19, 1907); Dawson, born Oct. 20, 1876, who married, July 11, 1905, Nora Klopp, and had issue, Mollie, born Feb. 11, 1907, and Anna, born May 10, 1908; Robert, born Jan. 22, 1880; Ray, born March 8, 1889; and Katie, born Aug. 11, 1891. (e) Wayne J. was born March 15, 1844. (f) Jacob Z., born June 6, 1846, married Harriet Boyer Oct. 30, 1869, and had issue: Francis, born March 14, 1873, who married Kate Hain and had issue, Esther, Frank and Wayne; and Isadore, born June 15, 1878, who married Wilson Merkel and had issue, Margaret. (g) William W. was born Aug. 21, 1848.

(3) Charles Weigley, born Oct. 15, 1815, married (first) Sarah Moore, daughter of Adam Moore and his wife Barbara. He was a prosperous farmer. In politics he was a stanch Democrat. Though quiet and unostentatious in manner, he wielded considerable influence in his township. He and his wife had issue: (a) Emeline M., born Dec. 22, 1837, died March 1, 1854. (b) Jonathan W. is mentioned at length below. (c) Annie C., born April 18, 1844, married John M. Holstein Aug. 3, 1867, and had issue: Thomas, born July 22, 1868; and Elmer, born June 19, 1870, married to Minnie Hartman, and residing at Millbach. (d) Wellington, born Oct. 1, 1846, died June 10, 1860. (e) Amanda, born Dec. 25, 1847, resides with her niece, Miss Lizzie R. Weigley. (f) Walker, born Dec. 6, 1851, married Mary Weik, and lives at Stouchsburg. They had issue: Ida, born Nov. 13, 1875, who married (first) Abraham Gruttis and had issue—Lulu (born Dec. 3, 1893) and Charles (born Feb. 10, 1895, and married (second) in 1902 Thomas Schoedler, by whom she has Harry, born Oct. 10, 1902; Morris, born July 14, 1878, who married Lillie Heckeman, Dec. 27, 1902, and had Irene E., born March 4, 1908; and Carrie, born Nov. 17, 1887, residing with her parents. (g) Pierce married Adda Shealer and resides at Lebanon. They had issue: Elmer, Miles (both married), Charles (deceased), June (residing at home), Stella (married), Paul and Lucy (at home). Charles Weigley married (second) Hettie Walter, born March 12, 1819, died Oct. 24, 1894; she is buried at Millbach.

(4) William W. Weigley, born Jan. 1, 1818, a Millbach, Lebanon county, Pa., married Jan. 19, 1841, Anna Rex, youngest daughter of Abraham Rex, of Schaefferstown. Their children are: (a) Rex, born Feb. 12, 1842, married in September, 1865, Mary Borthwick, of Philadelphia, and they had issue: Sophie B., born Oct. 30, 1866, who died April 18, 1876; Annie R., born March 18, 1868; William B., born May 30, 1869; Rex, born March 23, 1876; Robert B., born Feb. 11, 1879, who died April 17, 1882; and Jessie, born March 13, 1880, who died April 27, 1882. (10) John A. Weigley, born July 22, 1832, married Oct. 19, 1858, Sabina S. Meiser, who died Friday March 29, 1889. John died Jan. 6, 1892. Their children are: Westa M., born Sept. 11, 1859; Emma S., born May 4, 1865; and Wallron W., born March 1, 1868, who married Amy Emerich and had issue, Earl (died Oct. 16, 1900, aged six years, two months, seven days), John (died Oct. 16, 1900, aged four years, eleven months, nine days), Charles (died April 1, 1901, aged two years, eleven months, one day), Catharine and Helen (residing with their parents at Richland).

Jonathan W. Weigley, son of Charles, was born Aug. 27, 1839, at Schaefferstown, Lebanon Co., Pa., and died April 2, 1907. For many years he engaged in farming, until 1893, when he brought his family to the home in which they now reside. His education was begun in the district schools and completed in a school at the Trappe, in Montgomery county, Pa., now known as Ursinus College, at Collegeville. He was a man of intelligence and was of great influence in his vicinity. He was a firm upholder of Democratic principles and actively interested in the success of his party, being honored with a number of local offices while living in Jackson township, Lebanon county. He owned a valuable farm of 117 acres in that township, formerly his father's farm, on which in 1895 he erected a large barn; Daniel Haag of Millersburg had the contract. He also put up good shedding and otherwise improved the property. He was a member of Tulpehocken Reformed Church, and at his death was buried in the cemetery there.

In 1865 Jonathan W. Weigley was married to Emma E. Kilmer, daughter of Israel and Lovina (Batdorf) Kilmer. The only child of this union was Miss Lizzie R., who is a graduate of the Bloomsburg State Normal School, class of 1901. She has taught five terms in the public schools in Marion township and is most successful, her own love of learning inspiring her pupils to steady effort. The Weigley home contains a number of relics, a grandfather's clock which belonged to the great-great-grandmother of Miss Lizzie, also a chair that belonged to the family that owned the clock.

ISAAC BEAR, Reading's leading shoe merchant, whose place of business is situated at No. 634 Penn street, is a native of the State of Maryland, born in 1868, son of Hartz Bear, who came from Germany.

Isaac Bear received his education in the schools of his native locality, and at the age of fourteen years went to Washington, D. C., finding employment in a store there for three years. Returning to Baltimore, Md., Mr. Bear was employed by his brother, M. H. Bear, who was a leading shoe merchant of that city and remained with him ten years, coming to Reading in 1899. He purchased the Comfort Shoe Store, remodelling it and restocking it with a full line of first-class shoes, and here he has continued to the present time with much success. His establishment, which is four stories and basement, 30x144 feet, is fully equipped with the most modern fixtures and appurtenances, and during the busy season he employs twenty-one clerks, as well as a skilled shoemaker for special work. His specialty is good honest shoes for men, women and children. Mr. Bear has an honestly won reputation for first-class goods, and his business, already of large proportions, is constantly growing.

In 1899 Mr. Bear was married to Miss Mamie Kuthner, of Rome, Ga., and to them one son has been born, Ivon K. Mr. Bear is a member of the Masonic order, being connected with George's Creek Lodge, No. 161, F. & A. M., and Garfield Chapter No. 115. He is also a member of Reading Lodge, No. 115, B. P. O. Elks.

HENRY S. GEIST, a citizen of Bechtelsville who has lived retired since 1896, has seen many changes in that place during the thirty years of his residence there, and has himself been active in promoting its development and growth. He is a native of New Hanover township, Montgomery Co., Pa., born Feb. 20, 1834, and belongs to a branch of the Geist family which has long been settled in Montgomery county. It is believed they come from the same stock as the Geists of Longswamp township, Berks county. Mr. Geist recalls that four sleighs filled with "Geist" relatives came to visit his parents in the Falkner Swamp from Longswamp township, Berks county, and he remembers hearing his parents speak of the relationship existing between the Longswamp and Falkner Swamp Geists. In 1850 one Valentine Geist, Sr., died in Longswamp township, leaving his wife Catharine and a son Valentine, Jr., a daughter Lydia (Weber), and other children whose names are not mentioned in the will, recorded in Book 9, p. 400.

Through his parents Mr. Geist learned that the emigrant ancestor in this country, Christopher Geist, a German mineralogist, went from the German Fatherland to England, and from there was sent to Schwenkville, in Montgomery county, Pa., to manage or superintend a copper mine which is to this day an old landmark of that district. It is believed that one of the sons of the emigrant located in Longswamp township, Berks county. We find that one Christopher Geist came to America in 1740 on the ship "Lydia"; Fried. Wilhelm Geist came on the ship "Ranier" to America in 1749; and Hans Jacob Geist came on the "Brothers" in 1754.

Matthias Geist, believed to be the great-grandfather of Henry S. Geist, lived on the west bank of the Schuylkill river, in Chester county, Pa. It is thought he was buried at a Mennonite meeting-house in that county.

Conrad Geist, grandfather of Henry S. Geist, hailed from Chester county, near the Schuylkill river, and settled in New Hanover township, Montgomery county, on the Swamp creek, where he farmed and had a gristmill. He died at the age of fifty-two years, and is buried at the Swamp Church. His wife, whose maiden name was Mary Groff, survived him. They had children as follows: Daniel lived near Limerick, Pa.; Henry lived at Pottstown, Pa.; Samuel; Matthias lived at Pottstown; Maria m. Amos Brower; Elizabeth m. Jacob Stetler; Catharine died young; Conrad lived at Uniontown, Dauphin Co., Pa.; and Isaac was of Pottstown.

Samuel Geist, son of Conrad, was the father of Henry S. Geist. He was born in the Falkner Swamp district in Montgomery county in 1805, and there made his home, following farming and his trade of wheelwright. He owned a good tract of about fifty acres, now the property of his son Samuel. Mr. Geist died about 1882, when seventy-seven years old, and is buried in the Swamp Church cemetery. His wife, Elizabeth Zuber, daughter of Christopher Zuber, born in 1804, long survived him, passing away in her ninety-fifth year, and she, too, is buried in the Swamp Church cemetery. Their children were: Lucy Ann died at the age of fifteen years; Esther m. James Markley; Henry S.; Samuel; and Ephraim died in childhood.

Henry S. Geist was reared upon the home farm, and began his education in the old pay schools conducted in the Falkner Swamp during the period of his boyhood. He worked for his parents at home until seventeen years old, when he commenced to learn carriage-making at the Swamp, and he followed this trade as a journeyman for about forty years altogether. In about 1858 he commenced to work on his own account, at the Swamp, and there he continued in business for twenty-one years, doing very well. In 1878 he moved to Bechtelsville, a borough of lower Berks county, and purchased the old Bechtel homestead, comprising sixty-one acres, from which he has since sold a number of building lots. Mr. Geist has witnessed many changes in Bechtelsville since his arrival in the place, and has been instrumental in bringing about many of the improvements which have added to the value of property and raised the standing of the borough. He engaged in farming on the old Bechtel place until his retirement in 1896. Mr. Geist is a substantial and respected citizen, and besides looking well after his own affairs has taken part in the life of his community, having served as school director of Bechtelsville for three years. He has been very active in church work, and upon the erection of the Bechtelsville Church (Reformed and Lutheran), in 1886, he not only donated the ground but also gave liberally toward the building itself, served as a member of the building committee and assisted in many other ways.

In October, 1856, Mr. Geist married Lydia Welker, daughter of George and Catharine (Kumerer) Welker, of Pennsburg, Pa., and to this marriage were born four children: Cevila m. William Fink, of Allentown, Pa.; Dr. James lives at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Annie m. Oscar Winters, of Royer's Ford, Montgomery county; and Irwin is a bookkeeper at Royer's Ford, employed at the Emmers hosiery manufactory.

During the Civil war Mr. Geist was in the service for a time in the State defense, belonging to the company of his cousin, Capt. Jesse Geist, which company was organized by Daniel Yost, and their colonel was Charles A. Knoderer. They were sent to Hagerstown at the time of the battle of Antietam. Mr. Geist is a Democrat in political opinion.

[A complete history of the Geist family and its genealogy has been written by George Geist, of Frankford, Pa., who intends to present it to the Pennsylvania German Society.]

JOSEPH O. MOYER, late of Washington township, Berks county, was a grandson of Christian Moyer (or Meyer), who was the ancestor of a large posterity.

Christian Moyer lived in Springfield, Bucks Co., Pa., and married Anna L. Bauer, born in 1757, died in 1809. The date of their marriage is not known, neither do we know the date of birth of Christian Moyer, but he died between 1821 and 1827. On April 20, 1809, he conveyed two tracts of land, containing 182 acres and twenty-eight perches, to his sons Michael and Peter, for £2,000. After the death of Peter, June 21, 1848, the property was the cause of dispute among the heirs, and Michael eventually paid the appraised value, $13,048.75, on April 2, 1849; this ended the trouble. Christian Moyer had ten children, of whom we have the following record: (1) Fronica, born in 1777, died in 1838. She married Christian Eshbach (1766-1838) and had five children, Elizabeth, William, Henry, Annie and Jesse. (2) Michael, born Dec. 28, 1779, died Jan. 9, 1857. In 1806 he married Elizabeth Oberholtzer. (3) Peter, born Dec. 14, 1781, died June 21, 1848. In 1809 he married Eve Shelly, and they had seven children, Sarah, Lydia, Peter, Sophia, William, Jacob and Amos. He was a farmer by occupation, and he and his wife were Mennonites in religious belief. (4) William, born Jan. 3, 1784, died Oct. 11, 1846. He married Catharine Kindig (1787-1866), and they had seven children, Joseph, Abraham, Elizabeth, Mary, Jonas, Isaac and William. (5) Jacob B., born Nov. 22, 1788, died July 20, 1867, married in 1810 Annie Shelly (1790-1882), and they had seven children, Jonathan, Elizabeth, Joseph, Annie, Jacob, Christian and Aaron. (6) Anna married Abraham Bechtel. (7) Magdalena married Jacob Weiand. (8) Elizabeth, born in 1794, died in 1884. She married in 1814 Abraham Hunsberger (1795-1883). (9) Mary, born in 1798, died in 1880, married John Stauffer. (10) Susanna died when young.

Michael Moyer, son of Christian, born Dec. 28, 1779, died Jan. 9, 1857. He lived upon and owned the farm which is now the property of John M. Ehst, and followed farming. In 1806 he married Elizabeth Oberholtzer, born in 1781, who died in 1874 in the ninety-third year of her age. Five children were born to them: Henry, Joseph, Catharine, Susanna and Elizabeth.

Joseph O. Moyer, born Sept. 6, 1812, died May 16, 1877, in his sixty-second year. He was a native of Hereford (now Washington) township, born where his son Joseph now lives, and followed carpenter work in early life, later engaging in farming. His farm consisted of fifty acres of fertile land, and the house now standing there was built in 1849, the barn being built in 1850. He was a Mennonite in religious faith, and his family also belong to that church. They are buried at the Hereford (Bally) meetinghouse. On Nov. 16, 1845, he married Esther Yoder, born Dec. 28, 1822, died Jan. 9, 1881, and they had a family of four children: Elizabeth, born June 26, 1847, died Sept. 6, 1864; Jacob, born Jan. 31, 1850, lives at Woodbury, N. J., and is a carpenter by occupation; Joseph Y. is mentioned below; Levi, born March 13, 1857, is a carpenter by trade but at present follows farming, living at Plumsteadville, Bucks Co., Pennsylvania.

Joseph Y. Moyer was born Nov. 2, 1853, on the Moyer homestead in Washington township, and there received his education in the common schools. He was reared upon the farm, and in 1878 began farming on part of the homestead tract on his own account. He has continued to live there, the place having come into his possession in the fall of 1877. It comprises thirty-six acres of arable land and fourteen acres of woodland, and the whole property is level and in good condition. The land is productive. Mr. Moyer keeps six or eight cattle and gives special attention to dairying, and he has a silo and other conveniences for model farming.

On Sept. 13, 1879, Mr. Moyer married Amanda S. Borneman, daughter of Joseph H. and Esther (Stauffer) Borneman, of Boyertown, and granddaughter of John and Barbara (Herstein) Borneman. Mr. and Mrs. Moyer have had five children: Samuel B., born May 10, 1882, has been the mail carrier between Barto and Palm since July, 1905 (he m. Rebecca Romig, daughter of William Romig, and they have two children, Ruth A. and Warren Joseph); Edwin, born in 1885, died the same year; Olivia, born in 1886, died in 1887; Irwin, born in 1889, died in the same year; Emma B., born July 14, 1891, is at home with her parents. Mr. Moyer and his family are members of the Mennonite Church.

AUGUSTUS HESTON, who passed from this world in 1898, at Reading, where he had resided for nearly thirty years, came of a Quaker family long identified with Philadelphia. His parents were William and Martha (Tyson) Heston.

Mr. Heston was born in West Philadelphia, March 14, 1832, and his education was acquired in the schools of Philadelphia proper, and later in Jenkintown, now a suburb of the former city. After the completion of his academic studies he began his preparations for his work as a pharmacist. At the end of his apprenticeship, he went to Buffalo, N. Y., where his brother Charles was engaged in the drug business, and he remained with him until the Civil war broke out. Mr. Charles Heston enlisted, and, as it proved, served throughout the war, while his brother Augustus was left in charge of his affairs with directions to close out the business. This accomplished he returned to the old home farm at Jenkinton and lived there till 1869. In that year he located in Reading, which became his residence for the remainder of his life. He had no active business interests there, but was sufficiently occupied with the charge of his affairs.

Mr. Heston's marriage occurred the year that he came to Reading, when Miss Caroline De Long became his wife. No children were born to this union. Mr. and Mrs. Heston traveled extensively, through their own country going from ocean to ocean and visiting most of the health resorts in the Union, while in 1895 they spent five months abroad. In that time they journeyed through Ireland, Wales, England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, France and Italy, one point of special interest to them being their visit to the home of Mrs. Heston's paternal ancestors, the De Longs, who were originally of Alsace-Lorraine. Mrs. Heston made a second trip to Europe after her husband's death, at the time of the Paris Exposition in 1900. Mrs. Heston died Feb. 25, 1908, and in her will bequeathed land for a public park in Reading. This is situated at the junction of Mineral Spring road, Perkiomen avenue, and Thirteenth and Chestnut streets. During her lifetime she had many opportunities to sell this tract at practically her own figure, but she would never consider it, evidently having in mind this gift to her home city.

De Long. The De Long family was founded in America about 1700, and Peter De Long, the emigrant ancestor, settled in Albany county, New York.

John De Long, son of Peter, located at Bowers Station, Berks Co., Pa., where he became one of the representative farmers of that section.

Joseph De Long, son of John, married Miss Susan Weaver, and had a large family as follows: Joseph (2); Elizabeth (m. Daniel De Long); Jacob (m. Miss Sarah Shaffer); Catherine (m. Peter Hensing); David (m. Miss Anna Beaver); Francis (m. Miss Esther Shaffer); and Jane (m. Reuben Miller).

Joseph De Long (2), son of Joseph, married Miss Anna Wetzel, and they had two daughters: Caroline, Mrs. Heston; and Harriet, who married Isaac Hummel, of Lehigh county, Pa., and has two children, Alice and Grace, the latter the wife of David Hein. As a family the DeLongs were either Whigs or Republicans, and in religious belief belonged to the German Reformed Church, but Mrs. Heston was a member of St. Luke's Episcopal mission.

DANIEL A. BIEBER. The founder of the Bieber family in America was (I) Johanes Bieber, a native of Switzerland, who in young manhood came to America with a number of others, landing at Philadelphia, as a redemptioner, before the Revolution. He first settled near Allentown, Lehigh Co., Pa., but later came to Oley township, in Berks county, where his son Jacob married Susanna Lescher, a daughter of Nicholas and Barbara Lescher, of Oley township. She was a wealthy woman and gave her husband and his father an excellent start in the new home. Johanes acquired a tract of 400 acres, located adjacent to the Peters mill, in the northern end of the township. On this farm he is buried in a private burial ground, which is kept in good repair, he having provided for this in his will. Many members of the family are interred there. A number of very interesting inscriptions are to be found over the old graves, some of which are here given:

"William Bieber, Born Sept. 9, 1794, Died Dec. 11, 1878, Aged eighty-four years, three months and two days."

"Jacob Bieber, Born Oct. 13, 1761, Died Nov. 8, 1835, Aged seventy-four years and twenty-six days."

"Esther Bieber. Born Jan. 25, 1767, Died Feb. 25, 1856, Aged eighty-nine years and one month. She was married to Jacob Bieber in 1786."

"Sarah Bieber, Born Aug. 6, 1808, Died Jan. 20, 1877, Aged sixty-eight years, five months and fourteen days. She was a daughter of Jacob and Esther Bieber."

"Miaria Hess, Born Dec. 25, 1792, Died Dec. 20, 1863, Aged seventy years, eleven months and twenty-six days. She was the wife of Daniel Hess."

"Susanna Lescher, Born Oct. 25, 1756, Died May 10, 1841, Aged eighty-four years, six months and fifteen days. She was the daughter of Nicholas and Barbara Lescher."

"Barbara Lescher, Born Jan. 15, 1735, Died Feb. 1, 1818. She was married in 1752."

"Nicholas Lescher, Born April 18, 1726, Died March 25, 1795, Aged sixty-eight years, eleven months and eight days. He was married to Barbara Lescher in 1752."

"Elizabeth Lescher, Born Nov. 16, 1771, Died May 28, 1806, Aged thirty-four years, six months and twelve days. She was a daughter of Nicholas and Barbara Lescher."

There are three graves without tombstones and one stone from which all inscriptions are effaced; it is among the Lescher graves. The unmarked graves are those of children who probably died in infancy. Miaria Hess was the housekeeper for William Bieber, who never married.

(II) Jacob Bieber was reared on the old homestead and is buried in the private graveyard. He was a farmer and carpenter of more than usual ability, being a master of the wood-working craft. In 1792 he made a clothes closet which is now a valued possession of John Bieber of Oley Line. His wife was Susanna Lescher, and their children were: Sally never married; Susan married a Mr. Meck; Mary married Abraham Bover; Samuel settled in Northumberland county, Pa.; David settled in Ohio and there married; Daniel settled in Rockland township; William lived on the homestead where he is buried; Dewold, born in 1792, died aged eighty-five years and nine months.

(III) Dewold Bieber was a soldier in the war of 1812 and was one of the pensioners of that war. During the greater portion of his life he was a resident of Oley township, where he died. He is buried at Friedensburg. In his young manhood he spent some time in Rockland. His wife was Mary Angstadt, daughter of Jacob and Caroline (Yoder) Angstadt, and they had these children: Jacob settled in Rockland township; Kate married Jacob Miller; William settled in Rockland township; Betsy married Levi Angstadt; Esther married John Schaeffer; Samuel never married, and lived at home; Mary married Benjamin Houck; Nathan settled in Rockland township; Abraham settled in Rockland township, but later came to Oley, where he died; Magdalena married Augustus Redcay.

(IV) Daniel A. Bieber was born in Rockland township Nov. 24, 1832, and remained with his father until he was eighteen years of age, when he commenced to learn the miller's trade with Isaac Bertolet of Oley. After learning the trade he worked for his father, who owned the old Knabb mill in Rockland, remaining there for four years. He then removed to Exeter township, where he remained a year, and then bought a small farm above Friedensburg, which he traded for the Yeager mill above Friedensburg one year later. For two years he conducted this mill, and then sold it to Israel Leinbach, and bought another small farm, upon which he lived for three years. He then went to Alsace township, where he bought a farm above "Blind" Hartman's tavern, but after a year he removed to Reading, and purchasing land erected store property at No. 900 North Ninth street, corner of Ninth and Windsor, where he conducted a general store for two years. In conjunction he also ran a huckster's wagon and stood at market for some years. When the property at No. 900 North Ninth street was ready for the roof it was leveled to the ground one night during a terrible electric storm. Mr. Bieber sustained a severe loss, as all of the work had to be done over. Later he traded this store for a farm at Baumstown, in Exeter township, consisting of forty-eight acres, to which he added until he had seventy acres. By constantly improving the property Mr. Bieber made it very valuable, and he raised large crops there. One year he cleared $1,200. Here he prospered and continued to reside for eight years, when he traded the place for the farm at East Reading Toll Gate House. Two years later he sold the latter property, and bought the Knabb mill in Oley from Wellington Griesemer for $10,000. This mill now bears his name. The trolley line passes near it, and the crossing and station in the vicinity is known as "Bieber's Crossing." Mr. Bieber conducted the mill for twelve years, finally disposing of it to his son John for $6,000. He then retired, leaving his son to operate the mill.

Mr. Bieber owns a large farm in Oley at Friedensburg, which he rents. A good deal of grass is raised on that place. He has a plantation of sixty-six acres in North Carolina, near Littleton Station, which he also rents. Gold has been found on this property and some mining is carried on. It is in the vicinity of the famous Porter gold mine of North Carolina. The family residence in Oley is a very pleasant and substantial one and is also one of Mr. Bieber's holdings.

Mr. Bieber has traveled all over the United States and Canada and talks enjoyably of what he has seen. He is well read, and takes a deep interest in current events. It is his boast that he was never sick in his life. He is a member of the Lutheran Church at Friedensburg, which he helped to build, has served as deacon and elder and has always been a very liberal contributor to its support! He has also contributed generously toward the building of the New Jerusalem, Schwartzwald and Friedensburg churches in lower Berks county, and toward the Topton Orphans' Home.

In 1858 Mr. Bieber was married at Friedensburg to Mary Ann Dotterer, born in 1834, a daughter of Cain Dotterer, of Hill Church. Ten children were born of this marriage: Caroline married Jacob Fritz, who is deceased; Daniel died at the age of twelve years; Katie married Jefferson Hartman of Friedensburg; John D. conducts the Bieber mill; Charles died at the age of twelve years; Elizabeth married Benjamin Hill, of Ruscombmanor township; Mary married Lewis Angstadt, of Rockland township; Samuel, of Oley township, owns a small farm; Benneville is a resident of Friedensburg; Violetta married Charles Conrad, a farmer of Amity township.

REV. DANIEL E. SCHAEFFER, a minister of the Reformed faith, residing at West Leesport, Pa., who in addition to his ministerial relations has been prominently identified with the educational and public life of the borough, is a member of one of the oldest families of Berks county, and was born Oct. 26, 1872, near Fleetwood, Richmond township, son of John S. and Magdalena (Peter) Schaeffer.

George Schaeffer, a native of the Rhine Valley, Germany, was the progenitor of this old and honored family. He crossed the ocean on the ship "Edinburgh" which qualified at Philadelphia Aug. 13, 1750, and it appears that soon after coming to this country he settled in Richmond township, Berks county, where he obtained a warrant for a tract of land. When the Revolutionary war broke out this pioneer became a captain of a company that fought for the freedom of the Colonies, and he died at an advanced age in 1791. His wife was a born Reib, and they had five children: Elizabeth, Margaret, Maria, Peter and Philip. The last named, Philip, remained on the homestead in Richmond township, which tract is still in the family name, being one of the best farms in Berks county.

Philip Schaeffer, great-grandfather of Rev. Daniel E., was born on the homestead in 1770, and became an agriculturist. He was also an inventor of ability and manufactured the first threshing machine in Berks county, this proving so successful that he continued to make these machines throughout the remainder of his life. His wife was Elizabeth Feterolf, who was a granddaughter of Peter and Anna Maria (Rothermel) Feterholf of Wachbach, Germany, and they had these children: George, Peter, Isaac, Jonathan, Daniel, William, Philip, David, Sarah (m. Jacob DeLong), Elizabeth (m. Solomon Yoder), Anna M. (m. Isaac Merkel), and Esther (m. Francis DeLong).

Daniel Schaeffer, grandfather of Rev. Daniel E., was born and reared on the old Schaeffer stand in Richmond township, and was a farmer throughout his active period. Some years before his death he retired to Fleetwood, where his wife died. She was Margaret Sell, of Maxatawny township, and they had these nine children: John S., George, William, Philip, David, Daniel, Mary, Caroline and Nathan.

John S. Schaeffer, father of Rev. Daniel E., was born Sept. 7, 1838, on the homestead farm, and worked for his parents until after his marriage, at which time he took charge of his present farm, reputed to be one of the best in Berks county, having handsome, substantial buildings, good water and fine stock and farm machinery, and being well located and convenient to railroads. On Nov. 15, 1863, Mr. Schaeffer was married to Magdalena Peter, born April 30, 1842, daughter of Joseph and Mary (Barndt) Peter, and they have these three children: Mary Emma; Rev. Charles E., pastor of St. Mark's Reformed Church, of Reading; and Rev. Daniel E.

Rev. Daniel E. Schaeffer was reared on his father's farm and his early educational training was secured in the public schools of his district. He then entered the Keystone State Normal School and prepared for college, entering Franklin and Marshall in the fall of 1892 and being graduated therefrom in June, 1895. He then entered the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church of the United States at Lancaster, and was graduated in 1898. On July 24th of the same year he was ordained at Gernant's Church in Ontelaunee township, by Dr. J. P. Stein, D. D., Dr. J. W. Steinmetz, D. D., and Rev. James R. Brown, and was assigned to the Leesport charge, which consists of Gernant's Church, Leesport, Mohrsville and Shoemakersville. Rev. Schaeffer is very popular with his congregations, and is one of the best known divines in Berks county. He is greatly interested in educational work, and at present serves as secretary of the board of education of West Leesport, also having been one of the first directors of West Leesport, whose separate government he assisted in securing in 1902. In political matters he is a Democrat. He has been a member of the Reformed Ministerial Association of Reading since his ordination.

In 1895 the Rev. Mr. Schaeffer married Miss Annie Schaeffer, daughter of Frank and Andora (Kieffer) Schaeffer, of Fleetwood, Pa. To this union there have been born five children namely: Mabel F., Helen M., Charles R., Frank E. and Emily M.

JACOB R. MECK has many business interests at Meckville, Berks county, where he is also postmaster. He was born in Bethel township, this county, May 4, 1859, son of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Ruth) Meck.

Benjamin Meck was born July 28, 1804, in Longswamp township, Berks county. When he was eight years old he lost his father in the war of 1812, and from that time was hired among strangers until he was grown to manhood. In 1825 he was married to Elizabeth Ruth, daughter of Jacob Ruth, who was born Feb. 6, 1808, in Spring township, Berks county. This couple resided in Spring and Lower Heidelberg townships until 1843, during which time he followed the trade of shoemaker, but having a longing for the fields he bought a farm of 175 acres in Bethel township, where he resided until his death, Jan. 19, 1889. His wife Elizabeth preceded him to the grave, dying June 15, 1885. He left an estate of $36,000 to his heirs. To Mr. and Mrs. Meck were born fourteen children, eleven of whom survived childhood. Richard and Reuben, the eldest two, died when quite young, Sophie also passing away in childhood; Daniel followed farming on the homestead until his death, in 1874; Charles followed the store business for thirty years in Schuylkill Haven, and then engaged in the lumber business until his death, in the fall of 1901; Catherine married Jonathan Himmelberger, a miller and farmer of Hanover, and died in 1893; Benjamin engaged first in farming, later went into the store business at Mt. Joy, and then removed to Muncy, Lycoming county, where he resided for thirty years, in 1904 buying the old homestead, where he died in 1907; Rebecca married Edward Haas, a school teacher and farmer, who died Feb. 21, 1900, and she now resides at Hamlin, Pa.; Elizabeth married Joel Strauss, a farmer, and died in 1874; Mary married William Werner, a farmer, and died in 1873; Jonathan met his death accidentally, being struck on the head by a piece of flying stone at the Miller stone quarry at Annville, in 1902; James is in the insurance business at Harrisburg; Franklin clerked in stores at Lebanon and Schuylkill Haven until reaching his majority, when failing health caused him to go to Colorado, and there he died April 30, 1872; Jacob R. is our subject.

Jacob R. Meck received his early education in a country school and during 1875-76 attended Palatinate College, Myerstown, Pa. His help being needed at home, he was called from school and assisted his father on the farm until 1879, when he took up the store business for his life work, and has followed that line ever since, at the same place. In the fall of 1879, D. M. Key appointed Mr. Meck postmaster at Meckville, which was named in his honor, and in 1884 he began the manufacture of cigars, which he continued until 1907, when other matters demanded so much of his time that he was obliged to abandon it. In the spring of 1891, seeing that his store room was entirely too small to enable him to render efficient service to his patrons, he built a three-story mansard building 50x50 feet on the opposite side of the street, which he occupied in the fall of that year. In 1894 urged by many of his customers he established a liquor store, and in that year he was granted a license, his application having an overwhelming number of signers. He is a wholesale liquor dealer. In the summer of 1902 he built a creamery and shirt factory, and in 1905 he bought the establishment of the Eagle Canning Company, at Fredericksburg, where he established a creamery and feed store in 1906. Mr. Meck is a very busy man and has been ever since his start in 1879, his business increasing every year, through his own efforts. Though he has been very busy, Mr. Meck has found time to visit the exhibitions of his government and of other countries. In 1876 he visited the Centennial at Philadelphia, in 1893 attended the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago, in 1901 the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, and in 1904 the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis. In politics Mr. Meck is a Democrat, and since his twenty-first year has been a staunch supporter of his party. In religious belief he adheres to the Reformed faith, and has been a member of St. Paul's Church, Hamlin, since his thirteenth year, being secretary of the church since 1880. Fraternally he is connected with Washington Camp No. 214, P. O. S. of A., which he joined Feb. 11, 1887.

On Oct. 27, 1877, Mr. Meck was married to Hettie Esther Becker, daughter of Samuel Becker, and to this union there were born seven children: (1) Walter, born in 1878, attended the Millersville State Normal School in 1895-96, assisted his father in the store until 1900, and then became a member of the underwear manufacturing firm of Meck & Co., at Schuylkill Haven. In the fall of 1904 he married Miss Klahr. (2) Cora, born in 1880, learned dressmaking at Lebanon. She is married to Calvin A. Kline, who since 1899 has clerked in his father-in-law's store. (3) Gertrude, born in 1882, married Galam Piffer, and lives at home. (4) Howard, born in 1883, graduated from the Keystone State Normal School in the class of 1902, taught school for three years, graduated with honors from the bookkeeping department of the Eastman Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in 1906, and from the dairy department of the State College in 1907, and now manages his father's creamery. In the spring of 1906 he married Annie Bensing. (5) Mary, born in 1885, married Harry Baltz, a clerk at the American Iron and Steel Works, Lebanon. (6) Allan, born in 1886, graduated in 1902 from public school with first honors, in 1905 from the Keystone State Normal School with honors, and in the fall of that year entered the sophomore class of Franklin and Marshall College, from which he was graduated in the spring of 1908 with honors. During the summer of 1908 he was a student in the Divinity Department of Chicago University and is now a student at the Eastern Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church. (7) Mabel, born in 1891, is assisting her parents at home and at the same time taking a course in music.

WILLIAM BOWMAN WEAVER, undertaker at Philadelphia for nearly thirty years, was born in that city Feb. 13, 1855 (son of Girard William Weaver), and educated in the local schools and at Boyertown until he became sixteen years of age, when he was apprenticed to the trade of carpenter and continued learning this trade for three years; but not liking this employment he entered a store and served as a salesman for two years. He then secured a position under John A. Frank, undertaker, and after assisting him for four years embarked in the business for himself, at No. 550 North Fifth street, Philadelphia. This was in 1880, and he has continued actively engaged until the present time at the same place. He was married to Ellen Henderson, daughter of Thomas Henderson and Elizabeth Weiser, his wife, of Philadelphia, and they have a daughter, Adelaide.

His grandfather was William Wayman Weaver, born in Oley, Berks county, in 1794, and brought up at the Salford forges, which his father was then operating. In 1828 he established a foundry at Colebrookdale, near Boyertown, which he carried on until 1863, when he was succeeded by his son Girard and son-in-law Samuel Weidner. He was married in 1821 to Caroline Bleyler, of Philadelphia, and they had nine children, among them Charles Bleyler and Girard William. He died in 1875, and his wife in 1869. He was enlisted in the war of 1812-15.

Mr. Weaver's great-grandfather was Jonas Weaver, who was born in 1767, on the Yoder homestead in Oley (adjoining Pleasantville). He located at Allentown about 1800 and taught school until 1808, when he went to the Salford forges, near Sumneytown, in Montgomery county, and operated the plant for a number of years, after which he returned to Allentown and lived in retirement until his decease, in 1858. He was married in 1792 to Mary Wayman, of Pike township, and they had thirteen children, the second having been William, previously named.

CHARLES LEININGER, hosiery manufacturer and farmer at Mohn's Hill, was born at Fritztown, Spring township, Sept. 3, 1855, son of Joseph and Rebecca Leininger. His youth was passed on the home farm, and there he gained the practical training that has made of his agricultural work so marked a success. He remained at home until he was twenty-one, and a year later began farming his father's farm, so continuing there for three years. After his wife died he left the farm, but in 1890 after his second marriage he resumed farming, and has been exceedingly prosperous in all his undertakings. His farm is well stocked, and is equipped with all the latest improved machinery. It is located in the southwestern end of Spring township, close to the Lancaster county line, and was first owned and cleared by the pioneer, Ludwig Mohn, a native of Hanover, Germany. The Mohn Memorial Church is located on this farm, only a few hundred yards from the house. The farm presents a fine appearance, with its substantial and attractive buildings, and the owner is justly proud of his estate. In 1902, in partnership with his brother George H., he formed the firm of Leininger Brothers to engage in the manufacture of hosiery. They erected a frame building 28x60 feet, two stories high. Employment is given to thirty-five hands, and about 250 dozen pairs are turned out each day and shipments are made all over the United States. A high standard is maintained, and no goods with the slightest defect are permitted to leave the factory.

Mr. Leininger and his family attend Mohn's Memorial Church (United Evangelical), at Mohn's Hill, of which he is class leader and trustee, as well as member of the Sunday-school, and at one time was superintendent of the latter. He is a good and useful citizen, and is highly respected wherever he is known.

In 1877 Mr. Leininger was married to Mary Ann Coleman, who was born Dec. 3, 1857, daughter of Aaron and Barbara (Burkhart) Coleman. Two children were born to them, Jennie and Elmer. Mrs. Leininger died May 6, 1887, aged twenty-nine years, five months, three days. For his second wife Mr. Leininger married Mary Stitzer, daughter of Ephraim and Lovina (Brown) Stitzer, of Pricetown. Four children were born of this union: Roscoe (died in infancy), Mabel, Raymond and Joseph. They attend school only one-eighth of a mile distant from their home, and their education is carefully looked after by their parents.

ISAAC S. UMBENHAUER, senior member of the firm of Umbenhauer & Wanner, real estate and insurance, is of German descent, and was born on his father's farm Jan. 5, 1858, son of William and Susanna (Spang) Umbenhauer.

Thomas Umbenhauer, great-grandfather of Isaac S., was the founder of the present thriving borough of Bernville. He lived on the farm now occupied by Isaac S., as did his brothers, Henry S., and Daniel S. This farm has been in the family since 1737, and has descended from one generation to another.

Peter Umbenhauer, son of Thomas, married Sarah, daughter of John Reber, of Penn township, and they had two children: William and Mary.

William Umbenhauer, son of Peter and father of Isaac S., married Susanna Spang, daughter of Peter Spang, of North Heidelberg township. Their children were: Peter S., Thomas S., Sarah S., Adam S., Henry S., William S., Isaac S., Milton S., Kate C., John S., Daniel S. and Samuel S.

Isaac S. Umbenhauer was educated in the district schools and the Keystone State Normal School. In 1883 he left the farm, and, coming to Reading, clerked for three years. He then entered a mercantile business, and continued in that line for twelve years. On Aug. 10, 1898, he began the real estate and insurance business as a member of the firm of Umbenhauer & Wanner. They are one of the leading firms in the city, and have charge of large estates, in connection with real estate, and they sell all kinds of securities, with fire, life and casualty insurance. Mr. Umbenhauer's ability and upright character have frequently caused his services to be in demand as executor, administrator, guardian and assignee. He is a director of the Windsor Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Berks county, Pa. He is public spirited and ready to assist in all kinds of enterprises he deems of benefit to the community. In politics he is a Democrat, and he is a stanch upholder of his party's principles. He was a great admirer of President Cleveland. He is a member of Trinity Lutheran Church at Reading.

On Dec. 4, 1886, Mr. Umbenhauer married Annie Laura Potteiger, daughter of Jacob Potteiger, of Spring township. Their children were: LeRoy P., a student at Dickinson College of Law at Carlisle; and Lillian E., deceased.

STANLY J. KIRBY. Few men are better known in Maiden-creek township than Stanly J. Kirby, the founder of Kirbyville, in which place he resides, his mansion being situated along the well-known Easton Road, surrounded by a large well-kept lawn. Fine shade trees, under which are placed comfortable settees, add to the external comfort of this home, while the interior is in every way most attractive. Mr. Kirby has contributed in many ways to the growth, prosperity and advancement of his town, township and county. He was born in Maiden-creek township, Berks county, March 14, 1832, son of Dr. David and Florenda (Levan) Kirby, and is of English descent.

The Kirby family was founded in America by four brothers, one of whom, Stanly, settled in Maiden-creek township, where he was engaged in the cultivation of the soil. The other brothers settled in different parts of the country—one in New York City, one in Illinois (a descendant of whom became very wealthy in the mining industry), and one in Chester county. In the old Kirby family Bible this record is found of the family in England: William, 1703; Joseph, 1722; Thomas, 1724; John, 1726; Mary, 1728; Peter, 1732; Elizabeth, 1734; Stanly (1703-1803); Michael, 1737. The second youngest of the family was the great-grandfather of Stanly J., of Kirbyville, and he had a son Stanly, who perpetuated the honored name.

Stanly Kirby, grandfather of Stanly J., was a most prominent citizen and prosperous farmer of Berks county. He was born in Maiden-creek township and was a lifelong resident of that district, being a most prominent political factor in his day, serving in the high office of county commissioner from 1827-1830. He married Hannah Merkel, daughter of Casper Merkel, and to them were born these children: Solomon; David; Hannah (who married David Koller); and nine others who died before reaching maturity.

Dr. David Kirby was born Feb. 25, 1807, and died April 24, 1878. He was reared upon his father's farm, but on attaining his majority studied medicine, received his diploma, and was considered one of the most skilled physicians of his day. His last years were spent at the home of his son, Stanly J., and he passed away April 24, 1878. He married Florenda Levan, born at Kutztown, where she died May 3, 1889, daughter of Jacob and Rose Levan, and to this union were born: Stanly J.; and Hannah, widow of the late Henry Biehl, who was a prominent merchant of his time.

Stanly J. Kirby received his education in the common schools of his time and in the State Normal school at West Chester, Pa. His boyhood days were spent on the farm, and on reaching his twenty-first year he removed to the farm which he had received by inheritance from his grandfather, engaging actively in agricultural pursuits until 1862. In this year he removed to his present place, where he has since continued. Mr. Kirby's community honors and respects him, and looks upon him as its friend and leader. He is a large tax payer, owning beside his residence farm a farm of 135 acres of the best land of Maiden-creek township and one of 194 acres.

On Oct. 26, 1862, Mr. Kirby married (first) Caroline Kauffman, daughter of Daniel and Mary (Wiedenhammer) Kauffman, and she died May 14, 1895, the mother of three children, all of whom died in their infancy. Mr. Kirby's second marriage, Dec. 1, 1896, was to Miss Mary M. Geehr, of Kutztown, daughter of Jacob C. and Mary (Hoch) Geehr, and a lineal descendant of Col. Balser Geehr of Revolutionary fame. The parents of Mrs. Kirby had children as follows: Titus E., a hide broker in New York City, where he died in 1901; Mary M.; Katie, who is widely known as a great church worker; Thomas B., who died in his fourth year; and Florence M., wife of Hon. Edward Y. Miller, the present military governor of the Philippines.

Mr. Stanly J. Kirby is the founder of Kirbyville, of which he has been postmaster six years, and he has served in every position except supervisor and constable. For twenty-four years he was school director and was treasurer for thirty years. He is a director of Sinking Spring Fire Insurance Company, a position he has held for forty-five years. In politics he is a stanch Democrat. He is a member of Lodge No. 377, F. & A. M., of Kutztown, and the Jr. O. U. A. M. of Fleetwood. In religious faith he is inclined toward the Lutheran Church and his wife is connected with the United Evangelical.

Mr. Kirby is the possessor of many valuable and interesting relics, among them two "grandfather" clocks, one of which is known to be 116 years old (and very likely is 150 years old), which was owned by Stanly Kirby I, and another which belonged to Solomon Kirby, which is at least eighty years old. Mr. Kirby has a gold pen with a silver holder which he has used continuously since 1850. He has the original will of his great-grandfather, and deeds and other legal papers that have been in the Kirby family since 1700. Mr. Kirby is a first cousin of the late U. S. Senator Arthur Pugh Gorman, the latter's mother and Mr. Kirby's mother having been sisters.

SOLOMON H. LENHART, who has for some years been living retired, at Hamburg, Pa., was for a long period prominently connected with various business enterprises of Windsor township. Mr. Lenhart was born Feb. 2, 1828, in Greenwich township, Berks county, and he belongs to one of the old and honored families of this section of Pennsylvania.

Jacob Lenhart, great-grandfather of Solomon H., was born Nov. 18, 1736, and came from Zweibrücken, Pfalz, Germany, with a number of other Palatinates, landing at Philadelphia Jan. 21, 1760. He located at Barnes' Springs, now Molltown, Berks county, but subsequently removed to Lenhartsville, in Greenwich township, where the rest of his life was spent. He died Aug. 3, 1793. Mr. Lenhart had four sons, namely: Philip, who settled at Siegfred's Mill, in Maxatawny township, Berks county; Johannes, who lived at the present site of Lenhartsville, where he owned the old mill and hotel; Heinrich; and Sebastian, who owned land in the vicinity of Hamburg, where he conducted a blacksmith shop.

Heinrich Lenhart, grandfather of Solomon H., owned 250 acres of land above Lenhartsville, and the farms near Klinesville which are now the property of Jonathan P. Dietrich. He was a prominent man of his day, a Democrat in politics, and founded the village which bears his name. He and his family belonged to the Moravian Reformed Church. Mr. Lenhart married Salome Leiby, and to them were born these children: Benjamin, Frederick, Henry, Samuel, John, Daniel, Isaac, Reuben, Mrs. Richelderfer and Mrs. Jonas Lesher. The father of these children died at Lenhartsville in 1836.

Samuel Lenhart, father of Solomon H., was born Feb. 28, 1798, in Lenhartsville, Berks county, and was educated in the German schools. He was a blacksmith by trade, an occupation which he had learned in youth and which he followed for many years, also owning what is now Dietrich land near Lenhartsville, and a hotel. He was a Democrat in politics, and was supervisor of his district. Mr. Lenhart and his family were members of the Reformed Church, he being one of the builders of the Lenhartsville Church in 1854. He married Lydia Haman, a native of Lehigh county, who was born April 1, 1802, and to them were born the following family: Jacob, Matilda and Brigitta, who died within three days of cholera; Lydia m. David Shenkler, now deceased, and resided in Iowa; Benjamin, deceased, lived in Hamburg; James resides in Albany, Pa.; Solomon H.; Rufena; Samuel H., born March 20, 1832, lives at Leesport, Pa.; Elizabeth is the widow of Charles S. Kerns, of Tamaqua, Pa.; Maria m. Henry Miller, of Hamburg; Amelia m. Philip Schneider, of Allentown; John is a resident of Delaware, Ohio; Lewis resides in Allentown; and Catherine, deceased, also lived in Allentown. Samuel Lenhart, the father of these fifteen children, died Aug. 1, 1869, aged seventy-one years, and his wife Feb. 1, 1872, in her seventieth year.

Solomon H. Lenhart obtained a good education in the Klinesville pay school, the only one in which English was taught in that section, taught by a Mr. Leidy, of Chester county, in 1835. For some winters he also attended German schools, and in 1846 a free school near Orangeville, Columbia Co., Pa. He then worked on his father's farm for some years, but in 1852 he went to Moselem Springs, where, with his brother, he conducted the store and hotel, remaining until 1854, when he removed to Leesport to engage in the store and coal business. He was also for one season in the boating business, but this enterprise proving a failure, he sunk the boat in the waters of the Schuylkill, at the Market street bridge, Philadelphia. After selling out his share of the business at Leesport to his brother, in 1856, Mr. Lenhart located on his father-in-law's farm, east of Shoemakersville, Pa., and a few years later purchased this farm and an adjoining one. Here he remained about four years, and in 1860 engaged in the horse and cattle business, in which he was profitably engaged for about fifteen years. During the war he purchased many horses for government service, and in this business he made a small fortune. His experiences as a horse and cattle dealer are very interesting. On two occasions he drove from Lenhartsville to Columbus, Ohio, and in 1849 and again in 1851 brought his horses on foot from that place. On another occasion he drove a herd of cattle from Ross county, Ohio, to New York City, being seventy-two days on the road.

Mr. Lenhart was one of the founders of the Hamburg Savings Bank, and since 1872 has been one of its directors. After retiring from the cattle business Mr. Lenhart engaged in farming for a time, but in 1880 he located in Hamburg, where until two years ago he was engaged in an extensive lumber and coal business. He now resides in his handsome residence on North Fourth street, Hamburg, and is considered one of the substantial men of the borough. In political matters he is a Republican, and has been active in the ranks of his party, serving as school director of Perry township and as councilman of Hamburg. He and his family are members of the First Reformed Church of Hamburg.

On June 24, 1854, Mr. Lenhart married Esther G. Deill, daughter of Jacob Deill, of Perry township, and to this union there have been born children as follows: Jacob died when eleven years of age; Richard m. Annie Seidel; Irwin m. Rosa Haines; Oscar m. Ida Leiby; and Cora.

WILLIAM A. KALBACH, one of the most prominent business men of Robesonia, senior member of the well-known firm of W. A. Kalbach & Sons, doing business under the name of Eagle Cigar Box Company, was born Aug. 1, 1844, on one of the Kalbach homesteads in North Heidelberg township, son of Adam and Catherine (Althouse) Kalbach.

The Kalbach family had its origin in the northeastern part of Germany, whence came Christopher Kahlbach, the immigrant ancestor, who settled in Heidelberg township, Berks Co., Pa., before the middle of the eighteenth century. Here he acquired property, prospered, and reared a family of children, among whom were: Adam (the great-grandfather of William A.) and Michael. The latter, born in 1766, died in 1840. He had sons: Daniel, 1800-1874, and Michael, 1814-1896 (who married Elizabeth Womelsdorf, 1816-1895). Michael, Sr., and his sons are buried at Womelsdorf.

Through the marriage of George Kalbach, one of the early members of this family, to Maria Spang, these Kalbachs are among the heirs to the great Spang fortune in Germany.

Adam Kalbach, the great-grandfather of William A., was a farmer in Tulpehocken township, where he owned a large plantation, on which he died, ripe in years, in 1801. He and his wife, Maria Eva, had these children: Michael, George, Adam, Johannes, Susanna, Elizabeth, Maria Sabilla, Regina Catherine and Sophia.

Adam Kalbach, son of Adam, and grandfather of William A., was also a farmer in Tulpehocken (now Penn) township, owning a large tract of land. He was twice married, his first wife's maiden name being Ruth, and his second wife's name being Christ. His children, all by the first union, were: Adam; Joseph; John; William; Isaac; Mrs. Conrad Loose; Mrs. George Loose; Mrs. John Epler; and Jacob.

Adam Kalbach, father of William A., born in what is now Penn township, was a lifelong farmer, owning tracts of 210 and 130 acres. He was a Reformed member of the Bernville Church, where he was buried. Mr. Kalbach married Catherine Althouse, daughter of Adam Althouse, and to this union there were born nine children: Harrison, Sarah (m. Edward Potteiger), Isaac, Catherine (m. Jared Brossman), Levi, James, William A., Amelia (m. Henry Filbert) and Amandon.

William A. Kalbach was reared to agricultural pursuits, and after reaching his twenty-first year engaged in tenant farming on his father's property, where he continued for four years. In 1866 he bought the Dr. Beyerle farm in North Heidelberg township, where he lived five years, when he rented his farm and engaged in a sawmill business in the different counties of eastern Pennsylvania, a line he followed with success for twenty years. In 1882 he came to Robesonia, where he has since lived in a large brick residence on Main and Robeson streets. On Jan. 15, 1895, he and his sons purchased the cigar box machinery and outfit of Belleman Brothers, and they have a good business and employ about twenty hands, catering especially to the local trade. Mr. Kalbach is a Democrat in politics, and his religious affiliations are with the North Heidelberg Church, of which he is a Reformed member, and where he has served as deacon.

In 1870 Mr. Kalbach m. Emma Lengel, daughter of Levi and Catherine (Dundore) Lengel, and three sons have been born to this union: Harry A., a druggist of Philadelphia, m. Sallie Miller; Clayton W., born Aug. 29, 1879, educated in the district schools, the Inter-State Commercial College, and Albright College, at Myerstown, is in business with his father, and m. Sallie E. Filbert; Webster L., educated in the township schools and the Lebanon Business College (where he took a commercial course), is in business with his father and brother.

MARTIN LUTHER MILLER, M. D., of Mohnton, proprietor of the Miller Furniture Company, was born in Mohnsville, April 1, 1869.

Dr. Miller passed his boyhood at various points in the State, and at different times attended the schools of Berks, Lehigh and Schuylkill counties. When more advanced he entered the Schuylkill Seminary at Fredericksburg, and was graduated from that institution with the class of 1889. Later he decided upon adopting the profession of medicine, and therefore in 1895 entered the Hahnemann Medical College of Philadelphia, being graduated three years later. For the next year he practised at Mohnton, but then removed to St. Lawrence, Berks county, for a year and a half. While his success in establishing himself in the latter place was very flattering, Dr. Miller regarded Mohnton as offering a better field, and so returned there in 1901, since which time he has built up a very good practice.

Although eminently successful in his profession, Dr. Miller has also the traits of a good business man and combines the two interests. In the fall of 1902, in partnership with William G. Leininger and B. Frank Steffy, he formed the Steffy Music & Furniture Company, an enterprise that from the beginning has enjoyed a liberal measure of public favor and patronage. In July, 1906, Mr. Leininger withdrew from the firm because of the pressure of other interests, and in a few months an agreement was entered into between Dr. Miller and Mr. Steffy whereby the latter also withdrew and the Doctor became the sole owner. The business is located in a two-story building 26x60 feet, on Wyomissing avenue. A full line of furniture, bedding, upholstery, carpets, etc., is carried and a large trade is done.

In the political field Dr. Miller is also active, working with the Republican forces to promote the general welfare. He was prominent in the movement to have the town incorporated and served on various committees. At the first election, after the incorporation of the borough in 1907, he was elected a director of the public schools for the three-year term, and, at the organization of the board, was chosen treasurer of the school district. Fraternally also he is a well-known figure, belonging to the K. of P., No. 485, of Mohnton, of which he is Master of the Exchequer, and to the P. O. S. of A., No, 211, of Mohnton. Even more vitally is the Doctor's influence felt in the work of the Zion United Evangelical Church, of which he and his wife are members. The Sunday-school, which is one of the largest in the county, is known for its excellent singing, due in large measure to Dr. Miller's careful work as chorister. He is an accomplished musician, both as pianist and vocalist, and since 1900 has given his best ability to training this school. He is also the efficient president of the K. L. C. E., which has a large membership and is a marked influence for good in the community. Whatever line of work Dr. Miller undertakes, he proves himself a man of force and ability and his position and influence among his fellow-townsmen is a prominent one.

In July, 1895, Dr. Miller was united in marriage to Miss Lillian C. Musselman, daughter of Reuben and Sarah (Henry) Musselman, the former a carpenter of Weissport, Carbon county.

WILSON H. ROTHERMEL, M. D., who, both as a physician and a citizen, is very generally known and highly esteemed in the city of Reading, Pa., where he has practised his profession with notable success for ten years, was born in 1866, in Maiden-creek township, Berks county.

Dr. Rothermel was educated in the schools of his native locality, later took a course at Palatinate College, taught school for several years in Maiden-creek and Muhlenberg townships, and read medicine under Dr. Daniel B. Beaver. He entered Jefferson Medical College in 1891, from which he was graduated in 1894, and located in Reading in 1897, opening an office on Ninth street. He was elected coroner of Berks county, an office which he ably filled, and on Feb. 1, 1901, he settled at his present office, No. 654 Tenth street, where he has since continued successfully. Dr. Rothermel is a member of the Foresters of America, the Twentieth Century Quakers and the Knights and Ladies of Honor. In politics he is a Democrat, and in religious connection a member of the Reformed Church.

Dr. Rothermel married Alice T. Schmehl, daughter of Jacob and Esther Schmehl, and to this union there were born six children: Esther L. (deceased), Earle W., Ruth A., A. Catherine, John W. (deceased) and Mary Helen.

WILLIAM S. KLEE (Clay), who is now living retired from active work in Womelsdorf, is a great-great-grandson of Johan Nicholas Klee, who emigrated to America on the ship "Glasgow," Walter Stirling, master, sailing from Rotterdam. This vessel qualified at Philadelphia Sept. 9, 1738. Johan Nicholas Klee was then thirty years of age and unmarried. In 1759 when the first federal tax was collected in Bern township, Berks county, he was a taxable there. In his will, which is on record in the Berks county court-house, probated in 1763, there is evidence that he had several children, as he equitably divided his estate "among his children." Unfortunately he does not mention them by name.

William Klee, grandfather of William S., was born in Bern township, Berks county. He married a Noecker, and among their children were: (1) William. (2) John, of Lebanon county, Pa., had a daughter Emma (m. Joe Yarty). (3) Michael, of Middletown, Pa., had children—John, Kate, Mary and Lydia. (4) Lydia m. David Merky. (5) Maricha married and lived at Hanover, Pennsylvania.

William Klee, son of William and father of William S., was born in western Berks county July 21, 1809, and died Sept. 5, 1875, and was buried at Womelsdorf. He was a carpet and flax weaver, and also tended the locks on the old Union Canal at the Tulpehocken Church from 1828 until 1857. He then moved away, but when the canal was again put in operation he returned and remained until 1865, when he went to North Heidelberg, and located permanently. He owned a tract of some twenty acres of land. He married Catharine Schaeffer, born in 1807, who died at the age of forty years. They became the parents of nine children, of whom six died when under thirteen years old. The three reaching maturity were: John m. Eliza Machmer, and had children—Alfred, Rebecca, Edwin, Sallie, Wilson and John; William S.; and Adam m. Mary Reedy, and had children—Amelia, Calvin and Naomi.

William S. Klee was born in Tulpehocken (now Jefferson) township, Berks county, Oct. 18, 1832. He attended the pay school at Klopps, and left when twenty years old. He learned the shoe making trade in 1854 under his uncle Daniel Stoudt, whose place he took as a shoe maker in the North Heidelberg vicinity. He followed this trade until 1874. He then farmed a tract of twenty-two acres for ten years. In 1884 he retired and moved into a residence built by his uncle, Daniel Stoudt, in 1860, in Womelsdorf, and this has since been his home. He owns another place in North Heidelberg township, consisting of sixty-seven acres. In politics Mr. Klee is a Democrat, and he was a school director for three years in North Heidelberg, and since he has lived in Womelsdorf, he has served one term in the town council. He and his family belong to the Reformed congregation at Zion's Union Church. He was a deacon and elder in the church for some years, and since 1886 has been the treasurer. Mr. Klee is a delightful entertainer, taking an intelligent interest in all the affairs of the day, and he has the imprint of honesty in his face. He started life poor, but has through thrift and industry acquired a competence, and he has the respect of all.

In 1864 Mr. Klee married Sarah A. Dundore, born March 11, 1842, daughter of William and Sarah (Ernst) Dundore. To this union has been born one son, Maurice E., born Oct. 13, 1865, who left this locality at the age of eighteen and after traveling all through the south, southwest and west, settled in Minnesota.

JOSEPH SMITH, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Fritztown, Spring township, who has been engaged in various business enterprises, was born at Womelsdorf, Berks county, Dec. 29, 1834, son of Frederick and Elizabeth (Schlogg) Smith.

Frederick Smith, who was born in Baden, Germany, came to America when twenty-five years old, and landed at Baltimore, where he remained for some years. He then went West for a short time, but subsequently located at Womelsdorf, Berks county, where he engaged in day laboring and lime burning for the remainder of his active period. He died at the age of ninety-two years, eleven months, and twenty days, and is buried at Sinking Spring cemetery. Mr. Smith married Elizabeth Schlogg, who died when sixty-six years of age, and to them were born these children: John, Levi, Mary, Sarah, Joseph, Elizabeth and Thomas.

Joseph Smith attended the common schools of Berks county, after leaving which he engaged in farm work for a short time, later going to Adams Mill, below Sinking Spring, and still later along the Tulpehocken creek, where he also followed milling. For a short period Mr. Smith was engaged in farming, and he then followed the trade of stone mason for fifteen years, also engaging in lime burning at Montello for a like period, in which he was very successful. Since 1876 Mr. Smith has made Fritztown his home, and here he is well and widely known and highly esteemed.

On Oct. 2, 1855, Mr. Smith married Lydia A. Moyer, born Aug. 1, 1835, daughter of David and Kathryn (Kerchner) Moyer, and to this union there have been born: Edwin; Ellen, wife of Joseph Shonower, of Fritztown; Frederick; and Matilda, wife of Solomon Freeman, of Fritztown. Mr. Smith is a member of St. John's Reformed Church, at Sinking Spring. In politics he is a Democrat, and for three years served Spring township as roadmaster.

KOHLER. The Kohler family of Berks county was founded here early, the first ancestor in this country settling in Greenwich township, in the vicinity of what is now Kohler's Hill, where he became the owner of between five hundred and six hundred acres of land.

(I) John Kohler, the first of whom we have definite record, was the great-grandfather of David A. Kohler, of Richmond township, and of Dr. Daniel R. Kohler, of Boyertown. He was born March 15, 1769, was a prominent man of his day, and died Jan. 31, 1849, leaving considerable property. His wife, Hannah Rosina Hechler, born April 3, 1772, daughter of John and Maria Hechler, died Nov. 25, 1824.

(II) Adam Kohler, son of John, born Sept. 27, 1797, became a well-to-do and influential farmer, owning and operating 212 acres of excellent land. He was a member of the Grimville Lutheran Church and for many years an elder. Adam Kohler died Aug. 5, 1869. He married Annie Fisher, daughter of Philip Fisher, and to this union were born: Daniel, who died in infancy; Sarah, who married Isaac Straub; Adam, who died in 1901; John F.; Eliza, the wife of George Kutz, of Kutztown; and Samuel D. F.

(III) Samuel D. F. Kohler, who died Aug. 16, 1908, after living retired with his son David A. for a number of years, was born May 4, 1840. By vocation an agriculturist, he was also for a number of years proprietor of the hotel at Crystal Cave. On Jan. 15, 1860, he married Amanda De Long, and to this union were born: Ida married Isaac Miller, of Windsor township, who died April 29, 1898; Academus died single, aged twenty-nine years; David A. is mentioned below; Rosie, unmarried, resides with her brother David A. at the Cave.

(IV) David A. Kohler, now the owner of the famous Crystal Cave property in the northeastern part of Richmond township, Berks county, was born Aug. 9, 1865, in Greenwich township, and was educated in the schools of Richmond township, whither he had been brought by his parents. At the age of twelve years he commenced to conduct visitors through Crystal Cave, and he has ever since lived on the property. Coming into contact with so many people, he has become well known, and his genial and affable disposition has won him many friends.

Mr. Kohler was married March 29, 1889, to Miss Ellacyda M. L. Merkel, daughter of John and Sally Ann (Blanck) Merkel, prominent farming people of this vicinity, and one child has been born to this union, Mabel Mae.

Crystal Cave was discovered Nov. 12, 1871, by William Merkel, who was quarrying stone. Gideon Merkel was the owner of the property at that time, and in February, 1872, he leased it to Samuel D. F. Kohler, who purchased it in March of that year for $5,000. He expended a considerable amount of money on the property and in building before opening it for the inspection of the public. The Cave has been explored for a distance of over two thousand feet, and, since its public opening, has been visited by upward of twenty thousand people. Commissioner of superintendents of public instruction, the inspector of schools and a noted educator of Paris, France, went through the cave in company with Dr. J. S. Trexler, Col. Thomas D. Fister, Mr. William C. Dietrich and Rev. Dr. A. R. Horne, all of Kutztown, being a commission appointed to examine American curiosities, and made this report: "Niagara Falls and the Crystal Cave are the greatest natural wonders that we have seen in America."

The Society of Natural Sciences of Reading, Pa., sent a committee of learned men composed of Dr. J. Schoenfeld, D. R. S. Turner, H. H. Hollenbush (chemist), Prof. D. B. Brunner and Rev. Dr. A. R. Horne, to examine the cave and report on it. They said in part: "Crystal Cave is filled with very interesting curiosities; the stalactites, stalagmites and crystalline formations present a variety of beauty such as is seldom seen. Persons who visit the cave will be amply repaid." Mr. C. B. Stevens, a noted scientist of Toronto, Canada, said: "David A. Kohler and his father, Samuel, have devoted the best days of their lives in exploring this great yet practically unknown cave, for the benefit of the American public. Money can never repay these men for their labors."

It was not idle curiosity that brought these men to this geological phenomenon, but a desire to see it and to study it at first hand. The problems presented in it are more than those involved in the simple question of solutions. A student of geology may glibly recite the fact that water containing carbon dioxide acts as a solvent on limestone and that this solvency among other conditions depends upon the amount of carbon dioxide present in the water and upon the pressure to which it is subjected, and he may further state that as soon as conditions are present which enable the escape of the carbon dioxide the lime becomes insoluble again and is precipitated in some form of incrustation. A journey to Crystal Cave will throw more light upon this question than pages of theorizing. To be brought face to face with the silent yet potent forces of the past and present is the best way of understanding the problems involved.

The rocks out of which this cavern has been formed belong to the calciferous division of the lower Silurian age. The entrance to the cavern is about eighty feet above a nearby valley, and the soft Utica shales have been entirely removed from the steep hill containing the cave, but are exposed at its base. The limestone rocks here, therefore, are very resistant to the weathering agents. Beautiful specimens of aragonite of a slender stalactitic form are present, and there is an abundance of quartz that has infiltrated between the rocks.

The floor area is approximately two acres in extent and the average height of the roof is in the neighborhood of twelve feet, although the height ranges in the main passage from six to forty feet. The passageway narrows and widens from about two feet to thirty feet.

Evidences of displacements of hugh masses of rock material are on every side, but judging from the rate of growth of the aqueous deposits which have oriented themselves with reference to gravity since these displacements the last mass of dislodged material occurred many years ago. Mr. Kohler, who has known this cave in all its details for thirty-eight years and who has noticed all the changes that are likely to occur here with time, positively states that during all these years there has not only been little or no perceptible growth in the incrustations but aside from certain acts of vandalism which despoiled it of some of its original charms the cave to-day is exactly the same as it was when first discovered.

Imagination has seen in the curious forms assumed by the pilasters, the stalactites and the stalagmites a vast variety of resemblances to natural objects, and one of the most legitimate means of training the imagination is to rethink these likenesses and to imagine others.

The eagle-rock shows a remarkable likeness to the national bird in the act of preying upon some innocent member of the feathered tribe, and in the throes of death dame nature crystallized both victor and quarry and held them there, an emblem of the gigantic struggle which placed craft and brains to the front. Anticipating by thousands of years the conical form of a plate of ice-cream or as though nature in one of her tyrannical moods visited her wrath upon a race of Titans about to partake of a refreshing dish of orange ice already placed on a spacious table and transmuted the delicacy into stone, the tempting dish, some two feet high, has stood there unmelted all these centuries, waiting the magic spell to unlock the stony molecules and to join the once toothsome cream to the palate. Indeed, it seems as though that tortuous cavern was about to witness a carnival of the giants. The disemboweled intestines of some massive mastodon are still there; the rib-roast was partly sliced and ready to be served; the fowl was picked and watermelon sliced and a mammoth fish awaited the repast. But the giant hand of the caterer, like the hand on the wall of old, was stilled; the bulky tooth which was to crush these viands was severed; and the prairie dogs which were waiting for the bones of this breakfast of the gods are now silent in the gloom. The lily chamber, which fancy pictures as the spare room for the giantesses, and the massive cathedral room, with its three hundred frail stalactites, the idol chamber (these strange beings must have been idolaters), the bridal veil and all the other myriad evidences of revelry, of remorse and of splendor are carved out of those stupendous rocks with a realism which commands the admiration of sculptors. Mother nature, to complete the ghastly scene, has caused the body of the giant chief to be embalmed and placed in a sarcophagus in a spacious crypt, as in the catacombs of ancient story.

A natural curiosity of such magnitude and interest should be visited by every person who has the opportunity of doing so. Mr. D. A. Kohler, the intelligent and obliging proprietor of the cave, has a natural love for the sublime in nature, and he invariably joins with this a desire to satisfy every reasonable wish of his many patrons.

(II) John Kohler, grandfather of Dr. Daniel R. Kohler, of Boyertown, was born about 1804 on one of the Kohler homesteads in Greenwich township, near Klinesville, and was probably a son of (I) John Kohler. He lived in his native township, near Kutz's Mill, and engaged in farming with fair success, owning a tract of 210 acres, which later, in 1856, was divided into two portions, both now owned by his sons. John Kohler died in 1875, and is buried at the Grimville Church. He married Rebecca Leiby, daughter of Jacob Leiby, of near Virginville, and she survived him, dying in the spring of 1887. Their children were as follows: John (deceased) lived near Douglassville, Pa.; William (deceased) lived on the homestead near Klinesville, on the farm now owned by his son John; Hannah (deceased) was the wife of John Deisher, of Kutztown; Daniel L. is mentioned later; Jacob lives on the homestead in Greenwich township, owning 150 acres, including that part of his father's farm on which the original set of buildings are located; Henry (deceased) moved to near Lansing, Mich., where his family still reside.

(III) Daniel L. Kohler was born Feb. 5, 1834, on the farm now owned by John Kohler (son of his brother William), near Klinesville. He was reared to farming, and followed that occupation throughout his active years, retiring in 1895. He still lives upon his homestead, making his home with his son John. Mr. Kohler was a good practical farmer, and owns a tract of 160 acres, which, as previously referred to, was a part of his father's homestead, divided in 1856. Mr. Kohler is a Democrat in politics, and in religion a member of St. John's Lutheran Church at Kutztown, of which he was an official for some years. He still serves as a director of Fairview cemetery.

In 1856 Daniel L. Kohler married Sallie Rahn, who was born Oct. 28, 1834, daughter of John Rahn, of Maxatawny township, and died April 30, 1907. She was the mother of eight children, as follows: Hettie married Charles W. Gilder; John is farming on the homestead; Mary married

CRYSTAL CAVE—"PRAIRIE DOGS"

A. J. DeTurck, a harness-maker, of Oley township; Sarah married Alvin Schaeffer, of Fleetwood; Dr. Daniel R. is mentioned below; Lizzie, unmarried, lives in Philadelphia; Dr. Henry, a successful veterinary surgeon, is located at Trenton, N. J.; Hannah married Chester DeTurck, of Friedensburg, Berks county, and died in October, 1906, aged thirty-two years.

(IV) Daniel R. Kohler, second son of Daniel L., was born April 19, 1868, in Greenwich township, Berks county, and was reared on the home farm. He gained his early education in the common schools of the township, and at the age of twenty-one entered the Keystone State Normal School, at Kutztown, which he attended for a few sessions. In the meantime he had decided to become a first-class veterinary surgeon and after spending the summer of 1891 with Dr. P. K. Dreibelbis, of Dreibelbis, Pa., he registered as a student at the Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto, Canada, in the fall of that year. In the spring of 1892 he went back to his original preceptor, returning to the college in the autumn, and was graduated from that institution March 25, 1893, winning a silver medal for the best examination papers on "Diseases and Treatment," as well as prizes and honors in nearly all the branches of study he pursued, materia media, anatomy and physiology. For a few months following he practised in the employ of Dr. J. Rein Keelor, at Harleysville, Montgomery Co., Pa., on Nov. 28, 1893, settling in Boyertown, where he purchased the good-will and paraphernalia of Dr. Allen Keelor. Here he has since been located. As a veterinary surgeon and dentist his skill has won him a large and lucrative practice, and he has every convenience for caring for lame and sick horses, conducting an infirmary of his own. It is equipped throughout with box stalls. His patronage extends over a radius of fifteen miles, and he keeps an automobile to help him cover long journeys in good time. By 1900 Dr. Kohler's work had become so heavy that he took A. H. Schmoyer as a student, and the latter, after attending veterinary school for three winters and graduating, has since continued with him as assistant. Dr. Kohler is a prominent member of the State Veterinary Association, served two terms as treasurer of that body, and in 1906 was elected president, to which office he was re-elected in 1907.

Dr. Kohler is a man respected for his intelligence and high principles, and he has been called into the public service in several capacities. For three years he was a member of the school board, and in the spring of 1906 was elected chief burgess of Boyertown, during his administration of that office rendering valuable service to the town. The terrible theatre catastrophe at Boyertown, on Jan. 13, 1908, proved his mettle. Dr. Kohler at once appointed a permanent relief committee of ten men, with Irwin T. Ehst as chairman, and the work they accomplished won such high commendation from the general public and the press of the county that the universal approval of their services was a tribute to Dr. Kohler's judgment as well as to the devotion of the committeemen. He displayed executive ability and character that stamped him as a competent man for the chief executive office of the city. He is a Democrat in political sentiment.

On June 8, 1893, Dr. Kohler married Mary E. Dietrich, daughter of Daniel W. and Sallie (Merkel) Dietrich, of Greenwich township, and they have had three children, namely: Lawrence D., Daniel D. and Helen D. The Doctor and his family are members of the Lutheran Church at Boyertown. They reside in their own home in Boyertown, a comfortable residence at No. 42 West Reading avenue.

JEREMIAH TREXLER FRITCH, chief burgess of Kutztown and proprietor of the "Black Horse Hotel," and successful merchant, was born in that town, March 13, 1859, son of Allen W. and Amanda (Jackson) Fritch.

John Fritch, the emigrant ancestor of the family, came from Germany and settled in Longswamp township at a place known as Fritch's Mill, which has been in the possession of the family to the present time.

George Fritch, son of John and grandfather of Jeremiah T., was a well-known farmer near Kutztown. He was twice married. His first wife was Maria Ann Swartz, by whom he had children: Eli, John, George, Nathan, Tryon, Anne and Esther, most of whom lived in Longswamp township, where their descendants are to be found at this day. Mr. Fritch's second wife was Christina Mathias, widow of Jacob Mathias, and one child, Allen W., was born to this union.

Allen W. Fritch, for many years an educator in the public schools and a well-known musician and choir leader, is at present supervisor of this borough. For the past nine years he has been a member of the school board, and for a number of years treasurer thereof. He married Amanda Jackson, daughter of Elias Jackson, one of the founders of the old Kutztown foundry, located at Walnut street and Kutz avenue, and to this union there were born: Jeremiah Trexler; and Robert, a barber at Pittsburg.

Jeremiah Trexler Fritch received his education in the public schools and at the Keystone State Normal School, and at the age of sixteen years learned the printer's trade. He then formed a partnership with Solon A. Wanner, under the firm name of Wanner & Fritch, and they conducted a successful business for three years in the job printing line. At the end of this time the partners sold out to Isaac F. Christ, who continued the business very successfully for many years. At present Mr. Fritch is engaged in business on Main street, Kutztown, where he has been highly successful in the sale of musical instruments (especially phonographs) and music. He is also proprietor of the "Black Horse Hotel" and barber shop. In politics Mr. Fritch is a stalwart Republican and an active worker in the ranks of that party. To show his popularity it is only necessary to state that he was elected chief burgess of Kutztown in the spring of 1906, by a large majority over his Democratic opponent, when it is a well-known fact that the borough is regularly Democratic, about three to one.

Mr. Fritch is a member of Adonai Castle, No. 70, K. G. E., and of Aerie No. 839, F. O. E., Kutztown, being active in both orders.

On May 21, 1880, Mr. Fritch married Ellen Schlegel, daughter of Benjamin and Lovina (Smith) Schlegel, and to this union the following children were born: Gertrude m. Harvey Boger; Oneida m. Claude Gockenback; Allen W., Mamie and Wirt live at home; and George B. died in infancy.

JOHN R. PAINTER (deceased), who for many years was one of Reading's prominent business factors, was born Jan. 19, 1823, in Chester county, Pa., son of John and Margaret (Thomas) Painter. The parents of Mr. Painter were also natives of Chester county, but they were of Scotch-Irish ancestry. The father was a farmer in moderate circumstances, who lived and reared his family in the neighborhood of St. Mary's, where he gave them every advantage in his power as to schooling and position in life. His children were: Frederick and Ezekiel (both deceased), Eliza (m. John Lewis), Sarah (now deceased, m. Thomas Bull), Annie (m. a Mr. McCord), Rachel (m. Lot Evans, and died at the age of ninety years), Margaret (m. John Painter), Catherine (m. John Kehr) and John R.

John R. Painter was still a child when his father died, in 1829, and only a youth when his mother passed away ten years later. His education was obtained in the common schools of Chester county and he supported himself by working for neighboring farmers until he was eighteen years of age, when he secured a position with the Isabella Furnace Company. There he learned the molder's trade, which he followed at Spring City, Philadelphia and Linfield, until 1867, when he was considered a competent and experienced man in this business. In the year mentioned Mr. Painter came to Reading, where in association with Jesse Orr, Jasper Sheeler, Elijah Bull, Henry Posey,

William Schick, Peter Nagle and others, he organized the Reading Stove Works. This firm did an immense business from the start, each member being skilled in the various departments of the industry. The plant was enlarged from time to time to meet increased demands and it became one of the largest stove foundries in Pennsylvania. Their trade connections covered the whole world. This company had the reputation of never having discharged a man who did his duty, and a remarkable fact is that workers were so anxious to enter the employ of this just firm that applications would be filed years ahead, many waiting for mechanics to die to fill their places.

In this company Mr. Painter's personality largely entered. While he possessed business keenness and executive ability of a high order, his character was that of a man of high principles and no man could ever rightfully accuse him of injustice. His charities increased in proportion to his means, and as he was wholly without ostentation, the world will never know the extent of his good deeds. His relations with his associates and with his army of employes were cordial and friendly and the latter knew that in him they always had a friend. Personally his tastes were simple and his happiest hours were those spent at his own fireside. His lamented death took place Dec. 12, 1883, after an illness of two years duration. His afflictions were borne with patience and forbearance. The death of such a man as John R. Painter was indeed a loss to Reading, where his memory will long remain green.

Mr. Painter was married (first) to Rebecca Raser, a native of Montgomery county, Pa., and they had seven children, namely: Clara m. George Halderman, of Reading; Enoch T. is of the firm of Prizer & Painter, stove manufacturers; John is deceased; Brooks resides at Reading; Hannah, deceased, m. William Rhoda; Lewis lives in Chicago, Ill.; and Margaret m. Howard Ernold. Mr. Painter's first wife died in 1865, and in 1869 he m. (second) Rebecca Haller Grubb, widow of Henry Grubb, of Chester county, by whom she had one child, Ella, who m. Charles F. Paul, and they have three children—Dorothy G., Mary R. and Emily S. One child was born to her marriage with John R. Painter, Lydia, wife of Prof. Ambrose Cort, of New York City.

Mrs. Painter resides at No. 454 Douglass street. When a young girl she united with the Reformed Church, and she has been prominently identified with the work of that denomination to the present time. Mr. Painter was a member of St. Peter's M. E. Church. In politics he was a Republican. He was a charter member of Welcome Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Philadelphia.

JONATHAN R. SELTZER, a prosperous hardware merchant at Philadelphia for fifty years, was born in Lower Heidelberg township, near Sinking Spring, in Berks county, on May 12, 1834. He was educated in the township schools and reared on a farm until he was fourteen years of age, when he went to Philadelphia and entered the hardware store of Conrad & Roberts, at No. 123 North Third street, as a clerk, and he continued with them for nine years. Having in this time become thoroughly acquainted with the business, he then (1857) formed a partnership with Jacob K. Smith and Reuben K. Smith, and under the name of Smith, Seltzer & Co., at No. 409 North Third street, traded successfully until 1879, when they removed their store to the northeast corner of Sixth and Market streets, where they continued until 1880. The partnership was then dissolved by the retirement of Mr. Smith and his son and the substitution of Lewis W. Klahr (Mr. Seltzer's nephew, also from Berks county), and under the name of the Seltzer-Klahr Company they have conducted a very successful business until the present time, at the same location, and their trade has been developed to extend throughout Pennsylvania and the adjoining States.

In 1858 Mr. Seltzer was married to Eveline R. Hines, daughter of Albert Hines, of Philadelphia, and by her he had three children: Albert died single; William Irwin married Ann Foresman, of Williamsport; and Evelyn married Edward B. Wolford, manufacturer at Philadelphia. His wife dying in 1879, he in 1890 married Mrs. Julia C. Wilford, daughter of Dr. Martin Killian (who emigrated from Germany in 1845 and settled at Hamburg, Berks county, where he practised his profession for several years).

William Seltzer, his father, was born in 1794 at Womelsdorf, and brought up there. When a young man he engaged in farming in Lower Heidelberg township, along the Cacoosing creek, near Sinking Spring, and he continued at that calling until his decease in 1872. He was married to Catharine Ruth, daughter of Daniel Ruth and Elizabeth Miller his wife, by whom he had eleven children, those besides Jonathan R. being: Mary Ann married Peter Klahr; Sarah married Jacob B. Krick; Hannah married William Bower; Daniel married Mary Krick; Susan A. married Benjamin Saylor; Elizabeth died single; four others died in their youth.

His grandfather was Jacob Seltzer, born in 1764 at Womelsdorf, where he carried on farming and kept hotel until his decease in 1825. He was married to Catharine Kauffman, daughter of Jacob, of Oley; she was born in 1766 and died in 1842; and by her he had eight children: William, above; John married Mary Van Reed; Daniel married a Weiser; David married Eliza O. Sheetz and moved to Ohio; Jacob married a Hassinger; Michael married Catherine Hain; Anna remained single; and Elizabeth married George See.

His great-grandfather was Jacob Seltzer, who emigrated in 1752 from the Upper Rhein, near Coblentz, in the vicinity of the famous "Seltzer Springs" in Germany, where he was born in 1732. He settled in Heidelberg township (where afterward Womelsdorf was laid out) and became a naturalized citizen in 1765. Several years before (1762) he established a hotel in the village, which has been known until the present time as the "Seltzer House." He died in 1788. He was married to Maria Catharine Hiester, of Bern township; she was born in 1735 and died in 1817. By her he had six children: Jacob, above; Michael, who enlisted in the Revolution while still a boy and died of fever shortly before the end of his term of service; Elizabeth, who married Dr. Michael Tryon, a prominent physician of Tulpehocken; Mary, who married Jacob Spang, a prominent iron-master of Oley; Catharine, married to David Dewees; and a daughter who married Christopher Reed.

DR. MILTON L. FRITCH, a leading medical practitioner of Virginville, Richmond township, Berks Co., Pa., was born July 9, 1845, in Longswamp township, son of Horatio N. and Lavina (Geist) Fritch.

Henry Fritch, grandfather of the Doctor, died in 1851, when about sixty-seven years of age. He married Mary Schwartz, who lived to the ripe old age of ninety-two years. Their children were: Henry; John; Sallie (of Allentown); Hannah; Judith (m. Charles Shroeder of Macungie, Lehigh county); Elizabeth, deceased (m. Frank Schlouch, a landlord of Siegersville); Phoebe (m. Augustus Dunkle, a retired landlord of Allentown); Horatio N.; and William.

Horatio N. Fritch, father of Dr. Milton L., was born in 1819, and died in 1858. He was engaged in operating a general merchandise store this side of Shamrock, in Longswamp township, the place being known as Trexler's store. In 1853 he removed to Reading, where he conducted a successful mercantile business until his death. On Nov. 27, 1842, Mr. Fritch married Lavina Geist, daughter of Benjamin Geist, of Longswamp township, and to this union were born: Amanda, deceased; Dr. M. L.; Louisa (m. Dr. M. S. Richards, of Rothrocksville); Samuel, a traveling salesman of Philadelphia; Horatio, Jr., a clerk at Allentown; Phoebe (m. Milton Schwoyer, a farmer of Lehigh county); and James, a tanner at Reading. Mrs. Lavina Fritch, who is now in her eightieth year, resides with her daughter, Mrs. Dr. Richards.

Jonathan K. Seltzer

Dr. Milton L. Fritch was reared on the farm in his native township, and received his early education in the public schools there. He later attended Prof. D. B. Brunner's Academy in Reading, and the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, after which he taught school in Longswamp township for three terms. In 1867 he went into the Court House in Reading as clerk of the Orphan's Court, a position which was offered to him unsolicited, and after he had served in that position for one year, ex-Judge Heidenreich, who was then serving as city treasurer, requested Mr. Fritch to become one of the city's clerks, in which capacity Mr. Fritch served most acceptably. In the spring of 1869 he commenced to read medicine with Dr. M. S. Richards, of Rothrocksville, and subsequently attended lectures in Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia, graduating with the class of 1871, after which he located in Virginville, which was then in its infancy. He commenced his professional career among strangers, but soon became known as a most successful practitioner, and his gentlemanly bearing, his industrious habits and his skill as a physician made him one of the town's most popular citizens.

On Feb. 24, 1876, Dr. Fritch married Miss Mary Lesher, daughter of Samuel and Floranda (Kroninger) Lesher, and to this union were born these children: Rev. George W., the well-known Lutheran divine, located at Sunbury, Northumberland county, m. Ellen Smith, and has one daughter, Florence; William L. is a clerk at Blandon; Samuel J. is a teacher at the Diamond Business College, Philadelphia; and Florence died in infancy. Dr. Fritch has served Richmond township as school director for six years, and has been frequently a delegate to county conventions of the Democratic party. He has been a member of the Lutheran Church for the past thirty years. He belongs to the P. O. S. of A. of Virginville; and to Perry Lodge, I. O. O. F.

GEORGE J. ECKERT, one of the most useful, progressive and patriotic citizens of Reading, where he was at the head of a large brick manufactory, died Feb. 10, 1900, and was buried in the Charles Evans cemetery. He was a man of strong personality, sound judgment and sterling integrity, and he took an active part in public affairs.

Philip Eckert, grandfather of George J., was born June 18, 1756, and died Sept. 10, 1828. His wife, Lydia Beck, was born June 17, 1762. Their children were: George, born Sept. 9, 1782; Mary, 1784; Susanna, 1785; Catherine, 1788; Peter, 1790; Sarah, 1792; Margaret, 1794; Elizabeth, 1795; Catherine (2), 1799; and Hannah, 1803.

George Eckert, son of Philip, was born near Schaefferstown, Lebanon county, Sept. 9, 1782, and died Jan. 19, 1854. On Jan. 26, 1809, he married Sarah Resley, born Dec. 16, 1787, died Jan. 12, 1879, daughter of Rudolph Resley, of Lebanon county. Their children were: Catherine, born 1809; Elizabeth, 1811; Mary, 1813; George, 1815; Cyrus, 1817; Philip, 1820; William, 1822; Rudolph, 1825; George John, 1827; and Aaron T., 1830.

George John Eckert, son of George, was born Feb. 14, 1827, in Lebanon county. He acquired his education in the public schools of Lebanon, and in Marshall College, Mercersburg, graduating from the latter institution in the fall of 1852. He came at once to Reading, and having determined upon a professional career, placed himself under the instruction of the Hon. William Strong, the well-known lawyer, and he was admitted to the Bar of Berks county April 28, 1855. Until 1865 he labored faithfully at his profession, but it was not congenial, and he abandoned his practice to devote his entire time to his fire brick factory, which he had established in 1863. This he enlarged and extended until it became one of the important industries of the city, with a high reputation for turning out a first class product.

Mr. Eckert was a very successful man, but in the midst of his wide personal interests he found time to take an active and intelligent interest in the affairs of his town and country. During the Civil war he was instrumental in raising and equipping troops, and when Pennsylvania was invaded he shouldered a musket himself, being in the service ninety days. On July 6, 1863, he was commissioned a second lieutenant of Company C, 42d P. V. I. As a stalwart Republican he did his party great service. In 1863 he was a delegate to the State convention at Pittsburg; and in 1868 to the National Convention at Chicago. He was a member of the select council of Reading from 1866 to 1869, and of the common council from 1876 to 1878. Mr. Eckert was one of the promoters of the Union Bank of Reading, and for three years was one of its directors. His religious connection was with the First Reformed Congregation of Reading, which he served a long time as trustee, and he was chairman of the building committee when the church was remodeled in 1874-1875.

On Nov. 26, 1857, Mr. Eckert was married to Rebecca Gerhard, born March 28, 1838, daughter of Isaac M. Gerhard, and his wife, Catherine (Capp). Isaac M. Gerhard was the owner of three large farms in Lebanon county, and one in Berks, and he is buried at Newmanstown; his children were: Elizabeth (died unmarried), Rebecca, Katie (wife of George Zimmerman), Mary Ann (died in childhood), and Emma (m. to Nicholas Hunter, of Sheridan, Pa.). To Mr. and Mrs. George J. Eckert were born the following children: Isaac G. m. Elizabeth Smith, and lives at Drifton, Pa.; Rudolph R. is employed by the George W. Alexander Hat Company of West Reading; Mintie S. and Emma R. are at home; George m. Amy Koch, and lives at Philadelphia, where he is employed by the John B. Stetson Co., hat manufacturers; William died at the age of five; and Ellen is a skilled artist, whose pen sketch of the old Eckert Fire Brick factory deserves to rank as a masterpiece. In 1876 Mr. Eckert erected his beautiful home at West Reading, where his widow, son and daughters now reside. The mansion is modern in every particular, contains twenty-two charming rooms, all tastefully furnished, and it has many relics of the Revolution. Mrs. Eckert has the old "swallow nest" pulpit of the old historic Host Church of Berks county, now (1909) over one hundred and fifty years old. The home is surrounded by several acres of land, on which is a fine garden, vineyard, and all kinds of choice fruit. This is one of the most beautiful places in the county, and Mrs. Eckert and her family are very popular among a wide circle of friends.

RIEGNER.—One of the leading concerns of Reading is the firm of W. D. Mohn & Co., machinists, tool-makers, steam and hot water fitters, plumbers and dealers in plumbers' supplies, in which Robert E. and Austin H. Riegner are partners. They are members of the old and honored family of Riegner, members of which have distinguished themselves in every walk of life.

Conrad Riegner, their great-grandfather, was born July 12, 1788, in New Hanover township, Montgomery Co., Pa., and died Feb. 15, 1847; he was buried at the historic Swamp Church. Conrad Riegner spent his life in agricultural pursuits, owned considerable property, and became a substantial and highly esteemed citizen. He married Catherine Schneider, born May 9, 1786, died May 22, 1854, and to them were born the following children: Solomon, who settled at Sanatogo and died in Pottstown, Pa.; Frederick, who lived and died at Phoenixville, Pa.; Benjamin; Aaron, whose life was spent at Chambersburg, Pa.; Mrs. Samuel Brunner, mother of Dr. Franklin R. Brunner; Mrs. Isaac Baret; Hettie, who married Solomon Stettler, of Topton, Pa.; and Reuben, who lived and died at Pottstown, Pennsylvania.

Benjamin Riegner, grandfather of the Riegner brothers, was born April 16, 1814, in New Hanover township, Montgomery county, and on reaching his majority removed to Boyertown, where he followed blacksmithing until a short time prior to his death. Mr. Riegner was a captain in the State militia of that section of Berks county for fourteen years, was a Democrat in politics, and served as constable of the township for a number of terms. He died May 22, 1869, in the faith of the Evangelical Church and is buried at Boyertown. In 1836 Benjamin Riegner was married to Catherine Worman, born Nov. 27, 1813, in Colebrookdale township, daughter of Joseph Worman, a tanner of Bucks county, Pa. She died June 22, 1871. Nine children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Riegner: Lewis spent his life in Reading; Benneville located in Carlisle, Pa.; Sarah died at the age of four years, two months, thirteen days; Henry died aged nine months, twenty-one days; Elmira married Joshua Gerber, and died in 1868, in her twenty-fifth year; Hiram W. is mentioned below; Catherine married Josiah Knauer, of Chester county, Pa.; Tamma married Rev. David S. Stauffer, the well-known U. E. pastor, who is stationed at Adamstown, Pa.; Amanda married Dr. D. B. Bower, of Boyertown, Pennsylvania.

Hiram W. Riegner was born at Boyertown, Berks county, April 2, 1846, and his boyhood days were spent under the paternal roof. When eighteen years of age he went to learn the tanner's trade with Joseph Trout, near the "Five Mile House" in Cumru township, and this occupation he followed for fourteen years, when he engaged in work at the Mohnton hat factory, remaining there for seven years. Mr. Riegner then became employed with the T. A. Willson Optical Company of Reading, for three years, when he returned to the hatting business, which he has followed to the present time, being now in the employ of the George Hendel firm at Edison (now in the borough of Shillington). In political matters Mr. Riegner is independent, voting rather for the man than the party, and he and his family are consistent members of Zion's United Evangelical Church of Mohnton, where he has been class-leader of the English class for some time. He has been a chorister of the church for the past quarter of a century, and since 1882 has had charge of the primary department of the Sunday-school.

In 1867 Mr. Riegner was united in marriage with Miss Sevilla D. Mohn, born Nov. 16, 1845, daughter of Benjamin A. Mohn, the founder of Mohnton. Two children were born to this union, Robert E. and Austin H.

Robert E. Riegner was born March 17, 1868, at Mohnton, Berks Co., Pa., attended the public schools of his native locality, and at the age of fifteen years started to learn the machinist's trade, being employed for three years with T. A. Willson & Co. He then went to Philadelphia, where he was employed with the National Optical Company for three years, and with the well-known firm of Queen & Co. for fourteen years, having for a long period been in charge of the tool department. Mr. Riegner then returned to his native borough, and in August, 1903, was admitted a member of the firm of W. D. Mohn & Co., where he has since been in charge of the plant as superintendent. He is a skilled mechanic, and thoroughly capable of discharging the duties of his position. The company has a large and constantly increasing trade, particularly in job work and a few specialties of their own, doing a great deal of business with the firm of Queen & Co. of Philadelphia. The plant, located at Carpenter and Cherry streets, is fitted with a sixty-horse-power boiler, and a thirty-horse-power engine. Mr. Riegner took a complete course in mechanical drawing at the Franklin Institute, Philadelphia, graduating therefrom in 1892; he was a member of same during his residence in Philadelphia.

On Feb. 8, 1893, Mr. Riegner was married to Miss Frances Coulter, of Philadelphia, and one child has been born to this union, Roscoe E., who is now attending high school. Mr. Riegner built his present home at Mohnton in 1905. He is a Republican in politics, and a member of the United Evangelical Church, in which he is a teacher in the Sunday-school. He is a charter member of Camp No. 211, P. O. S. of A., of Mohnton, and is also connected with the Modern Woodmen of America, Camp No. 8020.

Austin H. Riegner was born Oct. 4, 1872, in Lewisburg, Union Co., Pa., and when three years of age came to Mohnton, Berks county, with his parents. He attended the public schools of Cumru township, and night school in Philadelphia, and learned the machinist's trade with Orr & Sembower, of Reading, with whom he remained three years. Mr. Riegner then went to Philadelphia, where he was employed by the National Optical Company, and later went to Toledo, Ohio, and Buffalo, N. Y., at which latter city he had charge of the Oliver Dental Manufacturing Company for two years. Mr. Riegner then located in Reading and engaged in the manufacture of special machinery for two years on South Front street. In 1900 he engaged in business with Mr. W. D. Mohn, and in 1902 they removed the plant to its present location, corner of Carpenter and Cherry streets. Mr. Riegner is manager of the plant, and under his able management the business of the firm has been carried on in a very satisfactory manner.

In 1896 Mr. Riegner was married to Miss Estella Walters, daughter of Adolph Walters, of Altoona, Pa., and three children have been born to this union: Dallas W., Marco and Helen L. In politics Mr. Riegner is a Republican. He is a member of Zion's United Evangelical Church, where he teaches a class of young men in the Sunday-school. In 1899 Mr. Riegner was made a Mason in Hiram Lodge, No. 105, of Buffalo, N. Y., was transferred to Chandler Lodge, No. 227, of Reading, Pa., and is also a member of Reading Lodge of Perfection.

In 1896 Mr. Riegner graduated at the Spring Garden Institution of Science and Arts, in the electrical department, at the head of his class, with an average of 100, receiving a medal from ex-Governor Pattison at that school; he also took a complete course in mechanical drawing at the Franklin Institute, Philadelphia.

WILLIAM A. SCOTT was a prominent and extensive carriage manufacturer of Hamburg, Pa. He was born at Port Carbon, Aug. 3, 1840, and he died Dec. 2, 1902.

Robert Scott, son of John Scott, and grandfather of William A., was a direct descendant of one of the oldest families of Scotland. In the "History of the Scotch-Irish in America," the name of Robert Scott figures back as far as 1562, from the same district in Northern Ireland from which this family hail. The grandfather was born Aug. 20, 1764, in Belfast, Ireland, emigrating from that place in 1799, and located in Hamburg, Berks Co., Pa., in 1803 or 1804. On March 10, 1806, he married Catherine Klinger, an emigrant of Germany, born in that country Nov. 10, 1780, who died at Hamburg, March 20, 1855. Robert Scott belonged to the oldest Masonic Lodge of Reading. He brought with him from the land of his nativity a certificate or traveling card of the A. Y. Mason's Lodge of Belfast, Ireland, of which he was a member, recommending him to all good Masons of the world. From all accounts he was accompanied to this country by his cousin Samuel Bell, who located in Reading, Pa., and who left a large posterity. Robert Scott had these children: John W.; Mary Matilda m. Arthur Fesig, and had children—Lizzie, William, Sarah, Mary, Arthur and Ida; Sarah m. (first) Robert Stitzel, had one son, Robert, and m. (second) John Rupp, and had children—John and Sarah Mason; Elizabeth, born in 1810, died three years later.

John W. Scott, father of William A., was born Feb. 25, 1814. He was a merchant of Hamburg for many years, and died Oct. 23, 1892, while his wife, Rebecca Lewars, born June 27, 1815, died June 12, 1895. They had issue, namely: Robert H.; Susan, born in 1838, died in 1882; William Arthur; Charles E.; Henry L.; Walter H.; Hannah E.; and Mary Elizabeth, who died in youth.

When William A. Scott was about ten years old his parents removed to Hamburg, where he was educated in the local schools. He left school at an early age to learn coachmaking in Kutztown, with R. Miller. When the Civil war broke out, Mr. Scott's patriotism caused him to enlist in Company M, 1st Pa. Cav., organized July 20, 1861, at Reading. He was discharged as third sergeant, his regiment serving throughout the war and participating in the fiercest and bloodiest battles of the conflict. The regiment was stationed directly back of the Bloody Angle at Gettysburg, and also participated among others, in the following: Cross Keys, Cedar Mountain, Bull Run, Fredericksburg. After the close of the war Sergeant Scott went home and connected himself with the National Guard. He was elected second lieutenant of Company E, 4th Regt., later becoming adjutant under Major C. F. Seaman. He was in the service of the State for many years, and was unanimously offered the captaincy of the company, but was compelled to refuse on account of ill health.

In 1866 Mr. Scott engaged in the carriage building business on State street, Hamburg, Pa., which he followed successfully until his death in 1902. After his death his son, Samuel F., and James Kemmerer formed a partnership which succeeded him in a well established business.

On Jan. 11, 1869, Mr. Scott m. Emma M. Faust, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth (Derr) Faust. To this union were born children as follows: Mary E., deceased, m. Thomas Dalious; Laura R. is now a popular school teacher of Hamburg; Samuel F. m. Phelephe Reber; Allen F. m. Myra Balthaser; Dr. John C. is a graduate of and Demonstrator in Physiology at the Medico-Chirurgical College and a graduate of the College of Pharmacy, both of Philadelphia, Pa. (he m. Florence M. Fry); Lena M. died in 1900 aged twenty years; Eva Henrietta is a graduate of Oberlin College, Ohio; and Emma Louise is a stenographer for the Consumers Gas Company, Reading.

ANDREW McLEAN FULTON, who passed away Jan. 15, 1902, on his farm near Reading, Pa., was born in Florence, Washington Co., Pa., July 13, 1821, son of Samuel and Jennie (McLean) Fulton. His ancestors were men of influence and renown, his father serving as a color bearer in the war of 1812, and his grandfather came from the vicinity of the Clyde in Scotland and settled in Baltimore, where he laid out Fulton street and built several houses thereon. For six years the grandfather served as a captain in the Revolutionary war. He was in the battles of Long Island and Brandywine, and in one of these, though receiving a wound through the body, stayed with his men. He was also in the battle of Staten Island, and marched from there to White Plains. He is of record in the Indian wars, at the battle of Shamokin receiving a wound in the knee; and in these wars he captured large quantities of furs and booty from the British and Indians.

Samuel Fulton, father of Andrew McLean, married Jennie McLean, a daughter of Andrew McLean. The latter was a son of Lord Steel-McLean, who came to Baltimore from Scotland with Lord Baltimore. He, too, was a captain in the Revolutionary war, and for his great bravery at the storming of Stony Point on the Hudson was awarded a gold medal by Congress, which at his death was given to his namesake, Andrew McLean Fulton.

At the early age of eighteen years Andrew M. Fulton was graduated from Athens College, Athens, Ohio, being valedictorian of his class. A few years afterward he was admitted to the Bar in Ashland, Ohio, where he practised law. Later he was professor of Latin, Greek and Higher Mathematics in the Female Seminary at Memphis, Tenn., where he remained until the Civil war broke out, when he received an appointment as General Quartermaster in the Union army.

Mr. Fulton was twice married, first to Hattie Wasson, of Ashland, Ohio. This union was blessed with two children: William M., a well known contractor who preceded his father in death; and Jennie A., a teacher in Helena, Mont. Four years after the death of his first wife, Mr. Fulton was married (second) to Mary L. R. Schwartz, daughter of Major John Schwartz. By this union there were four children: Elizabeth, Margaret, John and Elmer. Mr. Fulton was a good Christian, a Presbyterian in faith. He had the good will and sincere respect of all who knew him.

HORACE ARCHIBALD YUNDT was born June 15, 1839, in East Earl township, Lancaster county, Pa., son of Henry and Maria M. Yundt.

George Yundt, great-grandfather of Horace A., came to Lancaster county from Switzerland, his native land, in 1749, and located near the village of Ephrata, where he purchased land and engaged in husbandry. He was a Lutheran in religion, and at his death was buried at Bergstrasse, in the Lutheran cemetery.

Andrew Yundt, son of George, was born in Lancaster county, and passed his life there. He was a large landowner and prosperous farmer. He married Barbara Dietrich, and among his children were Allen, Archibald, George and Henry, the latter the father of Horace A. Yundt.

Henry Yundt was born Dec. 1, 1798, on the old homestead. He was reared and educated there, making it his home until he was thirty-eight years old, when he moved to East Earl township, where he died Nov. 29, 1878, at the age of eighty years. He was a cattle dealer and engaged extensively in the business, in the days when the only way of getting stock to market was by driving them. He was engaged in this business for about forty years, and for many years furnished the entire supply for the Pottsville market. For a period of about thirty years he was proprietor of the "Blue Ball" hotel, one of the oldest hotels on the Lancaster pike—at that time a very lively thoroughfare. He was a Whig, and went with that party into the Republican ranks when the new party was formed. He was also postmaster of Blue Ball for over thirty years. He married Maria M. Kinzer, by whom he had a family of fifteen children, five dying when quite young. The ten who grew to adult years were as follows: Anna Margaret, widow of M. R. Witwer; Maria Louisa, widow of Reuben B. Seidel; Henrietta C., wife of B. F. Kinzer; Elizabeth L., widow of Dr. Samuel Welchens; Harriet C., unmarried; Emma, deceased wife of Bodo Otto; Edwin Henry, a retired lawyer of Lancaster county; Horace Archibald; Clarissa A., at home; and Winfield S., deceased, who was a physician of New Holland, Lancaster county.

Horace A. Yundt was educated in the common schools of his township and the New Holland Academy. This schooling was supplemented by a preparatory course at West Chester Academy, Chester county, after which he entered Franklin and Marshall College, at Lancaster, September, 1855, graduating from that institution in July, 1859. The two and a half years following his graduation were spent in Mt. Joy and Paradise academies as instructor in the languages and higher mathematics. Mr. Yundt left this work to enlist for service in the Civil war, in the 2d Pa. Regt. of Emergency Men, when the State was invaded in 1862. He later raised in Lancaster county Company B, 178th Pa. V. I., which he took to Virginia, and which remained there, doing service on garrison duty at Yorktown and Williamsburg, Va., and in the campaign against Richmond in June, 1863. Part of this time he was brigade inspector on the staff of General West, and also served on a general court martial. The company was mustered out in July, 1863. He then located in Reading and began the study of law.

Mr. Yundt entered the office of Judge John Banks, who had formerly been President Judge of the Berks County Courts, and read law under his direction for one year, when he was admitted to the Berks county Bar, Aug. 8, 1864. He has practised in Reading since that time, engaging for a number of years in general practice, but latterly confining himself to office business and to cases in the Orphans' court. During the forty-four years of his practice he has been engaged in many noted cases. His shrewd insight into character and the energetic manner in which he always handled his client's interests built him a reputation as one of the most successful lawyers at the Bar.

Mr. Yundt is a Republican, and, when a younger man, took an active part in politics. In 1878 he was the candidate of his party for President Judge, but owing to the county being strongly Democratic, he was not elected. He has traveled extensively in Europe, having visited the British Isles and nearly every country on the continent, and is an entertaining and instructive companion. He has a rich fund of reminiscences and experiences, and a charming and inimitable manner of relating them, qualities which enhance the known breadth of his legal learning. He has an exceedingly large circle of friends and acquaintances in Reading and Berks county, who delight to testify to the universal esteem in which he is held.

JOHN L. ENDY. Among the older generation of school teachers of Berks county, none has been a greater credit to the profession, or is more favorably known, than John L. Endy, who was born in Oley township, July 7, 1842, son of Benjamin and Catherine (Laucks) Endy.

Jacob Ende, grandfather of John L. Endy, was born July 31, 1778, and died at Friedensburg, Pa., May 19, 1844, where he spent his life as a laborer. He married Catherine Rapp, born Feb. 6, 1769, who died Jan. 7, 1841, the mother of two children: Solomon, who lived at Reading; and Benjamin.

Benjamin Endy was born Nov. 16, 1811, in Oley township, and there spent his life, being engaged in the weaving of linens, coverlets and carpets, a man well known and most highly esteemed in his community. He was married to Catherine Laucks, born March 23, 1816, who survives him, living near Friedensburg, and being well preserved in spite of her ninety-three years. She is a faithful member of the Lutheran Church, as was her husband. Seven children were born to Benjamin and Catherine Endy, namely: John L.; Mary died unmarried; Hannah married Henry Fisher, of Reading; Mahlon makes his home in Pittsburg; Rebecca, deceased, was the wife of Josiah Manwiller; Miss Emma lives with her aged mother; Louisa died at the age of three years.

John L. Endy was reared to agricultural pursuits on the old Laucks homestead, on which he now resides, and his education was obtained in the common schools and Oley Academy. He was licensed to teach in the public schools, in 1860, by Prof. John S. Ermentrout, and his first term as a teacher was spent at Sand Hill schoolhouse in Ruscombmanor township. In the fall of 1861, fired by patriotism, Mr. Endy enlisted in Company K, 93d Pa. V. I., for a term of three years, and later reenlisted in the same regiment, serving therewith until the close of the war, at the end of which he held the rank of sergeant. He took part in all of the engagements of the Army of the Potomac, and throughout his service proved himself a brave and faithful soldier. After his return from the war, Mr. Endy resumed teaching, and has taught school in Oley township for twenty-six consecutive terms, being one of the best-known educators in this section of Berks county. Hundreds of boys and girls who attended school under him, and who have since proved their worth in the world, have reason to remember his wise teachings with gratitude, and he is highly esteemed by all who know him. He is the owner of the old Laucks homestead, a tract of twenty-two acres, as well as one of the old Yoder homesteads, 100 acres in extent, on which he built a new barn in 1907, 40x60 feet, replacing the old structure which had been built in 1832, and which was destroyed by fire in 1907. During the summer months he spends his time in carpet weaving, and in this line has quite an extensive trade.

Prof. Endy and his family are members of Friedens Reformed Church at Oley, where he has been deacon and elder for many years. For a long period he was also active in the Sunday-school, being superintendent for ten years, and now acting in the capacity of assistant superintendent. In political affairs he has been a stanch Republican, and has filled a number of offices of some importance, including that of prison inspector during 1894-95, the only Republican to hold the office of secretary of the prison board up to this time, and committee-man of Oley township for a score of years. He has taken an active interest in public matters more for the public good than for personal gain, and his efforts in behalf of the community have been recognized and appreciated by his fellow-townsmen. In fraternal circles, he is identified with the Ringgold Council, O. U. A. M., No. 23; Minnehaha Lodge No. 154, K. P.; Oley Castle No. 119, K. G. E., all of these being of Oley. He is secretary of the first named, having held the office since 1867, was master of records of the K. G. E. castle for the first ten years of its organization, and is a past officer of all the lodges.

On Sept. 22, 1866, John L. Endy married Sarah Knabb, born March 25, 1843, who died Oct. 13, 1895, daughter of John and Mary Knabb, of Oley township. There were six children born to this union, as follows: Annie m. Darius Angstadt, of Oley township; Ella m. Edward Fegley, of Reading; Thaddeus, formerly a schoolteacher for ten years, and now the driver of Rural Route No. 1, Oley m. Sallie Weiser, and they have three children: Marie, Solis and John; Sallie m. Thomas Freyberger, of Ruscombmanor township; and Misses Nora and Katie live at home, the latter having been a school teacher for the past four years, being located at Oley Academy in 1908.

GEORGE GEIGLEY, a venerable resident of Birdsboro, Berks Co., Pa., where he is managing the well known E. and G. Brooke farm, was born one mile from Fountz's Mill, in Lancaster county, in 1819, son of John and Barbara (Weaver) Geigley.

William Geigley, grandfather of George, came from Germany and settled in Lancaster county, where he followed farming the remainder of his life. He married Mary Landis, and they became the parents of two children: John; and Christina, who died unmarried. Like his father, John Geigley carried on agricultural operations in Lancaster county all of his life, and there his death occurred, as did that of his wife. They were the parents of six children: Eliza, Barbara, Mary, Anna, Amos and George. In religious belief the family were Mennonites.

George Geigley was reared and educated in Lancaster county, and as a youth did much traveling. When but nineteen years of age he made a trip to Baltimore to get groceries, and also traveled from Philadelphia to Pittsburg in an old-fashioned Conestoga wagon. In all he made twenty-five or more trips to Philadelphia from the Conestoga mills. At the age of thirty-five years Mr. Geigley removed to Chester county, and in 1875 he located in Birdsboro, where he has since had charge of the E. and G. Brooke farm.

Mr. Geigley married Sarah Campbell, who died March 4, 1900, aged seventy-seven years, and to this union were born children as follows: John, Charles, Katie, George, Elizabeth and Samuel (m. Sarah Barton and has two children—Hunter and George). Formerly Mr. Geigley belonged to the Knights of Pythias. In political matters he is a Republican, but he has never aspired to public office.

SAMUEL S. SCHULTZ, Justice of the Peace of Hereford township, Berks county, is a member of the Schultz family whose early home was in Berthelsdorf, Saxony, Germany. There lived the earliest known ancestor of the family, Mathias Schultz, born 1612, died 1682. He had a son, Melchior, born 1647, who died 1708, leaving among other children, two sons, Melchior (1680-1734) and Balthaser.

Balthaser Schultz, son of Melchior, was born in 1682, and he died in Saxony, Germany, in 1727. He married Susanna Dieterich, and she with her four children accompanied about forty other followers of Caspar Schwenkfelder to America in 1734. Her children were: George, Susanna, Maria and Barbara.

George Schultz, son of Balthaser and Susanna, was born about Candlemas, in 1710, and he died March 21, 1784. He was a farmer in Upper Hanover township, Montgomery county, Pa., and his descendants are quite numerous in that section. He married Anna Hoffman, daughter of Rev. Balthaser Hoffman, in 1737, and she died January 16, 1796. Their children were: Susanna, Balthaser, Christopher, Ursula, Gregory and Eve.

Balthaser Schultz, son of George and Anna (Hoffman) Schultz, was born April 23, 1744, and he died on his fine farm in Upper Hanover township, on the Hosensack creek, April 12, 1813. This farm in 1879 was owned by his grandson, Reuben Schultz. In 1768 Balthaser Schultz married Anna Yeakel, daughter of Balthaser Yeakel, and she died in 1799. This union was blessed with children as follows: Barbara, George, Andrew, Eve, Matthias, David, Susanna and Rosina.

David Schultz, son of Balthaser and Anna (Yeakel) Schultz, was born November 23, 1779, and he became a farmer, making his home in Upper Hanover township, Montgomery county. In 1807 he married Lydia Yeakel, daughter of Christopher Yeakel, and she died July 5, 1845. He passed away April 7, 1851. They became the parents of three children: Joshua; Reuben; and Rebecca, born 1814, and died 1872.

Rev. Joshua Schultz, son of David and Lydia (Yeakel) Schultz, was born Sept. 11, 1808, and his death occurred March 31, 1891, while in the pulpit of the Schwenkfelder Meeting House at Kraussdale, and his remains were interred at Hosensack Schwenkfelder Meeting House. He was a preacher of force and eloquence, and was a man of deep piety. Like all the Schwenkfelder ministers he preached at Kraussdale, Hosensack and Washington Meeting Houses, and his precepts and example were productive of much good to the community. He was wholly a self-made man, and he became well-to-do, owning two fine farms—the one is now owned by his son Samuel S., who lives above Chapel, the other being in the possession of Benjamin U. Kressley. He built the present set of buildings on the farm where now lives his son, Samuel S. On Feb. 24, 1835, the Rev. Joshua Schultz was married to Anna Schultz (born 1812, died 1871), daughter of Andrew Schultz, Sr., of Washington township. Their children were: Susan, deceased wife of Erwin N. Schultz; Mary, who married Henry K. Urffer, a carpenter and farmer of Hereford township; Manoah S., a farmer on one of the farms in Hereford township; Joshua, born 1851, and died 1852; and Samuel S.

Samuel S. Schultz, son of Rev. Joshua and Anna (Schultz) Schultz, was born near Chapel, April 16, 1852, and was educated in the public schools, which he attended between the ages of eight and sixteen years. His boyhood was passed upon the farm, and he early became familiar with the duties pertaining to a farm. Before he left home he learned the carpenter's trade, and when he was twenty-one the farm was divided into two tracts, the original tract being now in the possession of Manoah Schultz, and the other, upon which the Rev. Joshua erected the buildings, belonging to Squire Samuel S. The latter tract consists of forty-two acres, and here Mr. Schultz has since lived. From 1885 to 1892 he followed the carpenter's trade as assistant and occasionally as foreman, doing considerable jobbing and repairing.

In politics Mr. Schultz is a Republican, and ever since he attained his majority he has taken a keen interest in public affairs. At the age of twenty-one he was licensed to teach by the late Prof. D. B. Brunner, and taught his first term at Schultz school in Hereford township. He taught there four years. In 1884 he was elected school director, an office he filled for three years, when he refused renomination. In 1895 he was elected justice of the peace of his township, and in 1905 was again elected, William H. Sallade, the former incumbent, serving the five years from 1900 to 1905. As justice Mr. Schultz has never had a discharged case; he has never sent a case to court. He was president of the board of trustees of the Chapel Association, a Protestant union church association, the church being located at Chapel. He filled this office ten years, and he was superintendent of the Sunday-school from 1896 to 1907, and in various other ways has given efficient service to his church. Since 1889 he has been teacher of the Bible class.

In 1876 Mr. Schultz was married to Amanda Roberts, daughter of Everhart Roberts. To this marriage have been born six children: Ida, wife of Allen Heistand, of Hereford township; Allen R., of Palmerton, Carbon Co., Pa.; Clara M., an invalid; Mabel L., who married Charles Graber; J. Willis, a namesake of Judge J. Willis Bland, of Reading; and Leo A. Squire Schultz is a man of commanding presence and has a rugged constitution. In the severest winter weather up to the time when he was fifty years old he seldom wore gloves or mittens when out working or driving. He is well-versed with the histories of the families of his township, and has a most retentive memory. His unselfish devotion to his fellowmen, and his ever ready desire to help, have won him a lasting place in the affections of his fellowmen.

CYRUS G. HENRY, who for several years has been engaged as superintendent of No. 2 and No. 3 Furnaces of the E. & G. Brooke Iron Company, is one of the respected citizens of the borough of Birdsboro, where he has lived since boyhood. He was born in 1870 in Richmond township, Berks county, son of James and Louisa (Gauby) Henry, being the eldest of their family of four children. His father is a miller by trade, and followed that occupation until he took a position with the E. & G. Brooke Company.

Cyrus G. Henry attended the schools of Birdsboro, where he was reared, and commenced work as a farm hand. Later he was employed for four years or more as clerk in a general store in Birdsboro, and he has since been with his present employers, in 1895 engaging as bookkeeper with the E. & G. Brooke Company, in the furnace department, and in 1900 he was promoted to his present capacity, in which he has charge of Furnaces No. 2 and No. 3, belonging to the E. & G. Brooke Iron Company. He is progressive and capable, and has proved himself worthy the confidence of his superiors and amply qualified for the duties of his position.

Mr. Henry married Miss Minnie Follweiler, a native of Tamaqua, and they make their home on Mill street, in Birdsboro. Mr. Henry is a prominent member of St. Michael's Episcopal Church, of which he has been organist for the past ten years. In fraternal connection he is an Odd Fellow, belonging to Neversink Lodge, No. 514, of Birdsboro, and he is a member of the Birdsboro Fire Company.

CYRANUS F. BOYER, former burgess of the thriving borough of Fleetwood, is extensively engaged in the manufacture of ice-cream, and is also conducting a first-class restaurant on Main street. He was born Oct. 24, 1862, in Rockland township, son of James Boyer.

Reuben Boyer, grandfather of Cyranus F., was a miner and woodchopper of Ruscombmanor township. He married Esther Miller, and they became the parents of: William, Emeline, James, Levi, Henry, Sarah, Hannah and Isaac.

James Boyer, son of Reuben, like his father, was a miner of Ruscombmanor township, and was killed Oct. 10, 1881, in the caving in of an embankment while at work at the Kutz, Schwoyer & DeLong ore mines of the township in which he resided. He married Mary Frey, daughter of George and Susannah (Reinheimer) Frey, of Ruscombmanor, and they had children: Hettie; Cyranus F.; William O.; Lizzie, who died aged four years; Charles H.; Emma F.; Howard F.; Peter F.; Clara F. and James F.

Soon after his birth Cyranus F. Boyer was taken to Ruscombmanor township by his parents, where he spent his boyhood and school days. When thirteen years old he was hired out on the farm of George S. Schaeffer, in Richmond township, for three succeeding years, and then he worked in the ore mines for two years. At the age of nineteen years he learned the trade of coach making with his uncle, Henry M. Boyer, and later worked at that trade for one year with Thomas Schuler at Alburtis, Lehigh county. On Feb. 10, 1884, Mr. Boyer connected himself with the well known firm of Schaeffer, Merkel & Co., implement dealers of Fleetwood, and in their employ he remained for eight years as a millwright under the supervision of his good friend A. W. Haag of Reading, his term of service with the firm covering a period of fifteen years. At the expiration of that time he established himself in the ice-cream and restaurant business, in which he has since been very successfully engaged, his celebrated ice cream, which is served at all social festivities of the town, being considered of the finest on the market. Mr. Boyer's success in life has been due to his honesty and integrity and his native business ability.

In 1896 Mr. Boyer was first elected to the borough council on the Democratic ticket, and at the expiration of his first term his services merited a re-election. In the spring election of 1906 he was elected chief burgess of the borough of Fleetwood after a most spirited campaign, by the margin of one vote. He was nominated for re-election in the spring of 1909, but under the Act of 1893 was not eligible to succeed himself. He takes a great interest in the welfare of the town, and holds the confidence and esteem of the entire community. Mr. Boyer is a member of St. Paul Union Church of Fleetwood, belonging to the Lutheran denomination. He was a teacher in the Sunday-school, and prior to locating in his own residence on Main street, was for two years assistant superintendent of the Ruscombmanor Sunday-school. He is past chief of Fleetwood Lodge, K. of P.; noble chief of Fleetwood Castle, K. G. E.; and a member of Camp No. 103, P. O. S. of A.

On Aug. 21, 1886, Mr. Boyer was married at Allentown, Lehigh Co., Pa., by the Rev. George F. Spieker, to Miss Bessie W. Boyer, daughter of Levi Boyer, a farmer of near Fleetwood, Richmond township, and to this union were born: Helen E., Grace M., Herbert C. and Frank F.

KAUFFMAN. This very old family of Oley township, Berks county, was founded in this township between 1720 and 1734 by David Kaufman, who came here from Germantown, Pa., where his mother resided. In 1734 he obtained a warrant for land from the Penns for property located in Oley township, Philadelphia, now Berks, county. This warrant bears the date of May 24, 1734, and is for one hundred acres located in the eastern part of the township, and part of this property is still in the possession of the family, being the property of Frank Y. Kaufman. Later David obtained another warrant, under date of July 1, 1740, for 54 acres, 154 perches. This tract adjoined the former one, and part of it is also owned by Frank Y. Kaufman. In addition to this property, David owned 200 acres, which he obtained prior to 1734, and a portion of it is now owned by Ephraim K. Kauffman, and the remainder by Frank Y. Kaufman. All told the holdings of this Kaufman ancestor amounted to 354 acres, which was admitted to be among the very choicest land of the township. Upon this property David erected buildings, since replaced by those more modern, but in their day they were considered models of convenience and elegance. He is buried in a private burying ground upon the premises, and his resting place is marked by a limestone without any inscription. Five generations are buried in that little plot, namely,—David, his son, Jacob; his grandson, Jacob; his great-grandson, Jacob and his great-great-grandson, Jacob. His wife Veronicia, in 1763, with her other children, released the property to her son Jacob. In the release it is stated that she was the widow of David, and therefore it is evident that David died some time prior to 1763. This release is signed by the widow and her children, who were as follows: Annie Yoder, Mary Shenkle, Barbara Lasker, and John, who settled in Maiden-creek township where his descendants still reside. It is evident that David had but two sons, Jacob and John.

Another interesting fact revealed by the records of the township is that in 1758 and 1759 Jacob Kaufman paid heavy taxes in Oley township, his assessment being thirty pounds.

David, the original ancestor of the Oley township branch of the family, had a brother Jacob who died without will, and his mother Anna of Philadelphia county, took out letters of administration in 1732, the letters stating that she was his mother and next of kin. Anna, mother of David and Jacob, made a will in which she bequeathed the grandfather clock to David, and the balance of her estate to all the children of her son David, except David's son John, who was left out.

(II) Jacob Kaufman, son of David, obtained the family estate in 1763, as above stated, purchasing it from the other heirs, and he retained it until his death, residing upon the property and engaging in farming. His wife was a member of the family of Hill, and among their children were: Jacob, John, Nicholas, Peter, Samuel and David.

There is a tradition in the family that two of these sons, David and Nicholas, settled in Union county, Pa., and that Samuel settled in the State of Indiana. It is also believed that a son of the first Jacob located in the then wilds of Texas, where a county, a town, a paper and a post-office bear the family name.

(III) Jacob Kauffman (2) inherited the homestead and followed farming all his life. He was born March 10, 1757, and died April 27, 1843, aged eighty-six years, one month and seventeen days. He is buried on the estate. On Sept. 14, 1807, he married after he was fifty years of age, Susanna Keim, born July 20, 1781, died March 16, 1870, aged eighty-eight years, seven months and twenty-six days. The children born to them were: (1) Jacob (3) inherited a part of the homestead. (2) Isaac inherited the other part. (3) David, born Sept. 14, 1819, died Dec. 7, 1843, aged twenty-four years, three months and three days, and is buried on the homestead; he m. Hannah Reiff, and they had no children. (4) Daniel owned the mill property now owned by Ammon Kauffman, of Oley. (5) Esther m. Daniel Griesemer of Spangsville, Pa. (6) Hannah m. Daniel Levan of Oley. Others died in infancy. Jacob Kaufman (2) was a teamster in the Revolutionary war, taking the oath in 1777.

(IV) Jacob Kauffman (3), son of Jacob (2), was born on a portion of the homestead, March 13, 1813, and died Nov. 14, 1852, aged thirty-nine years, eight months and one day. He was a farmer and veterinary, and his services were in demand throughout his neighborhood. His wife was Margaret Yoder, daughter of William Yoder, of Oley, who lived on an adjoining farm. Four children were born to them: Jacob and Mary died in infancy; Frank Y. and Hiram.

(IV) Isaac Kauffman, son of Jacob (2) and a brother of Jacob (3), also father of Ephraim K., was born on the homestead in 1815, and died in 1880, aged sixty-five years, one month and nineteen days. He engaged in farming all his life, and became the owner of some very valuable property, aggregating 373 acres of the best land in Oley township. He was progressive in his methods, and developed his land. Mr. Kauffman was among the heaviest tax payers in the township. After his death the land was divided among his children, but some of it was purchased by Ephraim K. Kauffman. He was active in church life, and was a member of the Oley Reformed Church where he is buried. He married Lucy A. Knabb, daughter of Daniel H. and Eleanor (Weaver) Knabb, of Oley township. Mrs. Kauffman was born Oct. 25, 1816, and died Dec. 28, 1907, aged ninety-one years, two months and three days. Her mother attained to a still greater age, dying aged ninety-four years, four months and one day, and both are buried at Oley church. Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Kauffman had the following children: Rebecca, of Oley township; Ephraim K.; Miss Susan K., of Oley township; Daniel B., of Oley; Jacob K., a farmer of Amity township; Ellen K., m. to James Rothenberger, a farmer of Oley; Emma A., m. to James E. Snyder, of Oley.

(V) Ephraim K. Kauffman, a substantial farmer of Oley township, was born Aug. 9, 1838, son of Isaac Kauffman. He was born and reared on the Kauffman homestead, where he still resides. His education was obtained in the schools of his neighborhood, and at the Mount Pleasant Seminary at Boyertown, the Freeland Seminary at Collegeville, and the Oley Academy at Friedensburg. He then engaged in farming for his parents, supervising the large farms which his father owned, and since 1865 has supervised the cultivation of some 475 acres of the best agricultural land in Oley township. His own farm consists of 225 acres of excellent farming land. It is fertile, level, well-located and very valuable. This property is a portion of the original Kauffman estate. The residence is in colonial style, spacious and well-built, surrounded by a fine lawn studded with shrubbery, flowers and Norway pines. This house was erected in 1832, as was also the large Swiss barn.

In addition to this valuable farm, Mr. Kauffman owns a valuable farm of 250 acres in Warwick and East Nantmeal townships, Chester Co., Pa., which tract he has rented, although it is stocked with his own cattle. On this farm, in 1904, there was discovered a cannon of the Revolution, weighing 4550 pounds. This he removed to his Oley township home, and it now decorates the front lawn. In addition to this relic, Mr. Kauffman owns two grandfather clocks that came into the Kauffman family from the Weiser and Levan families.

Naturally as the owner of so much valuable realty, Mr. Kauffman is a heavy tax payer of the township. He has other large interests, being one of the original directors of the Keystone National Bank of Reading, which was organized in 1883. He is connected with other organizations, and his private interests are large. Mr. Kauffman is a member of the Oley German Reformed Church, of which he was deacon for some years.

On Sept. 8, 1864, Mr. Kauffman was married to Miss Willi L. DeTurck, born Aug. 21, 1843, a daughter of Daniel and Willi (Levan) DeTurck. She died Dec. 8, 1904, aged sixty-one years. Two children were born to this union: Ella K. and John N. Of these Ella K. married a Mr. Sassaman and has one daughter, Mabel K., now a student in the Womans College, at Frederick, Md. Mrs. Sassaman resides with her father, and is a charming, accomplished woman.

(VI) John N. Kaufman, son of Ephraim K., was born Sept. 26, 1869, on the homestead. He was engaged in a milling and lumber business at Fleetwood where he had been for a number of years. He then entered the service of the Metal Body Company, of Fleetwood, where he did well. On April 1, 1909, the firm of Kaufman & Schaeffer, of Fleetwood, was formed, he being the senior member. They deal in flour, feed, grain and coal. John N. Kaufman married Annie V. Schaeffer, daughter of Joel Schaeffer, of Fleetwood, Pa., and they have two children, Joel and Catherine Willi.

(V) Frank Y. Kaufman, son of Jacob (3), was born on the original homestead, March 12, 1847. His father died when he was only six years old, and so he was brought up in the home of his grandfather, William Yoder, and that of his maternal uncle George S. Yoder. Being in ill health in his youth his early education was neglected, but he later made up this deficiency by attending the Oley Academy, walking from Pleasantville to Friedensburg, a distance of three miles twice a day. Later he went to the normal school, leaving it in 1866. While living with his mother at Friedensburg he worked upon the farm, and he now owns part of the original homestead, his tract consisting of 124 acres of the best land in Oley township. He resides on Main street, Friedensburg, in a handsome colonial mansion that was built in 1832.

Mr. Kaufman is a trustee of the Oley Academy, and has been for many years. He is a director of the Manatawny Fire Insurance Company; vice-president of the Oley Fire Company, that was organized in 1899. Mr. Kaufman has clerked at many sales, thus serving his community since 1875. In politics Mr. Kaufman is a Democrat. Six times has he been returned to the office of justice of the peace, and so general has been the satisfaction with his decisions that only once did he meet with any opposition. Fraternally he is a member of Minnehaha Lodge, No. 154, K. of P., of Friedensburg, and he is the only charter member now living of this lodge which was organized in 1869. For more than a quarter of a century he has acted as its treasurer.

In 1870 Mr. Kaufman married Hannah Clouser, daughter of Daniel and Susanna (Brumbach) Clouser. They have children as follows: Sallie lives with the family of Edward Hultsheiser, a banker at Bernardsville, N. J.; Emily is a dressmaker residing at home; Elizabeth, a graduate of the training school for nurses of the University of Pennsylvania, married Charles O. Kruger, of Abington, Montgomery Co., Pa.; Rev. David, a Lutheran clergyman at Emaus, Pa., has a son, David; Rebecca died in 1898 at Reading while taking a course to fit her as a trained nurse; Rev. Roger, a Lutheran clergyman at Aurora, Ill., is a missionary and built a church in 1907; Mary is a dressmaker and resides at home.

Mr. Kaufman spells his name with but one "f" because he claims that it is the original way of spelling it, basing his claims upon family documents. One is one signed in good, plain English by the original David with but one "f" and another by the first Jacob signed the same way. Other members of the family use the two "f" way of spelling, but either way they all trace back to the original David and his sons, and all are worthy to bear the name of those sturdy pioneers who not only amassed fortunes, but who raised a high standard of living and set examples of honorable dealing which have come down to their descendants of this generation, stimulating them to further effort.

CHARLES E. KEPNER, assistant manager in the office of the Adams Express Company at Reading, is one of the stirring young business men of the city. Though not a native son, he is a product of Reading, having come to the city at four years of age.

His grandfather, Bernard Kepner, was prominent in the manufacturing world, having during a long lifetime been proprietor of a shoe factory at Orwigsburg, where he died at the advanced age of eighty-six years.

Samuel Kepner, son of Bernard and father of Charles E., was during his life a hotel-keeper at different points. During the Civil war he served in Company E, 194th Pa. V. I. He died at Reading in 1895, in his fifty-third year. His wife was Elmira Goodhart, daughter of George Goodhart, of Reading, now deceased. There were but two children born to this marriage: Ivanora, now deceased; and Charles E.

Charles E. Kepner was born in Catawissa, Pa., Aug. 16, 1874. His parents removed to Reading in 1878, so that he passed his school life in the public schools of this city. He later took a course at Brunner's business college, and then began his business career as a clerk in a drug store. After two years he secured a position with the Adams Express Company, where he has since continued, the high character of his services being recognized by his advancement to the position of assistant manager.

Mr. Kepner married Nov. 30, 1893, Miss Anna M. Kershner, daughter of Franklin P. Kershner, of Reading, now deceased. In the Kepner home there are six children: Edward LeRoy, Samuel Franklin, James George, Charles Percival, Elmira Ivanora and Leah Mildred.

The political preference of Mr. Kepner lies with the Republican party, though the part he takes in politics consists largely in the casting of his ballot. He is a consistent member of Trinity Lutheran Church. Owing to the fact that Mr. Kepner's father was a soldier in the war of the Rebellion he takes more than a passing interest in patriotic organizations, and is an ardent member of the Sons of Veterans, belonging to Company D of the First Regiment, Sons of Veterans Reserves. He is a man of sterling integrity, and his mind is keenly alert to the possibilities of life.

WILLIAM K. ADAM, a representative agriculturist and highly esteemed citizen of Lower Alsace township, who owns and operates the old Adam homestead near Antietam Lake, was born on the old home place May 20, 1844, son of William and Catherine (Kline) Adam.

William Adam, grandfather of William K., lived in Alsace township, near Antietam Lake, and was an agriculturist, and the original owner of the Adam property. He married a Miss Garrett, and they had the following children: Catherine m. a Mr. Endy, resided in Heidelberg township, near Blue Marsh; Rebecca m. Samuel Fick, an agriculturist of McKnight's Gap; John, a stone mason and small farmer of Alsace township, m. a Miss Koller; Jacob, also a stone mason of Lauderbach's Springs, m. Maria Koller; Hannah m. Peter Rothenberger, a farmer of Muhlenberg township; Maria m. John Rothenberger, also an agriculturist of Muhlenberg township; William; Hannah m. Jere Koller, a huckster of Hamburg, Pa.; and Samuel, a forgeman of Berger's Forge, m. a Miss Wentzele.

William Adam, father of William K., was born May 7, 1807, at the old homestead at Antietam, and was reared and educated in that locality. He later learned the trade of mason, which he followed in connection with farming the old homestead until his death. He married Catherine Kline, daughter of Henry and Margaret (Schmehl) Kline, and they had the following children: Mary m. Michael Miller (who died in Reading many years ago), resides in Reading, and has had fourteen children— Amos, John, Daniel, Irwin, Frank, Aaron, Adam, Harry, Thomas, Kate, Mayme and three deceased; Rebecca m. John Seidel, a blacksmith of Alsace township, and has four children—Henry, Mary, John and Annie; Israel, of Boyertown, m. Susan Hartman, daughter of Abraham Hartman, and they have six children—Albert, William, Abner, Charles, Edwin and Sallie; Lena m. John Wanner, a miller of near Stony Creek Mills, and has six children—William, Martin, Katie, Hannah, John and Thomas; Catherine m. Peter Wanner, also a miller and farmer of near Stony Creek Mills, and has six children—Ella, Katie, Hannah, Peter and Nora and Dora (the latter two of whom are twins); William K.; James m. Amanda Seidel, daughter of Jacob and Amelia Seidel, and has children—Charles, James, William, Howard, Frank, Adam, Mayme, Amelia, Sarah, Catherine and Lillian; and Rose m. John Miller, son of William and Mary (Boone) Miller, a driver for Lerch & Co., hardware merchants of Reading, and has children—Katie, Nora, Mayme, Rose, Stella, Esther, William and Howard (deceased).

William K. Adam was reared and educated in his native township, and was trained to agricultural pursuits, assisting his father, after whose death he purchased the homestead farm. On May 30, 1868, he married Mary Seidel, daughter of Solomon and Mina (Wilhelmina) (Egelman) Seidel, and to this union there have been born eight children, six of whom survive: Ida m. Jacob Longendorfer, a brewer of Tremont, Schuylkill county, and has children —Ruth, Esther and William; Llewellyn, who assists his father on the farm, m. a daughter of Jacob and Emmeretta (Shildt) Wentzle, and has two children—Jacob and Mary; Edward S., a molder of Reading, m. Ida, daughter of Samuel Nine, and they have had five children, Florence, Dorothy, Ruth, Earl and Paul (deceased); Emma m. David Crum, son of Jacob and Elizabeth (Lutz) Crum, an employe of the Gravity R. R., and has one child, Arthur; Catherine, who resides at home, is the widow of Albert Schorr (who was killed in an automobile wreck in October, 1906), and has had four children—Helen, Armond (deceased), Antoinette and Eugenie; and William, of Lower Alsace township, m. Ella Cunius, and has two children—Edna and Edith.

Mr. Adam is a Democrat in politics and has taken an active part in township affairs, having served as auditor, school director, delegate to county conventions at various times, and being now a candidate for the office of county commissioner. He and his family attend the Reformed Church.

G. SAM HANTSCH, a well-known cigar dealer of Reading, Pa., whose place of business is located at No. 521 Penn street, was born in 1858, on Lemon street, Reading, son of George W. and Harriet (Hagy) Hantsch.

George W. Hantsch, who followed cigar making until his retirement in 1890, died in 1902, aged about eighty years, he and his wife being the parents of these children: Philip m. Rebecca Cutler, and had four children—Elizabeth, Effie, Estella and Mary; Warren, of New York, m. a Miss Williams, of Manayunk, Pa., and had four children —Etta, Emma, Marion and Lavollette; Milton died single; and G. Sam.

G. Sam Hantsch, after receiving his education in the public schools, engaged with his father in cigar making, having made this his life work. He opened up his present stand and is here extensively engaged in manufacturing numerous brands of well-known cigars, for which he finds a ready market in Reading and the surrounding country. In addition, there is probably no better judge of leaf tobacco in the State of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Hantsch married Julia Rhein, daughter of Jacob Rhein, and she died in 1903, the mother of Jennie, Bessie, Howard, Sam, Jr., and Edwin. Mr. Hantsch married (second) in 1904, Agnes Kauterman, daughter of Benj. Kauterman. Mr. Hantsch is a good business man, is public-spirited and a good citizen, and possesses those qualities of character that draw to him many warm friends. He is highly respected in the community in which he has lived for so many years.

JOHN W. SLIPP, one of the most active citizens of Birdsboro at the present day, prominent in business circles, in fraternal affairs, in the local civil government and in the development of the borough generally, has resided there for the past twenty-five years. His principal business interests during this period have been centered in the lumber and hardware trade, but in recent years he has also done considerable in local real estate dealing, in which connection he has been instrumental in enlarging and building up the borough.

Mr. Slipp is a native of Chester county, Pa., born in 1856, son of Daniel and Mary (Houck) Slipp. He was reared there, and received his education in the public schools, and upon commencing work learned the carpenter's trade, which he continued to follow in all for fifteen years. In 1882 he came to Birdsboro, where he has ever since made his home. For the first eight years or so after his removal to the borough he worked at his old trade, in 1891 commencing what has since developed into a profitable lumber business. He began so modestly in this line that he delivered his first orders for lumber with a wheelbarrow, but his trade increased steadily, and his lumber yard is now well stocked and the center of a thriving business. He also carried on a flour and feed business for two years, at the end of that time selling out of that line and engaging in the hardware trade, in which he has since continued. His business in this line has become quite extensive, proving an excellent adjunct to the sale of lumber, especially among builders. Mr. Slipp also acts as agent for several manufacturing concerns. Besides attending to all these interests he has engaged quite extensively in the real estate business and building. In association with several other men he opened up the addition to Birdsboro known as Wayne Heights, one of the most attractive parts of the borough, a credit to its projectors and to the town of which it forms a part. Mr. Slipp has served the community in various public offices, having been a member of the borough council, assessor, judge of elections and county commissioner, to which latter position he was elected in 1900, serving one term. He is a Republican in political sentiment.

In 1902 Mr. Slipp was raised a Mason in Birdsboro Lodge, F. & A. M., and he has since attained the thirty-second degree, belonging to Philadelphia Consistory; he is a member of Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. He also affiliates with the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, as a member of Neversink Lodge, No. 514, of Birdsboro, and with the Knights of the Golden Eagle at Birdsboro; and he is a charter member of the Friendship Fire Company.

In 1886 Mr. Slipp was married to Annie Smith, and they have had five children, namely: May, Blaine, Viola, Florence and a son who died in infancy. The family are Baptists in religious connection.

JOHN J. RUTH. Among the representative citizens of Cumru township, Berks county, none is more worthy of mention than John J. Ruth, who conducts the leading general store of Millmont. He was born Sept. 19, 1853, in Tulpehocken township, Berks county, son of John L Ruth.

Jacob Ruth, grandfather of John J., was a leading agriculturist and highly esteemed citizen of Heidelberg township, where all of his life was spent, and where his wife also died. They were the parents of: Samuel, Lewis, Mrs. Charles Rick, Mrs. Benjamin Loose, and John L.

John L. Ruth was born in Heidelberg township, and early in life engaged in farming, being also interested in a hotel business for many years. He died in Reading, at the age of eighty-seven years, and his wife died when eighty-four years old, and both were interred in the Charles Evans cemetery. Their children were: Alfred, Cyrus, James and Adams, deceased; John J.; George, a blacksmith of Reading; and Morris, of Millmont; Priscilla, wife of William Keller, of Centre Hall, Centre Co., Pa.; Eliza, wife of Daniel Spatz, of Missouri; Ellen, deceased wife of William Goodhard, of Exeter township; and Mrs. Richard Adams, of Farmington, Missouri.

John J. Ruth attended the public schools of Tulpehocken township and the City of Reading, and as a boy engaged in farm work, later learning the blacksmith's trade, which he followed for a period of four years. His first business venture was in the tobacco and confectionery trade, at Reading, where he successfully continued for seven years, and in January, 1902, he came to Millmont and established his present business, which has grown to large proportions. Mr. Ruth carries a full line of flour, feed, groceries and notions, and in these commodities he has become the leading dealer of this section.

Mr. Ruth was married to Miss Lillie Sutton, who died in 1892, the mother of one child, Rosie (m. Jacob Knuckles, of Missouri, and has three children). In political matters Mr. Ruth is independent. He attends St. John's Reformed Church.

JOHN S. KLINE, one of the substantial agriculturists of Berks county, Pa., now living retired on his magnificent farm of 188¼ acres in Heidelberg township, was born March 11, 1836, in Windsor township, this county, son of Daniel and Elizabeth (Sunday) Kline.

Philip Kline, grandfather of John S., was a farmer and lived in the vicinity of Hamburg. He was the father of children as follows: Daniel, Philip, Peter, John, Samuel, Solomon, Polly (who died unmarried) and Mrs. Peter Miller (of Hamburg, Pennsylvania).

Daniel Kline, son of Philip, was born July 4, 1804, near Hamburg and died of palsy March 24, 1868, aged sixty-three years, eight months, twenty days. He was a farmer, and in March, 1839, moved from Hamburg to Wintersville, to a farm formerly owned by Conrad Weiser. He owned a farm of 207½ acres, on which he built a barn in 1848, a hay barn 38 x 55 feet in 1863, remodeled the house and greatly improved it in every way. He retired in the spring of 1868, and a few weeks later died, and was buried at Rehrersburg, at Union Church, of which he was deacon, trustee and elder for many years, and which church he helped to erect and toward which he was a liberal supporter. He was widely known and highly esteemed. He married Elizabeth Sunday, who died April 17, 1900, aged eighty-nine years, six months, fifteen days, daughter of John Sunday, and to them were born the following children: Mary m. Lamia Webber, of Tulpehocken; Annie m. Nathan Frantz, of Tulpehocken township; Alexander m. Sarah Beshore, and died in 1864, soon after his marriage; John S.; Eliza died unmarried; Susanna m. Levi Hollinger, of Lebanon, Pa.; Peter S., formerly a U. S. mail driver, is mentioned below; Amelia m. Joseph Karch, of Lebanon, Pa., and died about fifteen years ago; Tillie m. Ephraim Boltz, of Lebanon Valley House, Lebanon, Pa.; Priscilla m. Harry Carl of Myerstown Pa.; William, a farmer and carpenter in Missouri, m. Permilla Zerby.

John S. Kline attended the subscription and public schools for a short time, and was reared on his parents' farm, for whom he worked until he was twenty-four years of age, then hiring out on the farm for one year. Mr. Kline worked at farm labor until 1868, at which time he commenced farming on his own account near Wintersville, in Tulpehocken township, cultivating the Daniel Kline 207-acre farm for one year. His father having died, Mr. Kline removed to Mill Creek, Lebanon county, where he spent one year, and there his wife died. Mr. Kline then engaged as a laborer at Wintersville until 1872, when he again turned his attention to farming, and for eighteen years continued thereat, after which he lived retired for seven years, and in 1897 purchased his present fine farm of 188¼ acres east of the Corner Church in Heidelberg township. In the same year he erected his modern, fourteen-room house, and made many other improvements, including the building of a pig sty and wagon shed, and in 1903 he built a large substantial Swiss barn, 42x105 feet. Mr. Kline is a man of much influence in his community, and has been well known in Republican politics. He is a member of the A. O. G. F., at Stouchsburg, with which he has been connected since 1873. In his religious affiliations Mr. Kline is Reformed, and he has been deacon for six years and for nine years elder of the Tulpehocken Church of that denomination.

In 1860 Mr. Kline married (first) Sarah Beshore, who died in May, 1870. To this union were born: Emma, deceased, m. David Werner; Martha died in infancy; Ella M. m. John Smith, and lives on her father's farm; and Cassie died in infancy. Mr. Kline m. (second) Malinda Behney, the widow of Daniel Peifer, of Mill Creek, and to this union were born: John Calvin, born Jan. 8, 1871, died aged one year, two months; and Cora Malinda m. George W. Grimes of Heidelberg township, by whom she has had two daughters—Annie M. and Lucy M.

Peter S. Kline, son of Daniel and brother of John S., was born Nov. 24, 1843. He passed his early life on his father's farm, and received his education in what was then termed High School, but is now Ursinus College. For some years he acted as United States mail driver, carrying between Wintersville and Reading (six offices besides Reading) making a round trip of forty-five miles three days each week—Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. In 1884 he went to Franklin county, Pa., and there occupied the farm formerly owned by James Buchanan, ex-President of the United States, and later farmed in Jackson township, Lebanon county. For forty-nine years he has been a member of the Reformed Church, in which he has held a number of offices, and has been a liberal supporter of all good work. He married at Reading, Amelia Wagner, who died March 17, 1901, and was buried at Tulpehocken Church, of which she was a member. Her church membership dated from 1865. To this union were born twelve children—six sons and six daughters—namely: Harry, born Aug. 30, 1869, resides at New Brunswick, N. J.; C. Katie, born Feb. 12, 1871, is now Mrs. Bailey, and resides at Waynesboro, Pa.; George Daniel, born Sept. 12, 1872, m. Maggie Moyer, daughter of Levi Moyer, and lives on the farm of Dr. Eli Klopp, of Philadelphia; Ella Jane, born July 9, 1875, is now Mrs. Hain, and lives at Robesonia; Harvey P., born June 18, 1877, resides at Wyomissing; Tillie, born Nov. 18, 1878, is Mrs. Wolfskill (all born in Wintersville); Morris Miles, born in 1881, died in infancy; Martha Alice, born Jan. 1, 1883, resides at Reading; Sadie Mary, born Sept. 7, 1884, in Franklin county, died May 5, 1892, in Lebanon county; and three died in infancy.

WESLEY H. WELLS (deceased), who for many years was one of Reading's well-known business men, a reliable carpenter and builder, was born in Chester county, Pa., in 1822, son of Isaac and Elizabeth (Spackman) Wells.

Isaac Wells was born April 13, 1774, and his wife, Elizabeth Spackman, July 7, 1782, both in Chester county. Their children were: Sidney, born Dec. 24, 1802, died unmarried, Aug. 13, 1877; Jane, born Oct. 27, 1804, died unmarried, Sept. 22, 1825; Uriah, born April 6, 1807, died at Petersburg, Va., in 1864, having been prominent in the iron business in the South during the Civil war; Lavinia, born Dec. 21, 1809, died May 8, 1893, in her eighty-fourth year, the mother of Thomas W. Sweeney (mentioned elsewhere); Thomas, born Aug. 5, 1812, was killed at a barn-raising in Chester county; William, born Oct. 29, 1814, died Jan. 16, 1877; Obed, born in 1817, died in 1825; Isaac, born in 1820, died in 1894; and Isaiah and Wesley H., twins, born Oct. 30, 1822. Isaac Wells, the father, died in 1846, aged seventy-two years. In politics he was a strong Whig. Although not members of the Society both he and his wife regularly attended Quaker meeting.

Wesley H. Wells learned the carpenter's trade in early life, and followed it with his brother Isaiah practically all of his active period. The brothers came to Reading in 1847, and they built many of the fine dwellings in this city, including churches and schoolhouses as well as homes and places for business. Isaiah Wells built St. Peter's M. E. Church and the Second Reformed Church. Wesley H. made a specialty of stair building when that particular work was all done by hand. He later operated a planing mill on Second street below Penn. In politics Mr. Wells was a stanch Republican, and for twenty consecutive years he was assessor of the Fourth ward in Reading. His private life was that of a most worthy man in every relation. Fraternally he belonged to Mattamora Lodge, I. O. O. F.

On July 4, 1850, Mr. Wells was married to Miss Anna S. Grissinger, daughter of Daniel and Lydia (Seltzer) Grissinger, the former of whom was a native of York county and the latter of Lebanon county. They had one child, Mary E., born July 20, 1854, who died in 1879. Mrs. Wells is a member of St. Peter's M. E. Church.

Isaiah Wells, brother of the late Wesley H. Wells, married Mary Russell, and they had three children, viz: One who died in childhood; Charles W., a prominent corporation lawyer of New York City, who has one son, Harry; and Ella, who resides with her brother in New York.

It is sad to note that this family, so exemplary and useful in former days, has almost all passed away. No city can lose such residents without deep regret.

LEWIS J. HAIN, a progressive and successful farmer of Lower Heidelberg township, was born in that township near Wernersville, July 16, 1865.

Adam Hain, his great-grandfather, was born near Wernersville, and there married Anna Maria Ruth, daughter of Christian Ruth. They had four children: Peter; John m. Catharine Gernant, of Maiden-creek; Elizabeth m. Benjamin Hain; and Catharine m. John Gernant, of Spring.

Peter Hain, grandfather of Lewis J., was a farmer of Lower Heidelberg township. He was born in 1796 and died in 1874. He married Catharine Laucks, born in 1799, daughter of Peter and Susannah (Lorah) Laucks, of Tulpehocken township; she died in 1888. They had four children: Adam L. m. (first) Hannah Gauland, and (second) Rebecca Gassert; Peter L. m. Susan Oberholtzer; Levi L. m. Anna Laucks; and David L.

David Laucks Hain, father of Lewis J., was educated in the township schools, and brought up to farming, which he followed successfully until 1898 when he retired, living since then at Wernersville. He married Sarah Hain, daughter of Joseph and Mary Hain, and by her had eight children: Reilly (m. Anna Gaul); Lewis J.; Cora (m. William Stoudt); and five who died in infancy.

Lewis J. Hain received his education in the local schools, at Myerstown Palatinate College, and at the Reading Interstate Commercial College. Upon finishing his education, he directed his attention to farming, first under his father and then for himself, and he has followed this pursuit with great success to the present time in the vicinity of Wernersville. Besides the regular operations on the farm, he has made a specialty of fattening from sixty to seventy-five steers each year. He operates two farms, the one which he purchased from his father ,and his wife's farm which she inherited from her father. They reside on the latter place.

Mr. Hain married, in 1889, Ella Miller Hain, daughter of Isaac Hain and Sarah Miller. They have two children, Isaac A., born Jan. 21, 1891, and William P., born Dec. 14, 1898.

Mrs. Lewis J. Hain is a descendant of George Hain, who was the founder of the Hain family in Berks county. He emigrated from the Palatinate to Pennsylvania and settled in Heidelberg township in 1711. He married Veronica Hain, and they had nine children, Christian, Peter, Adam, George, Frederick, Henry, Casper, Sybilla (m. Jacob Freymeyer) and Elizabeth Gertrude (m. William Fisher).

Casper Hain, son of George, and great-great-grandfather of Mrs. Lewis J. Hain, was born in Germany in 1724, and emigrated to America with his father. He carried on farming in Heidelberg until his decease in 1762. His wife, Catharine, was born in 1727, and died in 1809, and by her he had five children: Elizabeth (m. Conrad Eckert); John; Frederick; David (m. Barbara Ruth); and Peter (m. Magdalena Ruth).

Frederick Hain, son of Casper, was born in 1756, carried on farming and died in 1812. He married Catharine Haak, who was born in 1754 and died in 1815. They had four children: Daniel; Hannah and Elizabeth, unmarried; and Catharine (m. John Klopp).

Daniel Hain, son of Frederick, was a farmer of Lower Heidelberg township. He was born in 1787, and died in 1862. He married Magdalena Hain, daughter of Isaac Hain, who died in 1882, aged seventy-five years. She was the mother of five children: Richard (m. Anna Huyett); Isaac; Anna (m. William Krick); and two died in infancy.

Isaac Hain, son of Daniel and father of Mrs. Lewis J. Hain, was born in 1835, and was a farmer of Lower Heidelberg township. He married Sarah Miller, daughter of Abraham Miller, who was born in 1841, and is yet living in Wernersville. Isaac Hain died in 1895. He was the father of two children: Daniel (m. Catharine Huyett); and Ellen (m. Lewis J. Hain).

RUSH G. SEIBERT, station agent of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, at Sinking Spring station for forty years, was born at Lebanon, Pa., Nov. 1, 1835, son of Rev. Samuel and Elizabeth (Rush) Seibert, and was educated in the common schools. When fifteen years of age he became ambitious to teach school, and passing a successful examination was given a teacher's certificate. He began teaching in Bern township, Berks county, and taught there and in the schools of Lower Heidelberg and Spring townships for fifteen years. On Aug. 1, 1865, he secured the position of station agent at Sinking Spring, and this he filled with great fidelity until 1903, when he was granted a leave of absence on account of sickness. Upon recovering his health, he was appointed assistant agent and after serving until Nov. 1, 1903, he was retired with a pension, on account of age, evidencing in a high degree the satisfactory character of his services and the appreciation of the railroad company of his long-continued devotion to its interests at this station.

While his parents resided near the Swamp, in Montgomery county, Mr. Seibert became a member of the Reformed Church at Limerick, near there, in 1850, when fifteen years old, and then it was that he began the active interest in Sunday-school work which he has shown wherever located, organizing Sunday-schools and putting interested persons of the vicinity in the way of conducting them successfully. This was more particularly done in the country districts surrounding Sinking Spring for a distance of five miles, the work being continued with great devotion every Sunday without regard to the condition of the weather. While teaching public school at Lorah, Berks county, in 1852, he organized his first Sunday-school, and upon locating in Sinking Spring he became connected with the Union Sunday-school, of which he became the superintendent, holding that office for thirty-five years, and continuing as a teacher in the Lutheran and Reformed schools till now, after declining a re-election. In 1901 he became a member of St. Andrew's Reformed Church at Reading, and since then he has taught a Bible class in the Sunday-school, notwithstanding his residence at Sinking Spring.

In 1866 Mr. Seibert married Susan B. Weidman, daughter of Solomon Weidman, of Spring township, and by her he had three children: Rush, who died in 1885 at the age of eighteen years; Weidman R; and Olivia, Mrs. Daniel Weidman.

Rev. Samuel Seibert, of Dauphin county, now Lebanon county, was a minister of the Reformed Church for thirty-seven years. He married, in 1824, Elizabeth Rush, daughter of Stephen and Maria (Printz) Rush, of Reading, and by her he had eleven children: S. Maria, Samuel R., Catharine, Elizabeth, William H., John, Rush G., George W., Francis, Mary and Emily. He died in 1862, at Greentown, Ohio, aged sixty-two years, and his wife died in 1872, at Sinking Spring, aged sixty-nine years.

CHARLES REINHART, engaged in the millwrighting business, at Hamburg, Pa., and an honored veteran of the Civil war, was born July 23, 1845, in Greenwich township, Berks county, son of Samuel and Fietta (Adam) Reinhart.

John Adam Reinhart, founder of the family in America, emigrated on the ship "Union," which landed at Philadelphia Sept. 27, 1773. There were ninety-eight persons aboard, all of whom were German Palatinates, and a number of these settled in Greenwich township, Berks county.

John Reinhart, grandfather of Charles, was born in 1798, and died about 1870. He lived about one mile north of Dunkel's Church, where he owned a small farm, and also followed his trade of shoemaker and was a good workman. He married Catherine Muffert, and they had these children: Polly died single; Peggy m. George Folk; Hettie m. David Reitenower; Elizabeth m. Daniel Dreis; and Samuel.

Samuel Reinhart was born in 1825 and died in 1876. He was a millwright and lived in Greenwich township, not far from Eagle Point, where he was the owner of a small farm, and was known as a good workman and thrifty citizen. Mr. Reinhart married Fietta Adam, daughter of Henry Adam, and to them were born: Miss Catherine; Charles; Daniel (m. (first) Annie Kieser, and (second) Kate Mengel); Hettie (m. Samuel Angstadt); Susannah (m. E. Stern); Mary (m. (first) a McLaughlin and (second) Pecky Stewart); William (m. Hettie Williams); and Emma (m. Peter Reigel).

Charles Reinhart attended the schools of his district until seventeen years of age, when he enlisted in the volunteer service of the United States army, as a member of Company F, 167th Pa. V. I., for a period of nine months, under Capt. Joshua Groh and Col. J. DePuy Davis, of Reading. He has an excellent war record, and among his engagements were: Deserted Farm, Suffolk, Va., and Gettysburg. He was honorably discharged, and draws a pension for injuries received in the service. After his return in 1864, he was apprenticed to Abraham Lesher, to learn the trade of millwright, which he has followed ever since, being at present employed by the Dupont Powder Company, of Wilmington, Del. In political matters he is a Republican, and has served as councilman of Hamburg for six years, having resided in the borough since 1875. He and his family are members of the First Reformed Church, Hamburg.

Mr. Reinhart has been twice married, his first wife being Rebecca Weidner, daughter of Henry and Annie (Printzenhoffer) Weidner. To them were born children as follows: Bertolet m. (first) Alice Sweigert and (second) Eva Sweigert; Henry W. m. Sallie Schlegel, and lives in California; and William m. Angeline Eckerd, and lives in Reading. Mr. Reinhart's second wife was Mary L. Fink, daughter of John and Caroline (Balthaser) Fink, and to this union there were born: Emma (m. Edward Francis), Samuel (who like his father is a millwright, and works at the same place), Mary F. (m. Charles F. Leiby), Miss Ida (at home), Charles H., Edna and Luella.

OBADIAH EBLING, a substantial citizen of Bern township, was born Jan. 24, 1847, in Ontelaunee township, Berks Co., Pa., son of David and a grandson of Jacob Ebling.

Jacob Ebling and wife lived in Rockland township, but both died at Auburn, Schuylkill county. They had six children, namely: John, Jacob, Gideon, Kate, Sallie and David.

David Ebling, father of Obadiah, was born in 1801, in Rockland township, Berks county. He followed the blacksmith's trade for thirty-five years in Rockland and Ontelaunee townships. He bought his first farm of seventy acres and in a few years, in 1849, bought a farm of ninety-six acres in Spring and Heidelberg townships, and lived on the latter from 1850 until his death, Feb. 27, 1868. He was buried at Sinking Spring, where he was a worthy member of the Reformed Church, in which he served as deacon and elder. In politics he was a Democrat. On April 15, 1826, he married Maria Zerley, who died Aug. 29, 1891, aged eighty-five years, three months, twenty-two days. They had the following children: Cosmos, Addiah, Jeremiah, Josiah and Obadiah, Sallie A. (m. (first) Daniel Francis, and (second) Benjamin Hogy), Amanda (m. (first) John Seidle, and (second) Jacob Wanner) and Leana (m. Simon Moyer).

Obadiah Ebling attended school in Spring and Heidelberg townships, and in 1864 he was a student in the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown. He remained with his father and after the latter's death, took charge of the homestead, operated it for six years, and then came to Bern township and bought his father-in-law's farm. The latter contains 121 acres, and is located about one mile west of Leesport, and at one time was known as the old Samuel Moser farm. He owns also a farm of 127 acres adjoining, and has the management of a large amount of other property, being the guardian of minor heirs. He built his comfortable home in 1886. At present his whole time is occupied with looking after his many interests.

On Dec. 3, 1867, Mr. Ebling married Amelia Boyer, daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth (Boyer) Boyer. Jacob Boyer was a very prominent man in Berks county, and was born Oct. 12, 1818, son of Samuel Boyer (born in Amity township and buried at Hill Church), and died Oct. 10, 1885, and was interred at Epler's Church. To Jacob and Elizabeth Boyer were born: Amelia, Rebecca (m. Levi Baer, of Bern), William (m. Amelia Werner, deceased, and resides in Reading), and Samuel (died aged one year). Mr. and Mrs. Ebling had one daughter, Clara Cordelia, who died March 22, 1886, aged thirteen years and thirteen days.

In politics, Mr. Ebling is a Democrat, and for six years he has served as a member of the school board of Bern township, a part of the time being its president. He is an elder in Epler's Reformed Church and formerly was a deacon. He is a representative man in his community.

JOHN J. MILLER, an enterprising business man of Reading, Pa., engaged extensively in the hat business, was born in New York City, Aug. 27, 1855, son of John Miller, a native of Bavaria, Germany.

John Miller, father of John J., had learned the hatter's trade in the old country, and on coming to America in 1849, located in that business in New York, and at Orange, N. J. He died May 30, 1902, in his seventy-fifth year. John Miller married Margaret Hick, a native of the same province in Germany, and they had nine children, as follows: John J., Susan, Jacob, Adam, Charles, Elizabeth, Frederick, Barbara and Sophia. Mrs. Miller died Sept. 23, 1907. In religious belief the Millers are Evangelists, and the Hicks Catholics. Mr. Miller was a member of the Maennerchor, and was independent in political matters.

John J. Miller received his schooling in New York City and in New Jersey, and when old enough became an apprentice to the hatter's trade which he has followed up to the present time. In 1898 he located in Reading, in the employ of John Hendel's Sons, and is now general manager of their first floor, having introduced the fur business in this establishment. He has been very successful in his line, and is considered an expert.

FREDERICK REESE BECHTEL. Among the well-known citizens of Cumru township, Berks county, may be mentioned Mr. Frederick R. Bechtel, who now lives retired on the farm upon which he was born, Sept. 17, 1830, son of Christian and Julia (Reese) Bechtel.

Christian Bechtel was born on the old homestead in Cumru township, Feb. 11, 1786, and died April 11, 1839, having been a successful farmer throughout his life. He was an old-line Whig in politics, and was very patriotic and public-spirited. Mr. Bechtel married Julia Reese, daughter of a Revolutionary soldier, and to them were born three children: Benneville, who died in childhood; Charles, who died when eleven years old; and Frederick R.

Frederick R. Bechtel obtained his primary education in the common schools of his native locality, and later attended select schools in Reading. His youthful days were spent on the farm, where in 1858 he commenced operations on his own account, continuing there with much success until his retirement in 1885. Since that time he has lived at the homestead, which had been built by his grandfather, Christian Bechtel, the house being in excellent condition and apparently good for another century. The homestead, which includes 127 acres, is one of the best in the county, and has been in the possession of the Bechtel family since before the Revolutionary war. In politics, Mr. Bechtel is a Republican, and for three years he served his township as school director. He is a member and regular attendant of Trinity Lutheran Church, of Reading.

On May 24, 1857, Mr. Bechtel was married to Esther R. High, born Sept. 7, 1833, daughter of Daniel and Esther (Rothermel) High. To Mr. and Mrs. Bechtel four children have been born: Miss Emma, at home; Charles H., living at Lake, Idaho; John H., one of the proprietors of the Neversink Planing Mill of Reading; and Miss Sarah Esther, at home.

DANIEL LEWIS WARTZENLUFT, a well-known resident of Kutztown, Pa., who carries on an extensive shoe business, was born Nov. 15, 1850, in Perry township, Berks county, son of David and Rebecca (Rothermel) Wartzenluft.

Doctor Wartzenluft, the progenitor of this family in America, came from Germany about the middle of the eighteenth century and lived in Ruscombmanor township, near Fleetwood, in which vicinity he practised medicine. His first wife was killed by the Indians, who visited the Wartzenluft house when she was alone, the Doctor finding her body in the yard on his return from a visit to some patients. He followed the trail of the Indians for several days, but finally lost all trace of them and had to give up. The Doctor married again, and by the second union there were three children: Daniel, grandfather of Daniel L.; Mrs. Clauser, and Mrs. Koller. Dr. Wartzenluft died ripe in years, and his remains were interred in the vicinity of Fleetwood.

Daniel Wartzenluft was born near Fleetwood, in Ruscombmanor township, Jan. 21, 1785, and died Jan. 21, 1858. He is buried in a private burial ground on the farm that he purchased in 1833, when he removed from Ruscombmanor to Windsor township, the part which is now Perry. He was a farmer all of his life, and he also operated a grist mill now owned by Cleophas Dreibelbis, one mile east of Shoemakersville. On Oct. 9, 1808, he married Catherine Delp, born Dec. 28, 1788, who died aged seventy-three years, two months, sixteen days. They had eight sons and two daughters: Ann, Daniel, Esther, William, Joel, David, Reuben, Enoch, Jacob and Harry.

David Wartzenluft, father of Daniel Lewis, was born June 14, 1821, in Ruscombmanor township, Berks county. In youth he attended pay school a month or two in the year, for a few years only. He spent all his life upon the farm and owned one of the old homesteads in Perry township, now tenanted by his son David. On April 3, 1845, he married Susanna Rothermel, who died in December, 1845, aged twenty-eight years, twenty-nine days. He m. (second) June 20, 1847, Rebecca Rothermel, sister of his first wife. They were daughters of Jacob and granddaughters of Paul, who was a son of Johannes Rothermel, born in 1688, in Wachbach, Germany, and died in 1730, while on the voyage to the New World. To Mr. Wartzenluft's second marriage were born: Catherine Anna, who died in 1878, in her thirty-first year, was the wife of Cleophas Dreibelbis, who now owns the original Wartzenluft homestead; Sarah Anna m. Isaac Schappell; Daniel Lewis; Jacob m. a Miss Fritz and resides in Iola, Kans.; Miss Mary Ann Louise cared for her aged father; and David E., m. Mary Merkel. David Wartzenluft, the father, died Dec. 22, 1907, aged eighty-six years, and was buried at Zion's Church.

Daniel Lewis Wartzenluft spent his boyhood days on his father's farm and obtained his early education in the public schools of his native township, later attending school at Collegeville, Montgomery county, and also the Keystone State Normal school, at Kutztown, from which institution he was graduated in 1879. He then taught school for fourteen terms in the following districts: Perry, Richmond, Windsor, Maxatawny, Longswamp and the borough of Kutztown.

In the fall of 1882, Mr. Wartzenluft engaged in the shoe, hat and findings business on Main street, Kutztown, and since that time has built up a large reputation for honest dealing. He has won the confidence and patronage of the community and his business ability enables him to give his customers the best goods for the least money. He carries a fine, full, up-to-date stock of first class goods, and is deserving of the trade of his locality. Mr. Wartzenluft is a Democrat in his political views and has served as school director of Kutztown for six years, and as a delegate to a number of county conventions. In his religious belief he is a Lutheran, and he and his family worship at St. John's Church of Kutztown, of which he was deacon and trustee. He has been a member of the Consistory for twelve years.

On Jan. 1, 1875, Daniel Lewis Wartzenluft was married to Susan S. Dunkel, daughter of David and Catharine (Lesher) Dunkel, who were the parents of the following children: Samuel (m. Mary Loose); Hettie (m. Noah Kroninger); Susan (m. Mr. Wartzenluft); Lizzie (unmarried); and Isaac (m. Ida Welsh). Mr. and Mrs. Wartzenluft make their residence in Kutztown, and are highly respected in their community.

NAPOLEON BICKELMAN, now living retired from active work in Wyomissing borough, Berks county, devoted many years of his life to the building profession, and evidences of his constructive skill are found in many States of the Union. He was born in Tremont township, Schuylkill Co., Pa., Nov. 8, 1844, son of Jacob and grandson of Valentine Bickelman.

Valentine Bickelman was a soldier of France under Napoleon I., and served through the Spanish and Russian campaigns. He was not present at the battle of Waterloo, and was always glad that he was not there to witness the defeat of his beloved General. He came to America, bringing his son Jacob, and settled in Schuylkill county, Pa., dying at Pottsville, in 1862-63, in the ninety-sixth year of his age. His remains rest in the cemetery there. He was a man of small stature, though strong and courageous, and was very proud of his military career.

Jacob Bickelman, son of Valentine, was born in Alsace-Lorraine, France, in 1800, and his death occurred in 1894, when he was aged ninety-four years, and he was buried in Cedar county, Iowa. In November, 1833, he came to America, landing at Castle Garden, N. Y., thence coming by way of the canal to Pottsville, Pa. By trade he was a blacksmith, and he also worked in the coal mines. In 1848 he settled in Tremont township, Schuylkill county, where he owned his own home. In 1868 he and a daughter went West, and settled in Mechanicsville, Cedar Co., Iowa, where he died and is buried. He reared his family in the Lutheran faith. His wife, Ellenora Diehl, was born in Bavaria, Germany, in 1808, daughter of Henry Diehl, a Bavarian miner, and she died in 1900, aged ninety-two years. To Jacob and Ellenora Bickelman were born ten children.

Napoleon Bickelman, son of Jacob, began learning the carpenter's trade at the age of fourteen, from his brother-in-law, Adam Wolf. This he followed through all the western States, and in Clearfield, Philadelphia and Schuylkill counties in Pennsylvania. For many years he followed contracting, and during 1868 and 1869 he worked for the Union Pacific railroad in Nebraska, Wyoming and Iowa. In 1867 he worked for the Sioux City & Pacific Railroad Company. In 1877 and 1878 he built St. Peter's Catholic Church at Ellinwood, Kans., and he rebuilt the Catholic Church at Tremont, Schuylkill Co., Pa. In 1893 he erected the "Hotel Penn" at Pine Grove, a three-story brick structure containing thirty-three rooms. He employed mechanics all the time. In 1902 he retired, and disposed of his fine farm of 116 acres in Pine-Grove township on which he lived. He also owned a 160-acre farm in Neosho county, Kans., which he cultivated in connection with carpentering until selling it in 1900. Upon his retirement in 1902 he came to Berks county, and now lives in his comfortable home on Penn avenue, Wyomissing.

In 1871 Mr. Bickelman was married to Anna McDonough, daughter of Joseph and Annie (Bergman) McDonough, of Lower Heidelberg township. Six children were born of this union: Napoleon died young; Roy died aged twenty years; Blanche m. Thomas Lehr, of Philadelphia; Martha died young; Marguerite m. David Batdorf, of Reading; and William died young. In politics Mr. Bickelman is independent but usually casts his ballot in support of the Democratic party. He is well posted on current events. He is an artist, working chiefly in oils, and among the works of his brush may be mentioned a war scene, depicting an engagement between the First Vermont Cavalry and the Mosby guerillas; and portraits of himself and wife. He is a self-educated taxidermist, and has numerous specimens of his skill.

During the Civil war Mr. Bickelman enlisted Aug. 23, 1861, at Pottsville, being a private in Company H, 96th P. V. I., and participated in all the engagements of the Army of the Potomac, among these being the Peninsular Campaign; Second Battle of Bull Run; Crampton Gap, Md.; Antietam; Fredericksburg, Va. (first and second battles, receiving a bullet wound in the leg at the latter, May 3, 1863); Gettysburg; pursuit of Lee to the Rappahannock, and the battle there; Mine Run Campaign, 1863-64; Spottsylvania Court House, where he was wounded in the hand; Cold Harbor; and Sheridan's Campaign in the Shenandoah Valley. He was honorably discharged at Philadelphia Oct. 21, 1864. When the regiment was mustered in at Pottsville, 1,050 men answered the roll call, but at Philadelphia only 120 were mustered out, and of these a number had been wounded. On Aug. 20, 1870, Mr. Bickelman was commissioned by Gov. John W. Geary as first lieutenant of the Jefferson Rifles of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, in the Sixth Division, composed of the Uniformed Militia of the counties of Schuylkill, Monroe, Carbon and Pike, his rank to date from Aug. 13, 1870.

CHARLES M. FISHER, a prominent business man of the city of Kutztown, Pa., who is junior member of the well-known furniture and house-furnishing establishment of Ritter & Fisher, on Main street, was born April 9, 1854, in Hereford township, Berks county, son of David R. and Maria (Marsteller) Fisher.

It is traditional in the Fisher family that Jacob Fisher, who lived in Hereford township prior to 1758, is the American progenitor of Charles M. He was a tax-payer of Hereford in 1758, and he could well have been a resident of that township prior to this time, as it was fairly well settled as early as 1745.

John Fisher, grandfather of Charles M., was a farmer of Shimerville, Lehigh county, and there married Royal Rowe, by whom he had these children: David R.; Daniel (m. Caroline Fegley); Anna (m. Levi Walter); Sarah (m. William Miller); Mary (m. David Mohr); Dianna (m. Reuben Rothenberger); and Jonathan.

David R. Fisher, father of Charles M., was a gunsmith the greater part of his life, and made his home in Hereford township, this county. Mr. Fisher married Maria Marsteller, daughter of Henry and Elizabeth (Christman) Marsteller, and to this union there were born children as follows: John died in infancy; Henry died at the age of fifty-eight years; Elizabeth m. Wilson Wendling; Charles M.; Sallie m. Jonathan G. Berkey; Caroline died in infancy; and Mary A. m. John L. Reinhard. Mr. Fisher was one of the well-known citizens of his day, and bore a high reputation for honesty and integrity.

Charles M. Fisher received his education in the public schools of his district, and worked on his father's farm, near Shimerville, Lehigh county, until 1876. At this time he engaged at the milling trade, which he had learned with Fritch Bros. & Bogh, at Macungie, and continued thereat for a period of twenty-five years. In April, 1904, Mr. Fisher formed a partnership with R. J. Ritter, of Macungie, and opened a furniture store on Main street, Kutztown, which has become the largest and most popular in this section of the county. Ritter & Fisher do a large local trade, but their business is not confined to Kutztown, as they supply firms and families in the surrounding towns. Mr. Fisher is a consistent Democrat. He is connected with the Reformed Church. In fraternal organizations he is prominently connected with Lodge No. 85, I. O. O. F., at Macungie; with the Knights of Pythias, No. 378, at Emaus; and with Washington Camp No. 569, P. O. S. of A., Macungie.

On July 24, 1876, Mr Fisher was married to Emma E. Berkey, daughter of Mahlon and Sarah (Greisinger) Berkey, and two children have been born to this union: Herbert E., purchasing agent and manager for C. Pardee & Co., Hazleton, Pa.; and Alice C., who lives at home, and is bookkeeper for the firm of Ritter & Fisher.

LEVI EDINGER, one of the leading agriculturists of Berks county, Pa., whose excellent 200-acre property at Poplar Neck, in Cumru township, is known as the General William High homestead, was born Jan. 17, 1863, in Alsace township, Berks county, son of Levi and Esther (Tobias) Edinger.

Abraham Edinger (also spelled Eddinger), the progenitor of this family in America, came from Germany in the ship "Phoenix," landing at Philadelphia Oct. 1, 1754. He settled in Berks county, where the rest of his life was spent, and among others had these children: Christian, grandfather of Levi; Frederick; and Andrew, who settled in Western Pennsylvania.

Christian Edinger, son of Abraham, was a blacksmith in Oley township, where he lived for many years, but in later life went to Alsace township, where he followed his trade. It was while shoeing a horse that a kick from the animal caused Mr. Edinger's death, in 1856, in his fifty-sixth year, and he was buried at Spies's Church. Mr. Edinger married Catherine Davidheiser, and to them were born these children: Ann m. Reuben Hassler; John, born Aug. 15, 1827, m. Sarah Zieber; and has two children —James and Sarah; Frederick was a carpenter of Alsace township; Elizabeth m. (first) James Idyle and (second) John Homan; Harrison was a resident of Reading; Levi; Daniel also lived in Reading; Kate m. James Tate, and Fannie m. Reuben Trout.

Levi Edinger, the father of Levi, was born July 25, 1831, in Alsace township, and died Aug. 21, 1882. In 1865 he removed from Alsace township to a farm in Spring township, continuing there for four years, when he located on the Edinger farm in Cumru township, this being his home until his death. He was a member of Montgomery Lodge, I. O. O. F., Reading, and of the Hebron Encampment of the same order. Mr. Edinger was buried at Spies's Church, of which he was an official member. On Feb. 2, 1850, Mr. Edinger married Esther Tobias, born March 3, 1834, daughter of Abraham and Hannah (Hartman) Tobias, of Bern township, and two children were born to this union: Hannah, born Aug. 30, 1851, m. Harrison G. Lincoln; and Levi.

Levi Edinger has been a farmer from his youth, with the exception of one year, 1885, when he lived in Reading and worked for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, Since 1869 he has lived in the Poplar Neck district, was for twenty-five years the operator of the Edinger farm, working first for his father and later for himself, and in 1894 he located on the well-known General William High homestead, which he has since cultivated. This fine tract of land, consisting of 200 acres, has been brought by Mr. Edinger into an excellent state of cultivation, has been furnished by him with the latest and most highly improved farm implements and stocked with a herd of cows all raised by himself, whose product he sells in Reading. During the season Mr. Edinger does considerable threshing. He owns two houses in Reading, No. 907 North Eighth street, and No. 1049 Buttonwood street, and is a stockholder in the Reading Bone Fertilizer Company. He is a Republican in politics and a Lutheran in religion, he and his family attending Spies's Church in Alsace township. Mr. Edinger is a self-made man in every sense of the word, having fought his own way up the ladder of success, until he now stands at the top, one of Cumru township's most substantial men.

In 1880, Mr. Edinger was married to Sarah A. Raudenbush, born June 25, 1861, daughter of Richard B. Raudenbush. Mr. and Mrs. Edinger have had eight children: Laura E., born Jan. 8, 1881, m. Daniel Clouser; Harry T., born July 11, 1882, m. Annie Wolf; Maud, born Feb. 24, 1886; Esther L., born Aug. 23, 1887, died June 11, 1896; Paul L., born Feb. 9, 1891; Richard L., born Aug. 29, 1893, died June 17, 1896; Levi L., born March 12, 1895, died Aug. 4, 1896; and Earl J., born March 20, 1899, died Aug. 5, 1899.

CONRAD LOCHMAN, cigar manufacturer at Boyertown, Pa., is a representative business man of this borough, one who, through his frugality, enterprise and good management, has made a success of his undertakings. He was born Sept. 18, 1848, in Hessen-Homburg, Germany, son of George and Catherine (Rubel) Lochman.

The parents of Mr. Lochman were also born in Hessen-Homburg, which is a great linen manufacturing town, the main occupation being weaving, and this industry George Lochman followed. On March 5, 1856, he emigrated with his family to America. He died in 1869, aged forty-nine years, and is buried at Sumneytown, Pa. One daughter, aged eight months, Catherine Wilhelmina, died on the ocean, but the other four reached America safely: Conrad; Christian, who is a physician, living at Texarkana, Texas; Sarah, wife of Jacob Royer, of Rittersville, Pa.; and Mary, deceased wife of Philip Sailor.

Conrad Lochman was seven years old when he accompanied his parents to America, and he obtained his education in the schools of Perkiomenville, Montgomery county. When seventeen years of age he learned the milling trade and was twenty-two years old when he learned the cigar-making trade, at which he worked for several years as a journeyman, after which he worked for several years at Bethlehem and then for fifteen years was superintendent for the firm of T. J. Dun & Co., at Boyertown, having three hundred, thirty-five people under his supervision. In 1902 he embarked in the cigarmaking business for himself and gives steady employment to six hands, finding a ready sale for his products. He has acquired property at Boyertown and in 1901 erected his handsome residence on Fourth Street.

In 1870, Mr. Lochman was married to Miss Sarah Gaugler, daughter of John and Hannah (Banet) Gaugler, the father conducting a shoemaking business at Klinesville, Pa. They have had five children, namely: Alice, deceased, wife of John Lowmax, of Philadelphia; Harry, who resides at Gilbertsville, Pa.; Annie, wife of Thomas Johnson, of Boyertown; John, who lives at Boyertown; and Sallie, wife of Howard Fegley. Mr. Lochman and family belong to the Church of the Good Shepherd, of the Reformed faith. In politics he is a Democrat, and since 1908 has been a member of the borough council.

WILLIAM ARNOLD (deceased), who was for many years prominently identified with the business and political life of Reading, was one of a family long resident in Berks county. He was born in 1798, son of Nicholas and Barbara (Fichthorn) Arnold.

Nicholas Arnold was born in Reading, received his education there, and then learned the trade of a hatter, which continued to be his main business interest throughout life, although he also owned a considerable tract of land where the southwestern part of the city is now built, and operated it himself. He was one of the first persons in the county to engage in manufacturing wool hats, and built up a large business in that line. Both Mr. Arnold and his wife lived to a good age.

William Arnold was given a good practical education that would enable him to handle business affairs capably, and then was sent to learn his father's trade from the beginning up. After becoming thoroughly conversant with all the details of hat manufacturing, he was taken into his father's business, and in time succeeded to its sole control. The factory was located on North Eighth street, between Penn and Washington, and there were thirty to forty hands regularly employed. The output of hats was larger than from any other factory in Reading, and the goods were shipped chiefly for southern trade, via Charleston, S. C. The trips were made by sailing vessel and Mr. Arnold was frequently obliged to be gone three months or more. He was a man of fine business ability, and conducted his affairs so successfully that he was able to retire in 1848.

After his retirement, Mr. Arnold turned his attention to political matters, and became quite prominent in the ranks of the county Democrats. He brought to his new duties the same executive ability and energy that had marked his conduct of his own affairs, and served most efficiently in various capacities. From 1841 to 1845 he was county commissioner; from 1845 to 1847, treasurer; and from 1850 to 1857, director of the poor. He also served for many years as a director for the Farmers' Bank of Reading. Throughout his career for a period of over thirty years, Mr. Arnold acted as executor, administrator, trustee or guardian, and settled numerous estates, which facts attest in the strongest manner the esteem in which he was held by the community. He was a member of Trinity Lutheran Church, and was also prominent in Lodge No. 62, of the Masonic order. Mr. Arnold lived to a ripe old age, dying in 1883, aged eighty-four.

Mr. Arnold was twice married. By his first wife, Miss Anna Homan, he had three children: Anna Louise m. Ferdinand S. Ritter, and died in February, 1898; William died in infancy; William Augustus m. Ellen Rick, and died in June, 1906. Mrs. Arnold died in 1837, aged thirty-four, and Mr. Arnold married (second) Miss Catherine Sauerbier. By this union there were four children, as follows: Emma, who died at the age of four; George W., who died in infancy; Amanda, the widow of D. F. Markley; and Emma Catherine, Mrs. Lewis Dauth, who resides at the old Arnold homestead at No. 41 North Eighth street. Mr. Dauth was formerly in the tinsmith and heating business, but is now retired. He and his wife have traveled extensively over the United States. Only one child has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Dauth, a daughter, Katherine A. (m. Walter Scott Wells, employed in the Berks County Trust Company).

GEORGE W. WERTZ, for over thirty years one of the most prominent millers of Berks county, and president of the Wernersville National Bank, was born at Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 26, 1846, son of Samuel and Maria (Sweigert) Wertz.

Frederick Wertz, grandfather of George W., was a native of Switzerland, where he married Elizabeth Maerz. So far as is known they had but two children, Rudolph and Samuel.

Samuel Wertz, son of Frederick, was born in 1809, in Switzerland, and in 1834 he emigrated to America. In 1838 he married Maria Sweigert, daughter of Peter Sweigert, of Reinholdsville, Lancaster county, where he was engaged in farming. They had seven children: Louisa died young; Louisa (2) m. Amos Price; Elizabeth m. Herman Strohecker; George W.; Samuel was accidentally killed on the railroad (he was unmarried); Edward S. m. Sarah Kerschner; and Jacob H. moved West in 1870. All these children were born in Harrisburg. The mother died in 1850, and Mr. Wertz m. (second) Katarina Waldenmaier, daughter of John and Magdalena Waldenmaier, of Stuttgart, Wurtemberg, Germany. To this marriage were born two children: Augustus C. and Franklin.

George W. Wertz attended the public schools of Harrisburg until he was nine years old. He then accompanied his parents to Exeter township, Berks county, and after a year there the father purchased a large stone gristmill along the Tulpehocken creek in Spring township, and that he operated. This mill was located just two miles from the outlet of the Tulpehocken into the Schuylkill. Here Mr. Wertz attended the township schools, and also the preparatory school of C. H. Schaeffer, Esq., at Reading. During this time, however, he worked in his father's mill and learned the trade of miller, later going to Montgomery county, where he learned the business of millwright. Upon completing his apprenticeship he continued with his father until 1872, when he married and leased the mill, carrying it on for himself for three years. He then sold out to his younger brother, Edward, and moved to Reading, where he lived for a year. In 1876 he purchased the Frederick Hain gristmill in Lower Heidelberg township (now included in the Wernersville Asylum property), and for sixteen years carried it on successfully. Removing to Wernersville he erected a large two-story gristmill, equipped it with the roller process, and made it one of the best in the State. This he has operated to the present time, his trade reaching out to all parts of the State, and even into New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland. He has made a specialty of whole wheat flour and buckwheat flour, both of which have a superior reputation. At the time he built the mill, he erected on a large adjoining lot, the most imposing brick residence in Wernersville. In 1906 he established an electric plant adjoining the mill for supplying the residents of the village and vicinity with electric light, and also put up service lines along the public highways. This action reflects his enterprise, and the community appreciates it very highly.

Mr. Wertz has taken a great interest in the Lower Heidelberg Live Stock Insurance Company for the past twenty years, having officiated as president and treasurer of the company for a considerable part of that time. He served as school director for the township for three terms, and from 1890 to 1895 was justice of the peace. In the erection of the new Trinity Lutheran Church at Wernersville, he acted as chairman of the building committee. In 1894 he co-operated in establishing the local water company, and has acted as president of the company since 1900. He also helped to establish the Wernersville National Bank in 1906, with a capital stock of $25,000, now increased to $50,000, and he has since served as its president.

Mr. Wertz was married to Amanda Krick, daughter of Levi Krick, of Spring township. Two children were born to this union: Robert and Mary (m. David Froelich).

HAFER FAMILY. During the early history of this country—the exact date is not known—(I) Mattias Hafer, the founder of the extensive Hafer family in America, emigrated from Germany and settled in Ruscombmanor township, Berks county, Pa., where he purchased a farm and lived the remainder of his life. Among his children were George, Samuel and Henry.

(II) George Hafer, son of Mattias, married Dianah Weiser, and their children were: Henry; John; Benjamin; Isaac; George; Samuel (from whom descends James W. Hafer mentioned below); Anna, who married Peter Hauck; and Sarah, who married Samuel Marbarger. Of the sons, John married and moved to the West, where he died; his daughter, Mrs. Vetter, lives at Sterling, Ill. All of the children of George Hafer are now deceased, but they left descendants, among them the children of Benjamin, namely: Charles, Benjamin, Israel, Anna, Catherine and Mary. Isaac had children as follows: David, Isaac, Hettie, Sallie, Louisa and Emma.

(III) George Hafer, son of (II) George and grandson of (I) Mattias, was born Nov. 13, 1815, and died April 17, 1889, aged seventy-three years, five months, four days. He is buried at Friedensburg. By trade he was a stone-mason, and followed this occupation until he was fifty years of age. He also engaged in farming on a small scale in Ruscombmanor township. His wife, Esther Moyer, daughter of Mattias Moyer, was born in 1814, and died at the age of thirty-nine years. Her last resting-place is at Spies Church. Children as follows were born of this marriage: George M., of Reading; Catherine, who married Tobias Shane, deceased; Dianna, deceased; Esther, who married Daniel R. Hunter; Lewis M.; Susan, deceased, who married Maberry Focht; and Sarah, who married Harry Scheffey.

The second wife of George Hafer was Mary Faust, born Nov. 18, 1822, who died Oct. 29, 1890, aged sixty-seven years, eleven months, eleven days. The children of this marriage were: Mary, who married Ammon Spohn, of Oley; John, of Reading; and Hannah (deceased), who married Milton Schmehl.

(IV) Lewis M. Hafer, of Oley, Oley township, Berks county, Pa., was born in Alsace township, this county, Nov. 3, 1846, and was early trained to farm work. His mother dying when he was but seven years old, he lived with his relatives until he was sixteen, and then began to learn the trade of shoemaker which he followed for seven years. Owing to ill health he was obliged to turn his attention to something else, and returned to farm work, hiring out for nine years, and in 1880, he began farming for himself in Oley township on the Daniel G. Bertolet farm, where he remained for seventeen years. The farm then being sold, he engaged as farmer for Mrs. Jeremiah Weaver, widow of Colonel Weaver, whose property was located in Oley township. After seven years, in the spring of 1904, he sold his stock and removed to Friedensburg, where he now resides, retired from active labor. His very pleasant home was erected by him in 1899 and is a substantial brick residence on Main street. Mr. Hafer also owns the Lee farm, which belonged to the Lee family (Quakers) for over 130 years. This is a very good property and is rented by his son-in-law, Aaron Enoch.

In 1871 Mr. Hafer married Anna Manmiller, a daughter of Amos and Julianna (Breish) Manmiller, of Oley township. To them these children have been born: William, Sallie, Charles, James, Lewis, Amos, Howard, Eva, and Ida, living; and John, Emily, George and Annie (who died at Reading), all deceased.

Mr. Hafer is one of the roadmasters of Oley, and is a very efficient official, one who has the best interests of the community at heart. He and his family are consistent members of the United Evangelical Church, with which he has been connected since 1867, and in which he has filled a number of the offices.

(III) Samuel Hafer, son of (II) George and grandson of (I) Mattias Hafer, was a native of Pricetown, Berks county, born Sept. 30, 1819. He died Dec. 2, 1897, aged seventy-eight years, two months, two days, and is buried at Friedensburg. By trade he was a stone-mason, and he also engaged in farming, becoming a substantial man of Ruscombmanor township, which he served as supervisor. Samuel Hafer married Elizabeth Reider, born Aug. 1, 1816, a daughter of John Reider. John Reider was blind for a number of years. He had a son named after him, John Reider. Mrs. Hafer died Dec. 20, 1899, aged eighty-three years, four months, nineteen days. These children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hafer: George, Frank, Reuben and Samuel.

(IV) Frank Hafer, son of Samuel, was born Dec. 17, 1843, in Oley township, where he still resides, his home being in the vicinity of the Oley furnace. By trade he is a carpenter, and at the age of fifty-five is an energetic man and excellent workman. In politics, Mr. Hafer is a Democrat, but he has never taken an active part in party matters. His religious opinions have made him a member of the Friedensburg Reformed Church.

On May 30, 1868, Frank Hafer married Susanna W. Weidner, daughter of David Weidner, and they had children as follows: William, who died in childhood; James W.; Sallie W., born May 15, 1874, who married William Wentzel, of Oley township; Viola, who died in childhood; Mary W., born Aug. 16, 1876, who married Henry Noll, of Pricetown; and Luella W., born June 12, 1892, who is unmarried and residing at home.

(V) James W. Hafer, son of Frank Hafer, and great-great-grandson of Mattias, the founder of the family in America, was born in Oley township, May 17, 1871. During his boyhood he attended the public schools of Oley and Ruscombmanor townships, and at the same time learned farming. In 1893 he began farming the old Yoder farm below Pleasantville, formerly known as Yodersville. This farm consists of ninety-five acres of excellent farming property and is a portion of the original Yoder farm of 300 acres. Mr. Hafer has his farm well stocked, having five head of cattle, and eighteen to twenty cows, his dairy being one of the best in the neighborhood; he markets his milk daily in Reading. In addition to other improvements Mr. Hafer has some excellent machinery and applies scientific methods in farming, his success proving the wisdom of his actions.

In 1890, Mr. Hafer married Mary Schaeffer, daughter of Nathan and Catherine (Yoder) Schaeffer, of Fleetwood, Pa. The following children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Hafer: Edith, who married Paul Reminger, a student in a veterinary college, and has a daughter, Marguarite; Webster; Lottie; Bertha; Howard; Esther; Walter, and Arthur. Mr. Hafer and his family are members in good standing of the Friedensburg Reformed Church. Socially he is connected with several secret societies and is secretary of Manatawny Castle No. 461, K. G. E.

The Hafer family is one of the oldest in Berks county and its members are all respected, honorable and successful residents of the several communities where they are to be found, possessing the sterling virtues that made their founder, Mattias Hafer, so welcome a settler in the new country more than a century ago.

GEORGE SLATER BECK, a well-known and popular resident of Reading, Pa., was born in Armagh township, Mifflin Co., Pa., May 13, 1854. His education, and it is liberal, has been acquired mostly in the great school of the world, he having run away from home and gone into the United States Marine Corps when only seventeen years of age. During his enlistment, covering four years, a portion of which time he served as paymaster's steward of the U. S. S. "Richmond," he circumnavigated the globe twice, and returned to the "Land of the Free" fully as well equipped to cope with the world as any of his boy friends who had remained at home attending school.

He has always been a student of men and things, cause and effect, and, developing into a writer of great force and strong descriptive power, he was not long in drifting into newspaper circles, where his reportorial work was of such character and his "scoops" so frequent that he is generally known as "Cyclone Beck," among newspaper reporters, to this day. In 1883 he engaged in the business of promoting industrial editions of newspapers all over the United States, doing his first work in that line on the Steubenville, Ohio, Gazette and Bulletin. He has issued magnificent illustrated editions for 123 papers, including both the Herald and the Times, in Reading, Pa., the Canton, Ohio, Repository, the Cincinnati Inquirer, the San Francisco Examiner and the New York World. His work in this line attracted so much attention that he was called to manage the advertising department of a syndicate of leading Western papers, with offices in New York City, where he became noted as one of the most successful advertising managers and publicity boomers in the country.

Between 1898 and 1907 Mr. Beck made a snug fortune in the medicine business, and in 1908 he became interested in the Aguacate Gold Mine in company with the Messrs. J. G. and W. F. White, of New York City, and Don Rafael Yglesias, ex-president of Costa Rica. This mine is located in Monte Del Aguacate, Costa Rica, and is fast developing into one of the greatest gold mines the world has ever known.

Success has not swelled Mr. Beck's head nor hardened his heart. Since his return to Reading in 1902 to end his days in the city where he wooed and won his present wife (nee Anna Simmons, daughter of John Simmons, deceased) his hand has always been out and his purse open to assist the worthy poor and unfortunate. Most prominent among his benefactions have been those to St. Joseph's, the Reading and the Homeopathic Hospitals, and the orphans' homes of Reading, among which will be found nearly fifty beds and furnishings for the free use of the poor, sterilizing devices, wheel chairs and other paraphernalia, all of the very best quality and most modern type, and all the free gifts of this open-hearted man. The sisters and nurses all call him "Uncle George," and hundreds who have profited by his kindness of heart call him blessed.

Mr. Beck is the father of two daughters: Lillie, the wife of J. Elwood Johnson, of Columbus, Ohio; and Ethel, living at home, of whom his first wife, Mary Jane Worley, of Milroy, Pa., was the mother. He belongs to but one club, the Reading Press Club, of which he is a charter member. First, last and all the time he is a family man, devoted to his wife and daughters. His commodious home is his club, where with his family, amid his books, paintings and art treasures, it is his delight to receive and entertain his many friends.

CHARLES H. YOUSE, inspector of engines for the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, who is making his home on Twenty-third street, Mount Penn borough, was born April 8, 1861, in Maxatawny township, Berks county, son of John and Sarah (Heist) Youse.

Very Truly Yours
Geo. S. Beck

Michael Youse, the grandfather of Charles H., was a native of the Fatherland, and came to this country when fourteen years old, landing at New York, whence he came to Berks county. He lived in the vicinity of Kutztown and Bowers, and spent his life in agricultural pursuits. Michael Youse married Annie Dauner, and to them were born the following children: Jonas, deceased, lived for a time at Kutztown, and later at Reading, where he died (he m. Maria Sander); William, a Civil war veteran, died when about forty-five years old from the effect of injuries caused by his falling down a flight of stairs; Elizabeth m. Menasses Sassaman, a stone mason who lived near Bowers; Charles, a carpenter of Rockland township, m. Elizabeth Behm; and John.

John Youse was born June 27, 1840, in Oley township, and died Oct. 20, 1873, in Maxatawny township, where he had worked as a laborer. He married Sarah Heist, daughter of Henry and Lydia (Breinig) Heist, and to them were born these children: Charles H.; Edwin m. Louisa Miller, and resides at Bowers Station, Pa.; Louisa, deceased, m. Samuel Eck, of Mertztown, Pa.; Lizzie died in her fifteenth year of smallpox; William m. Lydia Miller, of Reading; and Mary E. died in infancy.

Charles H. Youse was reared upon the farm in Maxatawny township, upon which he lived until about twenty-one years of age, and attended the public schools of that district. When about twenty-four years old he learned the molder's trade at the Penn Hardware Company, where he worked for seventeen years, and in April, 1900, became a conductor on the Reading Traction Company's lines, continuing in that capacity for five years. In April, 1905, he entered the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, as machinist's helper, and from this position was promoted to that of engine inspector, in which latter capacity he has since served. In his political belief Mr. Youse is an independent Republican. He is a member of Reading Chamber, No. 26, Knights of Friendship; and Reading Council, No. 46, Jr. O. U. A. M. Mr. and Mrs. Youse are members of Faith Lutheran Church of Mount Penn. In the fall of 1903 Mr. Youse built his present substantial brick residence on Twenty-third street, Mount Penn, where he has since resided.

On Aug. 23, 1882, Mr. Youse married Sarah Louise Crounrath, daughter of Benneville and Rebecca (Dry) Crounrath, and granddaughter of John Crounrath. Mrs. Youse's brothers and sisters were as follows: Wilhelmina m. Frank Diehl, a stone mason, of Oley, Pa.; Elizabeth m. Isaac Haydt, deceased; Hettie m. William Adams, a carpenter of Fleetwood; Caroline m. Abraham Glase, a carpenter of Allentown; Catherine m. William Folk, a farmer of Oley, Pa.; Henry m. Sarah Yeager, and is a farmer of Oley; Alice m. Frank Reinert, who is a carpenter of Ruscombmanor township; Willie died in infancy; and Amelia m. the late John Fitzgerald.

To Mr. and Mrs. Youse there have been born these children: William E., born Aug. 12, 1883, is a clerk in a large dry goods store of Newark, N. J., having charge of the white goods; Arthur W., born May 27, 1891, is a student in Reading; Charles H. was born Nov. 12, 1893, and Earl L., May 17, 1895.

EPHRAIM WITMAN, for twenty-four years a successful grain, coal and lumber merchant at Wernersville, is a native of Berks county, born at Bernville, Jan. 11, 1840, son of Henry and Mary (Shell) Witman, and grandson of Jonathan and Mary (Yerger) Witman.

Jonathan Witman carried on the business of coppersmith and tinsmith at Reading until 1850, when he went to Bernville to make his home with his son Henry. He married Mary Yerger of Reading, who was born in 1781, and who died in 1863. They had four sons, one of whom died young, the others being Henry, Edward and John.

Henry Witman, son of Jonathan, was born in 1799, and in his youth he learned the tinsmith's trade, which he carried on until 1832, when he removed to Bernville, formed a co-partnership with his son-in-law, Joseph Conrad, for the grain, coal and lumber business, and under the firm name of Witman & Conrad this was carried on successfully until 1851. Mr. Witman was prominent in the town's affairs, serving as chief burgess in 1854, and also as councilman for some time. He married (first) Mary Shell, daughter of Henry Shell, of Bern township, and she died in 1854, aged fifty-one years. Of the ten children of this marriage five died young; the others were: Maria (m. Joseph Conrad); Ellen (m. Samuel K. Dundore); Rebecca (m. John M. Sherk); Ephraim, and Catharine (m. John H. Missimer).

Ephraim Witman received his education in the local school and at Myerstown Academy. From 1855 to 1858 he devoted himself assiduously to learning the tinsmith's trade, and having then completed his apprenticeship he entered the employ of Witman & Conrad in their general store, grain, coal, and lumber business. Here he continued until his marriage in 1861, when he took his father's place in the firm, and the name was changed to Conrad & Witman. This firm prospered for twelve years, and then Mr. Witman purchased Mr. Conrad's interest and carried the business on alone until 1885. By that time trading conditions in that section had changed for the worse on account of the suspension of the Union canal, along which this stand was located—a condition brought about by the establishment of the Lebanon Valley railroad in 1857. Mr. Witman then moved to Wernersville, and established himself in the same business, continuing to conduct it successfully to the present time.

Mr. Witman is public-spirited and progressive, and while in Bernville he officiated as chief burgess in 1873, and for several terms was school director.

In 1861 Mr. Witman married Catharine Andrews, daughter of Abraham Andrews and his wife, Mary Bertram (daughter of Daniel Bertram of Penn township). Abraham Andrews was a carpenter by trade, and he and his wife had three children: Charles (m. Emma Harner); Isabella (m. John Embich); and Catharine (Mrs. Witman). To Mr. and Mrs. Witman ten children were born: Harry (m. Annie Auman); Annie (died unmarried aged thirty-seven); Miss Mary; Morton (m. Susan Sweimler); Ella (m. Arthur Wilcox); Miss Catharine; Ephraim (m. Laura Bohn); Rachel; and two died young. Mrs. Witman died in 1882, aged forty-three years. Mr. Witman m. (second) Rebecca Dietrich, widow of Isaac Dietrich and daughter of Samuel Boyer.

SAMUEL H. MECK, farmer of Tilden township, was born July 7, 1841, in that part of Upper Bern township, Berks county, now known as Tilden. His father and grandfather were both named Samuel.

Samuel Meck, the grandfather, lived in Longswamp township, Berks county, and died there in old age; he is buried at Hoff's Church. He was engaged as a farmer and furnace keeper. His children were: David, Charles, John, Samuel, Isaiah, Harietta and Catharine.

Samuel Meck, son of Samuel, was born on the paternal homestead, and like his father was a farmer and furnace keeper. When a young man he moved to Upper Bern township, where he bought the Hossler farm of 130 acres, upon which he lived until his death, which occurred when he was eighty-eight years old. He carried on farming throughout his active years, but retired from that occupation about thirty years before his demise. Mr. Meck married Salome Hossler, daughter of John Hossler, and they had children as follows: Sarah m. Jacob Moyer, who is now deceased; Samuel H. is mentioned further on; Henry and John live in Tilden township; Frank died when eight years old; Priscilla m. Jonathan Spayd, of Sinking Spring; Matilda died when eleven years old.

Samuel H. Meck attended the public schools during his boyhood, learned farming at home with his father, and remained with him, in 1875 buying sixty-eight acres of land from his father, Samuel Meck, to which he later added a tract of twenty acres. Subsequently he bought the homestead, then consisting of 100 acres, making this purchase

Sept. 6, 1902, and selling the property to his son Thomas A. in 1908. In 1893 he bought the Shock's farm and later sold it to his son Franklin C. Both sons are farmers. He has been a prosperous farmer for many years.

Mr. Meck married Emeline Hartzel, daughter of Isaac Hartzel, and they are the parents of two sons: Franklin C., born Nov. 30, 1868, a resident of Tilden township, married Lizzie Seaman; Thomas A., born Aug. 14, 1872, married Sallie Savage, and they have had two children, Charles (who died when seven days old) and Alvin (who is at school).

In 1862 Mr. Meck enlisted for service during the Civil war, becoming a member of Company B, 167th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, and served nine months. He is a Democrat in politics and in religious connection a Lutheran, belonging to St. Michael's Church.

WILLIAM B. MOLL, merchant at Siesholtzville, in Hereford township, was born there Feb. 1, 1843, son of Jacob Moll, and he is a member of a representative old family of this district, descendants of Georg Moll, as the name appears on his tombstone.

Georg Moll was a native of Wittenberg, Germany, born March 21, 1750, and was eighteen years old when he came to America on the ship "Minerva," with 107 other passengers, landing at Philadelphia in the fall of 1768. It appears that he soon afterward located in Hereford township, Berks county, and in 1790 he was the head of a family in that district. His name on the tax list that year was written John Georg Moll. In his will, which is on record in the court house in Book 5, page 237, his name is written George Moll. He was a property owner in the vicinity of Huff's Church. He died Oct. 27, 1810, aged sixty years, seven months, six days, and is interred in a private burial-ground on the farm now owned by David Rauch, a quarter of a mile northeast of Huff's Church. Here are buried over one hundred pioneer settlers of Hereford township who died prior to the establishment of Huff's Church in 1812, and the graveyard adjoining, including members of the Huff, Bechtel, Zimmerman, Moll and other families.

Georg Moll was twice married, and in his will provides for his second wife, Catherine, who is buried by his side. She was born in 1757, and died Feb. 15, 1839, at the age of eighty-two. In his will Georg Moll mentions these children: Johannes, George, Thomas, Martha, Maria, Elizabeth and Anna. Of these,

Johannes Moll, born in Hereford township Oct. 11, 1775, died Feb. 6, 1860, aged eighty-four years, three months, twenty-six days. He was a carpenter and cabinet-maker, and owned and lived in the house at Siesholtzville, now owned by David Wetzel. He was a tall, slim man, well-known and respected, regular in church attendance and a reader of the Bible. His wife, Elizabeth (Bittenbender), born June 15, 1780, died April 23, 1842, aged sixty-one years, ten months, eight days. They are buried at Huff's Church. Their children were: George; John; Christophel; Jacob; Polly (m. Jacob Moyer and (second) Anthony Stahler); a daughter (m. Jacob Snyder); Nancy (m. Peter Mensch); Susanna (m. Henry Hoffman); Peggy (m. Peter Dollman and (second) Ephraim Christman); and Betzy (m. Frederick Huff and (second) Michael Gery).

George Moll, son of Georg, was born in Hereford township, where he lived and died. He was a farmer by occupation, and owned a "two-horse" farm, now the property of John Will. He and his wife, Eve (Miller), daughter of Jacob Miller, are buried at Huff's Church. They had children as follows: George; Jacob; Jonas, who lived in "Devil's Hole," in Hereford; Thomas, who lived in Reading; Judith (m. Reuben Daub and lived in Forge Dale); Elizabeth (m. Lawrence Fisher, who is still living near Huff's Church); Sally (died unmarried); and Abigail (m. John Kuetz).

Anna Moll, daughter of Georg, born April 6, 1785, died April 2, 1877, aged ninety-one years, eleven months, twenty-seven days. She was the wife of George Huff.

Jacob Mull, son of George and grandson of Georg, spelled his name with the "u." He was born in Hereford, and lived at different places in that township, working as a carpenter and laborer, and died at the age of fifty-three years. His wife, Catharine Bossert, was a daughter of Adam Bossert, who was over six feet tall, raw-boned and exceedingly strong. Jacob Mull and his wife are buried at Huff's Church. Their children were: Charles B., Nathaniel, Henry, Jacob and William B.

Charles B. Moll, son of Jacob, born Jan. 1, 1831, has lived at Barto, Berks county, since 1863, and is engaged as a horse and cattle dealer. In 1857 he married Sarah Shiffert, and they have four children: Horace, Alfred, Andora and Agnes.

William B. Moll, son of Jacob, received a practical education in the schools of the home district. In his fourteenth year he became a clerk in the store at Siesholtzville, in the employ of Charles N. Gery, and on Feb. 12, 1872, he was taken into partnership with Mr. Gery under the firm name of Gery & Moll, which has continued up to the present time. They carry a full line of general merchandise and enjoy their full share of the patronage and good-will of the community. Mr. Moll is a self-made man, and respected in his district for his industrious career. For two terms he served as auditor of his township, to which office he was elected on the Democratic ticket.

In 1870 Mr. Moll married Emalinda Gery, daughter of Charles N. and Elizabeth (Moll) Gery, the former being Mr. Moll's employer and partner. Four children have been born to this union: Katie m. James Butz; Minnie m. Harry Butz, brother of James, and died in her twenty-seventh year; Sallie E., a graduate of the Normal school at Kutztown, class of 1898, is an esteemed teacher in Hereford township; William H., superintendent of the Norristown Brick Company, m. Mame Landis, and lives at Norristown. This family are German Reformed members of Huff's Church, of which Mr. Moll has served as deacon. He is a member of Camp No. 470, P. O. S. of A., of Siesholtzville, and of Covenant Commandery, No. 58, Knights of Malta, of Alburtis, Pennsylvania.

George Moll, son of Johannes, and grandson of Georg, both mentioned earlier in this sketch, was born in Hereford township, June 27, 1802, and died May 16, 1877, aged seventy-four years, ten months, nineteen days. He was reared at home, and worked at carpentering with his father until he reached the age of twenty-one years, after which he learned the tanner's trade from his uncle, Thomas Moll, at Geryville, in Bucks county. He followed tanning until after his father-in-law died, when the farm now owned by his son George came into his possession, and there he built the present barn in 1836 and the house in 1840. The tanning buildings were old, and he devoted all of his time to farming until a short time before his death. He was a leading man in his township, owning the old store and hotel property at Siesholtzville, and a farm of seventy-five acres in Hereford township now owned by Sylvester Schuler, and he had various financial interests, being an enterprising man, and almost always successful in his undertakings. He left an estate of $25,000. He was a Reformed member of Huff's Church and liberal in his contributions to that body.

Mr. Moll was married three times, first to Elizabeth Siesholtz, by whom he had nine children: Elizabeth, Sarah, Molly, John, Samuel, and four who died young. By his second marriage, to Mrs. Anna (Fox) Leeser, he had one daughter, Lovina, who became the wife of Daniel Marsteller. To his third union, with Mrs. Anna (Lichtenwalner) Mohr (1804-1877), were born two children, Reuben A., and George F.

George F. Moll, son of George, born July 13, 1844, began farming the homestead in 1877, when it came into his possession. It comprises 150 acres of valuable land and has been in the Moll family since 1832. In 1875 Mr. Moll married Emma Ashton, daughter of Maberry Ashton, a native of England, and to them have been born three children: Mary M., Annie M., and Laura H.

ISAAC HARRISON O'HARRA, who was engaged in the tailoring business in Philadelphia for many years, and who died in that city in 1888, was prominent in business, fraternal and political circles. Mr. O'Harra was born in Bridgeton, Cumberland Co., N. J., in 1817, and was educated in the schools of that place. When a boy he was apprenticed to the tailor's trade in Philadelphia, where his business life was spent. He was for a number of years engaged in business for himself, and became prominently known, his interests being large and varied. He was connected with the Masonic order and active in its interests, as he was also in the I. O. O. F. In politics he was a stanch Republican, filling various positions of trust and responsibility, and was at one time a member of the Pennsylvania State Legislature.

Mr. O'Harra married (first) Elizabeth Miles, and to them were born four children: Mary; Annie (m. Horace T. Potts, of Philadelphia); Agnes, deceased; and Ella, of Philadelphia. Mr. O'Harra m. (second) Maria Johnston, a native of Lehigh county, Pa., and a daughter of Adam Johnston, and four children were born to this union: Julia (m. James Rick, mentioned elsewhere); Isaac H. (who is connected with the Fidelity Trust Company, of Philadelphia, Pa.); Adam J. (of Reading, employed by the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company); and John B. (deceased). In religious belief Mr. O'Harra was a Baptist, to which faith his widow, who survives him and resides in Reading, also adheres.

CYRUS B. SMITH, postmaster at Wernersville, was born in Lower Heidelberg township, Jan. 2, 1843, son of Samuel and Anna (Bauer) Smith, and grandson of John Smith, Middletown, Dauphin county, the latter of whom was the father of three sons, William, John and Samuel.

Samuel Smith, father of Cyrus B., was born in 1810 in Dauphin county, and removed with his parents to Berks county in about the year 1825. He learned the trade of shoemaker and followed it for upward of fifty years. He died in 1890, at the age of eighty years. He married Anna Bauer, and they were the parents of twelve children: Abbeline m. John Sallade; Mary Ann m. Rudolf Hart; Catharine m. Levi Wenrich; Ellen m. Isaac Y. Kintzer; Franklin m. Clementine Rader; Henry m. Melinda Reifsnyder; Cyrus B.; Sarah m. John Body; Rebecca m. John Schaeffer; John m. (first) Ella Wanner, and (second) Miranda Maurer; and two died in childhood.

Cyrus B. Smith was educated in the public schools, and learned the trade of blacksmith, which he followed from 1863 to 1895, excepting several years when he drove a team. In 1895 he was obliged to discontinue working at his trade on account of an excession of muscle of the right arm. During the Civil war he served as a private for nine months in 1862 and 1863, in Company A, 167th Pa. Militia. He has served as town auditor for three terms, and in 1897, on the inauguration of President McKinley, Mr. Smith was appointed postmaster at Wernersville, and his official duties were so well performed that he was twice re-appointed, he being now in his third term.

Mr. Smith married Sarah Weiser, of Sinking Spring, daughter of Raymond Weiser, granddaughter of Philip Weiser, and great-granddaughter of Solomon Weiser. Raymond Weiser married Hannah Palm, and became the father of seven children: Christiana (m. John Sell); Rebecca (m. John P. Luft); William (m. Kate Whitmoyer); Sarah (Mrs. Smith); and three died young. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were also the parents of seven children, as follows: Wilson (m. Anna Resch); Laura (m. Arthur Dettes); Clarence (m. Mary Texter); Stella (unmarried); and three died young.

WILLIAM C. EDINGER owns two farms in Colebrookdale township, Berks county, where he lives and farms, his home being near the town of Gablesville. His great-grandfather, Frederick Eddinger, was a pioneer of the county, having been a resident of District township in 1790. He was a blacksmith by occupation. In religion he was a Lutheran, and he is buried at the Longswamp Church. He and his wife, Catharine (Reppert), had a family of four children: Frederick, Jr., Peter, Jacob and Joseph.

Peter Edinger, son of Frederick, was born Jan. 1, 1795, in the Blue Mountain region, and died May 26, 1868-69, at the Devil's Hole; he is buried in an unmarked grave at Bally Catholic Church, of which he was a member, though he was originally a Lutheran, changing his church connection when he married, as his wife was a Catholic. Peter Edinger was a resident of Washington township, was a blacksmith by calling, and followed that trade at the forges in Lower Berks county. He married Maria Reppert, his mother's cousin, and they had a family of eight children: John lived in Washington township; Abraham lived at Allentown, Pa.; Catharine married John Fisher and lives with her daughter, Mrs. William Fry, in Hereford township; Anna married a Mr. Mest; Elias is mentioned below; Frederick, born June 21, 1826, died June 21, 1879; Elizabeth, widow of Daniel Reppert, lives at Chester, Pa.; Magdalena, widow of George DeLong, makes her home with her son, Oswin DeLong, at Huff's church. Of this family, Frederick Edinger, born June 21, 1826, was killed by a mine explosion at Emaus, Lehigh county, on which occasion eleven men lost their lives, June 21, 1879, his fifty-third birthday. In earlier life he lived in Douglass, and Washington townships, Berks county, and he and his family were members of the Catholic Church at Bally, where they are buried. He married Sophia Miller, born in 1827, died 1902, and they had children as follows: Henry, Annie, Edwin, Amanda, Jerome, Mary, Frederick, and Lizzie.

Elias Edinger, son of Peter, was born in Washington township, Berks county, April 29, 1822, and died Jan. 8, 1892, on his farm one and a half miles west of Gablesville, aged seventy years, eight months, nine days. He is buried at Hill Church, of which he and his family were Lutheran members. Mr. Edinger was a blacksmith in Earl township, where he owned a thirty-acre tract, which he sold in time and bought the farm of sixty-five acres one and a half miles west of Gablesville, living there until his death. He married Mary Clauser, daughter of George and Catharine (Moser) Clauser, and nine children were born to them: Hannah (m. William Kummerer); William C.; Mary Ann (m. Jacob Hatfield, of Pottstown); Catharine, deceased (m. Horace Herbst); John (of Boyertown); Morris (of Barto, Pa.); Obediah (of Earl township); Ellen (m. Francis Wentzel, of Pottstown, Pa.); and Frank (lives in Earl township).

William C. Edinger was born in Berks county July 16, 1848, and was reared to farming, continuing to work for his parents until he reached his majority. He followed carpentering for twelve years in Colebrookdale and Earl and surrounding districts, and in 1884 he began farming at Boyertown, on the Shaner homestead, which consisted of over one hundred acres, and upon which he remained eight years. In the spring of 1893 he moved to his present place, a ninety-six-acre farm in Colebrookdale township, to which he devotes most of his time, renting his other farm, which is the same size as his home place. The big stone house on his home place is a dwelling of Revolutionary times, built by Johannes Bahr, and though old is still in the best condition. The barn was built in 1801, and is in excellent shape, having been remodeled by the present owner in 1896. In addition to general farming Mr. Edinger engages in dairying, shipping his milk to a creamery. Mr. Edinger is interested in the welfare of his locality, and served three years as a member of the school board. He is a Democrat in politics.

On Oct. 2, 1870, Mr. Edinger married Maria Moyer, daughter of Isaac and Elizabeth (Matthias) Moyer, of Earl township, and granddaughter of Henry Moyer. Eight children have been born to this union, namely: Jacob, who rents his father's farm before mentioned, m. Sallie Moyer, and they have a family of five children, Lena, Ralph, Mary, Beulah and Howard; Sallie m. Henry Johnson, and was a widow at the time she met death in the terrible theatre disaster at Boyertown (she had a daughter Gertie and a son Ernest who survive their mother and live with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Edinger); Agnes m. Daniel Gabel, and both died in the disastrous Boyertown fire of Jan. 13, 1908; Lizzie m. Wayne Hartman, of Gablesville, and is the mother of four children, Russell, William, Hilda and Edith; Charles, who is unmarried, assists his father upon the farm; William, also unmarried, helps with the work at home; Bertha is at home; Florence perished in the Boyertown fire previously mentioned.

Mr. Edinger and his family are members of St. John's Lutheran Church at Boyertown, and he has been one of the prominent workers in that congregation, having served as deacon and elder.

RICHARD HAIN, a retired farmer at Wernersville and supervisor of that section of the Berks and Dauphin turnpike for over forty years, was born in Lower Heidelberg township Jan. 6, 1827, son of Daniel and Magdalena (Hain) Hain. He received his education in the township school and at a private academy which was conducted by Prof. Jeremiah J. Brower, at Unionville, near Douglassville, Berks county. When seventeen years old he taught school for one term in Lower Heidelberg township, and then assisted his father on the farm for eighteen years, until 1862, with the exception of one year when he acted as clerk for Daniel B. Bucks, in the coal, lumber and hotel business at Wernersville. In 1862 he took the farm and carried on operations for himself for twenty-six years, until 1888, when he retired and has since been living in retirement.

In 1863 Mr. Hain became a director of the Berks and Dauphin turnpike, and, at the same time, supervisor of the section from Sinking Spring to Robesonia, and he filled these positions with the company until the turnpike was declared free, in 1905, from Reading to Wernersville by legal proceedings which extended over many years. His father had filled the same positions for twenty years until his death in 1862. Mr. Hain filled the position of school director of the township for one term, and served as a deacon and elder of Hain's Reformed Church for several years.

Richard Hain married Anna Esther Huyett, daughter of John Huyett, a farmer of Cumru township, and has two children: Franklin (m. Sadie J. Beam, of Chester county, and has one child, Richard Beam, born Feb. 14, 1906); and Charles (m. Oct. 4, 1908, Leah K. Hain, their marriage taking place in Hain's Reformed Church, and being the first wedding ever held in this historic church). Leah Hain was a daughter of John H. Hain, and his wife, Rebecca (Gerhart) Hain.

Daniel Hain, father of Richard, was born in Lower Heidelberg in 1787, and died in 1862. He married Magdalena Hain, daughter of Isaac Hain, of the same township. She died in 1882, at the age of seventy-five years. They had five children: Richard; Isaac, who married Sarah Miller; Anna, Mrs. William B. Krick; and two who died in infancy.

Frederick Hain was the grandfather of Richard, and his great-grandfather was Casper Hain. (See sketch of Lewis J. Hain elsewhere.)

Mrs. Richard Hain's father was John Huyett, a farmer of Cumru township, born in 1799 and died in 1887. He married Elizabeth Hartman, a daughter of John and Sophia (Maurer) Hartman, of Muhlenberg township. She was born in 1796, and died in 1868. They had eleven children: Garson (m. Eva Gaul); Sarah (m. Daniel Zacharias); Charles (m. Elizabeth Beidler); Daniel (m. Lydia Gaul); James (m. Mary Gaul); Anna; Leah, John, Lewis and Elizabeth, unmarried; and one who died in infancy. Her grandfather, John Hartman, had six children, John, Daniel, Frederick, Elizabeth, Mary and Sophia.

SAMUEL F. HOFFMAN, one of the old residents of Perry township, Berks county, Pa., who is now living retired after a life spent in agricultural pursuits, was born Nov. 10, 1847, in the district where he still resides, son of George and Appolona (Fisher) Hoffman.

The progenitor of the Hoffman family in this country was Jacob Hoffman, a native of Germany, who settled in Greenwich township prior to 1758, and there owned some land.

George Hoffman, son of Jacob, was an early settler in Windsor township.

Michael Hoffman, son of George, was born Nov. 28, 1786, and died Jan. 10, 1874. He was an Assemblyman of Pennsylvania, representing Berks county in 1857. His salary was seventy-five cents per day, and he took his board along, making his journey to the capital on horseback. He owned a large tract of land in Perry township, where he lived, and for many years was a justice of the peace. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him, he being a very just man, a prominent Hoffman characteristic to this day. His wife was Catherine Schappell, daughter of Everhart and Catherine Schappell, who came from Germany.

George Hoffman, son of Michael and father of Samuel F., was born Aug. 11, 1811, and died in October, 1887. He was a stone mason for twelve years, but later in life took up agricultural pursuits, owning a farm of ninety-five acres. He was married to Appolona Fisher, daughter of Philip Fisher, and to them were born these children: Eliza, Henry, William and Samuel F.

Samuel F. Hoffman attended the common schools of his township until eighteen years of age. When a young man he learned the trade of miller, which business he followed for a few years, leaving it because of ill health. In 1874 he began farming, and this he followed until his removal to a tract of fifteen acres, lying one mile east of Shoemakersville. His farm of eighty acres in Perry township is being cultivated by his son-in-law. Mr. Hoffman is esteemed and respected by all who know him. In politics he is a Democrat, and has served his township as auditor. He and his wife take occasional pleasure trips, visiting the capitol at Washington, and the new State capitol in 1906.

Mr. Hoffman was united in marriage in 1871 to Sarah Lindenmuth, daughter of Reuben and Lydia (Rothermel) Lindenmuth, and granddaughter of Joseph and Racey (Herber) Lindenmuth. Two children have been born to this union, namely: Laura, born Jan. 27, 1872, married Oscar Miller and died Jan. 5, 1894, leaving three children: Cora, Harvey and Clarence; and Elmira A., born July 20, 1874, married Irwin Lengel and they have eight children, namely: Irwin, Spurgeon H., Laura L., Luther L., Floyd, Mabel, Esthel M., and Steward.

JACOB KISSINGER, an honored veteran of the Civil war, who resides on the old Kissinger homestead, at Kissinger's Church, in Spring township, Berks county, was born on his present farm Dec. 18, 1839, son of Abraham M. and Abolonia (Hill) Kissinger.

Michael Kissinger, the American ancestor of this well-known family, was a native of the Fatherland. He owned a large estate in Bern township in 1782, on May 8th of which year he made his last will and testament, which was probated in 1791, the year of his death. The will provides amply for his beloved wife, Mary Catharine. Their children were: Michael; John, who had a son John and three daughters; Abraham; Ulrich; Barbara Bricker; Mary; Catharine; Susanna; and Eva Elizabeth.

John Kissinger, grandson of Michael the ancestor, lived at Mohn's Hill in Spring township, and owned a small farm, on which he died in 1851, and where he is buried in a small burying-ground. He married Catharine Garner, and they had these children: Polly, Sallie, Lizzie, Kate, John, Elijah and Henry. Of this family, Elijah Kissinger was a farmer and trucker. He was born in 1811, died in 1885, and is buried at Gouglersville. His wife was Louise Messinger (1822-1875), and they had eight children: Rebecca, Sarah, John, Samuel M., Mary, Elijah, Louise and Henry. Samuel M. Kissinger, son of Elijah and grandson of John, was born Dec. 4, 1851, and is a truck farmer near Knauer's, in Brecknock township. In 1874 he married Amanda Trostle, and they have a family of sixteen children, as follows: Albert, Sallie, Katie, Mary, Lizzie, Samuel, Julia, John, Mamie, Charles, Harry, Grover, Carrie, Maud, Jennie and Amanda.

Abraham Kissinger, grandfather of Jacob, was born Sept. 17, 1778, in Bern township, and died in Spring township May 16, 1860, aged eighty-one years, seven months, twenty-nine days. He was a miller, and for many years worked for his father, Ulrich Kissinger, who owned and operated a gristmill which stood immediately above the Schuylkill avenue bridge. Abraham Kissinger in later years purchased a farm of 112 acres in Spring township, which was divided into four parts among his children at the time of his death. He married Elizabeth Moyer, daughter of Johannes Moyer, and their children were: Daniel, born Dec. 17, 1801, died Nov. 25, 1850, and was buried in Kissinger's cemetery; Susanna, born Oct. 1, 1805, died Jan 10, 1856; Benjamin, born June 4, 1807, died Oct. 16, 1888; Eliza m. Charles Powell; Abraham M. is mentioned below; Jacob, born June 16, 1815, died Feb. 19, 1898, m. (first) Sarah Koch (1826-1853) and (second) Matilda Dunkelberger (1831-1901). Kissinger's Church along the Tulpehocken was named after Abraham Kissinger and his brother John, the former donating the half-acre upon which stands the cemetery, and the latter the land upon which the church was built in 1852. The Kissinger schoolhouse was erected near the church some years later.

Abraham M. Kissinger, father of Jacob, born April 19, 1811, near the Schuylkill bridge in Bern township, died Nov. 14, 1882. In 1854 he obtained the Kissinger farm, which he operated the remainder of his life. Mr. Kissinger m. Abolonia Hill, born June 1, 1807, who died Aug. 30, 1892, daughter of Jacob Hill, of Alsace township. To this union were born eleven children, all of whom survive but two: Jonathan, of Reading, m. Catherine Trout; Elizabeth m. William Mover, of Lyons, Pa.; Susan m. Francis Mee, of Riverside, Pa.; Catharine m. William Gring of West Reading, Pa.; Amos m. Clementine Huff, and resided at Dauberville, Pa., where he died in August, 1905, aged seventy years; Jacob; Sarah m. Daniel Frymoyer, of Reading; Abbie m. Daniel Wanner, of Riverside; Dr. Abraham, deceased, m. (first) a Miss Schuder and (second) Sue Weiler, and lived at Terre Hill, Pa.; Louisa m. William Wanner, of Reading; and Henry m. Maggie Yost, of Reading.

Jacob Kissinger was reared to agricultural pursuits, and when seventeen years of age learned the blacksmith's trade with Amos Albright, of Bern township. He worked for his parents until attaining his majority, at which time he commenced farming the homestead for himself, and in the spring of 1874 went to North Reading, now called Riverside, where he built two brick houses, into one of which he moved. For the following eight years he was car inspector for the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, but in 1882 he again engaged in farming, purchasing the thirty-nine-acre tract after his father's death. Mr. Kissinger has been very successful in his operations, and for thirteen years was a well-known figure at the Reading markets. He and his family are Lutheran members of Kissinger's Union Church, of which he was a deacon.

On Oct. 27, 1862, Mr. Kissinger became a member for nine months' service, of Company E, 167th Regiment, Pennsylvania Drafted Militia, Capt. Hiram H. Miller, and was discharged Aug. 12, 1863, at Reading, where he enlisted March 3, 1865, this time entering Capt. Andrew L. Lanigan's Company F, 6th Regiment, Pennsylvania Cavalry; he was discharged Aug. 17, 1865, at Louisville, Ky. Among various engagements Mr. Kissinger participated in the battles of Suffolk, Va., Blackwater (Deserted Farm), and Cartsville. His service was characterized by bravery and faithfulness, and his war record is one to be proud of.

After his return from the war Mr. Kissinger was employed in the stone quarry of Peter Finkfrock for three years. He then went to Deep Creek Valley, Schuylkill Co., Pa., and was employed as a teamster by Joseph Raemer, hauling timber to coal mines, after which he went to Chillicothe, Mo., where he farmed for one year. Selling his farm stock he returned East.

In 1874 Mr. Kissinger married Lizzie F. Foreman, born Nov. 9, 1845, daughter of Henry and Mary (Fritz) Foreman, of Reading. She died March 13, 1900. To this union were born three children: Nora, born April 24, 1878, died Nov. 14, 1884; Harry A., who is unmarried, is at present located at Grand Junction, Colo., working in the department store of William J. Moyer; Laura D. married Percival Fry, a clerk in a department store at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and by this union there is one daughter, Florence Elizabeth, born Nov. 30, 1907, on the old Kissinger homestead.

WILLIAM HARRISON R. POTTS (deceased), who was for many years a well-known and prosperous agriculturist and influential citizen of Amity township, Berks county, was born in Union township, Berks county, in 1841, son of Amos and Sarah (Reifsnyder) Potts.

Amos Potts, father of William H. R., was also a farmer of Amity township, where his death occurred in 1895, at the age of eighty-seven years, and that of his wife, Sarah Reifsnyder, in 1846. To Mr. and Mrs. Potts the following children were born: Henry F.; Mary A., married to John Bisbing; Andrew J. and William Harrison R., twins; and James, who is deceased. Amos Potts married (second) Mary Spies, but there were no children born to this union. In religious belief Mr. Potts adhered to the faith of the United Brethren Church. In politics he was a Republican, but it is not known whether he ever held office.

William Harrison R. Potts was reared upon the home farm in Amity township, and he made farming his life work, continuing in agricultural pursuits until his death in 1888. In 1869 he was married to Susan M. Bower, daughter of Daniel Bower, of Amity township, and there were two children born to this union, namely: Tillie B., who died at the age of three years; and Minnie, who married Howard M. Livingood, and has three children: William P., Howard L. and Catherine M. In religious belief Mr. Potts was of the United Brethren Church, and his political principles were those of the Republican party. During the Civil war Mr. Potts enlisted in the Union army, in Company G, 175th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, in which regiment he served nine months.

PETER Y. BRUMBACH, now living retired at his home in Bechtelsville, was born in Earl township, Berks county, Nov. 30, 1839.

The early home of the Brumbachs was in Switzerland, but they have been identified with Berks county, Pa., particularly in the manufacturing industry, since before the war of the Revolution.

Hermanus Brumbach, born in 1751, died in 1803, and was buried at Amityville, Berks county. He was a farmer and weaver in Oley township. His will, probated in 1803, was written in German and signed in a good firm hand. His sons, Samuel and Jacob, were the executors. He married Maria Catherine Pott, who was born in 1749, and died in 1832, and was buried at Amityville. Their children were: (1) A daughter (name not recorded) died young. (2) John, born Dec. 5, 1774, died young. (3) Mathias, born Oct. 9, 1776, m. Mary Custer, and died Feb. 5, 1852, and is buried at Norristown. (4) Samuel, born 1780, died 1801. (5) Jacob, twin to Samuel, born 1780, m. (first) Dorothy Bear, (second) Susan Gumbert, and died Aug. 7, 1878, and was buried at Reading. (6) John (2), born Nov. 5, 1783, m. Catherine Engle, and died at an advanced age and was buried at Boyertown. (7) George is mentioned below. (8) Abraham, born Aug. 2, 1789, m. Elizabeth Albright and died Jan. 23, 1872. (9) Daniel, born Feb. 20, 1792, m. Catherine Spohn, and died March 29, 1884, at Shanesville, and is buried at Hill Church. (10) David, born April 5, 1794, m. (first) Deborah De Turck (born Feb. 10, 1795, died May 10, 1855) and (second) Mary Muthard (born 1799, died 1889) and died Nov. 18, 1876. (11) William, born Aug. 6, 1795, m. Susan Moses, and died April 27, 1852.

George Brumbach, son of Hermanus, was born June 8, 1787. He was a farmer and owned a farm in Earl township, now the property of his grandson, Peter Y. In his earlier life he was a weaver, weaving both wool and flax. He had considerable ability as a veterinarian, and his services were often called into requisition. He died at his home in Pleasantville, Dec. 5, 1875, and is buried at Oley Churches. In 1809 he married Elizabeth Koch, born Aug. 27, 1784, died Aug. 29, 1860. They had three children: Henry; Susanna m. Daniel Clauser, justice of the peace of Earl township for many years; and Catherine m. Nathaniel Harner, who conducted a mill at Lobachsville some years. George Brumbach's will, probated the year of his death, was written in German.

Henry Brumbach, son of George, was born Sept. 3, 1811, and he died May 27, 1899, and is buried at the cemetery at Hill Church. He was a very successful farmer, and he built the present barn on the farm owned by his son, Peter Y. This was in 1866. On a twenty-two-acre tract adjoining he built a house, barn and out-buildings, and this tract is now the property of his daughter Lucinda, who is unmarried. He also built a house in Shanesville, in 1876, now owned by his son-in-law, A. R. Eshbach. For some years before his death he lived retired at Shanesville, in Earl township. He was a well-known Democrat, and he served as assessor of Earl township. He was deacon and elder at Hill Church many years, and he was always liberal in his donations to worthy causes. His wife, Mary Yoder, was born in 1805, daughter of Abraham Yoder, of Pike township. She died in 1873. Their children were: William lived at Bechtelsville; Peter Y.; Mary Ann m. Abraham Eshbach; Lucinda; Solomon lives at Shanesville, unmarried; Hettie is unmarried; Alfred is a farmer in Washington township; and one died young.

Peter Y. Brumbach attended both pay and public schools in Earl township. He grew to manhood on the farm, and began for himself on his father's farm when twenty-eight years old. There he lived until 1900, with the exception of one year (1863) when he served as hired man in Montgomery county. In 1900 he retired from active work and moved to Bechtelsville. He still owns the homestead of 106 acres. His present comfortable home is located on South Main street, Bechtelsville. He is a very substantial citizen and is one of the large tax payers of the borough. Mr. Brumbach has worked hard for his property, but he is very progressive and is ever ready to advance any project for the improvement of his town and county. He and his family are members of the Reformed Congregation at Hill Church, of which he was deacon and elder many years. He was also active in the Sunday-school at Hill Church, serving as its treasurer many years.

On Sept. 16, 1865, Mr. Brumbach married Malinda Gilbert, daughter of David and Harriet (Snyder) Gilbert, of Colebrookdale township, and granddaughter of Jacob Gilbert. They have one daughter, Emma, organist of the Hill Church choir three years, and Sunday-school thirteen years, and at present a member of the Bechtelsville choir; she married Artemus B. Fisher, son of Nicholas Fisher of New Berlinville, and clerk in a store at Bechtelsville.

DANIEL SCHLEGEL, manufacturer of and dealer in steam engines and boilers, steam and water pipes and fittings, and creamery outfits and supplies, has carried on his present business at Boyertown since 1875. He was born Nov. 20, 1848, at Fleetwood, in Richmond township, Berks county, in which neighborhood the family has been located for over a century. Samuel Schlegel, his grandfather, was born in Richmond township, where he followed farming all his life, and he is buried in a private burial ground on a farm now owned by Abraham Schlegel, near Fleetwood.

Jacob Schlegel, son of Samuel and father of Daniel Schlegel, was born in Richmond township in 1800, and died in 1861, after an industrious agricultural career. He owned part of the original homestead, his farm consisting of sixty-two acres of good land, which is now cut up into building lots around Fleetwood. His remains rest in the old Fleetwood burying-ground. He married Hettie Angstadt, of Rockland township, Berks county, who survived him a number of years, living to the age of nearly eighty. Fourteen children were born to this union: John (deceased), Jacob, Henry, Daniel, Isaac, Sarah (deceased), Susan, Rebecca (deceased), Hettian, Emma, Kate, and three who died young.

Daniel Schlegel was reared on the old home farm in his native township, near Fleetwood, and was eighteen years old when he commenced to learn the machinist's trade, at Fleetwood. He served his apprenticeship with Schaeffer, Melchior & Co., with whom he remained four years. As previously stated, he opened his business in Boyertown in 1875, locating on Washington street, near the railroad station, where he has remained to the present day. Mr. Schlegel has a first-class machine shop, and does all kinds of repair work as well as manufacturing, always having employment for several mechanics. He is a master workman himself, and takes pride in turning out articles of superior quality, making a specialty of creamery supplies and outfits. He has equipped nearly all the creameries within a radius of fifteen miles around Boyertown, and altogether has fitted about twenty-five, his reputation in this line being founded on satisfactory machinery and its expert adjustment. The main part of the shop is 20x60 feet in dimensions, and the additions afford all the room necessary to carry on the business conveniently. Mr. Schlegel is progressive as well as industrious, and he holds an interest in nearly all the local enterprises which have brought Boyertown to the front as an up-to-date borough.

In 1877 Mr. Schlegel married Miss Ellen Romich, daughter of John Romich, of Douglass township, Berks county, and they had one daughter, Katie, who died in 1907, when twenty-six years old. Mrs. Ellen Schlegel was born in 1854, and died at the age of twenty-six years. For his second wife Mr. Schlegel married Mrs. Isabella (Guldin) Van Reed, widow of James Van Reed. No children have been born to this union. Mr. and Mrs. Schlegel are members of St. John's Lutheran Church. They reside at the corner of Third and Washington streets, Boyertown. Mr. Schlegel has no inclination for politics or public life, and he has never had any ambition for office.

Peter Guldin, father of Mrs. Schlegel, was a farmer near Friedensburg, in Oley township, this county, his property in that locality comprising 130 acres of fine land, now owned by Mrs. Schlegel. There is a stone house standing on the place that was built in 1809, and is still in good condition. There is considerable limestone in the region thereabout, and under this old house is a cave which has a uniform temperature of about forty degrees Fahrenheit, and which is an ideal place for keeping meats and vegetables, etc. It was made by Mrs. Schlegel's grandfather, Daniel Guldin.

Peter Guldin owned another farm, which was a part of the old Guldin homestead, and which is now the property of Willoughby High.

ELLIS L. CASTOR, superintendent of the Reading Cotton Mills, is a native of Berks county, and his entire life has been identified with that immediate locality. His birth occurred in Exeter township, Feb. 15, 1857, son of William L. and Louisa A. (Dorsey) Castor.

The parents were both natives of Philadelphia. William L. Castor was a shoemaker and tailor by trade, but was at one period in business as a merchant, and also gave considerable attention to farming. He died in Reading in 1893, aged seventy-eight, his wife passing away in 1888, aged sixty-six. Of their children—six sons—George W. was drowned at Pigeon Rocks, in the Schuylkill river; Edward M., deceased, was foreman in the blacksmith department for J. H. Sternbergh (m. Miss Mary Martin); William D., deceased, was for many years in partnership with his father in a clothing business, but for a considerable period prior to his death had been a salesman for Curtis, Jones & Co., shoe manufacturers (m. Miss Josephine Reller); Jesse M. is a blacksmith at the Scott Works, of Reading (m. Miss Hannah Homan); Ellis L. is the subject of this sketch; and Thomas D. is in the clothing department of G. M. Britton & Co., of Reading (m. Miss Margaret Davis). The family were all brought up in the Baptist faith, while in politics father and sons were for years loyal Democrats.

Ellis L. Castor began his business career at an early age as a clerk in a dry goods and grocery store, but was there only a short time. When hardly more than a boy, only fifteen years of age, he was taken into the office of the Reading Cotton Mills as a book-keeper, and from that time, in 1872, he has been regularly promoted. On Aug. 2, 1900, Mr. Smith, who had held the position of superintendent, died, and Mr. Castor was put in his place, which he has ever since filled with the greatest success.

In 1902 the company was incorporated as the Garner & Co. Mills, though still known as the Reading Cotton Mills. A new power plant had been installed in 1897, with a 750-horse-power Wetherell-Corliss engine, while there are also three 200-horse-power Berry boilers. A cooling pond was built for these at the same time, and the total cost of the improvements amounted to $25,000. The mills employ about 300 hands and have a large output, having 415-40 plain looms with 17,216 spindles (ring spinning), with a production of about 120,000 yards of cloth weekly.

Mr. Castor was married in 1876 to Miss Matilda Reich, a native of Reading. Of the six children born to this union, only two are living, namely: Emma L., Mrs. Frederick Thurow; and Ellis R., who is employed by the William S. Cooper Brass Works, with offices at No. 816 Chestnut street, Reading; he is a member and liberal supporter of the Memorial Church of the Holy Cross (M. E.). Mr. Castor is a member of Reading Council No. 1104, Royal Arcanum; Grand Fraternity, No. 72; charter member of Isaac Hiester Lodge No. 660, F. and A. M.; Reading Castle, No. 49, K. G. E.; Camp No. 329, P. O. S. of A.; Reading Chamber, No. 26, Knights of Friendship; and Reading Consultory No. 3, Knights of Friendship. In politics he is now independent. He is a man of real power and highly esteemed in both business and social circles.

REV. FATHER ADALBERT MALUSECKI, the beloved pastor of St. Mary's Polish Roman Catholic Church, of Reading, is a native of Austrian Poland, born Nov. 10, 1860. After attending the parochial schools, he entered the Gymnasium in Galicia and later the Innsbruck University and then Vienna University, from which latter institution he was graduated in 1886.

Coming to America in 1886, Father Malusecki entered St. Charles Seminary, and after one year of study there, was ordained, in 1887, by Archbishop Ryan of the Diocese of Philadelphia, his first charge being a congregation at Berks and Memphis streets, Philadelphia, where he remained eight years, during which time a church was built at a cost of $90,000, this being considered, in point of architecture, one of the finest edifices in the city of Philadelphia. In 1894 Father Malusecki was called to St. Mary's Church of Reading. On coming to this parish the Father found it in a very depleted condition, but through his faithful and untiring efforts he has succeeded in bringing about wonderful changes and improvements. It was largely due to his constant and self-sacrificing labors that the present handsome church edifice was completed, at the corner of Twelfth and Spruce streets, which had been undertaken some years previously, he expending some $46,000 in its completion. Since taking this parish Father Malusecki has also erected a parochial school at a cost of $24,000. On his coming to this parish there were but 300 families in the congregation, while now 800 families, aggregating about 4,000 souls, attend Divine services. Father Malusecki is a faithful worker in God's vineyard, and is greatly beloved by his congregation.

DR. JOHN HENRY REED, a successful physician and surgeon at Logansport, Ind., and a lineal descendant of the Reed family of Berks county, Pa., was born May 30, 1860, in Clinton township, Cass Co., Ind., five miles southwest of Logansport, on a farm which his father had secured in 1845, while yet in the wild and dense forest. The father, being a skilled stone and brick mason, improved the place in 1851 by the erection with his own hands and skill of a superior two-story stone mansion, which is still standing and occupied by the Doctor, the place having been purchased by him from his mother, in 1900. He attended school in what was known as the "Stone School house," three-fourths of a mile away, also built by his father, during a period of about three months in each year until he was fifteen years old, and then he entered the schools of Logansport, which he attended for four years. With this preparation he next entered Wittenberg College, an English Lutheran institution at Springfield, Ohio, for the purpose of taking the regular scientific course of instruction, preparatory to entering the Theological seminary, but after attending three years he was obliged to suspend his studies on account of a weakened condition of his eyes. Returning home and engaging in the management of his father's farm for a year, his eyes improved so much that he felt able to resume his studies. Selecting the medical profession for his vocation, in the early spring of 1883 he entered the office of Dr. J. W. Ballard, of Logansport, Ind., in which office he read medicine as best he could for three months, under adverse circumstances, and on Oct. 10, 1883, unassisted by any preceptor, was admitted into the Ohio Medical College at Cincinnati, Ohio. Upon completing a term there he entered the office of Dr. C. E. Scholl, of Rockfield, Ind., in April, 1884, and after pursuing his studies with him for four months, secured, through his influence, an interneship in the University of Maryland Hospital at Baltimore. He graduated in medicine from the University of Maryland, March 17, 1885, finishing his interneship at the hospital at the same time. Then he took a post-graduate course on diseases of the throat and chest, after which he returned to his father's farm and assisted in the farming operations until August, 1885. Deciding to locate at Idaville, White county, Ind., for the practice of his profession, he opened an office there which he carried on until 1894, when he removed to Burnettsville, three miles east of Idaville, because of religious and domestic conditions, but continued his drug business at Idaville, established in 1889, until the year 1899, when he sold it to W. A. Bryan, his former faithful hostler, beloved student and clerk. He however, remained there but for four years (they being the most serviceable years of his professional life), when after another course taken at Chicago, he removed to Monticello, the county-seat, where he formed a partnership with Dr. M. T. Didlake, a well established and much honored and respected medical practitioner at that place, and assisted in carrying on an active practice under the name of Didlake & Reed until March, 1904. Having become the owner of the homestead farm in 1900, and because of other aforesaid causes, he retired from the partnership and removed to Logansport. After taking another course of six weeks in the Post-Graduate Medical College of New York, Dr. Reed resumed his practice at Logansport, which he has pursued energetically and creditably until the present time. In connection with his practice he carried on farming operations on the homestead "Galadale" farm with much pleasure and recreation. During the years 1888, 1889 and part of 1890 while practising at Idaville, Dr. Reed served with honor to himself, and satisfaction to his party, as trustee of the township (Jackson), in which he lived.

In April, 1890, Dr. Reed married Laura Bell Hall, daughter of William and Rebecca Jane (Ike) Hall, of Idaville, She was educated, and afterward taught for a number of years in the public schools of White and adjoining counties. They have three children, Hazel Lucile, Gerald Greenlee and Velda Dolorous.

Jacob Reed, great-grandfather of the Doctor, was of Tulpehocken township, Berks county, Pa. He married Christina Bergerheiser, of Germany, and by her he had six children, Eva, Barbara, John, George, Henry and Jacob.

Jacob Reed, the grandfather, was a farmer of Tulpehocken township, near Stouchsburg, where he was born Nov. 25, 1780. He died in 1849, in Montgomery county, Ohio, whither he had removed in 1835. He was married in 1810 to Elizabeth Brown, of Stouchsburg, and by her he had twelve children: John m. Elizabeth Naftszinger; Jacob m. a Moyer; Michael, the Doctor's father, is mentioned below; David m. Agnes Guthery; William m. Elizabeth Ann Miller; Anna Margaret m. John Leis; Martha m. John Libecap; Elizabeth m. Henry Kuhn; Miss Katherine is still living, now aged ninety-two; Lydia m. (first) John Rumbarger, and (second) John A. Swartzel; Mary m. Michael Libecap; and Harriet never married.

Michael Reed, father of the Doctor, was a native of Berks county, Pa., and was born near Stouchsburg, Nov. 10, 1819. When but fourteen years of age he accompanied his father and the family to Montgomery county, Ohio, where they settled on a farm near Farmersville, having traveled all the way in wagons. Michael Reed continued with his father until the summer of 1844, helping him on the farm, and following his trade of stone and brick mason, when he removed to Clinton township, Cass county, Ind., locating on a farm five miles southwest of Logansport, Ind. Just before leaving Ohio he had married Sarah Tittle, daughter of Jacob Tittle, of Farmersville. By her he had eight children: Sarah Elizabeth m. John Oliver Tyner; Rachel Ann m. Dr. William Bruce Payton; Miss Clara Minerva; Benjamin Franklin m. Ann Frances Johnson; William m. Harriet Lucinda Giffin; Oliver m. Mary Jane Whalon; John Henry; and Jacob Ausrow m. Effie Alice Hynes. The father died on the farm in 1895, aged seventy-six years; and his wife died at Logansport, in 1904, aged seventy-eight years.

Dr. Reed organized the "Reed Family Reunion," the first meeting of which was held on the homestead farm on his mother's seventy-eighth birthday, Oct. 12, 1903, she being present; the second at the same place, Sept. 1, 1904; the third at the Soldiers' Home at Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 31, 1905; the fourth at Logansport, Aug. 16, 1906; and the fifth at Logansport Oct. 3, 1908. He has been secretary of the organization since the beginning, there being an average attendance of about seventy-five. The Doctor has in preparation a more detailed history of the Reed Family, beginning with their earliest origin in Heidelberg, Germany, following them through Berks Province, England, Berks county, Pa., thence into Ohio, Indiana and other States.

WILLIAM L. GRAUL, justice of the peace of Muhlenberg township, and residing at Temple, Pa., was born in Reading, July 27, 1846, son of William M. Graul, and a member of a family that for several generations has been distinguished in the military service of the country.

Samuel B. Graul, grandfather of William L., was a well known and popular hotel man, his hostelry being located at the present site of the high school building on the northeast corner of Eighth and Washington streets, Reading. This he operated for twenty-four years. In the war of 1812 he served with the Reading Washington Guards, under Capt. Daniel De B. Keim, going to the defense of Philadelphia in 1814. He died in 1882, at the age of eighty-one. His wife, Sarah Maltzberger, bore him the following children: William M., father of William L.; Peter; Mary Ann (m. William Sailor); Elizabeth (m. Abram Hill); Emma (m. John Henzel); Amanda (m. John P. Dauth); Margaret (m. Frank Mellon); and Sarah (m. Daniel Leeds). The family all were reared in the faith of the Reformed Church, and in politics Mr. Graul was a Democrat.

William M. Graul, son of Samuel B., was a bricklayer by trade, and he followed that calling to within ten years of his death, when he retired. During the Civil war he responded to his country's call, becoming a private in Durell's Independent Artillery, Battery D, and serving three years, being mustered in Sept. 10, 1862, and mustered out at the close of hostilities, June 13, 1865. In politics he was a stanch Democrat, but was never active in party work. He married Barbara Leese, daughter of Peter Leese, and their children were: Henry L., who served four years as a member of Durell's Independent Artillery, m. Rebecca Eyler, and lives in Reading; William L.; Sarah m. John Baus, and both are deceased; Clara m. the late John Fox; Frank, who is foreman for the A. Wilhelm Paint Company, m. Matilda Seidel, now deceased; Annie m. John Bibbus. The family all united with the Lutheran Church, and became active in its work.

William L. Graul was born in an old log house on Eighth street, between Washington and Penn streets, Reading. His earlier education was acquired in a school held in an old stone house, situated where is now the Hampton Reservoir, a locality known in the old days as Helltown. The master, Dewald Paff, paid a great deal of attention to discipline, and his favorite mode of punishment was to make his pupils sit astride a wooden horse, made painfully sharp. Mr. Graul later attended school at Tenth and Washington streets, but at the age of eleven left to begin work as a tobacco stripper for F. S. Bickley, then doing business on Penn street. There he remained two years, and at thirteen found work in the brick yard of Michael Sands and J. H. Printz. He was also similarly engaged for Daniel Kline, Reuben Drexel and for Daniel Graul and J. H. Printz. In 1862 he was working as a bartender for William Rapp. When the war broke out in 1861, he tried to enlist, but was rejected on account of his small stature. In July, 1862, he succeeded in getting as far as Harrisburg with the 128th Pa. V. I., but was again rejected. In November, 1862, when the draft took place, he was offered $300 to go as a substitute, but Mr. Graul declared if he went to war, it would be as a volunteer, then if he were shot no one could say he had gone for money. In January, 1863, he procured a lot of leather, and made himself heels sufficiently high to bring his height to that required by regulations, and at the recruiting office added a couple of years to his age. All went well until asked if he had the consent of his parents. His father and brother were already at the front, and he was the only one at home. Naturally the mother was unwilling, but after a ruse the sergeant who had accompanied young William home to see her, obtained her consent, and on Jan. 24, 1863, he was duly enrolled in Battery K, 3d Pennsylvania Artillery, and sent to Fortress Monroe, Va. From there he was sent with different exploring parties on light gun boats to watch smugglers, and was detailed for service on the Smith Point Light Ship at the mouth of the Potomac river and Chesapeake Bay, and also to guard the telegraph cable running from Newport News to Sewells Point, Va. In April, 1864, orders were issued from the War Department directing a call to be made from the 3d Artillery for volunteers to form a new regiment, afterward known as the 188th. Mr. Graul was one of the first to volunteer, and he was assigned to Company I as a corporal, being detailed one of the color guards. He participated in the following engagements: Bermuda Hundred, May 4-6, 1864; siege of Petersburg, 82 days; Port Walthall, May 6-7, 1864; Swift Creek, May 9, 1864; destruction of Richmond & Petersburg railroad, May 10, 11, 12 and 13, 1864; Proctor's Creek, May 13, 1864; Fort Darling, May 14-15, 1864; Drury's Bluff, May 16, 1864; Front of Bermuda Hundred, May 17-31, 1864; Forstre's Plantation, May 18, 1864; Weir Bottom Church, May 21, 1864; Cold Harbor, June 1-12, 1864; flank movement from Petersburg to Richmond, June 16-18, 1864; mine explosion and "battle of the crater," July 30, 1864; capture of Fort Harrison and Chapin's Farm, Sept. 29-30, 1864. At the fight at Fort Harrison, which was firmly entrenched on a high bluff and bristling with cannon, the Federal troops charged at double-quick through a long stretch of open country, in spite of the rain of shot and shell from the enemy. Within fifty yards of the fort was a small ravine, stretching all along the front, and here the line was reformed. The fire was desperate and to go forward meant heavy slaughter, but the pause was only momentary, and the brave boys in blue pushed on and carried the works. While charging up the hill the color-bearer was killed, but before the flag was down Color-guard William L. Graul had seized it, thrown away his gun, and pushed on up to the fort. He jumped into the ditch at the fort, and with the aid of the flag staff crawled out, planted the stars and stripes beside the stars and bars. The Secretary of War presented him with a medal of honor, and he was promoted to color sergeant of the regiment. As such he took part in the battle of Fair Oaks, Oct. 27-28, 1864; and in the tobacco raid at Fredericksburg. He was sergeant for the Freedmen's Bureau in Nelson county, Va., Dec. 14, 1865.

Returning home Mr. Graul worked for Mr. John Lawrence in the stone quarry on the Long farm, and later was engaged at the Pipe Mill. In 1869 he began brick making, but in the fall of that year, Mr. Lawrence, his former employer, who was a police officer, came into the yard and asked him if he would not like to go on the police force. Through Mr. Lawrence's influence, the mayor, Mr. W. H. Gernand, overlooked Mr. Graul's lack of inches, and made the appointment. Under Mayor Samuel Mayers he became first sergeant of police. In 1874 Mr. Graul became a candidate for constable on the Democratic ticket, and was elected with a majority of 946. He was the first county detective under District Attorney H. C. G. Reber. In February, 1878, he was elected alderman of the Eighth ward, an office he ably filled for five years. At the present time he is supervisor of Muhlenberg township, and secretary of the board.

In March, 1883, Mr. Graul purchased the "Temple Hotel," which he conducted until April 1, 1905, a period of twenty-two years. He became well known to the traveling public, and the regular patrons of the hotel regretfully saw him retire. In 1907 he was elected justice of the peace in Muhlenberg township.

Mr. Graul has been twice married. His first wife was Mary Goodman, daughter of Lewis and Rebecca Goodman. She died Dec. 24, 1874. Five children were born of this union: (1) Emma married Joseph D. Martin. (2) R. William married May Myers. He served five years in the United States Marine Corps, and was in Cuba when the Spaniards surrendered. He served in the Philippines and when sent to China was one of the first to scale the walls of Tientsin. He is now engaged in keeping a hotel at Reading. (3) Edward L., chief train dispatcher for the P. & R. railroad, at Reading, married Jennie Yoder. (4) John served five years in the United States Marine Corps. He married Maude Smith. (5) Susan married Morris Fink, a dairyman at Temple. Mr. Graul married (second) Oct. 31, 1876, Fredericka Kirmse. No children were born to this union. Fraternally Mr. Graul belongs to St. John's Lodge, No. 435, F. & A. M.; Reading Lodge, No. 115, B. P. O. E.; and Washington Camp, No. 107, P. O. S. of A., of Temple, of which he was an organizer and charter member and treasurer since its organization.

ABRAHAM U. HAIN, a representative business man of West Reading, Berks county, the first coal merchant of that place, and one of its most progressive and substantial citizens, was born Aug. 13, 1838, in Bern township, this county. His ancestors have been located here for many years.

John C. Hain, his grandfather, was born Aug. 3, 1786, on the land now occupied by the Wernersville State Asylum, and himself came into possession of that property. His real estate holdings were extensive, and he became a prominent man in many ways. He died Nov. 9, 1854, and is buried at the Hain's Church—named after the family. John C. Hain married June 4, 1815, Barbara Reber, who was the second eldest of the fourteen children born to Johannes and Magdalena (Rathmacher) Reber. To them were born four children: Benneville R. was father of Abraham U. Hain; Polly (Mary) m. John Fox, of Bern township; John R. became a farmer in Bern township; Ellen m. George W. Yeager, superintendent of the Union canal.

Benneville R. Hain, born Aug. 3, 1816, at Wernersville, died Dec. 29, 1852, aged thirty-six years, four months, twenty-six days. But though his life was not a long one, he accomplished much, making a substantial success of all his undertakings. He started life with a wood axe and fifty cents in money, but he possessed more than ordinary intelligence and enterprise, and when he died, in the prime of early manhood, he had attained very comfortable circumstances through the well-directed exercise of his natural gifts. He was a boatman on the old Union canal, owning three boats, which he used in transporting his coal, lumber and merchandise, for he kept a small store in Penn township, near Bernville, at the place called Port Penn.

Mr. Hain married Susanna Ulrich, born Jan. 29, 1818, daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth (Fromm) Ulrich, of Bern township; she died March 12, 1852, just a few months before Mr. Hain's death. They are buried at Epler's Church, in Bern township. To Benneville R. and Susanna (Ulrich) Hain were born four children: Nathan, who died in infancy; Abraham U.; William U., who was a wheelwright of Bern township; and Mary Ann (m. Benjamin Hall, of West Reading).

Abraham U. Hain was educated in the township schools of Bern and in a private school in Reading which was under the supervision of Prof. William A. Good, and which he attended for over a year. He was reared to farming, but when he was seventeen began teaching school under the first county superintendent of schools, William A. Good, in Berne township, where he continued at that profession for four terms. He also taught one term in Maxatawny township. At that time the term consisted of only four months, and he received $25 a month. Since he gave up teaching Mr. Hain has been engaged at merchandising, having begun as clerk in a general store which did both a wholesale and a retail business, on the present site of the "Merchants' Hotel," corner of Third and Penn streets, Reading. It was conducted by Geiger, Kauffman & Kissinger, in whose employ Mr. Hain remained for a period of five years, until, in 1862, he started business on his own account. For fifteen years he dealt in lime, coal and stone, at Felix dam, and since 1890 he has been in the coal business at West Reading, where his establishment was the first of the kind. His patronage is large, and he includes among his customers many residents of Reading. His coal chutes are at the west end of the Lebanon Valley bridge.

Ever since his removal to West Reading, Mr. Hain has been active and public-spirited in its improvement and development. He was instrumental in the incorporation of the borough, where he is regarded as one of the most substantial and progressive citizens. He owns ten acres of finely located land, lying along Tulpehocken avenue, some of which has been cut up into building lots, and also four dwellings in West Reading. Mr. Hain has devoted all his time to his personal interests and the general welfare, having never had any taste for the honors or emoluments of public office. Though he is a stanch Republican he has not taken any active part in politics. He enjoys the complete confidence of his associates in all the relations of life, his character and habits being above reproach. His family is a credit to the community.

In 1866 Mr. Hain married Matilda Miller, born Sept. 20, 1842, daughter of Samuel and Susanna (Startzler) Miller, of Windsor township. Eight children have been born to this union, namely: (1) James M. is deceased. (2) George M. is a successful business man of West Reading, where he is engaged in carriage building, employing seven men. (3) Albert died in infancy. (4) Charles M. is in the butcher business on Penn avenue, in West Reading. (5) Peter died in infancy. (6) Frank M. is engaged in the coal business with his father. He m. Alice Dietrich, of Greenwich township, Berks county. (7) Agnes m. George Fritz, a carpenter of Reading, who is at present in the employ of L. H. Focht, the extensive contractor, as foreman. (8) Mary M. is a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, class of 1904, and is now teaching the fourth grade in West Reading. She resides at home with her parents. The family residence is a comfortable brick house at No. 528 Penn avenue. Mr. Hain and his children are members of Epler's Reformed Church of Bern township, and he was a liberal contributor toward the purchase of St. James Reformed Church of West Reading, his interest in the promotion of religious work being real and his assistance practical. He has also given generously to the Lutheran Church of the borough, of which his wife is a member. All in all, he is a citizen universally respected for his sterling qualities and upright life.

James M. Hain, eldest son of Abraham U. and Matilda (Miller) Hain, was born Feb. 10, 1867, in Bern township, where he spent his entire life. He received a good education, graduating from the Keystone State Normal School in 1889, at the head of his class, and he taught school in Bern township for six years. When the Schuylkill Valley Bank was established he became teller of that institution, holding that position until his death, Aug. 15, 1907, at the age of forty years, six months, five days. Mr. Hain had been ailing for almost three weeks, and was confined to his bed for ten days before his death, with typhoid fever, but his demise was unexpected. He was at the home of his parents, No. 528 Penn avenue, West Reading, when he passed away. He was unmarried.

When the borough of West Reading was organized James M. Hain was one of the leaders in the movement, and at the time of his decease he was serving as president of the borough council. There was no more valuable citizen in the community, where he was universally esteemed, and the large number that attended his funeral showed that he had friends among all classes. Many beautiful floral tributes were sent to the family in token of the sympathy felt throughout this section of the county. Mr. Hain possessed high intelligence and equally high principles, was an able as well as an upright man, and left a large estate, accumulated by his own efforts. He is buried at Epler's church, in Bern township. He was a member of St. James Reformed Church, and a Republican in political connection.

CHRISTOPHER SCHUTTER, a well known and highly esteemed citizen of Cumru township, Berks county, who now lives retired at his home in Oakbrook, Pa., was born Oct. 30, 1839, in Wurtemberg, Germany, son of Conrad and Christina (Hauck) Schutter.

Conrad Schutter was born Dec. 27, 1800, and in 1852 came to America with his family, his oldest son, Christian, having preceded them to this country two years before. Mr. Schutter was a potter by trade, and followed that occupation at Sinking Springs, Pa., but in later years he became a gardener. He died April 14, 1890, and was buried at St. John's Lutheran cemetery, Reading, as was his wife. Mr. Schutter married Christina Hauck (born in 1803, died Jan. 11, 1870), and they became the parents of six children: Christian lived in Spring township, and had children, William, Mary, George, Henry and Katie; Frederick, born Jan. 27, 1820, is still living, and has children, Ricka, Mary, Catherine, Annie, Frederick, William, Christopher and Maggie; Christina m. John Houck, of Buffalo, N. Y., and has children, Mary, Ricka, Charles, Christian, William and Frederick; Ricka, born in 1837, died in 1870, married George Bruestle, a native of Germany, and they had, Louisa, Annie and George (deceased); Christopher; and Regina m. John Schmidt, a native of Germany, but resident of Reading, where he died, and had three children, Kate, Fred and George.

Christopher Schutter attended German schools until eleven years old, and with his parents emigrated to America. When in his fourteenth year he learned the blacksmith's trade with Michael Miller, of Eighth and Franklin streets, Reading, in whose employ he remained three years. He followed blacksmithing all of his active period, working for some time in the Philadelphia & Reading shops, and for twenty-four years at the sheet mill, being engaged principally in making shear knives. In 1902 he retired from active pursuits, and since that time he has lived in his fine brick residence on Lancaster avenue, Oakbrook, which he has owned since the fall of 1881. In politics he is an independent voter. He and his family are members of St. James Lutheran Church at Reading.

In 1868 Mr. Schutter was married to Elizabeth Hoyer, born Dec. 20, 1836, who died Oct. 11, 1897, daughter of John and Mary (Griess) Hoyer, of Reading. Four children were born to this union: John died in infancy; Elizabeth is caring for her father in his declining years; Charles died in 1897, at the age of twenty years; and Susie.

SOLOMON S. KOLLER, retired, who was a prosperous merchant at Philadelphia for upward of forty years, was born in Berks county, near the base of the Blue Mountain, above Hamburg, April 7, 1830, son of Andrew and Hannah (Sunday) Koller.

Andrew Koller, Sr., the grandfather, was a farmer in Macungie township, Lehigh county. He married Rebecca Seidel, daughter of John Seidel, and they had three children: Solomon m. Catherine Schaeffer; Andrew; and Rebecca m. Daniel Gebhart.

Andrew Koller was a farmer in Windsor township for a time, later in Perry, and he died in 1862, aged fifty-eight years. He married Hannah Sunday, daughter of John Sunday, a farmer of Windsor, and a descendant of one of the earliest settlers of the county. They had six children: William m. (first) Susanna Ebgel, (second) Helen Miller; Solomon S.; Catherine m. David Hoffman; John m. (first) Caroline Lesher, (second) Mary Williams; James A. m. Christiana Sunday; and Abraham m. Mary Stayer. The mother of this family died in 1891, aged eighty-three years.

Solomon S. Koller was educated in the township school and was reared on his father's farm until he was nineteen years of age, when he entered the general store of John Weidman, at Shoemakersville, and continued there as a salesman for five years. He then formed a partnership with William Moyer, and carried on a feed and provision business at Five Locks, on the Schuylkill Canal, two miles above Shoemakersville, for two years, when he returned to Shoemakersville and formed a partnership with Reuben Weidman, a brother of his former employer, to operate a general store, but he soon purchased his partner's interest in the business and carried it on successfully by himself for eight years. Selling out, with the intention of locating in Philadelphia, he went to that great center of trade in 1865, and formed a partnership with Wayne Bitting, to carry on a wholesale trade in salt, provisions and fish. They located at No. 218 North Delaware Avenue, and traded under the style of Koller & Bitting, for seven years, when he purchased Mr. Bitting's interest and carried on the business himself for twenty years at the same place. Desiring then to enlarge his scope by adding groceries, he formed a partnership with Gilbert W. Hawlk, and they continued together for seven years, under the name of Koller & Hawlk, when he retired, having been in business at one stand for thirty-four years and having established a large and flourishing trade which extended into Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland for over a hundred miles from Philadelphia. Since 1899, he has been residing at Philadelphia, retired, enjoying the ample rewards of a well-directed, honorable and satisfactory business career.

In 1851, while living at Shoemakersville, Mr. Koller married Maria Fister, daughter of Peter Fister, farmer of Greenwich township, near Klinesville, Berks county. She died in 1856, aged twenty-two years, leaving two children, Amelia Thamsen (m. B. Oliver Seltzer, of Hamburg) and Emma (died young). In 1857, he m. Amelia Hollenbach, daughter of Jacob Hollenbach, a farmer of Perry township, and by her had four children, namely: Anna Maria died unmarried in 1905, aged forty-seven years; Jeremiah died unmarried, in 1901, aged forty-one years; Mary Leanda died in 1875, aged fourteen years; and Ellen, m. Jerome H. Sheip, of Philadelphia.

SOLOMON G. DUNKEL, a highly esteemed resident of Ontelaunee township, Berks county, where he has been engaged in agricultural pursuits all of his life, was born on his father's farm in Bern township, Feb. 8, 1839, son of George and Anna (Guldin) Dunkel.

George Dunkel, Sr., grandfather of Solomon G., was a farmer and conducted the old homestead on which his son and grandson have passed their lives. He married Elizabeth Engel, and they had four children: Solomon m. Elizabeth Althouse; George; Catherine m. Daniel Althouse; and Mary m. Francis Parvin.

George Dunkel, son of George, Sr., and father of Solomon G., was also a farmer on the homestead, where he died aged forty-five years, the father of nine children, as follows: Solomon G.; Ephraim, who died aged about fifty-six years, m. Susanna Price, and had children, Frank, Edgar, Wellington, Damon, Laura, Anna and Kate; Ezra died single; Owen m. Oliva Miller; Frederick is supposed to have died in Texas; George Washington m. Emma Himmelreich, and had children, Laura (m. Wilson Borrell), Alice (m. John Delp), Sadie, and Frederick (m. Laura Bossler); Sarah m. Henry Hartman and had three children, John, Bertha and Nora; Emma m. Abraham Huey and had five children, Oscar, Daniel, Charles, George and Annie; and Susan is unmarried.

Solomon G. Dunkel was reared and educated in Ontelaunee township, where he has resided all of his life. In November, 1860, he m. Sarah Heckman, daughter of Daniel and Esther (Noll) Heckman, and to this union there have been born seven children: George is engaged in trucking and farming; Charles, who operates a hosiery mill, m. Cora Seidel, and they have two children, Solomon Franklin and Sarah Susanna; Annie married Dr. N. C. Dunkberger, a prominent medical practitioner of Kutztown, and has these children, May Bright, Le Roy, Llala and George Addison; Sarah Bertha m. Herbert Stoudt, and is living on a farm; Hettie Victoria and Samuel Winfield are single; and Robert Edward m. Hettie Rothermel. Mr. Dunkel is a Democrat in politics, and has held various township offices. He and his family attend the Reformed Church, in which Mr. Dunkel has been quite active, serving as deacon, elder and in like positions.

HOWARD B. DEYSHER, well known in Mount Penn borough, Berks Co., Pa., where he is residing in his home on Perkiomen avenue, was born Oct. 15, 1864, in Rockland township, son of John G. and Catherine (Barto) Deysher, and grandson of Johannes and Catherine (Griesemer) Deysher, farming people of near Friedensburg, Oley township.

John G. Deysher was born in Oley township in December, 1835, and for many years was engaged in cultivating his father's farm. In 1882 he built a brick house in Friedensburg, into which he moved the following year, and there he has since resided. He works among the farmers in the summer months, and in the winters butchers for them, and is well known and highly respected by the people of his township, who have elected him to positions of honor and trust, he having been a supervisor of Oley township for over twenty years. In political principles he is a Democrat. He is a member of the Reformed Church at Friedensburg. During the Civil war Mr. Deysher took up arms in defense of his country, and served bravely and faithfully. On Jan. 25, 1857, Mr. Deysher married Catherine Barto, and they celebrated their Golden Wedding Jan. 25, 1907. Their fifteen children were as follows: Cordelia m. Samuel Wahl, of Fleetwood; Andora m. Calvin Potter, of Stonersville; Oscar, who lives in Reading, m. Ellen Hauck; Nathaniel m. Celia Schlegel, and lives at Fleetwood; John, unmarried, resides at home; Howard B.; Ida m. Irwin Shane, of Griesemersville; Freeman, who lives in Reading, m. Kate Heyt; Edwina m. Theodore Riegner, of Reading; Annie m. George Haas, of Pricetown; Clara died unmarried in 1901, aged twenty-two years; Charles and Mamie are at home; Catherine died young; and a daughter died in infancy.

Howard B. Deysher attended the schools of Oley township until seventeen years of age, when he hired out among the farmers, and continued at that work until he attained his majority. He then worked among the farmers of Exeter township, but later returned to Oley township, and in March, 1902, located in Mount Penn, where he purchased a residence on Perkiomen avenue, which has been his home to the present time. He worked two years for contractor Charles Schlegel, and since that time has worked as molder's helper in Reading. In political matters, Mr. Deysher is a Democrat. He and his family are members of Friedensburg Union Church, he being a Reformed and his wife a Lutheran member.

In 1885 Mr. Deysher married Sarah C. Hartline, born Dec. 29, 1862, daughter of Joshua D. and Elizabeth L. (Clouser) Hartline, and to this union there were born children as follows: William, born Sept. 6, 1885, died Dec. 8, 1903; George H., born Feb. 5, 1887, m. Amelia Reifsnyder, and lives in Reading; Elizabeth H., born Sept. 25, 1888; Catherine H., Aug. 27, 1890; John H., March 29, 1892; Miranda H., Jan. 20, 1894; Earl H., Jan. 26, 1896; Howard H., Feb. 17, 1900 (died Nov. 29, 1903); Ralph H., April 30, 1908; and four others died in infancy.

SOLOMON A. BRUMBACH, a substantial business man of Exeter township, who is one of the operators of the A. J. Brumbach woolen mills at St. Lawrence, was born Aug. 8, 1864, son of A. J. Brumbach, of Reading.

Mr. Brumbach was educated in the public schools of his native locality and at Palatinate College, at Myerstown, Pa., after leaving which he entered the woolen mills at St. Lawrence, where for twenty years he has been superintendent, having worked his way up from the bottom and he now is familiar with every detail of this great business. He was one of the organizers of the St. Lawrence Water Company, of which he is now president and a director, and is connected with various other business interests of Exeter township. Mr. Brumbach is prominent fraternally, belonging to St. John's Lodge, No. 435, F. & A. M., Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, Reading Commandery No. 42, and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., of Reading; and Washington Camp No. 230, P. O. S. of A., of St. Lawrence.

On Dec. 13, 1894, Mr. Brumbach married Margaret M. Ermantraut, daughter of Joseph Ermentraut, and to them three children have been born: Marion E., Dorothy E. and Mary, the latter of whom is deceased. Mr. and Mrs. Brumbach are consistent members of Schwartzwald Reformed Church.

ADAM P. SPATZ, building contractor at Wernersville, was born in Lower Heidelberg township, April 17, 1865, son of Jacob H. and Amanda (Horn) Spatz.

Jacob Spatz, his grandfather, was a farmer of Lancaster county, in the vicinity of Adamstown. He married twice, his wives being sisters by the name of Hornberger. By the first union he had five children: John m. a Miss Potteiger; Jacob H.; Catharine m. Peter Holl; Polly married Edward Leed; and Josiah married a Harner. By the second marriage he had two children: Malinda m. Jacob Richard; and Elizabeth died young.

Jacob H. Spatz was born in Brecknock township, Lancaster county, near Adamstown. Before he was of age his father died and the family moved to Heidelberg township—on a farm previously purchased by the father. Jacob H. Spatz died in 1894 at the age of fifty-five years. He married Amanda Horn, daughter of Peter Horn, of Lower Heidelberg, and they had five children: Charles and Catharine died young; Adam P.; Eva m. John Krick, and after his death, William Krick; and Edwin m. Elsie Putt.

Adam P. Spatz was educated in the local schools and learned the trade of carpenter under Reuben Brossman, who afterward became his father-in-law. After completing his apprenticeship he was employed by the Mt. Penn Gravity Railroad Company, to act as foreman in the erection of the "Tower." Upon its completion he worked at his trade for several years, and then engaged in coachmaking at Brownsville, in the northern end of the township. He carried on this business for three years, when he located permanently at Wernersville for the purpose of becoming a building contractor. In this occupation he has been successful up to the present time, covering a period of upward of ten years. During this time he has erected at "Wenrich's Grand View" the elevator tower, solarium, and dairy barn; at Walter's Sanitarium the large six-story stone addition to that already imposing institution; at the State Asylum near Wernersville, a large dormitory and a large infirmary; the Pomeroy residence in Lower Heidelberg; the costly improvements to Gery's country home, "Glen-Gery," in Ontelaunee township; large additions to the Montello Brick Company works at different places; and a number of fine residences in Wernersville. All these show a busy career for so short a time. He employs from twenty to thirty-five hands.

Mr. Spatz officiated as school director of the township for five years, serving as secretary of the board four years; and he has also served as a deacon and elder in Hain's Church for four years.

Mr. Spatz married Eva Brossman, daughter of Reuben Brossman, a farmer of Heidelberg township, and they became the parents of eight children: William, Bessie, Edna, Adam, Alvin, Laura, Mamie and Florence.

THOMAS G. WERLEY, an extensive dealer in live stock, is well known throughout Berks and Schuylkill counties as an expert judge of horses and cattle. He is a resident of Virginville, Richmond township, where he owns a large brick residence, with a fine terrace surrounding it. Mr. Werley was born March 1, 1863, in Albany township, Berks county, son of Daniel and Harriet (Greenawalt) Werley, the former of Weisenburg township, Lehigh county, and the latter of Albany township, Berks county.

Daniel Werley was a tanner by trade, following that occupation in Lehigh county. Later he removed to Albany township, Berks county, where he followed farming until he retired from active work. He married Harriet Greenawalt, and their children were: Susan m. James Hamm, a resident of Weatherly, Pa.; Helen m. Joel W. Miller, of Klinesville, Pa.; Louisa m. Levi Hilbert, of Kutztown; Janetta m. John Greenawalt, of Windsor Castle, Pa.; Thomas G.; Lydia m. Alfred Greenawalt, Lyon Valley, Pa.; Dr. Daniel lives at Jordan, Pa.; and James and Harrison are deceased.

Thomas G. Werley attended the common schools of his native township, and later studied for three terms at the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown. He then engaged in teaching for three terms, after which he took up farming in Greenwich township. In 1888 he removed to Richmond township, where he followed the vocation of farming for six years longer but by this time his business of dealing in live stock had become so extensive that he sold his farm stock, purchased his present property in Virginville, and, moving there, has since devoted all of his time to the buying and selling of horses and cattle. Mr. Werley goes West every few weeks, where he buys carloads of mules, horses and cattle, these being shipped to Virginville, where he has a large sale and exchange stable. He also goes through the country buying and selling stock.

On Jan. 3, 1885, Thomas G. Werley was married to Amelia Kunkel, a native of Lynn township, Lehigh county, daughter of Peter and Fianna (Trexler) Kunkel. The following children were born to this union: one that died in infancy; Kirby D.; Daisy, deceased; Clara; Irvin Peter, deceased; and Florence. Mrs. Werley died March 1, 1901, on Mr. Werley's thirty-eighth birthday anniversary. In the great loss that befell this happy family, Mr. Werley had the heartfelt sympathy of his community. His fervent love for his children caused him not to lose heart, but to battle more resolutely than before. In May, 1905, Miss Cora Hein, daughter of Francis Hein, became Mr. Werley's second wife. This union has been blessed by one daughter, Mabel. Mr. Werley is deeply interested in educational matters, which is best shown by the education which he is giving his children. His son, Kirby D., took a full course in veterinary surgery in the McKillip Veterinary College of Chicago, from which he graduated with honors, and won first prize in the examination of his class, making a general average of ninety-six per cent. Miss Clara is a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School of Kutztown, graduating with honors and serving her class on the Anniversary program of the Philomathian Literary Society, and she is now teaching her third term at Sanderton, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Werley very reluctantly consented to become a candidate for school director, and was elected, serving faithfully. During his term a dispute arose concerning the closing of a school because of only very few pupils, and the contestants finally took the matter into the courts, which sustained the action of the directors. Mr. Werley in the face of this trouble was persuaded to become a candidate for re-election, and this he did, being re-elected by an overwhelming vote.

Mr. Werley twice attended the St. Louis Exposition, and the Pan-American Exposition of Buffalo, N. Y. He is a faithful member of Dunkel's Lutheran Church of Greenwich township, and has been an official member of New Bethel Church in Albany township. In politics he is a strong and uncompromising Democrat. He was delegate to a number of county conventions, and is popular with leading party workers. He is a man of strong personality, has hosts of friends, and was urged by strong party men to announce himself as a candidate for sheriff of Berks county. This he did in 1907, and made an active canvass. He had nine competitors, some of them old experienced politicians, but he came out second highest, and will prove a formidable candidate next time. Mr. Werley's reputation for honesty, sobriety and fair dealing with his fellow-men is of the best. He is held in high esteem by his fellow-citizens and neighbors, who are best able to judge him correctly.

WILLIAM L. BEECHER, who is the incumbent of an important position in the United States Custom House at Philadelphia, Pa., is a descendant of the well-known Beecher family in America, and traces his ancestors to the Beechers in England. They were noted as "blacksmith-preachers," and Nathaniel Beecher, the first of the family in America, had his anvil set on the stump of a wide-spreading elm under which the famous John Davenport preached his first sermon before the New Haven Colony in Connecticut; and in a direct line the trade was followed by each succeeding generation in this family until 1903, when William L. Beecher's father retired in Berks county.

William Beecher, the grandfather of William L., who was a son of George Beecher who settled in Berks county about 1800, was a blacksmith by trade, and married Sarah Reifsnyder, by whom he had four children, the only survivor of whom is Levi R. Beecher, the father of William L.

Levi R. Beecher, who was for many years a blacksmith of Heidelberg township, where he is now living retired, married Ellen Louise Lake, a native of London, England, where her father carried on the business of a contractor for a time and whence he emigrated to America when she was a young girl. Mr. and Mrs. Beecher became the parents of four children: William L.; John A. m. Elsie Dundor; Katie E. m. Isaac Luckenbill; Howard died young.

William L. Beecher was born Oct. 1, 1870, in Lower Heidelberg township, Berks Co., Pa., about three miles north of Wernersville. He received his early education in the township schools, and then attended the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, Pott's Shorthand College at Williamsport, and the Reading Business College. When fifteen years old, he entered the Reading Hardware Works to learn the trade of molder, and while following this trade was licensed to teach public school. This was in 1889, and he taught for twelve terms, in West Reading, and Perry and Cumru townships, nine terms being in the last named, and during the summer months he worked at his trade.

In the summer of 1900, Mr. Beecher passed a very creditable examination for a position in the Philadelphia Custom House, and May 1, 1901, received an appointment as messenger. After serving in this position several months he was promoted to a clerkship and detailed for duty in the Custodian's office, where he has continued to the present time. His spare time is devoted to photography, entomology and painting. During the past five years, he has visited many battle-fields of the Army of the Potomac in the Civil war, photographing prominent places for the purpose of illustrating a book entitled "From Bull Run to Appomattox," of which he is to be the compiler. He has a fine collection of butterflies at his home, which he secured in his travels and mounted. Mr. Beecher took an active part in the Pennsylvania National Guard for a number of years, having been a sergeant of the Reading Artillerists, and serving as company clerk. He participated in the suppression of the labor troubles in the coal regions in 1900, having been summoned from his school in Cumru township, and was engaged in this service for forty days.

In 1891 Mr. Beecher married Clara S. Moyer, daughter of the late Elias Moyer of Robesonia. One child has been born to this union: Lew Wallace, who is now attending the high school in Philadelphia, preparatory to taking up the study of medicine. He is quite an athlete, has participated in a number of cross-country runs, and at one time, in company with his father, walked from Philadelphia to Reading in less than twelve hours. The father and son have a great fondness for music, both playing the cornet very efficiently, and the son assisting in the orchestras attached to the high school, and Palatinate Reformed Church.

WILLIAM W. FIELD, one of the highly esteemed citizens of Penn township, Berks Co., Pa., who is now acting in the capacity of director of the poor for Berks county, was born in 1851, in North Heidelberg township, son of Elias and Kate (Wenrich) Field, and grandson of William Field.

Elias Field was born in North Heidelberg township, and followed the occupation of a farmer there all of his life, his death occurring in his seventieth year, and his burial taking place at the Corner Church in Heidelberg township. He married Kate Wenrich, and to them were born children as follows: Rebecca died unmarried; William W.; Reuben died at Douglassville; Frank died in Union county; Thomas m. Erebell Knoll, and lives in Womelsdorf; Sybilla m. Albert Fisher, of Robesonia; Emma m. Frank Mattis, of Lebanon county; Kate m. Thomas Egart, of Reading; John lives in Maryland; and a daughter died in infancy.

William Wenrich Field attended the public schools of North Heidelberg township, Heidelberg, Jefferson and Lower Heidelberg, and until twenty-two years old, worked among the farmers of his locality. His first venture on his own account was made in Penn township, where he purchased the Daniel Strause farm of forty-eight acres, to which he added from time to time until he now has 138 acres of excellent land. He purchased forty-nine acres from William Phillips, in Penn township, a property which he has tenanted, and another of thirty-two acres from Samuel Roth, and in addition owns five acres of chestnut woodland in Upper Bern township. He has a fine home, fourteen miles from Reading and about one-quarter of a mile from the "Bagenstose Hotel," and supplies himself with water from a well 134 feet, 3 inches deep, over which is a fine wind pump. For the past thirty-two years he has been agent for the Clarks Cove Fertilizer, and has sold many carloads in his district.

In 1875 Mr. Field married Sarah Strause, daughter of Daniel S. and Rebecca (Berger) Strause, and they have had one child: Ida m. James Vargang, a business man of West Reading, by whom she has one daughter, Eva. Mr. Field is a stanch Democrat in politics, and in addition to having served his township as school director was elected poor director of Berks county in 1907, by a large majority. Fraternally he is connected with Camp No. 399, P. O. S. of A., of Scull Hill. He is a member of the Bernville Lutheran Church, and a director of the cemetery.

JACOB J. SEIDEL. Among the highly esteemed retired citizens of Shoemakersville, Pa., may be mentioned Jacob J. Seidel, who for some years was engaged in business at that place. He was born Oct. 11, 1849, in Windsor township, Berks county, son of Benjamin and Catherine (Seibert) Seidel.

Henry Seidel, great-grandfather of Jacob J., was born in 1732, in Strasburg, Germany, and in 1751 emigrated to America. He was a redemptioner, and in 1752 on obtaining his freedom located in Reading, participating in the French and Indian war three years later under Captain Hiester. He also served in the Revolutionary war, and during this time his wife and children conducted the farm. In about 1760, Henry Seidel married Elizabeth Rathmacker, and to this union were born: Michael, Henry, Daniel, John, Philip, Jacob, Mary and Margaret.

Jacob Seidel, son of Henry, was born in 1786, and died in 1847. He was an extensive land owner in Windsor township, where his possessions aggregated 287 acres, a great portion of the territory now covered by the town of Shoemakersville being owned by him. He was a substantial citizen and was very influential in his district. He was a member of Zion's Church. Jacob Seidel married Elizabeth Bossler, and they had children: Benjamin; Jacob (m. Mary Fox); Solomon (m. Rebecca Shoemaker); David (m. Leah Haines); Henry (m. Elizabeth Seidel); Daniel (m. Mary Fox); Mary (m. David Moll); Sarah (m. Michael Seibert); Elizabeth (m. Jonathan George); and Amelia (m. Jacob Huey).

Benjamin Seidel, son of Jacob, born Sept. 11, 1811, was a farmer on the Seidel homestead, situated southeast of the village of Shoemakersville, this tract consisting of 180 acres of land, which he owned. He was a successful man and prominent in his time, serving the district as school director and auditor. In politics he was a Democrat. Mr. Seidel and his family were connected with the Union Church, belonging to the Lutheran denomination, and he helped to build the church in 1852, being one of the board of trustees. He died Feb. 9, 1881. On Jan. 13, 1846, he married Catherine Seibert, born Oct. 17, 1815, daughter of Jacob Seibert, of Jackson township, Lebanon county. She died April 22, 1900, the mother of children as follows: Alfred S., a business man of Reading, m. Helen Loose; Jacob J.; and Monroe S. m. Hannah Reber.

Jacob J. Seidel obtained his education in the local schools and at the Quaker Seminary at Carversville, Bucks county, after leaving which he was successfully engaged in school teaching for some years in Greenwich, Perry and Upper Bern townships. For four years he operated on the old Seidel homestead in Windsor township, leaving that occupation to spend several years in Ohio. He returned in 1880, and followed cigarmaking for ten years in Shoemakersville, and was then a salesman for some years. The last few years he has lived retired. Mr. Seidel is a Democrat in his political belief, and served the township of Perry as auditor for fifteen years.

In 1872 Mr. Seidel was married to Malinda Mengel, daughter of Samuel Mengel. No children were born to this union.

DANIEL H. ROTHERMEL, formerly a prosperous farmer in Richmond township, was one of the prominent and substantial citizens of this section. He was born in Maiden-creek township, Berks Co., Pa., son of Jacob Rothermel, and he died on his valuable farm of 150 acres, in 1885, aged thirty-nine years.

The earliest known ancestor of the old and honored family of Rothermel was Johannes Rothermel (also spelled Rodearmel). He was born in 1688, at Wachbach, and in 1730 crossed the Atlantic, dying en route to America. In his native land he married Sybilla Zimmerman, who bore him these children: Anna Maria m. Peter Fetherolf, a native of Wachbach, and they were the progenitors of the representative and intellectual Fetherolf family of Lehigh and surrounding counties and many of their descendants are professional people; Lawrence, born in 1738, settled in Windsor township, Berks county, and left many descendants; Paul settled in Maiden-creek township, Berks county; Peter; John, born in 1722, had a son, Jacob, whose son David had a son Lewis, born in 1837, who is the father of Prof. A. C. Rothermel (the honored principal of the Keystone State Normal School), Silas (an attorney), and Lewis (a physician); and Christian had children, Margaret, Sybilla, Magdalena, Amanda, Peter and John. It was this Peter Rothermel, who was the famous artist, who painted the "Battle of Gettysburg." Peter F., son of Peter, was once district attorney of Philadelphia.

Peter Rothermel, the fourth son of the ancestor, and the great-grandfather of the late Daniel H., in 1737 became the owner of 100 acres, and one year later acquired 250 acres of land. In 1743 he purchased 100 acres more, and thus became one of the largest land owners of this section. His property was all valuable, lying in the bottoms along Maxatawny creek, in Berks county. His children were: Daniel, Peter, Margaret, and Abraham. Some of them went far from home, and became the founders of families of the name in Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois.

Peter Rothermel, son of Peter and grandfather of Daniel H., was born in 1773, and died in 1856. His wife was Magdalena Iager and they had the following children: Maria, born in 1796; Catherine, in 1797; Daniel, in 1799; Susanna, in 1801; Peter, in 1802 (afflicted with blindness); Sarah, in 1805; Anna, in 1808; Jacob, in 1811; John, in 1812 (the father of Hon. John H. Rothermel, who was elected in 1907, a member of Congress, from the Berks and Lehigh Congressional District); Hannah, in 1814; Elizabeth, in 1816; and Abraham, in 1822 (died in 1904, the father of Hon. Abraham Rothermel, formerly district attorney of Berks county).

Jacob Rothermel, father of Daniel H., was born Jan. 14, 1811, and died June 10, 1888. His occupation was farming. He married twice, (first) a Miss Hoch and (second) a Mrs. Kauffman. His children were: Daniel H., Samuel, Amos, James, Mary, Esther and Catherine.

Daniel H. Rothermel was a man of business enterprise and of worthy citizenship. In connection with his farming industries he dealt extensively in horses. This business he thoroughly understood, and made it a success. At the time of his death he was able to leave his widow and children a large estate, the former of whom has since resided in a comfortable and attractive home on Main street, Fleetwood. Since 1901, the farm has been under the management of his son, Horace D. Mr. Rothermel was much interested in the cause of education in general and to his own children he gave advantages far beyond the ordinary, and thus prepared them for whatever might be their chosen field of labor.

In 1870, Daniel H. Rothermel was married to Deborah De Turk, who is a daughter of the late Daniel and Deborah (Knabb) De Turk, former residents of Oley township. Mr. and Mrs. De Turk had the following children: Esther m. (first) David Baer, (second) Samuel Melot; Sarah m. Lewis J. De Turk; Deborah; Abraham m. (first) Alice Herbein, (second) Catherine Bertolett; Ezra m. Alice Merkel; and Horace died aged twenty-four years.

To Daniel H. Rothermel and wife were born six children, namely: Clayton D., Elmer D., Ella D., Deborah D., Horace D., and Daniel J. Clayton D. is a graduate of the Baltimore Medical School and is engaged in medical practice at Philadelphia. Elmer D. married Hannah Schaeffer, and they have one daughter, Mabel. Ella D., residing with her mother, is a lady of literary culture and many accomplishments. She is a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, class of 1895, and also of Neff's School of Literary Interpretation, of Philadelphia, class of 1901. Deborah D., a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, class of 1897, married Augustus P. Merkel, an implement merchant and machinist, residing at Fleetwood, and their two children, Mary and William, both died in infancy. Horace D., born Feb. 5, 1879, manages the homestead in Richmond township; in 1900 he m. Emma R. Schaeffer, and they have one daughter, Elda S. Daniel J., a graduate from a school of Pharmacy in Philadelphia, is located in that city.

JACOB BAGENSTOSE, a highly esteemed retired agriculturist of Bern township, Berks county, who is acting in the capacity of school director of West Leesport borough, was born in Centre township, May 22, 1849, son of William and Margaret (Snyder) Bagenstose.

Ulrich Bagenstose, ancestor of the Bagenstose family of Berks county, was probably a passenger on one of the ships that brought Swiss emigrants to Philadelphia in 1743. These emigrants followed the waters of the Schuylkill river until they came to what is now Centre township, Berks county. This district was formerly a part of old Bern township, and among the list of taxables in 1752, we find the name of this pioneer settler. His long will is on record in Will Book B, p. 347, in which he disposes of a very large estate. It is written in English, the signature alone being in German "Ulrich Backenstoss." The document was made Nov. 20, 1793, and was entered for probate Jan. 20, 1794, therefore it is evident that his death occurred between those two dates. In item No. 1 in the will he makes abundant provision for his wife Catherine, among the things mentioned being: "Plenty of grapes from the one-acre vineyard; flax; one gallon apple-jack; one gallon rum; plenty of potatoes; plenty of cider and vinegar; plenty of winter apples and wood; plenty of everything she needs." This she was to receive annually, in addition to money and a home. Other items were: son John to receive the plantation; son Henry to receive the plantation in Bethel township, Dauphin (now Lebanon) county; and Jacob to receive the other plantation of 100 acres situated in Bethel township. The will, which also mentioned children Elizabeth, Susanna, Catherine Eckel and Christina Moyer, was witnessed by Jacob Runkel and Jacob Himmelberger, and the executors were John Bagenstose and George Sharff.

John Bagenstose, the grandfather of Jacob, was born on the homestead farm in Centre township, and lived near Garfield P. O. all of his life, engaged in blacksmithing and farming. He was the owner of two properties, consisting of 150 and 160 acres respectively, and was a substantial and influential citizen. Mr. Bagenstose and his family were members of Belleman's Union Church, belonging to the Lutheran congregation. He was married to Elizabeth Himmelberger, and they had these children: John, who died young; Jacob, Samuel; Jonah (Jonathan); Rebecca; Kate; John (2); Sallie; William and Benneville.

William (better known as Willhelm) Bagenstose, father of Jacob, was born in what is now Centre township, Berks county, July 3, 1814, and died Jan. 25, 1899. He was a farmer, and owned four tracts of land: one of 155 acres in Centre township; one in Bern township of 135 acres; another of 125 acres in Centre township; and sixteen acres of woodland at the Blue Mountains in Tilden township. He was an able business man and highly esteemed citizen, and one of the leading workers in the Democratic party in his section. With his family he attended Belleman's Union Church, belonging to the Lutheran denomination. Mr. Bagenstose was married to Margaret Snyder, who was born Nov. 4, 1814, and died Dec. 27, 1899, daughter of Abraham and Catherine (Klopp) Snyder, and they had these ten children: Sarah m. Jonah Spade; Keziah; Samuel S., born April 3, 1841, and now a retired farmer residing at West Leesport, m. May 3, 1862, Diana Loose, and has children, Clara, Ida, Saloma, Morris and Samuel; Catherine m. a Speicher; Isaac; Jacob; Ellen m. Cyrus Davis; Emma m. Cyrus Kauffman; Mary m. Howard Dietrich; and William.

Jacob Bagenstose was reared to agricultural pursuits, and until thirty-five years old worked for his parents, at which time he took to farming the old homestead, where he continued until 1899. He then erected a handsome brick residence on Main street, West Leesport borough, where he has since lived retired. Mr. Bagenstose is the owner of the old homestead in Centre township, which consists of 176 acres, and the present barn thereon was built by his grandfather, John, in 179—, the house being erected by his father in 1830. Mr. Bagenstose is a Democrat, and since 1901 he has served as a member of the board of school directors of West Leesport, having served as president thereof for some time. He is in comfortable circumstances and is the guardian of the late Isaac Bagenstose's children, his nephews and nieces. Mr. Bagenstose and his family are Lutheran members of Belleman's Union Church, in which he was a deacon in 1892, and at present is an elder.

On Dec. 25, 1885, Mr. Bagenstose married Katie Lengel, daughter of Levi and Catherine (Dundore) Lengel, whose children are: Nathaniel, of North Heidelberg; Emma m. William Kallbach; Tillie m. Adam Bohn; and Katie m. Mr. Bagenstose.

The grandparents of Mrs. Bagenstose were Jacob and Elizabeth (Reedy) Lengel, and their children were: Elias, a resident of Iowa; Benneville, of North Heidelberg; Joshua, of Millbach, Lebanon county; Jared, of Millersburg; Levi; Percival, of Spring township; Rebecca m. George Snyder; Amelia m. Harrison Geiss; and Isabella m. John Gaul.

AUGUSTUS L. WENTZEL, a prominent and influential citizen of Lower Alsace township, Berks Co., Pa., where he owns and operates one of the best truck farms in the State, was born Sept. 20, 1842, in Alsace (now Lower Alsace) township, son of Jesse B. and Sarah (Lindenmuth) Wentzel.

John Wentzel, grandfather of Augustus L., was a farmer of Alsace township, and was the father of these children: Samuel, a carpenter and builder, married a Miss Keller, and they had children, Henry, Augustus, Frank, Wilson, Samuel, Savilla and Ida; John died single; Daniel, a farmer of Lower Alsace township, m. Mary Flickinger, and had children, Daniel, Mary, Amelia, Maria, Jerre, Augustus and Israel; Jerre, a tailor and later a hotel clerk, m. a Miss Leinbach, of Muhlenberg township, and they had six children, Thomas, Dallas, Frederick, Jane, Mary and Amelia; Harry, a tailor at Reading, m. Angeline Heineman, and they had three children, Henry, Jane and Clara; Jacob, a shoemaker at Philadelphia, m. a Miss Seidel, and they had one daughter, Hettie; Solomon, a tailor at Reading, m. Catherine Houder, and they had seven children, Frank, Solomon, Emma, Clara, Harry, Howard and Ellen; Hettie m. Abraham Kline, a cooper of Reading, and had four children, Henry (a plumber), Emma (m. William Heckman), Hettie (m. Nathan Rohrbach), and Amanda (m. a Mr. Lerch); Jesse B.; Mrs. Hartman, and Mrs. Ziebner.

Jesse B. Wentzel, father of Augustus L., was born Feb. 22, 1813, in Alsace (now Lower Alsace) township, and in early life was a carpenter and builder. In 1849 he engaged in trucking and purchased a farm, which he cultivated the remainder of his life. Mr. Wentzel married Sarah Lindenmuth, and to them the following children were born: Jonathan m. (first) Anna Madeira, deceased, and (second) Mary ————; Malinda m. Albert Burket, a brick layer at Reading, and has nine children,—Thomas, Harry, Sallie, Kate, Anna, Maggie, Nora, Bessie and Lillie; Sarah m. Charles Nagle, a blacksmith at Reading, where both died, and had four children, William, Emma, Ida and Hettie; Emma m. Harrison Hinnershitz, formerly a miller and now a dealer in flour, feed and coal at Mt. Penn, Pa., and has eleven children—Llewellyn, Charles, Edward, Clarence, Sallie, Laura, Emma, Maggie, Jennie, Esther and Harry; Augustus L.; Henry, a cabinet maker, died some years ago leaving one daughter, Lizzie (m. Irvin Eames); Frank, deceased, m. Ellen Reifsnyder, who survives him, and they had children, Harry, Ida, Zadie, George, Florence, Sallie, Emma, Catherine, Hettie, Elmer, Walter, Samuel and Helen.

Augustus L. Wentzel was reared at the home in which he now resides and was educated in the district schools, after leaving which he assisted his father in the work upon the farm. In 1871 he succeeded his father in business for twenty years, and after the latter's death managed it for the estate for one year. He subsequently purchased the main farm, and several years later, when the mother died, he bought that part of the property. Mr. Wentzel is still in possession of the old deeds and conveyances from the time his father bought the original tract, which at that time represented nothing more than an almost impenetrable wilderness. Where once was acre after acre of wild, unexplored timberland are now fertile fields crossed by miles of trolley lines; each farmer's home is equipped with the telephone and other modern conveniences, and the dense wilderness that was has given way before the march of civilization. Mr. Wentzel's property, which is one of the finest truck farms in the State, is supplied not only with the water found there, but also with Mt. Penn borough water. He and his family attend the Reformed Church. In political matters he is a Republican, and for three years was township auditor, although at no time has he ever sought office.

On Dec. 23, 1865, Mr. Wentzel was married to Hettie G. Price, daughter of Reuben and Angeline (Guldin) Price, who were residents of Jacksonwald, Exeter township. Nine children were born to this union: Katie, born June 18, 1866, died Nov. 10, 1870; Ellen, born Feb. 13, 1868, m. (first) John Meck, had one child, Clinton, and (second) Amos Wilder, and had three children, Viola, Nettie and Minnie; Maggie, born June 1, 1869, m. Charles Scholl, a dentist of Reading, and has three children, Esther, Dorothy and Carl; Anna, born Feb. 1, 1871, married John Kock, deceased, and had children, Pearl, Myrtle, Daisy, Clytia, Leah, Charles and Sarah; Charles, born July 19, 1872, died April 19, 1885; Harry, born Feb. 25, 1874, died April 19, 1885; Rosa, born June 28, 1875, m. (first) Harry Eisenbrown, deceased, had two children,

Robert and Mildred, and (second) Samuel Eisenbrown, of the Eisenbrown Marble Works, a brother of her first husband, and they have two children, Arthur and Marie Christine; Sallie, born Sept. 23, 1878, m. Charles Yeager, an engraver of Reading; and Emma, born Feb. 7, 1880, died young.

Mrs. Wentzel died April 19, 1889, aged forty-one years, twelve days, and for his second wife Mr. Wentzel married, Sept. 20, 1890, Miss Amanda Weidener, daughter of William and Emma (Himmelreich) Weidener. To this union there were born children as follows: Jessie, June 8, 1891; Augustus W., Sept. 2, 1892; and Amy, Dec. 14, 1893.

The following is an account taken from a local newspaper, which describes the sad accident that threw a great shadow over Mr. Wentzel's life: "On Sunday morning, April 19, 1885, a small outbuilding on the property of Augustus L. Wentzel was burned. At the time of the occurrence the two sons of Mr. Wentzel, Charles and Harry, and two workmen named Hettinger were sleeping there, and they perished in the flames. Daniel W. Noll, a weak-minded son of a neighbor, was arrested for the deed, but was acquitted on the ground of insanity," whereupon he was taken to an insane asylum in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. This awful accident produced a profound sensation and moved the hearts of the entire community. The funeral services, conducted at Zion's Church, were attended by a multitude of sympathizing people from all parts of the county.

ISAAC Y. BEIDLER, one of the venerable citizens of Sinking Spring, Berks county, and a veteran of the Civil war, was born Jan. 21, 1826, in Cumru township, son of John and Magdalena (Yost) Beidler.

Conrad Beidler, his great-grandfather, was an extensive landowner and farmer of Cumru township, where he died in 1800, at a ripe old age. Two children are mentioned in his will: John and Peter, the latter the grandfather of Isaac Y.

Peter Beidler was born in Cumru township Oct. 3, 1768, and died June 12, 1805; he was buried at Hain's Church. On March 6, 1792, he married Barbara Spohn, and to them were born five sons and one daughter: (1) Wilhelm, born Dec. 12, 1792, died Nov. 20, 1795. (2) John was a farmer in Cumru township. (3) Henry, born May 13, 1798, died Feb. 22, 1869. He lived near Sinking Spring, where he is buried. On June 2, 1817, he married Maria Biehl (born May 16, 1799, died Oct. 13, 1859) and they had seven sons and three daughters, John Christian (1822-1871) being one of them. (4) Conrad was the owner of land at Poplar Neck, in Cumru township. (5) Rebecca was the wife of Jacob Biehl, of Kutztown, Pa. (6) Christian.

John Beidler, father of Isaac Y., was born in Cumru township May 18, 1794, and died Aug. 18, 1870. He was a farmer for about forty years in his native township, but in later life removed to Reading, where he died. He was a man of considerable means and was well known and very influential in his day. He married Magdalena Yost, who died in 1888, in her ninety-sixth year, daughter of Abraham and Mary (Hershey) Yost, of Cumru township. Mr. and Mrs. Beidler had these children: Jeremiah; Conrad Y., born June 17, 1820, died June 14, 1883, who married in 1844 Catherine Spohn, and they had one daughter, Sarah Ann, who married William P. High; Isaac Y.; Mary Ann, who married Samuel Brobst of Hamburg, Pa., and Abraham, who in early life was a farmer and like his father removed to Reading, where he died.

Isaac Y. Beidler attended school in the old academy at Seventh and Chestnut streets, Reading, and among those who studied with him under Professor Middlemiss may be mentioned Henry Felix, Peter Schearer, the late Judge George Bruckman and John Fredericks. He was reared to agricultural pursuits, working on his father's farm until eighteen years of age, at which time he engaged in driving a cart in Reading, whither his parents had moved. In 1848, with George Breiner, Mr. Beidler formed a partnership under the firm name of Breiner & Beidler, engaging in the shoe business at the present site of Whitner's large department store for a period of five years. At the end of that time Mr. Beidler resumed farming, taking up a tract of ninety acres at the Cacoosing Mill, which he cultivated for five years. He then removed to Sinking Spring, where he conducted a shoe store until 1862, when he was drafted into the Union army. Mr. Beidler was a sergeant in the 167th Pa. V. I., Colonel Knoderer, and served nine months and two weeks, during which time he participated in the siege of Richmond, and the various engagements of the Army of the Potomac, being mustered out of the service Aug. 12, 1863. He has an excellent army record, and was always known as a faithful and willing soldier.

Since his return from the war Mr. Beidler has led a partly retired life, occasionally doing contract work. He has a little over two acres of ground, which he cultivates and which serves to keep him busy and give him exercise. During a long life of thrift and usefulness he has accumulated a handsome competence, and is considered one of the substantial men of Spring township. He owns considerable real estate, including two houses in Reading and nine residences in addition to the old homestead in Sinking Spring, the latter being his home; he purchased the house in which he lives from David McKnight and Nicholas Jones, men well known in the early history of Berks county. He and his estimable wife have seen many changes during their long residence in Berks county, the latter often remarking on the great changes time will bring, especially when she remembers making linen from flax which was brought in from the field, and which she broke and dried herself. Mr. Beidler is a man of fine presence and careful of his personal appearance, and is very well preserved for his age. He has traveled to quite an extent, one of his many trips being to Florida. He and Mrs. Beidler are well known in their community, where they are respected and esteemed by all. They are Reformed members of St. John's Church, of Sinking Spring, which Mr. Beidler joined in 1845, and of which he has been a deacon. In politics he is a stanch Democrat, was assessor of Spring township in 1866, and from 1875 to 1878 was a poor director of the county, his associates in office being Jonathan Herbein and George Heckman. He holds membership in Lodge No. 660, I. O. O. F., at Sinking Spring, having been formerly a member of Salome Lodge, No. 105, I. O. O. F., at Reading, which he joined in 1850.

On Aug. 31, 1847, Mr. Beidler was married to Katie Ann Houder, born Sept. 11, 1830, daughter of Daniel and Catherine (Ruth) Houder, of Heidelberg township, and granddaughter of Solomon and Catherine (Potteiger) Houder.

DANIEL YODER KNABB, who died in 1887, was born in 1804, the eldest son of Jacob and Hannah (Yoder) Knabb, the latter the daughter of Daniel and Margaret (Oyster) Yoder.

The Knabb family was founded in America by Michael Knabb, who was born at Pfeldesheim, Bavaria, April 17, 1717, and emigrated to America in 1737, with two brothers, John and Peter, the former of whom died single in the forty-eighth year of his age, while the latter died when seventy-four years old, having many descendants in Berks county. Michael Knabb m. Eva Magdalena Seltzer, only child of Jacob and Elizabeth Seltzer, of Heidelberg township. They became the parents of the following children: Nicholas, Peter, Jacob, Daniel, Susan, Sarah, Catherine and Mary. Michael Knabb died June 17, 1778, and he and his brothers are buried in the family burying ground in Oley township.

Jacob Knabb, the third son of Michael, was born in Oley township in 1771. In 1800 he married Hannah Yoder, daughter of Daniel and Margaret (Oyster) Yoder. They moved to Union township, on the property now owned and occupied by Morris De Turk. He died in February, 1825, and his wife in August, 1824. Their children were: Daniel Y.; George, born in 1807; Margaret, in 1810;

Isaac J. Beidler

Catherine, in 1812; Hannah, in 1814; and Jacob, in 1817.

The Yoders are descended from John Yoder, who settled in Oley township in 1720, having emigrated from Switzerland with his wife and six children. John Yoder, Jr., son of John, married a Shenkel, and among their children were: Daniel; and Jacob, who moved to Ohio, and was the first person to go down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers in a flat boat.

Daniel Yoder, son of John, Jr., married Margaret Oyster, and their children were: Hannah m. Jacob Knabb; Daniel; Martin; Catherine; Mary; John; Margaret; and David.

Daniel Yoder Knabb was married in 1855 to Malinda C. Armpriester, who was born July 22, 1827, daughter of Samuel and Anna (Cleaver) Armpriester, granddaughter of Jonathan Armpriester, and great-granddaughter of Matthias Armpreister. The Armpreisters are all buried at Amityville.

The children born to Daniel Y. and Malinda C. Knabb were as follows: (1) Franklin B., born March 9, 1857, married Miss Catherine Bush, who died Aug. 24, 1897, and is buried at Birdsboro. They had children: Arthur L. m. Rachael Wilson, and has a daughter, Dorothy E.; Clara m. George W. Clark, and has three children, Dorothy, Hilda and Robert. (2) David Y., born April 27, 1858, m. Emma Himmelberger, and has one daughter, Lydia. (3) Ida A., born Dec. 30, 1859, died Sept. 18, 1862. (4) Catherine D., born Feb. 6, 1861, died July 24, 1879. (5) Ella R., born Nov. 24, 1862, m. D. B. Derr, has two children, Mabel and Raymond, and resides in Reading. (6) Howard M., born Jan. 19, 1864, m. Annie Espenshade, and has one daughter, Marguerite. (7) Anna, born May 2, 1865, m. Irvin L. March, and has one son, Paul. (8) Malinda A., born June 15, 1866, m. G. Washington Hook, and has four children, Dora, Lee, Gail and Martha. (9) Sara K., born in 1867, lives with her mother. (10) Lillian M., born Jan. 24, 1869, m. William Mock, and has two sons, Frank and Howard. (11) Louisa A., born Dec. 7, 1870, m. Charles Herflicker, and has three children, William, Leanna and Marguerite.

Although Mrs. Knabb has passed her eightieth birthday, her memory is remarkable, and she takes a great interest in all that is transpiring, being a great reader. Her beautiful home is situated on the public road leading from Birdsboro to Monocacy. This was the property of Daniel Harrison, and was purchased by Mr. Knabb in 1867. Mrs. Knabb is one of the township's most venerable ladies, and is esteemed and beloved by all who know her.

WILSON M. RAHN, a highly respected citizen and property owner in Kutztown and in Richmond and Ruscombmanor townships, resided on Leibelsperger's farm at Moselem Springs, Berks county, for a period of twenty-two years. He was born June 17, 1851, in Maxatawny township on one of the Rahn farms.

Jacob Rahn, Sr., great-great-grandfather of Wilson M., was born Aug. 8, 1728, and he became a property owner in Ontelaunee township. He married a widow, Margaritha, born in 1714, and they had two sons.

Jacob Rahn, Jr., son of Jacob, Sr., was born July 16, 1757. He owned land in Ontelaunee township. His wife, Elizabeth Schneiderin, was born Aug. 26, 1765, and they had eight children, four sons and four daughters.

Jonathan Rahn, grandfather of Wilson M., was born July 17, 1796, and was an early settler of Maxatawny township. He was a large land owner, having four farms containing over 400 acres of the richest land in the township, most of this property still being in the possession of his descendants. He was a most honored and respected citizen. He and his family were prominent members of St. John's Reformed Church at Kutztown. In politics he was a Democrat, but never held office, being too busily engaged in the cultivation of the soil. He married Elizabeth Kutz, daughter of Daniel Kutz, of Maxatawny township, and they had these children: Jacob; John; William; Eliza, wife of Nathan Biber; Sallie, wife of Daniel Kohler; Charles; Mary, wife of August Geiger; James, who died in 1868; Isaac, who resides in Allentown, Lehigh county; and Hettie, wife of Henry Young, deceased.

William K. Rahn, father of Wilson M., is a prominent citizen of Maxatawny township, owning a farm of 114 acres of Maxatawny's best land, as well as 100 acres in Greenwich township, which is tenanted by his son William. He was married in 1850 to Caroline S. Merkel, daughter of Benjamin and Catherine (Sheradin) Merkel, substantial and early settlers of Richmond township, and these children were born to the union: Wilson M.; Franklin C., living at home; William, operating his father's farm in Greenwich township; Calvin M., a grocer of Philadelphia; Louisa, wife of William Bieber, of Reading; Daniel and Clara, at home; Nicholas M., a machinist of Kutztown, Pa.; Emma M., at home; James, a farmer af Maxatawny township; Jacob, a machinist of Kutztown; Katie, wife of Daniel Schucker, of Oakbrook, Pa.; and Fred M., a machinist, residing in Maxatawny township. Mrs. William Rahn, the mother of these children, died in 1900, in her seventy-first year, just three days after the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of her marriage, at which all of her children were present.

Wilson M. Rahn worked on his father's farm until he was twenty-four years of age, attending the public schools of his native township, and later studying at the Kutztown State Normal school. In 1876, he married Miss Lenora C. Machmer, daughter of Jonas and Catherine (Gift) Machmer, of Leesport, Pa.; and to them were born these children: Howard, a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School and Pierce's Business College, Philadelphia, is a bookkeeper for a prominent firm in the latter city; Cora m. Howard Bieler, a farmer of East Greenville, Montgomery county; Lewis M., a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, is now teacher of a grammar school at East Greenville; Clara m. Samuel Brancher, a farmer of Richmond township; Alfred M., a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, is now a senior in Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, intending later to study for the ministry in the Theological Seminary of the same institution; Robert M., a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, and afterward a teacher in Richmond township, is now a student of Pennsylvania State College, in the class of 1911; Gertie M.; Nicholas M. is a student of the Keystone State Normal, in the class of 1910; and Edna M. is at home.

In 1877 Wilson M. Rahn began farming on his father's land in Greenwich township, where he lived for eight years, and in 1885, he began operations on the Leibelsperger farm, where he farmed until March, 1907. He then retired and bought a fine brick house and lot on Noble street, Kutztown, and now resides there. He owns 102 acres of some of the best land in Richmond township, has substantial buildings thereon, and in every respect has a modern, well-cultivated farm; and he also owns a tract of wood land in Ruscombmanor township. Mr. Rahn and his family are members of St. Paul's Reformed Church. In politics he is a Democrat. He has been a delegate to numerous county conventions, and his vote decided the nomination, and ultimate election, of the late Daniel Ermentrout to Congress, when he was a candidate for that office the first time. In later years Congressman Ermentrout often stated that Mr. Rahn's vote caused a stampede in his favor, and that his political success in a great measure was due to that act.

WILLIAM S. RIESER, a highly respected citizen and retired farmer of Bern township, was born in Bern township, Berks Co., Pa., Jan. 5, 1841, son of Daniel and Catherine (Stoudt) Rieser.

Johan Jacob Rieser, great-grandfather of William S., was an early settler in this section.

Abraham Rieser, son of Johan Jacob, was born Aug. 16, 1781, and died July 9, 1857, aged seventy-five years, ten months and twenty-three days. He was married (first) Aug. 6, 1808, to Sarah Yrich, born Aug. 20, 1784, who died Nov. 23, 1822. He married (second) Anna Maria Yrich. His remains, as well as those of his two wives, rest in the burial ground at Bern Church. Abraham Rieser became a man of prominence in Bern township, where he acquired 350 acres of valuable land. He built the first Rieser mill in Bern township and operated it for many years. After retiring to his farm he improved it greatly, erecting all the buildings on the property now owned by his grandson, William S., and also all the buildings on the farm which was long owned by Jacob Rieser, and which is now owned by William Schlappich. The children of Abraham Rieser and his wife were: Daniel; Jacob and Jonathan both died in Bern township; Franklin, a physician residing at Reading, is the only survivor of that generation of the family; Mary m. John Bucks; Sarah m. Jacob Gerhart; and Hettie m. Washington Leinbach.

Daniel Rieser, father of William S., was born Dec. 18, 1808, and died Jan. 5, 1888, aged seventy-nine years and eighteen days. He was a well-known miller and a successful farmer. He bought 130 acres of the homestead farm, selling five acres later for a quarry. He owned also a farm of fifty-four acres on which he built a house and barn, and a farm of 225 acres in Spring township. He retired from active life a few years before his death. He was a worthy member of Epler's Reformed Church, in which he was an elder for twelve years, had also served as a deacon, was a member of the church building committee, and at all times was liberal in the cause of religion. He married Catherine Stoudt, daughter of Jacob Stoudt. She was born June 28, 1811, and died March 28, 1896, aged eighty-four years, nine months. They had two sons, William S. and Cyrus S., the latter of whom died aged forty-one years. His surviving children are: Pearson, George and Cora.

William S. Rieser attended the old subscription schools in childhood and later the district schools. In 1865 he began farming where he now resides, and continued until 1897, when he retired from active work. The old buildings erected by his grandfather still stand but he added to and remodeled them to suit modern ways of living. In politics he is a stanch Democrat. He is a member of Epler's Reformed Church, and has been one of its elders since 1901.

William S. Rieser married Elizabeth Hahn, daughter of Daniel and Mary Hahn, and they have four children, as follows: (1) Irvin, residing in Bern township, married Emma Bucks, and has one child, Esther. (2) Jennie m. William Dietrich, residing in Centre township, and they have children, Florence, Helen, Paul, John, William, Carrie, Laura, Annie, Edna, and Wayne. (3) Edwin C., a stenographer and book-keeper, is a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, afterward taking a post-graduate course at Perkiomen Seminary. While attending Pennsylvania State College he was a member of the class of 1905. He m. Edna S. Becker. (4) Harry H., the farmer on the old homestead, m. Carrie Spatz and they have one son, Arthur. They are all respected and representative people of Bern township.

JAMES L. GLASE, wholesale merchant at Philadelphia, was born at Friedensburg, Berks county, Jan. 10, 1855, and was brought up on his father's farm. He was educated in the township school, and in Oley Academy. Upon quitting school he assisted his father on the farm, and from 1875 to 1880, besides working on the farm, taught public schools, four terms at Oley, and one in Ruscombmanor. Then, being inclined toward a mercantile life, he entered the general store of E. S. Bear, at Friedensburg, and after remaining there as a clerk until January 1, 1882, he went to Philadelphia to become a traveling salesman in the wholesale dry goods business under his uncle, Peter W. Glase, who was connected with the firm of George A. Smith & Co., successors of the old firm of James, Kent, Santee & Co., on North Third street, and he continued with this firm until they retired. He then traveled for Howett, Glase & Co. for four years, Hall, Swoyer, Glase & Co. three years, and Hall, Glase & Co., for three years. Then the last named firm was reorganized as Glase, Hall & Co., and he was admited as a member of the firm, his uncle being the senior partner. This was at Nos. 405-407 Market street in 1904. On Feb. 3, 1906, the place was destroyed by fire, but they, in a week's time, resumed business at No. 513 Market street, where they have continued to the present time. Their trade extends throughout the United States, but more especially the Eastern and Middle States.

In 1889 Mr. Glase was married to Matilda Forster, daughter of Ferdinand Forster, of Philadelphia, and they have a daughter, Helen.

His father was William Glase, a farmer of Friedensburg, who married Hannah Leinbach, daughter of Benjamin Leinbach, of Oley; and by her he had a number of children, those surviving being Peter L., who married Anna Hill; Sarah; Hannah, who married Calvin Manwiller; and James L., above mentioned.

His grandfather was Peter L. Glase, also a farmer of Oley.

HENRY M. SULLENBERGER, a truck farmer and representative man of Bern township, Berks Co., Pa., was born in Millersburg, Berks Co., Pa., in Bethel township, April 9, 1849, son of Samuel and Sarah (Miller) Sullenberger, and grandson of Samuel, Sr., and Maria (Albright) Sullenberger.

Samuel Sullenberger, Sr., became the father of the following children: John; Joseph; Abraham and Samuel, all of whom lived in Cumberland county. The Sullenberger family name has been upon the records of Cumberland county for over a century. Like many of the early settlers, the Sullenbergers came from Lancaster county. John Sullenberger, a brother of Samuel, Sr., was a resident of that portion of Allen township, now Monroe, as early as 1799, record appearing of that date taxing him for both real and personal property. Therefore it is reasonable to suppose that he had settled there prior to 1799, for the records show that on May 21, 1795, Michael Ege conveyed to John Sullenberger 132 acres of land adjoining lands of George Brinkel, Samuel Irvine and heirs of James Crockett. This land lies on the eastern slope of the Stony Ridge in Monroe township, and is still in the family.

Samuel Sullenberger, Jr., was born Oct. 17, 1803, in Cumberland county, and when a young man he clerked in a general store. Later he became a teacher and taught school for twenty-one years in Berks county, in both Bethel and North Heidelberg townships, continuing in harness until two years prior to his death, which occurred in February, 1860, in Maiden-creek township, when he was fifty-six years old. His remains are interred at Shoemakersville Union church. His wife Sarah was a daughter of John Miller, of Upper Bern (now Tilden) township, Berks county. Her death took place in April, 1894, when she was eighty-one years old. The children born to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sullenberger were: Mary, widow of Francis Reber, living at Newark, N. J.; Sarah, who married William Keim, and resides at No. 538 Eleventh street, Reading, Pa.; Rebecca, who married William Wolfe, of Shoemakersville; Henry M.; William, of Philadelphia; and Emma, who married James Kerscher of Reading.

Henry M. Sullenberger attended the schools of Bethel township, and for one session in Silver Spring township, Cumberland county. He worked among the farmers until he attained his majority, when he began teaching school during the winter, continuing his farm work in the summer. Thus he continued for twelve years, and he then engaged in boating on the canal. In 1892 he purchased his present property, where he still resides. From his house can be obtained the best view of the surrounding country to be found in all of Berks county. Reading can be plainly seen, as well as the beautiful stretch of Lebanon Valley. Many visit his home to enjoy this charming view. Mr. Sullenberger conducts his property as a truck farm, attending the Reading markets, his stand being No. 136 at Ninth and Buttonwood streets, and he enjoys a large trade. His industry and business ability have placed him in his present position, while his pleasant manner has won him many friends.

In politics Mr. Sullenberger is a Republican, and served as county committeeman for four years, and is now township supervisor, acting as secretary of the board. Much of his time has been given to his township, he being a public-spirited man, deeply interested in the development and improvement of his community. For many years he has been a member of Epler's Lutheran church, of which he is elder, and in younger days he was very active in Sunday-school work.

In 1871 Mr. Sullenberger married Miss Henrietta E. Kleinginna, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Haak) Kleinginna. Their children are: Carrie, who married Robert Shearer and resides in Muhlenberg township; Rev. John K. a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, class of 1892; Samuel, at home; William, who died in 1885 aged five years.

The Rev. John K. Sullenberger taught school for three terms, and then attended Muhlenberg College, from which he was graduated in 1898. Later he attended Mount Airy Seminary at Philadelphia, from which he was graduated in 1901, and he is now in charge of Grace Lutheran church at Allentown, Pa., being generally recognized as a young man of great promise, and an earnest and devout clergyman.

CALVIN D. SHOLLENBERGER, a highly esteemed citizen and prominent agriculturist of Maiden-creek township, Berks Co., Pa., was born Oct. 10, 1855, in Rockland township, son of Jonas M. and Mary (Dry) Shollenberger.

John Shollenberger, grandfather of Calvin D., owned and resided on the Shollenberger homestead near Fleetwood, in Richmond township, where his death occurred at the age of seventy-four years. He married Kate Merkel, who died aged eighty-two years, and they had the following children: Daniel, who married Mary Peters; Sarah, who married Peter Kunkel; John, who married Hetty Schlegel; Lucy, who married Jacob S. Yoder; Nathan, who married Malinda Merkel; Jonas M.; Elizabeth, deceased, who married Benneville Sassaman; Catherine, who married Henry Bear; Edwin, who married Carolina Merkel; Malinda, who died single; Lydia, the widow of Frank Martin, now a resident of Philadelphia; and Fianna, who died single.

Jonas M. Shollenberger, father of Calvin D., was born in Albany township, near Kempton, and when about seventeen years old went to the old Richmond township home, where young Shollenberger was reared. He received instruction in advanced schools here, after leaving which he engaged in farming, with which occupation he was identified the remainder of his active period. He was a stanch Democrat in politics, and his personal popularity, as well as his well-known ability, caused his election to a number of important positions in the township, and he was elected registrar of wills for a three-year term. In his earlier life he had taught school for several terms, and when the Civil war broke out he answered his country's call, serving nine months as captain of Company I, 167th P. V. I. Jonas M. Shollenberger was married to Mary Dry, daughter of David and Susanna (Yoder) Dry, and to this union there were born the following children: Catherine died young; Calvin D.; Edwin died young; Milton m. Valeria Kutz, and had seven children—Herbert, Clarence, Harvey, Elmer, William, John and Lizzie; Clara m. Dr. Eugene Moore, of Alburtis, and had six children—William, Mary and Hettie, deceased, and Clara, John and Eugene, living; Elmina m. George Merkel, and had six children—Walter, Robert, Wayne, Warren, Mary and Clara; Alice m. Lawson Dietrich.

Calvin D. Shollenberger was reared on the old homestead in Richmond township, where he received his early education. He also attended the Oley Academy. He followed farming on his father's place in his younger days, and that occupation he has made his life work. On Jan. 30, 1875, he was married to Sarah Louisa Angstadt, daughter of Reuben and Catharine (Wieant) Angstadt, of Rockland township, and she died of small-pox Feb. 15, 1877, leaving two sons: Samuel, who died aged four months, twelve days; and Charles, who is married and works in a flouring mill as head miller at Yellow House. Mr. Shollenberger was married (second) April 29, 1882, to Mary Ann Wieant, and to this union there were born three children: Miss Katie Alice, born April 28, 1883, who has taken charge of the home since the death of the mother on May 3, 1905; Eugene, born Sept. 10, 1886, a clerk in a Blandon store; and Howard, born Feb. 18, 1888, who assists his father on the home farm. Mr. Shollenberger is a Democrat in politics, and has held township offices, but has never aspired to any higher honors.

JACOB MOYER, one of the old and highly esteemed residents of Bethel township, Berks county, who is engaged in horse dealing at Millersburg, Pa., was born March 12, 1832, in Bethel township, son of Michael and Catherine (Deck) Moyer.

Michael Moyer was born in Bethel township, and there passed his entire life, being one of the leading agriculturists of his day, as well as prominent in Democratic politics. He was a member of the Reformed Church, while his wife was a Lutheran. Michael Moyer died in 1843, at the age of forty-five years, and his wife, Catherine Deck, daughter of John Nicholas and Polly (Koble) Deck, in 1889, at the age of eighty years. They were the parents of the following children: Elizabeth, deceased, married Wendel Long, of White county, Ind.; Catherine, deceased, m. Jonathan Holtzman, of White county, Ind.; Levi resides at Brookson, White Co., Ind.; Lucetta m. Jacob Zeibach, of White county, Ind.; Jacob; John D. died at Millersburg, where he was a tailor; and Jonathan, deceased, who was a shoemaker by trade but was seldom employed thereat, served as constable.

Jacob Moyer was reared on the home farm, and was educated in the common schools of Bethel township, after leaving which he learned the cabinet maker's trade at Millersburg, where he continued two or three years. He then engaged in the horse business, beginning in a modest way and gradually increasing his business, until he has become the heaviest dealer in northern Berks county. Mr. Moyer has owned over 30,000 horses, and has never gone into debt for one of them. He has bought horses in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky and Western Pennsylvania, and in Canada, and has disposed of them to the farmers and dealers in Berks county, and to the Eastern dealers. During the Civil war he furnished the Government with many animals. Mr. Moyer is still engaged in this business, and is considered one of the best judges of horse flesh in the State. Beginning life as a poor boy, with little but an ambitious spirit and the traits of thrift and economy, he has through good business ability and the faculty of recognizing an opportunity and grasping it, worked his way to the front ranks of the substantial men of Berks county. He is a stanch Democrat in politics, and he and his family are members of Salem Reformed Church.

On Sept. 11, 1856, Mr. Moyer was married to Miss Ellen Spangler, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Snyder) Spangler, and to them there have been born these children: Clara married Dr. Levi Zimmerman, of Richland, Lebanon Co., Pa., and has two children, Bertha (m. Dr. I. K. Light) and Curtis; Levi, a horse dealer residing at Lebanon, m. Emma Hunsicker, by whom he has children, Charles, Maggie, Mary, Robert, Daisy, Sallie, Carrie and Rufus; Catherine m. R. B. Heilman, of Lebanon county, and has one child, Banks (m. Catherine Holtzman, and has three children, Ammon, Roy and Annie); John H., who died at the age of thirty, m. Jane Merkey and had two children, Hattie and Vallie; Ella Valeria m. Peter H. Bordner, of Myerstown, and has one child, Minerva; and Sadie A. m. George Gable, of Millersburg, and has one child, June.

GEORGE N. PEIFER, of Sinking Spring, is descended from (I) Frantz Peifer, who was a farmer in the town of Marienberg, about two hours from Hachenburg, Nassau, Germany. He married Elizabeth Kessler, and they had children: Gerhart, Christ, Frantz, Martin, Barbara and Elizabeth.

(II) Gerhart Peifer, son of Frantz, was born in Germany on his father's farm Sept. 28, 1782. He married Catharine Miller, daughter of Johannes Miller, and they all came to America in 1818. The Miller family possessed some means, and paid Gerhart Peifer's passage. They settled at Sinking Spring, in Berks county, Pa., where the remainder of their lives was passed. Gerhart Peifer was a carpenter, and worked at his trade for some time. He died May 17, 1845, at the age of sixty-two years, seven months. The children born to Gerhart and Catharine (Miller) Peifer were: Mathias, Daniel, Gerhart, Catharine (m. John Luft) and Harriet (m. John D. Whittich).

(III) Mathias Peifer, son of Gerhart, was born in Germany Jan. 25, 1804, and died in Berks county, Pa., July 8, 1884, aged eighty years, five months, thirteen days. He accompanied his parents to America, landing first at Baltimore, Md. By trade he was a blacksmith, and he was the first blacksmith at Sinking Spring, becoming one of the much esteemed citizens of that place. In politics he was a stanch Republican, and kept well informed on public affairs. He owned his own home, and at his death was comfortably well off. He married Maria Neff (daughter of George Neff, of Lancaster county), born Oct. 17, 1809, died Jan. 3, 1888, aged seventy-eight years, two months, sixteen days. Both she and her husband are buried in the United Brethren cemetery at Sinking Spring. Their children were: John died young; Susan m. George Wittich, of Reading; Mary m. Daniel Bitler; Daniel N. is mentioned below; George N. is mentioned below; Reuben died young; Sarah m. Benjamin Weidman; Lizzie m. A. I. Noll.

(IV) Daniel N. Peifer, J. P., son of Mathias, was born at Sinking Spring, and attended the local schools. On Oct. 27, 1862, he enlisted for service in the Union army, becoming a member of Company E, 167th P. V. I., and at the end of his nine months' term of enlistment was discharged at Reading Aug. 12, 1863. For three terms he served as justice of the peace in Spring township, and on his removal to Mohnton was for four years a notary public. In 1905 he was elected justice of the peace, and is still serving in that office. By his first marriage, with Sarah Bollman, who died during his service in the army, he had two children, Reuben and Sallie, both of whom are deceased. Mr. Peifer married (second) Mary A. Mohn, daughter of Benjamin and Harriet (Deeds) Mohn, They have no children. In politics Squire Peifer is a Democrat.

(IV) George N. Peifer, son of Mathias, was born in Sinking Spring, Pa., Oct. 19, 1838, and in that locality has passed his entire life. His early education was obtained in the old eight-cornered stone school building at the angle of the pike and the Van Reed road. This he attended for ten years, his teachers during that time being John Bush, Daniel Bitler and Henry Stetler. At the age of seventeen he began to learn the blacksmith's trade under his father, and this trade, in connection with coachmaking, he followed for a quarter of a century. This blacksmith shop, the oldest business stand in the village, stood half way in the road, and was the first building in Sinking Spring within the recollection of the oldest settlers. Mr. Peifer was successful, and as his business constantly grew he was obliged to employ others to assist him, part of the time having as many as ten men. In 1887 he retired from business, and has since devoted himself to the cultivation of his fine farm of forty acres. He resides on Main street, in the center of the village.

Mr. Peifer is prominent in Republican circles. He was his party's candidate for recorder of deeds in 1906, and was defeated by only a small majority. He has been committeeman of Spring township since 1897, and he has been delegate to many conventions. At the present time he is serving as roadmaster. For some years he held the offices of register and assessor. Fraternally he is a member of Knight of Pythias Lodge No. 155 (in which he is district deputy of the Fourth district of Berks county) and of P. O. S. of A. Camp No. 282. Mr. Peifer has the honor of having been the first chancellor commander of the K. P. lodge, the first president of the P. O. S. of A. camp, and the first noble chief of the K. G. E. castle in his village. He was also the first presiding officer of the Brotherhood of the Union, which was active some years ago. He has represented all of his lodges in the Grand Lodges of the State.

On Sept. 30, 1858, Mr. Peifer married Hettie Sharman, born Feb. 23, 1841, daughter of Isaac and Sarah (Hartranft) Sharman. To this union have been born three sons and two daughters: John S., street commissioner of Reading, m. Ida Werner; George S., of Reading, a clerk for the Reading Railway Company, m. Mary Miller; Sallie m. George Werner, of Reading; Lizzie m. George Coneauff, a blacksmith, formerly of Lancaster county, now of Sinking Spring; Daniel M. died young.

ELIAS B. SUNDAY, a retired citizen of Windsor township, Berks county, who resides on Fourth street, Hamburg, was born Aug. 24, 1841, on his father's farm in Windsor township.

Tradition says that the ancestor of the Sunday family in America was Hans Adam Sontag, who emigrated on the ship "Snow Molly," which made port at Philadelphia, Oct. 26, 1741. The district in Berks county in which he settled is not known, but he had two sons: (1) Christopher, who was born April 9, 1753, died Dec. 13, 1825. He married Anna Christina Bacharsin, born April 19, 1753, who died Sept. 7, 1825, and their sons, Jacob Heinrich, John and George were members of Dunkel's Church in Greenwich township in 1808. (2) Nicholas Sontag was a taxable in Windsor township in 1768, and had sons John, George and Martin.

George Sontag, son of Nicholas and the grandfather of Elias B., was a lifelong farmer in Windsor township, where he was born Jan. 13, 1780, and died Jan. 19, 1869. He owned over 400 acres of land, the farm now owned by Elias B. and the one owned by John S. Sunday being originally one farm and a part of his property. He was a successful farmer and he made occasional trips to Philadelphia (having from four to six horses on his large Conestoga wagon) where he sold his farm produce. On one of his return trips, when about eight miles from home, he fell from the wagon while asleep, receiving serious injuries. On Sept. 3, 1803, Mr. Sontag married Catharine Strasser, who was born Sept. 16, 1789, and who died March 5, 1853, and to them were born these children: Gideon; Hannah, born in 1807, m. Isaac Miller, and died in 1883; Polly m. Peter Raubenhold; Elizabeth m. Johann George Jacoby; and George m. (first) Mary Siegfried, and (second) Catharine Hoch.

Gideon Sunday, father of Elias B., was born Nov. 24, 1810, in Windsor township, and died Jan. 20, 1876. He was engaged in agricultural pursuits all of his life, owning the farm now in the possession of Elias B. and considerable mountain land. He was a man well known and of ability and enterprise, and he built all the buildings on the farm which is now owned by his son. He served as school director and was much interested in public matters.

Mr. Sunday married Sarah Bieber, of Maxatawny township, who at this date (1909) is still active and living with her daughter in the city of Reading at the ripe age of ninety years. To them were born a son and a daughter: Elias B. is mentioned below; Fianna m. (first) Richard Dunkel, and after his death Scott Martin, and they reside in Reading, Pennsylvania.

Elias B. Sunday was reared on his father's farm, which he operated until 1904, when he removed to his present residence in Hamburg. He obtained a good education in the pay and public schools of his locality, and his life has been devoted to agricultural interests. This farm, which is a part of the original Sunday property, consists of 185 acres of fertile land, situated on the State road between Hamburg and Allentown, with excellent water supply, fine large residence, large barn and numerous sheds and out-buildings. When reference is made to this place it is usually spoken of as "the red roofed buildings to the west of the State road beyond Hamburg." This farm is now cultivated by Thomas A. Sunday, son of Elias B. Mr. Sunday now lives retired in Hamburg in his brick residence, No. 138 South Fourth street, South ward. He is in very comfortable circumstances, owning besides the farm to which reference has just been made, a valuable farm situated along the State road, and tenanted by his son-in-law, Jerome G. Trexler. This fine property, which consists of 133 acres of good, fertile land, is improved with a Swiss barn and a large brick house, surrounded by a spacious well-kept lawn. Mr. Sunday is possessed of just family pride, and the old "grandfather's clock" which has graced the family homestead for upward of a century, he has presented to his son, who lives upon the homestead. In political matters Mr. Sunday is a Democrat, and he has creditably served his township as school director for a period of seven years. He and his family worship at Zion's Union Church, in Perry township, of which they are Lutheran members.

On Nov. 28, 1868, Mr. Sunday was married to Hannah M. Leibensperger, daughter of Jacob and Hannah (Merkel) Leibensperger, prosperous farming people of Richmond township, and to this union there were born four children—Annie; Sallie; Alvin, who died in childhood; and Thomas A.

Annie Sunday was born Feb. 5, 1871, and on Nov. 30, 1890, was united in marriage with Jerome G. Trexler, born Oct. 9, 1865, in Perry township. Mr. Trexler attended the public schools until nineteen years of age, and has been a farmer all his life. On April 1, 1895, he began operations on his father-in-law's farm in Windsor township, where he has since resided. He is prominent in the ranks of the Republican party, has been delegate to many county conventions, and was honored by his party with the nomination for county treasurer, receiving the highest vote ever given a Republican nominee in Berks county for that office. He and his family are Lutheran members of St. Paul's Union Church. Mr. and Mrs. Trexler are the parents of four children: Thomas R., born Nov. 12, 1891; Mamie H., Oct. 17, 1896; Jerome L., Dec. 15, 1899; and Earl Sunday, June 29, 1905.

Sallie A. Sunday was born June 18, 1873. She was married Dec. 22, 1900, to Ammon C. Dietrich. Mr. Dietrich was born Nov. 22, 1875. He obtained a good education in the public schools of Greenwich township, and was reared on his father's farm. He and his wife reside in Hamburg with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elias B. Sunday. Mr. Dietrich and his wife are Lutheran members of Zion's Union Church, Perry township.

Alvin Richard Sunday, born Jan. 1, 1875, died Aug. 24, 1875.

Thomas A. Sunday was born Dec. 21, 1876, and obtained a good education in the public schools; he was reared upon his father's farm which he is now operating. He is a deacon in the Lutheran denomination of Zion's Union Church. On Nov. 28, 1903, Thomas A. Sunday was united in marriage with Katie L. Baver, daughter of E. Franklin Baver, of Windsor township, and to this union have come three children: Florence Hannah, born July 29, 1905, who died March 19, 1906; Naomi Sarah Ann, born March 6, 1907; and Laurance Franklin, born Nov. 15, 1908.

ABEL H. BYERS, one of the well-known and highly-esteemed residents of Hamburg borough, who is serving in the responsible position of postmaster, was born at Danbury, Conn., in 1856, son of James Byers, who with his wife, Jane Ritchey, emigrated from the North of Ireland in 1846, and located at Danbury. When the Civil war broke out James Byers enlisted in Company B, 3d Regiment, Conn. V. I., and was killed while engaged with his company in the battle of Cedar Mountain.

Abel H. Byers attended the public schools of his native place until he was ten years of age, when he accompanied his mother to Brooklyn, and there worked at gas and steam-fitting for a time. He then learned the trade of wool hat-making in the large establishment of James H. Prentiss, following the trade at that place, and also acting in the capacity of foreman until 1877, when he removed to Reading, Pa. Here for six years he served as foreman in the wool hat factory of William H. Reinoehl & Co. Mr. Byers then became a member of the firm of R. H. Savage & Co., and acted as foreman for four years, when he and his brother Joseph Byers, under the name of Byers Brothers, engaged in the manufacture of fur hats, the first of the kind made at Reading. Within a year, on account of superior inducements, the firm removed their plant to Hamburg, and there organized the Byers Hat Company, continuing to manufacture fur hats under this name until 1895, when they were obliged to suspend further operations on account of the depressed condition of the hat business. Mr. Byers was then engaged by the Mohawk Valley Cap Company, at Utica, N. Y., and he continued with this company for two years, still maintaining his residence at Hamburg.

Being an earnest Republican from his early manhood, Mr. Byers naturally identified himself with the Republicans at Hamburg, and his services to the party were so highly appreciated that in 1898 he secured the appointment of postmaster of the place, notwithstanding the great contest for the office, and his management of its affairs has been so satisfactory that he has held the appointment to the present time. If Mr. Byers fills out his present appointment he will have served over twelve years, evidencing the high appreciation of his services by the community. The first Rural Free Delivery in Berks county was started at Hamburg in August, 1900, only a few routes in the whole State being earlier.

While residing at Reading, Mr. Byers assisted materially in re-organizing the Reading Artillerists as a military company of the National Guard of Pennsylvania. He was selected as second lieutenant, and served one term. In this time the company attended the Wilkes-Barre encampment, and the men were accorded the second best record for neatness and efficiency.

Mr. Byers was married to Bertha Dehart, of Reading, whose father, Frederick Dehart, died in 1898.

AUGUSTUS G. BODY, a prominent citizen of Shillington, Pa., who is now living retired after many years spent in the hotel business in Cumru township, was born Jan. 13, 1847, in this township, son of John and Mary (Gaul) Body.

Johannes Peter Body, the grandfather of Augustus G., lived in Alsace township, where he was a lifelong farmer, and where he is buried at the Gernant's cemetery. He was born in Holland, and when seven years of age came with his parents to this country, owning a farm in Alsace (now Muhlenberg) township. He was married three times, and his children were as follows: Henry (who died on the old homestead in Muhlenberg township in 1848, the father of George, Esther, Polly, Catherine and Sarah), Mrs. John Titlow (of Reading, who went to San Francisco, and there died three days later), Mrs. Shearer, Mrs. Herbein, and John (father of Augustus G.), all by the first wife, and the following by the second wife: Abraham; Daniel (who had a son Andrew); George; Peter, who lived in Muhlenberg township, where he owned land and sold the same in 1813 to Henry Body; and two daughters, whose names are unknown.

John Body, father of Augustus G., was born in 1810, and was a well-known farmer in Cumru township, where he had a 145-acre farm of excellent land, a part of which is now embraced in the town of Edison. He died July 27, 1878, a well-known and highly esteemed citizen. He served in various township offices, including that of supervisor, and was a member of the Reformed denomination of Sinking Spring Church. He married Mary Gaul, daughter of Peter, and to this union there were born children as follows: Henry, born Dec. 25, 1834, died April 27, 1907, was a farmer in Cumru township, and a hatter by trade; Kate m. Enoch Gaul, a farmer of North Heidelberg township; Richard m. Ellen Schweitzer, and is a farmer and well-known politician of Berks county; John G., and Augustus G.

John G. Body was born on his father's farm in Cumru township, July 6, 1844, and for the past forty-five years has been working as a boss carpenter, erecting many buildings in Lower Berks county, and in Schuylkill county, he having lived at Ashland for eight years. He was assistant steward of the Berks county Alms House from 1875 until 1878, and he then engaged in the hotel business at Womelsdorf, continuing there for two years, in 1888 returning to Shillington, where he has since made his home, being engaged at his trade. He has been prominent in politics for some years, being postmaster of Shillington for four years during Cleveland's second administration, and in 1907 he was elected township supervisor of Cumru. Mr. Body was twice married, his first wife being Sarah Smith, daughter of Samuel Smith, of Wernersville, and they had these children: Harry, Maggie L., and Annie, who died in infancy; Eva, who lives in Reading; Adam S., who was associated with the Reading Eagle for some years and also taught school in Cumru township; and Jennie, who resides in Shillington. Mr. Body's second marriage was to Emeline Matz, Sept. 5, 1896. One son, John, was born to this union.

Augustus G. Body was reared upon the farm of his father, for whom he worked until starting out in life on his own account. He obtained his education in the public schools of Cumru township, Prof. D. B. Brunner's Business College on North Fifth street, Reading, and the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, which latter institution he attended under the principalship of Prof. John S. Ermentrout. He began teaching at the Cedar Top school in Cumru township, being only seventeen years of age at the time, and after two years there taught one year at White's and three at the Five Mile House, having secured his license from Judge James N. Ermentrout, President Judge of the Berks County Courts. In 1873 Mr. Body engaged in the hotel business at the Five Mile House in Cumru township, which he conducted for two years, spending a like period in farming the Joseph Hornberger property. In 1877 he removed to the Yellow House, in Amity township, where he remained for thirty consecutive years, gaining a reputation for honesty and integrity throughout this section of the State, his intimate friends including the leading business and professional men of Pennsylvania. Kindly and genial, quick to make friends and slow to lose them, Mr. Body made an ideal host, and his hostelry was one of the best known and most popular in the county. It was frequented by the best class of people, among whom Mr. Body's famous chicken and waffle suppers, enlivened by good music furnished by Mr. Body's daughters, were great favorites. In the spring of 1907, Mr. Body sold out his business to John M. Schearer and retired to Shillington, where he erected a handsome brick residence on New Holland avenue, near Lancaster avenue. Mr. Body is a Reformed member of St. John's Church at Sinking Spring, the rest of the family being identified with St. Paul's Amity Church. In politics he is a Democrat, and has been active in the ranks of his party, serving on numerous occasions as delegate to county conventions.

On Dec. 27, 1872, Augustus G. Body married Rebecca G. Lash, daughter of William and Maria Lash, of Spring township, and to this union there have been born nine children, as follows: Mary m. William Reeser, a merchant at Yellow House; Howard, a dairyman at the Yellow House, m. Alice Esterly; George died in infancy; John W. H., also a dairyman at theYellow House, m. Bertha Herbein; Alice, an accomplished musician, is engaged in music teaching and resides at home with her parents; Dora, a school teacher of Locust Dale, Pa., m. Chester Geiger; Laura is also a music teacher; and Cleveland and Daniel died in infancy.

PETER M. LEINBACH, one of the most prominent citizens of Bern township, Berks county, was born on the old Leinbach homestead, where he still resides, Oct. 28, 1855, son of William A. Leinbach, and member of an old family of this section of Pennsylvania.

The first known ancestor of the Leinbachs was Henry, of Langen-Weibolt, Wetterau, Germany, who married Barbara Lerch. From this worthy German couple the line to Peter M. is through Johannes Leinbach and Anna Elizabeth Kleiss; Johannes Leinbach, Jr., and Catharine Riehm; John Daniel Leinbach and his third wife, Mary Magdalena Hartman; Christian Leinbach and Susanna Althouse; and William A. and Mary Ann Miller. [The earlier generations are given in detail in the sketch of the Leinbach family elsewhere in this publication.]

John Daniel Leinbach, second son of Johannes, Jr., was born in 1746, and he died in Oley, April 8, 1817. He owned the farm, later the property of Jeremiah Hartman, former county commissioner, who is buried at Spies's Church. John Daniel Leinbach was married three times. On Nov. 9, 1768, he married Catharine Graul, who died April 6, 1783, the mother of six children: Salome, Maria Sybilla, Susanna, John, John Henry and John Daniel. By his second wife (name not known) he had two children: Abraham and Catharine. In 1789 he married (third) Mary Magdalena Hartman, and their children were: Jacob, Christian, Benjamin, Joseph, William, Samuel, Maria Magdalena, Thomas H., Salome, Frederick, Solomon, Rachel, and Charles.

Christian Leinbach, son of John Daniel, was born Nov. 24, 1791, and he died Oct. 15, 1866. Oley township was his native home, but he came to Bern township and settled at what is now Leinbach's Hotel. He cleared the land and built the first hotel, a building which is still standing and in good condition. This hotel, built in 1848, he ran for a few years in connection with his farm, the latter consisting of about sixty-eight acres. In politics Mr. Leinbach was an old-line Whig. He was singing master at Epler's Church, and taught music. He served as church treasurer many years. During the war of 1812 he served as a soldier, and during the last few years of his life received a pension from the government. He married Susanna Althouse, daughter of Peter Althouse and wife (whose maiden name was Knabb). She was born June 5, 1801, and died Feb. 17, 1871. Their children were: William A.; Elias A.; Richard A., who is living in Wyomissing; Mary, who married Henry Z. Van Reed; Joseph A.; George A., who served three years in the Union army in the Civil war.

William A. Leinbach, son of Christian, was born on Aug. 21, 1821, at the old homestead in Bern township. He attended the local schools, and after acquiring a common school education engaged in farming. He became the owner of the old homestead, and he added eighteen acres to the original tract. He was very successful and he had a high reputation for integrity. He died June 11, 1890, in the faith of the Reformed Church, in which he was serving as elder at the time of his death. He had served as a member of the building committee of the church. In politics he was a Republican, and assisted on the election board. He married Mary Ann Miller, daughter of Peter and Rebecca (Luft) Miller, of Sinking Spring. They had two sons: (1) Wellington, born Oct. 20, 1851, and now engaged in the real estate business in Reading, married Emma Kalbach, and has three children—Paul K., Wayne K. and Mark K.; and (2) Peter M.

Peter M. Leinbach, son of William A., attended the schools of Bern township and Prof. D. B. Brunner's College at Reading. He was licensed to teach by Prof. Brunner in 1872, but never engaged in teaching. He remained with his father until the latter's death, when he bought all his land in Bern township, and also the estate of Elias Leinbach, his uncle, consisting of the well known Leinbach's Hotel, woodland and farm land consisting of fifty acres. He has in all about 140 acres besides the hotel farm, and is among the most progressive farmers of the county. In 1899 he sold off all his stock, and moved to a private residence on the farm which was the home of his father. He has taken a prominent part in a number of enterprises and progressive movements in the county. He is a director and large stock holder of the Crystal Palace Public Market House Company of Reading, Pa. In politics he is a Republican, and for nine years served as school director, during which time he was secretary of the board. At the present time he is a member of the township committee, in which office he has served three years. He belongs to Epler's Reformed Church, in which he is elder and has been deacon. In his younger days he took an active part in the Sunday-school, and taught a class of young men—a duty his son now fulfills.

On March 18, 1880, Mr. Leinbach was married to Mary E. Reber, born Sept. 26, 1854, daughter of Benneville and Ellen (Dechert) Reber, of Bern township, the latter a sister of the late Adam Dechert. To this marriage has come one son, Ammon Reber, born Aug. 4, 1887, who graduated from the Keystone State Normal School, and is now engaged in teaching the Mine Hole school.

WILLIAM S. ODEAIR, one of the venerable citizens of Spring township, Berks Co., Pa., who for some years has been retired from active pursuits, was for a long period engaged in farming in this section. He was born Jan. 30, 1834, at Mount Penn Furnace, son of Patrick and Mary (Schnabel) Odeair.

Patrick Odeair, grandfather of William S., was a native of Ireland and emigrated to America in 1798, settling in the vicinity of the Mount Penn Furnace soon thereafter. Here he died, as did also his wife. Besides his son Patrick, Mr. Odeair had at least one daughter, Agnes, who was twice married, first to a Mr. Sheridan and second to a Mr. Kimbel. By her first marriage she had two daughters, both of whom married a Mr. Bechtel.

Patrick Odeair, father of William S., was born on the ocean while his parents were emigrating to America, and he died on his 100-acre farm in Cumru township in 1850, being buried on a private plot above Mount Penn Furnace, on the Blue Ball road. He started in life a poor man, but by industry and economy had his whole farm paid for at the time of his death. Mr. Odeair was married to Mary Schnabel, who died five weeks after her husband, being about the same age. They had these children: John died unmarried; Mary m. Edward Hartranft, a lumber merchant of Kansas; William S.; Deborah m. David Maurer, a shoemaker at Yocom's Church; and Patrick m. Elizabeth Miller, and had his home with his son, Patrick M., until his death, July 29, 1908, and he was laid to rest in Sinking Spring cemetery. Patrick M. Odeair married Mary Hartman, and they live at No. 318 Cherry street, West Reading; they have five children: Aquilla Gertrude, a young woman of eighteen years who lives with William S. Odeair, for whom she attends market three time a week; William H.; Estella H.; James M., and Dewey W.

William S. Odeair was reared on the home farm, and when twenty years of age learned the carpenter trade with Benjamin Matz, an occupation which he followed for fifty-one years. He purchased a tract of five acres of land in Spring township, between the Textile and Van Reed's paper mills, and here he built himself a house in 1862, and here he has lived for forty-seven years, retiring from active pursuits in 1906. In 1863 he built a barn, and carried on farming to some extent in the following years. In 1891 he bought eleven acres just below his home, and on it erected a frame kitchen, but in 1908 he sold this to Mr. Kohns. For eight years he also conducted a milk route to Reading.

On Jan. 12, 1861, Mr. Odeair was married to Harriet Rice, born June 19, 1841, daughter of David and Sarah (Spayd) Rice, of Walnuttown, Pa., and granddaughter of George Rice, of Germany. Mr. and Mrs. Odeair are very highly esteemed in their community and are familiarly known by their neighbors as "Uncle" and "Auntie" Odeair. They have no children, but their grandniece, Aquilla G. Odeair, has made her home with them since her childhood.

ADAM R. GRUBER, who met an accidental death Nov. 25, 1903, will be well remembered by a large circle of friends as one of the good citizens and enterprising business men of Mt. Pleasant, Pa. He was born Feb. 29, 1864, in Penn township, Berks county, son of Franklin H. and Matilda (Himmelberger) Gruber.

Franklin H. Gruber was born Sept. 14, 1835, near Ronesonia, Pa., where he spent his early life. When a young man he was apprenticed to his cousin, John Henry, to learn the millwright's trade, and after his marriage in 1858, he located at Mt. Pleasant and established himself in business. After the Civil war he engaged in farming, but later returned to his old business, and conducted two large shops on his farm about one mile south of Mt. Pleasant until 1883, in which year he bought the William Penn Hotel property and the Eyrich Estate at the foot of the hill at Mt. Pleasant, and there established a large wheelwright shop, where he built up a fine business. He died July 3, 1898, and is buried at Bern Church, of which he was a member. Mr. Gruber married Matilda, daughter of John Himmelberger, and they had the following children: Amelia M., born Sept. 20, 1859, died Dec. 8, 1859; John W., born Oct. 4, 1860, m. Clara A. Staudt; James, born May 30, 1862, is deceased; Adam R.; Jacob H., born July 14, 1865, m. Annie Bright; Katie A., born Sept. 18, 1866, died March 22, 1871; George P., born Dec. 1, 1867, m. Kate Schrack; and Rev. Levi Franklin m. Amelia L. Hahn, of Rochester, N. Y. John W., Jacob H. and George P. Gruber are continuing the business founded by their father.

Adam R. Gruber learned the wagon manufacturing business with his father, and at the time of his death had charge of the paint shop department of the works. While on a return trip from Reading, while passing Blue Marsh, the horse which he was driving ran away, and he was killed. His death was a severe shock to the community where he had numerous friends and acquaintances. Mr. Gruber was buried at Bern Church, of which he was a consistent member. Fraternally he was connected with the K. G. E.

In 1884 Mr. Gruber was married to Rosa K. Hiester, who is now conducting a fine twenty-four-acre farm in Penn township near Mt. Pleasant. They had two children: Lizzie m. Calvin Lando, who now conducts his mother-in-law's farm, and has one daughter, Erma H.; and Katie H. m. Elias H. Phillips, of Reading, and has one son, Elias H.

EDWARD K. BOHN, a representative farmer of Berks county, now living retired in the enjoyment of the competence won by years of patient industry, was born in Spring township, this county, May 4, 1835, son of Adam and Hannah (Krick) Bohn.

The first of the Bohn family in America was John Jacob Bohn, who arrived at Philadelphia from Rotterdam, Sept. 21, 1742.

Frederick Bohn, son of John Jacob, married a Miss Woomer. Frederick Bohn lived in Heidelberg township. He made his will April 14, 1814, and he died that same year. His executors were George, David and Frederick Bohn; and the witnesses, Philip Fidler and Joseph Greth. The children mentioned in this will were: George; Frederick; David; Philip; John; Elizabeth; Adam (taxable in Bern township in 1759); and Christina.

George Bohn, son of Frederick, is buried at Bern Church. His children were: Adam, Susan, Amos and Eva (who married Michael Gruber).

Adam Bohn, son of George, was born in Bern township, and that place was his home until 1840, with the exception of two years passed in Spring township, when he moved to North Heidelberg, there to pass the remainder of his life engaged in farming. He married Hannah Krick, of Spring township, and they had eight children: one that died in infancy unnamed; Edward K.; Matilda, Mary Ann, Amelia, and Sarah C. are all deceased; Rebecca m. Frank Moyer, who is engaged in the cold storage business in Philadelphia; and Adam m. Otillia Lengel, and has a son Nathaniel. Adam Bohn, the father, died March 17, 1893, and his wife passed away June 16, 1892. They are buried at Hain's Church.

Edward K. Bohn received his early education in the township schools, supplementing this with a year at Washington Hall, in Trappe, Montgomery county. After leaving school he returned to the home farm, and for twenty-three years engaged in its cultivation. In 1881 he bought a farm of seventy-three acres, moving on it the following year, and in 1888 he bought the adjoining farm of 114 acres, and this his son Daniel W. operates, also conducting a dairy. There is now one silo on it in operation, and another is being contemplated. Mr. Bohn has retired from active work now, and his only business is looking after his real estate holdings.

On March 10, 1858, Mr. Bohn was married to Catherine Warnes, who was born in Wayne county, Ohio, April 15, 1845, daughter of George and Mary (Winckelepleck) Warnes; the former, a farmer in Holmes county, Ohio, died in 1847. Mrs. Bohn had one sister, Angeline, who became the wife of Henry Briel. To Edward K. Bohn and wife were born nine children as follows: (1) George W., born May 23, 1859, died Sept. 8, 1873. (2) Milton, born Sept. 7, 1860, graduated from Muhlenberg College in 1883, and taught seven years in the Pennsylvania State College. He now is engaged in slate roofing at Norfolk, Va., his business being incorporated under the name of Bohn Roofing and Cornice Company. They employ from twenty to forty men. He married (first) Charlotte Ake, who died in September, 1900, leaving three children: Catherine Mary, Richard Ake and Edward Howe. By his second wife, Hannah Rittenhouse, he has a daughter, Anna. (3) Daniel, born Oct. 25, 1861, graduated from the Reading Business College in 1882. He married Lizzie Lamm, and has had three children, Bertha C., who died young; Henry E. and Catherine. (4) Henry W., D. D. S., born Sept. 25, 1865, was educated at Trappe College and the University of Pennsylvania, and is now engaged in the practice of his profession at Reading, his well appointed offices being at No. 34 North Ninth street. He married Jennie Wartman. (5) Mary, born Feb. 24, 1867, married Frank N. Hill, of Chester county, Pa., and they have three children: Milton, Lizzie and Ella May. (6) Wellington, born Sept. 1, 1868, graduated in the electrical engineering course from the Pennsylvania State College in 1892, and is now in partnership with his brother, Milton, at Norfolk, Va. (7) Elizabeth, born Nov. 19, 1872, engaged in dressmaking until her marriage with Howard L. Snyder, a farmer on his father-in-law's farm, and she has one child, Myrtle. (8) Edward, D. D. S., born Sept. 18, 1875, graduated from the University of Pennsylvania, June 9, 1897, and is engaged in practice at No. 715 Washington street, Reading. He married Jennie Miller, daughter of Adam Miller, and they have one daughter, Dorothy, and one son, J. Russel. (9) Amelia, born Oct. 8, 1876, was educated in the Keystone State Normal School. She married Daniel Bender, of Annville, Pa., who was killed on the railroad in May, 1906, and had one son Harold. Mrs. Catherine (Warnes) Bohn died March 28, 1906, aged sixty-four years, eleven months, fourteen days, and was buried at Hain's Church. Mr. Bohn takes a very great interest in public affairs, and for ten years served as school director. He is a Democrat in principle, but on local issues is not bound by party ties. He has always been active in agricultural societies, and has been a hard worker in the interest of the Granges, organizing all but one in the county. He belongs to Welcome Home Grange No. 551, Robesonia. He is a member of the Reformed Church, as was also his wife, and he was deacon and elder for many years. Mr. Bohn has many friends throughout the county.

ELI M. WITHERS, a farmer of Spring township, Berks county, residing along the Tulpehocken creek, is a native of Lancaster county, Pa., born Oct. 7, 1841, in East Cocalico township. He comes of a family of Scotch origin, his paternal great-grandfather having come to America from Scotland.

George Withers, the grandfather of Eli M. Withers, was born in Virginia, and when a young man came to Lancaster county, Pa., where he passed the remainder of his life. He engaged in farming and distilling, owned three large farms in East Cocalico township, and was a man of great influence in his section because of his wealth and standing. He died between 1845 and 1850, and is interred in a private burial ground on one of his farms. His wife was a Graybill, and they had three children: George, Curtis and John.

John G. Withers, father of Eli M. Withers, was born Nov. 26, 1798, in Lancaster county, where he spent the greater part of his life. He was an energetic man and enterprising in business. For many years he was engaged in boating, owning twenty-six Pennsylvania canalboats, which were operated by his sons and other help. He also followed droving, handling many cattle yearly, and was successful in both lines. Moving from Lancaster to Berks county in 1851, he bought the farm now owned and occupied by his son Eli M., living there until his death, which occurred June 13, 1867. He is buried at the Kissinger Church, of which he was a member and whose building he helped to erect.

On Feb. 18, 1823, Mr. Withers married Catharine Moyer, who was born Feb. 3, 1806, daughter of Johannes and Elizabeth Moyer, of Millbach, Lebanon Co., Pa., and died a few years before her husband, passing away Feb. 6, 1863. To Mr. and Mrs. Withers were born nine children, six sons and three daughters, namely: Dr. Franklin, born Feb. 19, 1824, died March 20, 1858; Eliza, born Dec. 2, 1826, m. Martin Heidler, Esq., and died Nov. 17, 1897; George, who lived at Hamburg, where he was constable for many years, m. Joanna Kalbach; Rebecca m. R. Lando Loewen, of Reading; John M., born in 1832, was a resident of Reading, and died Oct. 24, 1881; Martin, born Oct. 18, 1836, m. Emeline Klohs, of Muhlenberg township, lived in Reading, and died March 17, 1884; Samuel M., born July 24, 1839, never married, and was making his home with his brother Eli at the time of his death, April 23, 1904; Eli M. is mentioned below; Catharine M., born Aug. 10, 1844, m. Henry Gass, of Ontelaunee township, and died March 22, 1878.

Eli M. Withers lived with his parents until they died, moving with the family in 1851 to Spring township, where he has ever since made his home. He was his father's mainstay for many years, learning the boating business in early youth on the Pennsylvania canal, and following it from the tender age of nine years until 1867. During this period he boated on the following canals: Union, Pennsylvania, Juniata, West Branch, North Branch, Tidewater, York Extension, Erie, Raritan, Morris & Essex, Bald Eagle, Schuylkill, Chesapeake and Delaware. He had many thrilling experiences in his career as a boatman, and barely escaped drowning on several occasions. He was obliged to be out in all kinds of weather, and had to undergo many hardships from exposure, falling overboard twice when in spite of the cold weather and water he was obliged to go on with his work, letting his clothing dry on his body. In 1867 Mr. Withers was employed in the hardware store of George Lerch, at the southeast corner of Fifth and Penn streets, Reading, and the next spring (1868) he bought the flour, feed, coal and wood yard located at the southwest corner of Washington street and Madison avenue (formerly called Ash street) from his brother Samuel, who succeeded our subject in Mr. Lerch's hardware store. After carrying on the business for eighteen months, Mr. Withers sold out to Samuel Boone.

In 1872 Mr. Withers began to follow farming on his own account, near Adamstown. With a partner he engaged in the ice business in 1880 on his farm, but after a year he bought out his partner's interest, and then sold a half interest to his brother Samuel. In 1886 they erected additional buildings so that they could store four or five thousand tons of ice annually. They carried on business under the name of "Tulpehocken Ice Company, operated by Withers & Bro." In 1892 Mr. Samuel Withers sold his interest to another party, and in 1894 Mr. Eli M. Withers bought out that partner's share, and ran the business along until 1899, when he leased the ice plant to the Reading Cold Storage Ice Company for a term of ten years. He then entered the racing business (in which his brother Samuel had been engaged for thirty years) as his brother's partner, and they followed the races all through Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Virginia, and Mr. Withers is still interested in it, owning at the present time six good horses.

In 1882 Mr. Withers purchased his father's farm in Spring township from his brother John, who had bought his brother's and sister's interests, their father having died intestate. It comprises about fifty acres of good land, located along the railroad and Tulpehocken creek, and has been greatly improved during Mr. Withers' ownership by the erection of substantial outbuildings, etc. He also owns a farm of eighty-three acres in North Heidelberg township, one-half mile south of Bernville on the road leading from the latter place to Robesonia. This farm he rents. Mr. Withers has a valuable tract of five acres, at Glenside, in Bern township, and, as may be inferred, he is in comfortable circumstances, as the result of industry and intelligent management. He has a good income from the sienna mine upon his home farm, which is one of the most valuable mines of the kind in the country, and was discovered by the family while digging for iron ore. It is operated by the Keystone Ocher Company of Philadelphia, who have five men in their employ at this point.

Mr. Withers was married March 5, 1870, to Ella S. Madeira, who was born Feb. 24, 1848, daughter of Frank and Caroline (Merkel) Madeira, of Muhlenberg township, and granddaughter of Jacob Madeira. Mrs. Withers died June 15, 1898. To this union came but one son, John M., born March 21, 1871, who lives with his father and conducts the home place. He is married to Kate Schweitzer, and they have had children as follows: Samuel E., Mame, John C., Nora, Catharine and Helen.

Mr. Withers is a Reformed member of Kissinger's Church, in Spring township, with which his family have also been identified. He is treasurer of the cemetery company, in which office he has given much satisfaction.

HENRY C. BAER, one of the highly esteemed and venerable citizens of Rosedale, Muhlenberg township, Berks county, who is an honored veteran of the Civil war, was born Oct. 7, 1839, about one and one-half miles from Topton, Longswamp township, son of Charles and Anna (Carl) Baer.

Jacob Baer, great-grandfather of Henry C., settled in Lehigh county at an early date, and there became a prosperous farmer and the father of a large family, to each of whom he gave a farm. He died at an advanced age. He and his wife were members of the Reformed Church, in which they were very active. In political matters Jacob Baer was a Democrat, but it is not known whether or not he ever held political office. Among his children was a son, John.

John Baer, grandfather of Henry C., also carried on agricultural operations, having received a farm from his father, but later he sold his farm in Berks county, and removed to Mercer county, Pa., where he became a prosperous farmer, and his death occurred between 1840 and 1850, when he was in his eightieth year. His wife also attained advanced age. They had children as follows: Charles; Jonas lived and died in Berks county, Pa.; John also spent his life in Berks county; Peter married and removed to Michigan, where he died; Solomon; Eva married Jacob Shellenberger; Susan m. Samuel Smith; Lydia m. a Mr. Stoyer, and removed to Mercer county. The parents of these children were members of the Reformed Church. Mr. Baer was a Democrat.

Charles Baer, father of Henry C., was born in Lehigh county, where in early life he engaged in farming. As a youth he learned the stone mason's trade, which he followed in connection with farming practically until his retirement, and his death occurred in 1894, at the age of eighty-eight years. His wife died in 1889, when eighty-two years of age. They were the parents of the following children: (1) James married Sarah Anna Merkel, and had thirteen children, John, Sarah, James, Kate and Mary (twins, the latter dying aged fifteen years), Henry (died aged one year), Hettie, Susan, Ella, Lydia, William and Samuel (twins) and Daniel. James, the father, died Nov. 7, 1906, at the age of seventy-seven years, five months, and fifteen days. His wife is still living. (2) Caroline m. John Frock, and has three children, Martin, Katie and Elizabeth. (3) Sally m. Reuben Geist, and had children, George, David, Henry, William, Melcina, Annie (deceased), Richard (who was killed in an accident), and Frank and Louisa (both died young). (4) Jonathan m. (first) Caroline Mogel, by whom he had a child that died in infancy, and (second) Hettie Buck. (5) Benjamin m. Catherine Bucher, and had seven children, Charles, Frank, George, John, Frederick, Katie and Carrie. (6) Henry C. (7) William m. Fianna Fry, and had one son Charles H., who died in infancy. They adopted three children, J. W. Kauffman, M. D., J. D. George and Lillian Morgan. (8) George m. Amanda Newbold, and had five children, Annie, Albert, Naomi, Margaret and Herman. (9) Elizabeth m. William Kercher, and died in 1889, the mother of five children,—Frank, Harry, Thomas, Eddie and Emma. (10) Hettie m. Moses Sheirer, and has two children, Jennie and Carrie. (11) Amanda m. John Stout, and had six children, Henry, John, George, Jacob, Annie and Fred. In religious belief the parents were Reformed, and the father was elder in the church for many years. They were highly esteemed in the community in which they spent the major portion of their lives, had many warm friends, and were considered God-fearing, Christian people.

Henry C. Baer was educated in the common schools of Longswamp township, and as a boy he assisted his father on the home farm, later learning the trade of a carpenter. On completing his apprenticeship to this trade, Mr. Baer went to New Jersey, where in 1862, he enlisted in Company F, 31st New Jersey V. I., and served until his term of enlistment expired in 1863, when he returned to New Jersey and resumed his occupation. On Jan. 1, 1864, Mr. Baer returned to Topton, Pa., where he accepted a position as clerk for P. L. Deener & Co., in the coal, lumber and grain business, but in 1865 he resumed his trade, which he followed in Philadelphia until 1867. He then returned to Topton, where he remained until 1882, at which time he went to Lyons, remaining about one year, and subsequently located in Reading, accepting a position at Fink & Huyett's planing mill, where he remained for about eighteen years. He then resigned to accept a position with the Excelsior planing mill, where he remained until 1906, and in this year connected himself with the Riverside Planing Mill Company. Mr. Baer built a nice residence in Rosedale, Muhlenberg township, and also owns several valuable lots there, where he is highly esteemed and respected. Like his honored ancestors he has always been a firm believer in Reformation, and during his younger years was very active in Church and Sunday-school work, serving for many years as a choir leader. In his political views he is a stanch Democrat, and he was formerly connected with several fraternal organizations.

Mr. Henry C. Baer was married (first) in 1865, to Mary A. Bobst and to this union there were born two children: John H., died at the age of eight weeks; and Ella L., m. Einar Barfod, by whom she has two children,—Maria and Laura. Mr. Baer married (second) April 10, 1872, Lucy A. Lasher, daughter of Jacob and Lucena (Dietrich) Lasher, and to this union there were born five children, namely: William F., m. Ella Machamer, and has three children living, Charles E., Stanley L. and A. Marguerite; Anna L. m. G. A. Crotto, and has three children, George H. A., Frank B. and Charles A.; Naomi m. William S. Burg, and has one child, A. Ruth B.; Hannah m. Capt. Al. B. Risley, of New Jersey; and George makes his home with his father in Rosedale.

JACOB GEBHART, a retired citizen of Allegheny-ville, Berks county, was for many years engaged in farming on an eighty-acre tract near Allegheny Church. Mr. Gebhart was born Nov. 16, 1834, in Brecknock township, son of John and Susanna (Reaser) Gebhart.

George Gebhart, great-grandfather of Jacob, came from Germany to this country in about 1751, and settled in Brecknock, where he became the owner of a farm of 152 acres, now the property of Archibald Messner. Mr. Gebhart was buried in an unmarked grave at Allegheny Church. He and his wife had these children: Jacob, John, George, Mrs. Jacob Hartz, Mrs. Jeremiah Ziemer, and Mrs. Weiler of Lancaster county.

Jacob Gebhart, grandfather of Jacob, was born in Brecknock township, Jan. 9, 1775, and died May 2, 1833, after a life spent in agricultural pursuits. He is buried at Allegheny Church. Jacob Gebhart married Catherine Lesher, born March 24, 1788, who died Nov. 12, 1872, and they had three children: John, father of Jacob; Mary married Jacob Becker, of Reading; and Elizabeth, born Jan. 5, 1814, died unmarried Nov. 15, 1897.

John Gebhart was born Jan. 4, 1806, and spent his life in farming, at the time of his death, March 17, 1887, owning the old homestead and the property now in the possession of his son, Jacob. He was a leading member and elder of the Allegheny Church, where he was buried, and was influential in public matters, being elected to the offices of school director, and delegate to county conventions for many years on the Democratic ticket. Mr. Gebhart married Susanna Reaser, born Aug. 16, 1809, who died March 27, 1886, and to them were born these children: William, born May 14, 1834, a prominent man of Brecknock township and official in the church for many years, married, in 1863, Mary Ann Raub (born in 1839, died in 1869); Jacob; Henry is a resident of Cumru township; Elizabeth m. Ephraim Steffy, of Edison, Pa.; Mary m. Henry Miller, of Brecknock township; John, of Brecknock township; Samuel died young; Daniel lives in Reading; Catherine m. Abraham Brendel, of Brecknock township.

Jacob Gebhart received his education in the schools of his native township, and early in life engaged in farming, acquiring a fine farm of eighty acres located near Allegheny Church, which since his retirement he has rented. In politics he is a Democrat, and he served for three years as school director, at present holding the office of auditor of Brecknock township. He is a Reformed member of Allegheny Church, where he has been treasurer for more than a quarter of a century.

Mr. Gebhart was married (first) to Eliza Steffy, born Nov. 1, 1838, who died April 16, 1882, daughter of John and Catherine (Eshelman) Steffy, and to this union there were born seven children, namely: Catherine, who died in childhood; John, who lives in Reading; Samuel, who died aged twenty years; Charles, who died aged fifteen years; Aaron and William, who died in infancy; and Nathan, of Brecknock township.

Mr. Gebhart was married (second) to Emma Kohl, born Feb. 21, 1860, who died March 15, 1897, and they had three children: Susan Elizabeth m. George Unger, of Gouglersville; Stephen, and Mabel.

THOMAS J. ZERBY, a justice of the peace, and one of the well-known educators of Penn township, Berks county, resides near the borough of Bernville. He was born March 18, 1872, in North Heidelberg township, son of William E. and Sariah (Kauffman) Zerby.

Daniel Zerby, grandfather of Thomas J., was a shoemaker by trade, and also had a small tract of land on which he carried on modest farming operations. He died in North Heidelberg township, and is buried at the Little Tulpehocken Church in Jefferson township. He married Catherine Eagle, and they had three children, namely: Reuben, William E. and Elvina (who married John Stettler and lives in Kansas).

William E. Zerby was born in North Heidelberg township, and when a young man engaged in boating in the summer, and in shoemaking and trapping during the winter months. After the closing of the Union canal, Mr. Zerby gave his entire attention to farming, and this was his occupation at the time of his death, in his sixty-first year. During the Civil war he served as a private in Company A, 167th P. V. I., and after being out nine months returned home, having contracted a severe case of typhoid fever. Mr. Zerby married Sariah Kauffman, daughter of Stephen and Sarah (Speicher) Kauffman, and they had the following children: Henry E., a florist of Manchester, York county, married Hetty D. Groff; William F. is deceased; Miss Rebecca S. lives at Bernville; James A., John W., Charles C., and Morgan A. are all deceased; Thomas J.; and Annie L., married Harvey J. Bright, a teacher of Jefferson township.

Thomas J. Zerby attended the public schools of North Heidelberg township, and the Bernville Normal school, taught by Prof. M. A. Gruber, later going to Kutztown. He taught for three terms in Jefferson township, at the Yost or Cross Keys school, after which he came to his present school, Eyrich's, where he has continued for thirteen terms. In 1893 he erected a fine home, and here he has his office. Mr. Zerby is a Democrat in politics, and was appointed justice of the peace to fill out the unexpired term of William Umbenhauer in 1897, was elected in 1898, and since that time has been serving in that office. He has served on committees since 1900, and has for many years been clerk of the election board. He is a member of the Little Tulpehocken Lutheran Church, is church treasurer, has been choir leader since 1902, and is superintendent of the Hill Sunday-school which has met at his schoolhouse for the past fifteen years. Fraternally he is connected with P. O. S. of A. Camp No. 113, Commandery No. 15, and I. O. O. F. Lodge No. 122, all of Bernville, having filled all the chairs in the first named and been financial secretary since 1898.

On Dec. 14, 1895, Prof. Zerby was married to Annie L. Long, daughter of Samuel and Mary Ann (Wagner) Long, and they have one son, Earle T., who is attending school.

HENRY M. BRIGHT, who lives on the road leading from Reading to Bernville, Pa., is one of the prominent men and successful agriculturists of Penn township. Mr. Bright was born Dec. 15, 1847, in Penn township, where he attended the public schools, and later he became a student at Freeland Seminary. After completing his education he took up farming as his life work, and in 1870 located on his father-in-law's farm, which he has since increased to 415 acres, consisting of three adjoining farms. In 1891 he erected a substantial residence, and his other buildings and well-kept premises testify to his thrift and enterprise.

In 1869 Mr. Bright was married to Emma Geiss, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth (Dundore) Geiss, and to this union there have been born the following children: Charles H. is engaged in clerking in Philadelphia; Elizabeth E. is a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, class of 1897, and has taught school in Berks, Chester and Bucks counties; Sallie I. maried Alvin Blatt, of North Heidelberg township; Adam S. is a mining prospector of Montana; Emma I., a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, is, like her sister, a teacher in the public schools, and has followed her vocation in Berks, Bucks, and Montgomery counties and in New Jersey; Thomas, a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College, class of 1903, is now assistant paymaster in the U. S. Navy, located at the Samoan Islands; Anna, a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, class of 1902, taught six terms in Penn township, and is now teaching in Bernville; J. Calvin, a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College, class of 1908, is now teaching in Center county; and Flora L. and Raymond M. are students.

Mr. Bright has always been a stanch advocate of education, and has given his children every advantage, fitting them to care for themselves in any station of life. A Democrat in politics, he has served many times as school director, and at present is township supervisor. He has served as deacon and elder in the Reformed Church at Bernville, of which he is a consistent member. Mr. Bright is one of Penn township's good citizens, and has the respect and esteem of his fellow men.

LEWIS F. MILLER, a retired agriculturist of Womelsdorf, Berks Co., Pa., was born near Cornwall, Lebanon county, Dec. 26, 1839, son of Lewis and Maria (Fernsler) Miller, and grandson of Nicholas Miller.

Nicholas Miller, great-great-grandfather of Lewis F., came from Germany to America in 1738. In the list of taxables of Heidelberg township, Lancaster county, in 1758, were the names of Nicholas Miller, Sr., and Jr., and Frederick Miller. The latter two were sons of the ancestor who planted this branch of the Millers in the New World.

The great-grandparents of Lewis F. Miller were Nicholas Miller and his wife, Anna Maria Maus, and they had issue as follows: Michael m. Margaret Stump; Ludwig m. Barbara Moyer, moved to Cumberland county, Pa., and was a soldier in the Revolutionary war; Jacob m. Christina Phillippy; Valentine, born Sept. 28, 1759, died July 21, 1821; Frederick, born Sept. 14, 1762, died Sept. 9, 1843; Barbara m. Nicholas Zollinger; Eva m. George Wolfersperger; Nicholas; George, born May 6, 1774, died Aug. 29, 1839; and Henry, born Aug. 3, 1776, died Feb. 8, 1854.

Nicholas Miller, grandfather of Lewis F., was born in Lebanon county, April 22, 1771, and he died on his 142-acre farm near Schaefferstown, March 25, 1853. On this property he erected a barn in 1818, which is still standing. His wife was Catherine Troutman, who bore him twelve children: Catherine, born Sept. 9, 1797, died March 26, 1873; Elizabeth, born March 22, 1799, married George Royer; Samuel, born May 18, 1800, m. Mary Weiss; Sarah, born Feb. 21, 1802, m. Jacob Seibert; Angelica, born Oct. 16, 1803, m. David Royer; Joseph, born Dec. 25, 1806, m. Mary Sholl, and was killed April 2, 1877; Lewis; Anna, born Oct. 17, 1810, m. Benjamin Eckert; Mary, born Sept. 12, 1812, m. John Thomas; Magdalena, born Nov. 1, 1814, m. George Seibert; Susanna, twin to Magdalena, m. Peter Ream; and Henry, born Jan. 19, 1818, m. Anna Humerighous.

Lewis Miller, the father of Lewis F., was born on the family homestead, near Schaefferstown, Oct. 13, 1808, and died in 1891, in his eighty-third year, both he and his wife being buried at Schaefferstown. He was a successful farmer, and at the time of his death was the possessor of a good deal of property. Mr. Miller married Maria Fernsler, of Cornwall, and to them were born these children: Lewis F.; Leah, deceased, married Abel Shaak, of Lebanon county; Susan m. Abraham Filby, the owner of the old Miller homestead near Schaefferstown; Samuel, deceased; Elizabeth m. Jere Snabely, and lives in Marion county, Kansas; and Sarah m. Henry Noll, of Kleinfeltersville, Pennsylvania.

Lewis F. Miller was reared on the old homestead, and began farming for himself in 1874, in Heidelberg township, on a small tract of land which he cultivated for many years. He retired in the spring of 1904, and purchased a fine home in Womelsdorf, where he has since lived in contented retirement. He is a Republican in politics, and for three years was a school director in Heidelberg township, and also served as supervisor for one year. In September, 1862, he enlisted in Company K, 142d P. V. I., and while a member of that company participated in the following engagements: Fredericksburg, where he was wounded Dec. 13, 1862, in the left knee, this incapacitating him for six months; Hatcher's Run, Feb. 6, 1865, where he was wounded a second time, receiving a flesh wound in the side, which caused his honorable discharge at Washington, in June, 1865. He is a member of Keim Post, G. A. R., of Reading. After the war Mr. Miller again resumed his station in the ranks of private life as an agriculturist. He and his family attend the Lutheran Church, and he has a burial plot at St. Daniel's (Corner) Church near Robesonia.

In 1874 Mr. Miller was married to Susan Stupp, daughter of John and Sarah (Eckert) Stupp. Mrs. Miller is a lady of fine taste. She has an elegantly furnished home, and is fond of old chinaware and other relics, of which she has a large collection. Mr. Miller's hobby is reading, and he spends much time with his books.

LEWIS PHILIP KERSHNER, one of Bernville's most highly esteemed citizens, who is now living retired, and a veteran of the great Civil war, was born Aug. 6, 1841, in Penn township, Berks county, Pa., son of Peter and Catherine (Body) Kershner.

Peter Kershner, great-grandfather of Lewis P., was born in 1747, and he became the owner of 375 acres of land in Penn township, where he lived. He was a prominent man in Berks county, being county commissioner from 1794 to 1797. His death occurred on his farm, in 1809, and he is buried at Bern Reformed Church, of which he was a consistent member. His sons, Philip and John, received each a half of his land.

Philip Kershner, son of Peter, was born on the homestead in 1767, and he died in 1830 at Bern Church, in the vicinity of which he had spent his life in farming. He was twice married, his wives being sisters, and his only child, who was born to the first marriage, was Peter.

Peter Kershner, father of Lewis P., was born in April, 1803, on the old homestead place, and lived thereon all of his life, his death occurring in 1868, when he was buried at Bern Church. He served as treasurer of Penn township for many years, and from 1848 to 1853 was director of the poor. Mr. Kershner married Catherine Body, daughter of Henry and Christine (Stoudt) Body, and they had these children: Priscilla married Cyrus Davis; Mary m. Frank G. Hain; Catherine m. Abraham R. Koenig; Sydney m. John R. Koenig; Sarah m. Richard Reber; Rosebella m. Harrison K. Hiester; Susan died unmarried; Peter B. m. Mary Geiss, and had children, Mary, Laura, Ellen, John, Monroe, Thomas and Peter; Henry J. m. Sarah Faust, and had children, George, Edward, Palmer, Lewis, Jeremiah, Charles, Kate, Sarah, Walter and Warren; Lewis Philip; George W. m. Ellen Shoms, and has one daughter; James P. m. (first) Malinda Spangler, and (second) Priscilla Wenrich; Alfred and Eliza died in infancy.

Lewis P. Kershner remained on the home farm until October, 1862, when he enlisted, becoming a corporal of Co. G, 151st P. V. I., and served nine months, participating in the battles of Chancellorsville, Fredericksburg and Gettysburg. At the latter he was taken prisoner and held at West Chester, Pa., in the parole camp. He was mustered out of the service July 28, 1863, and returned to Bernville. He had secured a good education in the public schools as well as the pay school, and had learned the butchering trade, which he now took up and followed until 1867, at which time he began operating the old homestead, but after some years came to Bernville, where he has since lived retired. In addition to the old homestead, which consists of 144 acres, Mrs. Kershner owns a farm of 109 acres. Mr. Kershner is a Democrat in politics, and he has served as burgess three times, as councilman three sessions, school director six years and has been treasurer of the Jacob Haag cemetery board since 1897. He belongs to the Reformed Church, and is a comrade of G. A. R. Post, No. 16.

On Aug. 25, 1869, Mr. Kershner was married to Mary A. Miesse, daughter of Rev. Isaac and Ann (Moyer) Miesse, and to this union there were born five children, as follows: Dr. P. J. is a cattle and meat inspector of Topeka, Kansas; Harry C. lives at Bernville; Lizzie J. m. John C. Reed of Steelton, Pa., and has three children, James E., William K. and Philip T.; and Ann M. and Walter both died in infancy.

Jacob Miesse, grandfather of Mrs. Kershner, was born in Centre township, and there he spent his entire life, being a prominent man and for several years a justice of the peace. His children were: Dr. Gabriel; Dr. Jonathan was a writer of some prominence; Rev. Samuel was a Methodist minister; Rev. Isaac; Dr. Jacob was a dentist and also carried on farming operations; and Catherine married Andrew Lichty.

Rev. Isaac Miesse was born March 31, 1812, in Centre township, Berks Co., Pa., and was licensed by the so-called "Free Synod," coming with that body into the old or Mother Church in 1836. He had charge of several congregations in Berks county—Bern, Bellemans, Friedens, Rehrersburg and Blue Mountain—and lived in Reading until 1850, when he went to Penn township. He was connected with the Synod until 1863, at which time he declared himself independent, and so continued until his death Feb. 1, 1864, at the age of fifty-one years, ten months, one day being buried at Bern Church. Rev. Mr. Miesse married Annie Moyer, daughter of Jacob and Christine (Stoudt) Moyer, of Penn township, Berks county, and to this union there was born but one child, a daughter, Mrs. Kershner.

DAVID G. GROSS, an enterprising business man of Monocacy, Berks county, who is engaged in business as a dealer in lumber, coal, agricultural implements, farm supplies and vehicles, was born Sept. 12, 1862, in Exeter township, Berks county, son of Alfred and Sophia Henrietta (Guldin) Gross.

John Gross, grandfather of David G., was born Feb. 19, 1801. He became a farmer in Earl township, and he died Oct. 15, 1836. He married Catharine Clouser, daughter of David Clouser, and among their children was a son, Alfred.

Alfred Gross, son of John, was born in Earl township, Aug. 8, 1827, and died Feb. 24, 1896, and is buried at Amityville. He was a blacksmith in early life, and later a farmer and cattle dealer in Exeter township, where he owned 104 acres of land. In 1885 he built thereon a substantial barn 45 x 90 feet. He married Sophia Henrietta Guldin, born in Amity Feb. 24, 1828, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth (Yeager) Guldin. She died Oct. 2, 1893. They had nine children, as follows: John Alfred; Samuel; James; Elizabeth; Isaac; David G.; Charles G., born Aug. 10, 1864; Simon Peter, who lives in Reading; and Guldin, a resident of Earl township.

David G. Gross attended the public schools of his native township, and later the Reading Scientific Academy, taught by Prof. D. B. Brunner, and the Eastman Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., from which institution he graduated. For a year and a half after leaving school, he traveled east of Reading and throughout the State of New Jersey, for a Zanesville, Ohio, queensware firm, and then assisted his father on the farm for a time. In 1886 he went to Monocacy, and engaged in the coal business, succeeding Samuel Shirey, and in 1888 he added farm implements and vehicles of all kinds, and in 1892, lumber. He has a steady business, employing three assistants all the year, and extra help during the busy seasons. In 1903 he built a two-story warehouse, 40 x 80 feet.

On March 10, 1887, Mr. Gross was married to Miss Mary A. Bertolette (born in Jan. 1859, who died May 30, 1900), daughter of Jeremiah Bertolette. She is buried at Oley Church. Four children were born to this union, of whom Miss Anna B., born in 1896, is the only survivor. The others, Helen and the twins, died in infancy. Mr. Gross was married (second), in August, 1905, to Lenora K. Wise, nee Kauffman, of Leesport.

In politics Mr. Gross is a stanch Republican, and he has held the office of supervisor. He is a member of the Lutheran Church, and for the past ten years has been president of the vestry. He lives in Monocacy, just across the Schuylkill river from his place of business, and his home is an elegant one, well cared for, and showing indications of energy and thrift. Mr. Gross is highly respected in this community, and is a popular member of Union Lodge, No. 479, F. & A. M., of Birdsboro; Reading Chapter, No. 152, R. A. M.; De Molay Commandery, No. 9, K. T.; Philadelphia Lodge of Perfection; and Philadelphia Consistory.

JOHN M. SPUHLER, one of Lower Alsace's well-to-do truck farmers, who is also engaged to some extent in carpentering, was born May 15, 1847, on the old homestead near Harrisburg, Dauphin Co., Pa., son of Joseph and Mary (Cook) Spuhler.

Gregory Spuhler, grandfather of John M., was a native of Switzerland, where he died at the advanced age of ninety years, the father of the following children: Xavier, who married a Miss Willy, and resided in Alsace township, where both died (no issue); Joseph; Frederick, who died in Camden, N. J.; John, who resided in Pottsville, Schuylkill county, and left one child, John; and Margaretta, who married a Mr. Fisher, a boat builder, of Reading, and had four children, all deceased.

Joseph Spuhler, father of John M., was born in Switzerland in 1816, and there learned the carpenter's trade. He emigrated to America in 1836, and was here married to Miss Mary Cook, by whom he had the following children: George M.; John M.; Henry, a resident of Reading, who married Miss Kate Knapp, and had a large family of children; Elizabeth, deceased, who married Thomas Cronan, and resided in Reading, where both died; Louisa, who married William Oberlin, who is carrying on a successful business on North Ninth street, Reading; and Catherine (Kate), who died when in her sixteenth year.

John M. Spuhler was educated in the public schools and at the age of sixteen years learned the trade of carpenter, which he followed very successfully for many years. On May 3, 1868, he was married to Francesco Flamm, born Oct. 4, 1847, daughter of Anthony and Victoria (Nebiller) Flamm, and to this union there have been born the following children: Rose died in infancy; Joseph H., who married Miss Mary Zimmerman, works with the P. & R. R. Co., and resides at No. 1202 Fidelity street, Reading; Frank and Emma are deceased; Edward; and Jennie.

WILLIAM H. RUTH, a leading citizen and school director of Spring township, Berks county, who is quite extensively engaged in truck farming, was born March 13, 1866, at Fritztown, Pa., son of Daniel and Catherine (Hatt) Ruth, and a member of one of the best-known and most numerous families of Pennsylvania.

Peter Ruth, great-grandfather of William H., was a farmer whose property was situated along the Cacoosing Creek, in Heidelberg township. He died in September, 1771. To him and his wife, Catherine, were born the following children: Michael, Jacob, Christian, Peter (born in 1764, died in 1819), George, John, Henry, Francis, Catherine, Mary, Barbara, Eve, Magdalena and Margaret.

Henry Ruth, son of Peter and grandfather of William H., was born Sept. 6, 1799, and died in 1855. He was an agriculturist of Fritztown, owning what is now the well-known Hill Side Stock Farm, the property of Harry Orr. Henry Ruth married, Sept. 26, 1819, Elizabeth Ruth, born July 19, 1796, and to them were born the following children: Abraham, born July 27, 1820; Charles, born Sept. 26, 1822, died June 11, 1823; Henry, born July 5, 1829; Aaron, born July 8, 1832; Charles, born Dec. 31, 1825; Henry, born July 27, 1824, died Nov. 3, 1829; Lewis, born June 3, 1831; and Daniel, born Jan. 11, 1836.

Daniel Ruth, father of William H., was born Jan. 11, 1836, in Spring township, and died Sept. 1, 1897. In early life he engaged in clerking in the country store at Fritztown, where later he became a partner, but subsequently embarked in agricultural pursuits, and for many years operated a twenty-five acre farm at Fritztown. Mr. Ruth was a well-known citizen of his community, and enjoyed a reputation for honesty, integrity and public spirit. He was buried at Sinking Spring Church, of which he was a member. In politics he was a Democrat, and for many years collected the tax in Spring township.

Daniel Ruth was married to Catherine Hatt, born in August, 1838, who now resides on the homestead at Fritztown, and to them there were born these children: Marcus D., a merchant of Sinking Spring; LaFayette R., who married Lizzie Whitman; Emanuel, of Gouglersville; Rebecca, who died unmarried; William H.; Jacob, who is unmarried and lives at home; Katie, who married Franklin Haas, of Fritztown; and Emma, who married Pierce Struk, of Mohnton.

William H. Ruth was educated in the township schools, and later attended Lebanon Valley College at Annville for two terms. In 1891 he engaged in truck farming, having prior to that time clerked in a store and engaged in cigar-making for one and one-half years. His twenty-five acres of good land are well cultivated, and he has been successful to a high degree. In politics Mr. Ruth is a Republican, and although the district is strongly Democratic, in the spring of 1902 he was elected school director, and three years later re-elected to that office by a large majority. He is greatly interested in educational matters, and is an intelligent and progressive official. He and his family are members of Zion U. E. Church, of Mohnton, Pennsylvania.

In 1891 Mr. Ruth was married to Rosa Rintz, born June 7, 1866, daughter of Casper and Rosa (Hoover) Rintz, of Germany. Mr. and Mrs. Ruth have had eight children, namely: Franklin P., who died aged two months, seven days; Catherine R.; Jacob D.; Annie E.; Charles H.; Hattie N.; Edna V., and Adam C.

GREGORY HEINE, a well-known and venerable citizen of Mount Penn borough, Berks county, was born not far from the ancient Republic of Switzerland, Feb. 27, 1825, and reared among the liberty-loving inhabitants of the historic Black Forest, in the south of Baden, near the source of the picturesque Danube river, in the hamlet of Tannheim.

According to the laws of the Fatherland, Mr. Heine attended school for eight years, and when seventeen years of age learned the blacksmith's trade. While working at this occupation in 1845, he was drawn in the usual annual draft of recruits for the regular army of the South German Confederation, and was mustered into service April 1, 1846. Tyranny and oppression bore hard on the people of Baden, but soon the spirit of liberty went abroad, inspiring them to rise and battle for freedom, equality and unity, and in the spring of 1849 Gregory Heine, with thousands of others, became a "soldier of freedom." The regular army was abandoned and the "Freie-Schaaren" (Liberty's Legions) were recruited and drilled. Gregory Heine was one of the recruiting officers, and was elected captain of a company of 219 men, and the war against the Gross Herzog of Baden was on. Royalty, however, crushed Liberty for a time, and so, like Hecker, Sigel, Schurz and other champions of freedom, Mr. Heine, too, sought liberty on American soil.

Mr. Heine first located at Lancaster, and later in Dauphin county, where he followed blacksmithing until 1850, in which year he removed to Reading, and in this city he and his father resided. After coming to Berks county he continued at blacksmithing at Eckert's Henry Clay furnaces, then at the old Reading Railroad shops, and for a short time in his own shop until 1858. He then conducted the "Neversink House," one of the oldest hotels in the State, built in 1768 and kept as a hotel during the Revolution by Colonel Lutz. From 1863 to 1870 he was engaged in the manufacture of tombstones, and general marble work, doing an extensive and successful business. In 1865 he purchased the Dr. Tyson tract of nineteen acres, just beyond the "Old Toll Gate" in the eastern suburbs of Reading, extending along the Perkiomen pike into Alsace township, which he farmed carefully and brought into a remunerative state of cultivation. In 1903 he laid out a portion of this farm into building lots, of which he has since sold a large number, but still conducts a small, attractive farm, of pleasant location, where he raises considerable fruit. His vineyard yields well, and his wines are known throughout the township for their excellence. For many years, beginning with 1851, Mr. Heine was prominently identified with successful building and savings associations, as president and director, all of which were successfully conducted for the members.

Mr. Heine is a successful, progressive and public-spirited citizen, and during his residence in Reading did much towards the material benefit of that city. He sub-contracted the digging of fully 150 cellars, also erecting numerous dwellings, and his thrift and progressive ideas have accumulated for him a comfortable fortune. In politics he is an uncompromising Democrat, has been delegate to various Democratic conventions, serving on the Democratic standing committee, and a member of the Democratic City Association. In 1868 he was elected a common councilman of the Second ward, and served in that office until 1876, with the exception of one term. He was an active and conscientious member of that executive body, and faithfully guarded the tax-payers' interests, being an incorruptible official, able to withstand any evil influences which might be brought to bear upon him. In 1884 he became a candidate for the nomination of county treasurer, but after making several attempts to secure the nomination, relinquished his efforts as he felt that his religion was against him. He and his family are Roman Catholics, belonging to St. Paul's Church, Reading.

On July 14, 1851, Mr. Heine was married to Balbina Kerner, born at the same place as her husband in the Fatherland, and on July 14, 1901, they celebrated their Golden Wedding at their residence, No. 1924 Perkiomen avenue. High Mass was solemnized at St. Paul's Church at 7:30 a. m., when the couple renewed their marriage vows in the presence of many relatives and friends. The children all partook of communion, and special music was furnished for the occasion. The balance of this memorable day was spent at the residence, where guests from Reading and other places were in attendance, and the gifts to this aged couple were beautiful and costly. Mrs. Heine passed away Nov. 21, 1905, aged seventy-two years, six months, twenty-two days, and Mr. Heine's daughters, Josephine and Ida, now manage the home. To Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Heine were born these children: John C. K., an attorney of New York, who married Mary Gerard; Rosa, who married George Dieffenbach, of Reading; Josephine; Joseph A., a contractor and builder of Reading, who married Rosa Klos, and has two children—Leon and Karl; Clara, who married John P. Fink, of Reading; Amelia, at home; Philip, a carpenter and hotel proprietor at Frackville, Pa., who married Agnes Wachter; Catharine; and Ida, who married John A. Hagge, has a daughter, Catharine, and lives with Mr. Heine.

The Heine family was established in Baden by the grandfather of Gregory Heine, who came from Westphalia, Germany. He was a tailor by trade, married, and had a family, among whom was Philip Heine, the father of Gregory. Philip Heine came to America in 1850, and lived and died in Reading with his son, Gregory. In the Fatherland he had been a farmer. He married Maria Sigward, and to them were born three sons and one daughter, namely: Joseph, of Reading, who married Maria Strobel, and had four children, Susan, Floraian, John, and Jacob; Kungunda, who married A. M. Gages, of Germany, in which country they resided, and had one son, Gregory; and Philip, of Reading, who married (first) Amalia Turner, and (second) Krysante Steinel, and had children, Mena, Frank (who is now clerk of the Board of Health, Reading), Otto, Edward, and two daughters who were married in New York, where they now reside.

ADAM EMES, one of the venerable citizens of Lower Heidelberg township, Berks county, who has lived retired since 1905, was for many years engaged in farming in this township, where he is well and favorably known. He was born Sept. 5, 1826, in Cumru township, this county, son of John and Hannah (Weitzel) Emes.

Johan Georg Ems (Emes), born in Europe in 1694, came to America on the ship "Friendship," which arrived at Philadelphia, Oct. 12, 1741. In all probability he is the immigrant ancestor of this Berks county family, and the great-great-grandfather of Adam Emes. We find a record also of Valentine Emms, of Robeson township, Berks county, who in 1759 was a resident of that district and there paid a federal tax of ten pounds, which sum was equal in United States money to $26.60. This Valentine Emms may have been either son or brother of Johan Georg Ems.

John Ems (Emes), a farmer of Lower Berks county, below Reading, who also possibly owned a farm in Exeter township, was the grandfather of Adam Emes, and the father of these children: Abraham; James; William; John; Kate, who married Adam Weitzel, of Cushion Hill; and Polly, who married a Mr. Harner.

John Emes, father of Adam, was born below Reading, Nov. 16, 1802, and died June 25, 1881. He was a blacksmith and farmer and lived in Cumru, Bern and Spring townships, owning several different tracts of land. Mr. Emes married Jan. 15, 1826, Hannah Weitzel, born Dec. 22, 1799, who died aged eighty-two years, two months, two days, daughter of Christian Weitzel, and to this union there have been born the following children: Adam; Leah, born Sept. 15, 1827, married Elias Fry; Augustus; a twin to Augustus died at birth; Mary, born Aug. 31, 1832, married Jacob Dundor; Eliza, born Nov. 22, 1829, married Peter Hornberger; Miss Catherine, born Dec. 18, 1833, resides on the homestead; Hannah, born Nov. 17, 1835, married Jonathan Dondore; and Miss Jane, born April 8, 1837, lived with her sister Catherine, and died March 27, 1908.

Augustus Emes, of the foregoing family, was born Dec. 16, 1830, and was a farmer of Spring township. His powerful strength was demonstrated on one occasion when he lifted a horse from a well, into which it had fallen. He was found dead in a meadow when thirty-eight years of age.

Adam Emes commenced attending the old German pay school in Bern township when the German song books, Psalter and New Testament were the text books, and his first teacher was a Mr. Fisher. When twenty-one years of age he commenced farming on his own account, on his father's farm in Spring township, which he later purchased, and which he operated for one year and a half, at which time his first wife died and he returned to his parents in Lower Heidelberg township. After his second marriage he commenced farming in Lower Heidelberg township a tract of about fifty-four acres, which he operated until 1905, and in that year retired. Mr. Emes owns several farms, the home one at Cushion Hill, consisting of sixteen acres and another at Fritztown of thirty-three acres. He was also engaged in the hotel business at Fritztown for some years conducting the "Farmers' Hotel" until 1880. He now lives retired in a sandstone house in Upper Fritztown, which was built in 1780 and which is still in a good state of preservation. Although past his eighty-second year Mr. Emes is well preserved both in mind and body, and in full possession of all of his faculties. His success in life has been due to his own efforts and he is highly esteemed as one of Berks county's representative citizens.

On Dec. 2, 1851, Mr. Emes was married (first) to Lucy Schnader, who died Jan. 20, 1853, aged twenty-eight years, daughter of William Schnader and wife (whose maiden name was Aulenbach). No children were born to this union, Mrs. Emes dying in confinement. In 1856 Mr. Emes was married (second) to Mary B. Artz, born May 1, 1838, daughter of John and Sallie (Borkert) Artz, and to this union there were born twelve children as follows: John J., born Nov. 9, 1857, residing in Iowa; Lucy Ann, who married Charles Rintz, of Edison, Pa; Annie Mary, who married John Goodhart, of Fritztown; Hannah E., who married Frank Huntzinger of Fritztown; James A., also of Fritztown; William H., of Fort Russell, Wyo.; Sallie I., who married Adam Yoder, of Moselem Springs, Pa.; Katie E., who married Allen Mohn, of Reading; Christie A. and Nathaniel D., who died young; Harrison E., born Nov. 7, 1878, died Nov. 20, 1903; Christian, born Jan. 28, 1880, who married Oct. 26, 1901, Sarah E. Fleischer, and they have six children, Clarence, Lillie, Stella, Elmer, Mabel and Ethel.

Mr. and Mrs. Emes are Reformed members of St. John's Church, of Sinking Spring, where Mr. Emes was a deacon.

HARRY W. SHEELER, one of the substantial business men of Heidelberg township, Berks county, extensively engaged in the manufacture of hosiery at Robesonia, Pa., was born Aug. 27, 1865, near Womelsdorf, in Marion township, son of Henry and Elvina (Wenrich) Sheeler.

The first ancestor of this family in America came from Germany and settled in Exeter township, Berks Co., Pa. He spelled his name Schueler, and there are various other spellings, the most common forms being Sheeler, Schealer, Shuler and Schuyler. The date of birth, time of death and place of burial of the emigrant ancestor are unknown. His progeny are numerous.

John Schealer, the great-grandfather of Harry W., was a farmer and stone-mason of Exeter township, running the farm now owned by Jacob Spohn. He and his wife, Barbara, had eight children, as follows: Jacob and William, who died in Reading; Samuel, who lived in Robesonia; John (1793-1872), who lived in Exeter; Benneville, who lived at Robesonia; Ann, who died unmarried; Lydia, who married Jacob Wentz; and Harry, who lived at various places.

John Schealer, one of the sons of John and Barbara Schealer, was born in Exeter township Oct. 23, 1793, and died there Dec. 16, 1872, aged seventy-nine years, one month, twenty-three days. He was a farmer and stonemason by occupation, and during the winter months engaged in butchering. On Dec. 20, 1818, he was married to Catherine Gardner, born Nov. 20, 1800, who died Sept. 29, 1878, in her seventy-eighth year. Ten children were born to this union: William, born Sept. 10, 1819, died in May, 1894; Harriet, born Sept. 19, 1821, died while out West in 1904; Elizabeth, born Dec. 13, 1823, was married and lived in Fort Wayne, Ind.; Valeria, born Feb. 14, 1825, died Dec. 25, 1895; Susanna, born Oct. 14, 1827, makes her home at No. 1028 Chestnut street, Reading, Pa.; Lovinia, born Sept. 10, 1831, died Oct. 2, 1893; Catherine, born July 18, 1834, died in infancy; John G., born Oct. 15, 1836, lives at Boyertown, Pa.; Augustus, born March 15, 1839, died March 29, 1873; Samuel G., born in Exeter township Oct. 5, 1842, lives in his own residence at No. 1145 Chestnut street, Reading. The latter is a stationary engineer by occupation and a highly esteemed citizen of his community. He was married Dec. 26, 1868, to Adeline Wessner, born in 1848, who died in 1905. They had six children, three of whom died in infancy, the others being William O., Lucretia I. and S. Raymond, the latter of whom is a student at Lehigh University.

Samuel Sheeler, son of John and Barbara and grandfather of Harry W., was born June 20, 1805, in Exeter township, and died Dec. 26, 1882, being buried at the Corner Church near Robesonia. He was a stone-mason by trade, and owned a tract of ten acres of land, which he cultivated. He married Sarah Schauer, who was born Jan. 23, 1811, and died July 11, 1873, and she also sleeps her last sleep in the cemetery at the Corner Church. Mr. and Mrs. Sheeler had these children: Henry; Rebecca, who married Harry Weidman, of Womelsdorf; Isaac, who spent his whole life in Schuylkill county; Amelia and Lizzie, who died of diphtheria; Samuel, who died young; and John, an iron worker of West Lebanon, Pa., who married Emma Newman (they have had five children, George, Lizzie and Beckie, living, and two now deceased).

Henry Sheeler, father of Harry W., was born in Exeter township, Berks county, April 24, 1829, and died at Robesonia April 7, 1906. He was a stone and brick mason, and did considerable contracting in his time, the buildings he erected including the high school (in 1889), and Wagner Hall, the latter now the property of George W. Gerhart. In early life Mr. Sheeler settled at Robesonia where he owned the house in which he lived, as well as several others. He was a member of the Lutheran denomination, and held membership in St. Daniel's (Corner) Church. On March 18, 1852, Mr. Sheeler was married to Elvina Wenrich, born April 1, 1827, daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth (Roether) Wenrich of Heidelberg township. Mrs. Sheeler died Dec. 26, 1905. To this union were born the following children: Lizzie, who married George Kreitz, resides on the Sheeler homestead at Robesonia; Ada, who married Pierce Weigley, lives at Lebanon; Ellen, who died in 1902, married Rankin Potteiger and lived at Lebanon; Charles W., of Robesonia, who married Lizzie Henry, daughter of John Henry, who erected the first hotel at Robesonia; Lewis, who died in youth; and Harry W.

Harry W. Sheeler was educated in the common schools of his native locality, which he was obliged to leave at the age of fifteen years to earn a livelihood, and for four years was a servant on a truck farm. Subsequently he went to Montgomery county, Ohio, for one year. Mr. Sheeler then learned the stone-mason's trade and became stonecutter for the Robesonia Iron Company, for whom he worked in the summer months while his winters were spent at carpet weaving. This he followed with success until 1890, when he entered the hosiery manufacturing field, commencing with four knitters in the old schoolhouse at Robesonia where he remained five years. In 1907 he erected a three-story brick factory, 32 x 50 feet in dimensions on Main street, in which are installed nearly one hundred machines and where from sixty to seventy employes are kept busy. His factory is complete in every detail, and is lighted by electricity. Mr. Sheeler is an able business man and a most public-spirited citizen. In politics he is a Democrat, has been auditor of the township for three years, and in 1905 was first elected school director, being re-elected to that office in 1907, by a large majority. Mr. Sheeler is fraternally connected with the Royal Arcanum at Reading. He and his family are members of St. Daniel's (Corner) Church, near Robesonia, of which he has been secretary and deacon and is now trustee.

On Jan. 3, 1888, Mr. Sheeler was married to Miss Margaret Miller, daughter of Adam P. and Amanda (Klopp) Miller, and granddaughter of Philip and Matilda (Greth) Miller. Four children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Sheeler, namely: Earl W., born March 10, 1889, who died Sept. 10, 1889; Raymond W., born July 28, 1900, who graduated from the Heidelberg township high school in 1906, and from the Interstate Commercial College, Reading, 1907; Guy W., born Dec. 10, 1891, a graduate of Heidelberg township high school, class of 1908; and Margaret I., born July 14, 1893, also a graduate of Heidelberg township high school, class of 1908. The family occupy a fine sandstone front residence on Main street, surrounded by a beautiful yard.

KRAMER. The name is a common one in Berks county, and among those bearing it worthily in the present generation may be mentioned Daniel F. Kramer, present prison inspector of Berks county, and George F. Kramer, tax collector of Bern township, both also engaged in farming in Bern township.

Bernhard Kramer, the ancestor of most of the name in Berks county, settled in Albany or Allemaengel township. His wife was Susanna Catharina Lautz. They had a son, Johannes, born Sept. 11, 1777, and baptized in Weisenburg Church on Oct. 19th following, the sponsors being Johannes Furg Hand and his wife Anna Margaretha. The birth certificate is in the hands of Daniel F. Kramer, of Bern township, who has also an interesting relic in the shape of the old road tax book of Bern, showing expenditures in that line from 1774 to 1848. The first records are made in fine German script with a quill pen. In 1775, the amount expended was £46, 8s., 3d.; in 1789, £45, 12s., 8d.; in 1799, £94, 6s., 4d.; in 1815, $578.91; in 1830, $230.20; and in 1845, $244.07. In 1908 the sum spent was $6,000.

John (Johannes) Kramer, son of Bernhard, born Sept. 11, 1777, died at the age of eighty-nine years. His wife, Catharine Ruhl, born March 29, 1780, died at the age of sixty-eight years, and both are buried at Epler's Church. He became a stonemason and followed his trade in Bern township. He also owned a small tract of land situated in Bern township between Bern and Epler's Church. His children were: Elizabeth, born Jan. 2, 1803, m. Christian Roth, and died at the age of eighty-eight years; Anna Maria, born Dec. 17, 1804, married James Richardson and died at the age of seventy-five years; Catharine, born August 28, 1806, married John Christ Heister, and died at the age of eighty-two years; John, born in 1807, married Kate Bohn, and died at the age of ninety-three years; Margaret, born Jan. 12, 1809, married Peter Harbach, and died at the age of eighty-two years; Sallie, born in 1811, married Jacob Body, and died at the age of ninety-three years; Daniel R., born Oct. 20, 1813, married Catharine Fisher, and died at the age of seventy-two years; Susanna, born July 25, 1816, married Jacob Heister, and died at the age of forty-one years; Jacob, born Sept. 11, 1819, married Mary Krick, and died at the age of seventy-six years. The average length of life of this family was seventy-eight years.

Daniel R. Kramer, son of John (Johannes), was born in Bern township Oct. 20, 1813. By trade he was a stonemason and this trade he followed all his life in connection with farming a small tract of land in Bern township. For twenty-five years he was assessor and tax collector, and he gave good service to the public, faithfully and conscientiously performing the duties of his respective offices. He died June 21, 1886, and is buried in Bern cemetery. He was a deacon and elder in the Bern Church, and in his political faith he was a Democrat. He married Catharine Fisher, daughter of John Fisher, of Heidelberg township, and this union was blessed with eleven children, eight sons and three daughters, as follows: (1) One son died in infancy. (2) John F., born May 24, 1837, served in the Civil war from 1861 until the close of the struggle. Afterward he settled in the State of Wisconsin, where he was married to Catharine Koenig, and they were blessed with four children, David, Charles, Lizzie (deceased), and Lawrence. (3) Daniel F. is mentioned below. (4) Benneville F., born in Bern township April 25, 1841, married Rebecca Lerch. None of their children are living. Mr. Kramer died at the age of sixty years. (5) Albert F., born in Bern township Sept. 27, 1843, married Anna De Turk, and their union was blessed with four children, Harvey, Edith, Esther and one deceased, all of Reading, Pa. (6) Catharine, born in Bern township May 17, 1845, married Jacob Snyder, and they were the parents of six children, Clara (married to Jonathan Reber), Ida (married to Jacob Kirkhoff), Eva (married to W. Spatz), Irwin (a farmer, married to a Miss Weitzel), Howard (married to a Miss Mogel, is at present a teacher in the West Leesport high school) and Allen (unmarried, and the overseer of public schools in New Jersey). (7) Eliza, born in Bern township Jan. 1, 1848, is unmarried and living in the same house where she was born. (8) Louisa, born in Bern township Aug. 8, 1850, was married three times, first to Franklin Winter (deceased), second to David Shiffert (deceased) and third to Daniel Lindemuth. (9) George F. is mentioned below. (10) Henry F., born in Bern township March 24, 1856, was married to Emma Dunkelberger, and they had three children—Bertha, married to Franklin Rothermel, of Reading; Macie, deceased; and John, at home. (11) Edward F., born in Bern township Jan. 9, 1860, married Emma C. Lieb on April 7, 1884, and their union was blessed with children as follows: Harry Lieb, Florence May and Daniel Joshua, all of Reading, Pennsylvania.

Daniel F. Kramer was born in Bern township May 23, 1839, and attended public school until he was twenty years of age, when he went to Perry county and assisted in building the county barn. This was in 1860, and at the end of six months he returned to Berks county, where for sixteen years he had a good force of men working for him all over the county, building houses and barns. He then engaged in farming, having a tract of twenty-two acres. He has served as assessor in his township for a period of nineteen years, the court of the county having first appointed him to that position upon the death of his father. In politics he is a Democrat, and has served the county for nine years as prison inspector. He is a member of the Lutheran congregation at Epler's Church, and has been deacon and elder. He has been married twice, his first wife, Lovina Lash, daughter of John and Susanna (Richard) Lash, dying Jan. 19, 1877, the mother of five children: Maria married Abraham Barr; Milton died in 1865, aged one year; Ellen died in 1875, aged ten years; Adam was married twice, first to Gertrude Stamm, who died leaving two daughters, Stella and Ellen, and second to Mary Rothenberger; Clara died in 1876, aged two years. Mr. Kramer married (second) Elizabeth R. Hartman, daughter of the late Samuel and Hannah (Rapp) Hartman, and by this union there were two children: George William, who died aged three years; and Carrie, who married Samuel Stout, of Reading.

George F. Kramer was born in Bern township March 1, 1853, and is at present a truck farmer and tax collector of his township. He was reared to farming, and when eighteen years of age learned the trade of stone-mason from his brother Daniel F. This he followed until 1895, working at different places. He was foreman for Howard E. Ahrens, a contractor of Reading for a number of years, for whom he worked in Steelton, Newport (Perry county), Reading and elsewhere, having under him all the time from twenty to thirty men. He was also in the employ of Joseph P. O'Reily, a contractor of Reading, for whom he worked at the Schuylkill avenue bridge at Reading and also at the Cross Key bridge. Since 1895 he has lived at the old home farm, having about twenty acres of good truck land, keeps two cows and an average of 125 chickens (besides what he uses for his family), and during 1908 sold five hundred and sixty-three pounds of butter from the two cows, the price ranging from thirty to thirty-four cents a pound, and ten hundred and seventy-one dozens of eggs, the price ranging from sixteen to forty cents a dozen. He attends the Reading market.

Mr. Kramer is a Democrat in politics, and his first public office was that of precinct inspector. Then he became judge of election, and in 1903 was appointed by the court, tax collector of Bern township, and three years later was elected to the same office. Mr. Kramer is a Lutheran member of Bern Church, while his wife belongs to the Reformed Congregation. He has served as deacon and elder.

Mr. Kramer has been twice married. On May 19, 1875, he married Louisa Suenders, daughter of George and Catharine (Eisenhard) Suenders, natives of Germany. Mrs. Kramer died at the age of thirty-five years. By this union there were two children: Charles M., born in 1878, married Rebecca Potteiger and has had three children, Luella M., Edna L., and one daughter who died in infancy; Jennie B., born in 1883, married Charles Gibson, and has two sons, Ira M. and C. Elwood. Mr. Kramer married (second) Susan E. Lerch, daughter of Jacob and Rebecca (Roth) Lerch, and by this marriage he became the father of two daughters, Annie R., born in 1895, and Mary C., born in 1903.

JACOB B. ESSER. Among the prominent family names in the history of Kutztown is that of Esser. From the information at hand it appears that the family have lived in that vicinity for more than a hundred years past, and there is a tradition extant that the first house erected upon the site of Kutztown was built by an Esser.

The earliest American progenitor of this well-known family of which anything is definitely known is Jacob Esser, who was born December 29, 1758. He was a cabinet maker by occupation, and long had a shop and place of business in Kutztown. One of his specialties was making cases for the old style grandfather's clocks, and specimens of his handiwork are still preserved in some Berks county houses. He died August 24, 1845, and was buried in the graveyard of the old Lutheran and Reformed Church in Kutztown. He was a soldier during the Revolutionary war, and fought in the battle of the Brandywine. He served as a private in a Pennsylvania company, Paul Groscup, captain, and Balser Geehr, colonel. He first enlisted in 1776. This entitles his descendant Jacob B. Esser to all Revolutionary honors. The records of his military service are on file in the Bureau of Pensions at Washington.

This Jacob Esser married Anna Maria Kroll, of whom little is known beyond the fact that she was born March 23, 1767, in Greenwich township, Berks county, and grew to womanhood in that locality. She died January 4, 1851. For some years before her death she was totally blind but bore her affliction in meekness and patience, and her Christian graces are still warmly commended whenever her memory is recalled by those who knew her in the flesh. She also is buried in the graveyard of the Lutheran and Reformed Church. Jacob Esser and Anna Maria Kroll, his wife, had issue as follows: Jacob, Daniel, Samuel, Michael, Hannah and George. Daniel m. Elizabeth Humbert; Samuel m. Hannah Overbeck; Michael died unmarried; Hannah m. Jacob Overbeck and George m. Elizabeth Overbeck. The Essers and the Overbecks of this generation were quite effectually intermarried, Hannah and Elizabeth Overbeck being sisters of Jacob Overbeck.

J. B. Esser

Jacob Esser, the oldest child in the family of Jacob and Anna Maria (Kroll), was born October 9, 1792, in Maxatawny township, where he engaged at farming nearly all his working days. He married Sarah Fister, a daughter of George and Margaret Fister, and a member of another old representative Berks county family. He died January 20, 1860, and his wife October 20, 1870, both dying in the house now occupied by D. A. G. Wink, the house in which they were married. The remains of both are buried in the Hope cemetery which adjoins the cemetery of the old Lutheran and Reformed Church.

To the union of Jacob and Sarah (Fister) Esser were born two children, namely: Charles W. and Mary. Mary m. Samuel Diebert, a merchant of Schuylkill Haven, by whom she had two children, both of whom are dead. Mr. and Mrs. Diebert are also deceased.

Charles W. Esser was born on the farm in Maxatawny township, but early in life learned the hat-maker's trade. After completing his trade he opened a store in Kutztown, using the back part as a shop in which to manufacture his goods and the front part as a salesroom. In politics he was a pronounced Democrat, and took great interest in party and public affairs. He was elected to the office of justice of the peace and several times was a candidate for nomination as sheriff, in which, though not successful, he always commanded a strong following. He was twice married. He first married Anna Maria Schwoyer (born March 12, 1832, died Jan. 15, 1859), by which union three children were born, two sons who died in infancy, and a daughter who grew to womanhood and married A. A. Kline, of Allentown. Mrs. Kline died in 1902, leaving issue two sons. Charles W. Esser m. second, Mary Bieber, daughter of John Bieber and Salome Fetherolf, his wife. Mary Bieber also was born in Maxatawny township, on Jan. 11, 1822, and was a member of one of the largest and most prominent families in this part of Pennsylvania. Charles W. Esser died Aug. 20, 1863; his wife, Mary (Bieber) Esser, survived him until Sept. 8, 1894. He and his two wives and his parents are buried on the same plot in the Hope cemetery.

To Charles W. and Mary (Bieber) Esser were born two children, namely: Sally M. (m. to Samuel Smith and lives in Kutztown), and Jacob B. Esser.

Jacob Bieber Esser was born Jan. 5, 1863, in the borough of Kutztown, where he grew to manhood and has spent nearly all his days. He was educated in the public schools of his native town and in the Keystone State Normal School, and selected for his life occupation the printer's trade, serving his apprenticeship with A. B. Urick in the office of the Kutztown Journal. After completing his apprenticeship he worked for two years as a journeyman in Philadelphia and for three years more in the city of New York, by which time he had acquired a thorough, practical knowledge of the art of printing. He then returned to Kutztown and in 1887 purchased the Kutztown Journal and the Kutztown Patriot, which two papers he has successfully conducted ever since. He gives every branch of his business close personal attention and under his energetic direction both papers have not only maintained the high prestige they enjoyed when they came into his possession, but have greatly increased in circulation and influence. His plant is complete and up-to-date in every respect, containing linotype, improved presses, folders and other modern machinery, and a very superior class of typographical work is turned out. The Journal is printed in German, the Patriot in English.

Mr. Esser is an enterprising and public-spirited citizen and has done much to forward the best interests of his community. For a period of three years he was chief burgess of the town; for nine years continuously was secretary of the former Kutztown Fair Association, and one of the leading spirits and first president of the new association, which has already expended more than thirty thousand dollars for grounds and improvements. In the matter of politics he is a Democrat, both by inheritance and conviction, and has expended much time and labor for the success of his party. For six consecutive years he was a member of the Democratic county committee for Kutztown and for four of those years, secretary of the committee. In 1903 he was elected assistant chairman of the Democratic county committee and the following year, its chairman, in which capacity he served acceptably until April, 1905. He has repeatedly been delegate to county and State conventions and one of the best proofs that his political course generally met the approval of his party is the fact that in 1901 he was nominated and elected clerk of the court of Quarter Sessions of Berks county, it being the first time that his name was ever presented for county office.

Fraternally Mr. Esser belongs to Huguenot Lodge, F. & A. M.; Excelsior Chapter, of Reading; Reading Commandery, Knights Templar; Rajah Temple of the Mystic Shrine; is a Thirty-Second degree Mason; a Knight of the Golden Eagle; and a Junior American Mechanic. He is also a member of the Reading Press Club and of the Pennsylvania State Editorial Association.

On Oct. 10, 1887, Mr. Esser married Miss Mary L. Hillegas, a daughter of John G. Hillegas, of Pennsburg, Montgomery county, and their union has been blessed with the following children: Florence O., Charles H., and Helen M.

MICHAEL KINTZFR, a farmer of Lower Heidelberg township, Berks county, born Dec. 26, 1809, on the old Kintzer homestead there, died March 9, 1883. He was a great-grandson of Nicholas Kintzer, the founder of the family in this country, tracing his line through Jacob, son of the emigrant, and Adam, son of Jacob.

(I) Nicholas Kintzer, the progenitor of a family numerous in western Berks county, was born in Germany Nov. 15, 1715. When less than fifteen years old he crossed the ocean on the ship "Thistle," which arrived at Philadelphia, Aug. 29, 1730, and he came to live in Tulpehocken township, Berks Co., Pa., where he became a substantial citizen. In 1759 he was assessed £16, which, reckoning $2.66 to the Pennsylvania pound, amounted to $42.56 of current coin. This pioneer settler died Jan. 20, 1794, in the seventy-ninth year of his age, and he is buried at the Host Church, of which he was a member. His grave is marked by a brown sandstone the inscription on which is still legible. His will, which was made Dec. 15, 1791, and probated March 5, 1794, is recorded in Will Book B, page 355. The executors were his son Jacob and Thomas Kurr, and the following children are mentioned in the document: Jacob; Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Kurr; Margaret, wife of Godfrey Real; Catharine, who died before her father, her children receiving her share; and Julian, deceased.

(II) Jacob Kintzer, son of Nicholas, obtained the plantation in Tulpehocken upon which his father lived and died, and there made his home, engaging in farming. He married Elizabeth Unruh, and they had a large family, among their children being: Johan (John), born in 1785, died in 1851; Adam, born July 28, 1788, died Feb. 24, 1860; George, born Oct. 18, 1795, died Aug 28, 1825 (married Dec. 17, 1820, to Maria Sailer).

(III) Adam Kintzer, son of Jacob, born July 28, 1788, in western Berks county, was engaged in farming there all his life. He died Feb. 24, 1860, aged seventy-one years, six months, twenty-six days. He married Anna Maria Leiss, born in 1789, died in 1872, daughter of Christopher and Maria Elizabeth Leiss. Mr. and Mrs. Adam Kintzer are both buried at the Host Church. They had children as follows: Jacob; Michael; Isaac; William; Henry; John; Betzy, who married Gabriel Filbert; Mary, who married Andrew Schoener, and later John Leiss; and Amanda, who married Adam Moyer, of West Reading.

(IV) Michael Kintzer, son of Adam, was a lifelong farmer, living in Lower Heidelberg township, where he owned the old Kintzer homestead two miles north of Womelsdorf. Here he made his home for many years, and here he died March 9, 1883, at the age of seventy-three. He and his family were members of St. Daniel's (Corner) Church at the time of his death, but he is buried at the Hain's Church, in the new cemetery, where the Kintzers have a fine lot.

Michael Kintzer was married three times, first to Catharine Stupp, by whom he had four children, Frank, Israel, Adam and George. By his second marriage, to Maricha Jones, he had one son, Aaron, who died unmarried. By his third union, with Matilda Kurtz, who survives him, he had four children, all born on their old home in Lower Heidelberg township: (1) Charles Lewis, born May 22, 1861, is married to Alice Althouse, and lives at No. 311 West Oley street, Reading, Pa. (2) Michael H., born Jan. 17, 1863, married Kate Zacharias, and they have three children, Charles I., Chester W., and Leroy Z. (3) Rufus James, born April 11, 1866, a resident of Wernersville, Berks county, married Rachel Moyer, and they have two children, Lizzie M. and Michael N. (4) Annie M., born April 12, 1871, is the wife of Charles A. Greth.

Mrs. Matilda (Kurtz) Kintzer, widow of Michael Kintzer, was born Aug. 2, 1835, in North Heidelberg township, and was reared upon a farm. When twenty-five years old she became the wife of Michael Kintzer, as previously mentioned. After Mr. Kintzer's death she lived on a tract of eight acres which she owns until the spring of 1905, when she went to make her home with her son C. Lewis Kintzer, in Reading. She spends the greater part of the warm weather with her son, James, and her daughter, Mrs. Greth, in Lower Heidelberg township. Mr. Kintzer was a member of the Reformed denomination, but Mrs. Kintzer is a Lutheran in religious faith. She is an active woman, well preserved in spite of her advanced age, and is a pleasant conversationalist, taking an interest in the life of the community. She still uses the German language, having never learned English.

LEW BLOOM, who now makes his home in the village of Mount Penn, Berks county, is a man of versatile talents, having been actor, musician and artist. He was born in Philadelphia on the site where Penn made his famous treaty with the Indians, Aug. 8, 1859, son of Lewis and Louisa (Moyer) Bloom, the latter a sister of George Moyer, who was a central figure for so many years in Phoenixville, Pa., and who was the draftsman for the great bridge works at that place.

Lewis Bloom was born at Umpden, Germany, Oct. 5, 1823, and his wife at Wilheim, and they both came to America in youth. They were married at the old "Barto Hotel" in Reading, now the "Penn Hotel." Lewis Bloom had learned the carpenter's and cooper's trades in his native land, and was brought to Reading from Philadelphia by Frederick K. Lauer, the brewer of Reading, to make barrels and casks for the brewery. He was the first cooper in Reading, and the first in this country to erect the large vats for breweries, building these at different places all over the country, including Brooklyn and New York City. Well-buckets and wash-tubs which he made over fifty years ago are still in use in this country. He was engaged in business on his own account at different times, and is now living retired at the age of eighty-five years, his home being in Reading. Mrs. Bloom died in November, 1901. She was the mother of six children: Susannah Deborah, unmarried, at home; Louisa, wife of Fred Bartels, of Mount Penn; Lew; Charles, deceased, who was a trainer of harness horses and later connected with the Pittsburg fire department as assistant veterinarian; Adolph, who died in childhood; and Edward, a member of the Pittsburg Fire Department, who died Aug. 16, 1906, from the effects of injuries received at a fire when a falling wall struck him.

Lew Bloom was reared in Reading and was educated in the public schools and the academy at Williamsport, Pa. At the age of thirteen years he began riding as a jockey in running races for Peter Hurdick and "Kentucky" Schettler, of Reading. When still a youth he had a tendency for all kinds of show business, and was only a boy when he ran away and joined a circus, but was brought back home. He again ran away and found employment as a driver on a canal boat, the "Letitia King," on the old Pennsylvania canal. He started in the show business as a gymnast, for which he had trained while working as an oyster opener in a restaurant. He would practice on the horizontal bar in the back yard, with a neighbor's boy, Howard Cantner, who aspired to be a juggler, and who became his "side-partner" in the beginning of his stage career. Mr. Bloom's first venture which proved a financial success was acting the "wild man" at county fairs, his cage being an old crockery crate, and his acting was so perfect that even the most learned were deceived. The impersonation in which Mr. Bloom has won his most notable success, however, was that of the tramp, he being the originator of this "act." He was one of the "headliners" when Keith presented his first big "star" vaudeville bill in Boston and he has appeared at nearly every big vaudeville house in the United States and Canada, being recognized as one of the foremost and most popular comedians on the vaudeville stage.

In 1886 Mr. Bloom began the breeding of fine dogs, and since that time has developed one of the finest kennels in the country. In 1879 he was presented a fine English bull terrier, a white dog, named facetiously "Bloom's Blackberry" by Mr. Bloom, the giver being Colonel Snowden, president of the United States Mint. His kennels are made up of black and tan and Boston terriers, the head of his stud being "Champion Boney Boy," Manchester black and tan, the only champion dog ever owned in Berks county, which has taken prizes at many bench shows in this country and Canada. Mr. Bloom's kennels are the leading black and tan kennels of the world. He is fraternally connected with the B. P. O. E., Lodge No. 1, New York City.

AMANDON LAMM BICKEL, one of the prominent teachers of Lower Heidelberg, was born in North Heidelberg township, Berks county, Oct. 15, 1857.

Tobias Bickel, or Böckel as the name was then spelled, was born in Karlstadt, Bavaria, Germany, son of John Gotthard and Anna Sybilla (Gostenberger) Böckel. In the fall of 1736-37 (records differ), accompanied by his sister Maria Margaret and brother Frederick, he emigrated from Durkheim, Bavaria, to Pennsylvania. Tobias settled in North Heidelberg township, Berks county, south of Tulpehocken creek, on a farm that in 1768 had 120 acres; and Frederick in Bern township, on the Schuylkill, afterward moving to North Heidelberg, and in 1747 to Bethlehem, where he became farmer-general of the Bethlehem Economy. Maria Margaret married John Meyer, of North Heidelberg township. The farm belonging to Tobias passed to his son Anthony, then to Joseph, next to Elias, thus remaining in the Bickel family for a century and a quarter, but it is now owned by Peter Ruth.

The original Böckels were of the Reformed faith, but were converted to Moravianism. The two brothers and some of their neighbors listened to the preaching of Zinzendorf, the Moravian missionary, and were deeply affected thereby. They requested a preacher be sent them, and, as they had been of the Reformed faith, he sent them Jacob Lischy, who preached in private houses until September, 1743. He was succeeded in January, 1744, by Anthony Wagner, who at first resided with Tobias Böckel. In the summer of 1744, on land donated by Mr. Böckel, the North Heidelberg Church and parsonage were erected by the Moravians, and on Nov. 4th, of that year, the church was dedicated to the service of God in the opening sessions of a Synod presided over by Henry Antes. Later the church became Union—Reformed and Lutheran—and the members, it seems, returned to their original faith, the living descendants of Tobias Böckel being Reformed. The descendants of Frederick, in Bethlehem, still adhere to the Moravian faith. On Palm Sunday, 1734, Tobias Böckel married Christina Kuester, born May 6, 1714, daughter of Jacob Kuester and his wife, Elizabeth Dilkle. Two children were born of this union before the emigration to America. The wife and mother died in February, 1775, and Mr. Böckel married (second) in 1779 Widow Mary Elizabeth Glat, nee Tock, of Heidelberg. She died in 1790, when nearly eighty years of age. The tombstone of Christina was found in the North Heidelberg churchyard, lying flat on the ground in Moravian fashion, but those of Tobias and his second wife have never been found. The names and dates of birth of the fourteen children of Tobias are on record in the Moravian Archives at Bethlehem, and the names of those living in 1789 appear in his will, made that year and on record in the Berks county courthouse.

Anthony Böckel, one of the sons of Tobias, lived on the old homestead, but his burial place is uncertain, as his tombstone has not been found. He married Magdalena Romig, and was the father of twelve children.

Joseph Böckel, son of Anthony, was born May 11, 1785, and he died March 18, 1853. He was a blacksmith and farmer on the old home. He married Catharine Sohl. About this time the spelling of the name was changed from Böckel to Bickel, but the Bethlehem branch spell it Beckel. Joseph and Catharine had twelve children.

Jared Bickel, son of Joseph, was born March 1, 1837. He lived on a farm between Klopp's store and Robesonia, and was a prominent citizen of North Heidelberg, taking a great interest in political and religious affairs. For a time he was a member of the township school board. In 1884 he moved to Bluffton, Ind., and carried on farming there. He died Jan. 16, 1892. He married Leah Lamm, daughter of Daniel Lamm, and granddaughter of Peter Lamm. Both Daniel and Peter Lamm are buried at Hain's church. Daniel Lamm married Catharine Stoudt, daughter of Matthias Stoudt, son of Matthias, Sr., and both are buried at Bern Church. To Jared and Leah Bickel were born four children: Lewis, who died in infancy; Wilson and Catharine, who died in Indiana; and Amandon Lamm.

Amandon Lamm Bickel, son of Jared and Leah, attended the public schools of North Heidelberg in the winter and worked on his father's farm in the summer. During the spring and summer of 1878 he attended Oley Academy, then the leading school of its kind in the county. It was under the principalship of Dr. D. E. Schoedler at that time. The school term of 1878-79 he spent studying at the Bernville grammar school, presided over by Prof. G. A. Sellers; and in the spring and summer terms he went to the Bernville Select School, presided over by Michael A. Gruber, A. M. He then passed the teacher's examination under Prof. S. A. Baer, and began his career by teaching, a profession he has since followed with great success. He continued his studies in the spring and summer terms of 1883 at Oley Academy, and later he studied under private tutors. He has acquired a permanent certificate, and has taught in all thirty terms in Lower Heidelberg, giving excellent satisfaction not only to the trustees but to the patrons of the schools. In his long service he has witnessed the lengthening of the school term from five to seven months, the freeing of text-books, the introduction of school libraries and modern equipment and the doubling of the teachers' salaries. He is an active member of the Berks County Teachers' Reading Union, and has received a diploma for following out the course of reading recommended, since its organization by County Superintendent Zechman.

Mr. Bickel was formerly a member of the North Heidelberg Church, where he was confirmed by Rev. Thomas Leinbach. When he changed his residence to Lower Heidelberg he became a member of Hain's Reformed Church. He has served in the consistory as deacon and elder, and for a number of years he has been superintendent of the Marsh Sunday-school.

In 1884 Mr. Bickel was married to Ellen Magdalena Matz, born June 17, 1860, daughter of John and Susanna (Fisher) Matz, both of whom are buried at Epler's Church. Two children have blessed this union: Harvey Cleveland, born Feb. 6, 1885, private secretary to United States Commissioner of Navigation Chamberlain, at Washington, D. C.; and Paul Jared, born April 1, 1886, a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College, and now an instructor in mathematics at Mercersburg Academy.

SOLON DANIEL BAUSHER, of Berks county, a leading manufacturer of underwear, proprietor of the Gotham Underwear Mill and Bleach Works, at Hamburg, Pa., was born March 5, 1869, in the borough of Hamburg, son of Jeremiah A. Bausher.

Daniel Bausher, his great-great-grandfather, was the progenitor of this family in America, coming from Germany. Tradition says that he emigrated about 1765 and that he was from the Palatinate. He had seven children, five of whom were: Philip, who settled on the old homestead in Albany; Jacob, who settled in Windsor; Anthony, who removed to Westmoreland county, Pa.; Henry, who removed to Somerset county, Pa., and Peter, who settled in Hamburg.

Of these, Philip Bausher bought land from the Penns in Albany township, Berks county, which is still in the family name. He had these children: Jacob; Christian, born in 1799, who died in 1875; Maria, who married Peter Laubenstein; Kate, who married John Dietrich; Rachel, who married John Dietrich, and Leah, who married John Hartzel. Christian Bausher, the second son of Philip, obtained the old homestead. His children were: Catherine, Lydia, Abby, Nathan and Henry, the latter of whom, born in 1832, obtained the old homestead, on which he has lived to this day. He is the father of six children: Daniel, Wallace, Thomas, Miss Annie (a well-known school teacher of Berks county), and two sons, Lewis and Oliver, who died young.

Jacob Bausher, great-grandfather of Solon D., was a large landowner, and was well known in his day. His son, Daniel, born at Windsor Castle, was also a large landowner and extensive farmer, and was a veterinarian. He was one of the organizers of the Windsor Mutual Horse Insurance Company, and was a prominent man of his district. He was married to Hannah Adam, daughter of Jacob Adam, of Perry township, and they had these children: William, Franklin, Jeremiah A., Daniel, Jacob, Mary Ann, Elizabeth, Sarah, Lovina, Amelia, Andora, and Elementa (who died in childhood).

Jeremiah A. Bausher was born at Windsor Castle, Berks county, Oct. 23, 1846, and was educated at the local schools and later at the Keystone State Normal School, Kutztown, Pa. He then taught school for three terms, and in 1868 engaged in the general merchandise business, at Five Locks, below Hamburg, continuing there for one year. He then formed a partnership with A. S. Koller, under the firm name of Koller & Bausher, and engaged in a general merchandise business at Garfield, Berks county, Pa., this partnership lasting two years, at the end of which time Mr. Bausher removed to Hamburg, to engage in the grain and coal business. There he has continued successfully ever since. In 1899 he and Moses Seaman formed a partnership under the firm name of Bausher & Seaman, engaging in the manufacture of high-grade brands of flour, and this partnership lasted until the fall of 1906, when Mr. Bausher was elected to the office of recorder of deeds of Berks county in which position he has served faithfully and efficiently to the present time. In May, 1867, Mr. Bausher was married to Sarah Stoyer, daughter of Benneville and Catherine (Raubenhold) Stoyer, and to this union were born children as follows: Marice, who died aged eleven months; Solon D.; Harvey L., who married Susan Peters; and Evan J., who is unmarried.

Solon Daniel Bausher was reared in the borough of Hamburg, and received his education in the public schools. When but thirteen years of age he became a clerk in the general store of Aaron Koch, with whom he remained for two years, when he engaged with Daniel A. Heffner, a merchant of Hamburg, in whose employ he continued for three years. He then engaged with the Pennsylvania Railway Company, as billing clerk at Phoenixville, remaining in that employ for two years, when N. A. Confer, of Hamburg, offered him a better salaried position in his large department store, which he accepted, continuing there for three and one-half years. J. C. Illig & Brother, the well-known merchants of Reading, were his next employers, and he acted as buyer of suits and cloaks for this firm until 1894, in which year he associated himself with the mercantile house of Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart, of Reading. Mr. Bausher has charge of the suit and cloak department, doing all the buying of cloaks, suits, furs, ladies' waists and wrappers, has a large force of clerks under him, and has made this department one of the largest and most profitable of the big store.

From youth Mr. Bausher has been enterprising and industrious, and after school hours during his boyhood managed to carry the Reading News to many readers in Hamburg every night. As mentioned at the opening of this sketch, Mr. Bausher is proprietor of the Gotham underwear mill and bleach works now reckoned among the leading industries of Hamburg. He is a director of The Berks County Trust Company of Reading, and of William Penn Fire Insurance Company, of Pottsville. In politics he is a stanch Democrat and has served the borough of Hamburg as director for six years, being president of the board for one year and its treasurer for four years. He was a delegate to a number of county conventions. He is a zealous campaigner, and his father's election to the office of recorder of deeds of Berks county was due in a great degree to his untiring efforts.

Mr. Bausher and his family are members of the First Reformed Church of Hamburg, of which he has been deacon for three years and ever a stanch supporter. Mr. Bausher and his family reside in their fine residence on North Fourth street, Hamburg.

On Aug. 22, 1895, Mr. Bausher was united in marriage with Cora E. Miller, only daughter of Charles N. and Elizabeth (Becker) Miller, and to this union have been born two bright sons, Charles R. and J. Lee.

LEVI REESER, who is now living retired at his home in Bern township, Berks county, was born in the western end of West Leesport, Pa., Aug. 15, 1832, son of Samuel and Catherine (Phillips) Reeser.

Philip Reeser, the progenitor of this family in America, was a native of Switzerland, and on coming to this country settled in Bern township, Berks Co., Pa., where he acquired much property and left a large estate. His will, which is on record, was made Aug. 23, 1786, and was probated June 4, 1798. He and his wife Elizabeth, who survived him, had nine children: John; Philip, Jr.; Anna Elizabeth, who married John Winter; Elizabeth, who married Christian Bossler; Daniel; John; Catherine; Mary and William.

Philip Reeser, Jr., son of Philip, came with his father to the United States and spent all the rest of his life in Bern township where he died. He married Amelia Reimert, and they had these children: Samuel; John, who lived in Centre township (he lost his five children in the terrible typhoid fever epidemic of 1858); Mary Ann, and Caroline.

The ancestor Philip erected Reeser's Mill in Bern township, which for many years was conducted by a descendant, Abraham Reeser, and which is now the property of John McGray. Philip Reeser, Jr., owned the land on which West Leesport borough is built, and he built the old stone house at the extreme western end on the north side which was his dwelling. His farm, which consisted of 140 acres, now belongs to his grandson, Levi.

Samuel Reeser, father of Levi, born Sept. 19, 1788, died May 29, 1869, and is buried at Epler's Church of which he was a Reformed member. He was a farmer by occupation and owned the old homestead, on which he resided all of his life. Mr. Reeser was married (first) to Rachel Neischwender, (second) to Catherine Phillips, and (third) to Magdalena Phillips, his second and third wives being sisters, and daughters of John Phillips. By his first wife Mr. Reeser had a daughter, Rachel, who became the wife of Thomas Eck. To his second marriage were born five children: William, of West Leesport; Philip, of Illinois; Leah, who married Elias Spatz; Samuel, who died at Molltown, and Levi. There were six daughters born to the last marriage, three of whom died young, the others being: Sarah, who married Joseph Mosser; Esther, who married Sampson Hoyer; and Lovina, who married Frederick Roth.

Levi Reeser was reared to agricultural pursuits and during the greater part of his active life engaged in farming at the old family home. He also for nine years operated a ferry-boat on the Schuylkill canal. In 1904 he came into possession of a sixty-four-acre tract situated at the present site of West Leesport borough, on which is standing the old stone house mentioned before. Mr. Reeser is a member of Epler's Reformed Church, where he has been a deacon and elder.

On Oct. 17, 1855, Mr. Reeser was married to Sarah Hafer, born Dec. 8, 1837, died Feb. 7, 1904, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth (Rieser) Hafer. Nine children were born to this union: Levi M., born Feb. 9, 1857, married Helen Loose; Sara C., born Oct. 25, 1858, married James Baer; Amelia A., born Feb. 3, 1863, married Milton Nunnermacher; Kate E., born Sept. 22, 1865, married Albert Roth; one son died in infancy; Mahlon E., born Jan. 22, 1869, died Oct. 3, 1869; James R., born June 24, 1871, married Emma Churchoff; Rosie A., born Jan. 2, 1879, married Penrose Belleman; and Samuel, born Feb. 10, 1881, married Mary Albright.

ELI H. SWOYER, public school teacher for thirty-six years, was born in Maxatawny township, Berks county, April 3, 1848. During his youth he worked on his father's farm, attending public school in the winter months, and by assiduity and perseverance he became so proficient in his studies as to secure a teacher's certificate in 1867; and afterward he prosecuted his studies in the higher branches in the Keystone State Normal School, from which he was graduated in 1873. He then engaged regularly as a school teacher, and continued to serve as such for thirty-six terms, one term in Lehigh county, seven terms in Lancaster county, and twenty-eight in Berks county, twenty consecutive terms of the latter period having been spent in the same schoolhouse in Lower Heidelberg township, near Vinemont. It is evident that as a teacher he gave entire satisfaction in his methods of instruction and in the treatment of his pupils. At the close of each school term, he assisted in farming operations, and also kept up his studies to render him more proficient as a teacher. His thoroughness and exactness are shown in his superior hand-writing, which he perfected by great perseverance, being obliged to write with his left hand on account of the partial disability of his right hand.

In politics Mr. Swoyer is a Democrat, and for many years he has exerted much influence in behalf of the party tickets in the vicinity where he has taught school. Upon the decease of his father, in 1904, he purchased the farm near Fritztown, and since then has carried on the farming operations in a successful manner, putting up a new brick dwelling-house and remodeling the other buildings. He has been a member of the Lutheran Church at Sinking Spring for nearly thirty years, and for upward of twenty-five years he was a teacher and superintendent of Sunday-schools.

His father was Peter Schweyer, of Maxatawny township, where he was brought up to farming, and he carried on that vocation in the the township until 1847, when he engaged in conducting the hotel at Rothrocksville for twenty-one years and at Fritztown for four years, when he purchased a farm near Fritztown and resumed farming operations. He was married to Elizabeth Dumn, daughter of Michael Dumn of Richmond township, and by her he had fourteen children: Levi A. (married Angeline Dresher), Peter (married Mary Strunk), Albert M. (married Caroline Zacharias), Willooghby A. (married Ella Belleman), Eli H., Sallie A. (married David Merkel), Hattie (married Daniel Walter and after his decease Elijah Krick who also died), Rebecca (married William Stitzel), Elizabeth, and five who died young. He died in 1904, aged eighty-nine years; and his wife died in 1900, aged eighty-two years.

The grandfather of Mr. Swoyer was Christian Schweyer, of Maxatawny township, born Feb. 7, 1776, died Sept.

22, 1858. He was also a farmer by occupation. He was married to Elizabeth Keiser of Longswamp township, born Sept. 7, 1779, died Dec. 20, 1860, daughter of John Keiser, and they had eight children: Peter; Christian, who married Rebecca Schmoyer; Jonathan, who married Susan Smith; Jacob, who died young; John, who married Elizabeth Folk; Matilda, who married Charles Boger; Elizabeth, who married Isaac Kemp; and Hettie.

ISAAC B. KLINGER, the subject of this sketch, was born at Millersburg (Bethel P. O.), Berks Co., Pa., May 1, 1851.

The Klinger family emigrated from Holland. Alexander Klinger, great-great-grandfather of Isaac B. Klinger, sailed in the ship "Albany", Robert Brown, Master, from Rotterdam, last from Cowes, Isle of Wight, England, and landed at Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 2, 1749. He settled in Reading, Berks county, and was in the first taxable list on record of Reading, for 1759. His name also appears in the first United States Census of Reading, taken in 1790. He was a real estate owner in the city of Reading, as appears by patents taken for lots in 1753. He served as a private in the Revolutionary war, in Capt. Conrad Shirman's Company, of Berks county volunteers. He died in the city of Reading in April, 1802.

George Adam Klinger, a son of Alexander Klinger, had previously settled in Mahantango, which at that time still was territory of Berks county. The Klinger family multiplied and by this time are quite numerous through Schuylkill and adjoining counties.

Absalom Klinger, a son of George, and a grandson of the aforesaid George Adam, was the father of the subject of this sketch. He was born on the old Klinger homestead in Mahantango Sept. 20, 1817. In his younger years he came to Millersburg, Berks county, to learn the weaver's trade, which he followed through his active period; he liked Millersburg and settled down there and was married to Elizabeth Bordner, daughter of John Bordner and his wife Elizabeth (Hoffman). Four children were born to this union, viz: Elizabeth, Rebecca, Isaac B. and Sophia D. Absalom died April 6, 1901, and his wife, Elizabeth, June 27, 1901, aged respectively eighty-four years and eighty-one years.

Isaac B. Klinger was reared in Millersburg and received his early education in the public schools of that place, later attending the Keystone State Normal School, at Kutztown, and the Palatinate College, at Myerstown. He learned the trade of weaver with his father, and followed it for some time. He then engaged in school teaching for eight years. On June 6, 1877, he was appointed Justice of the Peace for Bethel township, by Gov. John F. Hartranft, the duties of which office he filled efficiently and conscientiously up to May, 1903, when he refused a re-election. The same year he was commissioned by Gov. Samuel W. Pennypacker a notary public for the State of Pennsylvania, with office at Bethel, to the duties of which office he now gives his attention.

Mr. Klinger has always affiliated with the Democratic party and had been honored by said party with election as a member of the standing committee of Berks county, sending him as delegate to county, State, and national conventions. In home matters he was always wide-awake and progressive. He was the founder of the cigar industry in his town. He was the promoter of the Bethel Shirt Works of his town, to which in conjunction with Mr. Isaac Barr he still gives his attention; these works were organized in 1897 and give continual employment to from fifty to sixty persons. He was also one of the prime movers in the organization and founding of the Blue Mountain Electric Company, a chartered organization to furnish light and power to rural towns, of which company he is treasurer; he is also treasurer of the board of supervisors of Bethel township. In business circles and in all deliberative assemblies, where experience combined with sound judgment are of consequence, Mr. Klinger's opinion is sought and always commands respect and consideration.

Mr. Klinger has also taken an active part in secret societies in his time. He is a charter member and past officer of the Bethel Lodge, No. 820, I. O. O. F.; a charter member of Washington Camp No. 214, P. O. S. of A.; and a member of the Tulpehocken Castle, No. 133, K. G. E.

In 1871 Mr. Klinger was married to Leanda R. Kurr, of Millersburg, daughter of William and Selecia (Geisler) Kurr. She died Dec. 27, 1890, at the age of thirty-nine years. Four children were born to this union, viz.: William, Agnes, Ellen and Mabel. Mr. Klinger and his family are members of the Salem Reformed Church of Millersburg.

HENRY REEDY, a well-known and highly esteemed citizen of Robesonia, Pa., whose attractive residence is situated beside the United Evangelical church, on Main street, was born Oct. 10, 1867, in Mill Creek township, Lebanon Co., Pa., son of Jonathan and Isabella (Weiss) Reedy.

Wilhelm Reedy, the grandfather, was born at Sinking Spring in 1800, and died in 1853, and was buried at Millbach church, in Lebanon county. He was a carpenter by trade, and was the owner of a small farm which he cultivated and on which he resided. Mr. Reedy married Maria Bensing, who was born at Fritztown in 1801, and died in 1864, and to this union there were born six children: George, Jonathan, Samuel, Annie, Catherine, and a daughter who died young.

Jonathan Reedy, the father of Henry, was born in Mill Creek township, Lebanon county, Oct. 15, 1835, and there he still resides, a retired farmer and highly respected citizen. He was formerly a cooper and at one time employed ten men, doing much work all over Lebanon and the surrounding counties. He also engaged in plastering to quite an extent, but in 1866 purchased a nice farm, which he still owns. Mr. Reedy is a veteran of the Civil war, having served in the Union army through the greater portion of that struggle and participating, bravely and honorably, in some of the fiercest battles. He was drafted Oct. 15, 1862, became a member of Company I, 73d Pennsylvania regiment, served as corporal, and was discharged Aug. 15, 1863. Mr. Reedy is a pillar of Millbach Reformed church, in Lebanon county, of which he was a deacon for some years. He was married to Isabella Weiss, born July 10, 1835, daughter of Ludwig and Carolina (Kahl) Weiss, and to this union were born seven children: Elizabeth, who married George Strickler, of Millbach, Lebanon county; Jonathan, who married Hannah Gerhart, of Millbach, Lebanon county, by whom he has three children, William, Charles and Frank; Thomas, deceased, who married Tillie Spaydt, by whom he had four children, Calvin, Emma, Katie and Thomas, the last named being deceased; William, residing at Spring Mount, Pa., who married Sarah Wenrich, by whom he has had nine children, two of whom are deceased; Henry; Catherine, who married Claude Wilhelm, of Lebanon county; and Agnes, who married Calvin Lebo, of Millbach, Lebanon county, resides on the old Reedy homestead, and has one son, Lloyd Henry.

Henry Reedy secured his education in the schools of Mill Creek township, Lebanon county, which he left at the age of seventeen years to engage in farming, an occupation which he followed for eighteen years. He began farming on his own account in 1894 on the old Kinding farm in South Lebanon township, Lebanon county, where he continued for three years. In the spring of 1897 he came to Robesonia and for a period of four years worked in a lumber-yard, after leaving which he began clerking in Thomas Tilbert's general store at Robesonia, where he has continued to the present time. Mr. Reedy is an obliging and pleasing employe, and his popularity is great in the borough, his friends including all who have met him. In 1905 Mr. Reedy erected a nice cottage on Main street, Robesonia, next to the Evangelical church. In his political belief he is a Republican. He and his wife attend St. Paul's Reformed church of Robesonia, of which he is a deacon, and toward the erection of which he contributed in 1904.

On Dec. 13, 1890, Mr. Reedy was married to Catherine Bennetch, born Dec. 26, 1866, daughter of Henry Bennetch, who is mentioned elsewhere in this publication. Mr. and Mrs. Reedy have had one child, Thomas Calvin, who died in infancy.

CYRUS B. LEVAN, a life-long resident of Exeter township, Berks county, died July 16, 1890.

The Levan family originated in France, where one branch became identified with the Huguenots. Four brothers left their native land to find a home in America, one of them, however, dying before his arrival here. The other three settled in Berks county, one in Oley township, one in Maxatawny, and one in Exeter.

Isaac Levan, the brother who settled in Exeter, became there the owner of a farm which has ever since remained in the family. On this he worked at clearing and cultivating, after the manner of other pioneers, experiencing many hardships.

Jacob Levan, son of Isaac, succeeded to the ownership of the farm, and passed his active years engaged in its improvement and cultivation. He married and among his children was a son named Abraham.

Abraham Levan, son of Jacob, was born on the farm, and in turn became its owner. He was very prosperous, and became very influential in public affairs. He married Maria Bechtel, who bore him three sons and two daughters.

Joseph Levan, son of Abraham, was born on the home farm in 1803, and became a farmer there, although he engaged also in other lines, accumulating quite a competency. He was widely known and very popular. As a stanch Democrat, he became a good worker in the party, but would never hold office. He was a member of the Reformed church, in which he served in a number of offices. His wife, Caroline Matilda Bechtel, was a daughter of John Tetter Bechtel. They had six sons and one daughter, namely: Joseph, who died young; Abraham F., living retired in Exeter township; Jacob, living retired at Jacksonwald; Cyrus B.; Nathan E., a retired farmer living in Exeter township; David, an attorney at Reading; and a daughter that died in infancy.

Cyrus B. Levan, son of Joseph and Caroline Matilda (Bechtel), was born Dec. 18, 1849, and became one of Berks county's prominent citizens. He was a life-long resident of Exeter township, and at the time of his death, July 16, 1890, was serving his second year as county commissioner, to which office he was elected on the Democratic ticket. He had filled a number of township offices, and was one of the most active men in public life in his locality, always looking to the best interests of the people. Mr. Levan was a member of the K. G. E., of Reading; Lexington Commandery, of Reading, and of Washington Camp, No. 230, P. O. S. of A. He belonged to the Schwartzwald Reformed church, in which he held the office of deacon. His widow, whose maiden name was Susan Trout, daughter of Benjamin, resides at Esterly with her sons, Joseph Henry, George M. and William.

The eldest child in the family, Jacob Edwin Levan, of Esterly, is a weaver in the Brumbach Woolen Mills; he married Elizabeth Pott, and has three children, Robert, Carl and Luther.

Joseph Henry Levan, son of Cyrus B., was born Feb. 27, 1880, was educated in the public schools and Prof. D. B. Brunner's Academy, Reading, and also in the Inter-State Commercial College, from which he was graduated. He is a bookkeeper by calling. After working five years for John F. Lutz, the undertaker, at Reading, he started the furniture business for himself in which he is now engaged. He is a member of Washington Camp, No. 230, P. O. S. of A.; and of Lexington Commandery, Reading. He is a member and financial secretary of the Schwartzwald Reformed church.

George M. Levan, son of Cyrus B., is a graduate of the Inter-State Commercial College, and is a student in the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy.

William Levan, youngest child of Cyrus B., is also a student of the Inter-State Commercial College, and of the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, Pennsylvania.

WILLIAM J. ECKERT, a substantial farmer in Heidelberg township, where he owns a fine farm that has been in the Eckert name for several generations, was born there April 7, 1862.

The progenitor of the Eckert family in Berks county, Pa., was (I) Johan Conrad Eckert, who settled in Heidelberg township, where in 1759 he was assessed £25 (equal to $66.50) federal tax. On May 17, 1777, he was captain of the 6th Company, Col. Nicholas Lotz's 4th Battalion, of Berks county militia, in the Revolution. On May 10, 1780, he was captain of Lieut. Col. Joseph Hiester's 6th Battalion. The Pennsylvania Archives, 5th Series, Vol. V, p. 231, give John Eckert as ensign of the company. Among his children were: Philip and Johannes (John).

(II) Philip Eckert, son of Johan Conrad, was born June 18, 1756, and he died Sept. 10, 1828. He was married to Lydia Beck, born June 17, 1762, and their children were: George, born Sept. 9, 1782 (died Jan. 19, 1854); Mary, 1784; Susanna, 1785; Catharine, 1788; Peter, 1790; Sarah, 1792; Margaret, 1794; Elizabeth, 1795; Catharine (2), 1799; and Hannah, 1803.

(III) George Eckert, son of Philip, born Sept. 9, 1782, died Jan. 19, 1854. He married Sarah, born Dec. 16, 1787, daughter of Rudolph Resley, of South Lebanon township, Lebanon Co., Pa. She died Jan. 12, 1879. Their children were: Catharine, born 1809; Elizabeth, 1811; Mary, 1813; George, 1815; Cyrus, 1817; Philip, 1820; William, 1822; Rudolph, 1825; George John, 1827; and Aaron T., 1830.

(IV) George John Eckert, son of George and Sarah, was born Feb. 14, 1827, in North Lebanon township, Lebanon county. He graduated from Marshall College, Mercersburg, Sept. 6, 1852, and studied law in Hon. William Strong's office at Reading, being admitted to practice April 28, 1855. In 1865 he left a large practice to engage in business, in which he was very successful. On Nov. 26, 1857, he was married to Rebecca, daughter of Isaac M. Gerhard, of Sheridan, Pa., and their children were: Isaac G., Rudolph R., Mintie S., Emma R., George, William (deceased) and Ellen.

(II) John Eckert, son of Johan Conrad, the progenitor, was born Oct. 13, 1766, and passed his entire life engaged in farming on the land owned by his father and still in the family, it being now owned by William J. Eckert, and his brother Aaron. The land is the finest in the township, and has splendid water. John Eckert died Dec. 14, 1857. In 1792 he married Catharine Haak, born Aug. 7, 1774, who died Aug. 16, 1848, after fifty-six years of wedded life. They became the parents of five sons and four daughters, as follows: Jacob, William, Rebecca, John (Dec. 8, 1799-Jan. 27, 1871), Benjamin, Isaac, Sarah, Mary and Catharine (June 3, 1808-Oct. 31, 1829).

(III) Jacob Eckert, son of John, was born Sept. 7, 1793. He became the owner of the old homestead, upon which in 1810 he erected a stone house. He was very successful in his farming, and the improvements he made on the home place greatly enhanced its value. In religious work he was prominent as a member of the Corner Church, and there he now lies buried. He married Sarah Shepp, born July 15, 1806, daughter of Conrad Shepp, a native of Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, who came over during the Revolution, and instead of returning to the country that had sold his military services became a farmer near Reading, Pa. Conrad Shepp married a Klohs, and was the father of Daniel, Elizabeth and Catherine, besides Mrs. Eckert. Mrs. Eckert died Aug. 1, 1866, her husband surviving her but ten months. They had children: James; Mary, born April 4, 1828, who married Daniel Henne (Aug. 8, 1827-Sept. 29, 1894), and died Dec. 10, 1905; Jacob, who married Susan Krick, and lived in Wernersville; and Amanda, born Feb. 28, 1845, who died Jan. 17, 1866.

(IV) James Eckert, son of Jacob, was born in Heidelberg township Sept. 20, 1832. He received such education as the common schools afforded, and worked on the home farm until twenty-eight years of age, or until his marriage, when he began for himself on the homestead. Here he continued until 1883, when he moved to a smaller place, known as the John Spicher farm. He is now living in a comfortable little home at Ephrata, Lancaster Co., Pa., havng no active employment other than looking after his real estate. Mr. Eckert has been twice married. His first wife was Elizabeth Hoyer, born Nov. 2, 1841, daughter of Simon and Catharine Hoyer. She died April 25, 1864, the mother of two children, namely: William J., born April 7, 1862; and Emma, born in February, 1864, who married Adam Leid, a farmer of Chester county, Pa., and has one son, James. In November, 1865, Mr. Eckert married (second) Lydia Hertzog, and to this union were born: Aaron, who is mentioned below, and Ida, born March 16, 1874. The family were reared in the German Baptist faith. In politics Mr. Eckert has been an active worker for Republican principles.

(V) William J. Eckert, son of James and Elizabeth (Hoyer), received his education in the public schools, and then turned his attention to the cultivation of the old homestead. He is now the owner of this property, which has come to him in direct line from Johan Conrad, the successive owners being John, son of Johan Conrad; Jacob, son of John; James, son of Jacob; and William J., son of James. This farm has been improved by each succeeding generation, and in 1901 William J. Eckert remodeled the house, practically tearing down the old structure with the exception of the gable end to the west, where just below the cornice is a stone bearing the inscription: "Erected in 1810 by Jacob and Sarah Eckert." The present house is modern and commodious, with large porches. A well-kept lawn, crossed by good stone walks, surrounds it, and makes it one of the most attractive places in the township. The barn, 45 x 86 feet, was erected in 1882. Mr. Eckert thoroughly understands farming, and he disposes of his produce at the Reading market, attending twice a week. His stand is No. 108, Kissinger's market house. He has also engaged in the raising of fancy poultry, and has a good dairy, keeping about twenty cows.

Mr. Eckert is a Republican and for nine consecutive years served his township as school director, for eight years being treasurer of the board. During this time two new school houses were erected—Mountain in 1900, and Fannery in 1905.

On May 25, 1882, Mr. Eckert married Fianna Mohler, born Aug. 5, 1859, daughter of Levi and Magdalena (Bitzer) Mohler, of Lancaster county, and four children have blessed this union: Louisa, born March 24, 1883; Levi J., July 22, 1887; Mabel A., April 15, 1890; and Verda E., March 9, 1899.

(V) Aaron Eckert, son of James and Lydia (Hertzog), was born on the old Eckert homestead April 5, 1867. He attended the Showers school and was at the Trappe one term. Farming has always been his occupation, and he gave his services to his father until he attained his majority, at which time he came into possession of one of his father's farms. This consists of sixty-nine acres of good land, which Mr. Eckert keeps in good condition and has well-stocked. In 1887 he married Annie Reber, daughter of William and Henrietta (Stoudt) Reber, of Bernville. They have no children. Both Mr. Eckert and his wife are members of the German Baptist church at Richland. They are highly esteemed people, and have many friends.

FRANKLIN M. GAUL, farmer, of Wernersville, Lower Heidelberg township, was born Dec. 16, 1849, in Spring township, Berks county, son of Reuben and Elizabeth (Marshall) Gaul.

Johannes Gaul, his great-grandfather, was born in Hermanien, in the Pfalz of Hebelbeim, Germany, Dec. 18, 1739, son of Henry Gaul. He emigrated to America in 1764 or 1770, and in 1785 was rated a large property owner in Berks county. He was married Sept. 4, 1767, to Barbara Arbogast, who came from a place on the Rhine, Germany, born Nov. 13, 1742, died Sept. 22, 1818. Johannes Gaul died on his farm Feb. 21, 1816, and from the inscription on his gravestone in the Sinking Spring cemetery we learn that he had ten children, seven sons and three daughters, among whom were the following: Abraham; Jacob, who married Catherine Sharp; William, born June 17, 1780, died March 30, 1857, who married Rosina Miller and had eight children, Solomon, David, Joel, Levi, John W. and Enoch (twins), Elenora (who married Ben Krick) and Lydia (who married Daniel Huyett); Christian, born Nov. 17, 1781, died June 9, 1851; Johannes, Jr.; and Georg, born Oct. 15, 1796, died April 22, 1861, who married March 11, 1826, Catherine Potteiger, and had two sons, Heinrich and Johannes.

Christian Gaul, son of Johannes, was a farmer of Cumru. He was born Nov. 17, 1781, and died June 9, 1851. He married Mary Ann Kissinger, born in 1795, died in 1877, and they had six children, namely: Abraham, born in 1815, died in 1891, married Mary Texter; Christian, born in 1817, died in 1871, never married; Jacob, born in 1819, died in 1859, married Mary Ann Huyett; Mary married Elijah Ruth; Reuben married Elizabeth Marshall; Hannah married Adam Hain.

Reuben Gaul, father of Franklin M. Gaul, was brought up in Cumru township, and carried on farming in Lower Heidelberg from 1865 until 1887. He married Elizabeth Marshall, a daughter of David Marshall, of Spring, and they had ten children: David M. married Mary Huyett; Franklin M. married Mary R. Bucks; Henry M. married Mary Ruth; James M. married Kate D. Huzzard; Mary married Frank Fisher; five died young.

Franklin M. Gaul was reared to farming, and has followed that vocation with success all his life. In 1875 he removed to Wernersville, where he has since lived, having a tract of thirty acres in the eastern end of the town, along the Berks and Dauphin turnpike. This place was formerly owned by William Werner, after whom the town was named, and is a valuable piece of property. Mr. Gaul is an honest and intelligent citizen, one who reads and takes a public-spirited interest in the advancement of his town, though he does not take a personal share in its public affairs.

Mr. Gaul was married Nov. 19, 1874, to Mary R. Bucks, born Jan. 13, 1851, daughter of Daniel B. and Elizabeth (Hain) Bucks, and they have an only daughter, E. Elizabeth, born Oct. 2, 1883, who resides with her parents at Wernersville. Mr. Gaul and his family are members of Hain's Reformed church.

Daniel B. Bucks, father of Mrs. Gaul, was born in Centre township, Berks county, June 21, 1821, and died March 24, 1874, aged fifty-two years, nine months, three days. He married Elizabeth Hain, born June 30, 1824, died Aug. 26, 1904, aged eighty years, one month, twenty-six days; she was a daughter of John A. and Catharine (Gernand) Hain, of Wernersville. Mr. and Mrs. Bucks were farming people, but for eleven years kept what is now J. H. Miller's hotel at Wernersville. They are buried at Hain's church. They had two children. Sarah, born Dec. 29, 1847, is unmarried and lives with her sister, Mary R., wife of Franklin M. Gaul.

Daniel Bucks, grandfather of Mrs. Gaul, was a native of Centre township, and died on his farm in Lower Heidelberg township, owning the place which is now the property of Benjamin A. Hain. He followed farming all his life. To him and his wife, Sarah (Bright), were born children as follows: David B., born May 8, 1817, died June 4, 1863 (his wife, Ellen H. Bucks, daughter of Benjamin and Elizabeth Hain, born March 16, 1817, died Feb. 4, 1887, aged sixty-nine years, ten months, eighteen days); Daniel B., born June 21, 1821, died March 24, 1874; Mary married Isaac Sohl and Henry Werner; Sarah married Jonathan Knorr; Catharine, unmarried, resides in Wernersville.

Abraham Bucks, great-grandfather of Mrs. Franklin M. Gaul, was a resident of Bern township, Berks county. His wife was a Himmelberger.

WILLIAM H. ADAMS, one of the leading business men of Exeter township, Berks county, senior member of the well-known general merchandise firm of Adams Brothers, at Esterly P. O., village of St. Lawrence, is a native of Berks county, and a son of Israel and Susan (Hartman) Adams.

William Adams, the grandfather of William H., was reared in Lower Alsace township, this county, where he spent his life in stone-mason work and contracting, being a prominent business man of his day. He was an attendant of the Reformed church and consistent in his belief. He married Mary Kline, of Reading, and died when sixty-eight years old; his widow was about seventy-eight at the time of her death. They had the following children: Mary married Michael Miller; Rebecca married John Seidel; Israel married Susan Hartman; Lena married John Wanner; Catherine married Peter Wanner; William married Mary Seidel; Rosa married John Miller; James married Amanda Seidel.

Israel Adams was born in Lower Alsace township. He was a stone-mason by trade, although he gave most of his attention to farming, which he followed quite extensively in Exeter and Alsace townships, and finally in Amity township, until his retirement about 1897. He was a Democrat in politics, and he and his wife were members of the Reformed church, in the faith of which she died in 1887. They had a family of ten children, of whom six grew to maturity: Albert, a farmer of St. Lawrence, married Deborah Snyder; Sallie married Anthony Albright, of Boyertown; William H. is mentioned below; Abner, a farmer of Exeter township, married Catherine Heydt; Charles, of the firm of Adams Brothers, married Elsie Houck; Edward, bookkeeper at the Reading Glove and Mitten Works, Reading, married Carrie Fisher.

William H. Adams was educated in the public schools, and until 1899 followed farming. In that year the firm of Adams Brothers was started by William H. and Charles Adams, in a very small way, with a modest stock. Business grew rapidly, however, and since the establishment of the firm the floor space has been doubled, and the patronage is drawn from a large territory, extending even into the city of Reading. Both brothers are able business men, and are affable and courteous to patrons. Their establishment presents as fine an appearance as any in this section of Berks county. Mr. Adams was a trustee and one of the organizers of the St. Lawrence Water Company, and is a stockholder in the Montello Brick Works, the Perkiomen Brick Company, the U. S. Brick Company, and other enterprises. Fraternally he is connected with Washington Camp No. 230, P. O. S. of A., being a trustee therein. He and his son are members of the Reformed church, he being a trustee of Union Sunday-school Chapel, while his wife is a member of the Lutheran church. In politics Mr. Adams is a Democrat, and has served as delegate to county conventions on numerous occasions.

In 1888 Mr. Adams was married to Miss Annie Wise, daughter of Rebecca and William Wise, of Douglass township, and two children have been born to this union: Harry W. and Ella M. The former is a graduate of the public schools of Exeter township and of the Inter-State Commercial College.

FOCHT BROTHERS. Among the many German immigrants to Pennsylvania in the first half of the eighteenth century was one Johann Georg Focht, who was born Jan. 14, 1758, and died Oct. 26, 1841. He owned a farm of 212 acres in Windsor township and there spent the rest of his life. This property descended to his son Jacob and remained in the family for some time, but is now in the possession of Joseph L. Smith. Johann Georg Focht married in 1783 Susanna Loy, who was born Dec. 28, 1764, and died Sept. 26, 1843, and they had nine children, namely: George Peter; Jacob; John; Jeremiah; Katie, Mrs. Samuel Stoyer; Susanna, Mrs. Michael Loy; Hannah, Mrs. John Baver; Betz, Mrs. Conrad Jacoby; and Dinah, who never married. There is a large branch of the family descended from the oldest son, who was born Nov. 4, 1786, and who died Feb. 7, 1852. He married Magdalena Heinly, born in 1791, died in 1854, and their family numbered ten, four sons and six daughters.

Jacob Focht, second son of Johann, was born Nov. 18, 1794, and died Sept. 6, 1863. He was a resident of Windsor township, and quite prominent there, as he carried on both farming and distilling on a large scale for those days. His farm consisted of 212 acres and was brought to a high state of cultivation. In the distilling line he brewed applejack, rye and other whiskies and hauled his products by team to Philadelphia for sale. Jacob Focht married Maria Dewalt, whose life covered almost a century, as she was born March 26, 1802, and died Jan. 25, 1899, in her ninety-seventh year. Their children were: Polly, Mrs. Jacob Miller; Dinah, Mrs. William Miller; Jeremiah, of Port Clinton, Pa.; Samuel; Annie, Mrs. William Shiffert; Julia, Mrs. Henry Herb; Lydia, Mrs. Joseph Gust; Hannah, Mrs. Joel Strasser; Catherine, Mrs. Daniel Knepper; Henry, of Hamburg, Pa.; Elizabeth, who died unmarried; George, who married Miss Maria Strasser; and Daniel, who died young.

Samuel Focht, the father of the Focht brothers, was a life-long farmer in Windsor township, and succeeded to the Focht homestead. He was born there in 1829, and passed away amid the same familiar surroundings, Oct. 3, 1894. His wife, Beckie, daughter of Peter Zettlemayer, survived him only one day, dying in her sixty-fifth year. She had suffered for several years from an incurable disease and grief for her husband's death hastened her end. The children born to this couple were as follows: Samuel, founder and editor of the Hamburg Item, who married Miss Rosa Derr and died in 1895, aged thirty-five; Adaline, Mrs. William Rothermel; Amos; Jacob, and Charles, who married Miss Alice Strasser.

Amos Focht, son of Samuel, was born in Windsor township, Sept. 23, 1857. Although he went to the district school till he was sixteen years old, it offered only a limited education, of which, however, he made the most. When seventeen he learned the trade of blacksmith and the next year added that of wheelwright, two lines of work which he has successfully followed ever since, in addition to farming. He owns a tract of forty-one acres of fine land, located one and a half miles southwest of Hamburg. He is very industrious, keeping his farm in a high state of cultivation. In 1891 he built a substantial Swiss barn, which adds considerably to the value of his property. The dwelling, erected in 1822, is still good for another century.

The wife chosen by Amos Focht was Miss Minnadora Anna Schaeffer, granddaughter of Ferdinand and daughter of Elias and Anna (Rothermel) Schaeffer, of Greenwich township. Two daughters were born to this union, namely: Vinnie C., who married Jacob Epting; and A. Birdie, Mrs. William Ketner. Mr. Focht and his wife are members and regular attendants of Zion's Lutheran church.

Jacob Focht was born July 11, 1859. His early years were spent like his brother's, attending school and helping on his father's farm. He continued to assist his father for some time after leaving school, but in 1885 began farming for himself. He now owns a good place of forty-three acres, well managed and splendidly kept up, and receives encouraging returns from his labor. All the men of the Focht family are Democrats in their political views and stand for the best type of citizenship.

The bond of kinship uniting Amos and Jacob Focht has been drawn even closer by the fact that they married sisters. Mrs. Jacob Focht was Miss Louisa Schaeffer, and was born Aug. 14, 1862. Four children have been born to them, as follows: Gertie, Sept. 5, 1884 (who married George Dunkel); Mamie R., March 1, 1887; Katie L., June 7, 1889; and Milton J., Nov. 19, 1895.

FISHER. The Fishers are a numerous family in Berks county, where they have been settled since the middle of the eighteenth century. The first known ancestor,

(I) Peter A. A. Fisher, settled in Heidelberg township, Berks county, prior to 1756, in which year he paid a federal tax of £4. He resided in what is now Spring township. His wife's name was Appolino.

(II) John Fisher, son of Peter and Appolino, born in Lower Heidelberg township, established a paper-mill (since converted into a woolen mill) there and engaged in the manufacture of paper. He married March 20, 1796, Rosina Hain, born in Heidelberg township, daughter of John and Anna Margrathe Hain, and they had children as follows: Elenora, born June 2, 1797, married John Sohl March 5, 1816; Samuel, born Oct. 28, 1799, married Elizabeth Loucks Dec. 28, 1821; Peter, born Dec. 13, 1801, married Mary Klopp Aug. 24, 1823; Anna Catharine was born Sept. 12, 1804; Elizabeth, born Oct. 6, 1805, died in youth; John, born March 15, 1808, died in early life; Anna was born March 17, 1810; Elijah, born Aug. 28, 1812, married Callinus Shouer, Sept. 7, 1834; Daniel was born Oct. 10, 1815; Sarah, March 28, 1818; Jeremiah, Jan. 9, 1821.

(III) Samuel Fisher, born Oct. 28, 1799, on the old homestead, died Jan. 16, 1875. He spent his life as a farmer in his native township, held several township offices, and was a useful citizen. In politics he was a Democrat, in religion a member of the German Reformed church, in which he was an active worker. On Dec. 28, 1821, he married Elizabeth Loucks, born in 1800 (daughter of Peter Loucks, of the same township), died Jan. 12, 1883. To them were born six children, as follows: Reily L., born Nov. 12, 1822, is mentioned farther on; Mary, born March 27, 1824, married Peter Marshall, who died in 1887; Adam, born March 25, 1825, married Amelia Filbert, and they lived in Marion township, this county, where he was engaged in farming; David, born April 7, 1829, died in 1867, married March 15, 1853, Catharine K. Loucks, who lived near Robesonia; Elizabeth, born May 14, 1834, died when four years old; Benjamin, born Dec. 19, 1854, died young.

(IV) Reily L. Fisher was born Nov. 12, 1822, in Heidelberg township, and in that locality passed all his long life, dying Jan. 28, 1903, aged eighty years, two months, sixteen days. He received his education in the pay schools which were in vogue during his boyhood, and at Collegeville, Montgomery county, and then for a short time assisted his father with the work on the home farm. Farming was always his principal vocation, but he was engaged in merchandising for a time, in his young manhood leaving the farm to become a clerk at Sinking Spring. Except as his work called him elsewhere, he lived at home until his marriage. After his marriage he was on the farm again for a year, and then embarked in mercantile business on his own account, at Sinking Spring, carrying on a general store for six years. Returning to the home farm, he engaged in its cultivation for sixteen years and then bought another place near by, upon which he lived for fifteen years. Retiring from farming, Mr. Fisher lived at Wernersville for two years, and in 1889 he purchased the Madeira residence at Robesonia, in Heidelberg township, known as "Maple Villa," which has since been the family home. It is now owned and occupied by his daughters, Amelia and Rosa.

Being successful in the management of his own affairs, and well known for his probity of character, Mr. Fisher was often called upon to act as guardian, trustee and administrator of estates, and his scrupulous regard for the duties of such trusts showed that the confidence of his fellowmen was not misplaced. He deservedly enjoyed the high esteem of all who knew him. He was a stanch Democrat in political sentiment. In his earlier years he was a member of the Reformed Church, to which his wife and family belonged.

On Jan. 23, 1851, Mr. Fisher married Matilda B. Reber, born Feb. 24, 1827 (daughter of Conrad and Magdalene (Bright) Reber, of Bern township), died Oct. 5, 1889. Seven children were born to them, viz.: Mary Magdalena, born March 13, 1852, married Albert D. Wenrich, a cattle dealer and farmer of Robesonia, Heidelberg township, and they had four children, Annie, Reily, Esther and Tillie; Samuel R., born Jan. 10, 1854, is mentioned below; Annie Elizabeth, born Sept. 21, 1856, died June 7, 1864; Sarah Rebecca, born March 8, 1859, married Dr. David H. Hain, of Wernersville, and had three children, Edna, Estella and Raymond; Amelia Catherine was born June 9, 1861; Rosa Ellen, Jan. 2, 1865; Matilda Lucetta, born March 21, 1872, died March 9, 1873.

(V) Samuel R. Fisher, son of Reily L. Fisher, born Jan. 10, 1854, at Sinking Spring, resides at Wernersville, Berks county, and is engaged in farming the old Fisher homestead in Heidelberg township. He has spent the greater part of his life in agricultural work, to which he was reared, working for his father until he was past twenty-five. In 1876 he went West for a short time. In 1880 he commenced farming on his own account, taking the management of the old homestead, which he cultivated until 1891, when he moved to Robesonia, living with his father at "Maple Villa" for two years. He purchased his present home at Wernersville in 1894, and lived there from that time until 1899, when he moved back to the homestead for a while, returning to Wernersville in 1904. Mr. Fisher has been engaged in the cultivation of the homestead ever since his return to the place, as above mentioned, in 1899. He is now the owner of this homestead. He is a director of the Wernersville Water Company, which he helped to organize in 1895. He is devoted to his private interests and has never taken any part in public affairs or politics, though an earnest Democrat in political opinion.

On Dec. 25, 1879, Mr. Fisher was married at Myerstown, Pa., to Ellen C. Ruth, daughter of Michael and Catharine (Hain) Ruth, and granddaughter of Leonard and Elizabeth (Weinhold) Ruth. Both her father and grandfather were farmers in Lower Heidelberg township and members of the Hain's Church, where they are buried. Mr. and Mrs. Fisher also belong to the Hain's Church. One son, Reily M., was born to them Feb. 18, 1893.

(III) Jeremiah Fisher, son of John, born Jan. 9, 1821, in Lower Heidelberg township, died July 7, 1876. He is buried in the Charles Evans cemetery, at Reading. For a number of years he was in business in Reading, conducting a clothing store in the Eagle building, at Sixth and Penn streets (where the Eagle shoe store is now located), in partnership with George Heckman of Reading. They were associated for over ten years, Mr. Fisher eventually selling his interest to Mr. Heckman. Two years later he engaged in the shoe business, which he followed for a period of four years, when, his wife's stepmother—Mrs. Elizabeth (Hain) Beidler—dying, he moved with his family upon the farm of his father-in-law, in Lower Heidelberg township, where he passed the rest of his life. He had been living there for five years, engaged in farming, at the time of his death. He was a member of the Hain's Reformed Church.

In 1846 Mr. Fisher married Leah Beidler, who was born Oct. 9, 1825, in Robeson township, daughter of William and Susanna (Yost) Beidler. Her father was a farmer of Lower Heidelberg, formerly of Robeson township, this county. The mother, born Aug. 30, 1795, died Aug. 5, 1838. William and Susanna (Yost) Beidler were married July 19, 1818, and two sons and two daughters were born to them. After the death of his wife Susanna, Mr. Beidler married Elizabeth Hain.

To Mr. and Mrs. Fisher were born children as follows: Amanda married John K. Howden, of Reading, and has children—Edward, Rosa and Howard; Valeria died young; Rosa died young; Walter B., who resides at Robesonia, where he is employed at the furnace, married Sarah Sharman, and they have two children, Lillie and Edna; William H. married Annie Kintzer, and their children are Charles A., Frederick M., Harvey W. and Leah E. William H. Fisher and his family live with his mother at Wernersville.

Since Mr. Fisher's death his widow has resided in the large brick residence in Wernersville which she owns, situated on the main street in the western end of town. Though past eighty-two years of age she is active and passes her days in serene contentment, esteemed and respected by the many who know her. She is intelligent and interested in the life of the community, and is an earnest member of Hain's Reformed Church. She speaks both English and German fluently.

JAMES GASS, for many years one of the leading agriculturists of Lower Heidelberg township, was one of the prominent business men of Berks county, and in his death, which took place Feb. 13, 1893, the community lost one of its most substantial citizens. Mr. Gass was born Oct. 29, 1838, son of Jacob and Hettie (Delp) Gass.

Jacob Gass, father of James, was born in Alsace township, Berks Co., Pa., whither his father had come from Germany, and there spent a number of years in agricultural pursuits, owning several farms. He was also engaged extensively in the coal business, having his yards along the pike in Muhlenberg township, dealt in lime and stone, and was successful in his business ventures, becoming very substantial. Mr. Gass was married to Hettie Delp, daughter of Daniel Delp, of Richmond townhip, and to them were born eight children: James; Daniel, who lived in Schuylkill county, and is buried at Epler's Church; Mary, who married Frank Hahn; William, of Leesport, Pa.; Amanda, who married Ephraim Hartman; Adam, who owns and conducts the "Blind" Hartman's Hotel on the Princeton road, in Alsace township; Louis, of Tuckerton, Pa.; and Emma, who married Christian Oxenwald. The father was buried at Alsace Church, of which he was an official member belonging to the Reformed congregation.

James Gass was born in Alsace township on the property on which his grandfather had first settled, and there he was reared. On reaching his majority he began boating on the Schuylkill canal, in connection with farming, for about seven years, and he also leased a stone quarry and for quite a period dealt in limestone, having a large trade in Schuylkill county. For this he received a dollar a ton, and at this rate accumulated quite a competency. In 1873 he erected a house along the pike in Muhlenberg township, where he lived for over six years, and in 1880 bought a fine farm of eighty acres near Wernersville, on which he carried on farming until his death. In addition to this Mr. Gass owned a farm of 100 acres in Alsace township, which during his life was rented, but since his death has been sold, as well as his home property. He was a member of the Reformed Church, and is buried at Hain's Church, of that denomination.

On Dec. 24, 1864, Mr. Gass was married to Charity Ann Yoder, who was born in Richmond township Oct. 24, 1839, daughter of John and Magdalena (Breyfogel) Yoder, and granddaughter of John and Froenica Yoder, farming people of Maxatawny township. To Mr. and Mrs. Gass were born children as follows: Hannah M. married Monroe Becker, of Wernersville, Pa.; John Jacob, who married Gussie Shoemaker, of Philadelphia, is a dairyman, and lives at Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia; Sallie E., born in 1870, died aged ten years; Mary E. married James Erb, a ticket agent at Lorane, Berks county, and has a son, Harron.

Mrs. Gass, who is a faithful member of Hain's Reformed Church, is one of Wernersville's most highly esteemed ladies. She owns a large double brick three-story house on Main street, the upper story of which was used for some time as a lodge hall by various fraternal organizations. She is in very comfortable circumstances and her youngest daughter and her family reside with her.

RICHARD LECHNER, whose excellent farm of 113 acres is in Marion township, Berks county, is a representative of that industrious German element that has placed Pennsylvania in the front rank of the prosperous States of the nation. His birth occurred on his present farm Dec. 9, 1834.

John George Lechner, the emigrant ancestor of the family, was born in Anspach, Germany, March 28, 1704 (old style), son of Peter and Sibilla Lechner. Late in 1731 he sailed from Rotterdam, Holland, on the "Adventurer," and he landed in New York in the early days of 1732. He came to Pennsylvania, and located near Reed's Church, on the Tulpehocken and Millbach creeks, purchasing a large tract of land. He died in 1784. He married Margaretta Wechleim, and both became members of the Second Lutheran Church in 1743. Their children were: John, who died young; and George, whose wife was Mary Elizabeth.

The latter George Lechner, son of John George Lechner and Margaretta, was a soldier in the Revolution, and did service in the trying campaign around Philadelphia and Valley Forge in the years 1777-78. He belonged to, and was quartermaster of, the 5th Battalion, composed of eight companies and 442 men, mostly from the Tulpehocken district, now Marion township, of which regiment Henry Spyger was colonel. George Lechner and his wife, Mary Elizabeth, became the parents of three children; George Nicholas, who had a son John George; John; and Christopher.

Christopher Lechner, son of George, married Catharine Werheim, and four children were born to them: David, who married Elizabeth Eckhert and had a daughter Eliza (who married William Stupp); Elizabeth, who married Michael Reith, and had two children, Levi and Ellen (who married A. J. Hain); Catharine L., who married David Himmelberger and had a son Adam (of Reading); and John George.

John George Lechner, son of Christopher, married Catharine Reith, daughter of Stoffel and Catharine (Illig) Reith, of Marion township, Berks county, and granddaughter of Valentine Reith. To this union were born six children: (1) Elizabeth married Samuel D. Gockley, and their daughter Nora is a school teacher in Marion township. (2) John, a "forty-niner," died in California soon after his arrivel there. (3) George W. also went to California in 1849, but returned and later went to Denver, Colo., his present home, and engaged as a civil and mining engineer. He married a Miss McLaughlin, now deceased, and had four children, Laura, Richard, Kate and Dolly. (4) Richard. (5) Mary Ann died young. (6) Franklin C. went to South Carolina, where he is a teller in a bank and engaged in the raising of tobacco and grapes. He married a Miss Thummel and had one daughter, Bertha. The father of these children was an active Republican, and he held a number of minor offices.

Richard Lechner, son of John George, received a good education in Stouchsburg Academy, and after leaving school taught twelve winter terms in Lebanon and Berks counties, and then began farming on the old homestead. This consists of 113 acres, which were bought by John George, the emigrant, and George Lechner, his son, and originally were the property of Thomas and Richard Penn. Eighty-seven acres of this land have been in the Lechner family for nearly a century and a half, having passed through five generations of Lechners, namely: John George, the emigrant; George, the son; Christopher, son of George; John George, son of Christopher; and Richard, son of latter and present owner. The house was built in 1775. The early Lechners built a woolen carding mill, the first mill of any kind in Marion township. They also had an oil mill, manufacturing linseed oil. The first Sunday school ever held in the township was held in this last mentioned mill in 1834. Mr. Richard Lechner owns a large cider press, and has done a great deal of custom work, frequently having made over one hundred barrels of cider a day. He came into possession of his property after the death of his parents. Besides his farming he has had other business interests. For three years he was a director of the Sinking Spring Fire Insurance Company, and was recently again elected to that office to serve for three years, from Jan. 1, 1909. In 1905 he was its president, and at present (1908) is its collector.

Mr. Lechner's religious belief, like that of his progenitors, was of the Lutheran persuasion. He has served as deacon and elder in Christ Lutheran Church, near Stouchsburg, but latterly, though still a nominal member, has become a confirmed liberal in his religious views—an evolutionist. He does not believe that the Bible writers were divinely inspired in their erroneous cosmogonical statements, where they conflict with demonstrated science and astronomy and the present enlightened higher criticism on historical and traditional religion. In political sentiment he is a Republican, and has been inspector of elections and for many years chairman of the township committee. During the Civil war he became a member of the State Guard, and rode his own horse to Chambersburg, where the Guard remained until the emergency was apparently over. They then returned home, and the attack occurred on Chambersburg the following week. During Lee's invasion Mr. Lechner enlisted at Harrisburg, becoming second lieutenant in Company H, 31st P. V. I. (Capt. William A. C. Oaks), and was mustered into the United States service under the proclamation of the President June 15, 1863 (General Orders No. 43). His commission was signed by Gov. Andrew G. Curtin, and is dated June 18, 1863. He was mustered out Aug. 7, 1863. Mr. Lechner is the owner of a grandfather's clock, made by Jacob Guthart, of Lebanon, Mass. He has a secretary made about 1775, and ornamented with inlaid wood; and also an old corner closet, for which he has been offered a large sum. Fraternally Mr. Lechner is a Mason, being past master of Williamson Lodge, No. 307, F. & A. M., of Womelsdorf; he is also past noble grand of Golden Rule Lodge, No. 159, I. O. O. F., of Womelsdorf.

Mr. Lechner married Lizzie Deppen, born in Womelsdorf, Jan. 22, 1842, daughter of Adam Deppen (born in Womelsdorf Jan. 20, 1817, died 1845), a shoemaker and farmer. To this union came children as follows: George, born Dec. 14, 1865, is a photographer and farmer in Marion township; Harvey, born Oct. 26, 1870, died March 29, 1871; Maud, born March 27, 1874, resides at home; Paul, born Oct. 27, 1875, died March 6, 1876; Charles, born April 26, 1877, is at home; and Ella, born Aug. 7, 1883, died Feb. 25, 1892.

ADAM E. DUNDOR, a retired citizen of Mt. Pleasant, Berks county, was born Dec. 1, 1829, in Bern (now Penn) township, and has passed practically all his life in the same locality. He is a descendant of one of the old families of Huguenot origin, of which we have the following account:

(I) John Dondore, a Huguenot, left his native land during the Revocation period, and settled in Alsace.

(II) Jacob Dundore (Dondore, Dundier, Dundon, Dunder, Dunden, Dundare or Dondor), son of John, was born July 25, 1720, and was educated in the German language. In 1741 he came to America in the ship "Friendship," and on April 10, 1760, was naturalized by the "Supream" court, sitting at Philadelphia, thereby becoming an English subject. In 1771 he bought a farm east of Bernville, Berks county, but continued to reside, it is presumed, for some years on his farm in Tulpehocken township several miles east of Host Church (where in 1749 one of his children's births is recorded), as according to the court records he owned that farm until 1785. In this year we find a deed recorded conveying same to Valentine Heberling. It is certain that he resided on the Bern farm at the time of his death. This farm he conveyed by deed to his eldest son, John (signing "Jacob Dunder" in German), from whom it passed to his son John Adam, by deed signed "John Dundore" in bold round English; John Adam divided the farm between his two sons, Samuel E. and Adam E., signing "Adam Dundor" in German—Adam E. obtaining the portion on which was the old house—the farm being in their possession in 1908. Jacob is buried in the Bern churchyard, and the inscription on the substantial yellow sandstone is still visible. His will is dated March 3, 1787, and the original and a translation are recorded in Reading. It was approved June 12, 1789, and it is an outpouring of his soul's thanks to God for health and prosperity, and such an example of equity and justice in the distribution of his estate as could come forth only from a Christian's heart. About 1745 he was married to Anna Maria Brecht, who died in 1793 or 1794. Their children were: Maria Catharine, born March 19, 1749, who married John Smith (some of their descendants still live in the Wyoming Valley); Susanna, who married Frederick Gerhart, and lived in the vicinity of Host Church, where their descendants still reside; John, born March 20, 1751, who died Oct. 14, 1823; Michael, born Dec. 4, 1754; John Jacob, born March 19, 1756, who died Sept. 22, 1821; David, born July 21, 1758; Catherine Elizabeth, who married Adam Schauer; and a son whose name is not known.

(III) John Dundore, son of John and Anna Maria (Brecht), was born in Tulpehocken township March 20, 1751, and died Oct. 14, 1823. He settled in Bern township, near the present site of Bernville, and his descendants are known as the "Bern Branch" of the Dundore family. He married Catherine Geiss, born Dec. 23, 1753, who died Jan. 12, 1827, and they are both buried at Bern churchyard. Their children were: John Jacob, born Aug. 13, 1776, died Oct. 23, 1861; John Adam, born Aug. 2, 1778, died June 17, 1850; John, born June 30, 1780, died April 14, 1858; Catherine, born Nov. 24, 1782, died Jan. 17, 1840; Frederick, born April 30, 1786, died Aug. 30, 1864; John George, born Oct. 6, 1788, died Dec. 24, 1803; Philip, born Feb. 28, 1791, died Oct. 5, 1867; Christian, born June 6, 1793, died Oct. 11, 1872; and Elizabeth, born March 10, 1794, married Daniel Miesse (1789-1823), and died about 1867. This family is remarkable for the average age attained. With the exception of John George, who died of lockjaw at about the age of fifteen, the remaining eight averaged fully seventy-five years, although two had their deaths hastened by accidents—Catherine dying from being thrown out of a sleigh, and Frederick losing his life by being run over by a railroad train.

(IV) John Adam Dundore, son of John and Catherine (Geiss), was born on the old homestead Aug. 2, 1778, and died June 17, 1850; he was buried at Bern Church. He was an agriculturist all of his life, and owned the homestead which in later years became the property of his son, Samuel E. He was a substantial and influential citizen of his day, was director of the poor, when the present almshouse was erected, and was well known and universally respected. Mr. Dundore was married (first) to Elizabeth Miesse, by whom he had nine children, namely: Susanna, Maria, Elizabeth, Leah, John (born April 17, 1818), Daniel, Sarah, Benneville and Jacob (born in 1820, died in 1853). Mr. Dundore married (second) Elizabeth Ernst, daughter of Johannes Ernst, of Heidelberg township. She was born April 10, 1791, and died April 10, 1870, and was buried in Bern churchyard. Three children were born of this union: Samuel E., born Feb. 1, 1827, now living retired in Womelsdorf; Adam E., born Dec. 1, 1829; and William E., who married in Plainfield, Ill., and had one son (William E. was a soldier in an Illinois regiment, during the Civil war, and lost his life in battle by the bursting of a shell).

(V) Adam E. Dundor, son of John Adam and Elizabeth (Ernst), was educated in the pay schools of his district. He was reared to farming, working for his father until 1850, when he began on his own account on his father's farm, and he still owns the old homestead of 115 acres in Penn township—land taken up by his ancestors long ago. He himself continued to farm until 1873, when he gave up that occupation and settled in Mt. Pleasant, a village in Penn township, where he built the fine home which he has since occupied. He is regarded as one of the substantial men of his district and is much respected. Mr. Dundor is interested in the welfare of his community, and served six years as school director of Penn township. He is a Republican in political opinion. His chief interest outside of his home, however, has been in the church. He is a prominent member of the North Heidelberg Reformed Church and has long been active in its work, serving as deacon and elder, and at the present time he is a trustee.

In 1852 Mr. Dundor married Rebecca Miller, daughter of Peter Miller, of Spring township, and they lived in wedlock for more than fifty years. Five children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Dundor, namely: One son died in infancy; Valeria married Edwin F. Feather, of the J. L. Stichter Hardware Company, resides in Reading, and has three children, Howard, Florence and Mabel; Kate died young; Sara married Jacob H. Rohrbach, principal of a public school in New York City; Eleanor married Henry Kunkle, M. D., a prominent practitioner of Kingston, Pa., and they have one son, Henry.

LAMM. The Lamm family, so long settled in Berks county, had its early home in Germany, but about the middle of the eighteenth century there came to America the great-great-grandfather of the brothers, Lewis F. and Charles F. Lamm, of Lower Heidelberg township. He came to Berks county, Pa., and made a home in Heidelberg township.

John Lamm, son of the emigrant ancestor, was born Dec. 1, 1759, and died Oct. 28, 1817, aged fifty-seven years, ten months, twenty-seven days. He owned a farm of 150 acres in Heidelberg township, and became one of the most influential men in that locality. He married Anna M. Brossman, born Sept. 29, 1764, died Feb. 28, 1826, aged sixty-one years, four months, twenty-nine days. Both are buried at Hain's Church in Lower Heidelberg township. Their children were: John, who retained the old home, married Catherine Klopp; Rosina married Philip Zerbe; Elizabeth married William Werner; Daniel married Catherine Staudt; Peter married Nellie Gruver; Anna Maria married John Wenrich; Benjamin; and Margaret married Henry Miller.

Benjamin Lamm, son of John and Anna M. (Brossman), was born in March, 1807. He grew to manhood on his father's farm. For a period of eighteen years he was chorister and school teacher (German) at the Little Tulpehocken Church, now located in Jefferson township. He then went to farming in North Heidelberg, where he owned 163 acres of land, and he continued there until his death, when he was sixty-one years of age. He married Lydia Ruth, daughter of Frederick and Anna M. Ludwig. Both rest in the cemetery at North Heidelberg Church. They were the parents of two sons and five daughters, as follows: Mary, who married William Bright; Joshua; Rebecca, who married Amandon Kissling; Catherine, who married Richard Shoup; Elizabeth, who married William Gerhart; James, of North Heidelberg township, who married Rebecca Weitzel; and Ellen M., wife of John W. Fisher, of Robesonia, the well-known ex-poor director.

Joshua Lamm, son of Benjamin and Lydia Ruth, was born Oct. 23, 1832, was brought up in North Heidelberg township, and carried on farming until 1870, when he moved to Robesonia. There for two years he engaged in the grain business with Samuel R. Deppen. He then purchased a farm of 187 acres in Heidelberg, and resumed farming. In 1873 he erected the present buildings on this farm, now the property of Edwin K. Bohn and divided into two tracts. This he continued until 1887, when he sold the place and retired, taking up his residence in Robesonia. He died Nov. 1, 1896, aged sixty-four years and eight days. He married Caroline Brendel, of North Heidelberg, daughter of Frederick Brendel, and by her had eight children: Lewis F.; Amanda Elizabeth, who married (first) John L. Kalbach, (second) Evan Hiester, and (third) Allison Fidler; James, who died young; Charles F.; Lizzie, who married Daniel K. Bohn, of Heidelberg; Kate Margaret and Mary Jane, both of whom died in infancy; and Emma, who married Charles Deppen, of Womelsdorf. Joshua Lamm, the father, was a school director for many years, both in Heidelberg and North Heidelberg townships, and was secretary of the board most of the time, taking a great interest in bettering educational facilities.

Lewis F. Lamm, son of Joshua and Caroline, and now a farmer in Lower Heidelberg, was born in North Heidelberg and was brought up to farming. His education was obtained in the township schools, Palatinate College and the Krumbine Academy, at Womelsdorf. He was licensed to teach by the late Prof. D. B. Brunner, and in 1873 began teaching in Heidelberg township, continuing for five consecutive terms. He next turned his attention to farming in North Heidelberg and continued there for twenty-six years on the same farm. In 1904 he purchased of the John Gaul estate the farm on which he now resides, consisting of seventy-nine acres, and he attends the Reading market once a week. He also owns a farm of 101 acres located in Jefferson township, known as the Joseph Feeg homestead, and on this in 1899 he erected a barn 40 x 80 feet; in 1895, he remodeled the house, putting the property in first-class condition. He has it rented now. While residing in North Heidelberg he served as school director for three years, and as township auditor for nine years. For several terms he was deacon and elder in North Heidelberg Church.

Mr. Lamm was married Aug. 7, 1875, to Rebecca, daughter of John and Maria Moyer, of Heidelberg township. Eight children have been born of this union: Rose Ann, who married Calvin Klee; B. Franklin, a conductor on the Reading & Womelsdorf trolley road, who married Minnie Brown, and resides at Womelsdorf; John H., who married Bessie Brossman; Charles C., a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, Kutztown, and for one term a teacher in Cumru township, but now a merchant in West Reading, who married Minnie Klopp; Lloyd Joshua; Alvin Lewis; Frederick Edwin; and a daughter who died in infancy.

Charles F. Lamm, son of Joshua and Caroline, now a successful farmer of Lower Heidelberg, was born in North Heidelberg, Oct. 19, 1859. He was reared on the home farm, giving his parents the benefit of his labor, until he was twenty-one. He then married and began work for himself, in 1883 settling in North Heidelberg, where he remained two years. He next tenanted for seven years in Heidelberg, after which he removed to his present farm, the property of John K. Gehart. This consists of 140 acres, and Mr. Lamm has considerable stock, and runs a fine dairy. His milk is sold at the Wernersville Milk Depot, whence it is sent to Philadelphia. He uses the best and latest improved machinery. He owns a sixty-acre farm in Lower Heidelberg, which he purchased in 1901, and this, too, he cultivates, as it lies adjacent to the place on which he lives.

In politics Mr. Lamm is a Democrat, and keenly interested in the success of his party, having frequently served as delegate to county conventions under the old delegate system. For one term he filled the office of school director. He and his family are Reformed members of Hain's Church. While living in Heidelberg he was deacon and elder in St. Daniel's (Corner) Church.

In January, 1881, Mr. Lamm was united in marriage with Sallie Gaul, daughter of John Gaul and his wife Catharine (Sharman). Five children have blessed this union: Nora C., wife of Charles Freeman, a merchant of Sinking Spring; and Alice C., Ellen M., George J., and Earl F., at home.

SPOHN FAMILY. The name of Spohn is well represented in Berks county in the present generation by the two brothers, Evan M. and Lewis E. Spohn, of Spring township. The family has long lived in this county, and several members have been conspicuous in its history. The cemeteries show some of the early records of the family: Henry Spohn, born March 10, 1729, died Jan. 21, 1813; and his wife, Maria Katharine, born March 12, 1736, died Jan. 25, 1810. Adam Spohn (son of Henry), born Jan. 25, 1758, died Jan. 18, 1831; and his wife, Elizabeth, born Dec. 15, 1764, died Sept. 23, 1829. Maria Katharine Spohn, wife of Henry, was a famous nurse in her day, and attended the births of 1,114 children. During the war of the Revolution, Philip Spohn became, May 17, 1777, first lieutenant in the Eighth Company, Berks county militia; on May 31, 1781, he was a private in Col. Joseph Hiester's Battalion and Sebastian Miller's Company; he was captain of the Eighth Company, Sixth Battalion, Lieut.-Col. Joseph Hiester, May 27, 1780. Henry Spohn, presumably the Henry mentioned above as born March 10, 1729, was court-martial man in the Eighth Company, of which Philip Krick was captain, May 17, 1777.

Joseph Spohn, father of Henry, grandfather of Adam, and great-grandfather of Samuel, mentioned just below, settled under a big oak tree on the farm later owned by Abraham Goul, now owned by John Barbey.

Samuel Spohn, son of Adam, born in Spring township, on what is now known as the Sailor farm, Feb. 28, 1797, died Aug. 30, 1869. He was a farmer and distiller, and was a very substantial citizen, deeply interested in public questions. He helped to establish the boundary line between Cumru and Spring townships. He owned the farm that is now the property of his grandson, Lewis E. He helped to build the Reformed Church at Sinking Spring, was always one of its active and most interested members, and was buried in the cemetery there. On May 16, 1820, he married Mary Rollman, who was born Oct. 3, 1803, and who died Sept. 30, 1882, daughter of John Rollman. They became the parents of children as follows: Richard, born March 3, 1821, who died Jan. 25, ——; Ellen, James and Daniel, who all died young; and Adam R.

Adam R. Spohn, son of Samuel, was born on the Spohn homestead in Spring township, July 14, 1831, and died Sept. 26, 1904. He was a farmer and for some years was a clerk in a store at Sinking Spring. He was a Republican in politics, and a member of St. John's Lutheran Church at Sinking Spring, in which he served both as deacon and elder. He and his wife both sleep in the cemetery there. The farm now owned by his son Lewis E. was his home. He was a most useful citizen of his community, and one highly respected. His wife, Sarah Ann Yost, born Oct. 10, 1833, was a daughter of Nicholas and Susan (Seidel) Yost, and died Sept. 30, 1905. Their union was blessed with two sons, Evan M. and Lewis E.

Evan M. Spohn, son of Adam R., and now a retired farmer and good citizen of Sinking Spring, was born in Spring township, on the old Spohn homestead, March 30, 1857. He obtained a good education in the township schools and the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, worked on his father's farm until he was twenty-five years old, and in 1882 began farming for himself on the home place. This he continued for twenty-four years, in the spring of 1906 retiring and moving to Sinking Spring, where he owned a good residence on Cacoosing street. He was treasurer of the Liberty Chemical Fire Company of Sinking Spring for some years. His only employment at present is the general management of his property. In politics he is a stanch Republican, and he takes a keen interest in the success of his party. He is a member of Lodge No. 660, I. O. O. F., at Sinking Spring. With his family he belongs to St. John's Church at Sinking Spring, being a Lutheran member thereof. For two years he served as deacon.

On May 29, 1880, Mr. Spohn was married to Lydia H. Kurtz, born Feb. 22, 1857, daughter of Samuel and Catharine (Haines) Kurtz. To Mr. and Mrs. Spohn have been born two children: Ammon K., born July 18, 1882; and Sarah K., born May 17, 1887, who married Charles Wengert, of Sinking Spring.

Lewis E. Spohn, son of Adam R., and an influential and representative citizen of near Sinking Spring, was born on the old Spohn homestead, which he now owns, March 22, 1859. He was given a good education, and for two terms taught school, was brought up to farming, and worked for his father until he was twenty-two years old. After his marriage he worked one year for his father-in-law, and in 1883 he moved to Wernersville, and for three years worked in E. M. Huyett & Co.'s lumber and coal yard. In 1887 he began farming on the Charles Huyett farm of seventy-six acres, near Wernersville, and lived there two years. He next farmed for his father-in-law three years, and then sold out his farm stock. In the spring of 1891 he moved to his uncle Richard Spohn's place, near Sinking Spring, where he now lives. He superintends the work on the farm, and engages in trucking, visiting the Reading market once or twice a week. He owns two good tracts, in all eighty-five acres, one of which is now rented by his son, Adam F. Mr. Spohn is a well-read man, and he takes a great interest in agricultural societies, being connected with those in Berks county. He is a man of progress and enterprise, and is highly esteemed. In politics he is independent. With his family he belongs to St. Daniel's Lutheran Church.

On Dec. 3, 1881, Mr. Spohn was married to Sarah G. Ruth, daughter of Francis and Magdalena (Gerhart) Ruth, of Heidelberg township, and they have had two children: Magdalena, who died aged eight months; and Adam Francis, who married Mary Kissling, and has two children, Adam Francis and James Lewis.

Martin DeTurck Hunter. Among the representative citizens and prominent business men of Lower Alsace township, Berks county, probably none is better known than Martin DeTurck Hunter, of Stony Creek Mills, who has been closely identified with the public, business and social interests of this section since attaining his majority. Mr. Hunter was born Sept. 30, 1867, in Oley township, son of Daniel Kemp and Esther Ann (DeTurck) Hunter.

The Hunter family, which is one of the oldest in Oley township, was founded by Nicholas and Anthony Iager, brothers, whose name was later changed by legislation to Hunter. They emigrated in 1738, from the Palatinate, on the Rhine, and Martin D. Hunter is descended from both, Nicholas being the ancestor of his grandfather, Daniel V. R. Hunter, and Anthony the ancestor of his grandmother, Mary Hunter, born Kemp, who was a grandfather of Daniel Hunter, a colonel in the Revolutionary army. Col. Daniel Hunter was the only son of Anthony Hunter. DeWalt Kemp, the progenitor of this branch of the Kemp family, emigrated from Germany about 1720.

Isaac DeTurck, or as then known, DeTurk, who was one of the first to take out land patents in Oley township, emigrated to Dutchess county, N. Y., in 1709, also coming from the Rhine. He settled in Oley township in 1711, and was the progenitor of the DeTurck family in this section of the State. He was a descendant of the French Huguenots. Martin Yoder DeTurck, grandfather of Martin D. Hunter, after whom he was named, was a great-great-grandson of Isaac DeTurck, and was married to Rachel Levan, a descendant of Abraham LeVan, who was born in 1698, and was one of the early settlers of Olney township, being also a descendant of the Huguenots. Martin D. Hunter has one brother and two sisters: Dr. Allen D. Hunter, of Savanna, Ill., and Mrs. Annie D. Hechler and Mrs. Mary D. Manwiller, of Stony Creek Mills.

Martin D. Hunter was educated in the public schools of Oley township and the Oley Academy, and lived on the farm until sixteen years of age, at which time, ambitious to enter into some business, he left Oley and moved to Stony Creek Mills, where he accepted a position with Louis Kraemer & Co., this place having been his home ever since. He worked his way up from position to position, becoming shipping clerk, and later bookkeeper, and in 1893 he was admitted into the firm, being now associated with Louis F. Kraemer and Louis F. Grebe, the business still trading under the name of Louis Kraemer & Co. They are engaged in manufacturing woolens and cut up their product into ready-made garments. Mr. Hunter was one of the incorporators of the Stony Creek Mills Building and Loan Association, and was secretary thereof from the time of its organization to its successful termination in 1903. In that year the present Stony Creek Mills Building Association was organized, and he was again elected secretary of the enterprise, a position which he still holds. He was assistant postmaster for a number of years, and in 1900 was appointed postmaster of Stony Creek Mills, succeeding Louis F. Kraemer, who resigned. He still holds this important office and in 1906 established a rural delivery route which has been successful, and is appreciated by all the patrons of the office. Mr. Hunter was one of the incorporators, and is now secretary and treasurer of the Mt. Penn Suburban Water Company, which has several miles of mains supplying Mt. Penn, Stony Creek Mills and Black Bear. He is president of the W. A. Lutz & Co., Inc., Shippensburg, manufacturers of clothing, and for years has been a member of the board of managers of the Mutual Fire Insurance Co., of Berks county. He is a trustee of the Bethany Sunday school, and was a member of the building committee when the chapel was built, and it was due to his influence that the chapel was erected on the site on which it now stands. Mr. Hunter is very fond of travel, and has visited all of the West Indies with the exception of Haiti and San Domingo; and has been to British Guiana and the Republic of Colombia, South America, and Cost Rica, Central America.

In 1890 Mr. Hunter was married to Sarah B. Hill, daughter of John Y. and Angelina (Breidegam) Hill, and a member of one of Oley township's old and honored families. Three children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Hunter: Edna M., Louis H. and Ellis D.

MEHARG. The Meharg family, for over a century known in Pennsylvania, had its origin in Londonderry, Ireland, and there in 1773, in Tobermore, was born William Meharg, son of John and Sarah (Wallace) Meharg. He emigrated to America in 1791, and settled in Londonderry township, Chester Co., Pa. By trade he was a charcoal burner. On June 28, 1797, he married Hannah Conner, a native of Ireland, born in 1778, who came to Pennsylvania in 1795, and died Aug. 4, 1820. She had three sisters: Sarah, who married James Dunn; Margaret, who married James McIlhaney; and Martha, who married Adam Reese, all of Chester county.

To William and Hannah (Conner) Meharg were born eleven children, all in Chester county: (1) John, born June 1, 1798, died in 1804. (2) Mary, born June 18, 1799, died Aug. 2, 1864. She married July 26, 1821, George Fritz, born July 26, 1792, died Sept. 1, 1853. (3) Ann, born June 5, 1801, died Feb. 9, 1870. She married David W. Irwin, born March 17, 1810, died March 10, 1875. (4) Margaret, born June 11, 1803, died April 8, 1890. She married, April 15, 1830, Levi Baker, born Dec. 22, 1800, died June 3, 1876. (5) Rebecca, born June 11, 1803, twin to Margaret, died May 2, 1877, unmarried. (6) Sarah, born Oct. 15, 1805, died Aug. 15, 1893. She married Jacob Bryan. (7) James, born March 29, 1807, married Margaret Rogers (no date of death found). (8) Martha, born March 22, 1810, died Jan. 31, 1883. She married in May, 1834, Jehu Baker, born June 18, 1809, died June 18, 1881. (9) Hiram, born March 13, 1813, died in 1827. (10) Hannah, born July 29, 1815, is still living. On Oct. 23, 1843, she married Daniel Tucker, born Feb. 8, 1815, died June 26, 1887. (11) William, born Dec. 11, 1817, died Nov. 25, 1893. For his second wife William Meharg, the father of the foregoing children, married Mary Harris, but by this union he had no children. He and his two wives are buried in Hepzibah Church cemetery in Chester county. In religious faith they were Presbyterians.

William Meharg, son of William the emigrant, was born in Chester county, Pa., Dec. 11, 1817, and died in Reading, Nov. 25, 1893. He was a drover and dealt extensively in cattle during the major portion of his active life. In politics he adhered strictly to the principles of the Republican party. He and his family were lifelong members of the Methodist Church. On Dec. 23, 1852, Mr. Meharg was married to Hope Pettit, born Oct. 19, 1819, died May 3, 1875, in the fifty-sixth year of her age. Their children were: George F.; William A., a druggist at Philadelphia; and John, deceased, who was connected with the Reading Times.

GEORGE F. MEHARG, son of William and Hope, is a representative citizen of Hamburg, Pa., member of the firm of Snell & Meharg, well known manufacturers of engines. He was born at Coatesville, Chester Co., Pa., Oct. 6, 1853, attended the public schools of his native village, and later studied at the Parkesburg Academy. He has a good practical education, and is a student of the times. He learned the machinist's trade in the Scott Foundry and Machine Shops, at Reading, where he was employed for a period of four years and for one year he was in the employ of the Heckdorn & Wilhelm Machine Shops at Reading. In 1880 Mr. Meharg entered into partnership with his brother-in-law, John H. Snell, under the firm name of Snell & Meharg. They commenced business in Reading, where they operated a machine shop with success until 1889, when their entire plant was moved to Hamburg, at which point they had previously erected a substantial brick building 200x40 feet. Here they manufacture a superior grade of vertical and horizontal steam engines that find a ready domestic and foreign market. The firm suffered a severe loss in 1894, when the plant was destroyed by fire. The old structure was immediately rebuilt, with two wing additions, and now the firm of Snell & Meharg have one of the finest and most complete, as well as best located, plants in the State of Pennsylvania. They employ about fifty men and manufacture upward of five hundred engines annually. Mr. Meharg has charge of the clerical and financial end of the business, while his business associate attends to the mechanical details.

Mr. Meharg is secretary and treasurer of the Hamburg Electric Light Company, which he and his brother-in-law, Mr. Snell, were instrumental in organizing in 1892. Since 1904 he has been vice-president of the Hamburg Savings Bank; and he is president of the Windsor Water Company, succeeding Peter D. Wanner, of Reading. He is a member of the Board of Trade of Hamburg, and is interested in every movement tending to advance the town of his adoption, and the welfare of its people. He is a successful business man, held in high esteem by his fellow-citizens.

In politics Mr. Meharg is a strong Republican, taking an active interest in the welfare of his party. He is a member of the Royal Arcanum at Hamburg, and of Mt. Penn Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Reading.

Mr. Meharg was married Feb. 1, 1877, to Sallie A. Snell, daughter of Jacob Snell, and to this union was born a son, John S., who was educated in the Hamburg high school and later in Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, and is now associated with his father in business. Mr. Meharg and his family reside in a handsome brick residence which he erected in 1904 on the main street of the beautiful borough of Hamburg.

GEORGE M. SPUHLER, one of the well known residents and influential citizens of Lower Alsace township, Berks Co., Pa., was born near Harrisburg, Dauphin county, Jan. 12, 1846, son of Joseph and Mary (Cook) Spuhler.

Gregory Spuhler, the grandfather of George M., was a native of Switzerland, where he died at the advanced age of ninety years, the father of children as follows: Xavier, who married a Miss Willy, and resided in Alsace township, where both died (no issue); Joseph; Frederick, who died in Camden, N. J.; John, who resided in Pottsville, Schuylkill county, and left one child, John; Margaretta, who married a Mr. Fisher, a boat builder of Reading, and had four children, all deceased.

Joseph Spuhler, father of George M., was born in Switzerland in 1816, and there learned the carpenter's trade. He emigrated to America in 1836, and was here married to Miss Mary Cook, by whom he had the following children: George M.; John M., who married Francesco Flamm, and has had six children, Rose, Frank and Emma, (all three deceased) and Joseph, Edward and Jennie (living); Henry, a resident of Reading, who married Miss Kate Knapp, and has a large family of children; Elizabeth, who married Thomas Cronan and resided in Reading, where both died; Louisa, who married William Oberlin, in business at Reading; and Catherine (Kate), who died when in her sixteenth year.

George M. Spuhler was educated in the public schools of his native district and early learned the trade of blacksmith, which he followed for a number of years in Berks and Schuylkill counties. He was married (first) to Lina Neuberger, who bore him one son, Frank, now living in California. He married (second) Mary Drake, by whom he has had five children: Andrew, Augustus, Peter and George, all single and at home; and Theresa, deceased. The family are members of the Catholic Church.

REESER. The Reeser family is an old one in Berks county. There are several different branches, and the name is variously spelled, Reeser and Riesser being the most common forms. As early as 1759 John Reeser was a tax-payer in Maiden-creek township. In that year he paid a tax of £26, and he was one of the largest land-owners in that district. He was the ancestor of William D. Reeser of the Yellow House. In 1765 John Reeser bought land from Samuel Lightfood, located in Maiden-creek township. Lightfood was a Quaker. In 1768 John Reeser bought land from James Hutton, and in 1769 from Thomas Lee, both Lee and Hutton being Quakers of Maiden-creek township, which was largely settled by Friends. In 1785 Daniel Reeser bought land in Maiden-creek for which he paid £100 of gold and silver money. In 1805 Henry Reeser bought land and located in Maiden-creek township. In 1809 Jacob Reeser bought land from Henry Reeser, of Maiden-creek township. This Jacob was probably the great-grandfather of William D. Reeser, of Amity township.

Jacob Reeser was a farmer in Maiden-creek township and owned one of the farms on which the Reading Cement Company is now located, at Molltown. He is buried at St. Peter's Reformed Church. His children were: Jacob, who lived in Maiden-creek township, near Molltown; William, who lived on an adjoining farm; Abraham, who lived in Ontelaunee township; Isaac; Katie, and Elizabeth.

Isaac Reeser was a native of Maiden-creek township, born Feb. 6, 1809, and died at Fleetwood, where he is buried, in February, 1878, when aged sixty-eight years. He was a farmer and lived on his property the greater part of his life. He beloged to the Reformed Church. His wife was Lydia Hoch, daughter of David and —— (Gerst) Hoch, born March 28, 1808, died in Jan., 1886, in her seventy-eighth year. They had these children: Hannah, deceased, who married Benneville Hoch, of Fleetwood; Jacob H., of Reading; Caroline, deceased, who married Daniel Everhart, now of Colebrookdale township; Lydia, deceased, who married Monroe Eby, of Reading; Jarius H.; Amanda, married to James Koch, of Reading; and Simarias of Reading.

Jarius H. Reeser, a prosperous farmer in Oley township, was born in Maiden-creek township, Feb. 17, 1847. He was reared upon the farm, and when seventeen learned the painter's trade, which he followed in Oley and Richmond townships. In 1868 he began farming in Earl township, where he lived four years, and then came to Oley township, settling on the Griesemer farm near Griesemer's mill. There he continued farming for five years more, and then moved back to Earl township and farmed for two years. Back he went to Oley and farmed the Solomon DeTurk farm near the Oley Churches. In 1887 he moved to the Col. Weaver farm, in Amity township, and there lived for seven years, in 1894 purchasing the Daniel Guldin farm, located in Oley township near the Yellow House. This fine farm consists of thirty-one acres, which he has greatly improved, making it into a very fine piece of property. He also owns a good farm of 127 acres in Amity township, near Yellow House, which he has rented. It has excellent spring water and is well situated.

Mr. Reeser is a Democrat, and has taken an active part in politics. From 1891 to 1893 he was county commissioner. During his administration a number of bridges were built, among them being the Schuylkill avenue and Cross Keys. The court-house was also improved. He was supervisor of Oley for two years, and has always done what he believed to be his duty. He and his family are members of the Oley Reformed Church.

In 1869 Mr. Reeser was married to Barbara Drumheller, a daughter of the late David and Sarah (Lease) Drumheller, of Oley township, and they had children as follows. Jacob D., a farmer of Oley township, married Amelia Bachman, and they have five children, Hilma, Viola, Amy, J. Warren and Paul; William D. and Sallie D. are unmarried and at home.

William D. Reeser, a prominent citizen of Berks county, residing at Yellow House, in Amity township, was born in Oley township Sept. 17, 1871. He was reared to farm life and was educated in the public schools of his district and in the Amityville Seminary. At the age of twenty years he became a clerk in the Yellow House creamery and held the position a year, and in 1892 became clerk in the county commissioner's office, where he proved so useful that he was retained there for nine years. Later he served as docket clerk in the county controller's office for two years under the administration of John F. Ancona. During most of the years Mr. Reeser served the county in clerical capacities he conducted the general store at Yellow House. He embarked in this mercantile venture in 1895, and has since continued in it, meeting with marked success.

Mr. Reeser has been an active Democrat and has been the leader in lower Berks county since 1895. He has served his township of Amity as delegate to county conventions during those years eight times. He was State delegate three times, and was State delegate when William H. Berry was nominated for State treasurer; Mr. Berry was subsequently elected, being the first Democratic State treasurer in a quarter of a century. Fraternally Mr. Reeser is a charter member of Wohlink Tribe, No. 179, Improved Order of Red Men, of Yellow House; of Oley Lodge, No. 218, I. O. O. F., of Reading, and of Mt. Penn Castle, No. 52, K. G. E., of Reading. He is a member of the Oley Reformed Church, of which he is a deacon and the secretary of the consistory, having held the latter office since 1903. He was active in Sunday school work in earlier life.

On June 6, 1895, Mr. Reeser was married to Mary M. Body, a daughter of Augustus G. Body, of Shillington, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Reeser is a prosperous merchant, carrying a full line of general merchandise, and enjoys the patronage of a large trade gathered from the surrounding district, Yellow House being in the center of a rich and populous community. Since 1895 he has been assistant postmaster at Yellow House. In addition to his other interests Mr. Reeser was for three years a director of the Sinking Spring Fire Insurance Company, an old-established concern of Berks county.

HENRY T. KACHEL, a highly esteemed resident and old-time school teacher of Berks county, now resides near Knauer's in Brecknock township, where he was born Jan. 17, 1850, son of Reuben and Cassia (Trostle) Kachel.

Reuben Kachel was born in 1820 in Brecknock township, where he became one of the early school teachers; his salary was but twenty dollars per month. He also engaged in agricultural pursuits, and was the tenant on the Trostle farm at the time of his death, in 1852. Mr. Kachel married Cassia Trostle, daughter of Henry and Elizabeth (Griffith) Trostle, and two children were born to this union: Henry T. and Reuben Samuel, the latter a school director of Spring township, who married Rebecca Fisher and has five children, Milton, Wellington, Paul, Estella and Viola.

Henry T. Kachel was reared on his grandfather Henry Trostle's farm, his father having died when he was about two years old, and he worked on the farm and at coopering until he began his carcer as a school teacher, in Cumru township in 1871. Mr. Kachel was first licensed to teach by the late Prof. D. B. Brunner, who was then county superintendent, and after teaching two terms in Cumru township he taught in Brecknock township, where he continued his profession for sixteen terms. He was one of the old-time schoolmasters, and during the early days experienced all the trials of the pioneer educator, when the children were ill supplied with books and the public school system but poorly organized. In 1877 he located on his present property, which consists of three tracts, two at Knauer's of eighteen acres each, and one of thirty-five acres in the township. He was a storekeeper and gauger at Mount Etna, Berks county, during President Cleveland's administration, was committeeman of his township for two years, and was a delegate to a number of county conventions, including that which nominated Prof. D. B. Brunner for Congress, and that which renominated Judge Ermentrout for the President Judgeship of Berks county. He was also auditor, and is at present serving his second term as school director, having been president of the board for two years. He and his family are members of Allegheny Union Church, he being of the Reformed and his wife of the Lutheran congregation; he was deacon for eight years and associate treasurer for a long period; was for many years superintendent and assistant superintendent of the Sunday-school; the whole family are members of the choir, and his daughter is the present church organist.

In 1876 Mr. Kachel was married to Emma F. Slouch, daughter of George and Elizabeth (Seyfrit) Slouch, farming people of Brecknock township, and one daughter was born to this union, Carrie E., who is unmarried and resides at home.

George Trostle, Mr. Kachel's great-great-grandfather on his mother's side, was born in Brecknock townshin Feb. 17, 1730. There is still in existence an old deed, bearing date 1749, showing that he got a patent for the Trostle homestead. How long he lived there before that time may be only conjectured. He married Rosina Seidabenner, and they became the parents of the following children: Heinrich, John, George, Jacob, William, Abraham, Margaret (wife of Jacob Merkle) and Elizabeth (wife of David Miller). Of these, Abraham was a private in Capt. Sebastian Miller's Company, Col. Joseph Hiester's Battalion, in the Revolution, May 31, 1781. He settled in Lancaster county. Jacob and George were also in Lancaster county. John married and lived in Brecknock township, but had no children. He was a blacksmith, engaged for the most part in making chains.

Mr. Henry T. Kachel has found parts of an old deed showing that a patent was applied for George Trostle's (the great-great-grandfather's) farm in 1749, and that this property was sold, the deed, dated June 29, 1805, showing that all signed over the homestead to Heinrich; the document is torn, but the signatures of all the children are visible. George Trostle died Sept. 11, 1804.

Heinrich Trostle, son of George, was a blacksmith by trade, and did a great deal of work for the Indians, with whom he was on the friendliest terms, many stories of his association with the Red men being familiar to the older members of the family. He had two teams on the road hauling goods from Philadelphia to Pittsburg. His will was probated in 1824. He married Elizabeth Sweikhart, and they had children: Henry (2), to whom the homestead was bequeathed; John, who was survived by his wife Catharine (who was executrix of his will made Jan. 18, 1857, and probated Feb. 23, 1857) and children, Levina, Sarah, Caroline and Wallace; Barbara, born Jan. 6, 1786, who married Benjamin Remp, and died March 15, 1857; Peggy, who married George Fritz; and Elizabeth, who became the wife of Isaac Griffith.

Henry Trostle (2), born Jan. 15, 1794, died Aug. 15, 1875, and is buried in the cemetery of the Allegheny Church, of which he was a stanch member. He married Elizabeth Griffith, and their children were: Benjamin, Isaac, Henry (3), John, Eliza, Katie, Cassia and Susan (who married Louis Eckenroth and had four sons and four daughters), of whom Benjamin, Isaac, Eliza and Katie died unmarried. In about 1800, when Henry Trostle was six years of age, he witnessed the parting of the Indians and his father, the Indians informing the latter that they were going on the warpath, and proving their words by beginning to murder when only a short distance away. At the age of thirteen young Henry made his first trip to Pittsburg with his father's team. It had not been intended that the lad should make the entire trip, but to drive only until he could find some one to take the team. This was not to the young man's liking, however, and he made the long drive without looking for anyone to do the work. This was the beginning of this work for him, and he drove his father's teams until he was twenty-one years of age. He then started out for himself and made many long and ofttimes dangerous trips. Later he was engaged in hauling charcoal to Mt. Penn Furnace for a number of years. When not engaged with his teams he devoted himself to farming—doing the work the other boys did while he was absent. His wife Elizabeth died in 1842, and from that time until 1848 his household was looked after by his daughter Cassia. In the latter year she wedded Reuben Kachel, who rented the farm until 1852, when he died. Then again Cassia became her father's housekeeper, continuing until he died, in 1875.

ADAM DECHERT. Among the representative citizens of Berks county none was more worthy of mention in this volume than Adam Dechert, late a retired citizen of Sinking Spring, who for many years was prominent in business and religious circles in Spring township. Mr. Dechert was born Aug. 23, 1823, in Lower Heidelberg township, son of Daniel and Maria Magdalena (Lerch) Dechert.

Records prove that the first of this family to come to America was Peter Dechert, who emigrated from Rotterdam to Pennsylvania in 1752. He settled in Cumru township, Berks county, where he owned a farm of 185 acres, and in the cultivation of this land he was engaged until his death in 1784. He became the owner of the hotel at Sinking Spring, Sept. 26, 1768. On July 19, 1784, his widow, Elizabeth, applied for an order of sale to dispose of certain real estate. In a later petition the children named are John, William, Jacob, Peter, Michael, Daniel and the petitioner, George. Peter Dechert, the emigrant, was a captain in the Revolutionary war from Jan. 5, 1776, to Feb. 3, 1777. His company, which was raised in the vicinity of Reading, was in active service in New York, and on Nov. 16, 1776, was captured by Howe's army.

John Dechert, son of Capt. Peter, was a farmer in the western section of Berks county. He married Deborah Davis, daughter of James Davis. They had five children, namely: (1) Elijah was a prominent member of the Reading Bar and on account of ill health moved in 1852 to Philadelphia, where he died in 1854. He married Mary Williams Porter, and their son, Henry Martyn, is well known in Berks county and also in Philadelphia, where he resides. (2) Johan, born May 5, 1790, died Dec. 5, 1864, aged seventy-four years, seven months. He married Maria Strunk, born Feb. 24, 1793, died Oct. 14, 1881, aged eighty-eight years, seven months, twenty days. (3) Daniel is mentioned below. (4) Hannah, born June 4, 1795, died Aug. 18, 1815. (5) Samuel settled in Miamisburg, Ohio, and was engaged in the mercantile business. He married and had two children, George L., and Clara (who married Isaac Kay, M. D.), who both reside at Springfield, Ohio.

Daniel Dechert, father of Adam, born in Berks county June 4, 1793, died Sept. 17, 1884, aged ninety-one years, three months, thirteen days, and is buried in the family lot at Sinking Spring. He was a Lutheran in religious belief. He was a carpenter by trade, but in middle life he engaged in agricultural pursuits in Lower Heidelberg, his farm passing into the possession of his son, Adam. His wife, Maria Magdalena (Lerch), was born Feb. 23, 1791, daughter of John Lerch, of Heidelberg, and died Sept. 30, 1872, aged eighty-one years, seven months, seven days. Four children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Dechert, as follows: Adam is mentioned below; Ellen, born Jan. 11, 1826, married Benjamin B. Reber, and died March 7, 1895, aged sixty-nine years, one month, twenty-seven days; Angelina married Adam Althouse; James, born Sept. 1, 1832, died March 18, 1900, aged sixty-seven years, six months, seventeen days.

Adam Dechert was educated in the old German pay schools of his day, when the Psalter and the New Testament were the text-books, and the school term consisted of from two to three months. He received an ordinary education in German, and afterward became fairly conversant with the English language and kept well posted on the topics of the day; he read the Reading Eagle continuously from 1862 until his death, Oct. 3, 1907. Though advanced in years, Mr. Dechert was well preserved in body and mind. He was brought up to farm work, and remained at home with his parents until twenty-four years of age, when he engaged in agricultural pursuits on his own account in Heidelberg township, continuing there until locating in Sinking Spring in 1859. He purchased the old John Heffner stand, which included the present Sinking Spring hotel and twenty-eight acres of land, but this he sold after three and one-half years to Hertz & Rathman, also disposing of some of the land. In 1863 he erected his late residence near the toll-gate, where he afterward made his home. After selling the hotel property Mr. Dechert engaged in farming, but after 1895 he lived in retirement. In politics he was a Democrat, but he never cared for public office. For ten years he was manager of the Berks and Dauphin turnpike from Reading to above Sinking Spring, a distance of five miles, serving capably and faithfully in this position. After 1860 he was treasurer of the Sinking Spring cemetery, rendering good service until his death. He was one of the building committee of the two Sinking Spring churches, and was a liberal contributor to both, giving $2,600 toward the building of St. John's Lutheran church, in which he was deacon and elder. His remains rest in the family lot at Sinking Spring, where are also interred those of his wife and brother. He purchased an acre of ground for the Lutheran congregation at Sinking Spring, this plot to be used for burial purposes for the poor who were unable to buy lots. This he presented to the congregation free of all costs, as an addition to their new cemetery.

Mr. Dechert lived a clean, honest and upright life, and was a useful man in his community. He was a good manager, and at his death his estate was valued at upward of $50,000, including among other property the old homestead in Lower Heidelberg, of 182 acres, and an adjoining farm of 132 acres.

In 1851 Mr. Dechert was married to Maria Weitzel, born March 31, 1819, who died Oct. 11, 1891, aged seventy-two years, six months, eleven days. They reared as their own daughter a niece, Maria Weitzel, who married Frank Hertz, and had a daughter, Sallie R. On Oct. 6, 1894, Sallie R. Hertz married Elmer F. Miller, who came to Adam Dechert's family when ten years of age and was in his family for twenty-eight years, up to the time of his death. Mr. and Mrs. Miller have two sons, Adam E. and Mahlon M. They resided with Mr. Dechert, taking the best of care of him in his later years, and at his death they were bequested the home at Sinking Spring.

JOHN H. MILLER, proprietor of "Miller's Hotel," at Wernersville, and director of the Union Bank at Womelsdorf and of the Wernersville National Bank, at Wernersville, was an organizer of both these banks, and he is considered one of the most progressive and public-spirited citizens in this section of Berks county. He was born in Lower Heidelberg township, July 1, 1849, son of Abraham and Ellen (Hain) Miller, and grandson of Henry and Christina (Ruth) Miller and of John Hain.

Henry Miller, the grandfather, was a farmer in Lower Heidelberg for many years. He was twice married, his first wife being Christina Ruth, and his second Isabella Hoyer. By the first union there were four children, namely: Hannah married John Evans; Kate married Adam Leiss; Polly married Richard Klopp and (second) Addison Eyrich; Abraham married Ellen Hain.

Abraham Miller, born in 1818, died in 1897, aged seventy-nine years. He occupied himself with farming all his life. His wife, Ellen Hain, was a daughter of John Hain, of Lower Heidelberg, one of the very prominent men of that vicinity. They were the parents of nine children: Catharine married Michael Newman; Sarah married Isaac Hain; Hannah became the wife of Sebastian Miller, of Illinois; Mary married Daniel Glass; Elizabeth wedded John L. Bowman; Sebastian moved to Illinois in his younger days and there married; John H. married Sarah A. Kintzer; two died young.

John H. Miller received his early education in the public schools, later attending the Millersville Normal School and the Frederick College. After leaving school he engaged in farming for six years, and then located in Wernersville, where he made his headquarters while carrying on butchering among the farmers of the neighboring townships, also assisting them during the summers in harvesting for eight years. For two years he farmed on his own account. In 1888 he purchased the Wernersville hotel property, and began conducting a public house, which he has since carried on in a very successful manner. The old building had been erected by his grandfather, John Hain, in 1857, when the Lebanon Valley railroad was opened up. In 1895 on the lot adjoining Mr. Miller put up the fine four-story brick hotel, with all modern improvements, now known as "Miller's Hotel," which is recognized as one of the best conducted hotels in the county. It is a very popular stand during the whole year and especially in the summer, when many travelers register there, all speaking in high terms of the management. Mr. Miller has also erected four of the most handsome houses in Wernersville, with all the latest improvements.

Mr. Miller is not only very enterprising in his own affairs but also in those concerning the public welfare. He has been connected with a number of important improvements at Wernersville and many others outside of town. He encouraged the establishment of a waterworks system by supplying the people with superior spring water from the South mountain, and he was one of the first persons to suggest the organizing of a national bank there, and from their organization he has been a director of both these local institutions. He also gave his financial assistance to organize the Union bank at Womelsdorf, in 1903, and has served as its director. For ten years he gave his fellow-citizens most efficient service as township treasurer.

In 1871 Mr. Miller was married to Sarah A. Kintzer, daughter of Adam Kintzer, of Marion township. Ten children blessed this union, as follows: J. Adam, who married Eura Derr; Annie, wife of Dr. Leonard Hain; Elizabeth, who married Henry Fitler; Eva; Frederick; George; Nora, and three who died in infancy.

EDWARD H. CHRISTIAN, a substantial citizen of Mount Penn, superintendent of erection for the monument manufacturing firm of P. F. Eisenbrown Sons & Co., was born March 12, 1859, near Neversink Station, Exeter township, Berks county, son of Edward D. and Catherine (Hoffmaster) Christian.

John Christian, his grandfather, was born in 1786 in Switzerland, and came to this country when seventeen years of age, first locating in Reading, where he married a Miss Deem. He was a distiller by trade, and this vocation he followed for some years in Reading, but later purchased a farm in Exeter township, where he died at the age of eighty-five years. He was a member of the Lutheran Church of Schwartzwald. He was the father of three children: Henry, a contractor on the erection of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, and later superintendent of the company's wharves at Port Richmond, Philadelphia, married Mary Esterly, and died in the company's service; Edward D. is mentioned below; John, a railroad contractor in the erection of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, and later appointed roadmaster of the Lebanon Valley division, married Mary Ann Goodhart.

Edward D. Christian was born March 12, 1817, in Reading, Pa., and there spent his boyhood, receiving his education in the public schools, which he left at the age of sixteen years. He then went to the Hertzog mill, and after serving his apprenticeship to the business went to the mill at Antietam Lake, in Alsace township, operating there several years. Mr. Christian then turned his attention to farming, and for the next forty-one years carried on operations on the old homestead in Exeter township, which he purchased of the estate after his father's death, the property consisting of forty acres. He was a Democrat in politics, and was very active in the ranks of his party, holding numerous positions of honor and trust, among them those of school director and supervisor of his township. He was also a director in the Allenbaugh Cemetery Association. Being a man of keen judgment and knowledge of law, he was as a consequence entrusted with the settlement of many estates. He was a member of the I. O. O. F. and of the Encampment at Reading. Mr. Christian lived for the last twenty or twenty-one years of his life at No. 1216 Chestnut street, Reading, where he died Oct. 6, 1901. He was married to Catherine Hoffmaster, born Feb. 12, 1824, who died Feb. 19, 1907, and to them were born these children: Ellen, the widow of George Esterly, lives at Reading; Jacob H., a machinist with the Philadelphia & Reading Company, Reading, married Emma Haas; Daniel, superintendent of the Neversink Mountain railroad, who was killed by an electric shock, married Catherine Houck; Edward H. is mentioned below; Solomon, a hardware merchant of Reading, married Ella Althouse.

Edward H. Christian was educated in the public schools of Exeter township, Berks county, and at the age of fifteen years went to Shamokin, Pa., and engaged in railroad work as a section hand. He continued thus until nineteen years old, when he was promoted to section foreman on the Philadelphia & Reading line, and was employed in that capacity for four or five years. He was then given charge of a gang of twenty-five men on construction work during the summer months and in the winter seasons returned to the section, continuing at this line of work until 1890, when he returned to Berks county and took charge of a section in Reading for some eighteen months. He then retired from railroad work, and entered the employ of P. F. Eisenbrown Sons & Co., the monument manufacturers, as an all-round man. During recent years he has been superintendent of erection for this company, a line of work which necessitates his traveling over the entire United States, in the setting of valuable shafts. Fraternally Mr. Christian is connected with the P. O. S. of A., in which order he is very popular. He and Mrs. Christian are consistent members of the Lutheran Church. In 1906 they erected a fine residence on Twenty-third street, in Mount Penn, which has been their home ever since, and in which community they have a large social circle.

On June 16, 1881, Mr. Christian was married to Miss Catherine Holpp, of Shamokin (born at Minersville), daughter of Daniel and Mary Holpp, natives of Baden, Germany. She died Feb. 6, 1885, leaving two children, one of whom, the infant son George L., followed her to the grave a few days later. The eldest, Willard Arthur, born Aug. 23, 1883, is residing with his uncle, William E. Martz, of Shamokin, Pa., and is paymaster for the Penn Coal Company. The second marriage of Mr. Edward H. Christian, on Oct. 8, 1889, was to Miss Alice C. Eisenbrown, daughter of Penrose F. and Sarah S. (Smith) Eisenbrown, of Reading. Six children have been born to this union: Sarah May and Anna, deceased; George Edward; Penrose Frederick; John Franklin; and one who died in infancy.

SEIDEL FAMILY. (I) Ernst Sidel, the ancestor of a large and representative family of lower Berks county, was a native of Sweden, and crossed the ocean on the ship "St. Andrew Gally," which landed at Philadelphia Sept. 24, 1737. In 1752, when the country was still wild, and the year the county was organized, Ernst Sidel was already a tax-payer of Alsace township. In 1759 he paid a federal tax of £6 in Alsace township. Tradition states that he is buried at the long established Spies's Church, where some of his sons have tombstones erected to their memory in the old burial ground. There is some uncertainty as to the number of Ernst Sidel's children, but among them were: Frederick, Ludwig, Nicholas, Philip, Benjamin, and Jacob, who, perhaps, was the eldest. Concerning these the following information has been gathered:

Ludwig moved to ——— county, Pennsylvania.

Nicholas became an ironmaster of Berks county early in its history. In young manhood he resided in Alsace township, but later he removed to the vicinity of Seidelstown, now Gibraltar. He operated Yocums forges in Cumru township for some years.

Philip also moved to the vicinity of Gibraltar. His wife Elizabeth died in 1830. His will was dated Sept. 11, 1822, and was proved two years later. His children were: Jonathan; Benjamin; Nicholas; Henry, who died before 1822; Catherine, who married Samuel Gring; Susanna, who married Nicholas Yost; Elizabeth, who married Henry Thompson; and Mary, who married Daniel Yocom

Benjamin was associated with his father in the iron forge at Stony Creek.

Jacob was a tax-payer of Alsace township, in 1752. He had sons Jacob, Jr., and John. The line of John, from whom James H. Sidel is descended, spell the name without the "e," while those descended from Frederick (among them Benjamin H. Seidel) use the "e."

(II) Frederick Seidel, son of Ernst, was born in Alsace township, where he became a farmer and carpenter. He became the owner of over 100 acres. He is buried at Spies old burial ground. The maiden name of his wife was Keller, and they had these children: John, who lived in Ruscombmanor; Polly, who married Jacob Neutzel; Frederick, who lived in Alsace township; Betsy, who married a Mr. Miller; Henry; Jacob, of Alsace township, who resided on the present location of the reservoir; Nicholas, who never married (he lived with Jacob); and Catherine, who never married. All of these are now deceased.

(III) Henry Seidel, son of Frederick, was born in Alsace township. He farmed sixty acres which he owned. His wife was Judith Herb, daughter of John Herb, and their children were: Polly, who married George Heckman; Benjamin, of Oley; Susan, who married John Heckman; Frederick, of Alsace township; Harrison; Jonathan, who lives on the homestead; and Hettie, who married Isaac Masser (both are now deceased).

(IV) Harrison Seidel, son of Henry, and father of Benjamin H. Seidel, was born in Alsace township, Dec. 9, 1839, and until he was twenty-six years of age resided on his father's farm near Spies's Church. During this time he learned the wheelwright's and millwright's trades, and at the age of twenty-six he began working at mill building, erecting the Penn street paper mill in 1866. Having married the previous year, in 1865, he and his wife removed to West Reading, where they lived two years, in 1868 again moving, this time to Exeter, where they remained three years. They then went to Blandon, and after one year, in 1872, settled at their present home in Oley township, near Friedensburg, on a nine-acre tract, where in 1878 Mr. Seidel built the present residence; he had erected a barn there eighteen months before, but it was totally destroyed by fire on Jan. 27, 1877. Mr. Seidel has a wheelwright and millwright shop that he built all by himself in 1886, which year was known as the locust year. He is a skilled mechanic and is kept busy with orders.

In politics Mr. Seidel is a Democrat, and he and his family are members of Spies's Church, which he served as a member of the building committee when the new church was erected, in 1887.

In 1865 Mr. Seidel was married to Adaline Snyder, a daughter of Benjamin Snyder. Children as follows have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Seidel: Benjamin H.; Ellen, who married Elmer Schearer; Jefferson, of Ruscombmanor; Frederick, of West Reading; Annie, who died in childhood; Harry, who died in infancy; a son who died in infancy unnamed; and Ida, who married William O. Mayer, of Friedensburg.

(V) Benjamin H. Seidel, coach-maker and councilman of West Reading borough, was born in Spring township April 19, 1866. He obtained his early education under his parents and in the district schools, and later attended the Oley Academy under Prof. John Dengler. From the time he was eleven until 1890 Mr. Seidel worked on the farm, and then for thirteen years lived with Henry Faust of Spring township, still farming. In 1890 he began learning coach-making under Frank R. Himmelberger, of West Reading, in whose employ he has continued ever since. During his long term of service the relations existing between Mr. Seidel and his employer have been of the most pleasant and the large trade enjoyed by the establishment is in great measure due to Mr. Seidel's efforts. He is now in full charge of the wood-working department of the concern, having a number of men under him.

In political sentiment Mr. Seidel is a strong Democrat.

When the town of West Reading was incorporated he was honored by being elected to a seat in the first council of the borough, which office he still holds. He is also a member of the West Reading Fire Company, and is now its capable president, discharging his duties in such a manner as to win the confidence and approval of all the residents of the community, who feel that their property is safely protected under his rule. Fraternally he is a member of the K. G. E. Castle No. 302, and the P. O. S. of A. Camp No. 676, both of Reading, and he is a trustee of the first named order. Mr. Seidel is a member of St. James Reformed Church and since 1901 has acted as one of its deacons.

On Aug. 27, 1887, Mr. Seidel was married to Ida Fisher, born July 26, 1866, a daughter of William and Matilda (Fisher) Fisher. Mr. and Mrs. Seidel have had children as follows: Warren Arthur, who died in infancy; Harry A., who is a pattern-maker; Claud B.; Earl William and Harold Irvin, who died in infancy; and Edna Matilda.

JAMES HENRY SIDEL, a collector for the Metropolitan Gas Company of Reading, comes of another branch of the family, tracing his lineage back to John, son of Jacob, who was a son of Ernst Sidel, the common ancestor of the family.

(III) John Sidel, his grandfather, was born in the vicinity of Gibraltar, which once bore the family name, in Berks county, and he died in Brooklyn, N. Y. During the gold craze of 1849, he and his two sons left home for the Pacific coast, but en route he changed his mind, sold his ticket and returned to Brooklyn, where he had been a real estate dealer, and where he owned considerable property. His children were: Elhanner; David, who was in business with a brother; Theophilus, who has an extensive cattle business in California; and Elizabeth, who died unmarried at New Lebanon, N. Y., a Quakeress.

(IV) Elhanner Sidel, father of James Henry Sidel, was born July 30, 1815, and died Dec. 27, 1896. He was a wheelwright by trade and followed this calling for some years, but he was in the service of the Reading Railway Company for many years. For some time prior to his death he lived at home, retired from active work. He is buried in the Charles Evans cemetery. Elhanner Sidel was married to Matilda Kendall, born Sept. 29, 1823, died Aug. 14, 1907, aged eighty-three years, ten months, sixteen days. She was a daugher of John and Elizabeth Kendall. They had one son, James Henry.

(V) James Henry Sidel was born in Reading April 16, 1845, and after completing the common school course attended high school for one year. When seventeen years old he learned the trade of machinist in the Philadelphia & Reading shops, and followed his trade at Lancaster, and also at Reading for several years. After this he was timekeeper for the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad for eighteen years. In 1892 he entered the employ of the Metropolitan Gas Company, and is now one of its most trusted collectors. Since 1886 Mr. Sidel has resided at No. 927 Oley street, Reading.

In 1872 Mr. Sidel married Miss Amanda C. Greinther, a daughter of Gustavas Greinther. They have one son, Harry D., a clerk at Reading. Mr. and Mrs. Sidel are members of Trinity Lutheran Church. Fraternally he is a member of the F. & A. M., Lodge No. 435, of Reading and K. G. E. Castle No. 159, also of Reading.

This old and honored family has many other branches, and it would be interesting to follow the history of each, for its representatives are numbered among the sterling, progressive men and women of the several communities in which they are to be found. The good, honest traits of character which belonged to Ernst Sidel, the Swedish ancestor, have come down to those who bear his name, and they may all be proud of him who made so good a record in the early history of Berks county.

WALTER M. RAUBENHOLD, a foremost citizen of Hamburg, who for over twenty years has been engaged in the hardware business at that place, was born May 3, 1860, in Greenwich township, Berks county, on his grandfather's plantation, son of William Raubenhold.

Adam Raubenhold, great-grandfather of Walter M. Raubenhold, was of Brunswick township, Schuylkill Co., Pa., where he was engaged in farming. He was the father of three sons and two daughters, namely: (1) Peter; (2) William, who had two sons, Adam and George; (3) Jonathan (Jonas), who had three children, Hiram, William and a daughter; (4) Mrs. George Mengel; and (5) Mrs. Ketner.

Peter Raubenhold, son of Adam and grandfather of Walter M., was born Aug. 19, 1801, and died Oct. 16, 1883. He married Maria Sunday, born Dec. 23, 1804, died July 12, 1893, in the eighty-ninth year of her age, and to them were born five children, as follows: Joseph, who married Elizabeth Dreibelbis, and had two sons, Peter and George; Catherine, who married Benneville Stoyer; George, who married a Miss Luckenbill, and had three sons, Alfred, Albert and William; Polly, who became the wife of Daniel Smith; and William.

William Raubenhold, son of Peter, was of Windsor township, born there in 1835. He was reared to agricultural pursuits, which he followed until his decease in 1871. He married Hannah Merkel, born Oct. 9, 1839, daughter of John and Esther Merkel; she died April 16, 1878, aged thirty-eight years, six months, seven days. To this union were born three children: Walter M.; Thomas, who married Mary Schaeffer; and Mary, who died young.

Walter M. Raubenhold was educated in the public schools of Windsor township and at Hamburg, to which place his mother had removed on the death of the father, in 1871. When sixteen years of age he entered the store of James L. Merkel, as a clerk, and there continued until 1884, attending school at Collegeville in the meantime, for the purpose of acquiring a business education. Then he opened a general hardware store for himself at Hamburg, and has continued in the same business in the same building up to the present time, a period of more than twenty-four years.

Mr. Raubenhold, having become thoroughly interested in the cause of education, was elected a school director from the south ward for four consecutive terms, covering a period of twelve years, serving as secretary and treasurer for six years, and while on the board he was one of the building committee which superintended the erection of the handsome and commodious public school building on North Third street, in 1893. He was an active and prominent member of St. John's Lutheran Church when the congregation determined to rebuild immediately the edifice which had been destroyed by fire on April 4th, 1898, and he was selected as one of the building committee. The beautiful edifice whose erection this committee superintended reflects in a high degree their taste, ability and enterprise. When the citizens of Hamburg were making arrangements for the erection of a public library, in 1903, Mr. Raubenhold, on account of his experience, was placed on the building committee, and the superior and attractive structure which the committee erected is a credit to every citizen of Hamburg borough, as well as to the committee itself. Mr. Raubenhold, upon the expiration of his term, was re-elected to office, becoming treasurer of the public library. He again showed his ability when the subject of supplying Hamburg with water arose as a public question. He took an active part in its discussion, and on the organization of the company was elected a director, a position he has held to the present time, having also acted as treasurer of the company for eight years.

In 1880 Mr. Raubenhold was married to Catherine Miller, daughter of David G. Miller, of Hamburg, and two sons have been born to this union, Franklin and William.

CHARLES W. UNGER, a general merchant of Stouchsburg, Berks county, was born Aug. 27, 1861, on the Unger homestead near Shoemakersville, in Perry township. We give herewith something of the early history of the family in this country.

(I) Christian Unger, the first of the name in America, emigrated in the ship "Edinburgh," landing at Philadelphia Sept. 19, 1752. In 1756 he was a taxable resident of Greenwich township Berks county. He had these children: Michael, who was a taxable in Greenwich township in 1759; John, who settled in the vicinity of Shamokin, Pa.; Herman; one son (name unknown) who settled in Maryland; Susanna, who married John Schappel; Elizabeth, who married George Heffley; and Mrs. Christian Reeser.

(II) Herman Unger was born in Greenwich township. He married Elizabeth Keim, and they had the following children: Daniel, who settled in Windsor township; Samuel, who also settled in Windsor township; Jacob, who settled in Wabash county, Ind.; Abraham, who settled in Sandusky county, Ohio; Christina, who married John Hollenbach; and Mrs. Coleman.

(III) Daniel Unger, son of Herman, married Elizabeth Smith, and their only son was Isaac Unger, late of Windsor township.

(IV) Isaac Unger was born Jan. 22, 1829, and died Mar. 16, 1884. On Nov. 18, 1849, he married Syria Weidman, who was born in Windsor township April 17, 1828, and died March 28, 1907. After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Unger resided on his farm, about one mile east of Shoemakersville, which consisted of 210 acres, and was considered one of the best farms in Perry township. Here they prospered and reared their family. Mr. Unger left his widow and children a large estate. He never held any political office, but was active in the church, for several terms serving as one of the trustees of the Lutheran congregation at Shoemakersville. He and his wife joined the Lutheran Church in 1850. They were the parents of the following children: John married Ella Dieter, and they have had three children, Gertrude and Grace, and one whose name is not known; Sarah died at the age of four years; Sylvester died at the age of two years; Catherine, who married Newton Moyer, died in 1900, aged forty-four years (she had four children, among them Ralph Abner); Laura is the wife of Franklin W. Seidel, M. D., a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School and of the medical department of the University of Michigan, who practices his profession in Chester, Pa., and has two children, Roy and May; Annie, who married David Wolf, was a teacher and a highly accomplished woman, and died in 1902, aged thirty-nine years (she had four children, Ramon, Pearl, George and Charles); Charles W. married Sallie Koenig and Anna M. Oschman; George W., a prosperous business man and manufacturer of Boyertown, married Legora Deppen, daughter of Dr. D. D. Deppen, of Bernville, and has the following children, Earl, Laura, John and Daniel.

(V) Charles W. Unger passed his boyhood days upon the farm, and did farm work until he was twenty years old. He then became a clerk in the general store of J. W. Kerchner, at Lenhartsville, Berks county, where he remained one year. The next three years he was employed in J. B. Miller's general store at Bernville, after which he worked two years for Charles A. Mory, at Boyertown, in the dry goods and notions store. Mr. Mory then recommended him to L. & W. C. Beecher of Pottstown, in whose employ he remained four years, following with a year's experience in the large establishment of Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart, at Reading. Since leaving their employ Mr. Unger has been in business for himself at Stouchsburg, where he settled Oct. 15, 1893. He has carried on a general mercantile and hardware trade, and has found the venture profitable. During his first three years in Stouchsburg Mr. Unger was located in the old Fisher & Yocum building, in the eastern end of the town, and when the place was sold he erected in 1896 his present store, a frame building 25 x 60 feet in dimensions, three stories high, which has become one of the well-known business places of the town. Mr. Unger carries a full line of general merchandise, and he enjoys a high reputation for honesty and square dealing, especially among the country people, commanding a large share of their patronage. His annual business often amounts to more than $10,000. Two people are kept constantly busy in the store, which is justly popular in Stouchsburg.

Mr. Unger was married while a resident of Reading to Miss Sallie Koenig, daughter of John and Sydney (Kerchner) Koenig, and they had one son, John Leroy, born Nov. 7, 1894. Mrs. Unger died Oct. 5, 1906, at the age of forty-one years, nine months, twelve days, and sleeps her last sleep in the family lot in the Charles Evans cemetery. On June 11, 1908, Mr. Unger married (second) Anna Margurite Oschman, daughter of Jacob and Katherine (Kern) Oschman, who emigrated from Europe to this country in 1847, landing at New York City. After three years' residence in that city they removed to Reading, Pa., where Mr. Oschman has since been a resident and taxpayer.

Mr. Unger is a member of the Tulpehocken Reformed Church. He is a Democrat in politics, and though not particularly active in such matters takes a deep interest in the welfare of his party.

JOHN A. FLANNERY, manufacturer of high-grade roller flour and dealer in grain and feed at Monocacy, was born in Amity township, Berks Co., Pa., July 4, 1861. His father, Patrick Flannery, was a native of Ireland, and coming to America located upon a farm in Amity township. This property he owned and cultivated until his death, March 24, 1862, when he was only forty years of age. Patrick Flannery married Ann Hanley, born April 23, 1832, a daughter of John Hanley, also a native of Ireland. Mrs. Flannery resides with her son John A. Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Flannery had these children: Mary, who died in childhood; Ella, who is the widow of Elmer Strunk and resides at Philadelphia; Michael, living at Greensburg, Pa.; Amelia, deceased; Harry P., who lives at San Francisco, where he is a prosperous merchant; and John A.

John A. Flannery attended the public schools, and later a private school at Unionville, Union township, this county. In 1880 he went to learn milling from Gobel, Bertolet & Co., at Pottstown, and in 1889 he started in this business for himself, at Douglassville. After ten years, in 1899, he bought the Irwin Griesemer mill, at Monocacy, and there he has continued ever since, building up the large Monocacy Roller Mills, where he manufactures both spring and winter wheat flour. His brand is the "Premium," a name chosen because for twelve successive years his flour took the premium at the Pottstown fair. Mr. Flannery also makes a brand of baker's flour which he sells to bakers in his vicinity, and which is a great favorite with the trade. Perhaps one of the secrets of his remarkable success lies in the fact that he is very enterprising, and that he never allows an opportunity to escape him.

Mr. Flannery is a director of the Conestoga Telephone Company, and is largely interested in many enterprises, the fact that he is identified with an undertaking being considered sufficient guarantee of its ultimate success. All of his prosperity is the result of his own efforts, and he may be well said to be a self-made man and one of the most substantial citizens in his district.

In religion Mr. Flannery is a Catholic, being a member of St. Aloysius Church at Pottstown. In politics he is a Democrat and under President Cleveland, during his first term, was a messenger in the custom house at Philadelphia.

In 1881, Mr. Flannery was married to Gussie Mellon, daughter of the late Joseph and Caroline (Weber) Mellon, of Schuylkill Haven. Their children are: May M., who is a graduate of the West Chester State Normal School, class of 1901; Edna A., married to Edward R. Meredith, superintendent of the P. H. & P. division of the Reading railroad; and John A., Jr., a miller assisting his father.

WILLIAM BACHMAN, a well-known citizen of Centre, Cumru township, who is engaged in blacksmithing and carriage-making, was born in 1852, in Ruscombmanor township, this county, son of Joseph and Barbara (Miller) Bachman.

Joseph Bachman was also a native of Ruscombmanor township, where he received his education. Most of his life was spent, however, in Chester county, and there he died at the age of seventy-four years, his widow surviving until December, 1906, when she passed away in her eighty-second year. Both were buried at Saint Peter's Church in Chester county. Their children were: David, of Oakbrook, Berks county; Joseph, of Lebanon; Noah, of Chester county; Rebecca, the wife of John Dries; Sallie, of Norristown; Emma, wife of Augustus Bloch, of Tuckerton, Pa.; Lizzie, the wife of Samuel Fritz, of Cumru township; and William.

William Bachman attended the schools of Leesport and Ruscombmanor township, and when a boy worked at farm labor. At the age of nineteen years he began to learn the trade of blacksmith with John Bussler, of Leesport, with whom he remained a few years, then engaging in journeyman work for seven years. Mr. Bachman next embarked in business for himself at the "Kurtz House," in Cumru township, but since 1878 he has been located at his present stand. He has a large and growing business and employs a number of skilled workmen throughout the year.

Mr. Bachman was married to Miss Elizabeth Clara Fritz, daughter of Jeremiah Fritz and granddaughter of Elias Fritz, and to this union have been born five children: Robert, who married Eva Schmehl; Alvin; Harry; and Alice and Luke, at school. Mr. Bachman is a Democrat in politics and has served his township as tax collector. He and Mrs. Bachman attend Yocum's Lutheran Church.

Jeremiah Fritz, father of Mrs. Bachman, was born March 6, 1840, and now resides at Centre, Cumru township, where he is engaged at blacksmithing. He married Annie Wagner, daughter of Daniel Wagner, and to them were born children as follows, besides Mrs. Bachman: Elias, of Reading; Alice, who married Hiram Heckman, of Reading; William of West Reading, married to Estella Rick; and Sallie, who married Alvin Kohl, of Centre, Berks county.

JOEL B. SCHAEFFER, the well-known creamery man of Moselem Springs, Richmond township, is a son of Henry S. Schaeffer of Moselem. He was born March 20, 1864, and worked on the farm from his youth until his seventeenth year, when he learned the trade of shoemaker, which he followed for two and one-half years, serving an apprenticeship of two years. In 1884 Mr. Schaeffer was engaged as clerk for Librant & McDowell, iron manufacturers at Moselem, Richmond township. Two years later this firm changed hands, Sheble & Stillwagon being the new proprietors, with whom Mr. Schaeffer continued for another year, when he connected himself with Melot & Schaeffer, in whose employ he remained one year, his next employers being Kelchner & Co. With this firm he spent two years. He then went to Wernersville, being employed as clerk in the store of H. Shappell. Here he continued five years. At the end of this time Mr. Schaeffer purchased twenty-six acres of some of the best soil in Richmond township, near Moselem Springs, and here he has since resided. In connection with his farm work, he has conducted the creamery at Moselem Springs for three years. His farm is in an excellent state of cultivation.

Mr. Schaeffer is a strong Democrat, and for seven years served the township as supervisor; he is now serving a three-year term as township assessor.

In 1885 Mr. Schaeffer married Miss Emma L. Merkel, the respected daughter of James and Mary (Kelchner) Merkel of Richmond township, and their family consists of children as follows: Lloyd M. and Henry M., graduates of the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown; Solon, who died aged two years; Mary F.; Flora M.; Ella M.; Mabel M.; Emily M., and Elmer M. Mr. Schaeffer is a member of the Lutheran congregation of the Moselem Church, in Richmond township. Mr. Schaeffer is domestic in his tastes, and finds his greatest joy and contentment at home with his family. He is conservative, reliable and a good and useful citizen, his reputation being the best. He is now in the prime of life, having started right, and being possessed of those qualities which insure success in life.

WILLIAM H. RUTH, a well-to-do business man of Berks county, who conducts the "Railroad House" at Sinking Spring, was born Jan. 7, 1863, in Brickerville, Lancaster county, son of Henry F. Ruth.

Philip Ruth, the great-grandfather of William H., was born Aug. 1, 1776, and died June 9, 1833, after a life spent in agricultural pursuits in Spring township. He is buried at Sinking Spring, where the remains of his wife, Elizabeth, are also interred. Mr. and Mrs. Ruth had these children: Peter settled in Lancaster county; Molly, who married Jacob Pahm, died in Sinking Spring; Elizabeth, who married Bennewell Boyer, died in Heidelberg township; Absalom was the grandfather of William H.; Thomas lived in Spring township.

Absalom Ruth, born Jan. 4, 1807, in Spring township, died April 13, 1873. He was a farmer all of his life, carrying on operations in Spring and Heidelberg townships. He married Annie Fisher, born May 20, 1802, who died Dec. 3, 1890, daughter of William and Margaret (Krick) Fisher, and to this union there were born: Isaac, who died when four years of age; Samuel, who died in Heidelberg township; Henry F., father of William H.; Abraham, who died in Exeter township; Mary, who married Samuel Eckenroth; Absalom W., living at Adamstown; Ellen, deceased, who married George Kintzer; Catherine, who married Jacob Behm; Lemon, who resides at Reading; and Richard and Emma, who died young.

Henry F. Ruth was born in Spring township, Berks Co., Pa., Feb. 28, 1863. After attending the common schools of Spring township, he began farming, first in Spring township, and then in Clay township, Lancaster Co., Pa., locating there in 1861. After six years in that locality he returned to Spring township where he made his home for fifteen years. His next move was to Muhlenberg township, near Hyde Park, and for two years he farmed and then entered a hotel business at West Reading. After three and one-half years there he operated the "Bellview Hotel" at Hyde Park, for two and one-half years. The following six years he spent at Reading, where he was a successful grocer until his retirement, in 1898, when he returned to Hyde Park. He now lives retired. In addition to his work as farmer, hotel man and grocer, Mr. Ruth served his country in her extremity, enlisting in Company F, 179th P. V. I., and after nine months' faithful service received his honorable discharge at Heidelberg, July 27, 1863.

On Sept. 10, 1857, Mr. Ruth was married to Rebecca Bertrem, daughter of Jonathan and Ellen (Rader) Bertrem. Mrs. Ruth died March 25, 1906, aged seventy years, and is buried at Sinking Spring. The following children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Ruth: Hannah A. married Peter Leisz and lives at Zion City, Ill.; Martin L. married Anna Addams, of West Reading; William H. is mentioned below; Anna F. married Charles Hoffman, of Columbia, Pa.; Absalom was killed on the East Pennsylvania railroad, at the age of twenty-three years; Ellen N. married Harry Homan, and resides at Hyde Park; Emma E. married William Yoder of Hyde Park; Milton B., unmarried, resides at Reading; Debbie M. is the widow of Jacob Hoffman, who met his death on the Lebanon Valley railroad bridge; Sadie C. married George Minker, of Reading. With a good business record, a gallant war service, and a large family of children all in comfortable circumstances, Mr. Ruth is enjoying his present ease in his declining years, and is looked up to not only by his family, but by those who have been his companions and friends for many years.

William H. Ruth during his youth attended school in Spring and Lower Heidelberg townships, Berks county. He also learned the butcher's trade while farming, and when he had mastered this occupation engaged in butchering for sixteen years at Tuckerton, thus continuing until 1898, when he branched out into a produce business, which he developed successfully, continuing it until 1902, when he purchased the "Railroad House." He has since carried this place on to the satisfaction of his visitors and his own financial profit.

Mr. Ruth was married to Isabella Kocher, of Berks county. They have no children. In political faith he is a Democrat, and has always been actively interested in the welfare of the community. He is a prominent member of the Reformed Church at Tuckerton, Pa., and a liberal contributor. Fraternally Mr. Ruth is a member of the Knights of Malta, Commandery No. 47, Reading; the I. O. O. F., also at Reading, and the P. O. S. of A., at Hyde Park. He is genial and enterprising, and a man who understands his business and the principles of true American citizenship.

ROGER S. HOOVER, station agent and despatcher for the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company at Tuckerton, Berks county, was born Aug. 22, 1861, in Penn township, Berks county, son of John H. and Elvina K. (Snyder) Hoover, and a grandson of John Hoover.

John Hoover, the grandfather, settled in Maiden-creek township, Berks county, where he followed the trade of millwright for a number of years. He died, however, in Heidelberg township. He married Katharine Hottenstein, and their children were: Joseph, of Reading; Catherine; John H.; Henry, deceased; and Mary, who married Samuel Kehr. In religious belief the family were Reformed, and in politics the men were Democrats.

John H. Hoover, father of Roger S., was born in Maiden-creek township, where he received most of his education. After attending a school at Holyoke, Mass., he commenced school teaching, which he followed for many years, abandoning this profession to go into the general mercantile business at Brownsville, with his brother Joseph. Subsequently he engaged in farming. He died in Penn township, Jan. 1, 1904, when he had reached his seventy-third year. His wife is still living at the age of seventy-three. To Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were born these children: Catherine, who married (first) Edwin Rickenbach and (second) Franklin Bagenstrose; Calvin, who in 1892 was appointed professor in History in the university at Valparaiso, Ind.; Roger S.; David S., who married Emma Knoll; Mary, who married Adam D. Bagenstrose; Samuel S., who married Katie Hain; Francis, at home; Helen, who married Thomas Degler; and John and Jacob, who died in infancy.

Roger S. Hoover was educated in the common schools of his native township, and his first work after his schooling was over was as a farm laborer. At the age of eighteen years he went to work on the canal, where he was employed for seven years, and then learned telegraphy. In 1887 he engaged with the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company as telegrapher, and March 5, 1890, he accepted the position of night operator at Tuckerton, being appointed in 1892 to the position of station agent and despatcher.

In 1891 Mr. Hoover was married to Anna K. Madeira, daughter of Nicholas and Lydia (Koller) Madeira, and four children have been born to this union: Byron, Miles, Lillian and Emily. In religious belief the family are Reformed. Mr. Hoover is independent in politics, and is fraternally connected with Leesport Lodge, No. 141, I. O. O. F., the Philadelphia & Reading Relief Association, and the Loyal Protective Association.

KINTZER. (I) Nicholas Kintzer, the progenitor of a family numerous in western Berks county, was born in Germany Nov. 15, 1715. When less than fifteen years old he crossed the ocean on the ship "Thistle," which arrived at Philadelphia Aug. 29, 1730, and he came to live in Tulpehocken township, Berks Co., Pa., where he became a substantial citizen. In 1739 he was assessed £16. which, reckoning $2.66 to the Pennsylvania pound, amounted to $42.56 of current coin. This pioneer settler died Jan. 20, 1794, in the seventy-ninth year of his age, and he is buried at the Host Church, of which he was a member. His grave is marked by a brown sandstone the inscription on which is still legible. His will, which was made Dec. 15, 1791, and probated March 5, 1794, is recorded in Will Book B, page 355. The executors were his son Jacob and Thomas Kurr, and the following children are mentioned in the document: Jacob; Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Kurr; Margaret, wife of Godfry Real; Catharine, who died before her father, her children receiving her share; and Julian, deceased.

(II) Jacob Kintzer, son of Nicholas, obtained the plantation in Tulpehocken upon which his father lived and died, and there made his home, engaging in farming. He married Elizabeth Unruh, and they had a large family, among their children being: Johan (John), born in 1785, died in 1851; Adam, born July 28, 1788, died Feb. 24, 1860; George, born Oct. 18, 1795, died Aug. 28, 1825 (married Dec. 17, 1820, to Maria Sailer).

(III) Adam Kintzer, son of Jacob, born July 28, 1788, in western Berks county, was engaged in farming there all his life. He died Feb. 24, 1860, aged seventy-one years, six months, twenty-six days. He married Anna Maria Leiss, born in 1789, died in 1872, daughter of Christopher and Maria Elizabeth Leiss. Mr. and Mrs. Adam Kintzer are both buried at the Host Church. They had children as follows: Jacob; Michael; Isaac; William; Henry; John; Betzy, who married Gabriel Filbert; Mary, who married Andrew Schoner and later John Leiss; and Amanda, who married Adam Mover, of West Reading.

(IV) Michael Kintzer, son of Adam, was a lifelong farmer, living in Lower Heidelberg township, where he owned the old Kintzer homestead two miles north of Womelsdorf. He was born there Dec. 26, 1809, and died March 9, 1883. The farm on which he lived was a fine place of over one hundred acres, not far from Robesonia, now owned by Joseph Snyder. He and his family were members of St. Daniel's (Corner) Church at the time of his death, but he is buried at the Hain's Church, in the new cemetery, where the family has a fine lot. Mr. Kintzer was a member of the Reformed denomination, but his widow belongs to the Lutheran Church.

Michael Kintzer was married three times, first to Catharine Stupp, by whom he had four children, Frank, Israel, Adam and George. By his second marriage, to Maricha Jones, he had one son, Aaron, who died unmarried. To his third union, with Matilda Kurtz, who survives him, four children were born, on their old home in Lower Heidelberg township: Charles Lewis, Michael H., Rufus James and Annie M.

(V) Israel Kintzer, son of Michael, was born Nov. 9, 1830, and died Oct. 29, 1898. He and his wife are buried at Hain's Church. He was a lifelong farmer and a self-made man, starting out in the world with nothing and at the time of his death being one of the substantial men of his community and the owner of two fine farms. He was a deacon and elder in Hain's Reformed Church. Mr. Kintzer married Mary Ann Fidler, born Nov. 11, 1833, who died Jan. 10, 1890, daughter of David and Hannah (Ulrich) Fidler, and six children were born to this union: two daughters who died in infancy; Katie H., who married Michael Wenrich; David M.; Mary, who married William H. Brown; and Wilson, who married Adda Baer and resides at Sinking Spring, Pennsylvania.

(VI) David M. Kintzer, son of Israel, a farmer and business man of Heidelberg township, at the eastern end of the village of the Robesonia, was born Oct. 4, 1861, in Lower Heidelberg township. He was reared to agricultural pursuits, which he has followed all his life, working for his father until twenty-eight years of age, after which he was a tenant at the homestead for eight years. In 1900 he purchased his father's farm at the eastern end of the village of Robesonia, and there he has since resided. This tract is one of the best for its size—about sixteen acres—in the township. He also owns the seventy-two-acre tract adjoining, which was also one of the father's farms, and here he carries on general farming and truck raising, having stand No. 98, at Fourth and Penn streets, Reading market. He has a fine herd of live stock, his buildings are comfortable and substantial, and he owns the latest and most improved farm machinery. In addition Mr. Kintzer conducts a livery stable, having six horses and commanding a good trade. In politics he is a Democrat, and has been school director since 1898, having been honored with three successive elections. Since 1902 he has been the treasurer of the Robesonia Hose Company. Mr. Kintzer and his family are members of Hain's Reformed Church, of which he has been a deacon and elder.

On Feb. 13, 1886, Mr. Kintzer was married to Clara Greth, daughter of Joshua and Sophia Greth, the former a stonemason at the Blue Marsh. Three children have been born to this union: Bertha, who attended the West Chester State Normal School, is now a teacher in the public schools of Heidelberg township; Bessie, who graduated from the West Chester Normal School, is also a teacher; Robert S. is assisting his father on the farm.

(V) George Kintzer, son of Michael, was born Dec. 17, 1838, in Marion township, Berks county, and died Jan. 23, 1907, aged sixty-eight years, one month, six days. He was reared to farming, which vocation he followed all his life. When he was seven years old his parents moved to the Big Spring, in Heidelberg township, where he grew up. On Nov. 11, 1862, Mr. Kintzer was mustered into the United States service, having enlisted at Reading in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Regiment; the captain of this company from its organization was Jonathan See, who was later promoted to the rank of major for meritorious service. This regiment did much severe marching, built rifle pits, forts and trenches, was in the battle of the Deserted House (where their colonel, Charles A. Knoderer was fatally wounded) and in the fight at Suffolk, Va. It was mustered out at Reading Aug. 12, 1863.

Mr. Kintzer married Oct. 29, 1864, Elizabeth E. Ruth, born Sept. 29, 1845, daughter of Absalom and Annie (Fisher) Ruth, and three children came to this union: (1) Annie M., born Aug. 23, 1865, married William H. Fisher, and they have four children, Charles A., Frederick M., Harvey W. and Leah E. (2) Adam O., born Jan. 1, 1867, lives at his father's late residence in Berks county. He married Eva A. Stoudt, and they have two children, Ellen C. and Annie M. (3) Michael, born Aug. 24, 1870, lives at Hain's Church. He married Lydia A. Ruth, and they have one son, Lloyd A.

Mr. Kintzer purchased his late home in 1900. It consists of thirteen acres of good land in the vicinity of the Hain's Church, and on this place he died. He is buried at Hain's Church, in the East End cemetery, and was a prominent member of the Hain's Church, in which he served as elder. He was a Republican in his political convictions. He was a substantial farmer and much respected citizen, and his widow is held in equally high esteem. She still occupies the property at Hain's Church. Mr. Kintzer also owned a farm of sixty-six acres near Hain's Church, known as the Werner's old homestead in Lower Heidelberg township, a quarter mile east of Wernersville. This place he bought in 1890. It is now tenanted by his son Michael.

HAIN FAMILY. Among the old and honorable families of Berks county none are more numerous that that of Hain, representatives of which name have for many years been prominently identified with the agricultural, educational and official interests of their several communities. Prominent among the present-day members of this family may be mentioned Benjamin A. Hain, a prosperous farmer of Lower Heidelberg township, and Prof. Milton I. Hain, one of the best known educators in that section of Berks county.

George Hean (also spelled Hane, Hehn and Hain) was a native of Germany and early in the eighteenth century came to America, landing at New York. From Schoharie, N. Y., he came to Heidelberg township, Berks county, in about 1723, and settled along the Berks and Dauphin turnpike in what is now known as Lower Heidelberg township, where he owned 2,100 acres of land. He had eight sons, Peter, Adam, George, Frederick, Heinerich, Joseph, Casper and John, one of whom (probably Joseph) went to live with the Indians. He suddenly disappeared from home, and nothing was heard of him for many years, when Indians told the family that he was well cared for. George Hean gave 300 acres of his property to each of his seven remaining sons.

Henry Hain, the great-great-grandfather of Benjamin A., lived in Lower Heidelberg township, where he carried on farming. He had these children: John; Adam, who settled near Harrisburg; Frederick; Daniel; Joseph; and a daughter who married a Mr. Locksley.

Joseph Hain, the great-grandfather of Benjamin A., lived on the farm on which the State Asylum is now situated, which was then a large property, but which has since been divided and subdivided. Born May 21, 1759, he died Jan. 21, 1834. He was married in 1782 to Catherine Shower, who was of English extraction, and they had these children: Benjamin S.; Hannah, who married Abraham Guldin; and Elizabeth, who married (first) Leonard Schaeffer and (second) George Gernand, the latter of whom was at one time sheriff of Berks county.

Benjamin S. Hain, grandfather of Benjamin A., was born May 23, 1785, in Lower Heidelberg township, and died Oct. 27, 1867; he was buried at Hain's Church, of which he was an official member. In the early days, when the church was surrounded by a dense forest, in which wolves and other wild animals still roamed in great numbers, Mr. Hain assisted in protecting the worshippers from these beasts. He was one of the well-known men of his day, and was well-to-do, owning three farms, one of which is now the property of the State of Pennsylvania and occupied by the Wernersville State Asylum. The house which stood near this institution was erected by Mr. Hain. He married Elizabeth Hain, who was born Oct. 11, 1788, and died April 7, 1861, and to this union were born the following children: Maria, who married Michael Nunnemacher; Catherine, who married Michael Seltzer; Joseph, who was a farmer near Wernersville and who died when comparatively young; Hannah, who married Peter Hill; Amelia, who married John Miller; Ellen, who married David Bucks; Harriet, who married Jacob Beaver; Adam, who lived on the original Hain farm and later in Reading, where he died; George; Eliza, who married John Huyett; and Sarah, who married William Zimmerman.

George Hain, the father of Benjamin A., was born in Lower Heidelberg township March 26, 1824, and died Feb. 11, 1903, being buried in the old cemetery at Hain's Church. He was a lifelong farmer, owning the property now in the possession of his son Benjamin A., on which the present house was erected in 1902, and the barn in 1828 (built by Daniel Bucks). Mr. Hain was one of the township's most esteemed citizens, was progressive and enterprising, and a stanch Republican. He was a member of Hain's Reformed Church, of which he was a deacon and elder for many years.

On Oct. 6, 1853, Mr. Hain was married to Elizabeth Ruth, born Jan. 8, 1829, who died Feb. 8, 1901, daughter of John and Margaretha (Ulrich) Ruth, and ten children were born to this union: A son died in infancy; Frank, born June 1, 1855, died Nov. 14, 1896 (he was a farmer in Spring township); George, born Nov. 5, 1856, is a farmer near Dixon, Ill.; Daniel, born Nov. 2, 1858, met his death in 1900, when he accidentally fell from an overshoot in his barn, on his farm at Wernersville; Benjamin A.; Rebecca, born Oct. 16, 1862, m. Abraham Schanover, a clerk at Wernersville; a daughter died in infancy; Sallie, born Feb. 25, 1865, m. Samuel Wenrich, of near Hain's Church; Mary, born June 24, 1866, m. Jacob M. Greth, a farmer of Lower Heidelberg township; Kate, born Feb. 28, 1868, m. James Kegerise, and resides with her brother Benjamin A.

Benjamin A. Hain was born on the farm of his grandfather, Benjamin S. Hain, in Lower Heidelberg township, March 3, 1861, and attended Bucks school, in his native district, and a school near Mechanicsburg, Cumberland Co., Pa., for two terms. He worked for his father until forty-one years of age, in 1902 commencing operations on his own account on the homestead, which became his in 1905. This property, which is situated about one mile from Wernersville, is one of the finest truck farms in this section of Berks county, and is furnished with fine machinery and good farm stock. Mr. Hain has been very successful in his operations, and readily disposes of his produce at stand No. 68, in the market at Ninth and Buttonwood streets. His father attended this stand for more than thirty years, and the trade built up by him is being supplied by his son. Mr. Hain's sisters, Mary and Kate, keep house for him, in the large, comfortable residence, and all are very well known and highly esteemed in this community. They attend Hain's Reformed Church, where more than one hundred of the family name are buried.

Johannes Hain, the great-great-grandfather of Prof. Milton I. Hain, was a farmer in Heidelberg township. He was a son of Adam and grandson of George Hehn, the German ancestor of the family who came hither from the Palatinate.

Adam Hain, son of Johannes, was a native of Heidelberg township, where he was extensively engaged in agricultural operations, and where he died, being buried at Hain's Church, of which he was a member. He married a Miss Gushour, and they had these children: Elizabeth, who married Benjamin Hain; Catherine, who married John Gernand, of Maiden-creek township; Johannes A., and Peter, of Lower Heidelberg township.

Johannes A. Hain, grandfather of Milton I., was born Aug. 15, 1791, on a part of the original Hain homestead, and died Jan. 4, 1865. He followed farming all of his life. He is buried at Hain's Church, of which he was an official member. On Sept. 21, 1817, he was married to Catherine Gernand, born Dec. 25, 1799, who died Jan. 2, 1882, and they had these children: Maria, Ellen, Elizabeth, Sarah, Hannah, Reuben, Kitty, Ann, and Barbara (born in 1835, died in 1865, married Jacob Schepp). The parents spent a happy married life of forty-seven years.

Reuben Hain, father of Milton I., was born Nov. 23, 1828, in Heidelberg (now Lower Heidelberg) township, and is now living retired, after a long and useful life spent in agricultural pursuits. He is a Democrat in politics, and was township auditor for some years; he served as deacon and elder in Hain's Church. In 1849 Mr. Hain was united in marriage with Susanna Beidler, born Dec. 29, 1830, daughter of William Beidler, and five children have been born to this union, as follows: John W., born Nov. 22, 1852, who is a farmer near Mount Pleasant, in Penn township; Lewis A., born June 4, 1857, who is a farmer of Lower Heidelberg township; Prof. Milton I.; Mary E., born May 13, 1865, who married Jacob W. Snader, of Reading; and Emma I., born Jan. 27, 1869, who died Aug. 13, 1879.

Milton I. Hain was born July 9, 1862, in Lower Heidelberg township, and his preliminary education was gained in the common schools. Later he attended the Keystone State Normal School, at Kutztown, Pa., the Reading Academy, and Business College, under the direction of the late Prof. D. B. Brunner. Professor Hain was first licensed to teach in the public schools in 1880, by Dr. S. A. Baer, who was then superintendent of schools, and since that time he has continued to teach in Lower Heidelberg township, where perhaps no educator is better known or more popular. He was granted his professional certificate by Prof. D. S. Keck in 1889 and his permanent certificate was awarded him in 1890 by the State. During his long incumbency Mr. Hain has seen many changes made in the school system, and he has done his part to bring about these changes. He has kept pace with the times, and his methods are modern and calculated to bring about the best results.

Mr. Hain is active in church work, being a member of Hain's Reformed Church, of which he is at present deacon, and was superintendent of the Sunday-school for one year and assistant superintendent for a like period. He is a Democrat in politics, and served his township very efficiently for six years as auditor.

REV. HENRY V. MOHN, whose labors in the United Brethren and Congregational Churches have made him well known throughout Berks county, is now a resident of Shillington, Cumru township, and a leader in public-spirited movements. He was born Aug. 9, 1842, in Lancaster county, Pa., son of Henry A. and Catherine (Von Neida) Mohn, and grandson of Daniel Mohn.

Daniel Mohn was born Dec. 24, 1767, at Mohn's Hill, Berks county, and there married Barbara Albright, born Feb. 25, 1773. In 1793 he purchased the homestead from his father, upon which he erected two houses; the eastern one, built in 1828, is still standing, being one of the landmarks of Berks county. His son, Henry A., born Dec. 20, 1810, in Cumru township, acquired a fair education and then learned the blacksmith's trade at Adamstown. For several years he carried on this business at Muddy Forks, and then purchased a mill property, operating the mill in connection with agricultural pursuits for ten years. He died at Fritztown, Pa., June 18, 1866, and his wife, who bore the maiden name of Catherine Von Neida, passed away Sept. 12, 1888.

Henry V. Mohn attended the public schools in his youth, and in August, 1861, enlisted in Company H, 1st Battalion, 15th United States Infantry, in the regular service, under Captain Curtis. He served three years and three months, and participated in a number of battles, including Shiloh, Stone River, Chickamauga and Mission Ridge, being wounded at Chickamauga in the left leg, and on Aug. 7, 1864, Sunday afternoon, at Atlanta, Ga., in the elbow joint of the right arm, the latter wound still causing him some inconvenience. He was mustered out at Jeffersonville, Ind., in 1864, and returning to his home at Fritztown, Berks county, attended the People's Commercial College at Reading, from which he was graduated. He then attended Westfield College in Illinois for a period of two years, and on his return home entered the ministry, his first charge being the Susquehanna circuit of the United Brethren Church in Snyder county. After one year there Mr. Mohn was appointed Sunday-school missioner, in which position he served two years in eastern Pennsylvania, when he again entered the ministry, serving the Harrisburg circuit, and being later at Columbia, Allentown and Mt. Airy, Philadelphia. On account of throat trouble he was obliged to retire, and returned to Allentown for five years, at the end of this time accepting a call to Baltimore, Md., where he continued for five years. In 1887 he returned to Pennsylvania, and, locating in Reading, built the United Brethren Memorial Church at the corner of Buttonwood and McKnight streets, over which he presided for eight years. In 1892 Mr. Mohn located in Shillington and erected his fine residence there, one of the finest structures in Cumru township. He has been very much interested in all movements which have had as their object the advancement of this place, the first meetings of the organization committee to make Shillington a borough being held in the study of his residence. He is a clear, convincing, forcible speaker and is fearless in his exposition of the Word of God. In political matters he is a Republican.

Rev. Mr. Mohn was married (first) to Alvesta Schmeyer, daughter of Tillman and Elizabeth (Vickert) Schmeyer, and she died in 1874, the mother of three children: Naarah, John and Harry, the latter of whom is deceased. Mr. Mohn was married (second) to Emma Mark, daughter of Rev. J. H. and Hettie (Van Reed) Mark, of Allentown, and to this union there were born: William, deceased; Rhoda R.; Mark, deceased; Vaniah, deceased; Hervin, deceased; Chester and Emma.

MORRIS B. REBER, now connected with the Bell Telephone Company, but formerly secretary of the Acme Manufacturing Company, of Reading, and later associated with the firm of Wood, Harmon & Co., of New York, was born at Reading, Feb. 28, 1860, son of James T. Reber.

Morris B. Reber was educated first in the public schools at Reading and then attended the Myerstown College, Palatinate College, and Franklin and Marshall College, at Lancaster, where he was graduated in 1881. After leaving college Mr. Reber engaged for a time in the hardware business and then went West where he remained fourteen years, engaged mostly in the real estate business in Minnesota. He then removed to Salt Lake City, where for six years he did an extensive business in handling mining lands, and mining stocks, and served as secretary of one of the great developing companies of that locality. Returning to Reading, he went into the bicycle business, becoming secretary of the Acme Manufacturing Company, in partnership with his father, who was the president and his brother, James C., was treasurer and general manager. After the company was absorbed by the bicycle Trust, he retired for seven years. In 1901 he became connected with the firm of Wood, Harmon & Co., the largest real estate operators in the country. This firm owns 2,000 acres of undeveloped land in Brooklyn, which is laid out in residence lots which are purchased largely by all classes of investors all over the country. The company also handles large blocks of territory in Reading and other places and Mr. Reber is the superintendent of agents for Eastern Pennsylvania and supervises the development of the company's business in this part of the State. He has quite recently accepted an important position with the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, and is actively engaged in furthering the interests of this company throughout this part of the State.

Mr. Reber is a member of the Reformed Church. He belongs to the Goethean Society of Franklin and Marshall College. He is a young man of enterprise, ability and spirit and in all his ventures has been remarkably successful.

ISAAC HAAS, one of Tulpehocken township's representative citizens, who is extensively engaged in agricultural pursuits, was born April 8, 1843, in Bethel township, son of George and Maria (Deppen) Haas.

Daniel Haas, grandfather of Isaac, was a prominent citizen of Reading, Pa., where he died in middle life. He was the father of four children: Benjamin, a resident of Klopp's Store and later of Womelsdorf, where he died aged about eighty years; George, the father of Isaac; and two whose names are not recorded.

George Haas was reared near Klopp's Store, being apprenticed to a Mr. Kalbach until of age, when he learned the art of weaving linens, carpets, etc., and also the coloring thereof. He subsequently engaged in the hotel business along the canal between Klopp's Store and Mount Pleasant, and remained in this business for four years, when he purchased a farm near Mount Aetna and engaged in weaving and farming. Later he purchased a tract of more than 240 acres, to which he moved and there he died in April, 1890, aged eighty-seven years. He married Maria Deppen, who preceded him to the grave by about eighteen years, and they were the parents of these children: (1) Rebecca died unmarried aged about seventy-four years; (2) Edward was a farmer of near Meckville, but later retired and moved to Hamlin, Lebanon county; he had one child, Sophia (m. Jeremiah Swope); (3) Harriet married Daniel Klopp, a farmer of Livengood's Mill, and had two children—Maria (m. Jacob Zigler) and Peter (m. Fyetta Potteiger, and died in early life); (4) Catherine m. John Stamm, and died on a farm near Mount Aetna; she had three children—John Henry, Clara and Isaac; (5) Jonathan m. Mary Miller, by whom he had seven children; he moved to Indianapolis, Ind., and there died; (6) Maria m. John Forry, lived below Rehrersburg, and had two children—Jonathan and Catherine (m. Frank Fieman); (7) Emma m. Henry Shugar, and resided near Schaefferstown, where she died when comparatively young, the mother of six children—James, John, William, George, Mary and Emma; (8) Isaac.

Isaac Haas was educated in the district schools of his native locality, and until his marriage assisted his father on the home farm. When twenty-three years of age he married Lovina Dubbs, daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth (Dunn) Dubbs, and they now reside on one of their farms north of Mount Aetna. To Mr. and Mrs. Haas the following children have been born: Landis S., a miller of Myerstown, is now operating for the American Iron & Steel Company, in Lebanon county (m. Susan Newcomer, daughter of Theodore Newcomer, and they had two children, both deceased); Emma E. died single, aged twenty-eight years; Hiram T., who graduated from the Keystone State Normal school, took a course in shorthand and typewriting at Pierce School, Philadelphia, completing the course in 1905, and has since been engaged in school teaching in Berks and Lebanon counties (m. Bertha Sherman, daughter of Simon and Alwilda (Blatt) Sherman); George Edwin operates one of his father's farms at Mount Aetna (m. Sadie Holdeman, daughter of Frank and Lizzie (Miller) Holdeman, and they have one child, Ammon F.); and Mary K. m. Henry Huber, and resides in Hamlin, where they conduct a general store.

The family are members of Rehersburg Lutheran Church, of which Mr. Haas has been deacon and elder. In politics he is a Democrat, and he has been delegate to county conventions, and has held the office of assistant assessor and other township positions.

J. THOMAS K. REEDY, a retired citizen of Sinking Spring, Pa., who has resided at his own home on Main street since the spring of 1879, has been prominent in the political life of Spring township for some years. He was born at Sinking Spring, Dec. 27, 1855, son of John S. and Hannah F. (Krick) Reedy, and is a descendant of Peter Reedy (Redey, Redie), who settled in Heidelberg township prior to 1758.

Jacob Reedy, grandfather of J. Thomas K., was an agriculturist all of his life and owned a farm near "Beshore's Hotel," where he died June 11, 1872. He became one of the well-known citizens of Bethel township, and ample provision was made for his wife in his will, which provided that she was to live in a certain part of the new house on the homestead, and was to be furnished with food, fuel and sixty pounds annually. He married Molly Stroh, and their children were: Jacob (who obtained the homestead); John S.; Leah (m. William Yoder); Molly (m. Samuel Lick, and died prior to 1872); and Caroline (had a son, Cyrus Smith, who was a legatee in the will).

John S. Reedy, father of J. Thomas K., was born in Tulpehocken township, Oct. 22, 1812, and died July 24, 1902. After leaving Tulpehocken township, he settled in Reading, but for the last sixty years of his life resided in Sinking Spring, where he died. He was a stationary engineer in a tannery at Sinking Spring, where he was sexton of Sinking Spring Union Church for many years, being a Reformed member thereof. In politics Mr. Reedy was a Democrat, and for three years was supervisor of Spring township. On May 8, 1838, Mr. Reedy married Hannah F. Krick (born April 16, 1817, died Sept. 5, 1895), daughter of Adam and Catherine (Fisher) Krick. They had children: Rebecca K., born Dec. 27, 1838; Catherine K., Jan. 28, 1840; William K., Dec. 6, 1842; Adam K., April 7, 1849; and J. Thomas K. William K. Reedy was a soldier in the Civil war, and was shot in the chest in camp near Newcastle, June 4, 1864. He was taken to White House Landing, where the bullet was taken from his back, and there he died aged twenty-one years, five months, twenty-four days, and was buried. His name was written on a board and placed at the head of his grave.

J. Thomas K. Reedy was educated in the public schools of his district, and was reared in Sinking Spring, where all of his life has been spent. He drove cattle when a young man for Samuel G. Wenrich of Sinking Spring, then clerked that gentleman's sales, and later purchased cattle for him at Buffalo, N. Y., and Lancaster, Pa. He continued in Mr. Wenrich's employ for thirty-eight years, and it may be said that much of Mr. Wenrich's success is due to Mr. Reedy's long, faithful, able assistance. In 1901 Mr. Reedy was appointed first docket clerk of the comptroller's office of Berks county, in which he served efficiently one year, when he was legislated out of politics. He is an active Democrat in politics, and was the first elected committeeman of Spring township to the county standing committee, an office which he held for four years, served the township as its last assistant assessor for three years, and assisted many men to office, being elected several times delegate to the Democratic county conventions. Since leaving the Court House position, Mr. Reedy has lived a semi-retired life. Fraternally he is a member of Lexington Lodge No. 155, K. P., in which for years he held the office of financial secretary; Washington Camp, No. 282, P. O. S. of A., in which he long served as financial secretary, finally resigning; Loyal Chamber, No. 43, K. of F. (which now has 117 members), in which he was elected financial secretary the night the Chamber was instituted March 7, 1896, an office he has held ever since, his present term expiring June 30, 1909, and in this organization he has been representative to the Grand Chamber of the States of Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Mr. Reedy is a member of the Liberty Chemical Fire Engine Company, No. 1, of Sinking Spring, in which he was elected to serve on the committee on By-Laws, being one of the organizers of the Company. He is a director of the Mutual Fire Insurance Company, of Sinking Spring. Mr. Reedy and his wife are members of St. John's Reformed Church of Sinking Spring, of which he has been deacon and secretary.

On Nov. 16, 1878, Mr. Reedy married Catherine A. Heffner, daughter of Joel D. and Sarah (Zechman) Heffner, of Penn township, Berks county. A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Reedy, who died aged three days.

Mrs. Reedy is descended from Johann Georg Heffner, of Germantown, Pa., who had three sons: Jacob; Johann Georg; and Anthony (Black). Of this family Jacob was born Nov. 11, 1736, and died May 31, 1829, being buried at Mertztown burial ground. In 1760 he married Elizabeth Lyatz, born in 1736, died in 1806, of Hingstadt, Germany, and they had five children: Henry, born July 8, 1763; Anthony (The Red), born in 1767, died in 1849; Elizabeth, born July 11, 1769; Johannes, born Jan. 14, 1772; and Daniel, born Dec. 5, 1773.

Johannes Heffner married Elizabeth Kline, and they had Elizabeth, born in 1798; and Johann Georg, born Dec. 24, ——.

Johann Georg Heffner married Anna Deisher, of Maxatawny township, and to them was born Joel D. Heffner, father of Mrs. Reedy.

WAYNE A. REED, a well known business man of Robesonia, Pa., where he is engaged in the manufacture of ice cream and as proprietor of a popular restaurant, is an honored veteran of the Civil war, and was born Sept. 3, 1846, at Stouchsburg, Pa., son of Samuel and Leah (Rutter) Reed.

Johan Leonhard Rith, who was born in 1691 and died in 1747, was the ancestor of this numerous family, was a German by birth, and was one of the many of that nationality who suffered under the terrible oppression of Governor Hunter of Schoharie, N. Y. His was one of the twenty-three German families who in 1723 fled through the wilderness in the deep snow, to the land of the Tulpehocken Valley in Penn's province. That these early pioneers suffered terribly is well known. The awful cold, the primitive conditions, hunger, and the savage Indians made the journey nearly unbearable, but their undying faith in their Maker, and the comforting solace of the Bible inspired them to superhuman efforts, and they finally reached their destination, where peace was found beyond the power of the tyrant. Johan Leonhard Rith married Analisa Catrina, and their union was blessed by the birth of these children: (1) Johan Nicolaus (born June 4, 1715, died Jan. 7, 1788) m. Maria Barbara Seibert (born May 18, 1722, died Oct. 14, 1807), and had children,—Jacob, Mrs. Jacob Schaeffer and Mrs. Jacob Anspach. (2) Johan George (born in 1717, died in 1791) m. Catrina Elsa, and they had children.—John Leonard; Catherine (m. Henry Minnich, who removed to Virginia), Jonas, Peter and Frederick. (3) Johannes Friderick (born March 15, 1718, died Dec. 24, 1794) m. Maria Engel, and they had a son,—Jacob, whose son was John Jacob (m. Eva Maria Seibert). John Jacob Rith was born April 10, 1770, and died Nov. 1, 1835, and George and Edward Reed, living at Ottawa, Ill., are of his descendants. (4) A daughter, Margaretha or Wilhelmina, m. Heinrich Zeller. (5) Leonhard, Jr. (born Sept. 10, 1723, died April 28, 1801 or 1803). (6) Peter m. Maria Catarina Ziegler, and they had three children,—John, Barbara (m. Jacob Moyer), and Catarine (m. Adam Lehman). (7) Jacob (born in June, 1746, died March 28, 1821) m. Margaret, and their children were: John Jacob, John and several daughters. John Jacob married Margarid Emerich, and among other children they had a son, John. John Jacob in 1840 sold his farm and went West, and some of his descendants now live in the vicinity of Dayton and Martinsburg, Ohio.

Johan Leonhard Rith was not the only one of that name, however, who had settled in Schoharie, N. Y., later to come to the province of Pennsylvania before 1740, as it is thought that the following were all relatives, they coming from one place and settling permanently in the Tulpehocken valley: Michael, Casper, Adam, George and Peter. Michael Reith's will was entered in the Berks county court-house in 1754, and in it these children are named: John Casper, John Michael, Daniel, Catrina Katterman (whose first husband was George Anspach), Margared Emerich, Anna Maria Rosina, Anna Madlena Haffeur, Elisabett Dries and Maria Barbara Schengel. Daniel Reith, son of Michael, in his will, which was entered in the court-house in 1797, mentions these children: Christian, Benjamin, Daniel, John, Catherine, Christina, Elizabeth, Barbara and Maria Lydia. Benjamin, above mentioned, was the father of Daniel, grandfather of Franklin B. and great-grandfather of Elmer Reed of Reading, Pennsylvania.

Leonhard Rieth, son of Johan Leonhard and Analisa Catrina, and great-great-grandfather of Wayne A. Reed, of Robesonia, was born Sept. 10, 1723, at Schoharie, N. Y., and died April 28, 1801 or 1803. The year of his birth, or in the following spring, he was brought by his father into what is now the Tulpehocken section of Berks county, and here in the new, unexplored forest was reared by pious parents to sturdy youth and useful manhood. It is but natural to assume that he tilled the soil, and it is a matter of record that he acquired a tract of land and erected a house. He was married to Elizabetth Knoll, born June 10, 1729, who died Aug. 11, 1797, and they became the parents of these children: (1) Valentine (born Sept. 18, 1749, died May 6, 1825) was a soldier in the Revolutionary war; he m. Eva Catherine Selser (1759-1828), and they had issue—Christopher, Eva and Margaretha. (2) Jacob J. (3) Johan Adam (born July 17, 1756, died in 1815) m. Julianna Braun (1766-1826), and they had these children,—Elizabeth, Barbara, Sarah, Eva, Adam, Johannes, Rebecca, Katherine and Mary. (4) John (born Dec. 17, 1758, died Sept. 17, 1801) had four children. (5) Elisabeth (born April 15, 1766, died Sept. 22, 1830). (6) Catherine. Christopher, the son of Valentine of the above family, born Nov. 6, 1783, died Nov. 2, 1865, m. Margaret Illig (1744-1842), and had two children, John and a daughter.

Jacob J. Rieth, great-grandfather of Wayne A., died in 1824, but his place of death and burial are uncertain. He married Rosina Schaeffer, and they had these children: Christian; Michael; Jacob; John; Magdalena (m. Jacob Philippi); Barbara (m. Christian Phillippi); and Katerine (m. William Lutz).

Christian Reed, grandfather of Wayne A., born April 17, 1777, was a stone mason, and built the farm house below Robesonia now owned by James Ruth. He also assisted in building the historic Reed Church, which is named after Leonhard Rieth, one of the founders of this old family, and here he was buried. Mr. Reed owned the property above Womelsdorf, now owned by William Fidler. He died April 22, 1847, while his wife, Eva Magdalena Mayer, born Sept. 16, 1777, died March 25, 1864. The tombstone states that they were the parents of nine sons and one daughter, but by consulting records and relatives, only the following eight sons and one daughter are found: William, John C., Jonathan, David, Daniel, Michael, Samuel, George and Poly.

Samuel Reed, the father of Wayne A., was born in Marion township, April 13, 1822, and died May 27, 1885, being buried at Reed's Church. Mr. Reed was a tailor by trade, and resided at Stouchsburg, where he owned a home now the property of his son Frank. He was married to Leah Rutter, born at Newmanstown, Aug. 6, 1824, who died Nov. 15, 1906. They had ten children, as follows: Frank G.; Wayne A.; Edmond; Samuel C.; William (died in infancy); Alice (died aged twenty-two years); Mary (m. Dr. Frank J. Eckert, of Ephrata, Pa.); Ida (unmarried); Emma (m. Martin Wenrich); and a daughter (died in infancy).

Wayne A. Reed was reared in the village of Stouchsburg, and at the age of fourteen years left school and learned the trade of tailor with his father, an occupation which he followed at various places, on and off, for a period of thirty years. When the Civil war broke out, young Reed was a mere lad, and until his eighteenth year could not enlist in his country's service. On July 18, 1864, however, he became a member of Company D, 1st Battalion, Pa. V. I., enlisting at Harrisburg for 100 days, and was honorably discharged Nov. 11, 1864, having done brave service during his time of enlistment and participating in the retreat from Chambersburg, when that town was destroyed by fire. After the war Mr. Reed took a trip to Fremont, Ohio, but about one year later returned to Pennsylvania and spent the succeeding years in various occupations, including those of railroad employe, tailor, butcher and bar-tender. Since 1892 Mr. Reed has conducted a restaurant, confectionery, ice cream parlor and tobacco store on Main street, Robesonia, and in this business has been very successful. He takes much interest in the growth of the borough.

On March 15, 1873, Mr. Reed married Amelia Filbert, born Aug. 12, 1852, daughter of J. Frank and Maria (Forry) Filbert, and granddaughter of John and Sally (Potteiger) Filbert. To Mr. and Mrs. Reed there was born one child: Ella A., now the widow of William C. S. Groh, a merchant of Halfway, Lebanon county, who died Dec. 14, 1896, aged twenty-four years, four months, eleven days.

Since 1894 Mr. Reed has resided in his own home at Robesonia, where he is fraternally connected with G. A. R. Post, No. 471. He and his family are members of St. Daniel's Lutheran Church. Mr. Reed is the possessor of a very valuable collection of Civil war relics and coins, included in which is a powder horn made by David Reed, in 1837.

OWEN B. ROBERTS, one of the best known citizens of Blandon, Pa., was born in Maiden-creek township, May 9, 1854, son of Thomas and Anna (Barlet) Roberts.

Thomas Roberts, grandfather of Owen B., was a member of one of the earliest families of Exeter township, Berks county, and was of Quaker extraction. He married Catherine Body, and to them there were born five children, as follows: Joseph, who died single in 1862; Elinor, born April 6, 1813, died unmarried May 25, 1885; Elizabeth, who died unmarried in 1862; Sarah, who died young; and Thomas.

Thomas Roberts, father of Owen B., was born Jan. 7, 1817, in Maiden-creek township, where he was a post fence-maker practically all of his life, and where he died June 13, 1901. He married Anna Barlet, born July 24, 1820, daughter of John and Susannah (Bowman) Barlet; she died Sept. 22, 1889. They had two children: Amos B. and Owen B. Amos B. Roberts, born Jan. 24, 1845, died July 27, 1900. He was a surveyor by occupation. He married Lizzie Banghart, born Feb. 2, 1844, who died in 1903, and they had two children: Alice (died Aug. 12, 1870) and Sarah (m. James Weidner, of Reading).

Owen B. Roberts was reared and educated in his native locality, and after leaving the public school attended a private institution taught by Prof. P. Y. Taylor, at Blandon. He learned fence-making with his father, and for many years worked with the gang. When twenty-one years of age he was chosen committeeman by the Republican party, and at that time was the youngest man on the county committee. He has remained active in the ranks of his party, having served as notary, school director and township assessor. Mr. Roberts is a surveyor and conveyancer by occupation, and owns a farm, and much other valuable real estate, which he manages himself.

On April 2, 1898, Mr. Roberts married Sarah A. Oswald, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Gambler) Oswald. Mr. Roberts is a member of Camp No. 250, P. O. S. of A., at Blandon, of which he was one of the founders; Rock Castle No. 80, K. G. E.; a charter member of Blandon Lodge No. 1084, I. O. O. F.; Court Blandon, No. 266, Foresters of America; Fleetwood Castle No. 153, A. O. K. M. C., and Yuma Tribe No. 438, I. O. R. M. In some instances he also belongs to the insurance branch of these various organizations. Mr. Roberts is one of his community's representative citizens, and justly merits the high esteem in which he is held by his fellow townsmen.

NICHOLAS G. ROTHERMEL, proprietor of an extensive coal, lumber, feed and flour business at Blandon, Pa., who owns a fine residence at Hyde Park, where he now lives, was born in 1853, in Maiden-creek township, son of John B. and Marie (Griesemer) Rothermel, the former of Maiden-creek, and the latter of Oley township.

Leonard Rothermel, grandfather of Nicholas G., was the owner of the old Rothermel homestead in Maiden-creek township, which he operated all of his life, and which is still in the possession of his heirs. He married a Miss Barnard, and to them were born the following children: David m. Pracilla Rothermel; Leonard m. Catherine Schaeffer; Jeremiah m. Lydia Brown; John B.; Mary m. Wellington Hartman; Hannah m. Leonard Moyer; and Catherine m. Aaron Heckman.

John B. Rothermel followed in the footsteps of his father and made agricultural pursuits his life work. He died on the homestead in 1894, when eighty-six years old, and his wife in 1854, when aged thirty-seven years. Ten children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Rothermel, eight of whom grew to maturity as follows: Louise m. (first) Valentine Schmeck and (second) Henry Neiman; Harrison m. Amanda Guldin; Susanna m. Albert Guldin; Enoch m. (first) Isabella Rothermel and (second) Ida Schler; John m. Emeline Schmehl; Albert G. m. Mary Rothenberger; Jeremiah m. Emeline Rahn; and Nicholas G. In politics Mr. Rothermel was a Republican, and during his long and active life he was honored by election to various township offices.

Nicholas G. Rothermel was educated in the common schools, Friedensburg Academy and the Hill school at Pottstown, and the Keystone State Normal school, Kutztown, after leaving which he entered the employ of Louis Leonard, as clerk in his store at Molltown. He also clerked in J. B. Miller's store at Bernville for two years, when he started a general store at Blandon, in company with A. G. Rothermel, this partnership, under the name of Rothermel Bros., lasting for ten years, at the end of which time he sold his interests to his brother and started on a long trip through the West, visiting eighteen States. He spent one year in Vermilion county, Ill., where he taught school, and then returned East to superintend a store at Yellow House. Later he engaged in the hotel business, having charge of the "Union House," Reading, in company with Daniel Schmeck, under the firm name of Rothermel & Schmeck, but after three years he sold out his interest and purchased a hotel at Moss and Buttonwood streets, which he conducted for twelve years. Mr. Rothermel then became instrumental in organizing the company which built the Muhlenburg brewery, of which he was a salesman and collector for two years, at the end of which time he purchased the "Temple Hotel." After conducting this hostelry for seven months he sold out to Smith & Moore, of Philadelphia, and returned to the Muhlenburg brewery as manager for six years, and then spent two years in retirement. He then purchased Dunkle Brothers coal, lumber and feed business at Blandon, which he has conducted since 1904. Since locating in Hyde Park, Mr. Rothermel has erected a large, two-story brick residence, equipped with all modern improvements and conveniences, which is considered one of the handsomest in the borough.

In 1892 Mr. Rothermel was married to Ida P. Wenrich, daughter of Adam Wenrich, and to this union two children have been born: Helen E. and Nicholas R. Mrs. Rothermel is a member of Alsace Lutheran Church. Mr. Rothermel is a Republican in politics and has served as delegate to State and county conventions and held the office of assistant postmaster. In addition to the enterprises mentioned above, Mr. Rothermel has been instrumental in helping to organize some of the large industries of this section, including the Fleetwood National Bank, and the Reading and Southwestern Railroad.

AMOS BOYER, a representative agriculturist of Robeson township, Berks county, who is carrying on operations on the old Jacobs farm, was born May 14, 1842, in Robeson township, son of William and Susanna (Beard) Boyer.

John R. Boyer, great-grandfather of Amos, was a native of Berks county, whence he went to Tennessee in 1835 and there acquired a large tract of land, which is today very valuable. There he died. He and his wife were members of the M. E. Church, and in political belief Mr. Boyer was a Whig. They had two children: Thomas and John.

Thomas Boyer, grandfather of Amos, was born near Boyertown, Berks county, where he was educated in the common schools, and early in life removed to Robeson township, where he spent the remainder of his days as a collier, burning much charcoal for the furnaces. He also for some time worked at the furnaces at Warwick. In 1862 while on a visit to his son Thomas, Mr. Boyer died, aged eighty-one years. His wife, Elizabeth McGowan, preceded him to the grave by several years. They were Methodists in religious belief. Their children were: William, John, Thomas, Isaac, Mary A., Elizabeth, and Susanna.

William Boyer, father of Amos, was born in Union township, on the line of Robeson. Early in life he engaged in farming by the day among the neighbors, and later purchased a farm, which he operated in connection with hauling iron for the Joanna furnace. He died March 7, 1892, aged seventy-seven years, his wife surviving until 1904, when she died, aged eighty-two years. Ten children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Boyer, as follows: Levi; Amos; John; Henry; William; Leah (m. Levi Fox); Mary A. and Susanna (unmarried); Emily Ida (m. Jacob Peterman); and Ellen C. (deceased). In religious belief the family were Methodists. Mr. Boyer was first a Whig, and later a Republican in politics, and held the office of assessor and supervisor.

Amos Boyer was educated in the schools of Robeson township, and his first teacher, at the old Hay Creek school was Levi Scarlet. After leaving school he engaged in driving his father's team, but in 1862 he went to Robesonia to engage in charcoal burning for the old Penn furnace for three or four weeks. At this time, fired by the news of his brother's death, who had enlisted in the 3rd Pennsylvania Reserves, Mr. Boyer enlisted, Aug. 5, 1862, at Camp Curtin, Harrisburg, under Capt. Heber Smith, in Company A, 128th Pa. V. I., 12th Army Corps. At this time he found that the news of his brother's death was false. He left Harrisburg Aug. 17, 1862, and on Sept. 14th following participated in the battle of South Mountain; Sept. 17th at Antietam; May 1, 2, 3, 1863, at Chancellorsville. He was honorably discharged May 19, 1863, and re-enlisted in July in Company C, 194th Pa. V. I., serving until Nov. 18, 1863, when he was again discharged. In February, 1864, Mr. Boyer again enlisted, this time in Company D, 213th Pa. V. I., serving until the close of the war, when he returned to the peaceful occupations of farming and teaming. Later he engaged as a clerk in the store of G. H. Zerr, with whom he remained about six months, and then rented the Pierce stand at Scarlet's Mill, which he operated until 1871, when he erected the store now occupied by J. H. Eschelman. He was appointed the first postmaster at Scarlet's Mill, where he remained until about 1880, then purchasing the Thomas Lewis property, formerly owned by the Scarlets. Here he remained until 1890, when he sold out to John A. McLannigan, and purchased the old Jacobs farm, better known as the Miller farm, a tract of fertile, well-cultivated land comprising 145 acres. Mr. Boyer is a good, practical agriculturist and works his farm with the latest improved machinery. He has the record of a brave and faithful soldier during the Civil War, and as a man of sterling integrity is respected and esteemed by all who know him.

Mr. Boyer was married to Harriet Beard, daughter of Ezekiel Beard, and a sister of the late George W. Beard, of Reading. Six children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Boyer, namely: William; George; Howard; Martha J.; Susanna, who married Richard Leeds of Harrisburg, Pa.; and Mary, who died in 1876, at the age of three years. Mr. Boyer is a popular comrade of McLean Post No. 16, G. A. R., Reading. He is connected with the Methodist Church, where he has been president of the board of trustees for thirteen years, and was a member of the building committee in 1892, when the church was remodeled. In political matters he is a Republican.

FRANKLIN REEDY. In naming the old and honored families of Berks county, mention is frequently made of that of Reedy, a worthy representative of which is found in Franklin Reedy, a prosperous agriculturist residing in the central part of Marion township. Mr. Reedy was born Dec. 23, 1857, on his father's farm in Tulpehocken township, son of George and Sarah (Trautman) Reedy.

The Reedy family, also spelled Riedy, Ready, Redy, etc., is found mentioned as early as Aug. 27, 1739, when there appear to have landed at Philadelphia persons evidently of German origin, having that surname, as follows: Otto Riedy, aged nineteen years; John Jacob Riedy, aged nineteen; and John Peter, aged sixteen. The Proprietary and State tax lists of Berks county for the years 1767-68-79-80-81-84-85, show a John Peter Reedy (also Riedy, Ready, Redy and Rieder) as of Heidelberg, he being credited with from 100 to 189 acres. He was the ancestor of this family of western Berks county. The tombstone inscriptions at the Corner Church show persons of the name as follows: Catherine Riedi, born May 16, 1800, died March 4, 1865, second wife of Joseph Klopp. Maria Riedy, born Sept. 7, 1794, died April 14, 1868, in wedlock about fifty-three years with John Adam Gruber (Dec. 20, 1798-July 7, 1876). In the graveyard of the North Heidelberg Church is found: Elizabeth Riedy, born Sept. 19, 1795, died Feb. 26, 1850, wife of Jacob Lengel (1796-1858). At Womelsdorf is buried: Amelia Reedy, born April 14, 1815, died Nov. 18, 1898, wife of Daniel M. Fidler (1806-1848). At Hain's Church in the old graveyard is buried Elizabeth Reidi (1794-1854). She was the wife of Philip Bohn (1781-1861).

Christian Reedy, grandfather of Franklin, married Marie Spatz, and their children were: Daniel, of Tulpehocken township, who married Rebecca Troutman; Peter, of Marion township, who married Hannah Inyum; Jacob, of Bethel township; John, who was unmarried; George; Amelia, who married Isaac Kintzer; Gradel, who married a Mr. Lebo; Elizabeth, who married a Mr. Bohn; Sallie Reedy, married to John McCormick; Molly Reedy, married to John Cammerer.

Jacob Reedy, son of Christian, married Molly Straw, and his children were: Jacob obtained the homestead; John; Leah m. William Yoder; Molly m. Samuel Lick; Polly m. Thomas Peiffer; and Caroline had a son Cyrus Smith. Jacob Reedy died between June 1 and June 11, 1872, the dates of the making and probating of his will.

George Reedy, son of Christian and brother of Jacob, was born in 1809, and died in 1882, in North Heidelberg township, and was buried at Host Church. He was a tailor by trade and in connection therewith carried on agricultural pursuits on his 160-acre farm. Mr. Reedy was active in church affairs, being deacon and elder for many years. He married Sarah Trautman, born April 14, 1825, daughter of Jacob Trautman. She died April 14, 1888, and their children were as follows: Henry, who is living retired at Albany, Whiteside Co., Ill., where until 1904 he cultivated a farm of 1300 acres, married Lena Lutz, and they have six children,—Ida, William, Minnie, Bert, Edwin and Bessie; Mary married Adam Klee, of North Heidelberg township; Miss Amelia; Philip; Emma married Ezra Leiss, of North Heidelberg township; and Franklin.

Franklin Reedy remained under the parental roof until twelve years of age, at which time he was hired out among the farmers of his locality, and worked in this manner until 1877, at which time with Adam Klee he went to Whiteside county, Ill. In 1884 he returned to his native county, and the following year was married. Until 1887 he farmed in North Heidelberg township, and in that year went again to Whiteside county, Ill., with his family, where he cultivated 360 acres of land, of which he owned 120 acres and rented 240, for nine years, during which time he had no failing crops. He had about 160 head of cattle and thirty-eight horses, and his operations proved very successful. In 1901 he returned to Marion township, where he purchased the Adam Hain farm of 135 acres of the best land in the county. This tract was originally settled by Hermanus Walborn in 1723, and the Reedy farm is the lower part of this tract, as shown on the Charles Lindenmuth map of early settlers of the Tulpehocken valley. The farm is supplied with good water, the buildings are in excellent condition, and the place is equipped with the latest models of farming implements. Mr. Reedy has about twenty head of cattle, and has ten fine draft horses. In politics he is a Democrat, and since 1903 he has served as a member of the Marion township school board. He was also a school director while he lived in Illinois. He and his family are members of Host Reformed Church, of which he has been a deacon and elder.

In 1885 Mr. Reedy married Susan Ruth, daughter of Jacob and Annie (Reinhold) Ruth, and granddaughter of Christian and Susan (Ludwig) Ruth, and to this union there have been born children as follows: Harry is a conductor on the Philadelphia trolley lines; Gertrude m. Herbert Klopp, of Marion township; and Mabel, Tillie, George, Pearl and Earl are all at home.

ALBERT D. WENRICH, a prominent citizen and retired farmer of Berks county, Pa., who for many years operated in Heidelberg township, is now living a quiet life at Robesonia. He was born June 5, 1850, in Lower Heidelberg township, son of David L. and Molly (Gockley) Wenrich.

Mathias Wenrich, grandfather of Albert D., was born in Lower Heidelberg township, on the Wenrich homestead, and was an extensive farmer all of his life. He died at the farm along the Berks and Dauphin pike, and is buried at the Corner Church, of which he was a member. He married Sophia Kalbach, and to them were born: David L.; Adam, the father of Dr. Reuben; Richard, the father of Robert and Elwood; Franklin, the father of Charles; Emma, Mrs. Frank Miller, of Womelsdorf; and Angemina, Mrs. Jacob Yoder of Wernersville.

David L. Wenrich was born on the Wenrich homestead, and for many years was a prominent farmer of Lower Heidelberg township, on the farm on the pike, now owned by John E. Moyer. Mr. Wenrich was a most substantial citizen and also owned the farm that is now the property of Silas Gaul and that of James Hill. He was a stanch Democrat in politics, was county commissioner from 1857 to 1860, and from 1863 to 1866, prison inspector from 1868 to 1871, and served Lower Heidelberg township as auditor and school director for many years. He was prominent in church matters, being deacon and elder of St. Daniel's (Corner) Church, of Heidelberg township. Mr. Wenrich married Molly (Mary) Gockley, daughter of Dietrich and Eve (Moore) Gockley, and to this union there were born children as follows: Mary, deceased (m. Daniel Althouse, of Womelsdorf); Joanna (married Frank Sheeler, of Robesonia); Elmira G., born Dec. 21, 1841 (m. William Himmelberger, deceased, who conducted the "Eagle Hotel" at Robesonia for many years); Henrietta (died at the age of five months); Wellington, of Waynesboro (m. Hannah Mohler); Aaron M., of Robesonia, warden of the county jail for many years (m. Emma Yost); Albert D.; and Michael A., a farmer of Cumru township (m. Kate Kintzer).

Albert D. Wenrich was educated in the common schools, and later attended Palatinate College at Myerstown, Pa., for two years. He was reared upon the farm, and successfully followed farming until 1887, when he purchased the unfinished Frank Brown mansion, immediately back of Robesonia, which he finished, this being a large, fine brick residence of eleven rooms and all-modern conveniences, which is surrounded by porticos and a well-kept yard. Mr. Wenrich owns one of the finest farms in Berks county, a square tract of 161 acres of the most fertile land, forty acres of which he cut up into building lots, a number of which he sold. This property is the old John L. Fisher farm, and was the Fisher homestead. Fine buildings and spring water are added advantages on this property. For twenty years Mr. Wenrich dealt extensively in cattle. He is one of the most popular men of his community, and is respected and esteemed by all who know him. As a man of good judgment and large means, he is prominent in all public matters in his township and may always be found casting his influence in the direction of progressive movements which promise to be of permanent benefit to his locality. He is a strong Democrat in political matters, for six years was a member of the school board, of which he was also secretary and treasurer, and he is now serving his township in the capacity of supervisor. Mr. Wenrich and his family are members of St. Daniel's (Corner) Church, near Robesonia, of which he has been an official member. This is one of the old churches of Berks county, and many of Mr. Wenrich's ancestors are buried there. Mr. Wenrich owns a fine lot in the cemetery.

On Sept. 30, 1871, Albert D. Wenrich was united in marriage with Mary Fisher, born March 13, 1852, daughter of Riley L. and Matilda (Reber) Fisher. Four children have been born to this union, one son and three daughters, as follows: Annie, who became the wife of Charles Brossman, a leading manufacturer of Reading, Pa., and has four sons,—John, Luke, Mark and Paul; Riley D., who makes his home at Columbus, Ohio, where he is in the service of the American Tobacco Company; Esther, who became the wife of William Dundore, of Womelsdorf; and Matilda May, who died Sept. 27, 1891.

ALBERT H. ADAMS, a prominent citizen of the town of St. Lawrence, Pa., who is engaged in general farming and dairying on his excellent fifty-acre farm in Exeter township, was born Sept. 18, 1859, in Alsace township, son of Israel Adams, and a member of the old Adam family, the present spelling of the name being of recent adoption.

Albert H. Adams was educated in the public schools of Alsace and Exeter townships, and was reared to agricultural pursuits. After attaining his majority he entered the Brucknow Rolling Mills in Douglass township as a heater, where he continued for four years, when he returned to the farm and for one year conducted an eighty-nine-acre property in Douglass township. At this time he removed to the Breneiser farm in Exeter township, a property of 120 acres which he operated for eleven years, and then located on the farm which he now owns, and which he purchased in 1898, thirty-five acres of the fifty being under cultivation. He has good, substantial buildings and the latest farm machinery, and has been very successful in truck farming, fruit growing and dairying, the latter of which he has followed for nineteen years, conducting a route to Reading, and keeping from fourteen to sixteen cows. Mr. Adams is a stockholder in the St. Lawrence Water Company, in which he has been a director and vice president since its organization. He is also a stockholder in the Oley Turnpike Company, and a director and member of the board of managers of same. In politics he is a Democrat, and since 1898 has been a member of the Exeter school board, and Treasurer since 1899. He takes a deep interest in public school affairs in his township, and in spite of strong opposition he succeeded in getting a four-room building erected in the village of St. Lawrence.

On April 23, 1881, Mr. Adams was married to Miss Deborah T. Snyder, daughter of William and Hannah (Tobias) Snyder, the former for many years a justice of the peace in Exeter township. Mr. and Mrs. Adams have had a family of fifteen children, namely: William is deceased; Katie m. William Leinbach, of St. Lawrence, and has three children,—Sarah, Elizabeth and John; Warren, a teacher in the public schools, is now attending Perkiomen Seminary; Harvey, formerly a schoolteacher, is attending State College, Pa.; Charles is a teacher in the public schools; Daniel; Ralph; Milton is deceased; Israel; Albert; Edward is deceased; Hannah; Esther; John; and a son died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Adams are members of Spies's Reformed Church, while their children attend Schwartzwald Church of that denomination.

GEORGE H. HUNTZINGER, a representative citizen of Sinking Spring, Pa., where he has for a number of years been engaged in the cabinet-making business, was born at his present home on Main street, April 2, 1864, son of Daniel and Maria (Heck) Huntzinger.

On Oct. 2, 1742, there landed at Philadelphia, from Germany, two brothers, George and Bernhard Huntzinger, the latter settling in Sullivan county, Pa., and engaging in farming. George went to Schuylkill county, and he, too, became a farmer. He was the father of six sons—Michael, Jacob, George, Henry, John and Daniel—and three daughters.

Michael Huntzinger, son of George, was born March 30, 1789, in Schuylkill county. In young manhood he came to Berks county, and settled near the village of Brownsville, where he improved a good farm. His death occurred June 10, 1845. He married Eva Freiberger, born Dec. 12, 1787, died Nov. 19, 1845, who bore him seven children; Jared, who died Dec. 27, 1892; Daniel; William, a resident of Sinking Spring; and four daughters.

Daniel Huntzinger, son of Michael, was born at the Blue Marsh, Berks county, Nov. 11, 1817, and died Jan. 14, 1906, in his eighty-ninth year, being buried at Sinking Spring, where he was engaged in cabinet making the greater part of his life. For about thirty-five years he was also the leading undertaker of the village, and was a highly esteemed and useful citizen. Mr. Huntzinger was also the owner of a fine farm of thirty-five acres, where he lived for twenty-three years during the early part of his life. In religious belief he was a Lutheran and a member of the Sinking Spring Church, of which he was deacon and elder for many years. Mr. Huntzinger married Maria Heck, daughter of John Heck, and to them were born these children: William, who lives in Reading, and works for the Reading Railroad; Mary, unmarried; Sarah, who married Garson Bickel, a farmer of Heidelberg township; Eve, unmarried; George H.; and Daniel, who died in infancy. Mary and Eve reside on the old family homestead.

George H. Huntzinger obtained a township school education, and when eighteen years of age learned the carpenter's trade from A. L. Crouse, being in that gentleman's employ for four years. He then engaged in the undertaking and cabinet-making business, which he followed twelve years, in 1902 retiring from the latter line to give all of his attention to cabinet-making. He has done all of the wood-work of the Sinking Spring Foundry Company, and still does; he also enjoys a large local trade, which gives him all the work he can do. On discontinuing the undertaking business Mr. Huntzinger took charge of the branch office of Francis F. Seidel, the well known undertaker of Reading. Mr. Huntzinger's fine home in Sinking Spring is situated on Main street, and his shop is located in the rear, he also owning another dwelling house in the town. In 1903, when Sinking Spring Lodge, No. 660, I. O. O. F., was organized, he was elected its treasurer, an office he has held to the present time. He and his family are members of St. John's Lutheran Church, of Sinking Spring, of which he was deacon for two years.

On April 22, 1899, Mr. Huntzinger was united in marriage with Lizzie Hibshman, daughter of John Hibshman. Mr. and Mrs. Huntzinger have had three children: Frank K. and Adam H., who died in infancy; and Henry H., born Oct. 3, 1906.

HOWARD M. HAFER, the popular proprietor of the "Seltzer House," and a leading citizen and councilman of Womelsdorf, Berks Co., Pa., was born in Reading, Oct. 1, 1864, son of William H. and Elizabeth (Miller) Hafer.

Henry Hafer, the progenitor of this family in America, was a native of Mensen, Germany, whence he came to this country and settled in eastern Berks county. He was a redemptioner and had been in bondage for several years.

Henry Hafer, great-grandfather of Howard M., was a farmer in Ruscombmanor township, Berks county. He died in Muhlenberg, and was buried at Alsace Church. His wife was a Lorah, and they had the following children: Matthias; Jacob m. Anna Mee and had a son, Jonathan; Henry m. Harriet Snyder, and resided in Muhlenberg township; Jonas m. Miss Boyer, lived in Muhlenberg township, and had a son Romanus; Katie m. John Moyer, and moved by team to Indiana; and Julia m. George Mee, a miller of Tulpehocken township.

Matthias Hafer, son of Henry, was born in Ruscombmanor township, Nov. 28, 1811, and died in Reading, Feb. 28, 1891, aged eighty years. He was a tailor and farmer by occupation, and in about 1832 removed to Muhlenberg township, where he carried on agricultural pursuits on a small scale and did rough tailoring for the people of his vicinity. He married Hannah Himmelreich, born May 10, 1811, who died July 22, 1875, aged sixty-four years, and to them there were born two children: (1) James H., born in Alsace township in 1835, resides in Philadelphia, where he is a tailor and clerk in a clothing store; he married Hettie Foos, and they had children—Frank, Kate, Tyson, and Alice (deceased). (2) William H. is the father of Howard M.

William H. Hafer was born Feb. 13, 1840, in Alsace (now Muhlenberg) township, and was brought up on the farm, on which he worked until twenty-one years old. He came to Reading, in 1861, where he has since made his home, with the exception of four years when he carried on farming in Exeter township. Mr. Hafer was the proprietor of the "City Hotel" from 1889 to 1895, and from 1896 to 1898 conducted the "Hotel Penn," both of Reading, and made himself well known as a hotel keeper to the traveling public. In politics he is a Democrat, and is much interested in public affairs. He and his family are members of Trinity Lutheran Church.

On Jan. 10, 1864, Mr. Hafer was married to Elizabeth Miller, born Dec. 4, 1840, daughter of Daniel and Elizabeth (Goodman) Miller, the former a blacksmith of Reading, and granddaughter of Jacob and Mary Miller who resided at the old Miller homestead at the northwest corner of Eighth and Franklin streets. Mr. and Mrs. Hafer have been the parents of four sons: Howard M.; Allen H., a carpet store proprietor at Pottsville, Pa., m. Clara Herr, of Philadelphia, and had four children—Elwood (deceased), Claude, Ralph and Allen J.; William, Jr., died in childhood; and Edwin L., who resides at Reading, m. Helen Ott, and has one son, Earle R.

Howard M. Hafer obtained his education in the Reading public schools, after leaving which he learned the coachmaker's trade, and for some time was engaged with George W. Biehl, whose employ he left to enter that of D. S. Esterly, wholesale grocer of Reading, where he remained six years. He then assisted his father in conducting the "City Hotel" for about four years, and Jan. 1, 1893, he purchased the well-known "Seltzer Hotel," at Womelsdorf, Berks county, one of the oldest hostelries in the county, which has had the patronage of the traveling public and the town trade for many years. This hotel, which is still in good condition, was erected in 1798, and is situated on the Dauphin turnpike, midway between Reading and Lebanon. In early days it was the changing place for horses, and President Martin Van Buren stopped at this hotel in 1838. Mr. Hafer keeps a fine house, and has the reputation of keeping one of the best tables of any hotel in Berks county.

In politics Mr. Hafer is an influential Democrat, and has been honored by his townsmen by election to the council since 1899, by overwhelming majorities. He has also been a delegate to numerous county conventions. He was the organizer of the Womelsdorf Volunteer Fire Company, of which he has been chief since its organization in 1895. He is fraternally connected with Williamson Lodge No. 307, F. & A. M., Excelsior Chapter No. 237, R. A. M., Reading; Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T.; and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.; Golden Rule Lodge No. 159, I. O. O. F., of Womelsdorf; Washington Camp, No. 89, P. O. S. of A., of Reading; and the K. G. E., of Womelsdorf. He and his family are members of Trinity Lutheran Church of Reading.

In 1890 Mr. Hafer married Miss Jennie Shulley, born Nov. 7, 1863, daughter of Frederick and Lucretia (Riley) Shulley, farming people of Fairfield, Adams Co., Pa. Two children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Hafer, namely: Marie E., a student at school; and a son, who died in infancy.

MILTON N. WEIDNER, a progressive farmer residing near Friedensburg, Oley township, Berks Co., Pa., was born in Oley township, June 5, 1856, and he comes of an old and honored family, a partial record of which is given below:

(I) Jacob Weidner, great-grandfather of Milton N., was a native of Greshville, Douglass township, where he owned three farms and engaged extensively in agricultural pursuits. One of these farms is now owned by Wm. Davidheiser. For his times Jacob Weidner was a man of wealth and was very influential. He is buried at Boyertown, Pa. To him and his wife, Barbara Weidner, were born children as follows: Peter, Jacob, Daniel W. and Mrs. Albright and one who married and settled in Lancaster county.

(II) Daniel W. Weidner, son of Jacob, was born in Douglass township, Berks Co., Pa., in 1815, and he died about 1878, aged sixty-three years, and is buried at Lobachsville. He married Sarah Reichert, who died about 1881, aged eighty years. Their children were: David, Levi, Mahlon, Daniel R. (father of Milton), Rebecca, Matilda, Wilhelmina, Sarah and Harriet.

(III) Daniel R. Weidner, son of Daniel W., was born in Colebrookdale township, Berks Co., Pa., March 30, 1834. He was reared to farm life, following farming all of his days. He owns a farm of twenty-one acres, but now resides with his son, Milton, having been with him since the death of his wife, whose maiden name was Esther Noll. She was born Dec. 20, 1833, and died Feb. 2, 1907, aged seventy-four years. Their children were: Milton N., and Mary, who married Norvin Zimmerman, and died in 1889, and is buried at Lobachsville, Pa. Mr. Weidner learned the trade of a wheelwright, but never followed it.

When Milton N. Weidner was nineteen years of age he learned the carpenter's trade and followed it for twenty-three years, having helped to build many of the handsome residences of Friedensburg, as well as many of the barns of Oley township. In the fall of 1887, he bought his present home, and owns a fine farm of thirty-three acres. The buildings and premises are in excellent order. The house was built by Daniel Leinbach, a brother of Mrs. Weidner. In addition to the home farm, Mr. Weidner owns a tract of woodland, forty-six acres in extent, located in Oley township. In politics Mr. Weidner is a Democrat. In religious faith he is a Lutheran, while his wife is a member of the Reformed Church.

In 1884 Mr. Weidner married Elizabeth Leinbach, daughter of Samuel Leinbach, and granddaughter of Samuel Leinbach. Mr. and Mrs. Weidner have four children: Edna I., Verna and Hettie, all at home; and Daniel, who died in infancy. Mr. Weidner and his family are highly respected in their neighborhood.

JACOB C. GOTTSHALL, who is conducting a thriving business in the beautiful borough of Fleetwood, Pa., with his bakery situated on Main street, was born March 18, 1856, at Schwenkville, Montgomery county, son of Rev. Moses H. Gottshall.

William Gottshall of Schwenkville, Pa., grandfather of Jacob C., was married to Magdalena Hunsberger, and to them were born these children: Dillman; Abraham, who died in infancy; William; Adam; Joseph; Moses; Andrew; John; Jacob; Abraham; Elizabeth and Hannah. The father of these children died in his ninety-second year, his son, William also attaining advanced age, dying in 1901, aged ninety-five years. Numerous members of the Gottshall family have been Mennonite ministers, and at present Moses H. Gottshall (father of Jacob C.), Abraham Gottshall (uncle of Jacob C.), William Gottshall (a brother), and Harvey Allebach (a nephew) are ministers of that faith in Montgomery county.

Rev. Moses H. Gottshall was born March 25, 1815, and died in 1888, having been a New Mennonite minister of the Gospel for nearly fifty years, preaching at Schwenkville for forty-two consecutive years. This charge was supplied by members of the Gottshall family for more than sixty years. In addition to his ministerial duties Rev. Mr. Gottshall operated a farm of 100 acres which had been in the family name for over a century. He was first married to Hannah Clemens, and to this union were born children as follows: Katie m. John Allebach, of the Skippack; Lizzie, deceased, m. Jacob R. Allebach, merchant at Green Lane; Maggie m. David Wasser, miller, at Schwenkville, and both are deceased; Henry died aged twenty-four years; Moses and Hannah died in infancy from croup; Moses (2) m. Annie Stauffer, of Kraussdale, Montgomery county; and Jacob C. Mr. Gottshall m. (second) Mary Shelly, and two children were born to this union: Hannah died in infancy; and William m. Nancy Von Neida, of Lancaster county.

Jacob C. Gottshall received his education in the schools of his native place, and was reared to farm work. In 1893 he removed to Fleetwood and engaged in the baking business, which he has continued with much success to the present time. His business has grown rapidly, and he now employs two teams, his bakery being fitted up with the latest and most improved machinery. On Sept. 4, 1880, he married Sarah W. Urffer, daughter of Daniel Y. and Susannah (Weigner) Urffer, of Sassamansville, Montgomery county, and to this union have been born: Alice U., m. to Howard Brown, of Fleetwood, Pa.; Howard U.; Ezra U.; and Jacob U.

Mr. Gottshall is a member of the Mennonite Church, which he attends regularly and supports liberally. He is a Republican, but he has never taken more than a good citizen's interest in political matters, preferring to give his time and attention to his business. He is greatly esteemed in his community, where his many sterling traits of character and mind are recognized and appreciated.

JOHN F. RENTSCHLER, proprietor of the "Farmers and Drovers Hotel," at Centreport, was born in Centre township, Berks county, Oct. 30, 1868, son of George K. and grandson of Michael Rentschler. The Rentschler family is of German origin, and was planted in the New World about the close of the war of the Revolution.

Michael Rentschler lived near St. Michael's Church in Centre township, and was there engaged extensively in farming. He was a very large land owner, and was one of the influential men of that locality. He married a Miss Kauffman, and their children were: Joseph K., born Feb. 16, 1842 (died Feb. 29, 1876), Michael and George K.

George K. Rentschler was born in Centre township, and there lived all his life engaged in farming, and also to a very large extent in burning lime. He married Amanda Fichthorn, and their children were: Frank, born Sept. 17, 1852, living at Lititz, Pa.; James, born May 24, 1854, of Lititz; Elmira, born Dec. 20, 1856, who married Adam Heydt; Fayetta, born Dec. 26, 1858, who married John Zechman; George W., born April 12, 1861, living in Alsace township; Alfred, born Oct. 22, 1863, of Bernville; Michael, born April 26, 1867, who died young; John F.; Emma R., born Jan. 1, 1871, who married Lewis Weirich, and is now deceased; Isabella, born May 19, 1872, who died young; Charles, born May 8, 1874, of Bernville. Mr.

Rentschler died Aug. 20, 1891, aged sixty-seven. His wife died in 1898. They were both buried at Bernville.

John F. Rentschler attended the Penn school in Penn township, and worked with his father until he was twenty-one years old. He then for eleven years was employed as clerk in the Morris Rentschler Hotel at Bernville, becoming thoroughly familiar with the duties of "host." In 1900 he came to his present pleasant location, buying out the well known "Farmers and Drovers Hotel." There is a hall connected, known as the "Philo Hall," wherein all the business of the town is transacted, such as the meetings of the township school board, and those of the election board, road commissioners, etc.

On Oct. 22, 1898, Mr. Rentschler was married to Miss Pruella, daughter of Elias and Sarah (Kantner) Daniel. No children have been born to this union. Mr. Rentschler is a member of Camp No. 113, P. O. S. of A., of Bernville; Bernville Lodge No. 122, I. O. O. F.; and Shepherds of Bethlehem, No. 60, of Centreport. In politics he is a Democrat, and he has served efficiently on the election board in Bernville. In their religious faith he and his wife are members of the Lutheran and Reformed Churches, respectively. They are highly esteemed, and very popular in the community that knows them so well.

MORRIS J. GEISS, one of West Reading borough's well known citizens, who has for a number of years been engaged in the carpenter business, was born Dec. 16, 1867, at Bernville, Berks county, son of Harrison and Amelia (Lengel) Geiss.

The first American of the Geiss family was George Adam Geiss, who was born Jan. 4, 1725, and who emigrated to this country from his native land. He married Anna Barbara Haag, born July 31, 1738, and died Aug. 17, 1814. He died Jan. 29, 1784. Their children were: George Adam, born April 11, 1759; Catherine, June 19, 1760; John Michael, Jan. 12, 1762; Philip Jacob, Sept. 6, 1763; and Barbara, March 7, 1765.

John Geiss, son of George Adam and grandfather of Morris J., was a successful farmer of Bernville, Penn township, where he owned 400 acres of land. He died at the age of seventy-three years, the father of these children: Samuel, Jacob, Levi, John, Mary (m. Peter Kershner) and Harrison. All of the foregoing children are deceased with the exception of Jacob, who lives in Reading.

Harrison Geiss was born in Penn township, where early in life he followed coopering. At the time of his father's death he received seventy-three acres of land as a share of the latter's estate, and here he made many improvements, erecting all the buildings on this farm, which is now owned by ex-Sheriff Fahrenbach of Berks county. Here Mr. Geiss died at the age of seventy years, and was buried at Bernville. Mr. Geiss m. (first) Amelia Lengel, who died at the age thirty-eight years, leaving children: Monroe (a sawyer of Reading); Darius (a farmer of Lancaster county); Violanda (m. Frank Stoudt, of North Heidelberg township); Henry (of Bernville); Rosabella (m. Isaac Bear); Milton (a farmer of Schaefferstown); Morris J.; and Katie (m. Isaac Lash). Mr. Geiss m. (second) Sarah Smith, daughter of Isaac Smith, of Schaefferstown, and to this union there were born four children: Aaron; Alice (m. Edward Stirner); Harrison (of Bernville, m. Edith Eagen); and Mary (m. William Long, the historian of this family).

Morris J. Geiss attended the schools of Penn township until sixteen years of age, and then worked for his father for a few years, after which he learned the milling trade at Hiester's Mills, which he followed for twelve years. He subsequently learned the carpenter's trade with George W. Beard & Co., of Reading, being identified with this company for seven years. He was with Mr. Fissler for two years, and since June, 1905, has been foreman for H. J. Raudenbush, the well known contractor. In 1896 Mr. Geiss located in West Reading, purchasing a home at No. 524 Penn avenue, where he has ever since resided.

On April 20, 1889, Mr. Geiss married Katie A. Wahl, daughter of James and Rebecca (Krick) Wahl, of Berks county, and to this union have been born two children: Raymond and Florence. In politics Mr. Geiss is a Democrat, and in September, 1907, he was elected to the council of West Reading borough, to take the place of James N. Hain, whose death occurred in August of that year. He is a member of Bethany Lutheran Church at West Reading, has served in the church council, and for six years was a deacon therein. Fraternally he is connected with the P. O. S. of A., the Carpenters' Union, and the Knights of Malta. He is a skilled mechanic, and has the full confidence of his employer and the respect and esteem of his fellow workmen.

HENRY MARTYN DECHERT. In considering the prominent and representative men of Reading, Berks Co., Pa., the name and personality of Henry Martyn Dechert comes readily to mind as lawyer, financier and citizen. Mr. Dechert was born at Reading, March 11, 1832, son of Elijah and Mary Williams (Porter) Dechert. His father was a prominent member of the Reading Bar.

The family is of German extraction, descending from Capt. Peter Dechert, who emigrated from Rotterdam to Pennsylvania in 1752, and became the owner of a farm of 185 acres in Cumru township, Berks county. From Jan. 5, 1776, to Feb. 3, 1777, he was captain of a company recruited, for service in the Revolution, in the vicinity of Reading, and saw service in New York; they were captured, Nov. 16, 1776, by Howe's army. On July 19, 1784, his widow Elizabeth applied for an order of sale to dispose of certain real estate. In a later petition the children named are John, William, Jacob, Peter, Michael, Daniel and the petitioner, George.

John Dechert, son of Capt. Peter, was a farmer in the western section of Berks county. He married Deborah Davis, daughter of James Davis. They had five children, namely: (1) Elijah is mentioned below. (2) Johan, born May 5, 1790, died Dec. 5, 1864, aged seventy-four years, seven months. He married Maria Strunk, born Feb. 24, 1793, died Oct. 14, 1881, aged eighty-eight years, seven months, twenty days. (3) Daniel married Maria Magdalena Lerch. (4) Hannah, born June 4, 1795, died Aug. 18, 1815. (5) Samuel, born Jan. 7, 1808, in Berks county, settled in Miamisburg, Ohio, and was engaged in the mercantile business. He died in Springfield, Ohio, April 7, 1884. He married Caroline E. Hoff, born in Lancaster, Pa., Sept. 7, 1808, died Dec. 4, 1886, in Springfield, Ohio, and they had six children: Frank William, born Nov. 14, 1830, died in California; Clara Maria, born Nov. 25, 1832, married Dr. Isaac Kay, Nov. 4, 1852, and they live in Springfield, Ohio (they have had two sons, Charles S., now aged fifty-four years, and Clarence K., now aged fifty-two years, both living in Springfield); George Leonard, born Dec. 29, 1834, died March 1, 1891; Henry David, born Jan. 1, 1836, died Oct. 29, 1853; Margaret Deborah, born Nov. 18, 1838, died Aug. 10, 1875; Clay Harrison, born Sept. 2, 1841, is living in Germantown, Ohio.

Elijah Dechert, son of John, who was born in Spring township, Berks county, Oct. 15, 1799, died in Philadelphia June 14, 1854. He married Mary Williams, daughter of the Hon. Robert Porter, president judge of the judicial district comprising Berks, Northampton and Lehigh counties. Mr. Dechert was a prominent member of the Reading Bar, and on account of ill health moved to Philadelphia in 1852. Two of his sons became prominent there, Henry M. and Robert P. The latter, Robert Porter Dechert, was a distinguished soldier as lieutenant-colonel of the 29th Pennsylvania Volunteers from 1861 to 1865; was city controller for six years; and at the time of his death, May 12, 1894, was brigadier-general commanding the 1st Brigade, N. G. P. He was a leading member of the Philadelphia Bar at the time of his death.

On the maternal side Mr. Dechert is of Irish extraction. The Porter family derives descent from Robert Porter,

Sincerely Yours
Henry K. Beckert

who emigrated from Belfast, Ireland, in 1720, and became a farmer at Norristown, Pa. He was the father of Col. Andrew Porter, of the Fourth Regiment of Pennsylvania artillery. The mother of Mr. Dechert was a daughter of his son, Hon. Robert Porter, once presiding judge of the judicial district comprising Berks, Northampton and Lehigh counties, a lieutenant of the Fourth Pennsylvania Line during the Revolutionary war.

Henry Martyn Dechert was educated primarily in the schools of his native city, and then entered Yale College, where he was graduated in 1850. After two years of experience as principal of Mt. Pleasant Academy for Boys, at Boyertown, Pa., he took up the study of law, first in his father's office at Reading, and later in the office of Charles B. Penrose, Esq., of Philadelphia, and was admitted to the Bar in 1854. Being of studious habits, a ready and effective speaker, he soon achieved success in general practice, particularly in the trial of cases before the various courts. He early adopted as a specialty real estate and Orphan's Court practice. In 1862 and 1863 he volunteered for service in the Union army and served as lieutenant of the 23d and the 40th Pennsylvania regiments.

Mr. Dechert practised law for thirty-two years, becoming prominent in the profession. In 1886, on the foundation of The Commonwealth Title, Insurance and Trust Company, he was chosen its president and held the position until 1906, when after twenty years' service, he declined re-election on account of his age and was chosen chairman of the board and of the executive committee, which position he continues to occupy. The corporation, which has become an important factor in the financial life of Philadelphia, has been notably successful. The stock is held by lawyers, capitalists, conveyancers and real estate brokers.

Mr. Dechert is a director in several other financial institutions; is president of the State Asylum for the Chronic Insane of Pennsylvania, the institution situated at South Mountain, Berks county; is president of the West Philadelphia Institute, of the Young Men's Institute, of the Western Home for Poor Children and of the Midnight Mission for Wayward Girls; and is vice-president of the Pennsylvania Society to Protect Children from Cruelty. He is a member of Meade Post, No. 1, G. A. R.; of the Sons of the Revolution; and of the Art, Lawyers, Belmont and University Clubs, of Philadelphia, and of the Pennsylvania Bar Association. He is treasurer of the Sinking Fund of the Grand Lodge of the F. & A. M. of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Dechert was married Sept. 15, 1857, to Esther S., daughter of Thomas S. Taylor. She died Nov. 6, 1890. Of their four children two sons and one daughter survive: Henry T. Dechert, a leading member of the Bar of Philadelphia, and late colonel of the 2d Regiment, N. G. P.; Edward P., a journalist; and Bertha M., wife of Charles H. Gale, a lawyer of Cleveland, Ohio.

CHARLES S. KACHEL, who is engaged in truck farming in Brecknock township, is one of the most popular citizens of his locality, and has been prominent in church, public and business circles. He was born on one of the Kachel homesteads in Brecknock township, April 19, 1854.

After leaving the public school, Mr. Kachel engaged in farming on his father's place until he was twenty-two years old, at which time he learned the carpenter's trade with August Hartz, in whose employ he continued for upward of ten years. He then engaged in this business for himself, being so employed for twenty-two years, during the last eight years of which he worked as a boss carpenter. Mr. Kachel is a jack-of-all-trades, being a blacksmith, wheelwright, painter and carpenter. In 1888 he removed to Knauer's where he had during the previous year purchased a seventeen-acre tract, and here in 1898 he erected an entirely new set of buildings, having one of the most valuable farms for its size in the township.

Mr. Kachel was organist of Allegheny Church from 1882 until 1904, and during these twenty-two years he officiated at 332 funerals; his diary, in which he records the date of funeral, age of deceased, and the text of the sermon, makes a very valuable register. He also was organist at the Wyomissing (Gouglersville) Church, from 1889 to1893, and he and his family now worship at Allegheny Church, the old burial place of the Kachels. Mr. Kachel was a member and attendant of the Sunday school from the age of fifteen years, and since eighteen years of age has been superintendent of the Allegheny and Maple Grove Sunday schools. In political matters he is a stanch Democrat, and has served the township as school director, assessor, tax collector and township committeeman for several years, and is at present treasurer of the road master's board.

On June 27, 1885, Mr. Kachel married Ellen E. Kramer, daughter of Samuel and Julia (Ziemer) Kramer, and five children were born to this union: Elsie M., Lewis M., Howard L., Julia E. and Mamie E.

DAVID E. BAVER, a well known citizen of Windsor township, who conducts a farmers' dairy and a small farm, situated along the State road, east of Hamburg, was born Jan. 20, 1860, on the old Baver homestead, son of Joseph and Mary (Focht) Baver.

Christoph Baver, grandfather of David E., was born Jan. 14, 1777, and died March 5, 1865, after a lifetime devoted to farming and blacksmithing. He is said to have been an excellent mechanic, and to have enjoyed a large trade, the blacksmiths at that time being very scarce and living far apart. He also raised considerable flax, which was woven into clothes in the winter months by his faithful wife. On July 14, 1805, Christoph Baver married Susanna Elizabeth Boyer (born Jan. 6, 1787, and died Jan. 25, 1865). These sturdy pioneers lived together for the unusual period of fifty-seven years, seven months and twenty-one days, their married life being made happy by the birth of the following children: Polly (m. Jacob Stitzel); Samuel (m. Lydia Focht); John (m. Hanna Focht); David (m. Maria Miller); Elizabeth (m. Jeremiah Focht); Daniel, born in 1825, died single in 1849; Joseph (father of David E.); Ann (m. Jacob Miller); and Amelia (m. Bill Marshall).

Joseph Baver, who was a blacksmith, a trade he had been taught by his father, owned the old Baver homestead now in the possession of Albert Smith, of Windsor township, this farm consisting of 110 acres which Mr. Baver worked with the assistance of his children. A disastrous fire occurred on this place in May, 1888, in destroying all of the buildings, even the pump being burned, the furniture in the house and the contents of the barn and outbuildings, the poultry, a mule and a calf. The fire which was caused by the children who were left alone in the house, occurred on a windy day and it was impossible to check it. This was a very severe blow to Mr. Baver, as there was little insurance on any of the property. He was well and favorably known in his community, serving his district as school director and auditor, and was captain in the State Militia, belonging to one of the companies from upper Berks county. He was deeply interested in public matters, and took a prominent and influential part in politics. Mr. Baver married Mary Focht, daughter of Jeremiah Focht, and to them were born children as follows: Amanda (m. Samuel Wolfe); Frank (m. Priscilla Schappell); Simon, twin of Frank (m. Annie Luckenbill); Alfred F. (m. (first) Ellen Seidel, now deceased, and (second) Lizzie Williams); Joel (died aged twenty-five years); Sarah (unmarried, keeps house for her cousin, Frank Focht); David E.; Louisa (widow of William Starr); Senora (m. Jacob Rausch); Andora (m. Thomas Rausch); Samuel (died of whooping cough when a child).

David E. Baver was educated in the local schools and at the age of twenty-two years learned the trade of coachmaker from his brother, who had a large shop on the old homestead. He worked at this trade for six years, and in 1886 commenced farming on his father-in-law's estate, and after the latter's death, Mr. Baver purchased the property. It consists of thirty-two acres of fertile land, and because of the richness of the soil, its proximity to Hamburg, the excellent buildings thereon and the beautiful lawn surrounding the residence, this home has been admired by many visitors to the community. Mr. Baver also owns four acres of woodland in the Blue mountains. He has a home cream separator and with his own milk and that brought him by farmers of his vicinity he manufactures a fine quality of print butter that is in much demand in the homes of this section. He also deals in eggs and produce, being a sort of clearing house for the agriculturists of his district. Mr. Baver is an honest, industrious and enterprising citizen, of much business acumen, and he is held in high esteem by his fellow townsmen. In political matters he is a Democrat and supports the ticket of that party loyally. He and his family are Lutheran members of St. John's Union Church, of Hamburg, of which Mr. Baver has always been a liberal supporter. Mrs. Baver is well known in church and society circles, and she and her husband have many friends.

On Dec. 4, 1886, Mr. Baver married Miss Mary M. Gerhart, daughter of Francis S. and Diana (Becker) Gerhart, and granddaughter of Jacob and Mary (Sallada) Gerhart. To this union there has been born one son, Earl Raymond, Nov. 21, 1899.

THOMAS W. REED, who is cultivating one of the Reed homesteads near Stouchsburg, Marion township, was born in Marion township, Berks county, Feb. 14, 1856, son of Daniel B. and Jermina (Klopp) Reed.

Michael Ritt (Reith, Reed), one of the pioneers from the Livingstone Manor, and later from the Schoharie, N. Y., came to the Tulpehocken settlement in Berks county in 1723, and there took up land lying adjacent to the land of John Leonard Rith and George Reith. The relationship of Michael, John Leonard and George Reith is not known, but there is no doubt that they were related, probably being cousins. The map of the Tulpehocken settlement, made by Mr. Charles Lindenmuth, a very accurate work made with much difficulty, shows the location of the Reith settlements. This map was published in the "Pennsylvania German," Volume V, in October, 1904, and appears also in this work. Michael's will was made March 15, 1754, and it was entered Oct. 11th of that year, consequently his death must have occurred between these dates. In the will he bequeathed to his wife Barbara all the estate during her widowhood; to his eldest son, John Casper, that tract of land at the Swatara consisting of 150 acres, valued at £100; to his sons John Michael and Daniel the plantation he then lived on, with 202 acres therewith belonging, at 600 pounds valuation; to daughter Anna Catrina Katterman even share with the rest of the children, except seventy pounds for the land signed to her husband Jacob Katterman, they helping the children she had by her first husband, George Anspach; the children of his deceased daughter Margaret, wife of Jacob Emerich, —Andreas, Catrina and Elizabetha, to have their mother's equal share of the estate, and the remainder of the estate to all children, viz.: John Casper, John Michael, Daniel, Catrina Katterman, deceased daughter Margaret's children, Anna Maria, Rosina, Anna Magdalena Haffner, Elizabeth Dries and Maria Barbara Schwengel. The executors of the will were Michael's wife Maria Barbara, and his son-in-law, Niolus Schwengel, and it was witnessed by Jacob Artz, Peter Ritt and Samuel Weiser.

Daniel Reed, son of Michael, and great-grandfather of Thomas W., was born Feb. 25, 1735, and died June 14, 1797. He made his will March 20, 1797, and this was probated July 1, 1797, extracts therefrom being as follows: "To oldest son, Christian, fifty pounds; to son Benjamin, my plantation whereon I now dwell in Tulpehocken containing 101 acres for 1,350 pounds; to the other children, viz.: Christian, Daniel, John, Catherine, Christina, Elizabett, Barbara and Maria Lydia, 150 pounds each." He also provided amply for his wife. The executors of the will were his sons John and Benjamin, and it was witnessed by Jacob Reith and Jacob Miller.

Benjamin Reed, grandfather of Thomas W., was born Feb. 8, 1777, and died April 7, 1828. He was married to Eva Maria Wagner, daughter of Jacob and Catherine Wagner, who was born March 18, 1776, and died May 9, 1847. On the tombstone of Benjamin Reed is an inscription stating that he had two sons and four daughters, but it is probable that one son died in youth, as no trace is obtainable of him. The other children were: Catherine (born June 13, 1805, died Aug. 9, 1834) m. John Reed (born in 1806, died in 1835); Sarah m. Daniel Burkholder; Maria (Polly) m. George Peter Peiffer; a daughter died aged seventeen years; and Daniel B.

Daniel B. Reed was born Jan. 8, 1812, and died at Stouchsburg, June 26, 1891, in his eightieth year. He was a farmer by occupation, and owned one of the old Reed homesteads of 104 acres, on which in 1855 he built a barn, and several years later a brick house. He was a Republican in political matters, and his religious connection was with the Lutheran Church, where he held an official position, and where he was buried. He married Jermina Klopp, and their children were: Franklin B., who died on one of the Reed farms in 1903; Clarissa, who died aged seventeen years; Fianna, who died young; John A., who died in infancy; Almon, who died on Thanksgiving Day, 1905, aged fifty-nine years; Mary, deceased wife of Edmond Fisher, and Thomas W.

Thomas W. Reed remained on the home farm with his parents until seventeen years of age, at which time he learned the trade of cigar making, an occupation which he followed for sixteen years at Stouchsburg. In 1892 he engaged in farming a fifty-four acre tract, which he had purchased during that year from the John Potteiger estate, and here he has since made many improvements, including the erection of a number of substantial buildings. His farm is supplied with modern machinery, and he keeps nine head of cattle and four horses. In addition to this property, Mr. Reed owns eight acres and an excellent residence at Stouchsburg, where a son-in-law, Clayton Potteiger, now resides. Mr. Reed is a Republican in politics. He belongs to Reed's Lutheran Church, of which he was a deacon, elder and trustee for more than seventeen years.

In 1888 Mr. Reed married Kate Richardson, daughter of Reuben and Sarah (Deppen) Richardson, and they have had three children, namely: Mary J.; Maggie S. (m. Clayton Potteiger, of Stouchsburg); and Charles T. (at home assisting his father).

FREDERICK MOYER, a prominent agriculturist of Heidelberg township, Berks county, who is also engaged in operating a saw mill in the South Mountains, above Robesonia, Pa., was born at Millcreek, Lebanon Co., Pa., Oct. 20, 1855, son of Daniel U. and Sarah (Painter) Moyer.

Frederick Moyer, grandfather of Frederick, was but nine years old when his father, who was a Revolutionary soldier of the Hessian forces, sent here by England to fight against the Colonists, died. Frederick Moyer was born about 1796, and died near Robesonia, in his eighty-second year, and was buried at the Corner Church, of which he was a Lutheran member. He was reared in Millcreek, Lebanon county, and when a young man located at the South Mountains, where he built a home and barn and cultivated a tract of eighty acres of land until his death. Mr. Moyer married Katie Ulrich, daughter of George Ulrich, and to them were born these children: Jonathan (a farmer of near Robesonia); Catherine and Rebecca (died unmarried); Daniel U.; Susanna (m. Peter Boyer); John (died unmarried); and Mary and Peter (died young).

Daniel U. Moyer was born March 14, 1831, on the Moyer homestead in Millcreek, Lebanon county, and died Jan. 25, 1875, having been a farmer and iron worker all of his life. He was also interred at the Corner Church. Mr. Moyer married Sarah Painter, who was born Sept. 29, 1834, and now lives with her son, David, at Robesonia. She is a daughter of Jacob and Barbara (Hossler) Painter, of Heidelberg township. To Mr. and Mrs. Moyer these children were born: Mary, m. Charles Burkholder of Sheridan, Pa.; Frederick; Rebecca, m. the late Frank Kepley, and resides near Robesonia; Daniel lives at Richland, Pa.; Susan m. Samuel Mardarness, of Robesonia; Jacob died young; Urias is of Robesonia; Sallie m. Samuel Wortluft, of Wyomissing; Katie died aged eight years; Amanda m. John Deppen, of Womelsdorf; and David is of Robesonia.

Frederick Moyer was reared to farming, and when nineteen years of age commenced working in the furnace at Robesonia. This work he was compelled to give up after twenty-one years on account of ill health, and he then purchased his sawmill property in the South Mountains, a tract of nine acres. He soon began to prosper, and by earnest effort and strict attention to business was able in 1903 to purchase the old Putt homestead near his sawmill, a property of sixty-two acres of fertile land, furnished with good, substantial buildings, the barn having been erected in 1897. In 1901 he purchased another sawmill, which he has operated to the present time, employing from five to ten men, and in addition he owns several dwellings in Robesonia, which he has rented.

Mr. Moyer married, Sept. 19, 1885, Annie Hoover, daughter of Benjamin and Emma (Fox) Hoover, and to them eight children were born: Harvey D., born July 10, 1886; Calvin L., April 29, 1888 (died Oct. 8, 1889); Frederick A., Jan. 18, 1889; Benjamin F., Sept. 23, 1892; Charles W., Nov. 25, 1894; Emma M., Feb. 8, 1900; an infant daughter; and Virgie S., Jan. 3, 1903. Mrs. Moyer died March 28, 1908. Mr. Moyer is a well known Lutheran member of St. Daniel's Church, near Robesonia, to which Mrs. Moyer also belonged.

GEORGE W. SHAFFNER, postmaster at Host, Pa., where he is engaged in a general mercantile business, is a representative citizen of Berks county and belongs to one of the early established families of Pennsylvania. Mr. Shaffner was born at Host, Berks county, Pa., March 5, 1851, son of William and Louisa (Rick) Shaffner, whose other children were: Celesta, Mary, Ellen, Lizzie, Nora and John.

George W. Shaffner secured his education in the public schools of his native township. Prior to 1866, he resided for a time at Rehrersburg, Berks county, but in the above year he became a member of the household of his uncle, the late Jacob Shaffner, at Host. He worked as a clerk in his uncle's general store until 1882, when he formed a copartnership with his uncle, and this association lasted until November, 1907, when he purchased the entire interest. Since then he has conducted the business alone. Mr. Shaffner is unmarried, and for the past forty-one years has made his home with his estimable aunt, Mrs. Amelia Shaffner.

In politics Mr. Shaffner is affiliated with the Democratic party, and he has frequently been a delegate to both county and State conventions. Since 1898 he has been postmaster. He is a director of the Sinking Spring Mutual Fire Insurance Company.

W. H. BITLER, an auctioneer, merchant and justice of the peace of Gibraltar, Pa., where he is known as a representative and substantial citizen, was born March 14, 1844, in Robeson township, Berks county, son of Elisha and Ellen (Wolf) Bitler.

Daniel Bitler, grandfather of W. H., was a native of Robeson township, where he owned a farm of 214 acres of land, now known as the Robeson Dairy Farm. There his death occurred. He and his wife were Methodists in their religious belief. Their children were: John married Susan Bixler, and had two children, Mary and Elizabeth; Jacob m. Margaret Wamsher, and had two children, both of whom are now deceased; Daniel m. Eva Freese, and had eleven children, Levi, John, Samuel, Henry, Michael, Mary, Hannah, Eva A., Elizabeth, Christiana and Daniel; Elisha; David was never married; Michael m. Elizabeth Kachel, and had one child, Susanna; Henry m. Mary A. Kennedy, and had two children, George W., and Mary (m. Simon Clouser); Charles m. Christian Geiger, and had one child, Elizabeth; Polly m. Silas Yocum; and Abigail m. Eli Dickinson. In politics Daniel Bitler, the father, was a stanch Whig.

Elisha Bitler, father of W. H., was educated in the schools of Robeson township, and remained on the home farm until eighteen years of age, when he learned the wheelwright's trade, an occupation which he followed in connection with farming practically all of his life. He died in 1889, at the age of eighty-nine years, and his wife, Ellen Wolf, in 1874. He was a Republican in politics, and for some years served as township auditor. Eight children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Bitler, seven of whom grew to maturity: Samuel, deceased, m. Jane O'Neil, and had children, Elias (now deceased), Benjamin, Heber, William, Jacob, Mary E. and Annie; Sarah A. m. William Hagy and had children, Mary E., Emma C., Anna E., William K., Sarah J., Harry B. and Irvin; Eliza m. John Wells and had three children, Scott, Lydia and Sally; David m. Mary Keim, and had children, Clara, Annie, Florence, George, Elizabeth, Sally, David and Nellie; Elias m. Mary Stauffer, and had children, Charles, William, Edward, Elmer, David and Heber; Ellen m. Daniel Z. Kline, and had three children, Emma, Harvey and George, M. D.; and William H. In religious belief the family were Methodists.

William H. Bitler was educated in the schools of Robeson township, where he taught for a period of fourteen years. He left home at the age of eighteen years to attend Chester Academy, and he later took a course at the Keystone State Normal School. Engaging with the Seyfert McManus Iron Company, he worked as puddler, but after several years he returned to farming, which he made his chief occupation until 1901. He accumulated a fine property of seventy-two acres, in Robeson township, and in this year purchased the grocery stock of J. J. Eshelman, at whose old stand he has since carried on a successful general mercantile business. Since 1877 he has served as an auctioneer. A stanch Republican in politics Mr. Bitler was commissioned a justice of the peace in 1884. He and his family are Methodists. He is fraternally connected with Union Lodge, F. & A. M., of Birdsboro, Pa., and Washington Camp No. 592, P. O. S. of A.

On Jan. 16, 1868, Mr. Bitler married Lucinda Kennedy, daughter of Thomas Kennedy, and eight children have been born to this union: Laura m. B. F. Hohl, and has five children, Alice, Annie, Mabel, Willie and Laura; Charles m. Annie Moyer, and has two children, Beulah and Oralea; Britton m. Minnie O'Neal, and has one child, Hazel B.; Annie m. Harry Peiffer, and has three children, Harry, Emily and Bessie; Elizabeth m. George O. Starke, and has children, Warren, Lester, Ruth, David, Naomi and Mathew; Mary m. Lewis Hadley, and has three sons, George W., Lester and Noble; William K. m. Sallie Lebo, and has one son, Matthew W.; and Harry B. m. Gussie Moyer, and has one son, Russell M.

FRANK R. WANNER, now living retired from active work in West Reading, is a native of Spring township, born Feb. 5, 1853.

The first of the family to come to America was Michael Wanner, who left his home in Germany in 1733. He had six children, namely: Christian; Jacob (m. Mary Elizabeth Dreibelbis); Peter (m. Magdalena Dreibelbis); Margaret (m. a Burghart); Mrs. Muthart; and Mrs. Angostadt. On coming to America Michael Wanner settled in Richmond township. Old settlers, as well as those who have delved deeply into genealogical records, claim that the Wanners were Huguenots and of French descent, the early home being in Alsace-Lorraine, whence they went into Bavaria.

Daniel Wanner, father of Frank R., was a respected citizen of Spring township, and he devoted his active years to farming. He died Jan. 11, 1888, aged seventy-three years, ten months and twenty-three days, and was buried at Sinking Spring. His wife, Elizabeth Rothermel, died Feb. 18, 1894, aged seventy-seven years, two months and sixteen days. Their children were: John, Sarah (deceased), Daniel R., Catherine (died June 14, 1897), William, Frank R., Emma, Mary and George. The children were all reared in the faith of the Reformed church. Daniel Wanner, the father, was a Democrat.

Frank R. Wanner, son of Daniel and the subject of this sketch, spent his boyhood upon his father's farm, on which he worked until he was of age. He then began farming it for himself, so continuing for seven years. In 1893 he came to West Reading, and in 1895 he erected his large brick residence on Penn avenue, where he makes his home. This is a beautiful three-story brick dwelling, tastefully furnished, and surrounded by a well-kept lawn.

In his political principles Mr. Wanner is a stanch Democrat, and he has taken an active interest in party work. On Nov. 6, 1888, he was elected jury commissioner of Berks county, receiving the remarkable vote of 17,987, and in this office he served most acceptably for three years. With his family he belongs to the Reformed congregation at Sinking Spring. He is a man who can count his friends by the number of his acquaintances, and he bears an enviable reputation for honesty and integrity.

On Feb. 14, 1875, Mr. Wanner married Emma Williams, born Feb. 13, 1856, daughter of Conrad and Mary Ann (Miller) Williams. She died Nov. 14, 1895, leaving one daughter, Lillie Medora, who married William H. Riegel, a clerk in Obold's hardware store, and has three children, Marion E., Helen C. and William F. Mr. and Mrs. Riegel reside with Mr. Wanner, keeping his home bright and cheerful.

SYDNEY M. DE TURCK, merchant at Philadelphia and lineal descendant of Isaac De Turck, of Oley, was born at De Turksville, Schuylkill Co., Pa., Sept. 23, 1866, a son of Samuel G. and Catherine (Greenawalt) De Turck.

The founder of the De Turck family was Isaac, who settled in Oley in 1712. The grandfather of Sydney M., was Jacob De Turck, the fourth son of Samuel, who was the fourth son of John, who was the only son of Isaac, the immigrant.

Samuel G. De Turck was born in Oley township, Berks Co., Pa., near Friedensburg in 1835, and there he grew to manhood on a farm, later moving to Sylliman, now De Turksville, where he engaged in a general store business which he still carries on. He married Catherine Greenawalt, daughter of Amos Greenawalt, of Greenwich township, Berks county. She died in 1867, the mother of four sons: Howard, Horace, Lyman and Sydney Milton. In 1869 he m. (second) Leanda Levan Smith, widow of Jonathan Smith, and they had seven children, namely: Helen, Annie, Luta, Stella, William, Harry and Samuel, the latter of whom died in Cuba in 1899.

Sydney Milton De Turck was educated in the local schools and followed teaching in that vicinity from 1882 to 1887. He then served as clerk in the Schuylkill County Prison until 1891, when he went to Philadelphia and entered the store of his uncle, Jacob G. De Turck, who was engaged in a wholesale upholstery and hardware business at No. 1009 Filbert street. He continued there as a clerk until his uncle's death in October, 1901. In July, 1902, he started into his present business, and has met with excellent success, his trade name being Sydney M. De Turck & Company.

In 1889, Mr. De Turck was married to Margaret E. Forbes, daughter of John Forbes, of Minersville, Schuylkill county, and they have one daughter, Genevieve.

DANIEL N. SCHULTZ, a leading citizen of Hereford township, Berks county, living near the Lehigh county line, was born Nov. 9, 1855, on one of the old Schultz homesteads, and is a son of Enoch K. Schultz.

Mr. Schultz received his education in the public schools of his home township (Hereford) and was reared on his father's farm, acquiring at an early age, in addition to the general knowledge of farming gained by a youth under such circumstances, some familiarity with the blacksmith's trade and later with the carpenter's trade. That he was a natural mechanic is shown by the fact that he picked up his knowledge of these trades by himself. He was trained to sawmill work, assisting his father to saw large quantities of lumber. In 1883 he started on his own account, for two years living as a tenant at the homestead, which came into his possession in 1885. There he has since lived and conducted the farm and mills, having both a sawmill and a gristmill, which latter he established in 1888, putting up a separate building. He also has a cider press, run by water-power attached to the gristmill. His farm consists of 160 acres, six perches, and is a valuable piece of land, which has steadily increased in value under his intelligent management. Mr. Schultz is a man of influence in his district, commanding the respect and confidence of all who have dealings with him. He is a thorough business man, and has taken an interest in other enterprises besides his immediate undertakings, having been a director of the East Greenville National Bank from 1892 to 1897, and he has been a director of the Farmers' National Bank at Pennsburg, Montgomery county, for many years.

Mr. Schultz's thrift and tastes are evidenced in the neat appearance of his home, which shows excellent care in every detail. The buildings on his farm are large and in good repair, the yard is laid with cement walks made by Mr. Schultz himself, and all the surroundings show thought and constant oversight. Part of his farm lies in Lehigh county, and his residence, as previously stated, is near to the county line. It is a large house, and contains many relics and other articles of interest, including an old Andrew Krauss pipe organ. Krauss, who was one of the first organ manufacturers in America, lived in Upper Hanover township, Montgomery Co., Pa. The instrument is seven feet, three inches high, two feet deep and three and one-half feet wide. The keys are covered with bone. The organ has a full, round, soft tone, and is much admired by musicians. Another of Mr. Schultz's cherished possessions is a bread closet made by a pioneer Schultz in 1750, which is still in good condition. There is also a black walnut writing desk, fully as old. Mr. Schultz has made considerable furniture in his day, and he has made a number of the bedsteads and other pieces of furniture, including picture frames etc., now in use at his home. He also made his first carriage.

On Jan. 20, 1883, Mr. Schultz married Susan G. Schultz, daughter of Abraham and Rebecca (Gerhard) Schultz, and four children were born to them, namely: Clara, Elwood (who died in infancy), Rosa and Adam. Clara and Rosa are graduates of Perkiomen Seminary, and the son is a student there now.

Mr. Schultz and his family are true to the principles of their forefathers, belonging to the Schwenkfelder Church, of which he has been a deacon. He is independent in politics, considering principle before party.

AARON L. LIEB, a farmer of Bern township, Berks Co., Pa., was born in Penn township March 8, 1860, son of Joshua and Rebecca (Lash) Lieb, grandson of Nicholas Lieb and great-grandson of Michael Lieb.

(I) Michael Lieb was a large landowner in Bern township and a man highly respected for his sterling integrity and uprightness of purpose. He and his wife, Anna Margaretta, had these children: Susan (Hetrech), Mary, Nicholas, Zechman, Margaret, Elizabeth, Catherine and Sarah.

(II) Nicholas Lieb, born Nov. 16, 1793, died Dec. 9, 1857. He is buried at the Bern Church, of which he was a consistent member. Nicholas Lieb owned a farm of about 100 acres on the Bernville road, between the Bern Church and Mt. Pleasant, in Penn township. In addition to farming he followed the tailor's trade, traveling through Berks and the surrounding counties, as was the custom in those days. He was one of the most representative men of his times, and one of the most popular in his neighborhood. When his father died he was the executor of the estate; the will, which was made Feb. 26, 1818, was probated July 25, 1818. His wife was Catherine Dundore, a daughter of Jacob and Anna Dundore, born Sept. 6, 1796, died March 4, 1881, aged eighty-four years, five months, twenty-eight days. Their children were: Elizabeth married Joel Kantner, and died in Penn township; Annie married John Gicker and died in Heidelberg township; Joshua is mentioned below; Aaron married Louisa Adams and died in Bern township (they had children: John, of Spring township, Eliza, of No. 1818 Perkiomen avenue, Reading, the mother of Rev. M. L. Herbein, whose sketch appears elsewhere in this work, and Amanda, who married Louis Klopp and is living at No. 324 North Front street, Reading, Pa.). Nicholas Lieb was a prominent and highly respected farmer and tailor and built up for himself a lasting reputation as a man possessing most excellent personal traits of character. Upright and honorable in his business transactions, and imbued with that generous public spirit that was always ready to assist in whatever was calculated to promote the welfare of his county and community, he made his worth felt and his loss was long mourned.

(III) Joshua Lieb, born May 3, 1826, died May 13, 1878, aged fifty-two years, ten days. He was born in Penn township on the old Lieb homestead, and for years remained with his father, engaged in farming. Marrying Miss Rebecca Lash (born Dec. 17, 1823, died Aug. 23, 1859, aged thirty-five years, eight months, six days), daughter of George Lash, he settled on the farm and there remained until five years prior to his death, when he removed to State Hill and built a home, there living retired until his demise. In politics he was a Democrat, and in religious connection a member of the Bern Church. He was a man of substance, and one who won the confidence of the community. Never aggressive, he nevertheless bore his part in the development and advancement of his community, and left the lasting heritage to his children of an unsullied name and spotless honor. The following children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Lieb: Ellen, who married Andrew Lotz, of Reading; Nathaniel W.; Rosa, who married John Hain, of West Reading; Emma, who married Edward Kramer, of Reading; Aaron L., of Bern township, married to Kate E. Yoder; Sallie, who married Frank E. Kauffman, of Reading.

(IV) Aaron L. Lieb attended the township public schools. He worked for his father until 1890, when he embarked in farming on his own account, in Lower Heidelberg township, but after a year he removed to Bern township, and resided on the Lash farm of 240 acres. After another year he went to Douglassville, and four years later settled on the Nicholas Dick farm, in Cumru township. His next location was at Poplar Neck, where he remained seven years, and then in 1902 he removed to Bern township, purchasing a farm at State Hill, of twenty acres, which later he sold.

Mr. Lieb married Kate E. Yoder, a daughter of William and Susan (Strunk) Yoder, and they had children as follows: William J., Howard N., and Harry P., deceased; A. Calvin, Annie F., John A., Katie R., Cora S. and Paul E., at home. Mrs. Lieb died Sept. 19, 1907, aged forty-one years, six months, nine days, and is buried at Hains Church cemetery, in Lower Heidelberg township.

Mr. Lieb is a member of the Bern Lutheran Church. In politics he is a Democrat, and fraternally he is a member of the Modern Woodmen of America at Leesport. He is genial and pleasant in manner, and a man who has a host of warm personal friends. The Lieb family is widely known throughout Berks county.

HENRY H. YOST, one of the farmer residents of Sinking Spring, Spring township, Berks county, was born in Cumru township, this county, July 8, 1856, son of Amos S. and Catherine (Yocom) Yost, and grandson of Nicholas Yost.

Amos S. Yost was born in Cumru township, at Poplar Neck, in 1820, and died in 1889, aged sixty-nine years. He is interred at the Sinking Spring Church. During his useful life, he followed farming, owning two farms, and was a well-known and much respected resident of Berks county. His wife was a daughter of Nicholas Yocom, of Cumru township. Children as follows were born to Mr. and Mrs. Amos S. Yost: Rosa, who married Joel Stiffey; Emma, who married A. I. Torbert; Abraham, of Bern township; Henry H., and Rebecca, who died young.

Henry H. Yost received his education in the common schools of Spring township, and has always been engaged in farming. One of his pleasant experiences was a seven months' trip he took through the West, doing farm work in Minnesota, Illinois and Iowa, and gaining an insight into different methods and ways of conducting farms. Upon his return he purchased the old Stitzel farm of 207 acres in Lower Heidelberg township, near State Hill, which he now rents out under contract, he having in 1899 removed to Sinking Spring and built himself a pleasant home, his present residence, in that community.

Mr. Yost has always taken a deep interest in public affairs, and is a Republican in politics. He has served as school director, and is now chairman of the board which is working toward the incorporation of Sinking Spring as a borough. One of the characteristic traits of Mr. Yost is his activity, for he keeps himself fully occupied with his private affairs as well as those of the community, and is rightfully regarded as one of the representative men of Berks county.

Mr. Yost married Emma C. Pottieger, daughter of Henry Pottieger, and they have had two children: Stella married Raymond S. Brubaker, and has one child, Henry Yost Brubaker; Florence died young.

In his religious affiliations Mr. Yost is a member of St. John's Lutheran Church, and has filled all the offices in that body. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., Lodge No. 660, and has many friends in that organization, as he also has throughout a wide area, for he is a man of pleasing personality and kindly intent, and has few if any enemies.

WILLIAM S. LEVAN, of Mount Penn, Berks county, who is now serving as a member of the borough council, was born Jan. 12, 1869, on the old Stauffer homestead, near "Black Bear Hotel," in Exeter township, Berks county, son of Jacob and Emma (Stauffer) Levan.

Mr. Levan was educated in the schools of Exeter township, and at the age of fourteen years entered the A. J. Brumbach woolen mills at St. Lawrence, being first engaged at burling cloth. He was then promoted to weaver, then to cloth finisher and finally to foreman carder. After about two years at the head of this department, Mr. Levan resigned, and he has since bought out the French Sanitary Coffee Company, of Reading, Pa., which business he now conducts at Mount Penn. He is an active Republican and is serving his second term as a member of the borough council. He is connected with the Mount Penn Fire Company, of which he was a charter member and its recording secretary. He is a member of St. John's Lodge, No. 435, F. & A. M., Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T., Reading Lodge of Perfection, and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.; and Camp No. 230, P. O. S. of A., St. Lawrence. He is a member of Unger's Band of Reading, and is its president. Mr. and Mrs. Levan attend the Schwartzwald Reformed Church, in which he is a member of the choir.

On Jan. 25, 1890, Mr. Levan was married to Miss Sallie Stoner, daughter of Solomon and Susan (Quinter) Stoner.

Solomon Stoner, who was one of the leading citizens of Mount Penn, was born at Stonersville June 10, 1838, and died Oct. 28, 1900, at his home in Mount Penn. His education was obtained in the local schools, after leaving which he engaged in a mercantile business, which he continued until 1893. In connection with this business he acted as clerk at many sales, owned and operated an extensive farm and conducted the "Red Lion Hotel" at Baumstown. In political matters he was a Democrat, but was never active in politics. He was a member of the Reformed Church. In 1893 Mr. Stoner associated himself with the Mutual Fire Insurance Company, of Berks county, as secretary, and served in that capacity until the illness that ended in his death caused his retirement. For some years he held a commission as notary public. In 1889 he located at Dengler's, now Mount Penn, and there made his home for the remainder of his life, his residence being one of the pleasant homes of that thriving borough. Mr. Stoner was a quiet, unassuming man, a lover of home and family, kind and gentle, a deep thinker and great reader. He was noted for his business ability, and as a man of honor was intrusted with the settlement of various valuable estates.

Mr. Stoner was married to Susan Quinter, daughter of Joseph and Mary (Romig) Quinter, and granddaughter of Peter and Susan (Treugel) Quinter. Peter Quinter was a shoemaker at Suckertown, in Exeter township, and he and his wife lived to advanced ages, dying in the faith of the Lutheran Church. Among the children in their large family was Joseph Quinter, the father of Mrs. Stoner. Joseph Quinter was born at Suckertown, and grew up in Exeter township, where he spent his life, operating a small farm. He and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church. They had the following thirteen children: Ephraim, deceased; Sarah, deceased, wife of Simeon Snyder; two who died in infancy; Mary Ann, who died unmarried; Anna, who died in childhood; Samuel, a laborer of Birdsboro, married to Emma Schell; Peter, of Reading, married to Kate Ganster; Susan, widow of Mr. Stoner; Daniel, of Mount Penn, who married Amelia Faber; Joseph, of Buttertown, who married Christina Hill; Charles, of West Reading, who married Hannah Hill; and Levi, of Suckertown, who married Catherine Fisher.

To Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Stoner were born these children: (1) Calvin Stoner, a carpenter of Philadelphia, died there Feb. 20, 1908, aged forty-one years, ten months, nineteen days, and was buried in the family plot in Schwartzwald cemetery. He married Emma Bright and they had two sons, Paul A. and Solomon J. (2) Laura died Sept. 3, 1881, aged fourteen years. (3) Sallie is the wife of Mr. Levan. (4) Bessie is at home. The family are members of the Reformed Church at Schwartzwald, at which place Mr. Stoner was buried.

JAMES B. REBER, who has become well known to the people of Berks county, Pa., as an educator, was born in Windsor (now Perry) township, March 13, 1850, son of Joseph and Mary (Rothermel) Reber.

Joseph Reber, father of James B., was born in Windsor township, where he learned the carpenter's trade, following this occupation for some years. He then removed to Hamburg, Pa., being there employed by the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, for a period of twenty-five years as boss carpenter and bridge builder. He was killed at Wayne Junction while working with a force of men on a bridge. During the Civil war he served as a subforeman in the construction corps. In politics he was a Democrat. Mr. Reber was twice married, his first wife being Mary Rothermel, daughter of Peter Rothermel, by whom he had these children: F. Leonard; Annie died aged thirteen years; and James B. The first wife of Mr. Reber died at the age of thirty-two years, and he married (second) Susan Mayer, who bore him these children: Joseph, Edward, Erastus, Samuel, Claude, Lewis, Minerva, Lilly, Laura and Iva.

James B. Reber resided in his native township until twenty-four years of age, with the exception of one year when he lived in Hamburg. He was educated in the schools of his native township and later at the Keystone State Normal school, which latter institution he attended for two terms. Mr. Reber began teaching in the fall of 1869, in a private stone dwelling along the pike, north of Hamburg, and the next two years taught at Hoffman's school in the same district. The next six terms were spent at the Windsor Castle school, Mr. Reber then removing to Upper Bern (now Tilden) township, where he taught Fisher's school for one term, and Becker's for three terms. At the end of that time he returned to his native township, where he has resided ever since, teaching Hoffman's school for one term and one term at Engel's. Mr. Reber became an agriculturist and painter, and as such has since continued, with the exception of the winter of 1896-97, when he completed the unexpired term at Hoffman's of his son, who met an accidental death. Mr. Reber served his township faithfully for nine years as auditor, and has been reelected for the next three years; and he has been drawn on many juries, both in Federal and local courts. In politics he is a Democrat. He and his family are consistent members of Salem United Brethren Church of Shoemakersville, where he has served as trustee, steward, deacon, secretary and treasurer, and for the last eight years as class-leader. He represented the church at several annual conferences, and has been assistant superintendent of the Sunday-school for a number of years.

Mr. Reber was married Aug. 15, 1874, to Susan C. Schearer, daughter of Daniel and Catherine (Miller) Schearer, and to this union there were born children as follows: Calvin A., born Oct. 30, 1874, was a teacher, and died by drowning while in swimming, July 12, 1896; Lillie A. is a masseuse at Bethlehem, Pa.; Laura L. married Charles Strauss of Bethlehem; Robert E., born Oct. 16, 1882; James A., born April 28, 1885; Elsie M.; Estella M.; and Llewellyn G., born July 27, 1892, died on Feb. 25, 1897, ten days after his mother.

JEROME S. BALTHASER, dealer in farm implements at Centreport, Berks county, has been engaged in that line since 1894. He was born March 15, 1864, in Upper Bern township, this county, and is a great-grandson of Jacob Balthaser.

Samuel Balthaser, his grandfather, lived in Penn township, Berks county, and followed farming, owning 110 acres of land. He died there at the age of fifty-six years, and is buried at St. Michael's Church, in what is now Tilden township. His wife, whose maiden name was Mary Kissling, is buried beside him. They had children as follows: Jared K.; Levi; Aaron; William; John; Monroe; Mary m. Abraham De Turk; Lydia m. William Folk; Amelia m. Levi Kauffman; Isabella m. John L. Wagner, of Bernville.

Jared K. Balthaser was born Sept. 12, 1843, and died Jan. 31, 1903. He is buried at St. Michael's Church. He was engaged as a farmer and implement dealer in Upper Bern township and also in Upper Tulpehocken township, being in business for about thirty years. He owned two tracts of land, one of 103 acres and one of forty-eight acres, and he was well known throughout his section. He married Harriet Stoudt, daughter of David Stoudt, of Upper Bern township, and ten children were born to them: Jerome S.; Hon. Francis W., of Fleetwood, served in the State House of Representatives in 1906; Milton resides at Kutztown; Kate m. John Griffi, of Seipstown, Lehigh county, Pa.; Annie m. William Nies, of Tilden township; Rosa m. Ambrose Neff, of Seipstown, Lehigh county; Daniel C. is a baker, of Shoemakersville, Pa.; Wilson lives on the old homestead in Upper Tulpehocken township; Ida is unmarried; and Anson is a member of the class of 1909 at the Keystone State Normal School.

Jerome S. Balthaser attended the public schools in Upper Bern township, and in assisting his father learned the details of farming and the implement business, both of which lines he has continued to follow. In 1888 he began farming on his own account at the old homestead in the corner of Upper Bern township, and after remaining there four years came to Centreport in 1892. In 1894 he bought the old Michael Rentschler farm, the farm of his father-in-law, formerly the Benneville Loose place, which comprises thirty acres of good land, most of it lying outside of the borough, in Centre township. His fine residence, which he built in 1894, is just about ten feet outside of the borough line, and there he and his family have since resided. Mr. Balthaser started the implement business in 1894 and has built up a large trade, handling all kinds of farm machinery and devoting his time principally to this line, in which he has made such a decided success. He owns the hotel property at Centreport, one of the best of its kind in the county. Outside of his business and personal affairs he has various interests which keep him busy and in touch with the life of the community, at present serving as health officer of Centre township, to which office he was appointed. He was elected school director, and held that position for three years. Socially he holds membership in Camp No. 446, P. O. S. of A., at Centreport, of which he has been treasurer since 1896; in Castle No. 53, K. G. E., of Leesport; and in Lodge No. 60, Shepherds of Bethlehem, of Centreport. He plays bass in the Central Band of Centreport, which was organized in 1894; is a member of St. Michael's Lutheran Church, and a Democrat in politics.

Mr. Balthaser was married to Emma Rentschler, daughter of Michael G. and Caroline (Schock) Rentschler, of Upper Bern township, and they have become the parents of four children: Emerson; Oliver, who married Herma Bucks, daughter of Levi Bucks; Walter, and Rufus.

ALVIN WEISER, general farmer, residing on his excellent farm of seventy-five acres, which is situated in Maxatawny township, was born on the farm on which he lives, in Berks county, Pa., April 12, 1863, son of William and Sallie N. (Fenstermacher) Weiser.

William Weiser was born April 12, 1825, on the farm above mentioned, and died here June 24, 1900. He was a prominent farmer, owning 115 acres of valuable land and he made many excellent improvements, building the comfortable residence in which his last years were spent after he retired from active pursuits. For a considerable time he was a partner in the firm of Schweyer & Leiss, in the marble business. For many years he was an elder in the Christ Reformed Church at Bowers. In politics he was a strong Democrat, and on many occasions he served on the township school board. He married a daughter of David and Rebecca (Smith) Fenstermacher, who died June 27, 1906, aged eighty-four years, seven months and eight days. The children born to William Weiser and wife were as follows: (1) Leanda, born March 19, 1847, died Nov. 27, 1908. She married Francis J. Schwoyer, and they had children: Eliza, William, Eugene, Cyraneus, Endora, Astor and Neda. (2) Alfred, born July 24, 1849, married Amanda Hilbert, and died leaving two children, Edwin and Elizabeth. (3) David A., born March 12, 1852, was accidentally killed in a stone quarry, at Bowers, March 12, 1873. He was unmarried. (4) Cyraneus B., born Feb. 19, 1854, was accidentally killed in a mine explosion in Colorado, Jan. 7, 1892. He was not married. (5) Hannah R., born June 22, 1856, married Reuben L. Smith and resides in Rockland township. They had three children, Harry, Helen and Harvey. (6) Oliver W., born July 26, 1858, resides with his sister, Mrs. John D. Grim, at Bowers Station. He is foreman for the firm of Schweyer & Leiss. (7) Allen, born Jan. 28, 1861, died Dec. 13, 1863. (8) Alvin. (9) Ellen S. A., born March 19, 1865, died July 17, 1866. (10) Amanda P., born Sept. 9, 1867, married John D. Grim, residing at Bowers Station, and they have three children, William E., Sallie M. and George A.

Alvin Weiser attended the township schools through boyhood and always remained assisting his father on the home farm. In 1901 he bought seventy-five acres of the farm, made an addition to the house and made improvements all over the place. The substantial barn was built by his father in 1877. Mr. Weiser has an excellent location, being but a short distance from Bowers Station, making the transportation of his products and commodities a comparatively easy matter. This farm was known as the old Jacob Seibert farm and it became the property of Hannah Stout, grandmother of Alvin Weiser. A barn built in 1814 was rebuilt in 1877 by Mr. Weiser, and a house built in 1813 still stands, having been improved by Mr. Weiser.

In 1889, Alvin Weiser married Evella Kutz, daughter of David F. and Caroline (Haas) Kutz, and a granddaughter of Daniel and Catherine Fister. Mr. and Mrs. Weiser have the following children: Edgar D., Minnie E., George W., Paul A., Mary E., Annie E. and Lillian C. Both Mr. and Mrs. Weiser are members of Christ Reformed Church, at Bowers, in which he has served as deacon. In politics he is a Democrat, and on that ticket served on the township election board, and in 1904 was elected a member of the school board of which he was made president and treasurer. He belongs to Lodge No. 634, I. O. O. F., at Lyon.

SOLOMON E. BAER, a highly esteemed retired citizen of Hamburg, Pa., where for a number of years he was engaged in agricultural operations, was born Aug. 9, 1856, on the old Jacob Baer farm in Perry township, Berks county, son of Jacob and Elizabeth (Lesher) Baer.

John (Hans) Baer, founder of the family in America, came from Zweibrücken, Germany, on the ship "Phoenix," landing at Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 30, 1743. He spent a few years at Germantown, but before 1750 settled in Weisenburg, Lehigh county, on what is now the Kersher's farm, about one mile south of Claussville. He was an influential citizen and one of the builders of Ziegel's Church in 1750. He had these children: John; Jacob, progenitor of the Baers of Eastern Berks; Adam, progenitor of the Baers of Lehigh county; and Barbara, who married Henry Fetter, and lived in Allentown.

John Baer, son of John (Hans), was born in Weisenburg township, Lehigh county, about 1750, and removed to Windsor township, Berks county, soon after the Revolutionary War, at which time his oldest daughter, Elizabeth, had already married and remained in Lehigh county. He lived on the David Baer farm, dying in the old home, full of years and with a comfortable competence. He married Katharine Rieser, and to them were born: John Jacob; John lived near Muncy, Lycoming county; Elizabeth m. a Mr. Schneck; Maria m. Henry Becker; Bevy m. John Seltzer; Katharine m. David Phillips; Susan m. Jacob Stertzler; Magdalena m. John Reber; Margaret m. Jacob Reber; and Lizzie m. John Brensinger.

John Jacob (Hon. Jacob) Baer, son of John and grandfather of Solomon E., was a farmer on the Baer homestead, and owned a valuable property consisting of over 300 acres. He married Katharine Fink, daughter of John Fink, and to them were born the following children: Jacob; Katharine m. John Balthaser; John m. (first) Betsy Baltzer and (second) Betsy Zettelmoyer; Susanna m. Henry Engel; Mollie m. Jacob Boyer; and David m. Sarah Miller.

Jacob Baer, father of Solomon E., was a farmer in Perry township, and owned the old Baer homestead on the pike, one and one-half miles north of Shoemakersville, consisting of 180 acres. He married Elizabeth Lesher, daughter of William Lesher and wife (whose maiden name was Heffner), and to this union there were born the following children: Catharine m. Daniel Lenhart; Elias m. Amena Strasser; Henry m. Lizzie Lenhart; J. William m. Nora Tobias; Hettie m. Zeth Klein; Solomon E.; Jacob m. Amanda Jacobi; Daniel, born May 10, 1862, died young; and Frank m. Lillie E. Heckman.

Solomon E. Baer obtained his education in the local schools and at Prof. R. G. Unger's academy at Shoemakersville, Pa. He worked on his father's farm until 1872, when the father died, and Mr. Baer conducted the farm for his mother for three years. After a short residence at Virginville, he moved in 1878 to Windsor township to a farm he had purchased about one and a half miles northeast of Hamburg, and this he farmed until the spring of 1904. This was a part of the Benneville Krick farm and consisted of twenty-five acres. He greatly improved it, erecting a barn, a summer home, a wagon shed, and outbuildings. In 1882 he planted an orchard of apples and peaches, which have yielded abundantly ever since. He used a part of the farm for trucking purposes, and raised all kinds of garden products for the market, which he sold in different towns in the coal regions. He has been thrifty, and has prospered accordingly. In politics Mr. Baer is a stanch Democrat, but he has never held office. He and his family are connected with St. Paul's Reformed Church in Windsor township. In 1904 Mr. Baer was a very heavy stockholder and director of the McConnellsburg, Fulton County Water Company, also a stockholder in the Windsor Water Company of Hamburg. At the present time he is a stockholder of the First National Bank of Hamburg.

On April 7, 1876, Mr. Baer married Elizabeth Krick, daughter of Benneville and Catharine (Shraer) Krick, and granddaughter of William Krick, whose wife was a Ziegenthaler. To Mr. and Mrs. Baer have been born children as follows: Wilson H. is single and lives at home; Eugene M. m. Cora Adam; Miss Minnie A. resides at home; and Elva E.

SOLOMON H. SAILER, one of the most prosperous farmers of Berks county, where he was actively engaged in farming during the whole period of his life, was a son of Henry and Sarah (Hahn) Sailer, and was born in Alsace (now Muhlenberg) township Feb. 8, 1845. He died Feb. 23, 1891, on his farm in Muhlenberg township. He had intended to retire in the spring of 1891 and move in a new house which he had built on his farm, and there his widow lives at the present time.

Philip Sailer, great-grandfather of Solomon H., was born in Alsace, France, and came to America in the early part of the eighteenth century on account of the persecution of the Huguenots. He located at Sixth and Franklin streets, Reading, Pa., where he conducted a meat market. He was accompanied to this country by two of his brothers, who located west of the Susquehanna river, and all traces of them and their descendants have been lost. His wife was also a native of Alsace, France, and their union was blessed by the birth of three sons, namely: Phillip, who lost his life in the Revolutionary war; Frederick, who followed farming on a farm in Alsace (now Muhlenberg) township; and Henry, the grandfather of our subject, who followed farming.

Henry Sailer was born in Reading, Feb. 29, 1764, and through all his life was engaged in agricultural pursuits on a farm owned by Governor Hiester. He married Anna Maria Magdalena Rothenberger, who was born Dec. 12, 1770, and reared two sons, Henry, the father of our subject; and John, a farmer of Alsace township.

Henry Sailer, father of Solomon H., was born in Alsace (now Muhlenberg) township, Berks county, Dec. 16, 1796, and he worked on the farm with his father, who died before middle life. Governor Hiester asked him to take charge of the farm made vacant by the death of his father, but he was a young man without means, and so informed the Governor. The latter, in his usual brusque manner, replied that he had money to loan him and for him to go on with the farm. This he did. He was a hard and industrious worker, and proved that the Governor's confidence in him was not misplaced. He returned the money advanced him from time to time, and became a very prosperous man. The Governor was so pleased with his work that a few years later, when the farm on which the Charles Evans cemetery is now located, was offered at sheriff's sale he insisted upon loaning him the money with which to buy the farm. After buying the farm Mr. Sailer still continued to live upon the Governor's place until the latter's death, and cultivated both tracts. He then moved upon his own farm, and became one of the representative farmers of the county. He remained there for a number of years, and after selling the property to Charles Evans, moved to Reading where he lived in retirement. He died March 20, 1880. He was a very wealthy man and at the time of his death owned eight farms, leaving one to each of his eight children. He was a consistent member of the Reformed Church. He married Sarah Hahn, daughter of Adam Hahn, a farmer of what is now Muhlenberg township, and they became the parents of six sons and two daughters, those besides Solomon H., being: Sarah, deceased, m. the late John H. Mertz, a farmer of Richmond township; Adam H., deceased, lived in Exeter township; Henry H. is a retired farmer of Muhlenberg township; Samuel H., deceased, lived at Reading; William H., deceased, was of Oley township; Franklin H. has his home in Amity township; and Catherine H., deceased, m. (first) the late William Lauer, and (second) Jeremiah Guldin, a retired farmer of Muhlenberg township.

Solomon H. Sailer was reared on the farm and obtained his education in the common schools of his native township and Reading. After completing his education he engaged in farm work, which he followed all his life. At the time of his death he owned two farms of 111 acres and 86 acres, respectively. As a man of good judgment and large means he was prominent in all public matters in his township, and was always found casting his influence in the direction of progressive movements, which promised to be of permanent benefit to his locality. His word was as good as a bond and he has been missed alike by family and friends of church and township.

On Jan. 24, 1867, Mr. Sailer married Sallie Ann Rahn, daughter of William and Susan (Merkel) Rahn, of Ontelaunee township, and eight children were born to this union, three of whom died in infancy; Milton R., of Reading, m. Deborah Boyer, and has five sons—Solomon B., William B., Milton B., Luke B. and Elmer Henry B.; Lydema M. m. William B. Rothermel, and has had two children—one who died in infancy, and William S.; Katie A., deceased, m. Adam G. Hahn, and had two children—one who died in infancy, and Adam S.; Estella A., m. Daniel Ebling, and has two children—Clarence D. S. and Estella S. A.; and Flora L., m. Wilson S. Becker. Mr. Sailer was a consistent member of the Reformed church, in which he was a deacon and elder for several terms. In politics he was a Democrat, and held the office of school director for several terms in Lower Heidelberg and Muhlenberg townships.

HENRY L. RITTER, a farmer in Colebrookdale township, near Boyertown, was born Nov. 4, 1854, on the farm where he now lives, and which he has owned since 1902. He is a son of Daniel Ritter and a grandson of John Ritter, being a descendant of a family which has been identified with this region for many years. Its history is complicated and difficult to trace, but the yearly reunions held of late have awakened interest and stimulated research to the extent that many hitherto little known facts have become matters of general knowledge and added materially to the store of information possessed by the Ritters concerning their origin. The family in America is now a large and prosperous one.

The name, which signifies "knight," originated during the middle ages, when the Crusaders organized over central Europe to redeem the Holy Land, and a society having for its object the defense of the faith, the protection of the weak and the honor of womankind also came into existence in central Europe, known as the Ritterschaft, that is, Knighthood. It flourished for a few centuries, and many people of rank as well as of the middle and lower classes belonged to it, but in time the organization became corrupt and was disbanded. About this time surnames began to come into general use, and many if not all who belonged to this society assumed the surname of Ritter. Thus there were a large number of the name in central Europe, their principal stronghold being apparently in the Palatinate, as nearly all who emigrated to America came thence. Emigration began during the middle of the eighteenth century, and many of the name are recorded as having entered at the various ports, many sailing from Rotterdam. Among these entries we find the names of Martin and Casper Ritter, who are supposed to have been brothers, Casper Ritter arriving in 1750 in the ship "Friendship" and Martin Ritter in 1749 in the ship "Phoenix." Most of the Ritters sailed from Rotterdam.

According to tradition Casper and Martin Ritter first settled in Delaware, but the soil and climate did not suit them, so they moved to Pennsylvania. Casper Ritter proceeded to Easton, then the county seat of what is now Lehigh and Northampton counties, and was granted a patent for a tract of five hundred acres on Fels creek, a few miles west of the confluence with the Lehigh river. The present town of Laury's is situated where the Fels creek joins the Lehigh river, and the farms now owned by Reuben Saeger, Prof. David S. Keck and John and Jeremiah Schneck, with perhaps a few smaller tracts, were all part of the original Casper Ritter farm. The land was undoubtedly in the woods and had to be cleared, and the old log hut which was occupied by Casper Ritter and his family stood until a few years ago. Whether he brought his wife with him or married her in this country is not known. They had six children who reached maturity: Jacob, Mrs. Johannes Frantz, John, Heinrich, Mrs. Nicholas Saeger and Mrs. Heinrich Frantz. Casper Ritter and his wife were buried on their farm on a small elevation a short distance from their dwelling. Except some of the children of Mrs. Heinrich Frantz, who settled in Clinton county, their descendants settled in the same community, and of late they have held yearly reunions. Most of the Ritter families living in Lehigh and Northampton counties north of Allentown, and many living in Allentown, are the descendants of Casper Ritter, and they are a thrifty, honest class, noted for industry and longevity, and honorably engaged in various vocations and professions.

Martin Ritter, who came to this country in 1749, secured a patent for a tract of land in what is now Salisbury township, a few miles south of Allentown, and his descendants live principally in Allentown and south of that place, between Macungie and Freemansburg. He was the father of seven children: Martin, Henry, John, Daniel, Michael, Jacob and Gretchen (Mrs. Solomon Kline).

Francis Ritter, born in 1741, died in 1825, seems to have been the forerunner of the Ritter family in Berks county, and he was the son of Jonathan Ritter. His children were Daniel, John, Jacob and Samuel, of whom John was a prominent citizen of Berks county, owned and published the Reading Eagle for many years, served two terms as representative to Congress during Polk's administration, and refused the nomination for another term.

Originally the Ritters were located in Oley and Exeter townships, and the pioneers are buried in the cemetery near the Schwartzwald Church. According to tradition the first of the family here secured a large tract of land from the Indians, bargaining for a tract around which he could walk between sunrise and sunset. But later, when William Penn came into Pennsylvania, he claimed that the Indians had no right to sell land which the king of England had granted him, and thus the pioneer of the Ritter family lost his claim.

John Ritter, grandfather of Henry L. Ritter, was from the upper end of Colebrookdale township. He is buried at Boyertown. He was reared to farming, and lived for many years on the farm now owned by his granddaughter Aquilla Ritter, comprising over one hundred acres, in addition to which he owned the farm which is now the property of Henry L. Ritter. He was married three times. His first wife, Henry L. Ritter's grandmother, was Rosanna Kemmery, and one his wives was a Rhoads. Among his children were: Daniel, father of Henry L. Ritter; George, who lived and died at Norristown, Pa.; Henry, who had a son Augustus; John, who was the father of Aquilla Ritter (she is blind); Lydia, wife of Thomas Shoener; Mrs. Shell; Mrs. Daniel Moyer; and Mrs. Zoller.

Daniel Ritter, son of John, was born in Colebrookdale township, in 1827, and died on Thanksgiving Day, 1901, at the age of eighty-four years; he is buried in Fairview cemetery, in Boyertown. He was a lifelong farmer and a prosperous man, for many years owning the farm which now belongs to his son Henry, and in 1856 he built the large brick house which stands on the place. It is surrounded by a large lawn, which is inclosed by an iron fence, the whole place having an air of neatness which is a credit to the owner. Mr. Ritter was a Lutheran in religion, belonging to St. John's Church, with which his children also became identified, and he was a Democrat in political opinion. For nine years he served as school director in Colebrookdale township.

Daniel Ritter was married twice. His first wife was Sarah Guldin, who bore him two children, Jeremiah, of Reading, and Mary Hartman, of Philadelphia. He married (second) Anna Mary Landis, daughter of Henry and Catherine (Schall) Landis, and to them were born children as follows: Catharine, who is the widow of Edwin Knouse; Daniel, who died young; Lydia, married to Aaron Moyer and living on a farm which adjoins the property of her brother Henry; Henry L.; Matilda, who married Wallace Riegner; John, who lives on a farm formerly owned by his father, in Montgomery county, directly across the Berks county line and adjoining the farm of his brother Henry; and Ellen, wife of Alexander Buchert and living at Worman, Berks county.

Henry L. Ritter was reared to farming and passed his early years on the place where he now makes his home. He attended the common schools at Englesville, and I. B. Hankey's Academy of Boyertown, and continued to work for his father until he reached the age of nearly twenty-five years. After his marriage he commenced farming on his own account on the homestead where he has since lived and which he has owned since 1902, and which has been the property of grandfather, father and son in turn. He is serving his fifth term as school director of Colebrookdale township, and is a Democrat in politics.

On Jan. 21, 1893, Mr. Ritter married Annie B. Drumheller, daughter of John and Maria (Batz) Drumheller, and granddaughter of William and Mary (Bricker) Drumheller; both her father and grandfather were residents of Earl township. Three children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Ritter: Mamie D., Paul D. and Norman H. All this family are Lutheran members of St. John's Church at Boyertown.

JONATHAN K. BASHORE, a practical agriculturist of Bethel township, Berks Co., Pa., whose fine farm, the old Beshore homestead, was originally a grant from the Penns, was born Nov. 11, 1852, in Bethel township, son of Michael and Sallie (Kline) Bashore.

George Bashore, the great-grandfather of Jonathan K., received a grant of land in Bethel township, from the sons of Penn in 1747, where he spent the remainder of his life. He married and had children: Isaac, Jacob, John and Michael.

Michael Bashore, grandfather of Jonathan K., was born on this grant of land, and followed farming all of his life there, dying at the age of eighty-five years. He married a Miss Royer, who bore him seven children as follows: (1) George, a farmer and shoemaker, lived in Bethel township for some time, and died at the age of eighty-three years, the father of children as follows: William, John, Daniel, Carolina, Sarah and Mrs. Rigel. (2) Benjamin, a farmer of Ohio, had five children. (3) Jonathan, who resided in Bethel, married and had children: Levi, Amanda, Leah, Benjamin, Fianna, Henry, Emma and Wilson. (4) Daniel, also a resident of Bethel, and for many years a very prominent landlord on the road leading across the Blue Mountains to Pinegrove, Schuylkill county, died at the age of seventy-three years. He married a Miss Lesher, and they had five children: Peter, Hannah, Sarah, Lovina and Eliza. (5) John died unmarried aged about sixty-five years. (6) Michael. (7) Hannah, who married John Keeny, died in 1905, aged eighty years, the mother of Tyrus, Michael, Fyetta, Hannah and Maria.

Michael Bashore, father of Jonathan K., was born in 1816, on the old homestead in Bethel township, and there he engaged in agricultural pursuits all of his life. He married Miss Sallie Kline, who still survives him and resides with her son, Jonathan K., being ninety years of age and enjoying very good health. She was born Nov. 3, 1817, daughter of Benjamin and Lizzie (Streiphauer) Kline. To Michael and Sallie (Kline) Bashore were born besides Jonathan K., the following children: Elias, who resided on his farm near Fredericksburg, died aged sixty-two years, the father of ten children; Eliza, m. William Murkey, and died young, leaving two children (her husband died in Virginia); Sarah, m. John Kline, and also died young, leaving two children, one of whom is living; Rebecca, m. Benjamin Moyer, resides in Kansas, and has four children, Frank, Milton, Charles and Rebecca; Israel resides in Missouri and has a family; and Emma died young.

Jonathan K. Bashore was educated in the public schools and assisted his father on the home farm, where he was married, and where he has always lived. His wife was Mary Royer, daughter of Daniel and Anna (Royer) Royer, and to them there have been born the following children: (1) Calvin, a resident on one of the farms near his father's, was for some time engaged in school teaching. He then went to Huntingdon to finish his studies and enter a profession, but failing health compelled him to remove to the farm, where he now is. He m. Miss Mary Reedy, and has three children—Ralph, Earl and Myrtle. (2) Cora m. Ira Gibble, of near Freystown, and has five children—Naom, Mary, Elmer, Paul and Stella. (3) Elmer, who resides at home, m. Emma Moyer, and has four children—Harvey, Herbert, Paul and Elmer. (4) Miles m. Miss Lizzie Price, and has four children—Edna, Stella, Verna and Lester. (5) Miss Mable lives at home. Harvey, Ella and Pamilla died young.

Mr. Bashore is a Republican in politics, and has been a delegate to county conventions and a school director, although the district is strongly Democratic. Like his father and grandfather he belongs to the Church of the Brethren.

JAMES M. HILL, a well known farmer and mule dealer of Berks county, who resides in his beautiful home east of Robesonia, along the Berks and Dauphin turnpike, in Lower Heidelberg township, was born Feb. 21, 1865, in Mill-creek township, Lebanon county, son of John and Sarah M. (Groh) Hill.

Johannes Hill, great-grandfather of James M., was born July 15, 1759, and died Oct. 25, 1821. He was twice married, his first wife being Susanna Rollman, but there are no records to be found of their children, if they had any. He married (second) Hannah Pennebacker, who died Oct. 5, 1846. To this union were born two children, Peter and John.

Peter Hill, grandfather of James M., was born June 15, 1809, and died Jan. 8, 1891, and was buried in the family plot at Womelsdorf, where there is a fine monument erected to his memory. He was a farmer, and owned a property near Sheridan, on which he resided for many years. He married Hannah Hain, daughter of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Showers) Hain, born July 21, 1812, who died Aug. 12, 1897, and they had two children: Catherine, born Dec. 24, 1832, married Dr. James C. Levingood, and died Sept. 27, 1905; and John.

John Hill, who is a farmer and horse and mule dealer, was born in Heidelberg township, Berks county, Feb. 19, 1836, and was reared to agricultural pursuits, an occupation in which he engaged for many years. At the close of the Civil war he engaged in trading horses and mules, in which business he has continued to the present time. In 1891 he came to Womelsdorf, where he has since resided, and in addition to his residence here he owns two farms in Marion township, which became his after the death of his sister Catherine, the old Hill homestead at Sheridan, Lebanon county, where he lived for thirty years, and a valuable tract above Womelsdorf in Heidelberg township. On Nov. 16, 1862, Mr. Hill married Sarah M. Groh, who was born on her father's farm near Schaefferstown, Lebanon county, Aug. 12, 1839. To Mr. and Mrs. Hill the following children have been born: James M.; Hannah, who died in infancy; Katie S., born June 11, 1868, died Feb. 1, 1904, aged thirty-five years, seven months, twenty days; and Sallie E., wife of Dr. Evan Menzer of Reading, died July 23, 1903, aged twenty-eight years, nine months, sixteen days.

Abraham Groh, grandfather of Mrs. Hill, was a farmer near the "Half-Way House" in Jackson township, Lebanon county. He married Elizabeth Halderman, and their children were: Henry, Jacob, John, Abraham, Christian, Michael, Mary, Sarah, Elizabeth and Catherine.

Michael Groh, father of Mrs. Hill, lived near Myerstown, Lebanon county, and was a farmer and well known citizen. He married Susanna Moyer, daughter of John and Kate (Wolfensberger) Moyer, and they had these children: John; Israel W.; Sarah (m. John Hill); Susanna H.; and Michael (died in infancy). Mrs. Hill has the two old family Bibles, the one belonging to Peter and the other to the first John, or Johannes, Hill. She also prizes very highly the two grandfather clocks, one of which belonged to her great-grandfather John Moyer and the other belonging to Johannes Hill, her husband's grandfather. Mr. and Mrs. Hill reside in a very nice residence on High street, Womelsdorf, and are in comfortable circumstances, the only shadow on an otherwise happy existence being the loss of their two daughters.

James M. Hill was educated in the public schools and at the Lock Haven Normal school, being brought up at the parental home, where he lived until 1889. In this year he began farming for himself on his father's farm at Stouchsburg, where he carried on successful operations for ten years, and then removed to Womelsdorf, where the following three years were spent in the mule business. In the spring of 1902 Mr. Hill moved upon his present fine farm in Lower Heidelberg township, situated along the trolley track on the pike, an excellent property of twenty-nine acres, the soil of which yields abundant crops. His substantial buildings present a fine appearance, and the brick residence is surrounded by large shade trees. He also has a good farm of ninety-two acres located in Marion township, which he has tenanted. Mr. Hill, who presents a commanding appearance, being tall and well-built, is of a genial and courteous disposition, and is favorably known throughout this section of Berks county. He commenced to deal in mules in 1885, when comparatively a young man, and now handles from 200 to 250 mules annually, principally Kentucky bred. He has regular customers among the farmers of his district, as well as among the coal regions of Schuylkill county, also doing a good business with a large firm at Palo Alto, the telephone playing an important part in the transactions. He is a man of integrity, and enjoys an enviable reputation for honesty and square dealing with his customers. In politics Mr. Hill is an independent Democrat, voting rather for the man than the party.

On Oct. 31, 1889, Mr. Hill was married to Carrie Hauder, the estimable daughter of William Hauder, deceased, a sketch of whom will be found elsewhere. Mr. and Mrs. Hill worship at Zions Union Church of Womelsdorf, of which they are Reformed members, and in the cemetery adjacent to this church is the Hill family burial plot, on which is erected a handsome monument.

ISAAC M. ROTHENBERGER, general merchant at Wernersville, was born in Ontelaunee township, Aug. 22, 1866, son of Franklin and Catharine (Miller) Rothenberger.

Daniel Rothenberger, his grandfather, was of Muhlenberg township, and carried on a farm adjoining the Alsace Church until 1876, when he retired and removed to Reading, where he died in 1890. He married Elizabeth Gehret, and by her had ten children: Franklin; Obediah m. Amelia Eyrich; Frederick m. Catharine Fisher; Jacob m. Sallie Mengel; Levi m. Lizzie Miller; Daniel m. Amelia Schmehl; Mary m. Mayberry Hartman; Catharine m. William Fisher; Leah m. Ben. Fox; and Elizabeth.

Franklin Rothenberger, father of Isaac M., was a farmer of Ontelaunee township for many years, retiring in 1896. He was twice married, and by his first wife Catharine Miller became the father of twelve children: Mary, m. A. G. Rothermel; Urias, m. (first) Ella Balthasar, and (second) Mary Deturck; Milton, moved to Windsor, Ill.; Daniel, moved to Lancaster; Isaac M.; Sarah m. J. J. Kelchner; Clayton m. Ella Rickenbach; Franklin m. Sallie Miller; Morris, is unmarried; Kate m. John Stoudt; and two died young. Catharine (Miller) Rothenberger, who was a daughter of Isaac Miller, died in 1894, at the age of fifty-nine years. Mr. Rothenberger married (second) the widow of John Koller.

Isaac M. Rothenberger was educated in the public schools, and after leaving school assisted his father in his farming operations until he was of age. He then engaged as a clerk in the store of A. G. Rothermel, his brother-in-law, at Blandon for five years, and then was in the dry goods store of J. Mould & Co., at Reading for two years. With this experience he became a partner in the business of Mr. Rothermel at Blandon, and they traded under the firm name of A. G. Rothermel & Co. for five years, from 1895 to 1900. He then sold his interest in the store and formed a partnership with Ephraim Dunkel, and they carried on a coal, lumber, grain, flour and feed business at Blandon, under the name of Dunkel & Rothenberger, for two years. Selling his interest in this business to Mr. Dunkel's son, he purchased a general store at Wernersville, and removing to this city, took his brother Franklin in as a partner, and they carried on the business as I. M. Rothenberger & Bro., for three years. In the spring of 1906 he purchased his brother's interest, and has since carried on the business alone.

Mr. Rothenberger served as a school director of Maidencreek township for three years. While at Blandon he took great interest in the Sunday school and officiated as superintendent thereof for three years. He was also the leader in th singing, accompanying on a cornet during the exercises. When he located at Wernersville he manifested the same interest in the Reformed Sunday school, being the teacher of the Ladies Bible Class, and acting as chorister at the same time. Both he and his wife were members of Hain's Church choir. He was one of the first men to agitate the establishment of a bank at Wernersville, and upon its successful organization he was elected one of its directors.

In 1894 Mr. Rothenberger married Anna Weidenhammer, daughter of Wellington Weidenhammer, of Montour county, and they had one daughter who died in infancy. Wellington Weidenhammer served as justice of the peace in the town of Limestoneville for forty consecutive years.

WILSON P. KRUM, one of the well-known residents of Krumsville, Greenwich township, Berks Co., Pa., where he is prominently identified with business interests, was born July 2, 1841, at Saegersville, Lehigh county, son of Jonas and Catherine (Peter) Krum.

At the early age of fourteen years Wilson P. Krum left home to make his own way in the world. He attended the public schools of his native locality for several terms, later enrolled as a student in the Allentown Seminary, and subsequently took the prescribed course at the Millville Normal school at Millville, Columbia Co., Pa., after which he taught school for five terms in Columbia county and two terms in Lehigh county. In 1867 he came to Berks county, and began the mercantile business as a clerk in the Smithville store, and after one year purchased the store at Wessnersville, which he conducted until 1876, at which time he sold out to E. D. Kistler and removed to Slatington, Lehigh county, engaging in the mercantile and slate business. In 1889, however, he returned to Berks county, and settled at Krumsville, where he has since been located.

By close attention to business and perseverance, Mr. Krum has amassed quite a competency. He is interested in the E. D. Peters & Co. Ltd. General Merchandise Company, at Slatington, Pa., and also owns a large slate factory at Slatington. It requires five engines to operate the factory and the quarries. He has his office at Krumsville, where he solicits orders for roofing and slate material. As his business card says of these products: "Strictly unfading—a test proof sixty years—where used no other wanted." In addition to these interests, Mr. Krum is interested in the Blue Mountain Slate Company, in which he is associated with James Owens, and is president of the Berks and Lehigh Fire Insurance Company. He owns a beautiful home in Krumsville, a large store building, the hotel, and a large farm of fertile land. In politics he is a Republican, and he is the Republican committeeman of his township. He is a member of Bethel's Zions Reformed Church, at Grimville, Pa., and for more than sixteen years has been a member of the church consistory.

LEWIS M. KIEFFER, a prominent auctioneer of Berks county, also engaged in the farming implement business, is a resident of Fleetwood, Pa. He was born May 8, 1858, in Richmond township, near Lyons, on land adjoining the original Kieffer homestead, which is now in possession of Nicholas Kieffer, a cousin of Lewis M.

Jacob Kieffer, grandfather of Lewis M., lived in Richmond township, and owned the excellent farm just referred to. He married Annie Sell, and to him and his wife were born these children: Peter; Rebecca, the wife of Jonathan Bieber, a prosperous farmer of Maxatawny; and Valentine.

Valentine Kieffer was a farmer and resident property owner of Richmond township, owning 150 acres of excellent farm land near Lyons. In politics he was a Democrat, but never cared for office. He married Maria Merkel, daughter of Benjamin and Catherine (Sheridan) Merkel, of Richmond township, and they had children as follows: Sarah, the wife of Abner Hoch, of Lyons, Pa.; Andora, the wife of Frank Schaeffer, of Fleetwood; Lewis M.; Alvin J., of Reading; George A., of Reading; Laura, who died at the age of ten years; Edward, of Reading; Emma, who married Levi Rhode of Lyons; Charles D., of Reading; Ella, who married Harry Herbine, a farmer of Exeter township; and Valentine M., who resides in Reading.

Lewis M. Kieffer was reared to farm work, living upon his father's homestead until twenty-five years of age. His early intellectual training was secured in the common schools of his native township, and this was supplemented by a course at the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown. Upon leaving the latter institution Mr. Kieffer engaged in school teaching, which he followed successfully in Richmond township for eight terms, and about this time became prominent as an auctioneer, his services since that time having been sought in every section of Berks county east of the Schuylkill, as well as across the river in Schuylkill county. With possibly a few exceptions he has cried more sales than any other man in Berks county, averaging more than 100 sales per year for the past quarter century. Mr. Kieffer has also engaged in selling farming implements, being employed by the Schaeffer, Merkel Co., of Fleetwood, for more than seventeen years, and is now selling harvesters and mowers for the Milwaukee Harvester Company.

Mr. Kieffer was married July 9, 1887, to Miss Mary E. D. Schlegel, daughter of Abraham and Annie (Deysher) Schlegel, of Richmond township, and to this union were born: Nora E., Lloyd R., F. Geneva, Paul A., and Oliver E. Mr. Kieffer has been honored on several occasions by his fellow citizens who have elected him as councilman, in which capacity he served most efficiently, acting as secretary of the council for two years, and as president of that body for one year. In politics he is a stanch Democrat. He is a member of St. Paul's Union Church of Fleetwood, belonging to the Reformed denomination. Mr. Kieffer and his family live in his fine brick residence in Fleetwood.

GEORGE B. MOSER, implement dealer at West Leesport, was born on the Moser homestead in Bern township April 24, 1864, son of Benneville and Mary Malinda (Schaffer) Moser.

Valentine Moser, his great-grandfather, was born in Bern township, and is buried at Epler's Church, the sandstone tombstone still marking his grave though the inscription has long since been obliterated. He married Rosina Fisher, and among their children were Fildy, Wily and Samuel.

Samuel Moser, son of Valentine, was born June 23, 1801, and he died June 6, 1862. He owned the homestead of 300 acres in Bern township, a large part of which was woodland. He hewed down trees and erected log cabins on the land, and he became one of the substantial men of his day, and was very well known. He conducted the Moser distillery on his farm for many years, and he was also a great fisherman, his death occurring while he was fishing at Moser's dam (now abandoned). He was buried at Epler's Church, of which he was an active member. He married Maria Body, daughter of Henry Body. She was born Sept. 29, 1796, and died Dec. 23, 1870. Their children were: William, who died on the old homestead; Valentine, and Benneville, who both died in Bern township; Samuel, who died in Alsace township; Maria, who married Jacob Bittner; Rose, who married Llewellyn Schelly; Eliza, unmarried; Sarah, who married William Klopp; and Louisa, who married Levi F. Dietrich, of Garfield, Centre township.

Benneville Moser, son of Samuel, was born in Bern township Jan. 24, 1831, and was a farmer there until his retirement a few years before his death, which occurred Nov. 24, 1892. He owned the old homestead of 160 acres, on which he erected all of the buildings except the house, and that was built by his grandfather, Valentine Moser, in 1801. The barn was built in 1882. Mr. Moser also owned two other farms, one adjoining the homestead, and the other of thirty-three acres in Centre township. He was a member of Epler's Reformed Church, and served as deacon and elder, ever being active in religious work. He married Mary Malinda Schaffer, born May 21, 1842, daughter of George and Malinda (Kissling) Schaffer. She died April 20, 1902. Three children were born of this union: Samuel H., living on the homestead; George B., of West Leesport; and Sallie S., wife of Daniel Lamm, of Penn township.

George B. Moser was brought up to a thorough knowledge of farm work, and he gave his services to his parents until he was twenty-three years of age, at which time he started out for himself on one of the Moser farms, adjoining the original tract, and there he lived for seven years. Then in the spring of 1894 he moved to West Leesport, and engaged in the livery business, conducting this most successfully until 1907, when he sold out to John W. Rahn. Since then he has engaged in the sale of farm implements, handling the McCormick machines, and he has made an enviable record. He resides in a charming little cottage near the Station, and this he owns, besides three other pieces of valuable property on Railroad street, and three on River street, all of which are rented.

In poltitics Mr. Moser is a Democrat, and he has been exceedingly active in his party's welfare. Since 1904 he has been committeman for the borough, and since the spring of 1901 he has been constable. He has served as delegate to a number of county conventions, and in 1905 was a delegate to the State convention. Socially he is a member of Camp No. 165, P. O. S. of A.; Castle No. 503, K. G. E.; Ontelaunee Council, No. 985, O. of I. A., all of Leesport. He and his family attend Leesport Church, belonging to the Reformed Congregation. While living in Bern township, Mr. Moser was a deacon in Epler's Church.

On June 19, 1886, Mr. Moser married Clara R. Tobias, born June 29, 1867, daughter of Jacob G. Tobias. She died June 30, 1902, the day following her thirty-fifth birthday. The three children of this union were: Stella m. Clayton Koller; Jennie m. Wayne Bagenstose; and Jacob. Mr. Moser m. (second) Mary R. Weisner, daughter of James R. and Lucy Ann (Frederick) Weisner, and widow of Nelson N. Thomas. By her first marriage Mrs. Moser had two sons, J. Samuel and Howard W.

WILLIAM KLINE SHALTER, one of the substantial citizens of Cumru township, Berks county, who is the owner of a fine 156-acre property, and the secretary-treasurer and manager of the Mount Penn Ice Company, organized in 1900, was born on the place which he is now operating, Sept. 29, 1856, son of George and Eliza (Kline) Shalter.

George Shalter was born Feb. 29, 1808, in Maiden-creek township, Berks county, and died in Reading in 1890. His home was in Maiden-creek township until he purchased the old Schwartz estate in Cumru township in 1855, and there he was engaged in farming and manufacturing charcoal iron until 1872. Mr. Shalter was a successful business man and highly esteemed citizen, and at the time of his death had accumulated a comfortable competency. On May 29, 1833, Mr. Shalter was married to Eliza Kline, born April 30, 1815, daughter of Jonathan and Margaret Kline, and to this union there were born children as follows: Isabella m. William M. Kauffman; Richard M.; Sarah S. m. Cyrus J. Hunter; Eliza J., born Oct. 21, 1841, died May 23, 1842; Emma K. m. John G. Kalbach; Elmira, born Sept. 22, 1845, died Sept. 9, 1846; George, born Aug. 3, 1847, died Aug. 29, 1848; Mary M. m. C. K. Whitner, the well-known Reading merchant; and William K.

William K. Shalter obtained his education in the township schools, the Reading high school and the old Chester N. Farr Business College of Reading, after leaving which he worked for Lerch & Bro., hardware dealers, and the Bard & Reber Hardware Company of Reading for about ten years. In 1883 Mr. Shalter began farming in West Point, Cuming Co., Nebr., but after nearly three years returned to Cumru township and engaged in farming his father's farm. This property he acquired in 1889, and it now consists of 156 acres of some of the most highly cultivated land of Cumru township. Mr. Shalter is also the owner of the old Mount Penn Furnace property, on which was a well-known iron industry during the early part of the nineteenth century and until after the Civil war. He is secretary-treasurer and manager of the Mount Penn Ice Company, organized in 1900, which employs five teams regularly and houses 7,000 tons of ice annually, all of this being sold in Reading. Mr. Shalter is a Republican in national affairs, while in local matters he is independent, and for one term served as auditor of the township. He and his family are Reformed members of Yocum's (Christ) Union Church.

On March 20, 1881, Mr. Shalter was married to Mary Ann Kurtz, born Dec. 9, 1856, daughter of Henry and Amanda (Schwartz) Kurtz, and to them were born six children: Isabella K.; Henry K.; Nora K., born Sept. 7, 1888, died March 21, 1891; William G.; Carrie K. and Mary K.

JASPER Y. LIGHTFOOT, a well-known retired citizen of Blandon, Pa., who was for many years engaged in painting in Maiden-creek township, was born Jan. 26, 1849, near the old Friends' Meeting House, in that township, Berks county, son of David and Harriet (Kerchoff) Lightfoot.

Samuel Lightfoot, grandfather of Jasper Y., married Rachel Yarnell, and they had these children: David; Susan m. Joseph Wright; and Margaret m. Jesse Willits.

David Lightfoot, father of Jasper Y., married Harriet Kerchoff, daughter of Daniel and Sarah Kerchoff, and to this union there were born the following children: Eliza K. m. Daniel Melot; Margaret and Jane both died single; and Jasper Y.

Jasper Y. Lightfoot was reared in his native vicinity, where he attended the public schools, later going to Tremont Seminary at Norristown. He then clerked for some time in a store, but subsequently learned the trade of painter, which he followed until recent years, when he retired, and now only occasionally handles odd jobs. Mr. Lightfoot was married to Sarah C. Mengel, daughter of John and Mary (Hix) Mengel, and to this union there were born three children: Susan Eliza is deceased; Mary Jane m. Harris Redcay, and has had two sons, Harris (who died aged four days) and Linwood S.; Emma Lizzie is deceased. Mr. Lightfoot's wife and daughter are members of the Lutheran Church. In political matters he is a Republican, but he has never aspired to office outside of his township.

JOHN D. ROBERTS, a farmer of Washington township, where he has served as supervisor since 1894, is a native of Hereford township, Berks county, born July 3, 1861. He is a son of Everard Roberts, grandson of John Roberts, and great-grandson of Everard Roberts, who may have come to America with his son, though it is possible the latter emigrated alone when a young man, before his marriage.

John Roberts, son of Everard and Sarah Roberts, born Oct. 10, 1778, died Nov. 20, 1854, and is buried at Quakertown, Bucks county. He came from England, and was a Quaker in religious faith. He married Sarah Myers, daughter of Michael and Elizabeth Myers, born April 20, 1777, died Aug. 15, 1855, and they had a large family, born as follows: Elizabeth, in 1802; Anna, 1803 (died in 1881); Everard, 1805; Abigail, 1807; Hannah, 1809; Edward, 1810 (died in 1880); John, 1812 (died in 1870); Susan, 1813; Sarah, 1816; Lewis, 1818.

Everard Roberts, father of John D. Roberts, was a native of Bucks county, Pa., born Nov. 11, 1805, near Quakertown. He died Sept. 16, 1891, aged eighty-five years, ten months, five days, and had never known sickness of any kind. He is buried at Zionsville. Mr. Roberts was a farmer by calling. He married Deborah Foulk, daughter of Hugh and Catherine Foulk, born Nov. 25, 1804, died March 3, 1852, and by this union there were five children, as follows: Joseph, born in 1834; Edwin, in 1838; Charles, 1842; Deborah, 1844; and Everard, 1846. For his second wife Mr. Roberts married Mary Deischer, daughter of Peter and Mary Deischer, born Nov. 27, 1823, died June 20, 1898, aged seventy-four years, six months, twenty-three days, and five children were also born to this marriage: Sarah m. Daniel Hoffman; Amanda m. Samuel S. Schultz, Esq., of Hereford township; James resides in Hereford township; John D. is mentioned farther on; Allen is a resident of Illinois.

John D. Roberts attended the common schools in the neighborhood of his home and was reared upon the farm, continuing to work for his parents until he was twenty-one years old. Then he and his brother, James H., began farming the old Benjamin Yeakel homestead in Hereford township, continuing together for five years, and having their parents with them. When at the end of the five years they dissolved partnership, James H. went to Red Hill in Montgomery county, and John D. and his wife remained one year longer on the farm. In April, 1888, Mr. Roberts moved to the tract upon which he has ever since resided, twenty-four acres located three-quarters of a mile north of Bally, and he follows farming. He has made a number of improvements upon the place during his ownership, has repaired the barn, and in the fall of 1908 remodeled the house, adding to the value of his property in many ways. He has a cozy home, which he has acquired through his own industry, and he is much respected wherever known. As supervisor for many years he has become well known all over his home township. Though a stanch Republican in a strong Democratic district he was elected to that office in the spring of 1894 over William M. Kase, Democrat, who had held the office for seventeen years continuously. Throughout his long experience in that office he has performed his duties faithfully, winning the confidence of his fellow-citizens to an unusual degree.

Mr. Roberts married Sept. 29, 1885, Ida S. Batz, daughter of William and Sarah (Schell) Batz, of Hereford township, and they have had two children, Elwood and Mary A. Mrs. Roberts worships at Huffs Church. Mr. Roberts is a member of Council No. 1019, Order of Independent Americans, which is located at Eshbach, Berks county.

GEORGE B. GRUBER, who is engaged in farming and huckstering in Perry township, Berks county, was born March 29, 1843, in the district in which he still resides, son of John S. and Elizabeth (Baer) Gruber.

Christian Gruber, the great-great-grandfather of George B. Gruber, was the first American ancestor of this family. He was born Oct. 12, 1712, and died Nov. 11, 1781. His home was in Heidelberg township, Berks county. He married Anna Kunigard Shep, by whom he had children as follows: John m. Elizabeth Emerich and went West; Christian; Mary Catherine and John Adam died single; John Albrecht left Berks county in 1806, settling in West Virginia (he m. Susanna Knapp); and Anna Margaret m. William Grisman.

Christian Gruber, son of Christian, was born Jan. 5, 1745, and settled in Windsor township after the Revolutionary war. He married Susanna Sliger and their children were: Christina m. Frederick Bailey; Barbara m. John Hoffman; John George; Susannah m. George Body; John Adam m. Susannah Reeser; and Elizabeth m. Christian Berger.

John George Gruber, grandfather of George B., was born Aug. 9, 1778, and died Jan. 26, 1866. He was a blacksmith by trade, and lived on his farm of twenty-seven acres of land near Virginville. He was a remarkably strong man, standing six feet and two inches, and weighing about 225 pounds, could manage any horse, and by main force could throw it to the ground. He never met the man who dared fight him, and was feared by those who boasted of their physical powers. He was an uncompromising Democrat, and was county poor director in his district for fifteen years. Mr. Gruber married Hannah Savage, daughter of John Savage, born Jan. 16, 1786, and she died Oct. 13, 1846. Their children were: Susanna (m. Solomon Mengel, of Shartlesville, Pa.) and John S.

John S. Gruber, father of George B., was born Feb. 4, 1807, was a farmer near Virginville, Berks county, and died Oct. 11, 1889. He was a carpenter by trade and followed that occupation for many years, also carrying on operations on his 164-acre farm. He also conducted a blacksmith shop, and did all work of that kind in his neighborhood. Mr. Gruber was greatly interested in educational matters, serving as school director for several terms. He is buried at Zion's Union Church, of which he was a regular member. Mr. Gruber married Elizabeth Baer, daughter of John and Susannah (Reeser) Baer, and to this union there were born: Hannah m. (first) William Ramer, and (second) William Morgan; Elizabeth m. Israel M. Becker; and George B.

George B. Gruber secured a good education in the common schools of his native township, which he left at the age of nineteen years, and his boyhood was spent on his father's farm, on which he has lived all of his life. In 1888 he embarked in business as a huckster, buying butter and eggs from the farmers of his district and in Windsor, Greenwich and Richmond townships, and has an extensive weekly route. In 1873 he purchased part of the Daniel Becker estate, consisting of thirty-eight acres of good land, which Mr. Gruber has greatly improved. He rebuilt the wagon shed and other buildings, remodeled the house and beautified the property in many ways. He now has a fine little home, there being few places that are kept in better repair. As a citizen Mr. Gruber stands high in his community, being intelligent and progressive. He enjoys the respect and esteem of his fellow-men. In political matters, like all of the Grubers, he votes the straight Democratic ticket. He and his wife attend the Shoemakersville Church, he being a Lutheran member, while she clings to the Reformed faith.

On Feb. 20, 1869, Mr. Gruber was married to Tillarah F. Hamscher, daughter of William and Angelina (Fenstermacher) Hamscher, and to this union there have been born children as follows: Ada E. m. R. E. Clevenstine, of Spring City, Pa.; Ella M. m. J. Edward Tyson, also of Spring City, Pa.; John M., unmarried, is manager of a large grocery store in Philadelphia; George M. m. Marguerite Saul; William M. m. Lavada Seidel; Harvey M. m. Laura Baver; Cora H. m. Thomas Naftzinger; Joseph I. W. m. Anna Latshaw, and is living at Spring City, Pa., where he is a manager of a large factory; Norman I. m. Lydia Boyer; Robert C. m. Fannie Kurtz, and is assistant manager with his brothers in Spring City, Pa.; and Virgil M., Wilmer A., Sallie T. and Katie A. are all at home with their parents.

MARX REIMER, engaged in the real estate business and formerly proprietor of the "Textile Inn," at Wyomissing, was born in Schleswig-Holstein, Prussia, June 18, 1869. He was educated in the local schools and also the high school, attending until he was twenty-two years old, and then he emigrated to America, arriving at Reading, Pa., Nov. 3, 1891. He worked first for the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company and afterward in different iron mills in Reading, in the State of Connecticut and in the Pencoyd works in Pennsylvania until 1894, when he entered the employ of Nolde & Horst, hosiery manufacturers of Reading, in their finishing department at Philadelphia, and he remained with them in that city until 1897, when they removed this department to their large plant in Reading. He continued working for them until January, 1903, when he removed to Wyomissing to take charge and possession of the "Textile Inn," a large and substantial three-story brick building with modern improvements, which he had erected in 1902, on a large lot of ground at the corner of Penn Avenue and Van Reed road, and he conducted this hotel in a successful manner until the spring of 1908, when he sold out to Frank Lauer. During 1907-08, he erected six houses on Hill avenue, Wyomissing, and has during the the winter of 1909 established a real estate office in Wyomissing and secured the agency for a considerable number of lots and houses in that place.

In the incorporation of Wyomissing into a borough Mr. Reimer took a very active part; and at the first election in 1906 he was chosen one of the school directors. In April, 1907, Mr. Reimer and his family went to Germany, and there spent five months, visiting his old home and other points of interest. In 1899 Mr. Reimer married Mrs. Lizzie Sanders, widow of Nathan Sanders (who died in 1893), and by her had two sons: Robert Marx and Carl Friederich. His wife had a son, Elwood Paul, by her first husband. Jonathan Tobias, father of Mrs. Reimer, was a farmer of Bern township, and was killed in Leinbach's stone quarry. He married Isabella Shalter, and by her had five children: Charles, Kate, Lizzie, Rose and Thomas (deceased).

Mr. Reimer's father was Hans Reimer of Schleswig-Holstein, who died at the age of thirty years. He married Margaretha Hensen, of the same place, and upon his death the son Marx, who was still a small boy, was taken by the grandmother Hensen who brought him up and educated him.

WILLIAM H. KENNEDY, who has been identified with the agricultural interests of Berks county, for a number of years, and who now resides in Robeson township, was born in that township, Oct. 14, 1840, son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Lykens) Kennedy.

Thomas Kennedy, it is believed, was born in the lower part of Chester county, was reared upon a farm, and early in life was engaged in work around the old Hampden furnaces, hauling and cutting wood. He also did boating on the Schuylkill Canal, and in 1840 he purchased the farm now owned by his son, William H. Here Mr. Kennedy engaged in agricultural pursuits until his retirement, eighteen years prior to his death, in 1891, when he was aged ninety years, and twelve days. Mrs. Kennedy died in 1878, when seventy-four years old. The children born to Thomas Kennedy and his wife were: Sarah m. Joel Moyer; Elizabeth m. Abram Snyder; Mary m. John Clouser; Hannah m. William Lloyd; Lucinda m. William H. Bitler; Lucetta died in infancy; Edwin is mentioned elsewhere; and William H. The family attended the M. E. Church, although not members. In politics Mr. Kennedy was a Republican.

William H. Kennedy was educated in the common schools of Robeson township, and when a boy worked about his father's farm. At the age of eighteen years he left home and enlisted in Reading, Nov. 28, 1861, in Battery M, 5th United States Light Field Artillery, serving for two years and three months. He re-enlisted at Brandywine Station, Va., in the same battery, and his service covered five years, two months, fourteen days, he having been promoted to sergeant and corporal, being discharged as such at the close of the war. He was assigned to the Army of the Potomac, and served in all in twenty-seven battles, his experiences being many and varied. Mr. Kennedy's record is that of a brave and faithful soldier and a capable officer.

After his discharge at Fort Jefferson, Dry Tortugas, Florida, Mr. Kennedy returned home, and for one year worked on the farm, at the end of this time engaging with Benjamin Grubb, at whose stone quarry he was employed for two seasons. In company with his brother, Edwin, Mr. Kennedy then rented the Kirby farm, which they operated six years, afterward moving to a farm near White Bear, on which they remained for four years. Mr. Kennedy next spent one year on Edwin Kennedy's farm, and in 1881 he purchased the old homestead, a tract of about fifty-nine arces, which he devotes to general farming and trucking.

Mr. Kennedy married Mary M. Wicklein, daughter of Daniel Wicklein, and eight of the thirteen children born to this union are living, namely: Annie m. Alvin Lykens; Hannah m. Heber Glass; Laura m. William Hahn; Grant m. Jennie Bechtel; Daisy m. Charles Fagan; Luther; Elwood; and Elmer. Those deceased are Maggie, William, Harriet, and two others. In religious belief the family are members of the German Reformed Church. Mr. Kennedy is a Republican in politics, and has held a number of minor township offices. He is an elder in the church, and was formerly connected officially with the Sunday-school.

LEVI ALFRED WALBERT, residing at Topton, where he is successfully conducting a grain, coal and lumber business, has a similar establishment at Hancock Station on the same line of railroad. He was born in Lehigh county, Pa., Nov. 27, 1857, son of Levi and Mary Ann (Benner) Walbert.

Jacob Walbert, grandfather of Levi Alfred, was a farmer who resided at Hynemansville, Lehigh Co., Pa. He died there and was buried at Zeigler's Church. He had a large family but all are deceased.

Levi Walbert, son of Jacob, owned the old homestead, on which he died aged fifty-six years. He married Mary Ann Benner, a daughter of George Benner, and they had the following children: Diana (deceased) married (first) Ephraim Ritter and (second) Stephen Lentz; Isabella (deceased) m. Manoa Heffner; Milton m. Susan Wert; Levi A.; and Mary Alice m. Dr. Frank Holben.

Formerly Levi Alfred Walbert owned the old homestead, but he has sold that property and for some years has been engaged in his present enterprise. He is a good business man and is prosperous. He married Arabella Dornblaser, daughter of Benjamin Dornblaser, and they have five children, namely: Levi (m. Sallie Harbine, and has had three children—Earl, Mary and Lulu, the last named deceased); Mamie (unmarried); Thomas (m. Menerva Hiser); Clistie and Paul. Mr. Walbert is a member of Zeigler's Reformed Church. He belongs to the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

JOHN B. BAUS, proprietor of the "Barto Hotel," in Washington township, Berks county, has been carrying on that place since 1902. He was born Feb. 29, 1864, in Longswamp township, this county, in which vicinity his family has been settled for many years.

William Baus, his grandfather, was born July 31, 1796, and died May 8, 1884, aged eighty-seven years, nine months, eight days. He married Catharine Stauffer, born Jan. 26, 1795, died Jan. 17, 1864, aged sixty-eight years, eleven months, twenty-one days, and both are buried at Huff's Church. There is a John Baus, born in 1810, died in 1859, aged forty-eight years, nine months, fourteen days, buried at Huff's Church, who was probably a brother of William Baus. Mr. and Mrs. William Baus passed all their lives in the neighborhood of Huff's Church, and he was engaged as a farmer and charcoal burner. He was a tall, strong man, of honest nature and happy disposition. His family consisted of four children: Johannes S., born Sept. 29, 1821, died May 25, 1884, aged sixty-two years, seven months, twenty-six days, married Elizabeth Geisinger; William, born May 26, 1825, died Jan. 4, 1899, aged seventy-three years, seven months, eight days, married Lucy Ann Weidner (1823-1866) and had a son Allen (1861-1880); Samuel S., born Jan. 12, 1830, died Feb. 22, 1893; Jacob, born Jan. 11, 1835, died Sept. 1, 1889, aged fifty-four years, seven months, twenty days.

Samuel S. Baus, son of William, was born Jan. 12, 1830, and died Feb. 22, 1893, aged sixty-three years, one month, ten days. He was buried at Huff's Church, of which he was a member. Mr. Baus was a farmer and shoemaker at Huff's Church, where he owned a twenty-four-acre tract upon which he lived for twenty-three years. He married Elizabeth Buzzard, daughter of Adam Buzzard, and she survives him, now making her home with her son Alfred at East Greenville, Montgomery Co., Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Baus had eight children: George, Alfred, Clara (m. George Strubel), John B., David, Mary (m. Isaiah Ziegler and lives at Pennsburg, Pa.), Fianna (m. John Wannamaker, of Rahn Station, Pa.), and James (m. Annie Gabel, and lives at Trumbauersville, Pa.).

John B. Baus attended school at Huff's Church and was reared to farm work, which he followed for a number of years, at first working for farmers in Hereford and Washington townships, Berks county, and in North Wales, Gwynedd township, Montgomery county. In 1885 he went out West to West Point, Cuming Co., Nebr., where he worked on a farm about one year, and returning to Berks county he worked among the farmers around his father's old homestead at Huff's Church. He continued thus until 1896, and for the next six years sold milk at North Wales, buying it from the farmers and retailing it among his customers. On Jan. 8, 1902, he became the proprietor of the "Barto Hotel," which he has since conducted. The property is owned by George J. Raub, of Reading. Mr. Baus is a good business man, and being of a sociable disposition is well-fitted for his present line of business. He is a member of the K. G. E. at North Wales, the Order of Independent Americans at North Wales, and the P. O. S. of A. camp at Alburtis. In politics he is a Jeffersonian Democrat, and he takes quite an interest in party affairs.

On Jan. 8, 1902, Mr. Baus was married to Clara Johnson of North Wales, daughter of Frank C. Johnson, of that place, and they have two children, Helen and Nellie. This family belong to the Reformed congregation of Huff's Church, of which all the Baus family have been members, and many of the name are buried there.

WILLIAM R. HAUDER. In the death of William R. Hauder, which occurred at the old Mull residence on Main street, Sinking Spring, March 15, 1905, Spring township lost one of its highly esteemed citizens and a prominent member of the Reformed Church. Mr. Hauder was born March 14, 1833, son of Daniel and Catherine (Ruth) Hauder.

Solomon Hauder, the grandfather of William R., was born on the old homestead in Heidelberg township, Dec. 25, 1785, son of Ulrich Hauder, the first of the name to settle in Heidelberg township, from whom he received the property which he operated all of his life. He died May 13, 1869, and was buried at Sinking Spring graveyard, immediately back of the church. Solomon Hauder was a soldier in the war of 1812. He was married to Catherine Potteicher, of Strausstown, born Nov. 3, 1788, who died June 5, 1855, and they had only one child, Daniel.

Daniel Hauder, father of William R., was born Sept. 22, 1806, on the old homestead in Heidelberg township, and died Feb. 1, 1880, being buried at the graveyard at Sinking Spring. He was a lifelong farmer, became very successful, and was a leading member of Sinking Spring Church. Mr. Hauder married Catherine Ruth, born Oct. 28, 1808, who died April 14, 1887, daughter of George and Catherine (Gernand) Ruth. To this union there were born three children: Catherine m. Isaac Y. Beidler, whose record appears elsewhere in this volume; William R.; and Eliza m. Cyrus Ruth, an agriculturist of Spring township.

William R. Hauder was reared to manhood at the old Hauder homestead, which has been in the family name since the days of the American Revolution, and commenced farming when about twenty-six years old on this property, which he continued to operate for many years. He then removed to a farm which his wife had acquired, a property of twenty-eight acres of good land in Lower Heidelberg township, which has been tenanted since Mr. and Mrs. Hauder's retirement to Sinking Spring.

In 1859 Mr. Hauder married Catherine E. Mull, born May 2, 1839, daughter of Henry and Theresa (Steltz) Mull, formerly of Montgomery county and later of Sinking Spring, and to this union there were born four children, namely: Solomon died when seventeen years of age; William H. died in infancy; Carrie m. James Hill, of near Wernersville, Pa.; and George, unmarried, resides with his mother.

Mrs. Hauder obtained her education in the public schools, and a private school at Reading, in charge of Prof. William Good, a former county superintendent, and is a lady of culture and refinement. She is in prosperous circumstances, and is a liberal contributor to St. John's Church of Sinking Springs, of which she is a Reformed member, and of which Mr. Hauder was a deacon for two years.

FRANKLIN W. LESHER, a prosperous agriculturist of Perry township, Berks county, who is engaged in cultivating his fine 134-acre farm, was born Nov. 9, 1854, in Greenwich township, near Heinley's Mill, formerly Lesher's Mill, son of William Lesher.

John Lesher, a native of Germany, born Jan. 5, 1711, who was the only son and heir-at-law of Nicholas Lesher, of the Fatherland, emigrated to Pennsylvania in 1734 and was naturalized in 1743. He first settled in Bucks county, and later in Oley township, Berks county, where he became very prominent as an iron-master. He represented the county in the Constitutional Convention of 1776, and from 1776 served until 1782 in the General Assembly, helping to prepare the "Declaration of Rights," and being extremely prominent during the Revolutionary war, rendering valuable service to his adopted country. He died in Oley township, April 5, 1794, aged eighty-three years, leaving a widow, five daughters—Barbara, Hannah, Maria, Catherine and Elizabeth—and two sons—John and Jacob, of Oley township.

Among the sons of John Lesher, son of John, was Jacob Lesher, grandfather of Franklin W., who was the proprietor of Lesher's Mill in Greenwich township, where he lived for many years. He owned over 100 acres of land, which he farmed in addition to his milling business, and here he died in 1857, aged seventy years. He married Esther Heffner, daughter of Jacob and Anna (Dietrich) Heffner, and to them were born children as follows: Jacob (m. Lucinda Dietrich); Kate (m. Daniel Dietrich); Abraham (m. Rachel Fegley); Hettie (m. John Kline); Benneville (m. Mary Heinly); Betsey (m. Jacob Baer); Solomon (m. Kate Hollenbach); Fayette (m. David Hollenbach); Isaac (m. Maria Stoyer); and William.

William Lesher, of Richmond and Perry townships, was an agriculturist and owned the farm now occupied by his son, Franklin W. He was born in May, 1829, and died April 2, 1893, aged sixty-four years. In politics he was a Democrat, serving as supervisor of his district for four years, while he was a prominent member and for many years deacon and elder, of Dunkel's Reformed Church, assisting to build the present church edifice. Mr. Lesher married Theresa Zettlemoyer, daughter of Adam and Mary (Miller) Zettlemoyer, and they had these children: Fietta, who died in childhood; Franklin W.; Jacob Z., a farmer of Perry township; Hettie, single; and Mary, who married Henry Young.

Franklin W. Lesher was one year and a half old when his parents removed to a small farm in Richmond township, there residing for eleven years. In this district and in Perry township he attended the common schools, receiving a limited education, and after leaving school he at once engaged in agricultural pursuits, which he has continued to the present time. In 1885 he began farming on his present place, continuing there until 1890, when he purchased a thirty-acre tract in Maiden-creek township, near South Evansville, but in 1902 purchased his father's farm, and here has continued to the present time, selling his Maiden-creek farm in 1905. His property, which consists of 134 acres of good gravel soil, and is the only farm in Perry township lying exactly square, having but four corners, is well cultivated and is improved with modern barns and outbuildings and a fine residence. He is a good, honest citizen, and is esteemed by his fellow-townsmen for his many sterling qualities of character. In his political belief he is a Democrat, although he has never held public office. He and his family are Reformed members of Dunkel's Union Church.

On March 9, 1878, Mr. Lesher was united in marriage with Eva Catherine Stump, daughter of Aaron and Elizabeth (Zettelmoyer) Stump, granddaughter of Samuel and Rachel (Leiby) Stump. To Mr. and Mrs. Lesher there have been born these children: Samuel William, born Sept. 15, 1878, died June 20, 1879; Solomon Sylvester, born Sept. 25, 1880, died aged seven days; and Augustus Adam, born Jan. 10, 1884.

Augustus A. Lesher received his education in the public schools of his native locality, from which he was graduated March 25, 1901, and he is now working with his father, acting as his clerk on the farm, and conducting practically all business transactions for him. Since early youth he has been a Reformed member of Dunkel's Union Church, and has taken a great interest in the Sunday-school, being superintendent thereof for one year. On New Year's day, 1908, he was elected deacon of Dunkel's Reformed congregation and at the re-organization of the united congregations was elected president threof. On May 10, 1908, was elected as Reformed Superintendent of the Dunkel's Church Union Sunday-school. Mr. Lesher was also president of the Young People's Christian Endeavor Society of Virginville, Pa., of which he is still an active member. He is highly respected by everybody. At the present time he is president of the newly organized cemetery association, of his church, which, although in its infancy, is making steady progress, and he is one of the most talented young men of the entire community and has the energy, perseverance and good judgment necessary to win success, in anything he undertakes.

HENRY MUHLENBERG OTTO, at the time of his death a retired merchant at Reading and director of the Commercial Trust Company, was born at Reading, Jan. 4, 1826, and died there April 12, 1909. He was educated in private schools, which were then maintained successfully in the borough, and in the Reading Academy. After completing his education he entered a large country store, carried on by Horatio and William Trexler, brothers, at Longswamp, Berks county, situated in the East Penn valley, twenty-two miles northeast of Reading, and there he continued fourteen months. He then returned to Reading and served in several stores until 1845, when he became a clerk in the employ of his brother, John A. Otto, at Taylorsville, in Schuylkill county, who was engaged in the manufacture of iron. While there he received the appointment of postmaster at the place from President James K. Polk, and he served in that capacity four years, from 1845 to 1849.

Mr. Otto returned to Reading in 1849, and after acting as a clerk for a short time opened a dry goods store for himself on Penn street, between Third and Fourth, which he carried on successfully until 1863. During this time, in September, 1862, he was enlisted for a short period in the Civil war, serving as a private in Company G, 2d Regiment, Pa. V. I. In 1863 he sold out his store and removed to Williamsport to engage in the lumber business with his brother, John A., and others, operating as John A. Otto & Co. for three years. Afterward for four years he was in the wholesale lumber business, having purchased a large area, several thousand acres, of hemlock timber, in Elk county, Pa., and formed a partnership with his son and son-in-law. The firm produced and disposed of great quantities of timber, lumber and bark and carried on a successful business until 1882, when the father retired. He then moved to Baltimore, remaining there until 1891, after which he was located at Reading, living in retirement.

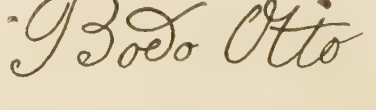
While at Taylorsville Mr. Otto showed great interest in the cause of temperance, which at that time was agitating the whole State of Pennsylvania, and he organized Rural Fount Division No. 310, Sons of Temperance, which exerted a strong influence in the community. At Reading he identified himself with the Odd Fellows in their early history, and for some years was an active member of Emblematic Lodge. While at Williamsport he served in select council for one term. He was an adherent of the Democratic party, though independent in his selection of candidates for office. In 1904 he assisted in organizing the Commercial Trust Company of Reading, and served as a director in its management until his decease. With his wife he was an active member of Calvary Reformed Church, of which he had been serving as elder for seventeen years.

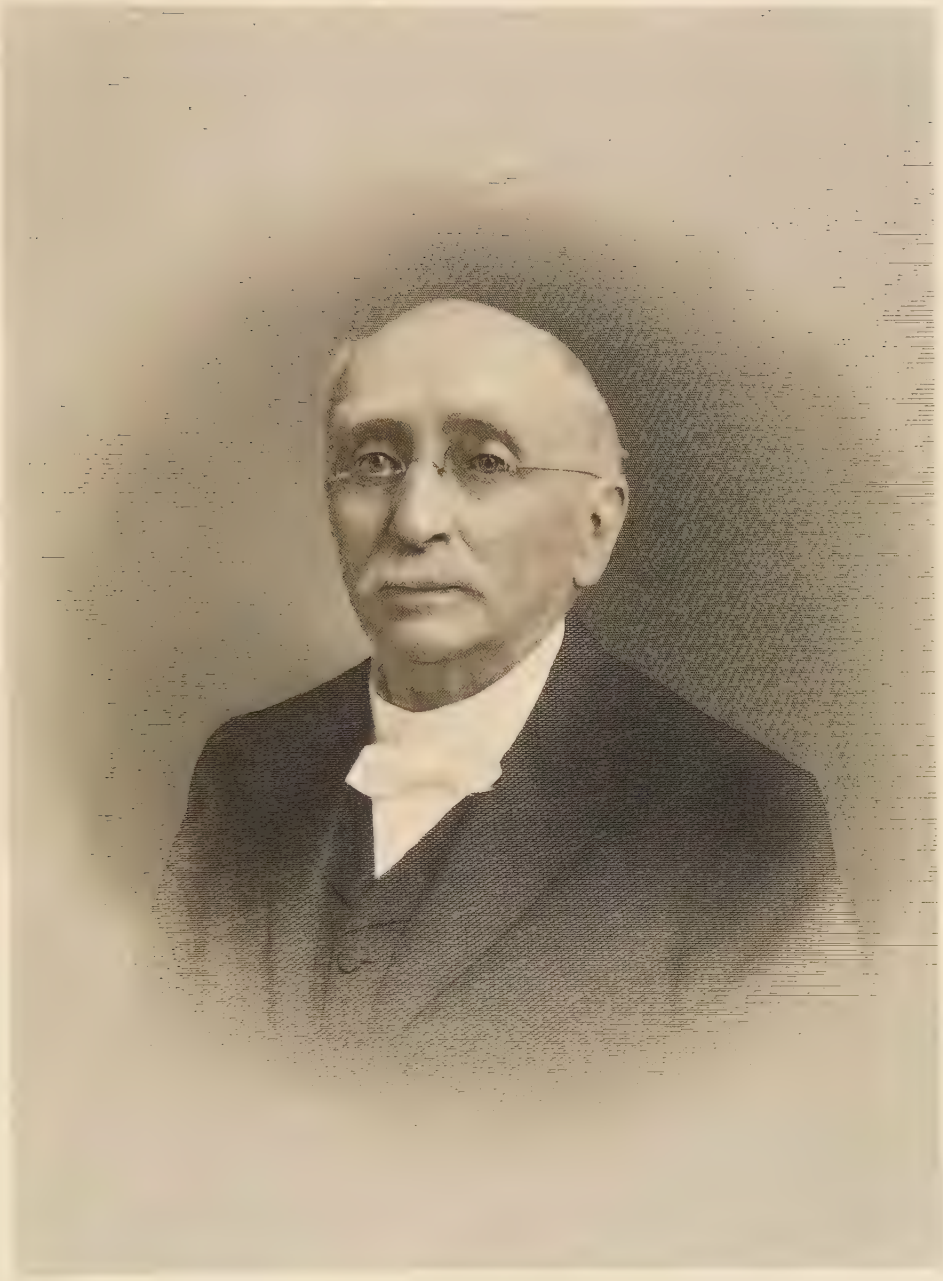
In 1850 Mr. Otto married Susan B. Goodhart, daughter of Jacob and Mary (Beidler) Goodhart, of Reading, and by her had two children: John Bodo, residing at Williamsport, m. Lillie Ladd, and after her death m. (second) Ida Pray; Mary Irene m. Dr. John W. Lowe, of Baltimore. The mother died in Baltimore in 1884. In 1894 Mr. Otto m. (second) Sarah Agnes Hain, daughter of Jacob H. Hain.

Mr. Otto's father was John Bodo Otto. He was born at Reading in 1785, and became a highly educated physician, graduating from Princeton College in 1806, and from the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania in 1808. He practised his profession in a most distinguished manner until he died in 1858. His wife, Esther Green Witman, daughter of Hon. William Witman, of Reading, was a highly educated woman, a graduate of the Moravian Seminary at Bethlehem, and showed much devotion and liberality to the interests of the Lutheran Church and to public charities. She died in 1880, aged eighty-four years, the mother of six children: John Augustus m. Caroline Mohr; Bodo m. Annie Weimer and after her decease Emma Yundt; Emma m. Samuel A. Filbert; Henry M., above; Maria m. Jacob Geise; Matilda m. George W. Miller.

Dr. John Augustus Otto, the grandfather, was born in Hanover, Germany, in 1751, and accompanied his parents to Pennsylvania when they emigrated in 1755. He was thoroughly educated in the schools of Philadelphia and studied medicine under his father. He settled in Reading in 1773 and carried on an active and lucrative practice until his decease in 1834. He was prominently engaged in the Revolution as a surgeon, and filled various public positions with distinction. He m. in 1776 Catharine Hitner, daughter of George Hitner, of Marble Hall, in Philadelphia county (now Montgomery), and by her had seven children: Margaret m. Benjamin Whitman; Mary m. Gabriel Hiester, a prominent local and State official; Sarah m. Jonathan Hiester, Esq., an attorney at Reading; Elizabeth m. Hon. Henry M. Richards, of Reading; Maria m. Joseph Wood; Daniel Hitner m. Sarah Whitman; and John Bodo, above.

Dr. Bodo Otto, the great-grandfather, was the most distinguished physician and surgeon at Reading from 1773 to 1787. He was born in Hanover, Germany, in 1709, and was thoroughly educated as a physician. He emigrated to this country on account of political dissensions and revolution, landing at the port of Philadelphia Nov. 10, 1755. After practising his profession at Philadelphia until 1773 he removed to Reading, and the spirit of revolution beginning to assert itself in the community he distinguished himself by his patriotic devotion to the cause of freedom. He was conspicuously engaged as surgeon-general during the whole period of the Revolution, from 1776 to 1783. He was thrice married, and had five children, the sons being Frederick Christopher, Dr. Bodo and Dr. John Augustus. We present Dr. Bodo Otto's signature herewith.





Henry A. Otto.

Mrs. Henry M. Otto is a lineal descendant of Casper Hoehn, the Palatinate immigrant, who settled with other immigrants along the Tulpehocken creek in 1728. Her father was Jacob H. Hain who engaged in the saddlery business at Reading for many years. He officiated as clerk of the Quarter Sessions of Berks county, from 1872 to 1875. He died in 1891. He married Mary Ann Goodhart, daughter of Jacob Goodhart, and had three children: Clara Louise m. George P. Zieber; Alice V. m. Jonathan P. Mengel; Sarah Agnes m. Henry M. Otto. Her grandfather was John Hain, of Lower Heidelberg, who was a son of Daniel, a grandson of Heinrich, and a great-grandson of George.

WILLIAM E. ZIEBER, one of the well-known hotel men of Berks county, Pa., who is conducting the "Millmont Hotel" in Cumru township, was born July 26, 1865, son of Henry L. and Annie (Kuser) Zieber.

John Zieber, grandfather of William E., was born July 28, 1798, in Sumneytown, Montgomery Co., Pa., and when fourteen years of age located in Reading, where he became a well-known paper manufacturer. He died June 19, 1887, at the age of eighty-eight years, ten months, twenty-one days, and was buried at Aulenbach's cemetery. He was a lifelong member of the Evangelical Church. He was one of the first members of the Rainbow Fire Company. Mr. Zieber married Maria Lease, who died Jan. 29, 1879, aged eighty-one years, and who was buried beside her husband. Their children were: Sufiah died unmarried; Peter, deceased, m. (first) Mary Hoyer, (second) Julia Leaf, and (third) Mrs. Mary Jones; Barbara m. John Keller; Mary m. George Garst; Israel went South; John m. Gemila Gilson; William m. Edith Wilson; Isabella m. Nathaniel Gery; Henry L.; Lease died in infancy; and Francis m. Lena Becker, and died in March, 1907. The great-grandmother of William E. Zieber lived to be ninety-six years old and died in Reading. Derrick Cleaver, Mr. Zieber's great-grandfather on his mother's side, was a farmer in Oley township, where he died, and a soldier of the war of 1812.

Henry L. Zieber, father of William E., was born Feb. 11, 1836, in Reading, in the schools of which city he obtained his education. Early in life he learned the shoemaker's trade, which he followed until twenty-nine years of age, then entering the Philadelphia & Reading car shops as a laborer, but later becoming a painter, his last work being at lettering and numbering cars. He continued the latter occupation until March, 1906, when he was put on the retired list and pensioned, since which time he has resided at No. 745 Lance place, Reading, where he owns his own home. On Feb. 4, 1864, Mr. Zieber married Annie C. Kuser, daughter of Henry and Mary (Cleaver) Kuser, and granddaughter of Peter Kuser, who was a cabinet maker of Oley township, Berks county. Henry Kuser was a miller at the old Sixpenny mill, and his death occurred at the age of thirty-two years, his widow surviving him until eighty-one years of age. Four children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Zieber, as follows: William E.; Mary E. m. John H. O'Bryan, of No. 1139 Church street, Reading, and has one son—Henry J.; Edwin Boone died in infancy; and Westley A. also died in infancy. Mr. Zieber is a member of the Philadelphia & Reading Relief Association, and of the Otterbein United Brethren Church.

William E. Zieber attended the schools of Reading, after leaving which he engaged in farm work for Joseph Hartz, near Reading. He then became errand boy for Benjamin Brown, proprietor of a dry goods store, was next for two and one-half years in the employ of J. S. Wisler, a tobacconist, and subsequently was engaged with the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company. For one year he drove a team through the country and clerked for Wells & Phillips, grocers, and for the four years following was employed by the Philadelphia & Reading Company, where he learned the car building trade, at which he was later employed by Harlan & Hollingsworth of Wilmington, Del,. for one year, and the Pullman Car Company for four years. Mr. Zieber then went to Long Island City, N. Y., as assistant chief car inspector of the Long Island Railroad, a position he held for four years, at the end of which time he returned to the Pullman Car Company, with which he was connected for nine months. In 1892 Mr. Zieber returned to Reading, and accepted a position as foreman in the Reading Knitting Mills, where he remained three years. He then entered into the knitting business under the firm name of Zieber, Herbine & Co., the members of the firm being William E. Zieber, Charles W. Herbine and Eugene Keech. After a successful business of a few years the Pennsylvania Knitting Mills of Reading, incorporated under the laws of West Virginia, capital $50,000, was formed in order to accommodate the fast increasing trade. The officers were: Mr. Otto C. Heinze, president; Mr. Max Schultze, secretary and treasurer; Mr. Theodore Spitz, manager; William E. Zieber, superintendent. Later Mr. Zieber sold out his interest and returned to the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, with whom he remained one year, subsequently spending a like period in selling cigars for John T. Brossman. For some time he was also engaged as a wine and liquor salesman for the S. W. Smith Company, Philadelphia, and on Sept. 10, 1906, he purchased his present place, the well-known "Millmont Hotel," from Levi Snyder. Mr. Zieber's house has become one of the most popular hostelries in Cumru township. He fully understands the wants of the traveling public, and takes care that these wants shall be supplied. He has made many improvements on the property since obtaining possession of it, and is himself an ideal host, courteous, affable and genial.

In 1883 Mr. Zieber married Sallie J. Good, and three children have been born to this union: Grace, Edgar and Allen. In politics Mr. Zieber is a Republican. He and his family attend the United Brethren Church. Fraternally he is a popular member of Reliance Lodge, No. 776, F. & A. M., of Brooklyn, N. Y., being made a Mason in 1890; of Camp No. 163, P. O. S. of A., and Aerie No. 66, F. O. E.

WILLIAM H. FROM. As far back as the family history can be traced there were two brothers, William and John Fromm, who came to this country from Germany and settled in Upper Bern township where they were engaged in farming all their lives. The name was originally spelled Fromm, but Mr. John B. From adopted the shorter form, though some members of the family retain the double "m."

The one brother, John Fromm, was the grandfather of William H., and he became the father of four children, namely: Joseph, Jacob, Rebecca and John B., the first three dying young. John Fromm served as a captain in the war of 1812, and was stationed at Baltimore.

John B. From, son of John Fromm and father of William H., was born in Upper Bern township, and learned the shoe-making trade, following it many years. He was also track foreman for the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad. In 1849 he married Eliza Hemmig, who was born in Cumru township, March 5, 1827, daughter of Benjamin and Anna Mary (Fritz) Hemmig; the former was a carpenter and died in 1831 at the age of twenty-five. Benjamin Hemmig was captain of the Light Horse Company under General High, and this company took charge of his funeral. To Mr. and Mrs. John B. From were born seven children, namely: (1) Emmaline R. m. Hiram Gottshall, who conducted a shoe store at Sixth and Bingaman streets, Reading, and they had three children: Mary E. and F. Walter, who both died young; and J. William, who is married and resides at Reading. Mr. Gottshall was very prominent in secret orders, belonging to quite a number, and was a Mason and Knight Templar. He was killed in a wreck at Rose Glen, Pa., on the Philadelphia & Reading Railway in 1893. (2) Mary E. m. Oliver F. Horning, an ice dealer, at Wyomissing, Pa., and their only child, Effie Naoma, died at the age of fourteen. (3) William H. was born in Reading, Nov. 7, 1854. (4) Lizzie H. m. John A. Elliott, W. & R. tobacco, formerly of Pottstown, now of Philadelphia. Mr. Elliott was a color bearer in the Civil war and was wounded in a battle in front of Richmond. (5) Thomas H., a hatter by trade but now engaged in the shoe business at Shillington, Pa., m. Anna F. Eshelam, and has one child, E. Earl. (6) John S. died at the age of twenty. (7) Annie C. died young.

William H. From, son of John B., received a liberal education in the schools of Reading and also in Cumru township. He worked on the farm until the age of twenty when he learned the carpenter's trade, and also that of wood pattern maker. The latter trade he followed for twenty years. In 1889 he came to Sinking Spring where he purchased a valuable tract of eight acres of land. Upon this land he erected a house and the following year the barn and necessary outbuildings. He then engaged in trucking and fruit raising, to which he has devoted his entire tract. He also later built a number of forcing houses. Mr. From retails his product at Stalls Nos. 60-61 Opera House Market, Reading. He makes specialties of horse-radish and asparagus, and owns one of the largest and finest asparagus beds in this section. Mr. From is a man of progressive ideas and is keenly interested in the incorporation of Sinking Spring into a borough. He is a member of St. John's Lutheran Church and his wife is a member of St. John's Reformed Church of Sinking Spring. He is also a fine musician.

On Aug. 16, 1883, Mr. From married Miss Mary Moyer LeVan, daughter of Wellington R. and Kate (Seitzinger) LeVan, of No. 114 South Fourth street, Reading. Three daughters and one son blessed this union: Mayme L. m. Charles E. Stott, who is connected with the Reading Eagle, and they have two children, Ruth Geraldine and John William; and Geraldine L., John Wellington and Anna Dorothy.

JOHN G. ROTHERMEL, farmer near Stony Creek Mills, in Lower Alsace township, is a substantial citizen of this part of Berks county.

The Rothermel family originated in Holland and from that country the great-grandfather of John G. Rothermel emigrated to America, locating in Maiden-creek township, Berks county. His five sons were named Peter, Leonard, Jacob, John and Paul. He owned the farm near Blandon which is now the property of his great-grandson, Oscar Rothermel. The original homestead was large, but divisions reduced it in acreage. The lower part became the inheritance of his son Leonard.

Leonard Rothermel, grandfather of John G., was born on the homestead where he spent the whole of his life. He married (first) Susan Kauffman, and (second) Mary Bernet. He was the father of nine children, two, Samuel and Susan, being born to the first union; and John B., David B., Leonard B., Jeremiah B., Hannah (wife of Leonard Moyer), Mary (wife of Valentine Hartman), and Catherine (wife of Aaron Heckman) to the second.

John B. Rothermel, father of John G., was born on the old homestead, March 29, 1809, and almost all of his life was spent there. He died Oct. 7, 1894, aged 85 years. He married Maria Griesemer, daughter of William Griesemer, and his wife Margaret, nee Yeager. She died April 30, 1854, aged thirty-seven years. They had the following children: Louisa, residing at Lebanon, m. (first) Valentine Schmeck, and (second) Henry Neiman; Harrison G., residing in Maiden-creek township, m. Amanda Guildin; Susanna m. Albert Guildin, and both died in 1902, within five months, in Maiden-creek township; Enoch G., residing at Shoemakersville, m. (first) Isabella Rothermel, and (second) Ida Schlear; John G.; Napoleon and Jared, both died young; Albert G., residing at Blandon, m. Mary Rothenberger; Jeremiah G., residing near Maiden-creek station, m. Elmina Rahn; Nicholas G., residing in Muhlenberg township, m. Ida Wenrich.

John G. Rothermel was born on the old homestead Jan. 3, 1845, and was educated in the local schools, and in the Philomathian Institute at Birdsboro, once an ambitious institution which is no longer in existence. He spent one term at Hill school at Pottstown, and later attended the Keystone State Normal School. Although thus prepared for almost any career, he chose farming for his vocation, and has given it the greater part of his time. He owns two farms in Oley township; a farm in Lower Alsace, where he resides, besides other valuable real estate. He has been a life-long Republican, and despite the fact that he resides in a Democratic community, he has frequently been elected to local office, having served as township auditor, school director, and tax collector. When elected to the last office, he received every vote polled by both parties. He is now serving his fourth term as township assessor, having always been elected with a majority which testified to his personal popularity.

In 1872, Mr. Rothermel married Emeline H. Schmehl, daughter of the late William and Elizabeth D. (Hoffmaster) Schmehl. They had four children: (1) A son died in infancy. (2) John S., born in the year 1876, attended public school and is a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, class of 1899. He taught public school for nine terms, his first term having been when seventeen years old. He married Katie R. Hartman, and they have one child, Eva Mae. (3) Marie S. attended the Oley Academy, and (4) Irene S. is a graduate of the Inter-State Commercial College, Reading, and both remain at home taking the place of their deceased mother in directing the household affairs for their father.

Mrs. Rothermel died Aug. 26, 1902, aged fifty-seven years, eleven months and nine days. She had been ill but six days, suffering with membranous laryngitis. She was a life-long member of the Lutheran congregation of Spies's church, and highly appreciated for her Christian character. Her remains were buried on the family plot in the cemetery adjoining that church.

WILLIAM D. BRUMBACH, who is prominently identified with the business interests of Exeter township, was born on the Brumbach homestead in this township, son of A. J. Brumbach.

Mr. Brumbach received his early literary training in the public schools, after leaving which he went to Oley Academy at Friedensburg, and the Palatinate College, Myerstown, Pa. After leaving the latter institution he entered the woolen mill of A. J. Brumbach, in Exeter township, where he took charge of the shipping department, and later of the books, in which latter capacity he has continued to the present time. Mr. Brumbach has always been in the foremost ranks of the leaders in any movement calculated to be of benefit to his community, and has been identified with many large enterprises. He was one of the incorporators of the St. Lawrence Water Company, being secretary thereof, and was secretary of the St. Lawrence Building Association. In politics he is a Republican, and he is now serving his third commission as notary public. Mr. Brumbach is superintendent of the St. Lawrence Union Sunday-school, and a member of Schwartzwald Reformed Church. Fraternally he is connected with Washington Camp No. 230, P. O. S. of A.

On Nov. 28, 1891, Mr. Brumbach married Edwina Jack, daughter of Dr. John A. Jack, of Friedensburg, Pa., and to this union there have been born three children, a daughter and two sons, namely: Amy J., Claude A. and William Clifford.

PETER H. SNYDER, a well-known citizen of lower Berks county, who since 1906 has made his home on a part of the old Isaac Levan property in the southern part of Mount Penn borough, was born Dec. 27, 1852, in Oley township.

Mr. Snyder attended the public schools of his native locality, and later entered Freeland Seminary, at Collegeville, Montgomery county, which institution he left at the age of sixteen years to assist his father in the work on the farm. When twenty-two years of age he began farming as a tenant on his father's farm and this he cultivated one year, the following two years being spent on the well known Yeich property near Schwartzwald Church in Exeter township. Mr. Snyder then came into possession of the old Nein farm in Oley township, a tract of one hundred acres of fertile soil, and this he cultivated very successfully for twenty-eight years. In the spring of 1906 he purchased a part of the old Isaac Levan property, located in the southern part of Mount Penn borough, and on these seven acres he has continued to the present time, growing much fruit. Mr. Snyder is a good practical agriculturist, and a public-spirited citizen, being esteemed by those who know him for his many sterling traits of character. He is a stanch advocate of education, and gave his sons the benefit of a college career, while his daughters received a Normal school training. In politics he is a Democrat, and served as school director for three years in Oley township. Fraternally he is connected with the I. O. O. F., No. 1109, of Griesemersville. He and his family are consistent members of Schwartzwald Union Church, belonging to the Reformed denomination, and he has served as deacon for eight years and elder for three years.

On July 23, 1872, Mr. Snyder married Mary E. Moyer, daughter of Henry and Sarah (Moyer) Moyer, and granddaughter of Henry and Elizabeth (Keller) Moyer. To Mr. and Mrs. Snyder the following children were born: a daughter died in infancy; Sallie m. William Jackson, of St. Lawrence, Pa.; Henry, Professor of Chemistry and Physics, in the High school, Wilmington, Del., m. Minnie Hunsberger, of Lancaster; Aaron at present holds the Harrison Fellowship in Psychology, University of Pennsylvania; Mary is bookkeeper for a large Reading firm; Rev. Elam, Reformed pastor of the Alsace Church of Berks county, m. Miss Lovie Shalter; a son died in infancy; Hettie is a public school teacher in Berks county; and Hannah is a milliner at Lord & Gage's establishment, Reading.

CHARLES V. SEIDEL, one of the substantial agriculturists of Maiden-creek township, Berks county, was born in Windsor township, son of William and Susanna (Dreibelbis) Seidel.

George Seidel, great-grandfather of Charles V., was a resident of Windsor township, where he made linseed oil and distilled whiskey and apple-jack. He had three sons, George, Andrew and John, the latter of whom was the grandfather of Charles V. Seidel.

John Seidel followed in the foot-steps of his father, and for many years was a well known distiller of spirits in Windsor township. He married a Miss Mantillius, of English descent, and they had children: Godfrey, Daniel, John, Joseph, Reuben, William, Elizabeth (m. Gideon Fesselman) and Catherine (m. Nathan Crause).

William Seidel, father of Charles V., was born and reared on the old homestead, and in early life learned stocking weaving, which he followed for many years, at the same time conducting a farm. The last ten years of his life were spent in retirement, and he died at the age of eighty years, five months, eleven days. He m. (first) Clarissa Gerhart, and to them five children were born: Mantillius m. Annie Landis; Henry m. Emma Balthaser; Francis m. Matilda Rentschler; John m. Helena Leiby; and William died in infancy. Mr. Seidel m. (second) Susanna Dreibelbis, whose son by her first marriage, Hiram Kauffman, m. Missouri Seip. Mr. and Mrs. Seidel had these children: Ellen m. Paul Smith; Charles V.; William F. m. Barbara Klein; Fannie I. m. W. A. Frauenfelder; Mahlon D. m. Veleria Schaeffer; Susan C. m. William L. Moyer; Mary M. m. Henry O. Dietrich; George D. m. Angeline Luckenbill; and Richard D. died young.

Charles V. Seidel was reared in Windsor and Greenwich townships, whence he removed to Albany and later to his present farm in Maiden-creek township. This farm is one of the oldest in this section of the county, and has the very best, most substantially built buildings. The spring house on the farm, erected in 1754, and the house, built in 1761, both of which are of lime rock, have cellars arched in massive masonry, and stand along the Angelica creek, close to the celebrated Peter's Spring. Mr. Seidel has had much success in his agricultural operations, and is considered one of the progressive, energetic farmers of his section.

On Oct. 6, 1881, Mr. Seidel m. Sarah E. Dietrich, daughter of Moses A. and Caroline (Dressler) Dietrich, and to this union there have been born children as follows: William m. Katie Moyer, and has two children, Sadie May and Katie Emma; Grover C. died Oct. 12, 1907, aged twenty-three years, seven days; Charles F. is a senior at the Keystone State Normal school, Kutztown; Annie F. is at home; George A. and Adam George, twins, both died young; and Maud Helen attends the public school. The family are members of the Lutheran faith.

CHARLES AMMON MAURER, a well known citizen of Hamburg borough, Berks Co., Pa., engaged in the baking and catering business, was born Sept. 28, 1859, near Lewisburg, Union Co., Pa., son of James D. and Sarah (Lorah) Maurer.

David Maurer, great-grandfather of Charles A., built the "Black Bear Inn," and later conducted a hotel at the southwest corner of Fifth and Penn streets, Reading. He was twice married, and had a son by each marriage, the son of his first wife being Dr. George Maurer.

Dr. George Maurer was born in Reading in 1809, and died in 1841, in New Jerusalem, Berks county, where he had enjoyed a large practice. He was married to Julia Dry, of Rockland township, a lineal descendant of the Henry Hartman family of Orwigsburg, of Indian massacre and abduction fame. They had children as follows: Jacob, Allen, Charles and James D., the latter being the father of Charles A., of Hamburg.

James D. Maurer was born Feb. 14, 1839, in Longswamp township, and was a cobbler by trade. For several years he was engaged in huckstering, and lived in Topton, but later became a messenger for the Philadelphia & Reading Ry. Co., running between Reading and Philadelphia. He died in Reading April 14, 1871. His wife was Sarah Lorah, daughter of George and Leah (Beck) Lorah, and their children were: Charles A.; James H.; and Harry E. James H. Maurer, who was born April 15, 1864, was wedded on his birthday, and both of his children, a son and a daughter, were born on April 15th, although in different years. His wife is Mary J. (Missimer) Maurer. Mr. Maurer was unanimously nominated for Governor on the Pennsylvania Socialist ticket, May 21, 1906. He toured the State and made one hundred speeches.

Charles Ammon Maurer was taken by his parents to Topton, Berks county, when two years of age, his father engaging in the produce business at that place, and in 1864 removing to Reading, where young Maurer's education was secured. He attended Mrs. Shoemaker's private school, and later the public schools until twelve years of age, at which time his father died. When but ten years of age Mr. Maurer was a Reading Eagle carrier, and had the largest route in the city, serving more people with the newspaper than had any boy before or since that time. After his father's death he entered the employ of Hendel Bros., hat manufacturers, and he continued with this firm for twenty-five years. In 1886 he joined the Wool Hatters' Local Assembly No. 6287, K. of L., and was elected treasurer the first night. One year later he was elected delegate to D. A. No. 130, K. of L. He was elected the following year Master Workman of District No. 130, placing him at the head of 7,000 workmen. Mr. Maurer was chairman of an independent movement which sprung up in 1890 to elect two men to the legislature over the regular nominees of the two large parties, their candidates not being successful, however, although they received over 1,400 votes. In 1892 Mr. Maurer was elected county chairman of the People's Party, an office which he held for five years. In 1896 he represented his Congressional district at the national convention of the Populist party, St. Louis, Mo., as delegate. He was later delegate to numerous county and State conventions. He was active in politics for many years and was offered the nomination for Congressman-at-large of Pennsylvania, but refused to accept. He is intimately acquainted with the great labor leaders of the country. In 1908 he stumped Berks, Schuylkill and Lebanon counties for Eugene V. Debs, candidate for President on the Socialist ticket.

On Aug. 20, 1881, Mr. Maurer was married to Mary J., daughter of Jonathan and Judith (Beaver) Wartman, and to this union there have been born these children: Charles J. m. Evelyn Meck; Mary G. m. Harry Sunday, deceased; James P., Warren L. and Harry W.

JOHN STARR PEARSON, an extensive farmer of Ontelaunee township, Berks county, who for more than thirty years has also been engaged in the lime business, was born Jan. 1, 1843, in Maiden-creek township, son of Mordecai Wright and Debora (Parvin) Pearson.

As early as 1682 John Pearson came to this country with William Penn, from Chester, England, and it is recorded that while voyaging up the Delaware river, Penn turned to him and said: "Thou hast been the companion of my trials; what wilt thou have that I call this place." Pearson returned: "Call it Chester, in remembrance of the place from which I came." This occurred 225 years ago. In 1683, Thomas Pearson, brother of John, came and it is probable that he lived somewhere between Chester, Chester county, and Gwynedd, Montgomery county. Of his children we know of but one son: Lawrence, who is supposed to have resided at the same place. He was married and left a son, Benjamin, who, it is supposed, settled at or near Reading, about the year 1760. He was married, and among his children was a son Thomas, the great-grandfather of John S.

Thomas Pearson's principal vocation so far as is known was that of teacher. He married Sarah Starr, a member of a family that was quite numerous in this section, where they were large land owners. The farm now occupied by John Starr Pearson was originally a Starr property, and the old home, which was erected in 1729 and stood only a short distance from the present family residence, was razed about twenty years ago. Thomas Pearson had one son by his first marriage: John Starr. He subsequently removed to Maryland, where he was married a second time, and had two children: Thomas and Sarah, who afterward came to this section, becoming well known and highly esteemed citizens.

John Starr Pearson was a farmer, and lived to the age of fifty years, dying in 1831. He married Mary Wright, and reared one child to manhood: Mordecai Wright.

Mordecai Wright Pearson was born Aug. 10, 1816, and was fifteen years of age when his father died. In 1842 he married Debora Parvin, daughter of Francis and Susanna Parvin, of Berkley, Pa., and died July 4, 1878, his widow surviving him until January, 1890. They had four children: John Starr; William is a resident of this section; Susan; and Charles, who died in 1893, aged forty years, married Beulah Kahler, of Reading, and had two children, Helen K. (born Sept. 30, 1884) and Lawrence J. (born Nov. 8, 1888).

John Starr Pearson attended first the subscription school of his native locality, later attended the public schools, and subsequently entered the De Kalb Institute near Norristown. He has been engaged in farming ever since reaching his majority, and has also followed the lime business very successfully since 1874, an occupation that has given him a large acquaintance throughout Berks county.

Mr. Pearson married (first) Elizabeth Smith, daughter of Charles and Leah C. Smith, of Sadsbury, Pa., and to this union there were born two children: Mary m. Charles Canby, of Philadelphia; and Edward L. died aged four years. Mr. Pearson's second marriage was to Maria S. M. Smith, daughter of Jesse and Hannah Marsh, of Sadsbury, Pa. Mr. Pearson, as also his brother and sister, continues membership with the Society of Friends, or Quakers, and resides close to the old meeting house.

DAVID HORACE SCHALL, who since 1893 has been holding the responsible position of bond clerk in the United States Custom House at Philadelphia, Pa., was born at Dale Iron Works, in Washington township, Berks county, Feb. 24, 1842, son of Hon. David Schall, for many years a prominent ironmaster of Berks county and Associate Judge of the county from 1856 to 1866.

D. Horace Schall was educated in the township schools and in the York County Academy until 1860, when he became a clerk in the iron works of his father, filling that position until in July, 1863. At that time he answered the call of his country, and became second lieutenant of Company H, 42d Pa. V. I., was mustered into the service just after the battle of Gettysburg, moved to the front, and after rendering important service was mustered out in August, 1863. Upon his return home, he passed a successful examination to teach public school, and taught school in Washington and Hereford townships for two terms, after which he entered the iron works again as a clerk, and continued there four years. During this time he was also engaged in carrying on a stone quarry and lime operation.

About 1869, the Colebrookdale Railroad was opened for traffic from Pottstown to Barto, and he then formed a partnership with Andrew Bauer and Daniel S. Schultz, Esq., for the purpose of carrying on a coal and lumber yard at the latter place. He continued in this business until 1880, when he sold his interest to his brother William and directed his attention to farming on the homestead. He carried on the farm until 1887, and having then received the appointment of assistant coin-teller in the United States Sub-Treasury at Philadelphia, he filled this position for four years. Returning to farming, having in this time become part owner of the homestead, he carried on such operations for two years, when he received the appointment of bond clerk in the Custom House at Philadelphia, and assumed the duties of this position in 1893. He removed his family to Philadelphia in 1894, and upon establishing his residence there, he joined the famous G. A. R. Post No. 2, keeping up an active membership ever since. While residing on the farm he was elected a justice of the peace of the township, and he filled the office by re-election for fifteen years. He also served as school director of the township for six years, and postmaster of the Dale office for a like period. This postoffice had been established by his father in 1828, who, after continuing himself as the postmaster for fifty years, was succeeded by some member of his family until 1900. In 1907 Mr. Schall and his son John became the owners of the homestead farm, and take great pride in the ownership of one the most picturesque places in the county.

Mr. Schall married Mary A. Fogel, daughter of the Hon. John H. Fogel, of Lehigh county, and they have two sons: David Horace m. Hannah Hasfelt, of New York City, and resides in Berlin, Nebr., where he practices medicine; and John lives with his parents.

NICHOLAS HOFFMAN FISHER, of Windsor township, Berks county, who for a number of years has been engaged in school teaching, was born in that township, Sept. 22, 1867, son of Samuel K. and Hannah Hoffman Fisher.

Henry Fisher, grandfather of Nicholas H., was a farmer in Windsor township for several years. About 1860 he removed to Muncy, Lycoming Co., Pa., where he conducted a grist and saw mill. He was a leading man of his time, assisted in building Dunkel and Lenhartsville churches in Greenwich township, and was the owner of 342 acres of good land in Windsor and Greenwich townships, including the original Fisher homestead near Dreibelbis Station, now owned by Wallace Herber. He married Lovinia Keller, and to them were born children as follows: Jacob and Philip settled in Lycoming county; Samuel K.; Daniel died aged thirty years; Nicholas died aged thirty-six years; John m. Medora Ramer; Sally Ann m. Jacob Merkel; Eliza m. Jacob Dreibelbis; Maria m. Jacob Sonday; and Florenda m. William Filbert.

Samuel K. Fisher, ex-county commissioner from 1881-1884 and a prominent farmer and citizen of Windsor township, was born near Dreibelbis Station. He owned the Fisher homestead of 227 acres of land, was a school director of his district for a number of years, and with his family attended Dunkel's Church. He married Hannah Hoffman, daughter of Samuel and Hannah (Dunkel) Hoffman, and to this union there were born these children: Caroline died aged two years; Lovina m. Jacob Stetzler; Nicholas H.; Walter H. m. Mary Lesher; Annie m. Charles Gerber; Hannah m. (first) Henry Phillips, and (second) Jacob Graeff; Mary m. Ed Strohecker; Florence m. Daniel Schlonecker; Samuel H. resides at Chico, Cal.; and Hettie m. Charles Hepner.

Nicholas H. Fisher spent his boyhood days on his father's farm, where he worked when quite young, and secured his first educational training in the district schools, this later being supplemented by a course in the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown. At the age of eighteen years, when still in his junior class, Mr. Fisher left school to begin teaching, was licensed to teach by former superintendent D. S. Keck, and was given a professional certificate in 1893 by superintendent William M. Zechman. Two years later he was awarded a permanent certificate by the State, after passing a severe examination. Mr. Fisher began teaching in Greenwich township for two terms, went thence to Perry township for four terms, and spent six terms in Richmond township, and nine in Windsor township. In this time he instructed over 500 different children. In the spring of 1894 Mr. Fisher taught select school at Virginville. He was selected by Professor Rapp to audit the accounts concerning the county institute expenses for the past six years. In politics Mr. Fisher is a Democrat, and has served his town as auditor for six years. He and his family worship in the first Reformed Church of Hamburg, where he is assistant superintendent of the Sunday-school. He is also greatly interested in the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor.

On Jan. 21, 1889, Mr. Fisher was married to Fianna H. Lenhart, daughter of James and Elizabeth (Heinly) Lenhart, and to this union were born these children: Robert James, William Hiram and Samuel Paul.

JACOB S. WANNER, proprietor of the "Stonetown Hotel" in Exeter township, and a man well known in business circles, was born Oct. 25, 1859, just across the street from where his hotel is located, son of Jacob and Susanna (Stripe) Wanner.

Jacob Wanner and his wife Susanna were natives of Baden, Germany. They came to this country with two children, and first settled in Reading, where they remained for two years, at the end of which time they located in Stonetown, Exeter township. Here the father, who was engaged in laboring, and also kept a small cigar and tobacco stand, died in 1869, at the age of fifty-five years. His widow, who survives him and lives with her son Jacob S., celebrated her ninety-third birthday Nov. 5, 1908. Mr. Wanner was a Democrat, and he and his family were members of the Reformed Church. Five children were born to him and his wife, namely: Catherine m. Samuel Harner, of Gibraltar, Pa.; Margaret m. James Quinter, of Exeter township; Susan m. Charles L. Kline, of Reading; Hannah m. Benjamin Meck, of St. Lawrence, Pa.; and Jacob S.

Jacob S. Wanner was educated in the township public school of his native locality, and when about sixteen years of age became employed with the E. & G. Brooke Company, at Birdsboro, becoming a proficient mechanic during his fourteen years stay with this firm. He then entered the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, at the Walnut street yards, Reading, as freight and passenger car inspector, but after four years engaged in the dairy business, conducting a milk route in Reading for nine years. In 1902 Mr. Wanner erected his present hotel at Stonetown, and here he has successfully continued to the present time. Mr. Wanner also conducts a grocery, which, with the hotel bar, occupies the lower part of the building, while the hotel rooms, ten in number, are located in the upper floors. This hotel, which has become one of the most popular resorts for large dinner parties, is supplied with a large banquet hall and dancing pavilion, horses and equipages for the use of guests, and the most modern improvements of all kinds. As many as 164 guests have been served in one night. Mr. Wanner is a genial, hearty host, popular with all, and is a competent hotel man. He is also the owner of a twenty-acre farm adjoining his hotel property, stocked with the best machinery and finest farm stock, and here he has two good tenant houses.

In politics Mr. Wanner is a Democrat, and during his career as a politician in this township he has never been defeated. For seven years he was postmaster at Stonetown, for four terms has been county committeeman, has been inspector of elections and treasurer of the township, and in 1905 received the second largest vote ever given a candidate in the township for registrar of wills. He was a State delegate in 1908, having over 5,000 votes, and so far no opposition has developed against him for the same position in 1910. Fraternally he is connected with Birdsboro Lodge No. 479, F. & A. M.; Reading Royal Arch Chapter No. 152; De Molay Commandery, No. 42, and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., both of Reading; with the P. O. S. of A., No. 230; K. G. E., Syrius Castle, No. 63; Progressive Lodge No. 470, I. O. O. F., of Reading; and the F. O. E., also of Reading.

In 1894 Mr. Wanner married Miss Annie Weinerth, daughter of Adam and Dorothy (Loose) Weinerth, and one child,—Warren Leroy, has been born to this union. Mr. Wanner is a member of the Schwartzwald Reformed Church, while his wife attends the Kindig Lutheran Church, Reading.

MORDECAI S. PARVIN, one of Ontelaunee township's substantial citizens, who is extensively engaged as a tanner and currier, resides on the old Parvin homestead, and is the fifth in descent to operate this old, historic property.

About 1729 Francis Parvin, the great-great-grandfather of Mordecai S., built a log house, which stood in the orchard close to the present home. The Parvins, being a family of Quakers, were on friendly terms with the Indians, and always left the latch string of their home out for the accommodation of the red men. It was a common occurrence for the Indians to enter the house at night, sleep on the kitchen floor and leave at day break when the family arose. In 1758, Francis Parvin's son, also named Francis, built a house close to the old log house, at what is now known as Berkley. It was of stone and well and substantially made, consisting of two rooms and a hall below. In 1856 Jacob Parvin, father of Mordecai S., built an addition to this at the east end and plastered the whole building on the outside, thus destroying the original appearance of the place somewhat, but adding to its attractiveness. This is the home of the Parvin family today. The elder Parvins also interested themselves to some extent in the welfare of the colored people, and several of them lived at the Parvin home, namely: Joe, Bill and Frisbie Loyd, the latter of whom removed to Reading and became engaged in the restaurant and lottery ticket business.

Jacob Parvin, father of Mordecai S., and the fourth in descent to occupy the old homestead, died Feb. 6, 1905, the father of the following children: Miss Sibilla S. resides with her brother Mordecai; Susanna m. Thomas Sharpless, a farmer of near West Chester, Chester county, and has three children, James F., Thomas K. and Francis P.; Ellen S. m. T. Francis Warrington, of West Chester, and has two children, Anna L. and Debora P.; and Mordecai S.

Mordecai S. Parvin was born in 1858, just 100 years after the house where he now resides was built, and he has followed in the footsteps of his forefathers, and is successfully engaged in business as a tanner and currier. On Nov. 19, 1903, he married Carrie Hartman, daughter of George C. and Rebecca J. (Leinbach) Hartman, and two children have been born to this union: Jacob H., born Jan. 11, 1905, who died Jan. 16, 1905; and Mordecai H., born Feb. 24, 1907.

ALBERT GAUL MILLER. One of the prominent citizens of Mohnton, Berks county, is Mr. Albert G. Miller, who is now living retired, after many years spent in a mercantile business. Mr. Miller was born Feb. 27, 1860, in Mohnton, son of Jonathan H. and Mary A. (Gaul) Miller.

Mr. Miller attended the Cumru township schools and Mount Joy Seminary, after which he learned the hatting trade and followed that occupation until 1880. In this year Mr. Miller purchased his grandfather Joseph Gaul's store property at Mohnton, where he engaged in the mercantile business for ten years, being very successful. In 1890 he organized the Mohnton Lumber & Planing Mill Company, of which he was elected treasurer, a position in which he served until the firm sold out. During the ten years of his mercantile enterprise he served as assistant postmaster. In 1894 Mr. Miller engaged with the hat manufacturing firm of J. H. Miller, Son & Co., in which he continued two years, when he entered the manufacturing field on his own account, continuing therein until 1902, when he re-engaged in the mercantile business, organizing the firm of Mohn & Miller. This firm had the largest store in the borough and commanded the best trade, being very successful. In 1906 Mr. Miller retired.

In 1881 Mr. Miller was married to Mary A. Dietrich, daughter of Charles C. and Sophia (Gehret) Dietrich, of Richmond township, Berks county, and to this union there were born three children: Elmer D., who graduated from the township schools, the Reading Classical school in 1900, the State College in 1902, and Eastman's Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in 1906, is now bookkeeper in the Schuylkill Valley Bank, Reading, Pa.; Arthur D., who graduated from the township schools, the high school at Shillington in 1904, and the Keystone State Normal school, Kutztown, Pa., in 1906, is now enrolled as a student in the Electrical Engineering course at State College, class of 1911; Alvin died at the age of fifteen months.

In politics Mr. Miller is a Republican, and he has been prominent in the ranks of his party. He served as auditor of Cumru township in 1885, 1886 and 1887; and as school director from 1900 to 1903, being secretary of the board for the last two years of his term of office, and was also an instigator of the erection of Cumru high school in 1902; and he was auditor of Mohnton borough during its first year. He is a member of Zion United Evangelical Church, where he has been secretary of the board of trustees since 1894, a teacher of the Sunday-school for twenty years, and a member of the building committee, which erected the present structure in 1894. He is a member of Knights of Pythias Lodge No. 485, where he has been through the chairs, and Knights of the Golden Eagle Castle No. 137, being a charter member of both organizations. He has a fine residence on Church street, which commands an excellent view of the surrounding country.

EDWIN D. HAHN, who resides on his well-cultivated farm of fifty-one acres in Muhlenberg township, was born Dec. 21, 1865, in that township, son of Henry and Rosie (Bernhart) Hahn, and grandson of Daniel Hahn.

Daniel Hahn, who until 1852 pursued the trade of a hatter in Reading, located in that year on the Ulrich farm, now owned by his grandson, which he had purchased two years previously. Here he carried on farming until 1867, when he retired, and thereafter lived a quiet life until his death, March 15, 1886, when he was aged seventy-eight years. His wife preceded him to the grave. They had children as follows: Emma m. William Kauffman; Mary Ann m. Jacob Spangler; one died in infancy; Elizabeth m. William Reeser; Henry; and Franklin. In religious belief the family were Lutherans. Daniel Hahn was a Democrat in politics, and for some years held the office of tax collector of Muhlenberg township.

Henry A. Hahn, father of Edwin D., was born in the city of Reading, Pa., and was a lad of eight years when his father located on the farm. On his father's retirement, in 1867, he took charge of the home property, which he continued to cultivate until he died in 1900, at the age of fifty-seven years. In 1865 he married Rosie Bernhart, daughter of John Bernhart, a farmer of Muhlenberg township, and to this union there were born children as follows: Edwin D.; and Katie A. m. Harrison Rothermel. Mr. Hahn was a member of the Hinnershitz Lutheran Church, in which he served as elder. In politics he was a Democrat, and for some years served as a school director. Mrs. Hahn is still living, and is a highly esteemed lady of Muhlenberg township.

Edwin D. Hahn was educated in the schools of his native township, also taking an advanced course at the Keystone State Normal school, Kutztown, and Bryant & Stratton's Business College, Philadelphia. After leaving the latter he commenced teaching school in Muhlenberg township, but in 1885 gave up this profession to engage in the fruit and produce business at Philadelphia. After one year in that city he returned to Muhlenberg township, and turned his attention to agricultural pursuits in which he has been engaged ever since.

In 1885 Mr. Hahn married Sallie A. Sailer, daughter of Henry and Sarah (Ahrens) Sailer, and four children have been born to this union: Olivia P.; Effie M.; Harry S.; and Edna S. In religious belief the family are Lutherans, Mr. Hahn being an elder and deacon in the Hinnershitz Church, and organizer and for eighteen years superintendent of the Sunday school. He is a Democrat in politics, and for ten years was a member and secretary of the board of school directors. He is a director of the Mutual Fire Insurance Company, of Berks county. Fraternally he is connected with Muhlenberg Castle, No. 372, K. G. E., Hyde Park. Mr. Hahn's residence, which was built in 1770, was plastered with mortar which is mixed with grass instead of hair, as is used to-day, and when occasional cracks have appeared the grass has shown itself to be as green as the day it was mixed with the mortar. The log barn, with thatched roof, which stood on the farm, was razed in 1876 to make way for a modern structure.

NATHANIEL W. LIEB, of West Reading, Berks Co., Pa., was born on the old Lieb homestead, in Penn township, Oct. 29, 1850, son of Joshua and Rebecca (Lash) Lieb, grandson of Nicholas Lieb, and great-grandson of Michael Lieb.

(I) Michael Lieb was a large landowner in Bern township, and was highly respected for his sterling integrity and uprightness of purpose. To him and his wife, Anna Margaretta, were born: Susan (Hetrech); Nicholas; Mary (Zechman); Margaret; Elizabeth; Catherine; Daniel; Sarah.

(II) Nicholas Lieb was born Nov. 16, 1793, and died Dec. 9, 1867, and is buried at the Bern Church of which he was a consistent member. Nicholas Lieb owned a farm of about 100 acres of land on the Bernville road, between the Bern church and Mt. Pleasant, in Penn township. In addition to farming, he followed the tailor's trade, traveling through Berks and the surrounding counties, as was the custom in those days. He was one of the most representative men of his times, and one of the most popular in his neighborhood. When his father died, he was the executor of the estate, and the will which was made Feb. 26, 1818, was probated July 25, 1818. He married Catherine Dundore, born Sept. 6, 1796, daughter of Jacob and Anna Maria Dundore; she died March 4, 1881, aged eighty-four years, five months and twenty-eight days. Their children were: Elizabeth m. Joel Kantner, and died in Penn township; Annie m. John Gicker, and died in Heidelberg township; Joshua; Aaron m. Louisa Adams, and died in Bern township, the father of John (of Spring township), Eliza (of No. 1813 Perkiomen avenue, Reading, the mother of Rev. M. L. Herbein, whose sketch appears elsewhere in this work), Amanda (m. Lewis Klopp, and is living at No. 324 North Front street, Reading). Nicholas Lieb was a prominent and highly respected farmer and tailor, and built up for himself a lasting reputation as a man possessing most excellent personal traits of character. Upright and honorable in his business transactions, and imbued with that generous public spirit that was always ready to assist in whatever was calculated to promote the welfare of his county and community, he made himself felt, and his loss was long mourned.

(III) Joshua Lieb was born in Penn township on the old Lieb homestead, May 3, 1826, and he died May 13, 1878, aged fifty-two years and ten days. For years he remained with his father engaged in farming, but after his marriage he settled on the farm, and there remained until five years prior to his death, when he removed to State Hill, and built a home, there living retired until his demise. He married Rebecca Lash, born Dec. 17, 1826, daughter of George Lash. She died Dec. 4, 1891, aged sixty-five years, five months and six days. In politics he was a Democrat, while religiously he was a member of the Bern church. Though never aggressive he always bore his part in the development and advancement of his community, and left a lasting heritage to his children of an unsullied name and spotless honor. The children born to Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Lieb were: Ellen m. Andrew Lotz, of Reading; Nathaniel W.; Rosa m. John Hain, of West Reading; Emma m. Edward Kramer, of Reading; Aaron, of Bern township, m. Katie Yoder, and died in 1907, leaving Calvin, John, Annie, Katie, Cora and Paul; Sallie m. Frank E. Kauffman, of Reading.

(IV) Nathaniel W. Lieb attended school in Penn township, and later the Keystone State Normal School, at Kutztown, during 1868. He then taught two years in District township, being licensed by Prof. D. B. Brunner. After this he removed to Reading and worked for the Reading Eagle as collector, remaining about two years. He then embarked in farming operations in Heidelberg township, and at the expiration of six years, he removed to Centre township, but after five years he made another change and took up his residence in Bern township on the William Staver farm, where he resided for some eighteen years. In 1902 he came to West Reading, and for some six years has resided at No. 334 Penn Street.

For eighteen months he was engaged with Brossman, in the manufacture of stockings, with plant at No. 111 Lenore street, Reading, but, selling his interest, he went in with the Felix Oehring Furniture Van Company, of Reading. Mr. Lieb was appointed executor of the Staver estate, and Nov. 3, 1907, he purchased the Staver farm, a property of 203 acres of excellent farming land, perhaps the best in Bern township. The water power facilities are unsurpassed, and the farm is very valuable, as is all of the property of the large Staver estate. In politics Mr. Lieb is a Democrat. He is a member of the Bern Lutheran Church.

On Oct. 17, 1872, Mr. Lieb married Miss Valeria Yoder, daughter of Frederick and Mary (Shartle) Yoder, and their children were: George R. is unmarried and at home; Mary m. Harry Ammarell, a teacher in Bern township; Arabella m. Allison Kramer, a teacher in Bern township; Sallie C., a graduate of the Central State Normal School, class of 1900, m. Elder P. De Turk, and they live in New York City; John E., at home, m. Sadie Wagner.

Mr. Lieb is a gentleman possessing those natural abilities and qualities which constitute the true man and valuable citizen. He is honored and respected by his associates in business, church and social life. As a teacher he bore his part in educational matters, and has always been interested in school matters, giving his children excellent advantages. Perhaps no one could have been selected who is better fitted for the office of executor of so large an estate as the one in the charge of Mr. Lieb, and this is demonstrated by the satisfaction he has given. His own interests in Berks county are very large; he is a man of wealth and influence, and he administers his properties wisely and honorably.

JOHN M. S. WINTERS, one of the successful agriculturists and good, reliable citizens of Penn township, was born Jan. 21, 1856, in Marion township, Berks Co., Pa., son of John R. and Amanda (Spatz) Winters.

Christian Winters, grandfather of John M. S., lived near Centreport, where he followed farming and lime burning, although in early life he had been engaged at shoemaking. He married Elizabeth Rick, and they had twelve children, seven sons and five daughters.

John R. Winters was born near Centreport, and followed farming in Upper Bern township throughout life, his death occurring in Reading in 1904, aged seventy-six years, and he was buried at Belleman's Church. He married Amanda Spatz, one of the twelve children—three boys and nine girls—born to Jacob and Elizabeth (Zellers) Spatz. The following children were born to John R. Winters and wife: Helen S. m. George F. Minker, of Reading, and died in 1908; Valeria S. m. Joshua Bucks, and lives in Reading; John M. S.; Alice S. m. Isaac L. Graeff, of Reading; Sarah A. S. m. Franklin Z. Dunkelberger, of Lower Heidelberg; William S. m. Matilda Christ, and lives in Philadelphia; Samuel S., of Kutztown, m. Elmira Lindenmuth; Annie S. is deceased; Elizabeth S. married William Guaer, of Philadelphia; Elam S., of Philadelphia, m. Mary Frantz; and Llewellyn S. is deceased.

John M. S. Winters was reared to the life of a farmer, and in 1880 began farming on his own account on the Samuel G. Strouse farm, which belonged to his father-in-law. He also owns a forty-four acre property adjoining this tract and he farms it in connection therewith. On Oct. 20, 1877, Mr. Winters married Amelia E. Strause, daughter of Samuel G. and Lydia (Kissling) Strause, and they have had these children: Samuel L., of Bernville, m. Katie V. Blatt, and has one child, Estella E.; Laura and Florence are deceased; and George lives at home. In politics Mr. Winters is a Democrat, and he has served his township as school director for six years; as judge of election; in 1901 as grand juror; and twice as petit juror, besides being delegate to county conventions. He is a member of Belleman's Church and served as deacon thereof. Fraternally he is connected with Lodge No. 122, I. O. O. F., Bernville, of which he has been treasurer since 1902; and Camp No. 113, P. O. S. of A., Bernville.

Mrs. Winters' paternal grandparents were Jacob and Elizabeth (Gerhart) Strause, who had twelve children, six sons and six daughters, and her maternal grandparents, Jacob and Kate (Gerhart) Kissling, had ten children, six boys and four girls.

DANIEL K. RITTER, who is carrying on agricultural operations on the old Captain Schaeffer farm in Exeter township, Berks county, was born Nov. 11, 1853, on the old Ritter homestead in this township, son of John D. and Henrietta (Knabb) Ritter, the latter the daughter of Abraham Knabb, who was the first steward of the Berks county almshouse.

John D. Ritter was born and reared in Exeter township, where he died in 1866, at the age of fifty-one years. He was a farmer all of his active period, was a Democrat in politics, holding various township offices, and in religious belief was Reformed, serving as deacon and elder of the Schwartzwald Church of that denomination. He and his wife, Henrietta Knabb, were the parents of nine children: Samuel K., a farmer of Exeter township, died in his fiftieth year; John K., also a farmer of Exeter township, died when fifty-five years of age; Elizabeth m. (first) Daniel Snyder and (second) Franklin Sailor; Mary Ann m. Zacharias Wiest, a carpenter of Reading; Josephine m. Henry Kline, a clerk of Reading; Daniel K.; Calvin K., proprietor of the "Gechter Hotel," m. Catharine Hartman; William, a farmer of Exeter township, m. (first) Judith Hartman, and (second) Mandilla Herbine; and Henrietta m. Nathaniel Rhoads, of Amity township.

Daniel K. Ritter was educated in the public schools of Exeter, and was reared on the farm, but spent two years in a grist mill at Oley, then returning to farm life. After his marriage he located on the Herbine farm in Oley township for four years, and he then came to his present fine farm of 152 acres which he farmed as a tenant for ten years, and then purchased. He does general farming and dairying, keeping about twenty cows, and conducting a milk route to Reading, which latter is operated by his son, Charles H. In politics Mr. Ritter is a Democrat, and he has served as school director and supervisor. He is a member of Schwartzwald Reformed Church, and has served as deacon therein for three terms.

On April 12, 1878, Mr. Ritter was married to Miss Emma Heckman, daughter of Joseph and Louisa (Masser) Heckman, and five children have been born to this union: Charles H. m. Matilda Goodhart, and has a daughter Margaret; Monroe, a bookkeeper for the Roebling Construction Company, of New York City, was formerly a teacher in the public schools of Exeter township; Sadie m. Jacob Levan, a weaver of St. Lawrence, and they have twin daughters, Anna and Emma; and Annie and Brooke are at home.

ADAM S. ROTHERMEL is a resident of the western end of Richmond township, where he owns a fertile farm of seventy-six acres, which is in a fine state of cultivation. On this property is a substantial stone residence, surrounded by a large, well-kept lawn, the property as a whole being one of the finest of its size in the township. Mr. Rothermel was born Aug. 14, 1850, son of Leonard Rothermel.

Johannes Rodarmel (Rothermel), the progenitor of this numerous Berks county family, was born in Wachbach, Germany, in 1688, and was married in 1708 to Sybilla Zimmerman, a native of his country. On Aug. 29, 1730, his widow and six children landed at Philadelphia, Pa., he having died on the voyage to this country and been buried at sea. The children were: Anna, Lawrence, Paul, Peter, John and Christian.

Leonard Rothermel, grandson of Johannes, was born in 1751, and died Oct. 26, 1829. He was a farmer and extensive land owner of Maiden-creek township, and married Susannah Berndt, born in 1762, daughter of John Berndt; she died in April, 1819, the mother of a large family.

Leonard Rothermel, son of Leonard, was one of the old pedagogues of Berks county, teaching in the German language a pay school of twelve pupils in Maiden-creek township, and in addition he performed the duties of his farm, which was situated not far from the present home of Mr. Adam S. Rothermel. Leonard Rothermel was an intelligent man, and became well and favorably known as an educator. He espoused the principles of the Democratic party, but although he took a great interest in its success would never allow his name to be used as a candidate for public office. He was married to Catherine, daughter of Henry Schaeffer, a farmer of Richmond township, and to this union were born children as follows: Elias died at the age of thirteen years; Amanda married William Stoudt, a farmer of Maxatawny township; Emma m. Milton Weidenhammer, of North Reading; Adam S.; Catherine m. Elias Stein, of Mertztown; Enoch died aged twenty-two years; Angelina m. James Heiter, a farmer of Richmond township; and Henry became an agriculturist of Exeter township.

Adam S. Rothermel was reared on his father's small farm, and was mentally equipped in the schools of his township, which he attended until he was sixteen years of age. He then learned the tailor's trade, working three years as an apprentice with Benjamin Schucker, at Molltown, after which he served one year with practical tailors. He then engaged in business for himself, tailoring two years at Evansville, Berks county, and then carried on the business at his home in Perry township. In connection with his trade he also conducted a small farm.

On Feb. 15, 1873, Mr. Rothermel married Mary M. Deturck, daughter of John and Susan (Mengel) Deturck, and to them were born these children: Alice m. Howard Smith, a farmer of Windsor township; Hettie m. Morris L. Schaeffer, a farmer of Richmond township; Laura m. Luther D. Moyer, who conducts a general mercantile business at Eshbach, Berks county; and Harris graduated at the Keystone State Normal School, class of 1902, since which time he has been teaching school, having taught two terms in Richmond township and one term each in Perry and Alsace townships, and he married Clara Idella Kline, daughter of Amos Kline of Fleetwood, Pennsylvania. Mrs. Rothermel died Dec. 22, 1904, in her fiftieth year.

Mr. Adam S. Rothermel was a farmer in Perry township for seventeen years, and in 1890 purchased the excellent property on which he now resides. He takes a keen interest in educational affairs, and while in Perry township his fellow-townsmen elected him school director three times, he filling that position most acceptably, and serving as treasurer of the board during the six years of his incumbency. After his removal to his native township he was again elected school director for three years, again serving as treasurer of the board. In politics he is a stanch Democrat. Mr. Rothermel attends the Becker's St. Peter's Church.

HENRY F. SIMMON, a popular citizen of Robesonia, Berks Co., Pa., where he is carrying on a successful blacksmithing business, was born May 10, 1865, in Lower Heidelberg township, son of Daniel and Elizabeth (Steffe) Simmon.

The paternal great-grandfather of Henry F. Simmon was born near Schaefferstown, Lebanon Co., Pa., where he spent his life in agricultural pursuits. He and his wife were the parents of seven children, namely: Daniel, John, Michael, Nancy, Elizabeth, Nettie and Peter.

Michael Simmon, grandfather of Henry F., was born at Schaefferstown, where he secured his education, afterward coming to Berks county to engage in the tanning trade. Later he returned to Lebanon county, where the remainder of his life was spent, his death occurring near Sheridan, at the age of seventy-eight years, and he is buried at Hain's Church. His wife was Annie Gittleman, who died when eighty-eight years old. They were the parents of these children: Susan; Benjamin; Michael, Jr.; Daniel; Henry; William; Hannah, who died young; and Elizabeth, who married Sullivan Frey, residing in Ohio.

Daniel Simmon, father of Henry F., was born July 15, 1832, in Lower Heidelberg township, where much of his life has been spent in laboring. He now resides in his own home near Wernersville, where he is a highly esteemed citizen and prominent member of Hain's Reformed Church. Mr. Simmon married Elizabeth Steffe, born in 1840, daughter of John Steffe, and to this union there were born eleven children: John; Daniel; Ellen; Hannah; Henry F.; Elizabeth m. Adam Klopp, and died aged about twenty-three years; Mary; Sallie; Charles; Emma, and one died in infancy.

Henry F. Simmon was reared to agricultural pursuits, and when nineteen years old learned the trade of blacksmith with N. R. Wenrich, at Robesonia, in the shop which he now conducts. After continuing in Mr. Wenrich's employ for four and one-half years, Mr. Simmon contracted a partnership with him, and the firm of Wenrich & Simmon continued to do business until the senior partner's retirement in 1903. Since this time Mr. Simmon has carried on the business by himself, and, assisted by one skilled mechanic, holds the bulk of the trade in this section. Mr. Simmon has his own home on Main street, and he is known as a good citizen, a kind neighbor, and a business man of much ability. In politics he is a Democrat, and his popularity in his neighborhood has been proven on a number of occasions when he has been elected a delegate to county conventions. Fraternally he is connected with Knights of Pythias Lodge No. 119, of Robesonia. He is a member of St. Paul's Reformed Church, in which he has been a deacon, elder and trustee, and a member of the building committee which erected the present edifice in 1904.

On Jan. 1, 1886, Mr. Simmon was married (first) to Ellen C. Spatz, born Sept. 30, 1860, who died April 12, 1894, daughter of Daniel and Mary (Werner) Spatz, the former a shoemaker of Robesonia. Three children were born to this union, namely: Annie N., born April 29, 1887, who died Nov. 3, 1891; Franklin D., born Aug. 4, 1890; and Mary E., born April 6, 1894.

Mr. Simmon married (second) Rebecca H. Fidler, daughter of Adam and Sophia (Hall) Fidler, of Bern township, and three sons have been born to this marriage: George F., born June 9, 1896; Paul A., March 8, 1901; and Luther C., May 26, 1903.

Michael Simmon, Jr., son of Michael, who was born at Schaefferstown, was born in 1830, and died near Shillington, Berks Co., Pa., March 17, 1907, aged seventy-seven years. He is buried at Shillington. He was a carpenter by trade, and for many years lived in Lower Heidelberg township. His wife was Susannah Steffey, who was born July 6, 1834, and is now living with her son, Frank, near Wernersville. They had these children: Frank; Lydia m. Enos Conrad; George, deceased; Henry; John; Alice m. Daniel Boyer.

Frank Simmon, son of Michael, Jr., was born in Lower Heidelberg May 12, 1855. He learned the gunsmith's trade in Alsace township, and later learned blacksmithing, and these trades he followed many years in Lower Heidelberg and Alsace townships. He married Katie, daughter of John Huey. They have one son, Daniel H., born at Frush Valley, April 8, 1878, who follows blacksmithing at Wernersville, Pennsylvania.

MILTON D. SHOLLENBERGER, a well known resident and successful agriculturist of the southwestern end of Richmond township, Berks county, was born June 7, 1858, on the place where he now resides, and where he has spent all his life, son of Capt. Jonas M. Shollenberger.

The Shollenberger family of upper Berks county had its origin in Frederick and Gerhart Schollenberger, the former of whom emigrated to America on the ship "Loyal Judith" and landed at Philadelphia, Sept. 26, 1742. Both Schollenbergers, who very likely were brothers, were residents of Greenwich township in 1759, and both were there married, a single man, by name Henry Schollenberger, being also a resident of the township at that time.

John M. Shollenberger, grandfather of Milton D., was the original owner of the Shollenberger homestead, which was purchased by him in 1848. He was a native of Albany township, and there followed gun and sickle making. He married Catherine Merkel, of Richmond township, and to them were born these children: Sarah, Daniel, Catherine, John, Louisa, Nathan, Jonas M., Elizabeth, Edwin, Malinda, Lydia and Fianna, all deceased with the exception of Lydia.

Capt. Jonas M. Shollenberger, born on the homestead, was a leading citizen of Berks county. On Oct. 23, 1853, he married Mary Dry, daughter of David and Susannah (Yoder) Dry, and to this union were born children as follows: Catherine died in infancy; Calvin was twice married, both wives being now deceased; Milton; Edmund died in youth; Clara m. Dr. Eugene Mohr, of Alburtis, Lehigh county; Elemina m. George M. Merkel, a farmer of Muhlenberg township; and Alice m. Lawson G. Dietrich, Esq., of Moselem Springs, one of Berks county's leading citizens. Jonas M. Shollenberger was captain of Company I, 167th P. V. I., this regiment being made up exclusively of citizens of Berks county. When General Lee invaded Pennsylvania, this regiment was sent to demonstrate in the direction of Richmond, Va., under the command of Col. Charles A. Knoderer. Upon its return it was ordered to join the Army of the Potomac in the pursuit of Lee's army in Maryland. Captain Shollenberger was drafted Oct. 26, 1862, and was honorably discharged Aug. 12, 1863, after which he resumed his agricultural pursuits. In 1882 he was elected by the people of Berks county to the responsible position of register of wills, which he served with credit and ability.

Milton D. Shollenberger received his education in the common schools of this township, which he left to work on his father's farm at the age of seventeen years. After the death of his father he purchased the property, consisting of ninety-four acres, which is now in an excellent state of cultivation. The home is surrounded by large and neat grounds, and the barn and outbuildings reflect credit on the management. The family are members of St. Paul's Reformed Church, of Fleetwood. In politics as his father did before him, Mr. Shollenberger espouses the cause of the Democratic party.

On Feb. 26, 1881, Mr. Shollenberger married Valeria Kutz, daughter of Davis and Catherine (Haas) Kutz, and to this union were born: Herbert K., m. to Sally Koller; Clarence K., m. to Cora Schlegle; Lillie who died in her third year; Harvey K.; Elmer J., who died at the age of nine years; William G.; John K., and Lizzie K.

JOHN B. AMMARELL, a well known and highly esteemed resident of Bern township, Berks Co., Pa., who is acting in the capacity of organist at Epler's Church, was born at Reeser's Mill, in Bern township, Aug. 25, 1862, son of Robert and Catherine (Beecher) Ammarell.

Frederick Ammarell, grandfather of John B., was a son of Frederick Ammarell, Sr., who died in Germany. The grandfather was born April 16, 1809, at Weimar, Saxony, Germany, and was educated in the schools of his native country, where he also learned the trade of a carpenter. He came to America in August, 1854, landing at New York after a voyage of eight weeks in a sailing vessel. For a short time he remained with relatives in that city, and then came to Northampton county, Pa., where he was engaged in boat-building, later, however, coming to Berks county and locating at Felix's Dam, in Bern township. He died at the home of his son in Bern township, Jan. 3, 1886. Frederick Ammarell married Rosalie Manz, who died in Germany when about sixty-five years of age, and to them the following children were born: Louisa m. a Mr. Beck, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Robert; Charles died in infancy; Charles (2), of Reading, Pa.; Lena m. a Mr. Danz; and Alma m. Draugott Hot.

Robert Ammarell was born Jan. 3, 1840, at Weimar, Saxony, Germany, and accompanied his father to America in August, 1854. In Newark, N. J., the youth learned the saddler's trade, but did not immediately take up that occupation. He traveled to Reading, Pa., walking part of the way and finishing the journey by rail, and soon thereafter became a canal-boat driver. He made only one trip, however, this consuming two weeks, after which he settled in Bern township, taking up his residence at the home of the widow of Samuel Althouse, where he lived five years. He then lived for two years with George Zacharias, and on Sept. 14, 1861, was married to Catherine Beecher, who was born Aug. 9, 1838, in Bern township, daughter of John and Susan (Smith) Beecher. After his marriage, Mr. Ammarell worked for Jonathan Reeser for three years, when he engaged in farming for himself for two years on a tract near Stouchsburg, in Marion township. The next quarter of a century, Mr. Ammarell spent on the Althouse farm in Bern township, and at the end of this long period of faithful, industrious effort, he took up his residence on his own six-acre tract in Bern township, at Epler's Church, where he still lives. Since 1898 he has been conducting and operating a cider press at the "Leinbach Hotel," and during the season has a large and lucrative trade. A Democrat in politics, Mr. Ammarell has served for nine years as school director, and has been supervisor for thirteen years. He is a Lutheran member of Epler's Church, in which he has served in all the offices, and is now acting in the capacity of elder. He and his wife became the parents of the following children: John B.; Kate, born Oct. 22, 1864, m. James Reeser, and is living at Reading; George, born May 25, 1867, m. Emma Shadel, and resides in Ontelaunee township; Emma, born April 20, 1869, m. Mayberry Mengel, and lives in Reading; Mary, born Aug. 30, 1870, m. Lawrence Wagman, and lives in Muhlenberg township; Robert, born Dec. 25, 1871, m. Lillie Olinger, and is a railroad man of Reading; Harrison, born Aug. 25, 1874, m. Mamie Leib, and is now teaching Stoudt school, in Bern township; and Frederick, born Dec. 3, 1877, m. Nora Aulenbach, and is a rural free delivery mail carrier, in charge of route No. 2, from Reading.

John B. Ammarell received his preliminary mental training in the public schools, later spent two terms at the Kutztown State Normal School, and also attended the Mine Hole Summer School in Bern township for a time.

Until twenty years of age he worked for his father, and 1880 received his license to teach from County Superintendent S. A. Baer. In 1882, under Prof. David S. Keck, then county superintendent of schools, he received his professional certificate. In all he taught five terms, having charge of the Mine Hole, Mechanicsville and Epler schools in Bern township, and he then left the profession to take up farming, at which he was occupied for five years. In 1890 Mr. Ammarell came to his present place, where he has charge of the church property, a tract of about ten acres, and is also engaged as organist of Epler's Church, Gernant's in Ontelaunee township, and Hinnershitz Church, in Tuckerton. Mr. Ammarell's enterprise has extended in various directions, and he is engaged in the monument business, hiring three skilled workmen at his yard at the church. He belongs to the Lutheran denomination. He is secretary of the church, and is also secretary of the board of trustees of the cemetery. In political matters Mr. Ammarell is a Democrat, and he has served very acceptably as township auditor, and school director for six years, part of which time he was secretary. He served as delegate to the State Democratic Conventions at Altoona and Harrisburg. In 1908 he was appointed clerk in the Berks county recorder's office, his duties being to transcribe old indexes, which in addition to being a very important task is a very large and tedious one. Fraternally he is connected with Camp No. 165, P. O. S. of A., at Leesport, which he has represented as State delegate several times; Leesport Castle, No. 503, K. G. E.; and Leesport Camp, No. 9284, Modern Woodmen of America.

In 1882 Mr. Ammarell was united in marriage with Catherine R. Matz, daughter of John and Susan (Fisher) Matz, of Bern township, and three children have been born to them, namely: Winfield H., Raymond R. and John S.

Winfield H. Ammarell, M. D., who has recently been elected resident physician at the Reading Hospital, is a senior in the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania. He was born Jan. 10, 1883, in Bern township, and attended the schools there until 1900, when he entered the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown. In the spring of the first year he received his first provisional certificate, under Prof. E. M. Rapp, and for two successive years he taught the Mine Hole school in Bern. In the spring of 1902 he entered the middle year class of the Keystone State Normal and was graduated from that institution in 1904. The following year he taught the Mechanicsville school in Bern. While a student at Normal Dr. Ammarell took great interest in Y. M. C. A. work. He was a delegate of the organization to Lebanon, Bucknell University, and to the Northfield, Mass., Students Conference in the spring of 1903. For two years he served as Eagle correspondent at the Normal, doing excellent work. During the spring of 1905 he taught at the Perkiomen Seminary, Pennsburg, at the same time studying subjects along the medical line. In the fall of 1905 he entered the Freshman class of the University of Pennsylvania, Medical Department, at which institution he is now a member of the senior class. He is a member of the Omega Upsilon Phi fraternity, of the Charles K. Mills Neurological Medical Society, and is secretary of the Berks County Club of the U. of P. He is also a member of the Kappa Phi fraternity.

Raymond R. Ammarell, a member of the sophomore class of Muhlenberg College, was born July 29, 1887, in Bern township, and attended its schools until 1903, when he was granted a township graduation diploma by Prof. E. M. Rapp. In the same spring he entered the junior class of the Keystone State Normal and was graduated from that institution in 1905. While a student at Normal Mr. Ammarell was a member of the Keystone Literary Society and an ardent supporter of the Y. M. C. A. In 1905 he served as a delegate to the State convention of the Y. M. C. A. held at Johnstown, Pa. After graduation Mr. Ammarell taught the school at Mechanicsville, Bern township, for one year. The following year he was called to East Catasauqua, Hanover township, Lehigh county, where he taught the grammar school very successfully for one year. In the spring of 1907 he was awarded his teacher's master diploma by the Normal School. While a teacher and during the summer months Mr. Ammarell did special work in German and Greek. In the fall of 1907 he entered the Freshman class of Muhlenberg College at Allentown. He is a member of the Euterpea Literary Society and secretary of the Keystone Club.

John S. Ammarell, born March 1, 1898, in Bern township, is a student in Stoudt's Union School.

JOHN D. BARTH, a retired citizen of Mount Penn borough, Berks Co., Pa., has been prominent in public affairs, and was for some years superintendent of the famous Barth vineyard farm along the mountains of Mount Penn. Mr. Barth was born March 18, 1859, in Reading, son of Everhart F. and Caroline (Epple) Barth.

Everhart F. Barth was born Feb. 4, 1823, in Wittenburg, Germany, and when a young man came to America, landing after a sixty-two days voyage at Philadelphia, where he remained a few months. He then came to Reading, and followed the trade of stone-cutter, during the winter months following butchering. In 1873 he located upon John Fair's vineyard property along Mount Penn, which he purchased the year following, and he conducted this tract until his death, Nov. 19, 1896. Mr. Barth made as much as 3,000 gallons of wine annually, and it found a ready sale in the markets of the vicinity. In 1878 the vineyard produced 3,700 pounds of grapes. Mr. Barth was married to Caroline Epple, who was born in Wittenburg, Germany, and who came over to this country in the same ship as her husband. To them were born the following children: Frederick, deceased, who was a contractor of Reading, married Barbara Sparely; Caroline married John Fair, a wine dealer of Reading; Mary died in childhood; Henry E., a resident of Mount Penn, married Emma Hilbert; Catherine died in childhood; John D.; Mary married Calvin Canfield, the owner and operator of the old Barth vineyard; and Miss Ellen makes her home with Joseph D. Hornberger, of Cumru township.

John D. Barth began to work when but eight years of age, hauling mason stones from the mountains with a three-horse team. He was a hard-working young man, and when only fourteen years old went out butchering among his neighbors, a trade which he has followed in season to the present time. He was known as an excellent sausage maker, and his services were much in demand, he being engaged on a number of occasions as far as a year in advance. He is a natural mechanic, and readily turns his hand to any work that he undertakes. He is a skilled horseman, and has trained many valuable animals, owning some of the fastest ever raised in this community. In 1873 Mr. Barth became the superintendent of the famous Barth homestead vineyard along the mountains of Mount Penn, caring for the thirty-five acres, seven of which were vineyard, and on this tract he remained until 1898, since which time he has done considerable work on the place on different occasions. Mr. Barth is a stanch Democrat, and takes a great deal of interest in the success of his party. He was constable of Lower Alsace township, and at the third election of the borough became a councilman. He and his family are members of the Lutheran church.

In the year 1880 Mr. Barth was married to Martha Reider, born July 20, 1857, daughter of Hiram and Lequetta (Fulton) Reider, and granddaughter of Daniel Reider, of Exeter township. To Mr. and Mrs. Barth were born three children: (1) Harry W., born March 4, 1881, was a school teacher, and is now a clerk for the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad at Pine Grove, Pa.; he married Annie Ely. (2) Lizzie J., born March 13, 1883, died Jan. 30, 1885, and is buried at Aulenbach cemetery. (3) Elsie J., born Jan. 17, 1885, died Jan. 6, 1887.

JAMES I. GOUGLER, a highly esteemed citizen of Mohnton, Berks Co., Pa., engaged in the butchering business, was born at Gouglersville, this county, Jan. 6, 1862, son of Philip and Susan (Spohn) Gougler.

Philip Gougler, the grandfather of James I., was a farmer of Chester county, and also engaged in the cabinet-making and undertaking business at Yellow Springs. He was a true Christian man, a consistent member of the Lutheran Church, and was held in the highest esteem in his community. He married Catherine Pool, who died aged sixty-five years, and he passed away in his sixty-seventh year; both are buried at the Pikeland cemetery in Chester county. Thirteen children were born to Philip Gougler and his wife, namely: Nicholas died single at the age of twenty-five years; Henry died in Illinois; John, born May 15, 1806, married Maria Bomberger, and had these children, Emeline B., Mary A. B., Jeremiah, Catherine, Henry, Harriet and John; Philip became the father of James I.; Samuel married Elizabeth Longecker, who died at Pottstown, Pa., the mother of one son, John; William died single in Philadelphia; Isaiah died unmarried in Boston; Elizabeth, who married John Lafferty, died in Indiana; Kate married James Watkins, and died in Philadelphia, the mother of these children, Isabella, Esther, Mary and William; Esther married (first) a Mr. Louter, and had children, Louis, Harry and Emma, and married (second) John Elliott, by whom she had one child, Howard (she died in Philadelphia); Rebecca, who married George Walters, died at Phoenixville, Chester county, the mother of seven children, all of whom died in infancy except Noah; Christiana, who married Henry Ramsey, also died at Phoenixville; and Mary died young.

John Gougler, of the above family, with his brother, Philip, founded Gouglersville, at which place the brothers established a post-office in 1855. In 1813 an inn had been established at the place by Jacob Reedy, and it was later kept by William Kohl, from whom it was purchased in 1842 by John Gougler, he greatly enlarging it and making many improvements. During the days of the stage coach, before the advent of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, this hotel was one of the main stopping places, and here horses were changed. In 1843 John Gougler established his store at this place, and here he and his wife died, being buried at the place.

Philip Gougler, father of James I., was born near Springfield, Chester county, and when a young man came to Berks county. He was employed by his brother John in the general store, and later engaged in the hotel business, bought out his brother's interest in the store, and for thirty-one years was proprietor of both enterprises. Some years prior to his death he retired. He was also engaged in the undertaking and furniture business and was one of the leading men of his community. In political matters he was a Democrat. He died in the faith of the Lutheran Church and was buried at the Gouglersville cemetery. Philip Gougler married Susan Spohn, and to them were born children as follows: Lewis, who married Ellen Moore, died at the age of twenty-six years; twins died in infancy; Rosa, who married Jefferson Marks, resides at Vinemont, Pa., and has twin boys, Calvin and Irwin; and James I.

James I. Gougler obtained his education in the schools of his native locality, and remained with his father until the latter's death, which occurred when James was eighteen years of age. He learned the butchering business with his brother, Lewis, and in 1881, when nineteen years old, embarked in business on his own account, starting in a very humble way. Through his business ability and good management, his honesty and straight-forwardness in all dealings, and his general popularity, he has built his business up until it is now one of the largest in its line in the county. He owns the meat market at Ninth and Penn streets, Reading, attends the Kissinger market, having two stands there, and employs ten skilled butchers. He kills from forty to fifty steers weekly, finding a ready sale for his product in Mohnton, Reading and the surrounding country, and has three wagons constantly delivering his goods. He deals both retail and wholesale, and the business is steadily reaching larger proportions. At one time Mr. Gougler went West for his cattle, but he now secures his meat in Lancaster county. He is a large property owner, having nine dwelling-houses in Mohnton and several in Shillington, and in 1896 erected his present modern residence on Wyomissing avenue, which is provided with the most modern improvements. He is a director in the Mohnton National Bank of Mohnton. His fraternal connections are with Knights of Pythias Lodge No. 485 and the Knights of the Golden Eagle.

Mr. Gougler was married to Miss Susan Tothero, daughter of Jacob and Rebecca (Whitman) Tothero, and granddaughter of Michael and Elizabeth (Frederick) Whitman. To this union have been born children as follows: James B., a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, Kutztown, class of 1906, is now teaching in Mohnton; Naomi A., a graduate of the Shillington high school, class of 1907, is a student of Maryland College, Lutherville, Md.; Clarence T. is a butcher by trade.

In political matters Mr. Gougler is a Democrat, and he has always interested himself in movements calculated to be of benefit to his community. He was elected the first chief burgess of Mohnton by a large majority. He attends St. John's Lutheran Church.

FRANCIS Y. HEMMIG, a well-known wheelwright of West Reading, Pa., is a member of a family for many years well and favorably known in Berks county.

Johannes Hemmig, the emigrant ancestor of the Hemmigs, was a native of Switzerland. He left his country in the middle of the eighteenth century, and in 1759 is of record as a resident of Pennsylvania, where he was a taxable in Brecknock township, Berks county, paying a £5 tax. By occupation he was a farmer, and he owned much land and stock in Brecknock township, where he died. His will made May 20, 1776, was registered Jan. 21, 1777, the year of his death. His wife, Eva Maria, survived him, and they were the parents of Johannes (Hans), who was willed the homestead; Elizabeth; Anna, and Eve.

Johannes Hemmig (2) was born Nov. 2, 1742, and died Nov. 14, 1820, aged a little over seventy-eight years. A farmer like his father, he located in Cumru township, and there became the possessor of 600 acres, including what is now the Samuel Kurtz farm, the William R. High farm and a part of the present property of the Berks County alms-house. As might be inferred he was a man of both riches and prominence in the county. Twice married, his three sons were the children of his first wife, Elizabeth, who was born June 26, 1749, and died Aug. 26, 1804, aged fifty-five years, two months. John, the oldest son, who lived in Cumru township, married a Miss Yeitch and had three sons, John, Joseph and Benjamin. David, owner of the Angelica Mill on Angelica creek, married Miss Catherine Wanner. Joseph is mentioned below.

Joseph Hemmig, grandfather of Francis Y. Hemmig, lived on the old Morgantown road, and for many years was a farmer of Cumru township. He married a Miss Wanner, sister of his brother David's wife, and they became the parents of children as follows: Benjamin; Daniel; Thomas; Mrs. Isaac Hoshouer; and Samuel. Mr. Hemmig died in Cumru township at the age of eighty years, five months, eleven days, and is buried in the well-known Yocum's Church cemetery in Cumru township.

Samuel Hemmig, son of Joseph and father of Francis Y., was born in Cumru township, Berks county. By occupation he was a wheelwright and wagon-maker, and followed his trade in connection with a small farm which he cultivated, in Lower Heidelberg township. In religious connection he was a member of Yocum's Church, and he was known as a good Christian man. He passed away in 1881, and is buried in the Sinking Spring cemetery.

Samuel Hemmig married Mary Yost, a daughter of Nicholas Yost, and to them were born the following children: Martha, who died in Lower Heidelberg; Lewis, who died there; Francis Y., who is mentioned below; Catherine, the widow of Alfred Eyrich, who resides in Spring township; Susan, who died in Cumru township; Lydia, who married Hiram Bickel, and resides in Cumru township; Alice, who married B. F. Leinbach, of Bern township; and Louisa, who married Alfred G. Lincoln, of Exeter township.

Francis Y. Hemmig attended the schools of Cumru and Bern townships and was employed on different farms until he commenced to learn the wheelwright's trade with his father and a Mr. Pifer. For five years he was thus engaged, and then he began business for himself in Robeson township, at the "Junction House," in 1871, and remained there for eight years. In 1880 he located in West Reading, where his place of business at the corner of Penn avenue and Fourth avenue is well patronized. The two-story brick residence in which he and his family make their home was built in 1884.

Mr. Hemmig married Catherine Dippery, a daughter of Frederick and Catherine (Steinmetz) Dippery, and they became the parents of the following children: Clara A. married Charles Eyrich and they have had four children, Charles, May, Lester, and Leon (deceased). Irwin, Frank S. and James died young. William J., who is unmarried, is a wheelwright by trade, and is well known as a member of West Reading Fire Company, No. 1, the P. O. S. of A., K. G. E., K. of P. and I. O. R. M. Ellen married John Burd, and they reside in West Reading. They are the parents of one son, Francis.

In politics Mr. Hemmig is a Democrat and in religion a member of the Sinking Spring Lutheran Church. Fraternally he is a member of Charity Chamber, No. 23, O. K. of F., Reading; P. O. S. of A. Camp No. 676, West Reading; and the K. G. E., Castle No. 302, of Reading.

JOSEPH S. HEPNER, a representative citizen and retired school teacher of Berks county, who is now carrying on agricultural operations in the vicinity of Hamburg, was born in Windsor township, Berks Co., Pa., Dec. 9, 1852, son of Jacob Hepner, also of that township.

Christian Hepner, of Windsor township, the grandfather of Joseph S., was born Sept. 16, 1775, and carried on farming until his decease, May 25, 1856, at the age of eighty. He was married to Anna Maria Hoffman, of Perry township, who was born Sept. 5, 1781, and died Nov. 9, 1861, aged eighty years. They had four children, namely: Eliza, who married Samuel Hampsher; Samuel, who married Catherine Borkey; Jacob; and William, who married Hannah Stoyer.

Jacob Hepner, father of Joseph S., was born March 28, 1814, and died March 2, 1890. He was a farmer by occupation and also carried on the business of a building contractor. He was the principal contractor for the Schuylkill Navigation Company, between Pottsville and Reading, and he laid the foundation of St. John's Union Church at Hamburg, and reconstructed the big Blue Mountain dam in the Schuylkill river, north of Hamburg, after its destruction by the flood of 1850. He married Elizabeth Stoyer, of Windsor township, born Oct. 25, 1817, who died April 25, 1898, and they had six children: Jacob; Alfred, Christian and Henry, who died young; Samuel, who married Hannah Hollenbach, by whom he had three daughters, and later Hattie Behler, unto whom were born two daughters; and Joseph S. Mrs. Jacob Hepner was a daughter of Samuel Stoyer of Windsor township, who was born Feb. 13, 1791, and who carried on farming and broom-making until his decease, Aug. 20, 1878. He married Catherine Focht, of the same township, born Nov. 6, 1792, died July 14, 1845, and they had seven children: Catherine, who married John Billman; Hannah, who married William Hepner; Sarah Ann, who married William S. Deisher; Samuel, who married Catherine Weidman; Daniel, who married Annie Miller; Benneville, who married Catherine Raubenhold; and Elizabeth, Mrs. Jacob Hepner.

Joseph S. Hepner was educated in the public schools of his native township and at the Keystone State Normal School, at Kutztown, after leaving which latter institution, in 1869, he engaged in teaching in Windsor township, and at Kutztown for a period covering twenty-five years. In 1885 he recived a permanent certificate to teach. During this time he was also engaged in agricultural pursuits. Mr. Hepner later conducted the hotel known as the "Washington House," at Hamburg, and then he turned his attention to farming in the vicinity of the borough, which occupation he has followed ever since. In politics he has always been a stanch Democrat. He was elected a school director of the South ward in the spring of 1904, and is now serving his second term of three years. He has been the very efficient secretary of the board since 1905. Mr. Hepner is one of the foremost and most enterprising school directors Hamburg has ever had. He is profoundly interested in the success of the schools.

Mr. Hepner married Sinnorah Yeager, of Windsor township, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Rothermel) Yeager, and to their union there were born three children: Alvin J. J., of Kutztown, married Mamie Angstadt, and they have been blessed with a bright and promising daughter, Lona V. Hepner; Laura is a highly esteemed teacher in the borough schools of Mount Penn; Mamie married Oscar Rhode, of Kutztown, and one son has been born to them. In the fall of 1907 the First National Bank of Hamburg, Pa., was organized and the business men of the borough placed Mr. Hepner at the head of this institution. He is also a stockholder in and director of the Hamburg Hoist Manufacturing Company, which is a local concern but recently organized by the people of Hamburg; is a heavy stockholder in the Hamburg Savings Bank; is the owner of a valuable tract of twenty-eight acres of land in Greenwich township, a double dwelling house on Washington street, one on Main street and a number of valuable building lots, some located at Hamburg, and some in Brooklyn, New York.

MABRY S. SEIDEL, a leading busineses man of Hamburg, Berks Co., Pa., who is the proprietor of the Physicians' Supply Company, at Hamburg, was born Aug. 20, 1863, in Windsor township, son of Jonathan and Matilda (Sheidy) Seidel.

Johann Heinrich Seidel, the progenitor of the Seidel family in America, was born in 1732 at Straussberg, Germany. He crossed the Atlantic ocean on the ship "Brothers," and on landing at Philadelphia, Sept. 10, 1751, was sold as a "redemptioner" for his passage. One year afterward he was set free, and at once proceeded to Reading, Pa. In time he became a large property owner in Bern township, Berks county, also owning a tract of 400 acres in Maiden-creek township, where for many years he was a successful farmer. Farming was his principal vocation in life, but at times he engaged in mercantile ventures. In 1786 Mr. Seidel returned to Germany. In early life he saw considerable military service, participating in the French and Indian war under Captain Hiester, and later took part in the war of the Revolution. While he was in the army his wife and children carried on the farming operations. In 1760 he married Anna Catharine Rodmacher, who was born Jan. 19, 1738, and died Feb. 9, 1808. He died Aug. 21, 1801, at the age of sixty-nine years, four months, twenty-one days. Their last resting-place is in the graveyard of Zion's Union Church, in Perry township, and the spot is marked by a heavy marble slab. Their children were as follows: Michael, Henry, Daniel, John, Philip, Jacob, and three daughters, but two of whom, Mary and Margaret, are recorded by name. It is supposed that the third daughter died in infancy. From the second son, Henry, comes one large branch of the Seidel family. Henry Seidel was born Nov. 12, 1765, and died Aug. 7, 1847. He married Elizabeth Reber, and from 1791 on they made their home upon the Seidel homestead in Windsor township, Berks county. They had a family of fourteen children, of whom the following reached mature age: Daniel, Henry, Jacob, Elizabeth, Sarah, Catharine, Mary, Hannah and Rebecca.

John Seidel, the fourth son of Johann Heinrich, and the great-grandfather of Mabry E., was born in 1777 and died in 1856. He was an extensive land-owner in Windsor township, owning several large properties, one of which was on the State road near St. Paul's Church, in Windsor township, where he was buried. He was a well-known and prominent citizen in his day, and took a leading part in public-spirited movements. Mr. Seidel married Catharine Stitzler, who bore him the following children: Godfrey, born in 1800, married Mary Sunday, and died in 1868; Daniel was a resident of Wessnersville, Pa.; John settled in Illinois; Joseph went West; Reuben was the grandfather of Mabry E.; William, born in 1818, married (first) Christina Gerhart and (second) Susanna Dreibelbis, and died in 1899; Catharine married Nathan Krause; Elizabeth married Gideon Fusselman.

Reuben Seidel, grandfather of Mabry E., was born in Windsor township in 1816, and died in 1887. He was a well-known distiller of Windsor township, but in later years retired, removing to Hamburg, where the latter years of his life were spent. He married (first) Catharine Fister, who had the following children: Elemena, who married Daniel Sheidy; Jonathan; Emanuel; Peter F.; Reuben F.; Catherine, who married Frank Bausher; Wallace B.; and John H., who settled in Nebraska. Reuben Seidel's second wife was Mrs. Hettie Seidel, nee Becker.

Jonathan Seidel, son of Reuben, was born in 1839, in Windsor township, but for a number of years resided in Greenwich township, where he owned a farm of fifty acres. In 1878 he sold out, and with his family removed to near Pine Grove, Schuylkill county, where he owned a farm of more than two hundred acres. At this place he conducted a sawmill, while his son managed the farm, and at the time of his death Mr. Seidel was in very comfortable circumstances. In 1860 he married Matilda Sheidy, daughter of Jacob and Catherine (Hollenbach) Sheidy, and to them were born these children: Agnes, who married Jacob Saul; Mabry E.; and Alva L. and Annie E., unmarried.

Mabry E. Seidel attended the schools of his native district until he was fifteen years of age, when his father removed to Pine Grove, Schuylkill county, having purchased a large farm one mile east of that place. The father attended to the management of the sawmill, while Mabry, with outside help, cultivated the farm, and also attended school for three winters. He remained in his father's employ until he was twenty-four years old, at which time he removed to Pottsville, and for five years worked for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. He then went back to Pine Grove, and became a traveling salesman for the Keefer Pharmaceutical Company, of South Bend, Ind. In 1898 Mr. Seidel located in Hamburg and engaged in his present business, having a wholesale drug and physicians' supply house, which he has carried on to the present time. His business, which is a large and profitable one, is rapidly increasing, and his goods are well and favorably known throughout eastern Pennsylvania. His place of business is situated at Nos. 5 and 7 North Fourth street, Hamburg, and not only in this borough, but in every place in this section of Pennsylvania, Mr. Seidel is known as a business man of upright principles, his fair dealing and the high standard of his goods having won the confidence and patronage of the trade of his section. In politics Mr. Seidel is a Democrat, and he has served his town as school director and delegate to county conventions; at the present time he is a member of the borough council. He and his family are members of St. John's Lutheran Church, of which he has been a deacon and is now serving as trustee.

Mr. Seidel has been twice married, his first wife having been Esther A. Keefer, daughter of Reuben and Susan (Barr) Keefer, of Pine Grove, Pa., to whom he was married June 30, 1888. They had these children: R. Warren, a graduate of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy; and Edna M. and Esther A., both of whom are at home. Mrs. Esther A. Seidel passed away at Pottsville, Pa., Sept. 8, 1895, and was buried at Pine Grove.

Mr. Seidel's second marriage, on May 26, 1898, was to Fannie M. Christ, daughter of Lewis Christ. To this union has been born one daughter, Evelyn M. Socially Mr. Seidel is a member of the Royal Arcanum; of Vaux Lodge, No. 406, F. & A. M., Hamburg, of which he was an officer for three years; and of Reading Lodge of Perfection.

PETER GRIMES, of Womelsdorf, Pa., who is engaged in carpentering, and who is a veteran of the Civil war, was born Aug. 29, 1846, in Heidelberg township, Berks county, son of Peter and Sarah (Wenrich) Grimes.

Henry Grimes, his grandfather, was of Heidelberg township, where as a lad he was bound out as a servant in a family. Later he engaged in agricultural pursuits and became the owner of a tract of 150 acres in the mountains in Heidelberg township, cultivating his land in addition to teaching the "three R's" in German subscription schools, the principal text-books being the Psalter and the New Testament. Mr. Grimes married Susanna Leininger, who after his death married George Becker. Mr. Grimes is buried at the Corner Church. He and his wife had these children: Peter; John; Anna; Benjamin; David; Henry; Joseph; Franklin, of Marion township; Daniel, of Mill Creek township, Lebanon county; Mary, of West Philadelphia; and Jacob, of near Denver, Lancaster county.

Peter Grimes, father of Peter, was born Aug. 29, 1819, and died May 11, 1882, in Heidelberg township, after having spent his life in various places. He was engaged in agricultural pursuits and fence making. He was a member of Zion's Lutheran Church, where he was buried. Mr. Grimes married Sarah Wenrich, born June 14, 1821, died Dec. 21, 1895, daughter of David Wenrich, who was married three times, having five children by his first wife, five by the second, and nine by the third. Mrs. Grimes was of the second marriage, her mother's maiden name being Henry. To Mr. and Mrs. Grimes were born: John, who died during the Civil war at Beaufort Hospital, S. C.; Peter; Henry, of Womelsdorf; Franklin, deceased, who had a son Franklin; and Sarah, who married William Thompson, of Philadelphia, in which city she died.

Peter Grimes spent his youth upon the home farm, where he worked until the outbreak of the Civil war, at which time his youthful heart was fired by patriotism, and on Oct. 27, 1862, he enlisted as a drummer boy in Company A, 167th Pa. Vol. Inf., being then but sixteen years old. He served nine months, and was mustered out Aug. 12, 1863, at Reading, having participated in the battle of Black Water (where Colonel Knoderer was killed) and the siege of Suffolk. He re-enlisted Feb. 19, 1864, at Womelsdorf, becoming a private of Company B, 55th Pa. Vol. Inf., Capt. John C. Shearer, of Robesonia, and Col. Richard White, of Indiana county, Pa. He was mustered into the service at Reading, and received his honorable discharge at Petersburg, Aug. 30, 1865, the war having closed. During his long and faithful service Mr. Grimes participated in the battles of Old Town Creek; Proctor's Creek; Drury's Bluff; Cold Harbor, June 3-10, 1864, where he was wounded in the head by a piece of bursting shell; Petersburg, June 16-17-18, 1864; Cemetery Hill; Chapin's Farm; Hatcher's Run, March 30-31; Fort Gregg; capture of Petersburg, April 2; Rice Station, April 6, and surrender of Lee at Appomattox Court House, April 9, 1865. Mr. Grimes was always a faithful and willing soldier, gallant in action, and cheerful during the long and tedious marches. He was popular among his comrades and respected by his officers, and his war record is one of which any man might well be proud.

On his return from the war, Mr. Grimes located in Womelsdorf, and took up carpentering and fence making at which he gained quite a reputation. He has long been known as an expert carpenter, and has done much work in Womelsdorf and vicinity. In 1864 he purchased a house on South Front street, with his bounty money. In politics he is a Republican, and twice against his will, he was elected to the town council, in which body he served very efficiently. He is a member of Capt. William Tice Post, No. 471, G. A. R., of Myerstown, Pa. He and his family are members of Zion Union Church, belonging to the Lutheran congregation.

On Jan. 22, 1871, Mr. Grimes was married to Henrietta Borry, daughter of Samuel Borry, of Lancaster county, Pa., and they have the following children: John B., of Lebanon, who married Annie Walmer; Charles D., who resides at Newmanstown, Pa., married to Nora Zimmerman; Calvin P., of Womelsdorf, who married Emma Trexler; Katie S. and Monroe O., unmarried, who are at home; Samuel, of Womelsdorf, who married Katie Nester; and Mary, who is unmarried and resides at home.

CHRISTIAN S. FLICKINGER, who is proprietor of a successful butchering business at Shillington, Pa., was born June 7, 1852, in Spring township, Berks county, son of Jacob and Sophia (Snader) Flickinger.

Christian Flickinger, grandfather of Christian S., was a native of Berks county, where he engaged in farming and cattle dealing all his life. He married a Miss Reiger, and they had six children: Samuel, John, Jacob, Bennewell, Catherine and Elizabeth. The old couple are buried in Gehman cemetery, at Adamstown.

Jacob Flickinger, father of Christian S., obtained a fair education in the schools of his native locality, and in early life followed farming, later engaging in the cattle and butchering business both in Lancaster and Berks counties. He died in Spring township. Mr. Flickinger was twice married, his first wife being Harriet Bitzer, by whom he had children as follows: Rufus, who is deceased; and Elizabeth, who is living at Terre Hill, Lancaster Co., Pa. By his second marriage, with Sophia Snader, there were nine children: Christian S., Harriet (Mrs. Ream, of Reamstown, Lancaster county), Frank (of Reading), and Maggie (Mrs. Eberly, of Ephrata, Pa.), living, and Jacob, Amanda, Mary, Katie and Robert, deceased.

Christian S. Flickinger attended the schools of Spring township, and spent his early life in agricultural pursuits. For a period of thirty years he has been in the butchering business, and in 1897 settled in Shillington, where he has since continued with much success. In 1877 Mr. Flickinger married Mary Fritz, daughter of Samuel and Harriet (Burkhart) Fritz, and to them were born: Alva, who is unmarried and at home; Clinton; and Lillie. In politics Mr. Flickinger is a Republican, and though no office seeker he takes a great interest in public matters. Any movement in the line of education finds him its stanch supporter, and he has always been found in the front ranks of those promoting any public-spirited enterprise. He and his family are members of the Reformed Church.

ROTHENBERGER. The Rothenberger family of Berks county can lay claim to being one of the oldest families in this section of Pennsylvania, and members thereof are found in nearly every township in the county, representing the various professions and prominent in business, social and public life.

There were four of the Rothenbergers who came to this country in the pioneer days, cousins, two brothers on each side. One of them settled with his cousin at Spring Valley, in Muhlenberg township, Berks county, and the other two settled at the Leize's bridge, in that township. According to the records,

As early as 1738, Hans Peter Rosenberger arrived in the ship "Nancy and Friendship," from the Palatinate, and on Sept. 3, of the following year, Nicklas Rodenberger, who (although it is not definitely known) is supposed to have been the originator of the branch of the Rothenberger family with which this biography deals, arrived in the ship "Royal Judith," Edward Painter, commander, from Rotterdam, last from Deal. There was also a Johannes Rothenberger, who came Oct. 22, 1754, in the ship "Henrietta," John Ross, captain. Since he spelled his name in the same manner that it is spelled today, it is not at all improbable that he may have been the progenitor of the family. The three emigrants came respectively from Franconia, Wurtemberg and Hesse. There is no doubt as to the authenticity, however, of the following history.

Frederick Rothenberger, the great-grandfather of Clayton M. and Frank M. Rothenberger of Maiden-creek township, was born Nov. 25, 1771, and died Dec. 5, 1833. He married Catherine Saylor, and they had seven children: Samuel; Daniel; Polly (Mary), who remained single; Sarah, who married John Fisher; Elizabeth, who married a Homan; Rebecca, who married Daniel Bernhart; and Judith, who married John Hartman.

Daniel Rothenberger, son of Frederick, was born Nov. 26, 1801, and died Dec. 5, 1890. He married Elizabeth Gerhart, and they had the following children: Frank; Obediah; Frederic; Jacob; Levi; Daniel; Urias; Catherine, who married William Fisher; Leah, who married Benneville Fox; Elizabeth, who married Henry Fisher; and Mary, who married Mabery Hartman.

Frank Rothenberger, father of Clayton M. and Frank M., was born in Alsace township Sept. 3, 1830. He was married Nov. 11, 1854, to Catherine Miller, daughter of Isaac and Magdalena (Weidman) Miller, born Nov. 16, 1834. By this union there were twelve children, as follows: Mary, born Sept. 11, 1855, who married A. G. Rothermel; Urias, born July 31, 1857; one that died in infancy, born June 2, 1859; Owen, born Aug. 5, 1860, who died March 15, 1863; Milton, born June 8, 1862; Daniel, born March 24, 1864; Isaac, born Aug. 22, 1866; Sallie, born Dec. 20, 1868, who married J. J. Kelchner; Clayton M. and Frank M.; Morris, born July 10, 1875; and Catherine, born April 16, 1877, who married John K. Stoudt. The father of these children died Jan. 30, 1907, aged seventy-six years, four months, twenty-seven days.

CLAYTON M. ROTHENBERGER was born June 20, 1871, in Ontelaunee township, on the old family homestead near Leesport, and received his education in that locality. Until thirty-three years of age he worked on the home farm, but in the spring of 1906 he formed a partnership with his brother Frank, and they are now engaged in a successful general merchandise business at Blandon. On Sept. 26, 1896, Mr. Rothenberger was married to Lizzie A. Rickenbach, daughter of Edward and Ellen (Roth) Rickenbach, and a descendant of one of Berks county's oldest and most honored families, and one child was born to this union: Elwood, born Dec. 15, 1897, on the old Rickenbach homestead in Ontelaunee township, who now attends the grammar school at Blandon. Mr. Rothenberger is a member of Blandon Lodge, No. 1084, I. O. O. F.; Leesport Camp, No. 165, P. O. S. of A., and Leesport Castle No. 503, K. G. E. The family are members of Gernant's Church, Mrs. Rothenberger being of the Lutheran and her husband of the Reformed faith, and he at present is serving as deacon of the church, taking much interest in church and charitable work.

FRANK M. ROTHENBERGER was born July 4, 1873, on the old homestead in Ontelaunee township, was reared on the farm, and for a time was in the employ of the New York Silk Company at Fleetwood, Berks county. Later he clerked in the general store of A. G. Rothermel & Co., in the building where he is now located, and subsequently entered the employ of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, after leaving which he became a carpenter in the Reading shops of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company. Mr. Rothenberger then formed a partnership with his brother Isaac, at Wernersville, under the firm name of I. M. Rothenberger & Brother, general merchandise dealers, which continued until the spring of 1906, at which time the partnership with his brother Clayton was formed, the business being known as Rothenberger & Brother.

On Nov. 29, 1900, Mr. Rothenberger was married to Sallie S. Miller, daughter of Peter and Amanda (Schmehl) Miller, and a descendant of an old and highly respected family of Berks county, and four children have been born to this union, namely: Ralph M., born May 31, 1902, at Reading; a daughter, born April 22, 1903, at Wernersville, who died the same day; Paul P., born Oct. 16, 1904, at Wernersville; and Earl Edward, born Dec. 2, 1907, at Blandon. Mr. Rothenberger and his family are members of the Reformed denomination, and attend Gernant's Church. Fraternally he is connected with Camp No. 165, P. O. S. of A., and Blandon Lodge, No. 1084, I. O. O. F.

Both of the Rothenberger brothers are men of much business ability, and they have built up a large and lucrative patronage. They carry a full line of first-class general merchandise, and their ability to judge the needs of their community, as well as their well-known business integrity, has aided much in making their establishment so popular in Blandon and the surrounding country. The post-office is located in their place of business, Frank being assistant postmaster and Clayton rural free delivery carrier. They are worthy representatives of this old and honored family.

JOHN S. OXENREITER, a highly esteemed citizen of Ontelaunee township, Berks county, was born July 8, 1858, in Marion township, near Womelsdorf, son of Benneville and Annie Magdalena (Spatz) Oxenreiter. His grandparents, John and Sallie (Haas) Oxenreiter, were the parents of thirteen children, as follows: John, Kate, Michael, Benneville, Mary, Moses, Adam, Elizabeth, Isaac, Elias, Harrison, Rebecca and Jesse.

Benneville Oxenreiter, who was a farmer by occupation, married Annie Magdalena Spatz, daughter of Jacob and Leah (Zeller) Spatz, and five children were born to this union: Elvina, who married John Shware, has two children, Frank and George; John S. is mentioned below; Mary died unmarried; Aaron married Emma Wallace, and had three children, Charles, George and Harry (the latter deceased); Frank died young. The mother died Jan. 8, 1908, and the father Aug. 24, 1908. Both are buried at Host St. John's Church, in Jefferson township, Berks county.

John S. Oxenreiter was reared and educated in his native locality, and his youth was spent in assisting his father on the home farm. On Sept. 26, 1885, he was married to Sarah C. R. Leinbach, daughter of Washington and Esther (Rieser) Leinbach, and to this union there have been born three children: Alberta Esther, Hattie Lulu and Paul Washington, all unmarried.

In politics Mr. Oxenreiter is a Democrat, but he has never aspired to public office. In his religious belief he is a Lutheran, while the rest of the family belong to the Reformed Church. Fraternally he is connected with Camp No. 237, P. O. S. of A.; Fraternity Castle, No. 302, K. G. E.; and Ontelaunee Council, No. 985, O. of I. A.

W. ADAM FRAUENFELDER, a representative agriculturist and substantial citizen of Berks county, whose valuable property is situated in Windsor township, was born in Greenwich township, Oct. 6, 1854, son of Henry and Fietta (Stump) Frauenfelder.

Heinrich Frauenfelder, the great-great-grandfather of W. Adam, was born in Switzerland, and came to America when a mere lad. He became a substantial farmer of his locality, settling in Maiden-creek township, Berks county, Pa. His son Adam, the great-grandfather of W. Adam, owned the property now in the possession of Michael Hoffman. He married a Miss Bassler, and to this union were born children as follows: Adam, who settled in Circleville, Ohio; John, who served in Capt. Jeremiah Schappell's Company, 1st Regiment, 2d Brigade, during the war of 1812, being in active service from Sept. 1 to Nov. 1, 1814; Jacob; and Heinrich.

Jacob Frauenfelder, grandfather of W. Adam, was born in Perry township Oct. 1, 1801, and died Dec. 9, 1870, in his seventieth year. He married Magdalena Baer, daughter of John and Catharine (Reeser) Baer, and they had these children: Adam, who married Lovina Lenhart; Matilda, who married Joseph Leiby; and Henry.

Henry Frauenfelder, born Feb. 12, 1834, in Perry township, died April 5, 1889, aged fifty-five years. He was a lifelong farmer on the property now owned by his son, W. Adam, and was well and favorably known, serving his township as supervisor, assessor and auditor for many years. In politics he was a Jacksonian Democrat, and he and his family were constant attendants of the Zion's Union Church of Perry township, of which he was treasurer, deacon and elder. Mr. Frauenfelder married Fietta Stump, daughter of Daniel and Lydia (Dietrich) Stump, and two sons were born to this union, W. Adam and Daniel J. The latter married Lenora Jacoby and has two children, Lovie and Curtis.

W. Adam Frauenfelder attended the public schools of his district until sixteen years of age, obtaining a good common school education. He commenced farming for himself in Maxatawny township, where he lived one year, then removing to the old Michael Dietrich homestead, one-half mile northeast of Klinesville, in Greenwich township. This valuable property he bought, and lived upon it for eight years, making various improvements. He built the present barn in 1884 and the large summer house soon thereafter. In 1889 he sold the farm to his brother, Daniel J., and embarked in a general mercantile business at Klinesville, where he was engaged with much success for nine year. In 1898 Mr. Frauenfelder sold his store, stock and good-will to Hamscher Brothers, and removed to his 120-acre farm in Windsor township, two miles west of Lenhartsville. In recent years Mr. Frauenfelder has improved this property greatly, and it now compares favorably with any in the township.

In political matters Mr. Frauenfelder is a Democrat, and has been active in the ranks of his party, serving as delegate to numerous county conventions and to three State conventions, and was for twelve terms committeeman of his district. He has served Greenwich township as school director, for nine years was postmaster of Klinesville, and announced himself as a candidate for the office of jury commissioner of Berks county in 1909. Mr. Frauenfelder is a prominent member of New Jerusalem (Dunkel's) Church, belonging to the Reformed denomination. He has served this church as deacon, trustee and elder, and was on the building committee when the church tower was erected and was instrumental in procuring the bell, upon which his name is inscribed in letters of bronze.

Mr. Frauenfelder has been twice married, his first wife being Catherine I. Lenhart, with whom he was united July 10, 1875. She died Nov. 6, 1886, aged twenty-eight years, eight months, sixteen days, leaving two daughters: Laura S., who married Robert E. Dietrich; and Estella C., married to Howard Luckenbill. On Jan. 26, 1888, Mr. Frauenfelder was married to Mrs. Fannie I. (Seidel) Trexler, daughter of William and Susanna (Dreibelbis) Seidel, and to this union were born children as follows: Susan F. (a school teacher), Elton A., Fannie I., Esther M., and George Henry Seidel. Mrs. Frauenfelder had two sons by her first marriage, namely: Edward N. Trexler, living with the parents, and William B. Trexler, M. D., who is located at Fullerton, Lehigh Co., Pennsylvania.

ALBERT S. YOCOM, of Sinking Spring, the well-known and popular auctioneer, was born in Cumru township, Berks county, Oct. 31, 1855, son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Spohn) Yocom.

Samuel Yocom, born Feb. 4, 1817, followed farming as an occupation, and by industry and good judgment, won a comfortable competency. He died Jan. 25, 1890, aged seventy-two years, eleven months, twenty-one days. Mr. Yocom was twice married. His first wife, Elizabeth Spohn, daughter of William and Catharine Spohn, was born July 22, 1819, and died Feb. 26, 1864, aged forty-four years, seven months, four days. His second marriage was to Mrs. Susan (Zacharias) Yocom, widow of Samuel, born Aug. 17, 1822, died Oct. 3, 1903, aged eighty-one years, one month, sixteen days. Samuel Yocom's children were: Nicholas, William S., Samuel, Henry, John (deceased), Charles (deceased), and Albert S.

Albert S. Yocom passed his youth on the farm, and gave his services to his father until he had attained his majority. In his young manhood he was elected supervisor of Spring township, in which office he served ably for three years. In 1884 he began farming for himself on the homestead, where he continued for eight years, in 1892 purchasing a lot and building a brick house, in which place he made his home until he became proprietor of the "Central Hotel," which he conducted with great success for two years. He then sold it and bought the home in which he now resides, on Main street, Sinking Spring. Mr. Yocom was formerly assessor of Spring township, serving as such for eighteen years, his long continuance in that office being good evidence of the perfect satisfaction he gave. He is at present roadmaster. He began crying sales in 1882, and since then has been the auctioneer at nearly three thousand sales. During the months of February and March he is in daily demand, and his popularity and wide acquaintance—to say nothing of his ability, which is far above the average—insure him success in his work.

Mr. Yocom is a Democrat, and is an active worker in the ranks of his party. In the spring of 1907, at the earnest solicitation of his friends, he ran for the office of high sheriff of Berks county, for which there were nine competitors; he received the fourth highest vote cast. Fraternally he is a member of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, Castle No. 334, Sinking Spring; the Sr. O. U. A. M., Council No. 77, Sinking Spring; Knights of Pythias, Lodge No. 155, Sinking Spring; Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aerie No. 66, of Reading; and the Sons of America. He is a Lutheran member of St. John's Church.

On Jan. 10, 1874, Mr. Yocom married Lydia B. Mosser, born Oct. 24, 1857, daughter of Franklin Mosser, of Ontelaunee township. To this union came twelve children, as follows: Irene, who married F. P. Ernfield; Gertrude, who wedded Cortland Fisher; Jennie, who died young; Sallie, who married John E. Nunnemacher; Maggie, who married Thomas Monday; Clayton, who died young; Alvin, of Green Bay, Ill.; Ellen, who died young; and Nora, Edward, Emma and Cora, at home.

HARTMAN.* The Hartman family is an old and honored one of Berks county. There are many representatives of the name scattered all over the country, and the Hartmans are numerous in the eastern counties of Pennsylvania. As the Pennsylvania Archives, Vol. XVII, record about seventy of this name that emigrated to Pennsylvania between 1727 and 1808, it is evident that the present day Hartmans are not descended from a common pioneer. In Berks county there are Hartmans to the east and south of Reading, while another branch live in the valley north of the city, and whether even these come from a common pioneer is not certain, although this is not probable. This family of Hartmans originally located to the north of Reading, but its descendants have since scattered through Schuylkill, Columbia, Lycoming and other northern counties of Pennsylvania, as well as into the Middle West.

John Hartman (I) was the name of the earliest known ancestor of the branch in which we are interested. No definite records have been discovered up to this time to indicate when he came to America, but it is known that he came from the Rhine country—Erbach in the district of Odenwald, a mountainous region between the Main and Neckar rivers, probably some thirty miles from Frankfort-on-the-Main. Tradition gives a romance in connection with his emigration to the New World, which is related in Vol. VII, page 344, of "The Pennsylvania German." He settled in Exeter township, now a part of Berks county, where he was employed as a miller at the Bishop Mill, which is now the property of George Wamsher. Later he settled on what is now the old Hartman homestead, lately owned by Henry Hartman (deceased) and still in the possession of his estate near Temple. John Hartman's happy married life lasted but one year, when his wife died without issue. His second marriage was to Agnes Bleiler, widow of Jacob Bleiler, and to this union were born five children, two sons and three daughters, viz.: Michael, John, Juliana (wife of Michael Gereth), Catharine Elizabeth (wife of Henry Silvis), and Catharine. John Hartman (I) died Oct. 18, 1786, aged fifty-five years within two months and ten days, which would bring the date of his birth to Dec. 28, 1731. His wife, Agnes Hartman, died between the 2d and the 18th of April, 1791. They are both buried at Reading on the present site of Trinity Lutheran Church.

John Hartman (II), son of John, the emigrant, was born June 23, 1771, in Exeter township, and was, therefore, only fifteen years of age when his father died. He was younger than Michael, and probably the youngest of all the children. In his father's will, written Sept. 1, 1786, he is the only one spoken of or treated as a minor child. He was a farmer and spent the greater part of his life on the old homestead at Temple. He owned several farms besides the homestead, as well as extensive woodland property now owned jointly by Frederick S. Hartman, the Estate of Henry Hartman, and George C. Hartman. The Temple hotel property and the farm adjoining the homestead were also included among his possessions. He married Sophia Mary Maurer, daughter of Frederick Maurer, and died Sept. 3, 1823, of biliary fever, aged fifty-two years. His wife survived him and died about 1852. Their remains now rest side by side in Alsace Church graveyard, whither their bodies were removed by their sons in 1860. They were originally interred in the burial-ground of Trinity Lutheran Church. They left three sons and three daughters, namely: John, Daniel, Frederick, Elizabeth (wife of John Huyett), Esther, and Mary (who was married to Daniel Maurer).

Michael Hartman, the eldest son of John, the emigrant, obtained possession by his father's will of the mill property in Exeter township and about eighty acres of woodland in the same township. It appears that some years later he purchased a mill property and a considerable tract of land in Brunswick township, Berks (now Schuylkill) county, and many of his descendants may still be found in that vicinity.

John Hartman (III), son of John (II), was born on the homestead at Temple and there passed his entire life. After his father's death he became owner of all the latter's real estate except the hotel property, which was sold. He followed farming and became wealthy, becoming prominently known as a money lender. His possessions included an iron ore mine, situated in the woodland tract on South Mountain, east of Temple, the ore from which was taken by team to Eckert's Furnace at Reading, Mr. Hartman receiving a royalty on the product. He married Mary Schaeffer, and to them were born six children, five sons and one daughter, viz.: Amos, John, Frederick S., Daniel, Henry and Sophia Maria; the parents are buried in Alsace Church cemetery.

Amos Hartman (IV), son of John (III), was like his brothers and sister born on the homestead at Temple. Before his father's death he lived on and farmed the property adjoining to the west, but afterward he bought the homestead and moved upon that place, his mother and brothers Frederick and Henry taking possession of the farm he vacated. Subsequently Amos Hartman sold the homestead to his brother Henry, the property adjoining to the west previously mentioned becoming the property of Frederick. Amos bought and moved to a large farm in Spring township near Cacoosing, and later still he bought the Jacob Kirst place, near North Reading, to which he moved. He also purchased an adjoining tract now owned by Garson Huyett, where he died. He and his wife Rebecca (Yost) are buried in the Alsace Church cemetery. They had a family of four children, viz.: Frank Y., Mary (married to Adam Rothermel), Susan (married to Garson Huyett), and Clara (married to William Krick).

Frank Y. Hartman (V), son of Amos, was born at Temple. He bought the Kirst farm near North Reading, which he now occupies. He married Sarah Reber, and they have had three children: Edwin R., Nora and Paul, Paul dying in infancy.

John Hartman (IV), son of John (III), journeyed out to Ohio when a young man to what in those days was considered the "far West." He died at the age of about twenty-three years in Ohio, and is buried there.

Frederick S. Hartman (IV), son of John (III), was born on the homestead at Temple. For a time he lived on the farm adjoining to the west, which he still owns, and later he bought a property near Cross Keys, where he now lives. He is a man of intelligence and business ability, and is the owner of a number of large farms. He married Amanda High, and to them were born six children, John H., James (deceased), Mary A. E., Sallie H., Bertha S. and Emma M.

John H. Hartman (V), son of Frederick S., in early manhood went to Arkansas City, Kans., where he was employed in a bank and interested in real estate.. He married Mrs. Augusta Wardman, of Kansas, and they have one son, John R., who lives in Philadelphia.

Daniel Hartman (IV), son of John (III), died unmarried at the age of twenty years.

Henry Hartman (IV), son of John (III), became the owner of the homestead, buying it from his brother Amos. He was a farmer and also owned a limestone quarry near Evansville, Berks county. His wife was Sarah Dunkel, and they had three children, viz.: John D., married to Elnora Potteiger; Bertha, married to Valentine Hartman; and Nora, who lives with her mother at Temple.

Daniel Hartman (III), son of John (II), was born Dec. 8, 1799, in Alsace (now Muhlenberg) township, at Temple, and died April 5, 1876. In his early manhood, when traveling was usually done on horseback, except when it was possible to go by steamboat, he saw considerable of the country, going west as far as Ohio and Indiana, and north into Canada. For a while he lived in Chester county, where he was in the employ of a Quaker family. He also lived near Faust's Mill, in what was then Maiden-creek (now Ontelaunee) township, where his son George C. was born. Later he moved to the Bodey property, near Bodey's schoolhouse in Muhlenberg township, now owned by Frank Hahn, where he and his family lived about two years, after which he bought the place now owned and occupied by Jacob Reeser, in Bern township. He also bought the adjoining Fox property, and there lived until his death. He and his wife are buried in Epler's Church cemetery. At the age of thirty-seven Daniel Hartman married Anna Ulrich, and to them were born six children, viz.: George C., Daniel, John, Mary (who died in infancy), Ellen and Mary.

George C. Hartman (IV) was born May 2, 1838, in Maiden-creek (now Ontelaunee) township, and moved with his father to Bern township when scarcely three years old. In 1861 he married Rebecca J. Leinbach, and during the first year of their married life they lived with his father on the home farm. About that time Daniel Hartman bought a property in Penn township near Bern Church, on which George C. Hartman and his wife moved, remaining there two years. They then returned to Bern township, again taking his father's farm. The following year Daniel Hartman bought the Hain farm in Bern township, along the Schuylkill river above Felix's dam, and his son, George, moved to that place and there resided for twenty-three years. Some time before his father's death George C. Hartman bought this property. Although farming was his principal business for so many years, he was also engaged in the lime and coal business in company with two partners under the firm name of Hartman, Kramer & Ulrich. The lime was shipped by canal-boat along the Schuylkill to Reading, the lower part of Berks county, and Montgomery and Chester counties. In 1886 Mr. Hartman bought the large quarries of Leinbach & Brother, located just above Felix's dam, at Cedar Hill, and adjoining the former property. In 1888 Mr. Hartman moved with his family onto this property and devoted himself more especially to the lime business until 1898, when he moved to West Leesport, Berks county. He has since lived there in retirement. He still owns the Cedar Hill property and the farm adjoining it, as well as retaining a number of other interests. He is an intelligent, broad-minded man, and has always appreciated the value of a liberal education, a fact which he has shown practically by giving all his sons college training. Eight children, six sons and two daughters, were born to Mr. and Mrs. George C. Hartman, viz.: John Daniel, George Washington, Irvin Henry, Franklin Oscar, Harrison Edwin, Winfield Leinbach, Mary Ann and Carrie Jane; all of this family, with the exception of Mary, have at various times been students at the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, and all the sons are pursuing professional or business careers.

John D. L. Hartman (V) was born in Penn township Aug. 9, 1865. He taught two terms in the public schools of Bern township, and in 1883 was appointed a cadet to the United States Military Academy at West Point by Daniel Ermentrout, the Congressional representative of his district. He is at present a captain in the 1st United States Cavalry and has seen service in practically all the Western and frontier States, Cuba and the Philippines. Lately he was an instructor of military art in the United States Infantry and Cavalry School and Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and still later he was engaged in the same kind of work at Fort Riley. He is at present doing service in the Philippine Islands. In 1894 he married Helen C. Ward, whose father is now colonel of the 2d United States Cavalry.

George W. Hartman (V) was born Oct. 5, 1867, in Bern township, where all the children except John were born. After teaching for several terms in the public schools he entered Franklin and Marshall College, from which institution he graduated in 1895. He later attended the Harvard Physical Culture School, and the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church at Lancaster. While attending the latter institution he held the position of physical instructor in Franklin and Marshall College. He was also, for several terms, a member of the faculty of the Kutztown State Normal School. He is at present in the Reformed ministry and is located at Orwigsburg, Schuylkill county. He married in 1901 Carrie M. Reed, of Doylestown, Pa., a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School. They are the parents of two children, a son, George E., and a daughter, Esther L.

Irvin H. Hartman (V), M. D., was born May 22, 1869, near Epler's Church in Bern township. He was reared on the farm and received his early education in the common schools, later attending the Normal School at Kutztown and Palatinate College at Myerstown. He taught in the public schools for five terms. He entered the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania in October, 1892, graduating in June, 1895. After graduation he was elected resident physician of St. Joseph's Hospital, Reading, for one year. He has since been engaged in private practice and established himself at West Reading, where he remained until settling at his present location in Reading, No. 137 South Fourth street, in 1902. In addition to his private practice Dr. Hartman serves as examiner for the New York Life Insurance Company, Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company of Newark, N. J., and the Travelers Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn. He is associated professionally with the Berks County Medical Society, the Reading Medical Association, the Pennsylvania State Medical Society and the American Medical Association. He belongs to the Masonic and Odd Fellows Fraternities, holding membership in Chandler Lodge No. 227, F. & A. M., Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T., and

Parvin

Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., and in Progressive Lodge, No. 470, I. O. O. F. He and his family are members of the Second Reformed Church, of Reading. On June 20, 1899, Dr. Hartman married Miss Frances E. Moser, of Greenville, Pa., daughter of Jacob and Catharine Moser. Dr. and Mrs. Hartman have one child, Katharine Nella.

Frank O. Hartman (V) was born Jan. 9, 1872. After teaching in the public schools he prepared for college at Palatinate College and entered Franklin and Marshall College in 1894, graduating in 1898. Since then he has served as principal of the Leesport (Pa.) high school, professor of natural sciences in the City High School of Franklin, Pa., principal of the Bernville and Sinking Spring high schools, and is now supervisor of the public schools at Woodbine, N. J. He married in 1901 Elizabeth A. Kaufman, of West Leesport, Pa., and their family consists of two daughters, Clara R. and Mary E.

Harrison E. Hartman (V), who is conducting a very prosperous real estate business in the Commonwealth Title, Insurance and Trust Company building, Philadelphia, as a member of the firm of Barber, Hartman & Co., was born Jan. 23, 1876, in Bern township, Berks county, son of George C. and Rebecca Jane (Leinbach) Hartman.

Harry Edwin Hartman received his preliminary education in the township school, and after attending the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown for one term secured a teacher's certificate. He then taught public school, for three terms near his home and one term in West Leesport, meanwhile attending the Normal school for three spring sessions to increase his qualifications as teacher. In 1896 he went to Philadelphia and took a business course in Palm's Business College, and after following bookkeeping for two years became a teacher in the college mentioned, where he continued two years. He then engaged in the real estate business with Benjamin F. Teller & Brother and Felix Isman for five years, when he formed a partnership with Edward Barber and George W. Presker in the same line of business, under the firm name of Barber, Hartman & Co. They have since carried on operations in a very successful manner, with rooms in the Commonwealth Title, Insurance and Trust Company building at Twelfth and Chestnut streets, as successors to the well-known firm of Benjamin F. Teller & Brother.

Winfield L. Hartman (V) was born April 25, 1880. He graduated from the Keystone State Normal School in 1897. After teaching in the public schools he prepared for college in Perkiomen Seminary, Pennsburg, Pa. He entered Princeton University in 1900, graduating from that institution with high honors in 1904. While a student at Princeton he was the successful competitor for the Thomas Wanamaker prize on the English Language, The Class of 1870 prize, in Old English, and was elected a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, which is an honorary society for scholarship. Since that time he has held the position of instructor in Latin and Greek in Perkiomen Seminary, and is now the head of that department. He is a member of Vaux Lodge, No. 406, F. & A. M. In 1905 he married Sophia E. Zerr, of Geiger's Mills, Pa. They have one child, Helen Elizabeth.

Mary A. Hartman (V) was born March 25, 1862, in Bern township. In 1886 she married James G. Kauffman, a progressive young farmer of Centre township, Berks county. Their union has been blessed with nine children, seven sons and two daughters, viz.: Winfield (deceased), David, Laura (deceased), George, Mabel, James, John (deceased), Irvin and Harry.

Carrie J. Hartman (V) was born Nov. 11, 1873. She graduated from the Keystone State Normal School in 1899, and taught in the public schools of Ontelaunee township for four years. In 1903 she married Mordecai S. Parvin, of East Berkley, Pa. They have one child, Mordecai Hartman Parvin.

Mary Hartman (IV), daughter of Daniel (III) and sister to George C. (IV), died in early childhood at the age of about one year.

Daniel Hartman (IV) also died in childhood, at the age of about two years.

John Hartman (IV) was born in Bern township and died at home in the twenty-fifth year of his age.

Mary Hartman (IV), the second daughter of Daniel who was named Mary, died at her home in Bern in her eighteenth year.

Ellen Hartman (IV) was the only member of Daniel Hartman's family besides George C. who lived to rear a family of her own. She was born in Bern township in 1845. She became the wife of Jacob Reeser, of Centre township, and for a time they lived in Bern with her father. In about 1873 Mr. Reeser bought the farm of Daniel Hartman, located near Leize's Bridge, in Bern township, and Mr. Hartman had his home with him until the time of his death, in April, 1876. Mrs. Reeser died in August, 1902, and was buried in Epler's Church cemetery. She was the mother of four children, one son and three daughters, viz.: James, Valeria, Mamie and Elizabeth.

CYRUS E. WERLEY, a well-known citizen of Oakbrook, whose pleasant residence is situated near Noble street, is a skilled mechanic in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, where he has charge of a department. Mr. Werley was born Feb. 4, 1866, in Oakbrook, Cumru township, son of Obediah and Kate (Zimmerman) Werley.

Obediah Werley was born in Cumru township March 9, 1839, and now resides at Oakbrook, after a long and useful life spent at the carpenter's trade. He married Kate Zimmerman, born May 16, 1845, daughter of Anthony Zimmerman, and to this union there were born five children, as follows: Cyrus E. is mentioned below; James, who married Kate Miller, by whom he had one daughter, Edna, died in his twenty-fourth year; Emma married Irwin Berg, of Oakbrook, who is mentioned elsewhere; Howard, an iron worker, who resides at Oakbrook, married Kate Obold; Maggie married Walter Kline, also an iron worker at Oakbrook.

Cyrus E. Werley was reared on the home farm, and began working for the Reading Iron Company when eighteen years of age, continuing with that concern for nine years. In 1892 he learned the boiler-maker's trade with Orr & Sembower, Millmont, where he worked until 1903, since which time he has been in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, being now in charge of a gang of boiler-makers. He is an excellent mechanic and an industrious and faithful workman, and his services are valued highly by his employers. Fraternally he is connected with the K. O. T. M. and the Reading Relief Association. He and his family are Lutheran members of the Redeemer Church of Oakbrook, of which he is treasurer. Mr. Werley built his brick residence on Fern near Noble street, Oakbrook, in 1896, and there he has since made his home.

In 1888 Mr. Werley was married to Emma Hatt, born June 2, 1868, daughter of Philip and Emma (Reed) Hatt, lifelong farming people of Spring township. Twelve children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Hatt, as follows: John, who died young; Maria, who married John Bitting, deceased; Lewis, who is unmarried and lives at home; Emma, wife of Mr. Werley; Susan, who married John H. Fichthorn, of Mohnton, Pa.; Daniel, who died young; George, who married Alice Hinnershitz, and lives in Mohnton; Kate, who married David Lonacker, of Mohnton; Mary, who died young; James, who married Fianna Kauffman, and two who died small. Five children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Werley: Maud A., Ellis W., Ammon E., George W and James D.

Harry P. Harriman

DANIEL DUNKEL, of Hamburg, is a descendant of one of the oldest families in the upper section of Berks county. He was born Aug. 18, 1857, in Maiden-creek township, son of Jacob L. and Anna (Rothermel) Dunkel.

Conrad Dunckel, great-grandfather of Daniel Dunkel, was an early resident of Maiden-creek township, where he carried on wheelwrighting and blacksmithing and owned considerable property, owning land in that township prior to 1794 and in Ruscombmanor township in 1805. His elder brother, Michael Dunckel, who had vast property holdings in Maiden-creek township, was a resident of the township in 1757, when the first tax was levied. He died in 1800, ripe in years, leaving his wife, Elizabeth, and two sons, John and Peter. Of these sons, Peter died in 1838, leaving three children: Elizabeth who married Abraham Hottenstein; Maria, who married Jacob Reeser; and John. John Dunckel, the other son of Michael, had these children: William, Benjamin, Elizabeth, George, Catherine, Caroline and Esther.

Jacob Dunkel, son of Conrad, and grandfather of Daniel, was born in Maiden-creek township, where in 1796 he purchased of his father a farm of 121 acres, paying therefor £500 of lawful money of Pennsylvania. He married Elizabeth Leibelsperger, who died when within a few months of being one hundred years old, and to them were born six children: Jacob L.; Benneville, who married Mary Miller; Reuben, who married Sallie Graeff; Catherine, who married John Y. Moser; Elizabeth, who married Reuben Leibelsperger; and Gideon.

Jacob L. Dunkel was born in 1834 in Maiden-creek township, where he was reared to agricultural pursuits, this being his occupation throughout life. He died in 1902. Mr. Dunkel married Anna Rothermel, daughter of Daniel Rothermel, of Maiden-creek township, and to them were born seven children: Thomas, who married Sallie Fisher; Alice, who married Wilson S. Fox; Jacob, who married Anna Madeira; Annie, unmarried; Daniel; one child who died young; and William, unmarried.

Daniel Dunkel received his education in the common schools of Maiden-creek and Ontelaunee townships, after which he learned the trade of butcher, an occupation which he followed for nine years, in 1893 embarking in the hotel business at Blandon. There he remained three years, at the end of that time removing to Shoemakersville, where he conducted a hotel for four years, and spent the following three years in the same business at Hamburg. In 1904 he engaged in his present enterprise, the wholesale liquor business, in which he has continued to the present with much success. Mr. Dunkel is a business man of much ability, and he has gradually built up his trade until it now extends throughout the upper section of Berks and into Schuylkill and Lehigh counties. While at Blandon Mr. Dunkel served as school director for one term, this being the only public position he has found time to fill. However, he is a public-spirited citizen as well as an enterprising business man, and his success in the commercial world is due to his integrity in business dealings.

In 1880 Mr. Dunkel was married to Clara A. Madeira of Blandon, and to them have been born two daughters: Jennie M., who married Robert Hinnershitz; and Mabel.

Nicholas Madeira, the grandfather of Mrs. Dunkel, was a son of Casper Madeira, a refugee from France, who settled in Reading. He was married twice, first to Margaretta Yeich, by whom he had an only child, Nicholas, the father of Mrs. Dunkel, and second to Rebecca Reeser, by whom he had two sons and two daughters.

Nicholas Madeira, Mrs. Dunkel's father, is a highly esteemed citizen and substantial agriculturist of Maiden-creek township, where he owns a fine property. He married Anna Keller, daughter of George and Polly (Specht) Keller, of Rockland township, and to them were born twelve children: James, who removed to Ohio in 1866 and there married a Miss Bower; Levi, who married Ellen Deisher; Mary, unmarried; Angelina, who married Augustus Bierman; Eliza, unmarried; Nicholas, who married Lydia Koller; Edwin, who married Catherine Thomas; Samuel, who married Ellen Liess; Franklin, Susan, and Lewis, all unmarried; and Clara Anna, who became Mrs. Dunkel.

CHARLES A. BOYER, owner of the celebrated "Center Square Hotel" in Muhlenberg township, Berks county, and of an excellent farm of twenty-five acres which he devotes to poultry raising, was born Feb. 5, 1866, at Ninth and Spring streets, Reading, Pa., son of Gotleib and Rosina (Lineamoyer) Boyer, a full sketch of whom will be found on another page of this publication.

Mr. Boyer was educated in the schools of Reading, and when a boy was employed in his father's hothouse, also engaging in truck farming for some years. At the age of twenty-five years he purchased the old Leinbach stand in Muhlenberg township, known for miles around as the "Center Square Hotel," on which he spent several thousand dollars in improvements and repairs, and which he converted into one of the best stands in the rural districts of Berks county. Mr. Boyer conducted this well-known hostelry until June 10, 1907, when he leased it and erected a fine residence on his property adjoining the hotel, which he will devote to poultry raising.

Mr. Boyer married Naomi Susan Schlottman, daughter of Mark and Naomi (Hoyer) Schlottman. They have no children of their own, but ten years ago adopted a daughter Mabel Ray. Mr. Boyer is a member of the I. O. O. F. at Leesport, and the Rebekah Lodge (of which Mrs. Boyer is also a member); of the I. O. R. M. (his wife being a member of the Pocahontas Auxiliary of that order); of the P. O. S. of A., and the F. O. E. He is a Democrat in politics.

MOSES B. SEAMAN, a substantial citizen of Hamburg, Pa., who carries on an extensive milling business at State and Canal streets, was born Aug. 14, 1854, in Upper Bern (now Tilden) township, Berks county, son of David and Mary (Becker) Seaman.

Johan Ludwig Seaman, his great-great-grandfather, was a native of Germany, and prior to coming to America was for eight years a member of the body-guard of Frederick the Great of Prussia. He emigrated to America in 1748, landing at Philadelphia October 25th of that year, and soon thereafter removed to Bern, which later became Upper Bern and now is Tilden township. He had at least three sons: Eberhart, Ludwig and John.

John Seaman married Elizabeth Schlappig, and to them were born children as follows: John, Christian, Samuel, Catherine, Elizabeth, Magdalena, Christiana, Maria, and Johan George (the grandfather of Moses B.).

Johan George Seaman, who owned the old homestead in Upper Bern (now Tilden) township, a tract which then consisted of 275 acres, lived on the place now occupied by John Becker. He was in comfortable circumstances and was well and favorably known in upper Berks county. Mr. Seaman married Magdalena Kauffman, and to them were born these children: John; William; George, Jr.; David, the father of Moses B.; Reuben; Mary, who married Samuel Kline; Rebecca, who married William Loeb; Hester, who married Benneville Machmer; Catherine, who married William Machmer; and Eliza, who married John Geschwindt.

David Seaman, who is a well-to-do retired farmer of Tilden township, was born Jan. 27, 1827. His whole life has been spent in agricultural pursuits, and his valuable farm, which consists of 100 acres, contains some of the best land of the section and is a part of the original Seaman homestead. Mr. Seaman is well known throughout his section of the county as a hardworking, progressive agriculturist and one of the pillars of St. Michael's Union Church, his membership being with the Lutheran denomination. He has served the congregation as deacon, trustee and elder for many years, and did much toward the erection of the present church, which was built in 1875, in the way of money, material and hauling.

Mr. Seaman married Mary Becker, daughter of John Becker, whose wife was a Kauffman. To this union have been born children as follows: Moses B. is mentioned below; Percival married Adeline Kauffman; Levi B. married Ida Seibert; George married Kate Savage; Harrison died aged fourteen years; Annie married Nathaniel Wagner; Milton died when ten years old; Lizzie married Frank Meck.

Moses B. Seaman spent his boyhood days on the old Seaman homestead, a part of which belonged to his father, and received his education in the public schools, attending until eighteen years of age. At this time he learned the milling trade with Jonathan Marburger, of Upper Bern, with whom he continued for three years, then taking charge of the Laurel Run mill, in Alsace township, which he successfully conducted during 1878. In 1879 he removed to Hamburg, and for twenty years operated the Union Roller Mills with much success, his business increasing rapidly. In 1899 Mr. Seaman leased the Hamburg Rolling Mills for three years, and in 1903 he purchased this valuable property, which he has conducted to the present time. This large plant is situated at the corner of Canal and State streets, Hamburg, and here Mr. Seaman manufactures thirty-five barrels of flour every twelve hours, or about 10,000 barrels per annum. His trade extends through Berks and Schuylkill counties, and into the larger cities of the East, including Philadelphia and New York. He manufactures a variety of high-grade brands of flour, among the best known being the "Excelsior," "Michigan Empire" and "Silver Spray." Mr. Seaman is possessed of much business acumen, and he sustains an honestly won reputation for integrity and fair dealing. He is a prominent member of the Pennsylvania Milling Association. In political matters he and his sons are stalwart Republicans, and manifest an interest in the success of that party. Mr. Seaman and his family are members of St. John's Lutheran Church at Hamburg, to the erection of which church Mr. Seaman contributed liberally.

On April 9, 1876, Mr. Seaman was united in marriage with Rebecca S. Clauser, daughter of Harrison and Rebecca (Snyder) Clauser, and to this union were born the following children: Dr. Stephen W.; Capt. Claudius M.; Aaron and David, who died in childhood; Henry L., a graduate of Hamburg high school, class of 1903, and of Dickinson College, class of 1908; Thomas E., who was educated in the public schools and learned the trade of machinist with Snell & Meharg, Hamburg; Harrison F., a graduate of the Hamburg high school, class of 1906, now learning milling with his father; Evan F., a graduate of the Hamburg high school, class of 1908; Eva, twin of Evan, at home; and Florence and May, also at home.

Dr. Stephen W. Seaman graduated from the Hamburg high school and the Medico-Chirurgical College of Philadelphia, and first practised medicine at Wernersville, Pa., in 1900 locating in the practice of his profession at Lenhartsville. He had an extensive patronage and was a very successful young physician, but his career was cut short by death Aug. 11, 1903, in his twenty-seventh year. Dr. Seaman married Lizzie Stump, daughter of Tilghman Stump, and to them was born one son, Kermit George.

Capt. Claudius M. Seaman, a graduate of the Hamburg high school, class of 1897, joined Company E, 4th Pa. N. G., when but fifteen years old, and accompanied his regiment through the Porto Rican campaign, serving as first sergeant. In 1899, after he had passed a very creditable examination, he was appointed by President William McKinley second lieutenant of Company E, 43d Regiment, United States Volunteers. This regiment saw active service in the Philippines, and for gallantry in action Lieutenant Seaman was promoted to the rank of first lieutenant, and in that office served in the regular army of the United States, being attached to the 21st Battery, Field Artillery, stationed at Fort Sheridan, Ill. In April, 1907, he was promoted to the rank of captain, after passing a highly creditable examination, and is now stationed at Fort Williams, Portland, Maine.

ABRAHAM L. CROUSE, a popular salesman and prominent citizen of Sinking Spring, was born near Reinholds Station, Lancaster county, Oct. 11, 1860, of sturdy Revolutionary stock.

Michael Crouse (or Krouse), his great-grandfather, was a German physician and surgeon, but his profession was not to his liking, and he turned to comb-making for an occupation. Emigrating to America he settled in Reading, Pa., but later went to Adamstown. At the outbreak of the Revolution he entered the Patriot army, and during his spare moments in camp he made combs from the horns of cattle that were slaughtered for food for the soldiers. He was the father of five sons, all of whom followed the father's trade.

William Crouse, son of Michael, inherited the business from his father, and in 1824 erected the present factory, in which he worked until his death, in 1872, when he was aged seventy-eight years. He made his combs by hand until 1850, when his son William M. took the initiative and added modern machinery.

William M. Crouse, son of William, was born at Reinholds Station, Aug. 10, 1828, and there he always lived. Besides conducting the old comb factory he carried on a small farm. He married Annie G. Eberly, born June 12, 1838, daughter of Harry and Annie (German) Eberly. Today Mr. and Mrs. Crouse are said to be the oldest comb-makers in America. They have long since had their son, George W., as an assistant. They are great entertainers, and Mrs. Crouse knows well how to prepare the popular German dishes, which she serves on plates that are a century and a half old. She has many relics that the emigrants brought over from Germany nearly two hundred years ago. To William M. Crouse and wife were born seven sons and seven daughters, namely: Abraham L., Henry V. E., Mary, George W. (who lives on the homestead), Kate, William E., Annie, Calvin M., Bertha, Amy, Bessie and John, all living; and Edwin and Margaret, who both died in infancy.

Abraham L. Crouse, son of William M., lived at home until he was sixteen years old. Because of the large family his educational advantages were limited, but he managed to secure a practical training that has stood him in good stead. In 1877 he last attended school as a student, and in 1878 he taught the Marshall school in Spring township. He then learned the carpenter's trade under Michael Grimes, of Denver, Pa., an occupation he followed until 1889 with different employers, working as a carpenter foreman for O. B. S. Wilder, of Reading. In 1889 he began traveling for Morgan & Ruth, paint manufacturers of Reading (a firm later incorporated as Morgan, Ruth & Moore Paint Manufacturing Company). He traveled for this house all over the United States east of the Mississippi until 1891, and the following year he entered the employ of L. D. Krause, of Allentown, wholesale shoe dealer, as traveling salesman. He made the change because the less extended territory enabled him to spend more time at home. His territory comprised Berks, Lebanon, Lancaster and part of Montgomery counties. He remained with Mr. Krause until 1895, when he entered the employ of Knorr & Ruth, wholesale shoe dealers, and he travels over Berks, Schuylkill, Lebanon, Lancaster, Dauphin and part of Chester counties, having been the head salesman for this firm since 1902. He also helped to institute the Wernersville National Bank of Berks county.

Mr. Crouse has long been active in the Republican party, and for fourteen years was the committeeman from his township, during eight of which he was secretary of the committee. For one term he was school director, and three terms township clerk in a Democratic district. He is a member of Williamson Lodge, No. 307, F. & A. M., and is a past master by merit, having served in 1902. He was a director of the Reading School of Instruction for four years. He also belongs to Reading Chapter, No. 152, R. A. M., in which he holds office; De Molay Commandery, No. 9, K. T.; and Sinking Spring Lodge, No. 660, I. O. O. F., in which he has been a trustee and chaplain since its institution, in 1903. With his family he belongs to St. John's Lutheran Church of Sinking Spring.

On Dec. 18, 1880, Mr. Crouse was married to Annetta C. H. Umbenhauer, born April 12, 1862, daughter of Jacob and Mary (Huyett) Umbenhauer. They have had children as follows: Jennie M., who married Solomon Steffy, of Sinking Spring; Mamie A., who died in infancy; and Estella K., a stenographer at Reading.

JOHN C. KLEINSCHMIDT, a well known farmer in Exeter township, Berks county, was born in Reading, Pa., May 13, 1865, son of John George Kleinschmidt. The father was born in the village of Balfanz, Prussia, Germany, Aug. 22, 1809. In 1835 he married, his wife's maiden name being Klemtz, and their union was blessed with four children, Augustus, Frederick, Caroline (wife of George Mayer) and Earnst. The mother of these died in Germany in 1844, and in 1847 he married her sister, Dorethy Henrietta Klemtz. To them were born eight children: Mollie, who married Rev. E. Meister, a minister of Lancaster, Pa.; Wilhelmina, who became the wife of George P. Ganster; Julius; William; Emelia, wife of Jacob Baureithel; Mary, who married Adam Moyer; John C., and George.

Mr. Kleinschmidt with his wife and family emigrated to America, locating in Reading, Pa., June 21, 1862, and there he was engaged as carpenter; for many years he was employed by the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company. His second wife died Jan. 24, 1869, and he died Aug. 5, 1874. Both were buried at Reading.

John C. Kleinschmidt attended the parochial schools and also the public schools, and when old enough to go to work found employment among the neighboring farmers. He then learned shoemaking at Oley Line, and this trade he followed for several years. On Sept. 17, 1886, he located at Allentown, Pa., where he carried on the shoemaking business successfully for six years. Failing health caused him to abandon his trade, and he returned to farming at Pleasantville, in Oley township, where he remained two years, at the end of that time going to Yellow House, where he farmed for eight years. His next location was at Stonersville, Exeter township, and after two years there he took possession of Judge Endlich's farm, in Lower Alsace township, where he was for three years. In 1907 he bought the Augustus Schlegel farm of 150 acres in Exeter township, located along the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, between Neversink and Lorane. Mr. Kleinschmidt's success is wholly the result of his own industry and business ability, and he deserves great credit for the position he has attained.

On May 19, 1888, Mr. Kleinschmidt married Amanda E. Fetzer, daughter of Edwin and Mary Fetzer, of Allentown, Pa., and they have had children as follows: Katie, George, Claude (deceased), Chester, Howard, Minnie, John, Bertha (deceased), Jacob, Mabel and Walter. In politics Mr. Kleinschmidt is a stanch adherent to Democratic principles, and for five years he gave very efficient service as justice of the peace, of Oley township. He is a member of the Knights of the Golden Eagle. With his wife and family he attends the Faith Lutheran Church, of Mt. Penn, Pa. Both Mr. and Mrs. Kleinschmidt are highly esteemed.

FREDERICK S. HARTMAN, of Ontelaunee township, is a member of one of the oldest and most numerous families of Berks county, members of which are to be found in all parts of this section. It is not definitely known, but it is supposed, that all of these Hartmans descend from a common ancestor. A great many of the name are found throughout eastern Pennsylvania, and in Berks county one branch of the family lives to the east and south of Reading, while another is to be found in the valley to the north of that city; whether these two branches are closely related has not as yet been determined. This sketch pertains to that branch of the family originally living to the north of Reading, the descendants of which have spread over Schuylkill, Columbia, Lycoming and other northern counties of Pennsylvania as well as into the Middle West.

The earliest pioneer of this family was John Hartman, the great-grandfather of Frederick S., who came to America in 1767 from the Rhine country in Germany, making the passage across the Atlantic in the ship "Crawford," and landing at the port of Philadelphia. A romance is connected with the story of his immigration to America. He was in love with a girl whose name is unknown, but who was not regarded with favor by Hartman's parents. In spite of opposition he decided to marry the girl of his choice, and in order to overcome parental prejudice and interference emigrated to America. They settled in Exeter township, Berks county, where he was employed as a miller in Bishop's Mill, a property now owned by George Wamsher. Unfortunately their happiness was short-lived, for in the first year of their wedded life the young wife died, without issue. Afterward Mr. Hartman married a widow named Bleiler, and to this union were born five children, as follows: John, Michael, Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Harry Sylvis and Catherine. Mr. Hartman later settled on what is now the old homestead, recently owned by the late Henry Hartman, and still possessed by the Hartman Estate, near Temple, Muhlenberg (then Alsace) township, Berks county. He and his wife were buried in Reading, at the present site of Trinity Lutheran Church. As this church was built in 1799, both must have died prior to that date.

John Hartman, son of the emigrant, was born probably at Bishop's Mill, Exeter township, and was a farmer, spending practically all of his time on the old homestead at Temple. He married Sophia Maurer. Mr. Hartman was possessed of considerable real estate, owning besides the homestead several farms and an extensive tract of woodland, and later increased his possessions by the purchase of the Temple (now Graul's) hotel property, which was later sold by his heirs. He had also bought the farm adjoining the old homestead on the West. John Hartman and his wife had been buried in the burial ground of the Trinity Lutheran Church, Reading, but were subsequently re-interred at the Alsace church graveyard by their sons about 1860. Mr. Hartman had died prior to 1830 at the age of fifty-four years. Five children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Hartman: John, Daniel, Frederick, Elizabeth and Mary.

John Hartman (3), father of Frederick S., was born on the old homestead at Temple, and lived there all of his life. After his father's death he became the owner of all of his real estate with the exception of the hotel property, which was sold. Mr. Hartman carried on farming, and also owned an iron ore mine in the woodland tract on South Mountain, east of Temple, was in good financial circumstances, and was widely known as a money lender. He married Mary Schaeffer, and they had six children: Amos, John, Frederick S., Daniel, Henry and Sophia Mary. Both parents are buried in Alsace Church cemetery.

Frederick S. Hartman was born March 17, 1830, on the old homestead near Temple, as were his brothers and sister, and after the death of his father he obtained possession of the property adjoining the homestead on the west, which he still owns. He later bought a property along the Reading & Pottsville turnpike near Cross Keys, and there he resides. Mr. Hartman is well educated, having attended school at Trappe during his youth.

Mr. Hartman married Miss Amanda R. High, who died March 10, 1908. To this union were born the following children: John H., Daniel (deceased), James V. (deceased), Mary A. E., Sallie M., Bertha S. and Emma M.

John H. Hartman, son of Frederick S., born at Temple, Pa., m. Augusta C. Wartman, of Allentown, Pa.; they have one son, John Raymond, and reside in Philadelphia.

Mary A. E. Hartman graduated from the Keystone State Normal School in 1883. She m. John A. Bechtel, of Pottsville, Schuylkill county, who is prominently identified with the Pottsville Miners' Journal, and they have had seven children, all girls: Esther (deceased), Ruth, Martha, Bertha, Laura, Marian and Florence.

Sallie M. Hartman m. Charles S. Krick, who holds an important position with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and is located in New York City. They have had ten children: William (deceased), George, Catherine, Charles, John (deceased), Frederick, Helen, James, Daniel and Robert.

Bertha S. Hartman and Emma M. Hartman, who are both graduates of the Keystone State Normal School, reside with their father at Tuckerton. They are unmarried.

DANIEL W. SHIREY, proprietor of the "Douglassville Hotel," at Douglassville, Berks county, was born Sept. 15, 1868, at Monocacy, in Union township.

According to tradition the ancestor of this Shirey family was Joseph Shirey, who settled in Rockland township, Berks county, where John Shirey, the great-grandfather of Daniel W., was born. The latter moved to Amity township and settled on the tract now owned by Calvin Ludwig, at Monocacy Station, building the house which still stands on that property as well as the barn now (1908) being rebuilt by Mr. Ludwig. He was a stonemason and bricklayer as well as farmer. John Shirey is buried in the graveyard at Amityville. His first wife was a Berndt, his second a member of the Schrack family. Among his children were the following: William B.; Samuel, who lived at Monocacy Hill; Hannah, who married Michael Woodley and lived on the north side of Monocacy Hill; Betzy, who married Levi Bechtel, of Reading; Polly, who married Abraham Dreber, of Amity township; Esther, and Sally.

William B. Shirey, son of John, born Nov. 2, 1807, died June 18, 1861, aged fifty-three years, seven months, sixteen days. He was a native of Amity township, and passed all his life there. He married Sarah Harner, and to them were born twelve children, namely: Elizabeth married George Davidheiser, who is deceased; Mary Ann married George Weidner, of Friedensburg; John is deceased; Frank is mentioned below; Nathaniel, unmarried, still lives at the old home; Jeremiah, of Lebanon, Pa., married his cousin, Margaret Shirey; Caroline married her cousin Jacob Shirey; Jacob is deceased; William is deceased; Maberry, who is a deaf mute, lives with John Shirey at Monocacy; Amanda married her cousin Harrison Shirey; Emanuel, unmarried, still lives at the old home.

Mrs. Sarah (Harner) Shirey, the mother of this family, was born Sept. 16, 1812, and though in her ninety-seventh year is remarkably well preserved. She still lives in the old home at Monocacy Hill, on a farm of thirty acres one and one-half miles east of Monocacy, and is able to do much of the housework herself, her energy and activity being proverbial among the many who know and esteem her. When her husband died, over forty years ago, she was left with a family of nine, the youngest but four years old, yet on the ninety-fifth anniversary of her birth, when asked for a recipe for longevity, she said: "Work hard, live moderately, don't worry, and you will have a fair chance to become old." It has been the custom of her relatives and friends for a number of years to gather at the old home to celebrate her birthday, and none enjoys these occasions more than Mrs. Shirey herself, who has retained her interest in all the affairs of life along with unusual vitality and cheerfulness. She is beloved by a large circle of friends and relations, and on her ninety-fifth anniversary over one hundred were present. A Reading paper, in commenting upon the affair, said: "Although lacking but five years of the century mark, Mrs. Shirey is still well preserved and there was none in the party who was happier than she. She moved among her visitors with a kind word for each. She wore a happy smile which told of a life well spent and of a conscience void of offense." Her reminiscences of the old days are enjoyed by all. Her father, Henry Harner, was a soldier in the war of 1812, to which she refers as the Baltimore war; her grandfather Harner was a soldier in the Revolution, which she calls Washington's war.

Frank Shirey, son of William B. and Sarah (Harner) Shirey, was born in Amity township Feb. 20, 1838. He began his education in the old-time pay schools, later receiving the benefits of the public schools when they were introduced. Farming has been his chief occupation, and since 1870 he has lived at his present home near Monocacy, having a tract of eighteen acres which he cultivates. He and his family are members of the Amityville Church. In 1865 Mr. Shirey married Rebecca Breidenstein, born July 7, 1838, and three children were born to them: Annie, unmarried, who lives at home; Daniel W., who lives at Douglassville; and Davilla, who died young.

Mr. Shirey is a veteran of the Civil war, in which he served under two enlistments. In October, 1862, he became a private in Company K, 79th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, and served nine months and eighteen days. Later he enlisted in Company D, 213th Regiment, with which he served to the close of the war, this term also lasting nine months and eighteen days. He receives a pension.

Daniel W. Shirey, son of Frank, attended school at Monocacy during his boyhood and early began to work upon the farm, continuing thus until he was about twenty years old. He then became a member of the repair gang on the Reading railroad, between Birdsboro and Douglassville, and was employed at that work for nine years, during the last two years of that period acting as section boss, with from six to twelve men under him, the average number being eight. In 1898 he became proprietor of the "Bramcote Hotel." In the spring of 1900 he moved to the "Palace Hotel," at Reading, where he lived until 1901, when he moved to Douglassville and became proprietor of the "Douglassville Hotel," which he has since conducted so successfully. The building is commodious, and not only contains the twenty-five rooms appropriated for the use of the hotel, but also a store in the western end and a hall in which the Sons of America, the Odd Fellows and the Modern Woodmen meet.

Mr. Shirey has a number of fraternal connections, belonging to Camp No. 240, P. O. S. of A., of Douglassville; Court No. 137, Foresters of America, of Pottstown; Aerie No. 626, F. O. E., of Pottstown; Sanatogo Tribe, No. 123, I. O. R. M., of Pottstown; Sanatogo Council, No. 106, Pocahontas Lodge (to which Mrs. Shirey also belongs); and the Twenty Century Quakers, of Reading, No. 1. He also belongs to the Hook and Ladder Fire Company, of Pottstown, and to the Retail Liquor Dealers Association of Reading.

On March 21, 1891, Mr. Shirey married Mary Fortna, daughter of Henry Fortna, of Robesonia, and they have had two children, Walter E. and Ria R. The eldest child is now attending high school at Pottstown, and both are receiving musical instruction.

WILLIAM SPAYD, who for many years was one of the early inn-keepers of the Blue Marsh district, was a native of Bern township, Berks county. The early spelling of the name was Spathe.

Mr. Spayd was educated in the pay schools of his native locality, and as a young man it is supposed that he was a lock tender on the Union Canal. Later he purchased the property now owned by a Mr. Reifsnyder, in the Blue Marsh district, in Bern township, near the State Road, and here he operated a farm of ten acres and conducted what was then known as the "Blue Marsh Hotel." There the remainder of his life was spent, his death occurring in 1862, at the age of fifty-six years. His remains were interred in the cemetery at Bern Church. For many years Mr. Spayd was engaged in the manufacture of fish nets, which he sold in Reading and vicinity.

William Spayd married Mary Moyer, a native of Hanover, Germany. To this union were born five children, as follows: Louisa, who married Henry R. Miller, of Hyde Park, and has two children, Katie and Wallace; William H., who died young; Henrietta; Amanda, who died single; and John, who married Jennie Campbell, has one son, George H., and lives at Frush Valley. In religious belief Mr. Spayd was Reformed, while his wife was a member of the Lutheran Church, in which faith she died in October, 1876. Mr. Spayd was a Democrat in politics, but only took a good citizen's part in public matters. By his first marriage, to a Miss Shower, Mr. Spayd had two children, George W., who died single; and Lydia, who married James Fromm, and had four children—Adam, Mary, Clara and Melinda.

Miss Henrietta Spayd was eleven years of age when she went to live with the family of Israel B. Sallade, Mrs. Sallade keeping a millinery establishment, in which Miss Spayd clerked until twenty-one years old, at which time she went to Philadelphia and clerked in a notion store for four years, and then returned to Reading and clerked in H. R. and A. S. Boyer's store, at No. 528 Penn street, for ten years. Miss Spayd then resigned to engage in the millinery business, at the place formerly occupied by Mrs. Sallade, where with Misses E. L. Grotevent and M. M. Rorke, she conducted the business for eleven years. Miss Spayd then sold out, and in 1898 went to live with Mrs. Sallade, remaining until the latter's death. She now resides in Hyde Park, and is a member of Alsace Lutheran Church. She belongs to the Ladies' Mite Society, and is a contributor to all worthy Christian causes.

OLIVER F. KAUFFMAN was considered one of the most reliable and promising young business men of Reading, and the news of his untimely death was received with widespread regret. His store at No. 48 North Eighth street was an evidence of prosperity not always attained within a few years, and his high standing was due directly to a degree of enterprise and irreproachable business methods not always found in combination. Mr. Kauffman was born in Tilden township, Berks county, in 1873, son of Nathaniel S. and Catherine (Focht) Kauffman, the latter of whom died in 1877.

Nathaniel S. Kauffman, who is now connected with a music house at Detroit, Mich., was born March 11, 1847, and received his early education in the common schools and Prof. D. B. Brunner's Academy, Reading. He subsequently attended the Keystone State Normal School, at Kutztown, after which he followed teaching very successfully for a period of sixteen years, becoming one of the best known educators in this section. His fitness for public position was recognized by his fellow-townsmen, and he proved himself very valuable in the various offices to which he was chosen. He served as justice of the peace for sixteen years, constable for seven years, judge of elections one year, postmaster one year, and representative in the State Assembly one term, 1887-88. For two years he clerked in a general store, also followed conveyancing and surveying, was a director in the W. M. A. and Fire Insurance Company, and served as vice-president of that company for a time. He is a prominent man in St. Michael's Church, which he served as secretary. He was the father of five children: Oliver F., Agnes (wife of Milton Lamm), Ethan (of Shoemakersville, in the bicycle and automobile business), and Robert and Lillie (deceased).

Oliver F. Kauffman attended the public schools and later a summer school, and at the age of sixteen years began teaching, being thus engaged one term in Tilden township and one in Upper Bern township. He came to Reading April 3, 1892, entering the music store of C. H. Lichty as a salesman, and remaining with him until Aug. 5, 1895, when he embarked in the music business on his own account, at No. 25 South Seventh street. He was located there but a short time, however, removing to No. 104 North Eighth street, where by straightforward and honest methods of doing business he gained confidence and built up a large trade. Finding that larger quarters were necessary, owing to the great increase in business, he erected his place of business at No. 48 North Eighth street, a large and commodious three-story building 16 x 130 feet. He carried a complete line of musical instruments, of all kinds, as well as sewing machines, and commanded a high class of trade. Mr. Kauffman dealt in the Krakauer, Fischer, Kroeger and Franklin pianos, the well known Miller organ, the White sewing machine, Standard sewing machine, and as a jobber of Edison phonographs, records, and other musical merchandise. He was very successful in business, and attributed his prosperity to honest dealing. He also had a place of business at No. 911 Penn street, the Reading Phonograph Company, where he established a trade in phonographs and records really remarkable, but this store was discontinued in 1907. His four delivery wagons were to be seen on the streets of Reading almost any time.

Mr. Kauffman was married in 1894 to Susan A. Balthaser, of Hamburg, Berks county, and two children were born to the union, Arthur N. and Grace I. The family occupy a fine home at No. 1508 Perkiomen avenue, Reading.

Mr. Kauffman was prominently connected fraternally, being a member of Reading Lodge, No. 549, F. & A. M.; Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, R. A. M.; Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T.; Philadelphia Consistory, A. A. S. R.; and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. He was also connected with the Eagles, the Knights of Malta and the Modern Woodmen of America. He was one of the victims of the wreck of the Shriners' special train at Honda, Ca., May 11, 1907, having been instantly killed. Mr. Kauffman was buried in the Charles Evans cemetery, with Knight Templar honors, his funeral being attended by the Grand Commander and staff of the Knights Templars. He was a member of St. Luke's Lutheran Church.

REUBEN F. BEHM, proprietor of the St. Lawrence, Berks Co., Pa., meat market, and dealer in fresh and smoked meats, who in 1902 became the successor of Darius Weidner, is a business man of ability and enterprise. Mr. Behm was born in Oley township, Berks county, Oct. 3, 1853, son of Jacob and Lydia (Fulmer) Behm.

George Behm, grandfather of Reuben F., was a native of Rockland township, where he spent his entire life in agricultural pursuits. He was a large powerfully built man of fine appearance, and lived to the advanced age of seventy-eight years, dying in the faith of the Lutheran Church. He married Mary Walb, also of Rockland township, and they were the parents of these children: Reuben; William; Benjamin; Polly and Susan, who died single; Sarah, who married Samuel Endy, and Jacob.

Jacob Behm, father of Reuben F., who has reached the age of eighty-one years, is still strong and hearty, and continues to work at butchering and post fence making in Friedensburg, Oley township. His wife died Dec. 20, 1906, when seventy-six years of age. In politics he is a Democrat, and has held the offices of supervisor and constable. He and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church. They had sixteen children, of whom eight grew to maturity: Reuben F.; George, a butcher of Reading; Jacob, a cook at Norristown, Pa.; Sarah, who married Elmer Angsted, of Friedensburg, Pa.; Rebecca, who married Arthur Barckle, of Reading, Pa.; Emma, who married (first) Isaac Boyer, deceased; Kate, who married John Moyer, of Rockland township; and Miss Mary, who resides at home.

Shoemakersville

Reuben F. Behm was reared in Oley township, where he attended the public schools. When twenty-one years of age he started to learn the trade of butcher, having previously learned the house painter's trade, and these two occupations he followed as a journeyman until 1902. In this year, seeing an opportunity for establishing a good business, Mr. Behm purchased the meat market of Darius Weidner, at St. Lawrence, who was then doing but an indifferent business. He rebuilt and remodeled the entire plant, installing modern and up-to-date machinery, making this establishment one of the leading shops of Berks county. He slaughters all of his own cattle, hogs and sheep, which are selected stock fattened in Berks and Lancaster counties, and he prepares and smokes all of his own meats, consequently controlling one of the best trades in this section. Enterprising and energetic, Mr. Behm has always been thrifty, and as a consequence is rapidly amassing a competence. He may be found at No. 36 Kissinger Market, Reading. Since coming to St. Lawrence he has erected a fine residence property.

In politics Mr. Behm is a Republican. He is a member of the K. P., and the K. G. E., in both of which he is a member of the Grand Lodge; and Mystic Star Commandery, Knights of Malta.

In September, 1872, Mr. Behm was married to Miss Susan Sheetz, daughter of John Sheetz, and she died June 10, 1889, the mother of seven children: Edwin, a partner of his father in the meat business, who married Laura Ibach, and has two children, Arthur and Stewart; Charles, a machinist, who entered the army for service in the Spanish-American war, serving one year in the South and two years in the Philippines, as a member of Company M, 12th U. S. Regular Infantry, and was mustered out as corporal; William, a bar tender of Reading; John, a butcher; Walter, a weaver in the woolen mills; Vesta, who married Morris Beck, an employe of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway; and Beulah, who married John Schwambach, of Reading. Mr. Behm married (second) April 12, 1890, Rosie Long, daughter of Daniel and Rachel Long, of Exeter township. Mr. and Mrs. Behm are members of Schwartzwald Lutheran Church.

ADAM S. STIELY, a well known resident of Fritztown, Spring township, where he is foreman in the hosiery factory of William G. Leininger, was born Sept. 13, 1858, at Wernersville, Berks county, son of Elijah and Ellen (Stiely) Stiely.

Dietrich Stiely, great-grandfather of Adam S., was a native of Germany, whence he came to America in, or about, 1735. He was a farmer, owning land where Hain's Church cemetery is now located; and Stielytown, a village in Heidelberg township, is named after his grandsons, who were in that vicinity until after 1902, members of the family still residing there at the present time (1909). The burial place of this family is at Hain's Church. Dietrich Stiely's children were: Wilhelm; Daniel; George; Philip, who was the father of Francis, Daniel, John, Mary, Kate and Susan; Mary; Kate; Margueretа; Rev. Isaac; and John, who died in 1823, leaving a daughter under fourteen years old.

Francis Stiely, son of Philip, lived in Lower Heidelberg township, where he died in 1874, aged eighty-one years, the father of Reuben (who had a son Reuben), Anna, Francis, Jr. (who died before 1873), Ellen, Levi and Joel (who had Ellen, Valaria, Riely, Jared, Franklin, William, Charles, Maggie, Clara and Catherine.

Wilhelm Stiely, grandfather of Adam S., was born in Berks county, on the day on which the Declaration of Independence was signed, July 4, 1776, and died Nov. 21, 1846, aged seventy years, four months, seventeen days. He was a farmer and weaver, and owned the old Stiely homestead (which is now the property of Jonathan, Adam and Leonard Stiely, sons of Elijah), at Stielytown. He is buried at Hain's Church. He and his wife, Catherine Reifsnyder, had eight children, namely: Joseph, who died aged eighty-four years, the father of Emma, Adam W., Tamsen and Mary; Benjamin, whose children were Elias, Aaron, William, Malinda and Sarah; Samuel, who died aged eighty-seven years; Henry; Elijah; Matilda, who married Samuel Paff, of Reading; Catherine, who m. John Fisher, of Pottsville, Pa.; and Elizabeth, who m. John Showers, and died aged eighty-seven years.

Elijah Stiely, father of Adam S., was born Sept. 6, 1822, and died April 22, 1902, aged seventy-nine years, seven months, and sixteen days, and was buried at Hain's Church, of which he was an official member. He was a school teacher of Berks county, teaching in the old pay schools of Spring and Lower Heidelberg townships, and for two years also taught under the present school system. He was a member of Company K, 167th P. V. I., during the Civil war, and served gallantly for nine months. On Oct. 27, 1844, Mr. Stiely married Ellen Stiely, born Sept. 23, 1823, and who died Nov. 27, 1877, aged fifty-four years, two months, four days, daughter of Francis and Maria (Marks) Stiely, of Wernersville. To this union there were born eight children: Franklin died in youth; Catherine died in childhood; Miranda died young; a son died in infancy; Jonathan m. Valeria Stiely, and has three children, William, Nora and Leah; Adam S.; Eva m. Benias Schaeffer, of Lancaster county, and resides on the old homestead, and has two children, Carrie and Clarence; and Leonard m. Rebecca Oyler, has three children, Herbert, Minnie and Pearl, and lives in Reading.

Adam S. Stiely received his education in the township schools of Lower Heidelberg, and later attended the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, Pa., for two terms, also taking a course at the Reading Academy under the late Prof. D. B. Brunner. Mr. Stiely taught school in Lower Heidelberg township for four terms, from 1879 to 1884, and then learned the cigar making trade at Terre Hill, Lancaster county. This he followed from 1884 until the spring of 1907, being engaged in business on his own account, and employing as many as eight assistants. His factory was located at Fritztown. In January, 1907, Mr. Stiely became assistant foreman and engineer in the Fritztown Hosiery Mill, a position which he has filled very acceptably to the present time. In political matters he is a Democrat, and has been very active in the ranks of his party, serving the township for nine years as school director, eight years of which he has been secretary of the board. In 1892 the board erected the Fritztown Grammar School, in 1903 the West Reading high school, and in 1894 the Sinking Spring high school, and in many ways advanced educational interests in Spring township. In 1900 Mr. Stiely was a delegate to the State School Directors Convention, which meets annually at Harrisburg. He holds membership in the K. G. E., Castle No. 334, of Sinking Spring; Lodge No. 335, I. O. O. F., at Wernersville; and Camp No. 99, P. O. S. of A., of Wernersville. He and his family are consistent members of Hain's Reformed Church, in which he is a deacon and elder, and where he has a fine burial lot.

On Feb. 9, 1884, Mr. Stiely married Amanda M. Brightbill, born Dec. 10, 1858, daughter of Washington and Sarah (Knauss) Brightbill, retired farming people of Fritztown, Mrs. Stiely being their only daughter. To Mr. and Mrs. Stiely there have been born two children: Laura M. and Florence E.

CHARLES H. SCHLEGEL. Among the well known contractors and builders of Berks county, Pa., may be mentioned Charles H. Schlegel, who is carrying on extensive operations in the borough of Mt. Penn. He was born Jan. 19, 1872, in Ruscombmanor township, Berks county, son of Amos R. and Mary (Haas) Schlegel.

John Christian Schlegel, the American ancestor and progenitor of this family, was a native of Germany, and undoubtedly was the Johanis Schlegel who emigrated on the ship "Bilander Townshead," which landed (qualified) at Philadelphia, Oct. 5, 1737. On Aug. 16, 1738, and also

Nov. 7, 1754, he obtained proprietary warrants for land situated in Berks county, Pa. In 1759 he paid six pounds tax in Richmond township, where he had lived since coming to the New World. He was a farmer and owned more than 300 acres of land, and in 1797 built a stone house which is still standing and in good condition, and is owned and used by his great-grandson, Abraham, and his children and grandchildren. To John Christian Schlegel and his wife Esther were born a number of children, among whom were: Peter; Wilhelm; Christian, born March 25, 1765; Elizabeth, born April 9, 1767; Johannes, born Sept. 7, 1768, and Heinrich, born July 15, 1779. Peter and Wilhelm left this section, traveling on horseback across the Blue Mountains, and settled in the Mahantango Valley (in Schuylkill), then a part of old Berks county. They visited their brother Heinrich at the old home every two, three or four years, coming on horseback and remaining for a week or two. One of the sons of John Christian Schlegel lived with the Indians, liking their manner of life. He was greatly admired by them, because of his courage, strength and marksmanship, and when he was quite an aged man, he and some of his adopted brethren of the forest came to visit his old home near Fleetwood. Because of the great journey on which they came, and the effects of his strenuous life with the red men, he became exhausted at Dreibelbis Spring, and he died soon thereafter, and fills an unknown grave. This account is based on tradition, and the old family papers give brief accounts of it.

Heinrich Schlegel, great-grandfather of Charles H., was born in Richmond township, July 15, 1779, and died March 29, 1860. He was a farmer and bought from his father the "Schlegel Adventure," so named by the Provincial Government of Pennsylvania in a deed dated the twenty-first day of the seventh month, 1752. The tract consisted of 252 acres, and in 1803 he bought another patent of forty-six acres near his other land in Richmond township. He erected the grist mill three-fourths of a mile above Fleetwood, and was a man of considerable importance in his day. He was a Democrat in politics, which has always been the political faith of the Schlegel family. Heinrich Schlegel was married, in 1800, to Esther Keim, born Dec. 28, 1771, who died Dec. 21, 1843. They had children as follows: Samuel, born in 1801, died in 1892; Magdalena (1802-1886) m. Reuben Yoder (1802-1838), a farmer; Jacob m. Hattie Engstadt; Sally m. George Scholl; Abraham (1809-1900); Solomon died aged forty-five years; John; Daniel died aged ninety-seven years and is buried at New Jerusalem; Katie m. Jonas Herbine, a farmer of Richmond; Barbara m. Jacob Wanner, of Richmond township; and Susannah m. Simon Rothermel, a farmer of Richmond township. Heinrich Schlegel and his wife are buried in a private burial ground on his farm near Fleetwood. They were Lutherans, which is generally the faith of the Schlegel family. He was an official of New Jerusalem church for many years.

Samuel Schlegel, one of the sons of Heinrich, married Betzy Hoch, daughter of Solomon Hoch, and to them were born these children: Henry m. Hettian Kutz, daughter of Joseph, and had children: Albert, Sarah, Cyrus, Cecelia, Samuel, Cyranius, Tilmus, Carolina and Mahlon (of Topeka, Kans.); Hannah m. Jacob Rahn; Hettie m. John Shollenberger; Samuel had a son, Samuel, who had Ahiah A.; Reuben m. Catherine Kutz, daughter of Joseph; David lives at Berkley, Pa.; William, deceased, lived at Topeka, Kans.; Caroline and Maria live at Fleetwood, both being single; Joshua; Uriah is an undertaker at Reading; Elizabeth died at the age of twenty-one years; and Lydia died when eighteen years old.

Abraham Schlegel, son of Heinrich and grandfather of Charles H., was born on the old Schlegel stand near Fleetwood in Richmond township, June 26, 1809, and died Sept. 8, 1900, in his ninety-second year. He was a lifelong farmer on the place on which he was born, his fine property of 135 acres being now in the possession of his son, Abraham, who lives upon it. He also had an eighty-acre farm in Ruscombmanor township. In 1861 he erected the present large Swiss barn on the homestead. His wife was Esther Reddinger, daughter of Heinrich Reddinger, (whose wife was an Angstadt), and they had the following children: Peter; Amelia m. Peter Merkel; Abraham, born Feb. 4, 1842, a successful farmer on the homestead and at one time director of the poor of Berks county, m. Annie Diesher, and they had children—Charity, Mary, William, Robert, Emily, Oliver, Minerva and Lloyd; Orlando lives at Fleetwood; Amos resides at Mt. Penn; Amanda m. William Schaeffer; Joseph makes his home at Spring Valley, Ill.; Augustus is at Fleetwood; Clara m. Joel Hoch, postmaster of Fleetwood; Nicholas died young; Annie died at the age of six years; Israel resides at Topeka, Kans.; and Adeline died in infancy.

Amos R. Schlegel, father of Charles H., was a farmer in Ruscombmanor township, and there resided on his father's property for a number of years, later removing to a farm in Exeter township and in 1902 to Mt. Penn, where he owns a nice home, being employed with his son, Charles H. He was born in Richmond township, Jan. 27, 1844, and married, Nov. 23, 1867, Mary Haas, daughter of John and Katie (Brown) Haas, and to this union there were born the following children: Katie m. Benjamin Hartman, of Reading; Adam, a moulder of Mt. Penn, m. Sallie Kinsey; Charles H.; Heber, a carpenter of Mt. Penn, m. Harriet Rohrbach; John, a machinist of Mt. Penn, m. Annie Zieber; Abraham, a machinist of Mt. Penn, m. Annie Leopold; Albert H., a painter of Mt. Penn, m. Dora Fies, and they have a daughter—Frances; and Amos died in 1892 when seven years of age.

Charles H. Schlegel obtained his education at Fry's school in Ruscombmanor township, which he left at an early age to go to work on the farm. When eighteen years of age he learned the carpenter's trade with John R. Weidner, of Reading, with whom he worked four years and then engaged with Levi H. Focht, who was his employer for ten years, eight years of which he was foreman. On Nov. 1, 1903, William Lutz, of Lorane, Pa., requested Mr. Schlegel to build him a house, which he completed in sixty days, this being his first contract. Liking the business he decided to continue therein, and this he has been engaged in ever since with almost phenomenal success. Since engaging in the business he has erected upward of seventy-five buildings, including William Scull's fine summer home at Pleasantville; the fine mansions of Hiester Killian, Harvey Clouser and Charles Eshelman, at Gibraltar; the mountain home of Rump & Son, of Philadelphia, located in the mountains above Gibraltar; the George F. Lance residence at Wyomissing; the William Hafer home at Neversink; the Lutz furniture factory at St. Lawrence; the handsome large summer residence of Isaac Eckert, at Dingman's Ferry, Pike Co., Pa.; and the Mark A. Keeport and George Dengler homes and the Mt. Penn City Hall, at Mt. Penn. Mr. Schlegel is a man of much business ability and enterprise, and his standing is that of a substantial, far-sighted citizen of excellent judgment. He employs on an average twenty-five skilled mechanics. He is a director of the Commercial Trust Company, of Reading, and a heavy stockholder in the Reading Bone & Fertilizer Company, whose large plant he built after doing all of the grading therefor.

In political matters Mr. Schlegel is a Democrat, like all of the members of this numerous family, but has never cared to hold public office, preferring to give his entire time and attention to his growing business. He is popular in fraternal circles, and is a member of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, of St. Lawrence, and the Patriotic Sons of America, Camp No. 130, of that place. He and his family worship at Spies's Union Church, of which they are consistent Reformed members, and they reside in their handsome residence situated on Perkiomen avenue, Mt. Penn, which Schlegel purchased in 1905, and where their many friends are always welcome.

On Jan. 12, 1893, Mr. Charles H. Schlegel married Miss Amanda B. Noll, daughter of Levi and Sarah (Bloch) Noll, the former of whom was a farmer in Alsace township and the father of these children: Daniel, Emma, Sallie, Maggie, Louisa, John, Amanda and Albert. Mrs. Schlegel's grandparents were John and Magdalena (Fox) Noll. To Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schlegel there has been born one son, Lloyd W., born July 9, 1894, and now a member of the class of 1911 of the Reading high school.

WILSON RICHARDSON, manufacturer of fine creamery butter at Bern Station, Berks county, is a son of Emanuel Richardson and grandson of William Richardson. William Richardson lived in Bern and Ontelaunee townships, Berks county, and died in the latter township, leaving one son, Emanuel. During the Civil war he was located at Baltimore.

Emanuel Richardson was born in Ontelaunee township, and there followed farming, also engaging in milling to some extent. Moving to Exeter township, also in Berks county, he bought the old Daniel Boone homestead, containing 153 acres, upon which he carried on farming until his death. He married Lydia Miller, and they had children as follows: Charles M., who is extensively engaged in the creamery business in Berks and Susquehanna counties, Pa.; Kate, wife of Edward Beck; Owen, who lives in Reading; Mary, wife of Daniel R. Snyder; Frank, a traveling man, of Reading, Pa.; Wilson; and Ella, wife of George Lee, of Reading.

Wilson Richardson was born Feb. 10, 1873, in Ontelaunee township, Berks county, and received his education in Exeter township, attending the Friends' school. He worked at home with his father for a time, and gained his early experience in the business he now follows with his brother, Charles M. Richardson, at Bernville, being in his employ for a period of ten years before he went into the business on his own account. His brother conducts a number of creameries located in various parts of Berks and Susquehanna counties, and is a member of the well-known firm of Ahrens & Richardson. In 1901 Wilson Richardson embarked in the creamery business at Bern Station, where he has his principal establishment, also conducting four branches, at Stoudt's, Upper Bern, Lesher's Mill and Spangler's Mill. Mr. Richardson employs seven men and has a steady patronage for his product, which includes between five hundred and six hundred pounds of fine creamery butter daily, and which is marketed in the coal regions of Schuylkill county. He also supplies dealers with fresh cream and eggs. Mr. Richardson is one of the prominent citizens of his district, where he has many friends among his personal acquaintances as well as among his business associates. He has prospered by good management, and his standing is of the highest.

Mr. Richardson married Miss Tansey Rentschler, daughter of Charles and Cassia (Fleisher) Rentschler, and they have had one child, Paul W., who is now attending school.

As a Mason Mr. Richardson belongs to Vaux Lodge, No. 406, F. & A. M., of Hamburg; to Excelsior Chapter; to Reading Lodge of Perfection, No. 142; and also to Reading Commandery, No. 42, Knights Templar. He is a member of the Reformed Church and a Republican in politics, and has served as tax collector of the borough of Bernville.

WILLIAM I. GOLDMAN, whose elegant studio is situated at No. 516 Penn street, Reading, comes, on the paternal side, from ancestors who have lived in Berks county for generations.

John Goldman, his grandfather, was a farmer.

Isaac Goldman, son of John, was a merchant-tailor of Wernersville, Berks county, but died in Reading, in 1870, aged forty-seven years. He married Wilhelmina Ibach, daughter of Gustave Ibach, who came from Germany when six years old, settling in Newsmantown, Pa., where he died. Eleven children were born to Isaac and Wilhelmina (Ibach) Goldman, four of whom are now living: William I.; Charles I., of Chicago; Elmer E., of Philadelphia; and Henry H., an undertaker of Chicago.

William I. Goldman was born in Wernersville, Berks county, March 27, 1856, and was educated in Reading, in which city he worked in stores until 1876. He then became an apprentice at photography, and worked at it for others fifteen years. In 1891 Mr. Goldman engaged in business on his own account, at the corner of Penn and Sixth streets, the site of the present colossal department store of Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart. There he remained until 1900, when he removed to his present location, where he produces photographs the equal of any in the State.

Mr. Goldman belongs to the Masonic fraternity, and is a member of the Rajah Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, as well as a member of the Harrisburg Consistory. Mr. Goldman also belongs to the B. P. O. E., the Odd Fellows, the State Photographers' Association, of which he has been treasurer from the date of its organization in 1896, and of the Photographers' Association of America, a national organization which numbers among its members first-class photographers from all over the country.

FRANK M. NICE, M. D. It is believed that the Nice family had its origin in Jacob Nyce, who emigrated to this country Sept. 15, 1754. It is traditional that the name was spelled Nyce, and, in fact, old documents that were signed by Dr. Benjamin R. Nice bear out that fact. The Nyce family are descendants of the early French Huguenots.

Dr. Benjamin R. Nice, the founder of the family in this section, came to Hamburg about 1821, from New Jersey, where he was born April 12, 1794. He died July 14, 1862. His wife, Margaret Brugler, a native of New Jersey of English descent, was born Jan. 10, 1800, and died Nov. 12, 1848, the mother of the following children: Margaret (m. John Sunday); Milton B. (was thrice married); John (m. Louisa Harpt); Dr. Franklin Benjamin; Anne (m. Rev. Fred Kulp); Dr. George (m. Angelina Bond); Angeline (m. Enoch Koller); and Walter (m. into the Beard family).

Dr. Franklin Benjamin Nice, grandfather of Dr. Frank M., was born in 1830, and died June 29, 1905. He obtained his early education in the public schools of Hamburg, and in 1852 was graduated from the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia. He began practising medicine in 1852, in Hamburg, where he spent fifty-two years, and was very successful, at the time of his death leaving a fortune estimated at from $150,000 to $200,000. In 1851 he married Elizabeth Heffner, daughter of John and Kate (Gehret) Heffner, and to this union were born Dr. Benjamin and Lizzie H., the latter residing at home.

Dr. Benjamin Nice, of Hamburg, born Aug. 20, 1855, graduated from the Hamburg high school; the Scientific course of Ursinus College, class of 1874; Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in 1877; and the Polyclinic School in New York City, 1883. He began practising in the town of his nativity in the latter year, and here he had a very large and successful clientele. He was an expert on gynecology. He died in 1907. In 1878 he married Etta Mickley, daughter of Lewis and Kate (Gift) Mickley, and to this union was born one child, Dr. Frank M., born Feb. 14, 1879. Dr. Nice married (second) Ada Derr, and to this union was born one son, Benjamin Nice, Jr.

Dr. Frank M. Nice received his early education in the schools of his native town—Hamburg—and in 1897 graduated from the Hamburg high school. In the fall of that year he entered the celebrated Jefferson Medical College, of Philadelphia, graduating therefrom in June, 1901, and at once he began practice in Hamburg, where he is very successful. He became a specialist on the nervous system. While a college student he was prominently identified with the H. C. Chapman Physiological Society. He is a close student and constant reader, and when not busy visiting patients is engaged in study in his library, which is filled with the choicest works on the various sciences. The Doctor is a forceful and convincing debater, and was very popular on this account during his college days. In politics a Jeffersonian Democrat, he was in the spring of 1906 elected to the office of chief burgess after a spirited contest. He is socially connected with Ontelaunee Tribe, No. 312, Order of Red Men. The Doctor besides being a very successful practitioner is a deep student of the Theory of Evolution by means of which he solves religious, sociologic and scientific problems.

On June 10, 1903, Dr. Nice was married to Mayme Motes, daughter of Martin H. and Caroline (Behler) Motes, and to this union was born a son, Frank M., Jr.

REILY M. FORNWALD, a retired locomotive engineer and honored veteran of the Civil war, who since 1905 has made his home in Robesonia, was born April 15, 1842, in Heidelberg township, Berks Co., Pa., son of George and Susan (Moyer) Fornwald.

George Fornwald, his grandfather, was a farmer of Heidelberg township, where he owned a small tract, and both he and his wife are buried at the Corner Church. They had four children: George; Isaac, who lived and died at Jonestown, where he is buried; Jonathan, who died at Myerstown (his children were Adam, Nora, Agnes, Amelia, John and Emma); and Sarah, who married Jacob Stiely, who died in Reading in 1905, at a very advanced age.

George Fornwald, father of Reily M., was born Feb. 15, 1822, in North Heidelberg township, and died Dec. 12, 1893, aged seventy-one years, nine months, twenty-seven days. He was a farmer by occupation, owning a small tract of land in Heidelberg township, near Robesonia, and is buried at St. Daniel's (Corner) Church. He married Susan Moyer, born July 16, 1819, who died Feb. 27, 1895, aged seventy-five years, seven months, eleven days, daughter of Daniel and Susan (Belleman) Moyer, and to this union were born two children, Reily M. and William. William Fornwald, who is cupola runner for the Federal Government, married Susan Rhoads, and they have had these children: Howard, deceased; Franklin; Charles; Samuel; and Erb, who met his death on the railroad at Port Clinton.

Reily M. Fornwald was educated in the common schools and the Millersville State Normal, at Millersville, Pa., and after attending the latter for three years left school to enlist, Sept. 11, 1861, to serve three years or during the war. He was mustered into the United States service at Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 18, 1861, as a private in Capt. Charles B. Mickley's Company G, 47th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, Col. Tilghman H. Good, commanding. The regiment proceeded to Washington, D. C., arriving on Sept. 21st, and encamped at Fort Ethan Allen, where it took part in a minor engagement and later was assigned to the 3d Bridgade, Smith's Division, thence moving to Camp Griffin and Bailey's Cross Roads. Later the regiment was assigned to the 2d Brigade, 1st Division, 19th Corps, and participated in the battle of Pocotaligo, S. C., Oct. 22, 1862; moving thence to Key West, Fla., they garrisoned Forts Taylor and Jefferson, the military importance of these positions at this time being very great, remaining there until Feb. 25, 1864, when they embarked on the steamer "George Thomas" for Louisiana, arriving at Algiers; moved via Brashear City, to Franklin and thence with Banks' Red River expedition. Mr. Fornwald participated in the following engagements: St. John's Bluff, Fla., Oct. 3, 1862; Pocotaligo, S. C., Oct. 22, 1862; Moneti's Bluff and Cane River, La., April 23 and 24, 1864; Natchitoches, La., May 5, 1864; Mansura or Marksville, La., May 14 to 16, 1864; Bayou de Glaize, La., May 18, 1864; Atchafalaya River, La., July 28, 1864; Summit Point, Berryville and Flowing Springs, Va., Aug. 21, 1864; Halltown, Va., Aug. 24 to 27, 1864; Berryville, Va., Sept. 3 and 4, 1864; and a number of minor engagements and skirmishes. The 47th Pennsylvania was the only Pennsylvania regiment taking part in the Red River Expedition. Mr. Fornwald was promoted to the rank of corporal, Feb. 15, 1862, for faithful and meritorious service. He was wounded at Pocotaligo, S. C., Oct. 22, 1862, in the head and groin, by the bursting of a shell, and spent four weeks in the field hospital, afterward returning to his regiment. He took part in all of the engagements of his regiment except while confined in the hospital, and rendered faithful and meritorious service. Mr. Fornwald received his honorable discharge at Berryville, Va., Sept. 18, 1864.

After his return from the war Mr. Fornwald was employed in operating a blast for White & Ferguson, at Robesonia, for four years, and then operated an engine for Wright, Cook & Co. for one year, at Sheridan. For ten years he ran an engine for William M. Kauffman, and in 1884 he came to Reading, where he resided until 1905, when he erected a fine residence on Upper Main street, Robesonia, at which place he has lived in retirement since. Mr. Fornwald also owns four other houses and a great deal of real estate in his section, and is considered one of the borough's substantial men.

On Sept. 28, 1867, Mr. Fornwald was married to Emma S. Bechtel, born July 11, 1848, daughter of Isaac Bechtel, Sr., who died at Robesonia in 1894. Mr. and Mrs. Fornwald had two children: William F., born in 1868, died Nov. 6, 1870; Allen L., born Dec. 29, 1869, married Katie Zimmerman, daughter of George Zimmerman, of Lebanon, Pa., and they have two children, Earl Ethan Allen and Dorothy Katie. Allen L. Fornwald is a clerk at the Oley street mill for the Reading Iron Company, Reading.

Reily M. Fornwald is an active member of the Union Veteran Legion, No. 43, of the P. O. S. of A., Camp No. 68, and Williamson Lodge, No. 307, F. & A. M., of Womelsdorf.

MRS. ANNA ELIZA BECKER, of Womelsdorf, widow of Willoughby Becker, is a daughter of John and Amelia (Hain) Miller, born in Heidelberg township, Berks Co., Pa., on the same farm where the pioneer, John Miller, settled and where all of her ancestry in America were born and raised. She lived with her parents on this farm for some time, until they moved to Wernersville, Pa. She was married to Willoughby Becker, son of John and Carolina (Stump) Becker, and moved to Millbach, Lebanon Co., Pa., on what was known as the Holstein farm, which Mr. Becker then purchased. They resided peacefully together on this farm until Mr. Becker's death. Mrs. Becker has always been highly esteemed and respected by her friends and neighbors. In the spring of 1904 she and her two step-daughters, Mary C. and Sallie A. Becker, purchased a fine residence on High street in Womelsdorf, Berks Co., Pa., in which they moved together and are now residing.

Mrs. Becker's ancestry is as follows: John Miller emigrated from Metz, Germany, sometime between 1732 and 1734. He settled in Heidelberg township, Berks Co., Pa., on a farm now (1908) owned by Lewis Spohn. He had one son, John Michael, born in Metz, Germany, A. D. 1731.

John Michael Miller was married to Susanna Hecker, and they lived together for forty-four years and were the parents of one son and two daughters. Susanna Miller died Feb. 6, 1804, aged seventy-six years. John Michael Miller died Jan. 6, 1807, aged seventy-six years.

John Miller, son of John Michael Miller, was born in Heidelberg township, Berks Co., Pa., March 18, 1757, and married Elizabeth Eckert Jan. 16, 1781. He died March 13, 1824, aged sixty-six years, eleven months, twenty-six days. Elizabeth Miller, born April 26, 1764, died May 15, 1842. They had two sons, named Michael and Jonas.

Michael Miller, son of John Miller, born in Heidelberg township, Berks Co., Pa., Jan. 16, 1782, died Dec. 26, 1843. He was married to Anna Maria Gaul, of Spring township, Berks Co., Pa., born in Spring township Nov. 2, 1777, died Feb. 4, 1858, aged eighty years, three months, two days. They had three children, one son and two daughters, namely: John; Eliza, married to Daniel Fidler; and Maria, married to David Klopp.

John Miller, son of Michael Miller, was born in Heidelberg township, Berks Co., Pa., Jan. 22, 1815, and died in 1888. He was married to Amelia Hain (daughter of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Hain) Hain), born Oct. 4, 1814, died Jan. 22, 1872, aged fifty-seven years, three months, eighteen days. They were the parents of six children, two sons and four daughter, namely: Levi, Anna Eliza, Adam H., Sarah, Mary H., and Ellen.

Adam H. Miller, son of John Miller, was born Feb. 3, 1845, in Heidelberg township, Berks Co., Pa., and was married to Mary Anna Leiss, Oct. 8, 1868. They are the parents of three children, one son and two daughters: John Harry, Anna Helen, and Millie Elizabeth. Levi Miller died in his youth. Sarah Miller died in infancy. Mary H. Miller is residing in Womelsdorf. Ellen Miller was married to William Binkley and they lived a happy life together in Wernersville, Pa., until her death. Anna Eliza Miller was married to Willoughby Becker.

All of the Miller ancestry were members of the Reformed Church and all the dead are buried at the Hain's Church burial grounds.

Willoughby Becker, who died at Millbach, Lebanon Co., Pa., April 29, 1903, was a retired agriculturist and for more than forty years had been one of the prominent men of his locality. The Beckers for many generations had been successful tillers of the soil.

Jacob Becker, the founder of the American branch of the family, came from Germany before 1734 and settled in Lebanon county, Pa., where in 1734 he was granted land by John, Thomas and Richard Penn. The deed, written on parchment, is still in the family. Jacob Becker's sons were John, George, and others.

John Becker became the father of seven children, Michael, John Adam, Catherine, Elizabeth, Barbara, Anna Amelia, and Margaret.

John Adam Becker, son of John, was born in Mill Creek township, and there grew to manhood, engaging in agriculture, the pursuit for which his early training had best prepared him. Success attended his efforts and he made a good home for his family. His four children were John, Michael, Sarah (who married Captain Tice, a soldier of the Civil war) and Elizabeth (who married George Moyer).

John Becker, son of John Adam, was born in Mill Creek township in 1813 and early showed his inherent industry and self-reliance. He, too, became a farmer in Mill Creek township, Lebanon Co., Pa., making many improvements on his place, and there in 1884 he died. He was a Democrat in politics and was independent in religious views. He became quite wealthy and was a large stockholder in the Lebanon National Bank, in which for a quarter of a centruy he had been a director.

About 1833 he married Carolina Stump, daughter of Leonard Stump, and a member of a pioneer family. To this union were born children as follows: Willoughby; John Adam, of South Lebanon township; Mary, deceased wife of Henry J. Bennetch, a farmer in Mill Creek township; Elizabeth, wife of J. M. Zimmerman, of Mill Creek township; Emma, who married Aaron Bollinger, both deceased; Amanda, who married the late George U. Seibert, of Richland; Thomas L., of Millbach; Ida, deceased; and Agnes, deceased, who was married to Levi Bollinger, of Richland.

Willoughby Becker was born on the old Mill Creek township homestead, March 10, 1836. After reaching manhood he followed farming a while on the home farm. In 1863 he came to Berks county, and for twenty-four years engaged in farming here. In 1887 he returned to Mill Creek township, Lebanon county, and purchased the Holstein farm of 195 acres. He directed the work of this valuable farm with great ability and then purchased the old Zeller farm of 152 acres at Newmanstown. On the latter farm was an old stone house erected as a fort in 1745. Mr. Becker added other valuable real estate to his possessions. He was a man of marked integrity. He was a good manager and was uniformly successful in his undertakings. He was an ideal husband and father. He was a member of St. Daniel's (Corner) Lutheran Church at Robesonia and there he is buried.

In 1860 Mr. Becker married Sarah Kahl, daughter of David and Maria (Moyer) Kahl and granddaughter of Leonard Kahl, father and grandfather in turn being owners of the Livingood farm in Heidelberg township.

The ancestor of the Kahl family was Jacob Kahl, who died in 1767 and was buried at the St. Daniel's (Corner) Church, Robesonia, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Sarah (Kahl) Becker died in 1878, the mother of six children: Monroe K., John D., Henry S., George K., Mary C., and Sallie A. John, Henry and George are all deceased.

Sarah (Kahl) Becker had the following sisters: Maria, deceased, who was married to Uriah Stewert, Millbach, Pa.; Eliza, married to Jacob Bechtel, Reading, Pa.; and Ellen, deceased.

Mr. Becker married, second, Anna Eliza Miller, daughter of John and Amelia (Hain) Miller.

JACOB FRIES, the senior member of the firm of Jacob Fries & Son, plumbers, on Perkiomen avenue, one of the leading business establishments of the city of Reading, Pa., was born in Reading, Aug. 30, 1860, son of John J. and Margaret Fries, the former a railroad man who was killed in an accident while acting as conductor. At this time Jacob Fries was a child and when he was but six years of age his mother died, leaving him an orphan. He was reared by August Ernst and his wife, receiving a good education in the public schools, and at the age of fifteen years apprenticed himself to the machinist's trade in the shops of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, where he is still employed. He is a skilled mechanic and faithful employe, and is very popular with his fellow workmen in the shops.

In 1881, Mr. Fries married Rosie E. Reif, daughter of Henry P. and Barbara Reif, and to this union there were born the following children: Bertha; H. Jacob; Arthur, the junior member of the firm of Jacob Fries & Son; Charles; Paul; Raymond; Lillie; George, and Leonard. In religious matters they are identified with St. Andrew's Reformed Church. Mr. Fries is independent in politics, and has served as judge of election. Fraternally he is connected with the P. O. S. of A. and Royal Arcanum.

JACOB GRILL HATT, a representative citizen of Lower Heidelberg township, Berks county, where he owns much land, is now living retired at his home near Fritztown, after many years spent at hard work. Mr. Hatt was born Dec. 15, 1835, on his father's farm in Spring township, Berks county, son of Jacob and Catherine (Grill) Hatt.

Conrath Hath (Hatt), Sr., the great-grandfather of Jacob G., and the ancestor of this family in America, came from Switzerland about the middle of the eighteenth century, and soon after arriving in this country settled in Cumru township, Berks county, where he purchased land, a property which he continued to operate until his death in 1789. His will, which was probated in that year, mentions these children: Henry, who had a son Henry; Philip; Conrath, Jr.; Margaretha, who bore her mother's name; Maria Elizabeth; Anna Maria; Juliana; and Catherine, who was the wife of John Kleinginna, of Cumru township.

Philip Hatt, grandfather of Jacob G., was born in Cumru township, where his death occurred in 1824. He owned his own farm, which he operated all of his life, and in his will, which was probated Sept. 3, 1824, the following children were mentioned: Philip (1788-1856) m. Magdalena Bohmer (1796-1847) and died intestate; Daniel m. Susan Heverling, and had these children—

Richard, Elizabeth (m. Adam Behm), John (1814-1882), Daniel (1815-1893), Catherine (m. A. Kegerise) and Polly (m. a Hoffman); Susanna; Catherine; John; Conrad; Jacob, the father of Jacob G.; William, born April 17, 1802, died June 26, 1868; and Elizabeth.

Jacob Hatt, father of Jacob G., was born May 12, 1800, and died Aug. 5, 1876. He was a lifelong farmer in Spring township, where he owned a fine property of 130 acres, now in the possession of his grandson, Jacob Hatt, and was also a stave-maker and cooper. Genial and affable in manner, Mr. Hatt was very popular in his community, and was esteemed by all who knew him. Mr. Hatt married Catherine Grill, born Oct. 29, 1802, who died Nov. 26, 1866, and to them were born these children: Louisa (m. Abraham Matz); Samuel, a farmer of Spring township; Kitty (m. Henry Wertz); John, a farmer, who died in Lower Heidelberg township; Jacob G.; Catherine (m. Daniel Ruth); Sally (m. Henry Matz); Betz (m. Fred Hain); Polly (m. William Ruth); and Levi, who died unmarried.

Jacob G. Hatt attended the old pay schools of his day, which were in charge of German teachers, and was reared upon his father's farm in Spring township, where he began farming for himself at the age of twenty-four years. In 1864 he purchased a farm of thirty acres in the Blue Marsh, where he lived for six years, and this he then sold to remove to the old Sauder farm in Lower Heidelberg township, which he tenanted for ten years. In the spring of 1882 he purchased a tract of 120 acres near Fritztown, where his son, William Hatt, now lives, and he also purchased a small property of eighteen acres, on which he lives engaged in truck farming, attending the Reading market from one to three times a week. In addition Mr. Hatt owns about thirty-seven acres of woodland. In political matters Mr. Hatt is a stanch Democrat. He and his wife are members of St. John's Reformed Church of which he was elder for two years. Mr. Hatt is a successful man, and his success has been won honestly, his reputation as a business man of integrity and fair dealing being an enviable one. He is well known to the people of his vicinity as a public-spirited citizen and Christian gentleman.

In 1858 Mr. Hatt married Rebecca Miller, born Jan. 23, 1836, daughter of Peter and Sarah (Stiely) Miller, of Cumru township, and to this union there were born eight children, of whom the only survivor is William G., who is married to Annie Wenrich and has five children: Elsie, Jacob, Leah, William and Elmer. Three of Mr. Hatt's other children died within three weeks, of diphtheria, his eldest son, Adam, also succumbing to that disease, when nineteen years old.

HON. EDMOND L. SMITH, who was generally known by his military title of Major, was a native of Reading, born in 1829. He was sent to college in Georgetown, D. C., and received his degree of B. A. in 1853. He then read law, and four years later was admitted to the Reading Bar. Young as he was politics had already received much of his attention, and he was so favorably regarded that in the fall of 1857 he was elected to the Legislature, and re-elected in 1858.

In 1861 at the very beginning of the war, Major Smith, to use his later title, enlisted in Ringgold's Artillery of Reading, one of the first companies in the State to respond to the President's call for troops. They passed through Baltimore just the day before Gen. Butler's troops were attacked in that city. On May 14, 1861, he was commissioned captain of the 19th U. S. Infantry and joined McClellan for the Peninsula campaign. He was in much active service and took part in the battle of Malvern Hill, the second battle of Bull Run, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg and in the Chickamauga campaign. During the last he had a horse shot under him, but he himself escaped injury. In that battle Major Dawson was shot, so that the command fell upon Capt. Smith, and he was brevetted for his bravery in the engagement. At the beginning of the second day he was captured, and for about thirteen months was imprisoned in the infamous Libby prison. He was among the 110 men who dug the celebrated tunnel, and so escaped, but unfortunately he was also one of those who were captured after ten days of suffering, and taken back. After that Major Smith was moved from place to place, being finally sent to Macon, Ga. While on the way thither, he again succeeded, with four others, in escaping by jumping from the train, but was brought back after six weeks of untold hardship, and then sent to Charleston, S. C., where he was placed under fire from Union guns. At last, Oct. 1, 1864, Major Smith was paroled, and after a month's leave of absence, returned to his command, and was with them at Lookout Mountain and at Augusta, Ga. When he finally resigned, in 1868, he had seen seven years of hard service in his country's cause.

Immediately after resigning from the army, Major Smith, in July, 1868, went to Colorado, and resumed his practice of law, in partnership with his brother, J. Bright Smith. Again he combined politics with his legal business and was elected to the Territorial Legislature from Arapahoe county, his brilliant war record being really the cause of his election. He remained in Colorado until his death Sept. 9, 1891. Both as a man and as a soldier Major Smith offered a fine example of what American citizens may be.

Major Smith married Magdalena Reiner, who was born in Germany, where her father, John Reiner, died. She left her native land when seventeen years old, and came to America, where her marriage took place. She survives her husband and makes her home at No. 519 Walnut street, Reading. She was reared in the Catholic faith, and is now a communicant of St. Peter's Church. To Major and Mrs. Smith were born six children, viz.: Edmond L., who lived only four years; John Philip, a clerk in the Orphans' court; Susie A.; Harry, a reporter; Charles F., a civil engineer; and Margaret, at home.

HAIN. The Hain family has been prominent in Berks county, Pa., for several generations, and members in each generation have been active in furthering the advance of religious and social life. The first of the family of whom there are well authenticated data is George Hean, who settled in the vicinity of Hain's Church. He was one of the chief donors to that church, and was a very prominent man in his community. He engaged in farming and was accounted one of the wealthy men of the day. At his death he left much property. To him and his wife, Veronica, were born children as follows: Peter, Adam, George, Frederick and Heinrich (or Henry).

Henry Hain married and became the father of the following children: Adam, who settled in Dauphin county; Frederick; Daniel; Otto; Joseph; and a daughter who married a Mr. Locksley. The family belonged to the Reformed Church.

Daniel Hain was born at the old homestead near Hain's Church. He, too, became a prosperous farmer. He was twice married. By his first marriage he had a son, John.

John Hain, son of Daniel, married Magdalina Haak, and their children were: Jacob, William, Ellen, Hannah, Absalom, Mary, Daniel, Elizabeth and Rebecca. The children were all reared in the faith of the Reformed Church.

Jacob Hain, son of John, was a harness-maker by trade, and was located at No. 321 Penn street, where he carried on a flourishing business for many years, becoming one of the best known men of his day in the city. He married Mary Ann Goodhart, daughter of Jacob and Mary (Beidler) Goodhart. This union was blessed with three children, namely: Clara L. m. George P. Zieber, and has two children, Blanche and Florence (m. Clarence Fencil, and has two sons, George P. and John N.); Alice V. m. Jonathan P. Mengel, and had three children, Ralph H. (m. Deborah De Turk), J. Hain and Mary A. (deceased); and

S. Agnes m. Henry M. Otto. Mr. Jacob Hain was a member of the Second Reformed Church, of which he was one of the organizers, and in which he held the offices of deacon and elder. He was a prominent worker in the Democratic party, and held the office of clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court of Berks county. His fraternal connections were with Salome Lodge, I. O O. F. He was a man who kept well abreast of the times, and was well posted on matters of public import, and was looked up to as an authority, his advice being often sought and carefully followed. His word was as good as his bond, and he had the unqualified esteem of all men.

EDWARD C. HECHT (deceased). One of the leading industries of Reading, Pa., is that of paint manufacturing and in this connection may be mentioned the late Edward C. Hecht, a prominent business man of the city, whose death occurred Dec 21, 1893. Mr. Hecht was born in January, 1831, in Easton, Pa., son of Rev. John Peter and Mary (Ziegler) Hecht.

"Rev. John Peter Hecht was born in Bucks county, Pa., Feb. 28, 1790. Bereft of his father in infancy, he was taken charge of by kind friends connected with the German Lutheran Church in Philadelphia, who perceiving the germ that sparkled in the little casket, began the process of development, with the view of making a preacher out of him. So successful were they that at three years of age he began to read, and the promise of a Bible, to be all his own, if at the end of two more years he would read any chapter that might be designated, operated as it was intended to do, upon him, and the years that should have been spent in getting his little hands and face dirty with mud pies and kindred employments were passed in hard laborious study. He gained the Bible and the applause of his admiring friends, but sealed his own fate against any physical culture or mental rest. Forthwith began uninterrupted schooling and drilling. At ten years of age he had advanced in mathematics to surveying, and the boy of sixteen stood up one Sabbath in the church, corner Fourth and Cherry streets, in Philadelphia, to preach. Tremblingly he turned to his preceptors, Drs. Helmuth and Schmidt, and said: 'I cannot preach to-night.' Without a sign of the pity they felt for him, they both said: 'You must.' Knowing that it would be useless to offer further resistance, he stammered through a few sentences, but found his fearfulness passing away as he proceeded, until towards the close he was perfectly calm. He was well repaid when those who had carefully watched him so many years, congratulated him and bade him God-speed in his studies.

"At eighteen years of age he had charge of two congregations near the Trappe, Montgomery Co., Pa. His mother and sister were to live with him, and having completed the arrangements of the parsonage on the Saturday afternoon before his regular services were to begin, these three were resting under the shade trees in front of the house. Reluctantly the mother said, after considerable anxiety about it: 'Well, John, our house is now all ready and very comfortable, but there is not a thing in the house to eat.' Without a moment's hesitation, her son answered: 'Mother, the Lord will provide.' But a few minutes afterwards a carriage was before the gate and a man asked where the 'new preacher' was. The preacher approaching and announcing himself met with the salutation: 'Why you are only a boy.' 'Well,' said the preacher, 'I can't help that; I was sent here, and I suppose I am the one you mean.' The man studied a minute, and then blurted out: 'Well, well, come Betsy. We want to be married, and if you are the new preacher, why I guess you can marry us.' The fee provided for them over their first Sabbath. It was during his stay at the Trappe that he became acquainted with the school teacher, Francis R. Shunk, and a friendship formed between them that continued during life.

"From the Trappe he was called to Carlisle, Pa. Here he became acquainted with Mary Ziegler of Harrisburg, Pa., whom he married, and in whom he had a faithful wife through all his pastoral labors. Removing to Easton, Pa., with their infant daughter, Eliza (later the wife of Judge W. L. Sebring), Mr. Hecht commenced his labors in St. John's Lutheran and Reformed congregations jointly owned and worshipped in the present Reformed Church on North Third street. Did our space permit, a volume of incidents and personals might be written, which would illustrate the pains and pleasures of a thirty years' pastorate. Let it suffice, for the present, to say that Mr. Hecht's labors were perhaps more severe than any other pastor in Easton has ever been called upon to perform. Preaching in German and English three sermons each Sabbath, one German and one English lecture during the week, and attending innumerable funerals, sometimes as many as fifteen in a week, at all of which custom demanded a sermon and regular service in the church. For many years St. James' Church in Phillipsburg, N. J., was attached to St. John's, Easton. This church is now under Rev. S. Henry's charge.

"Mr. Hecht's reputation as a scholar and pulpit orator induced many young men to place themselves under his instruction during his earlier years. Among these was the world's greatest surgeon, Prof. Samuel D. Gross, M. D., LL. D., D. C. L. Oxon. Rev. Joseph B. Gross, a brother of the learned professor, was also a pupil of Mr. Hecht's. He studied theology with him, was many years a faithful and successful pastor, and is spending the declining years of his life in writing and publishing the results of careful and sanctified meditation upon the great truths of our holy religion. The Rev. Henry S. Miller, one of his earlier disciples, still lives in peaceful retirement at Phoenixville, Pa. 'Some have fallen asleep' who fed their minds from John P. Hecht's instructions, not however before they had faithfully imparted to others that which they had received. Among these were Rev. W. B. Kemerer, Rev. Richard Collier and Rev. Nathan Yaeger.

"Mr. Hecht's interest in the public schools induced him to accept the office of director, at a time when such a position was by no means as popular as at present. The board at one time elected him superintendent of the schools in the hope that order might be brought out of confusion and want of system prevailing. This, however, required too much of his time and attention, and he had to resign.

"During all these years the records of the grand 'old mother Synod' of Pennsylvania (Lutheran Church) show that either as secretary or president, or chairman of the most important and laborious committees, John P. Hecht's talents and qualifications were in constant requisition, and while in the Synod of New York, to which he appears to have been frequently delegated, he was always received with distinguishing marks of respect and esteem.

"Notwithstanding all these duties, his work among the poor, the sick and prisoners, received his most cheerful attention. Often when he found that fear of contagion deprived some one of proper care, Mr. Hecht became almost nurse and physician to him, always manifesting the same faith in Divine Providence for himself and his own numerous family that he exhibited when as a boy (in years) he began his ministry. Busy 'in season and out of season' with his Master's work, he yet found time for much study and research. He was especially fond of the languages, and his Hebrew Bible, in the possession of his son, is a monument of his diligence and patient toil. Rabbi Cohen, himself a distinguished linguist, pronounced him the best Hebrew scholar he ever knew. The late Hon. Washington McCartney and he would often study their Latin and Greek together. He was completely 'at home' with the German, and his sermons and addresses in that language often started the inquiry as to his fatherland. He was for some time professor in German in Lafayette College. Of this institution he was also a trustee.

"In the effort to summarize the business of thirty-nine years, we are amazed at the magnitude and diversity of labors performed by this man. And when it is remembered that not one year of his life was given to the strengthening of his physical being, but for over fifty years his mind and brains were on a continued strain, the wonder is that the whole man did not give way before. Loved and respected by his people, as well as the entire community, many of whom he had married, whose bereaved hearts he had comforted with the promises of a loving Saviour, whom he baptized and laid his hands upon in confirmation, with the most confiding nature in all mankind that anyone ever possessed, he moved in a sort of home circle everywhere, with a kind word for everyone, and receiving from all the affectionate tribute of love and respect.

"As if jealous of such a peaceful relationship, some evil spirit suddenly injected the question of party politics into the congregation of St. John's, and in a very short time the worst passions ruled, and the once quiet and contented became mad and unreasonable. The shock that the pastor then experienced utterly overcame him, and in May, 1845, he resigned his charge. In vain did his people beg of him to recall his resignation. Other and more zealous counsels prevailed with him, and from his life of toil and constant employment he fell into one of listless melancholy. The heart that before throbbed only with love for all mankind broke, and the manly form bent, the eloquent tongue lost its power, the light of genius went out. With 'heart bowed down' he would gather his children about him on the Sabbath and expound some portion of the Holy Word, when the old familiar hymns would be sung. Passers-by would stop to listen, and at last asked permission to unite in these services. The doors once opened, the house was crowded with those who had not lost their love for the enfeebled pastor. The young men made benches and placed them where they could be distributed through the house, in order to seat the throngs who came. At length it was proposed to rent the Armory on Second street and hold services there. This Mr. Hecht thought might look like an effort to form a new congregation. Indeed it was already charged that such was his purpose, but very unjustly. He decided that he would lecture on Sabbath afternoons to a congregation of Christian worshippers, which was to be independent of all denominations. Such services were held for a few weeks, at which Mr. Hecht repeated some of the sermons he had formerly delivered at St. John's and other churches. These manuscripts are in the hands of his son, and are marked by the author in a trembling hand. These services were very abruptly brought to a close, however, when Mr. Hecht learned that they were to be perverted from their original purpose. This closed his attempts at a public ministry. The infirmities of a premature old age were crowding fast upon him; tne unwise course pursued with him in his early life was bearing its bitter fruit now. The precocious preacher, at the age when mind and body ought to be, and is when properly educated, at its perfection, was a feeble, decrepit old man, and to-day there are men who saw him in the last years of his life, who can scarcely believe that he was but fifty-eight years old.

"In less than three years after his resignation of St. John's, Mr. Hecht was taken away to 'rest from his labors'. The month of January, 1849, saw him wasting away very fast. Repeated attacks of paralysis prevented distinct articulation, while his helpless body relied upon kind hands that never wearied in administering to him. His last night on earth, however, saw a remarkable change. Awakening from what was feared was his death sleep, he asked to be helped to his chair. His family gathered around and hung tenderly upon his words, now to their surprise as clear as when he proudly stood up before his audience to preach Christ crucified. Once again he was permitted to testify for his Lord and Master, and for an hour and a half, perhaps, he spoke to each one present in such tender, loving words as only a pure, true Christian, and a tender, loving father knows to utter. Many circumstances he recalled that some of the family had forgotten, showing the complete return of all his faculties, it may be, for the opportunity of confessing his Saviour once more. Acknowledging his own sins, he had yet only joy in the assurance that all were borne away by the sacrifice on Calvary. With a final farewell and a loving message to three of his daughters absent, he calmly asked to be helped to bed. Having fallen into the last heavy sleep of the dying, one of his daughters vainly attempted to arouse him. She had just reached his bedside, and in her agony she declared that she wanted but a word of recognition before he died. She whispered in his ear, 'Jesus,' and instantly the heavy breathing ceased and raising his hands he said: 'O yes! I know Him and I love Him.' Only this, and he at once relapsed into the same comatose condition until he ceased to breathe. This state lasted for several hours, and many kind friends visited the chamber where their old pastor was dying. Chief among the mourners was the Rev. Thomas Reardon, pastor of St. Bernard's Catholic Church. He, too, wished to look once again in the face of the man who had met him as a Christian brother, and when a stranger in Easton had called upon and encouraged him. Mr. Reardon said, in speaking of the death of his friend: 'That solemn deathbed scene is indelibly impressed on my memory. I retain a vivid recollection of the sacred stillness of that supreme hour in which amidst the tears and prayers of all the members of his numerous and most affectionately attached family and a few steadfast and devoted friends, he calmly yielded up his spirit to that Divine Master to whose services he had consecrated the best years of his life, and through whose atoning mercy he humbly hoped to be admitted to the enjoyment of a blissful immortality.'

"The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. George Diehl, then pastor of Christ Lutheran Church. The body was laid in St. John's graveyard, whence it was removed to the Easton cemetery, then just begun. His widow, whose memory is enshrined in the hearts of all the older members of this community, died in 1858. Their eleven children were: Eliza, Sophia, Louisa, Henrietta, Caroline, Anna, Amanda, Emma, Matilda, Edward and Mary Z."

Edward C. Hecht was educated in the schools of Easton, and at an early age entered the dry goods store of his cousin, Mr. Gross, with whom he remained for some time, and then returned to his home place and clerked in a dry goods store until he engaged in the drug business, continuing therein for some years, and then turning his attention to the manufacture of paint at Easton, where he continued until 1881. He then came to Reading and for four years was identified with A. Wilhelm in the same business. From that time until his death, in company with B. Frank Ruth, he conducted the Lehicton Paint Mills, located on the Bushkill Creek, which furnished ample water-power for many factories in the district. Their structure, a substantial, three-story building, 30 x 50 feet, had a capacity of 1000 tons of paint annually, these being of all varieties, colors and grades. The specialties of these mills were the "French Parlor Paint," which became very popular on account of its superior glossy appearance and snowy whiteness, and a special paint used for railroad cars, made from the best mineral colors. A fine article of coach and car "filling" was also manufactured, this being for the purpose of filling the pores of the wood, to create a high polish. In addition to these mills, Mr. Hecht was the proprietor of a large talc or soapstone quarry, covering about sixty-five acres. He was a shrewd and capable business man, and any enterprise with which he was connected was bound to prove successful. A consistent member of the Lutheran Church, he was active in church work, and was a director of the Lutheran cemetery at Gettysburg, Pa. In politics he was a Republican, and while at Easton served as a notary. Fraternally he was a thirty-second degree Mason and a member of Mt. Penn Council, Royal Arcanum.

In 1855 Mr. Hecht married Matilda Evans, daughter of Lewis and Margaret (Davis) Evans, and to them were born these children: John P., M. D., of Summerville, N. J.; Leila, wife of Joseph A. Byers, of Reading, Pa.; Herbert T., superintendent of the Reading Iron Company's mill at Danville, Pa.; Edward C., of Massachusetts; and Mary Z., who married Charles W. Haug, and has one child, Charles Edward.

F. P. HELLER, a prominent business man of Reading, Pa., and president of the Board of Trade from 1905 to 1907, was born in this city in 1834, son of George and Catherine (Smith) Heller, and a grandson of Frederic Heller.

Ludwig Heller, the great-grandfather of F. P., came from Germany in 1763, and settled in Reading. He was a very prominent man of his day and very wealthy. His son, Frederic, also a prominent business man of Reading, married Catherine Bright, a sister of Michael Bright. Mr. Heller was a saddler by trade and owned the properties where Krick's Cafe, the Sellers building and Mengel & Mengel are now located. He was a Whig in politics. He and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church and in 1794 he was a member of the building committee which built the Lutheran Church, corner of Sixth and Washington streets. Mr. Heller was made a Mason in Lodge No. 62, F. & A. M., of which he was treasurer in 1796, his grandson, F. P., being its treasurer a hundred years later (1896). He died in 1837, aged about seventy years, the father of sixteen children, ten of whom grew to maturity, among them being George.

George Heller, born in 1800, died in 1886. He was educated in the schools of Reading, and learned watchmaking and the trade of a silversmith, working at these occupations all his life. His first wife passed away in 1837, aged twenty-five years, leaving three children: F. P.; and Joseph and James, both deceased. Mr. Heller married (second) Caroline Kern, who bore him six children: Francis K., who died in the army; Charles H.; Philip K.; Mary C.; Emily C. and Rosa A. Politically Mr. Heller was a Whig, later becoming a Republican.

F. P. Heller was first educated in the subscription school conducted by Henry F. Felix and later attended the common schools. He learned the watchmaking business of his father, and this he carried on from 1857 to 1867, when he went into the lumber business at Second and Penn streets, carrying on this enterprise successfully for thirty years. At the end of this time he sold out to Mr. George F. Lance. Mr. Heller with others then organized the Central Lumber Company, which is doing a thriving business on Walnut street. Mr. Heller is a heavy stockholder in this company and has built many of the finest homes in the city. It may be said that nearly all of the residences on Walnut street between Thorn and Second streets, and also forty homes on West Buttonwood, six on Tulpehocken and twelve on Heller streets were built by him. Many of these he still owns. They are valuable, well kept up and contain all modern conveniences. They are sold at sums ranging from $1,250 to $3,000.

Mr. Heller has always been a very public-spirited man, and he has always been greatly interested in anything that has tended to advance Reading socially, materially or financially, devoting much time and energy to its causes. He joined the Junior Fire Company when sixteen years old, and still holds membership, being one of the oldest in the department. No member of any fire company is more universally respected than he. He is a man averse to any company that tolerates intoxicating drinks among its members. No man in the State would applaud quicker the deeds of our brave and gallant firemen than would Mr. Heller. He has always opposed club houses operated in connection with fire companies, taking a stand in which many of the best citizens of Reading have agreed with him.

Mr. Heller's many fine qualities, and his fitness for the position, caused him to be chosen president of the Board of Trade in 1905, in which position he served two years. He is a Mason, having been made such in Lodge No. 62 in 1885, and for the past twenty-three years has been its treasurer. He is a past master, past high priest and past eminent commander, belonging to Reading Chapter, Reading Commandery, Lodge of Perfection, and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. Mr. Heller served as a member of the common council from the Fifth ward and a member of the select council, and was president of that body in 1876. He has taken a great interest in educational matters and was a member of the school board from the old Northeast ward, and also from the Fifth. He has been a member of the board of water commissioners for the last sixteen years, and was recently elected for his fifth term of four years. He was a delegate to the county convention, and vice-president of that body, which indorsed the candidacy of Judge Endlich. He was one of the organizers of the present Board of Trade.

Mr. Heller married in 1859 Rose E. Snyder, daughter of Solomon L. Snyder, and two children were born to this union: Kate m. W. A. Huff, of Greensburg, Pa., and has these children, George F., William A., Jr., Rose, Edith and Catherine; Carrie S. m. William H. Kessler, of Reading, and has four children, Fred H., Rose C., Anna M. and Catherine. Mrs. Heller died in 1909.

Mr. Heller's Reading home is a handsome three-story double brick dwelling at Nos. 234-236 Penn street, upon which site, until he bought the property in 1870, stood a one-story stone house which had been built by his grandfather, Frederic Heller, who bought the property from John and William Penn and Julianna Catherine Penn and erected the one-story house for his father-in-law, Michael Bright. Mr. Heller has also a splendid country residence, in Muhlenberg township, adjoining the Bernhart reservoir and the new filtration plant.

Mr. F. P. Heller is a member of Trinity Lutheran Church. Besides being a prominent Mason, he is connected with the I. O. O. F. and the K. G. E. He was one of the organizers of the Washington Library, and was chosen its first president, a position he has held to the present time—a period of forty-eight years. He built and owns the "Brighter Hotel," one of the most up-to-date hotels in Pennsylvania, four stories high, 120x150 feet.

GEEHR. The Geehr family of Kutztown, Berks county, is one of the old and very prominent families of this section of Pennsylvania, the ancestry being easily traced as far back as Conrad Geehr, of Germantown, Pa., whose children were: Philip; Balzer; Hannah, born in 1743, m. DeWalt Bast; Margaret married Michael Croll; and Samuel.

Balzer Geehr was born at Germantown, Pa., Jan. 22, 1740, and when a young man removed to Amity township, Berks county. In 1767 he was living in Oley township, where he married Catherine, daughter of Anthony Hunter, and sister of Col. Daniel Hunter, of Revolutionary fame. In 1771 he purchased a large plantation of 500 acres in Bern township, several miles south of the Blue Mountains, and moved upon it in 1772. When the war of the Revolution began he was a man of large influence in the northern section of the county, and upon the selection of a standing committee in 1774, for a proper guidance of a popular sentiment in its behalf, he was naturally chosen to represent that section in this important committee. In the formation of the Associators of Pennsylvania, Balzer Geehr was one of the five delegates who attended the meeting at Philadelphia in August, 1775. These delegates were known as "The Colonels of the Associated Battalions." He also took an active part in the county militia. In 1775 and 1776 he was lieutenant-colonel of the fourth battalion, and in September, 1776, his battalion participated in the campaign about New York. He officiated continuously as a judge of the county courts from 1775 to 1784. and represented the county in the General Assembly for the years 1782 and 1786, and from 1792 to 1799. Balzer Geehr carried on farming extensively on the Bern plantation until 1796, when he removed to a farm of 231 acres, in Maxatawny township, several miles north of Kutztown, which he had purchased shortly before. He died June 19, 1801, and his remains were interred in a private burial ground on his last mentioned plantation. By his decease without a last will, and the decease of two sons, John and Jacob, also, and his two granddaughters, the children of Jacob dying intestate without issue, the Maxatawny farm became involved in a very tedious and costly ejectment litigation, covering a period of fifteen years. One of the cases involving the trial is reported in Outerbridge report (Pennsylvania State), Vol. 9, page 577, 1884, and another in Crumrine report (Pennsylvania State), Vol. 28, page 311, 1891. The trials excited general interest in the legal profession, and the cases reported are regarded as leading cases on the subject to title of land by descent.

Philip Geehr, son of Conrad, was born in Germantown, Pa., and died in 1817 in Kutztown. He attended the schools of Philadelphia, later taught school for two or three years in Maxatawny, and also served as justice of the peace in Kutztown. Philip Geehr married Catherine Levan, widow of Jacob Levan, who already had these children: John, Jacob, Daniel and Maria (m. a Deisher). To Philip and Catherine Geehr were born: Benjamin, Susannah (m. Jacob Kutz), Hannah (m. Joseph Hurst) and Kittie (m. John Gettich).

Benjamin Geehr was born in Maxatawny, Oct. 22, 1785, and died in 1847. He was active in public affairs and served as justice of the peace. He was organist of the old Union Church of Kutztown, which position was also filled by his sons Jacob and James, the family having musical gifts. He married, Nov. 25, 1813, Catherine von Schmull, born in North Whitehall township, Northampton Co., Pa., March 13, 1793, died April 19, 1865, daughter of George and Susanna (Le Van) von Schmull. She is represented as having been a woman of energy and ambition, and of infusing the same spirit into those with whom she came in contact. Her brothers and sisters were: Peter, born Oct. 11, 1794; Maria, Aug. 18, 1796 (Sept. 20, 1813); John, May 27, 1798 (m. Harriet Pauli, and died Aug. 20, 1841); Charles, Feb. 3, 1800; Susanna, May 21, 1802; Lydia, Dec. 3, 1803; Sarah, Sept. 19, 1805; Thomas, Aug. 20, 1806; George, Sept. 11, 1808; and Joanna, Dec. 5, 1810.

The father of this family, George von Schmull, or to give him his proper title, George, Count von Schmull, was born July 22, 1764, at the ancient country seat of the family, near Yodesburg, on the Rhine. To escape religious persecution in the Old World he came to America at the close of the Revolutionary war. His estate, bearing the title of Von Plosh, was confiscated by the Government, and the castle was converted into a convent. Von Schmull settled near Germantown, Pa., where he was married June 22, 1792, to Susanna Le Van, born March 12, 1770, died Aug. 18, 1826, daughter of Abraham and Catherine Le Van—a Huguenot family. He died Oct. 5, 1815, at Germantown, and was there buried.

The children of Benjamin and Catherine (von Schmull) Geehr were: Mary Ann, born Dec. 24, 1815, m. Jonathan Grim, and died Sept. 27, 1836; Samuel Philip, born Dec. 25, 1817, m. Letitia Kline; John Balzer, born in Kutztown, Jan. 18, 1820, m. Lizzie Ross; Jacob Conrad, born March 25, 1822; Charles Herman, born June 8, 1824, m. Martha Thompson; and James Monroe, born Oct. 22, 1826, m. Mary Le Van. All this family have passed away.

Jacob Conrad Geehr, late of Kutztown, was born there March 25, 1822, and died Sept. 4, 1896. He was a man of fine personal appearance, extraordinary memory and agreeable manner. During the progress of the Civil war he spent a time in the army. He was one of the principal figures of the famous Kitty Geehr law suit, which occupied the attention of the people some years ago. On July 8, 1849, he married Mary Elizabeth Hoch, daughter of David and Leah Hoch, who was noted for her warm-hearted hospitality. Mrs. Mary Elizabeth (Hoch) Geehr was born in Maxatawny township, Nov. 19, 1832, and died at Kutztown, March 2, 1905. She was of retiring manner in the presence of strangers, but with her own kindred she was particularly pleasant and cordial, and was admired for her wit and humor. During the whole of her long life she was an earnest Christian, and was ever ready to comfort the distressed, on many occasions offering a prayer or singing a hymn in a manner which invariably moved the hearts of the listeners. The children of this marriage were as follows: Titus E., Mary Martha, Thomas Benjamin, Florence Mabel and Katie L.

Titus E. Geehr was born July 20, 1850, at Kutztown, and died Dec. 24, 1901. At the age of fourteen he enlisted in the Civil war, surviving to return, and he had the unusual record of never having touched a cent of the money so hardly earned in his country's service, generously giving it all to his mother, to whom he was intensely devoted. During his whole life it has been said he never entertained a selfish thought, living only for others. It seemed as if all his ambition was that he might bring happiness into the lives of those that were near to him. He graduated from Eastman Business College, and subsequently went into the hide and leather trade, in which he continued until his fatal illness. Those who were his associates in business had this to say of him: "Whose many good qualities of mind and heart endeared him to all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. Possessing a happy and always cheerful disposition, his presence was welcome, and invariably left a pleasant remembrance. In business matters integrity was his motto, and no one enjoyed a greater degree of respect among his associates. His long illness was endured with that fortitude which comes to those whose abiding faith is placed in the promises of our Saviour."

Mary Martha Geehr was born at Kutztown, and like her brother is of a sunny disposition, unselfish, devoted, generous and self-sacrificing. She was married Dec. 1, 1896, to Stanly J. Kirby, of Maiden-creek.

Thomas Benjamin Geehr was born at Kutztown, Nov. 15, 1866, and died Sept. 6, 1870.

Florence Mabel Geehr was born at Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 20, 1875. She was baptized May 4, 1876, by Henry Ward Beecher. At the age of sixteen she graduated from the Keystone State Normal School, and taught school for two years. On Feb. 25, 1897, she married Edward Young Miller, of Bloomington, Ill. Mr. Miller is a man of unusual mental equipment, and has made a distinguished name for himself in military life. During the Cuban campaign, he served as captain of the 30th Inf., N. G., entering the regular army at the close of his former service. He was commissioned first lieutenant of the 29th Infantry, at Fort Sheridan, Ill. From this military post his regiment was ordered to the Philippines, and later he was appointed to his present position of governor of the province of Palawan. Mrs. Miller has accompanied her husband throughout the whole of his military career. They have one son, Gordon Geehr, born Sept. 29, 1898.

Katie L. Geehr was born at Kutztown, where she completed the public school course, later continuing her studies at Brooklyn, N. Y. Subsequently she took a special course in music and literature at the Keystone State Normal school. For several years she was an acceptable teacher. Miss Geehr is a very talented lady, an ardent student, and a gifted writer, and occupies a very high social position at Kutztown. She is a devoted Christian, conscientiously discharging her duties in all departments of church work.

REV. DANIEL R. KLEIN was born Aug. 20, 1837, in Bethel township, son of Daniel and Christina (Reber) Klein, and died Nov. 1, 1899. His boyhood was spent on the old Bethel homestead of the Kleins, and his education was secured in the public schools and the Trappe Seminary in Montgomery county. For eight years Mr. Klein taught school in his native township, during vacation periods following farming to which he later gave his entire attention, continuing in agricultural pursuits until his retirement, and becoming one of the most progressive and successful farmers of his section of the county. Early in life he became a communicant in the Church of the Brethren, the Little Swatara Church being his place of worship throughout his life, and at its close he was laid to rest at Ziegler's Meeting House in Tulpehocken township. He was chosen a leader in his church and ordained to the ministry, to which he gave his attention throughout the balance of his life. He was a liberal contributor to his church, and was loved and respected by all who knew him. He married (first) Miss Elizabeth Frantz, who died in 1870, the mother of these children: Frank F., of Reading, is mentioned below; Dr. W. F., of Lebanon, Pa., a physician and surgeon, m. Caroline Stoyer; Pamela R. m. Morris D. Yeagly, of Lebanon, Pa.; Emma m. Nathan G. Lentz, of Lebanon county; Mary F. m. Henry Lang, of Bethel township; and two died in infancy. The second marriage of the Rev. Mr. Klein was to Rebecca Long, who survives him and resides in Bethel township, and one child was born to this union: James Monroe.

FRANK F. KLEIN, son of the Rev. Daniel R. and Elizabeth (Frantz) Klein, was born Aug. 7, 1858, and was educated in the schools of Bethel and Huntingdon, and in the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown. He is now a commercial traveler with his residence in Reading. On Dec. 5, 1880, he married Catharine E. Hetrich, of Bernville, and they have children as follows: Minnie Irene, born Nov. 5, 1882, m. March 17, 1902, Solon K. Snyder; Howard F., born Oct. 2, 1885, is an operator; Emily K., born Sept. 22, 1890, is at home. The family all attend St. Mark's Reformed Church, Reading.

JAMES MONROE KLEIN, who is well known to the residents of Bethel township, Berks county, as an educator, was born April 10, 1873, in that township, only son of the second marriage of the Rev. Daniel R. Klein. He was reared on the farm and received his primary education in the public schools, Juniata College, Huntingdon Co., Pa., and Potts Shorthand College, Williamsport. After graduating from the latter he was employed in Williamsport for some time, and later in Philadelphia. He then entered Tamaqua Business College as instructor in shorthand and typewriting, after which he began teaching in the public schools. He graduated from the Keystone State Normal school at Kutztown with honor, in 1900, and since that time has engaged in teaching in Bethel township. He takes a great interest in educational work, and is one of the most popular and efficient teachers of Berks county.

On Dec. 22, 1900, Mr. Klein married Mrs. Martha Gettel, widow of Daniel R. Gettel, and daughter of John G. and Anna (Bashore) Frantz of Bethel township. They have one child, Paul F., born Feb. 12, 1904. Since 1895 Prof. Klein has been a member of the Church of the Brethren, in which he is very active, being one of the stanch supporters of the Sunday-school, of which he is assistant superintendent.

DIETRICH. The Dietrich family, well known and numerous not only in Berks county, but throughout this section of the State of Pennsylvania, was founded here some one hundred and fifty years ago. Kutztown at the present time numbers among her citizens several of the family, who are living good and useful lives to the honor of the name they bear, among these being Josiah S. and Lewis S. Dietrich, brothers, the first named being now retired from active work, but the latter still successfully engaged in the contracting business.

(I) Adam Dietrich was a native of the German Palatinate, born there Oct. 28, 1740. In 1767 he came to America and after some years passed in looking over the ground in eastern Pennsylvania he settled near Dunkel's church, in Greenwich township, where he became the owner of a large farm, to the cultivation and improvement of which he gave his energies. There he died March 1, 1817, at the age of seventy-six years, four months, three days, and was buried at Moselem Church. He and his wife were both Lutheran members of this church, and both sleep in the burying ground there. He was a man five feet eight inches tall, with full broad face and black hair. He had beautiful white teeth, which remained perfect as long as he lived. He married Maria Barbara Steinbruch, who was born March 13, 1741, and died June 6, 1821, aged eighty years, two months, twenty-three days. Eleven children were born to them: Johann Adam, Johann Georg, Johann Michael, Johann Jacob, Johann Heinrich, Johann, Polly (Maria Magdalena), Maria Barbara, Catharine, Johann Christian and Beckie (Anna Margaret).

(II) Johann Dietrich, son of the emigrant, was born on his father's farm in Greenwich township, Jan. 7, 1779. He engaged in farming in that same district, not far from Dietrich's mill, on a farm consisting of 100 acres. He died upon his place July 28, 1830, aged fifty-one years, six months, twenty-one days, and is buried at the Grimville church. In 1807, he married Elizabeth Ohl, who survived him many years, and they became the parents of thirteen children, the names of three of them not being known. The others were: John, Samuel, Anna Maria (born 1809), Jonas, Hanna (born 1812), Benjamin (born 1813), David, Eva, Daniel (1828-1834) and Joseph.

(III) John Dietrich, son of Johann, was born in Greenwich township, June 28, 1806, and he died March 5, 1885, aged seventy-eight years, eight months, seven days. His remains were buried in the cemetery at Moselem church, of which he was a Lutheran member. By occupation he was a weaver, and he lived two miles southwest of Kutztown, Pa. In 1830 he purchased his father's homestead for $1,750, but through litigation did not hold this, and it was sold at public sale that same year to Benjamin C. Dietrich, a cousin. This farm was located in Greenwich. After the death of his father Mr. Dietrich remained in Berks county, while the mother and several of the children went to Ohio, where the daughter Eva died of homesickness, and tradition says another daughter also died from the same cause, but several of the children returned to Pennsylvania, and settled near Carlisle, where their descendants are still living. John Dietrich married Catharine Schearer, born April 14, 1812, daughter of Michael Schearer; she died June 5, 1893, aged eighty-one years, one month, twenty-one days, and is buried at the Moselem church. They had a family of twelve children: Hettie Ann m. Solomon Klotz; Caroline m. Daniel Marx, and has children and grandchildren; Charles S. m. Susanna Haupt, and has two children, Lewellyn (who has a daughter Mabel) and Clara (who has a daughter Perma); John S. m. Mary Schucker, and had children, Wilson, Levi, Henry, Samuel, Alvin, John, David, Sylvanus and Sally Ann (and some grandchildren and great-grandchildren); Josiah S.; Isaac S. m. Jane Werley, and has a daughter, Laura, and four grandchildren living and one dead; Lucinda died aged three years; Catharine, born 1842, died in 1869; Peter S., unmarried, resides with his brother David S.; David S. m. Catharine Ziegler, and had ten children, among them a son, John (also several grandchildren); Daniel S., born in 1845, m. Amanda Arndt, and has had two children, Minnie (born in 1901) and one deceased; and Lewis S.

(IV) JOSIAH S. DIETRICH, son of John, was born in Greenwich township Sept. 7, 1837, and is now living retired at Kutztown. He was reared to manhood on his father's farm, and the greater part of his life was passed in Greenwich and Maxatawny townships. He is now residing on Greenwich street, in Kutztown, where he owns a comfortable home, which he purchased when he came to this borough to make his home. Mr. Dietrich is a large man, his very appearance indicating the strength he enjoys, and he is able still to do a full day's work that would tire most men much younger than he. He is honest and upright in his dealings, and has won the merited respect of all who know him. In his political principles he is a Democrat, and has taken a keen interest in the success of his party. On different occasions he was nominated and elected to township offices, but always refused to serve. He was confirmed in the Lutheran faith by the late Rev. Mr. Roeller, then pastor of the Moselem church, and at the present time is a member of St. John's Church.

On Nov. 18, 1873, Mr. Dietrich married Mrs. Mary Ann (Brenzinger) Fahringer, widow of Benjamin Fahringer, and daughter of Manuel and Elizabeth (Bower) Brenzinger. Two children blessed this union: Elizabeth m. Charles K. Deisher, of Kutztown; and William B., a stone cutter of Reading, m. Lillie Reber, of Frackville, Pa., and has a daughter Carrie E. Mrs. Josiah S. Dietrich died of heart disease on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 28, 1907. She was born March 15, 1844, and her death occurred when she was sixty-three years, six months and thirteen days old. She was a genial and industrious woman who had many friends.

(IV) Lewis S. Dietrich, son of John, was born in Maxatawny township, Aug. 17, 1847. He was early trained to farm work on his father's farm, but as a young man learned the brick layer's trade, which he followed in his native locality, and also at Reading, Norristown, Philadelphia, Bloomsburg, Hazleton and other places. For a period of fifteen years he lived at Brooklyn, a suburb of Kutztown, where he built his own home. He then moved to a farm in Greenwich township, the farm having come into his possession through his wife, and this he cultivated for seven years, but now has it rented. In the spring of 1904 he came to Kutztown, and has since been very successful as a contractor. Mr. Dietrich is a good mechanic, and besides the trade learned in his younger days is a carpenter, and thoroughly understands what good and perfect workmanship means, and this he tries to give. He is well known for his honesty and industry, and is highly esteemed throughout the county.

In the year 1870 Mr. Dietrich married Charlotte R. Zimmer, daughter of Daniel and Caroline (Wright—also spelled Reit) Zimmer, farming people of Greenwich township. Two sons have been born of this union, namely: Oscar V., of Alburtis, Pa., born Oct. 9, 1870, m. Catharine Bobb, and had a daughter, Flossie, who died in childhood; and Jonathan A., born Dec. 21, 1871, a brick layer at Fort Smith, Ark., married Clara Heffner, and has four children—Mabel, Margaret, Alice and Alberta.

JACOB W. ALBRIGHT, of Shartlesville, Berks county, is one of the most prominent citizens of the Tulpehocken District, where he has maintained the high reputation enjoyed by his family during the several generations the Albrights have been settled here. The name has many creditable associations with the history of the Dutch in Pennsylvania.

(I) Christian Albright, the ancestor who emigrated from Germany and settled in what is now the upper part of Berks county, Pa., married Elizabeth Rick, and they had children: Peter R. (who died in Schuylkill county), Solomon R., John Christian, Henry R., Jacob R., Daniel R., John R., John George, and Justus Yost R.

(II) John Christian Albright, son of Christian, was born Feb. 26, 1748, and died Feb. 28, 1820. He was twice married, first to Maria Elizabeth Althouse, born May 27, 1776, died in May, 1799, and second to Maria Kauffman. His children, all by the first marriage, were: Maria Catharine, Anna Maria, Annie Magdalena, George, John Jacob, John, Solomon, Gabriel and Elizabeth. Of these, Maria Catharine m. George Wagner, and had children: Daniel, Benjamin, Kate, Elias, George, Elizabeth, Samuel, Solomon, William and Lucy. Anna Maria m. Jacob Shartle, and had children: George, William, Sallie, Eliza, Maria and Julian. Annie Magdalena m. George Kauffman, and had two children, Hettie and Samuel. John Albright m. Elizabeth Ruby and they had two children, Samuel and Leah. Solomon Albright m. (first) Maria Miller and (second) Elizabeth Shoemaker, and his children were: John, Henry, Gen. Charles, Mary, Eliza, Kate and Harriet. Elizabeth m. Joseph Kauffman, and had three children, William, Harrison and Kate (Mrs. John Grime).

(III) John Jacob Albright, son of John Christian, was a farmer in Upper Bern township and one of the prominent men of that section in his day. He m. Maria Shartle, and to this union were born seven children: Sarah m. William Shearer, and had two children, William A. and Frederick A. William m. Hettie Fenstermacher, and they had five children, Willoughby, Mary, Emma, Lafayette and Henry. John m. Sarah Huey, and had three children, Jacob, John and Sophia. Jacob S. is mentioned below. Daniel was the next in the family. Moses and Elizabeth were twins.

(IV) Jacob S. Albright, son of John Jacob, born Jan. 7, 1816, died April 4, 1905, aged eighty-nine years, two months, twenty-seven days. He was an intelligent, progressive man, and in his death the community lost a valuable citizen. He was a wheelwright by trade, which vocation he followed and also conducted his farm, during his active years, but he lived retired for many years before his death. In religious belief he clung to the tenets of the Reformed Church, and was a Reformed member of the Frieden's Church at Shartlesville, in whose work he took an active part, at the time of the erection of the present edifice serving on the building committee and himself giving liberally of his means as well as his time. For many years he was trustee of that church. He and his wife are both buried in the cemetery of the church. Mr. Albright married Matilda Wagner, born Sept. 1, 1834, died March 24, 1892. They had the following children: Howard and Sallie Ann, who both died young; Jacob W.; and twins who were still-born.

(V) Jacob W. Albright was born Nov. 6, 1865, at the home in Upper Bern township where he still resides. He began his education in the public schools of his native township, and later attended the Palatinate College at Myerstown, Pa. His schooling over, he returned home to assist his father with the farm work and remained with him until his death, since which time he has been the owner of the homestead. It is a fine tract of 115 acres, located at Shartlesville, and has become valuable through years of methodical cultivation. Mr. Albright has other interests outside of farming, his principal business connection being with the Windsor Mutual Assistance and Fire Insurance Company, of Berks county, of which he is the treasurer. He has also taken part in the local civil government, having served as township auditor, and, since 1897, as justice of the peace of Upper Bern township; he was elected to that office May 3d of that year, as the candidate of the Democratic party, which he stanchly supports by his vote and influence. His high personal standing has made his work in this office particularly effective. As a man of high standards, with an irreproachable name in business and social relations, he exercises an influence for good which is appreciated and felt by his fellow-citizens of all classes, and he is accordingly respected wherever he goes. Mr. Albright is a member of the Frieden's Church (Reformed), in which he holds the office of trustee, having succeeded his father in that position upon the latter's death.

In fraternal life Mr. Albright is well known all over his section of Berks county. He is a member of Camp No. 133, P. O. S. of A., serving that body as recording secretary for many years, and is also past officer and ex-district president of same; he is a member of Camp No.

97, P. O. S. of A.; of Lexington Commandery, Sons of America, No. 2, of Reading, Pa.; of Lodge No. 77, I. O. O. F., of Strausstown, Pa.; and of Shartlesville Tent, No. 351, K. O. T. M.

Mr. Albright married Miss Anna Kate Berger, daughter of John Adam Berger, and they have had four children, born as follows: Clara, March 24, 1893 (died June 25, 1894); John Jacob, March 26, 1896; Howard, Jan. 6, 1902; Paul, March 1, 1906.

MILTON R. STRUNK, general factory superintendent of the large Boyertown Casket Company, Boyertown, Pa., was born in Milford township, Upper Bucks county, Pa., March 2, 1859, son of Daniel Strunk, and grandson of Christian.

Peter Strunk, the great-grandfather of Milton R., married Susanna ————, and they had two children: Christian, who is mentioned below; and Heinrich, born Nov. 8, 1803, died Jan. 14, 1866, married Rebecca Boyer (1808-1900). They were Mennonites and are buried in the Hereford Mennonite Meeting House cemetery.

Christian Strunk was born in Berks county May 16, 1802, and at his death April 19, 1838, was buried at the Mennonite Meeting House at Bally. He followed farming, and had a good farm in Washington township, Berks county. He was accidentally killed at Allentown by the running away of his team. In religious faith he was a Mennonite. He married Barbara Latschar, who was born Feb. 20, 1798, and who died Oct. 9, 1891, in her ninety-fourth year, and was buried at Bally Meeting House. Their children were: John, 1825-1838; Hannah, born Nov. 22, 1827; Susanna and Peter, twins, born Oct. 21, 1829; Maria, 1831-1834; and Daniel, born Jan. 17, 1834. Christian Strunk had a sister who married Henry Schultz, of Kraussdale, Montgomery county, Pennsylvania.

Daniel Strunk, son of Christian, was born in Washington township, Berks county, Jan. 17, 1834, and his death occurred Aug. 2, 1905. He is buried at Aulenbach's cemetery at Reading. By occupation he was a shoemaker, and for a number of years carried on that trade in South Bethlehem, Pa., later moving to Reading, where he died. He married Anna Reader (also spelled Roeder), born April 5, 1833, daughter of John Reader, of Bucks county. He died at East Greenville, and is buried at New Goshenhoppen Church. To Daniel Strunk and wife were born the following children: Edwin, of Reading; Adeanianna, who married Richard Webb, of Bethlehem, Pa.; Milton R.; Cornelius, of Boyertown; Emma Jane, who died in infancy; and Laura, who died aged six years.

Milton R. Strunk, son of Daniel, attended the common schools of his district, and at the age of eighteen began learning the carriage builder's trade at Spinnerstown, Bucks county. This engaged his attention for sixteen years. In the fall of 1893 he became general superintendent of the Boyertown Casket Company, a position in which he is still employed. In 1892-1893 he came to Boyertown, and in 1905 he built a modern home on North Reading avenue.

Mr. Strunk is a broad-minded business man, and is a man of large business capacity. When he took charge of the casket factory there were employed only about forty men, and now the number is over three hundred. It is the leading industry in lower Berks county.

On Jan. 31, 1880, Mr. Strunk married Catharine C. Breisch, daughter of William and Barbara (Clymer) Breisch, of Milford township, Bucks county. They have no children of their own, but have an adopted daughter, Sadie. Mr. and Mrs. Strunk are members of the Reformed Church of the Good Shepherd, and he has served it in official capacity. They are highly esteemed in the community.

LUKE M. DEEDS, late superintendent of the Deeds Floral Company, of Shillington, Berks county, Pa., who was known as the leading florist of this section, and throughout eastern Pennsylvania as a trainer of horses, was born July 21, 1874, in Shillington, son of Owen and Mary (Miller) Deeds.

Thomas Deeds, the progenitor of the family in America, was a native of England, and came to this country long before the Revolutionary war, settling in Chester county, Pa. Among his sons was Henry, the great-grandfather of Luke M. He came to Cumru township about 1794, and at the time of his death owned a farm there.

Henry Deeds was born Oct. 10, 1771, and died Dec. 31, 1845, after a long life spent in agricultural pursuits. He married Mary Warner, born June 19, 1775, daughter of Joseph and Susan Warner, and she died Nov. 16, 1856. To them were born children as follows: Mary, born in 1800, died unmarried in 1823; Susan m. Isaac Young; Leah m. John Lloyd; Harriet m. Benjamin Mohn; Nellie m. William Hornberger; and Henry W. The Warner family, with which the Deeds is intermarried, came from the same section of England, and settled in Cumru township.

Henry W. Deeds, grandfather of Luke M., was born on the Deeds homestead Sept. 8, 1811, and died Nov. 30, 1888. He was a manufacturer of gun barrels all his life, having learned that trade from his father-in-law, William Pennypacker. He owned the old Fisher mill property in Bern township, Berks county. He married Elizabeth, daughter of William and Elizabeth (Schnader) Pennypacker and to them were born children as follows: Angelina m. Richard Schnader; Elizabeth m. John F. Leib; Owen; Henry m. Kate Krick; and Mary m. Adam Rollman.

Owen Deeds was born Jan. 19, 1841, in Cumru township, where he now lives, engaged as a veterinary surgeon, and well known horseman. He was married March 21, 1872, to Mary, daughter of Jonathan and Catharine (Hornberger) Miller, of Cumru township, and one child was born to them, Luke M.

Luke M. Deeds attended the schools of Shillington, Steward Academy and Stoner's Business College of Reading, and then took a special course in shorthand and typewriting, becoming one of the ablest stenographers in the county. He was employed for about a year at the "Mansion House," Reading, as a stenographer, and then engaged in the show business. Later he drove race horses. In 1903 he embarked in the florist's business, and at his death had seven greenhouses, 70 x 23 feet, on Miller street. On Sept. 15, 1907, the Deeds Floral Company was incorporated; E. M. Deeds is president; A. J. Fink, Jr., treasurer; and A. B. Stein, secretary. They do both wholesale and retail business, and have a fine equipment.

In August, 1895, Mr. Deeds married Ella M. Hain, and two children were born to them, Mabel Catharine and Alice E. Mr. Deeds' death, which occurred Dec. 1, 1907, was accidental and most untimely. He was overcome by coal gas in his greenhouses where he had gone at night to look after the heating before retiring. He is buried in the Mohnton cemetery, and is mourned by many friends. He is survived by his wife and daughters.

Mr. Deeds was a member of the United Evangelical denomination. Fraternally he was a member of Oley Lodge No. 218, I. O. O. F.; Mohnton Lodge, Knights of Pythias; Reading Tent, Knights of the Maccabees; Knights of the Golden Eagle; and the P. O. S. of A. In politics he was a Republican, and served as township committeeman.

AMOS HORST, accountant in the service of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, at Reading, has lived in that city since 1889. He is of an old Lancaster county family, and was born at Vogansville, that county, July 1, 1863, son of Amos and Amelia (Wingenroth) Horst and grandson of John Horst. John Horst, the grandfather, was a farmer near Blue Ball, Lancaster county, where he lived and died.

Amos Horst, son of John, was born in Lancaster county, and died on his farm there, in Ephrata township, aged forty-seven years. He was a member of the Mennonite Church. He was a well-known school teacher, first teaching the pay schools and later public school, and he was also engaged for a time at the Millersville State Normal School. He retired a few years before his death. He married Amelia Wingenroth, and their children were: Frank, of Philadelphia; Amos, of Reading; and Edwin H., who is in the West.

Amos Horst, son of Amos, received his education in the schools of his home locality, and taught school for three years in his native county. He then clerked for a few years before coming to Reading, in 1889. In this city he was first employed as a clerk in a clothing store on Penn street, and on Sept. 10, 1890, he entered the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, as a clerk. He now has charge of the accounts in the office of the Superintendent of the Reading Division.

Mr. Horst married Miss Sarah A. Sweigart, daughter of Jared and Susanna (Miller) Sweigart, of Lancaster county, and they have had two children, R. Walter and Grace I. The family reside at No. 524 North Eighth street, Reading. They are Lutherans in religious connection. Mr. Horst is a high Mason, having originally joined the fraternity in Blue Lodge No. 62, F. & A. M. Later he became a charter member of Isaac Hiester Lodge, No. 660, upon its organization, in October, 1908, and served as its first senior warden. He is a member of Reading Lodge of Perfection, fourteenth degree, and of Philadelphia Consistory, thirty-second degree.

NATHAN E. LEVAN, a representative citizen of Exeter township, Berks county, and the owner of an excellent 215-acre farm, was born July 5, 1854, in Exeter township, son of Joseph and Caroline (Bechtel) Levan.

Abraham Levan, grandfather of Nathan E., was the son of Jacob, who was the son of Isaac, who came from France, being a French Huguenot, and who is supposed to have settled in Berks county and spent the remainder of his life there. Abraham Levan was reared on the old home farm in Exeter township, where he lived to the age of seventy-eight years, his whole life being spent in agricultural pursuits. He owned four farms, aggregating 1,200 acres, his home farm being at Jacksonwald. He was one of the most influential men of his day in Berks county, and was a pillar of the Reformed Church, his father having been a member of the building committee of the Schwartzwald Church. Abraham Levan married Maria Bechtel, and they had seven children: Jacob, Susan, Elizabeth, Joseph, Abraham, and two who died in childhood.

Joseph Levan, father of Nathan E., was born June 9, 1803, and died Dec. 10, 1872. He was a farmer all of his life and was the owner of five different tracts, consisting in all of 1,500 acres of land. Like his father he was very prominent in his day, and was an active Democrat, serving as delegate to county conventions, and as a member of the school board. He was a member of the building committee of the new Schwartzwald Church, in 1870. Mr. Levan married Caroline Bechtel, born in 1817, who died in February, 1907, daughter of John T. Bechtel, of Caernarvon township, Berks county. Mr. and Mrs. Levan had these children: Mary and Joseph are deceased; Abraham; Jacob N. died in October, 1906; Cyrus is deceased; Nathan E.; and David died July 10, 1904.

Nathan E. Levan was reared on the home farm, and received his education in the public schools of his native district, also spending one term at Prof. D. B. Brunner's school in Reading. As a youth he took up farming as his life work, and this he has followed throughout his career. He is now the owner of a fine 215-acre farm, which is in a high state of cultivation, and here he resides in comfort. Mr. Levan is a man of more than the ordinary intelligence, is a great reader, and possesses a well-chosen library. In political matters he is a Democrat, and his fellow townsmen have elected him to positions of trust and responsibility, including the offices of auditor, inspector and judge of election. He is a member of the Reformed Church, while Mrs. Levan is a Lutheran.

On June 18, 1881, Mr. Levan was married to Miss Mary Amanda Kerper, daughter of John and Joanna (Moore) Kerper, of Exeter township, the former of whom died Nov. 25, 1889, at the age of eighty years, and the latter in August, 1887. Daniel Kerper, grandfather of John, was the first sheriff of Berks county. John Kerper was a wheelwright by trade, but early in life he gave up that occupation and engaged in farming in Exeter township, on the old Kerper homestead, the place of his birth, as well as that of his daughter, Mrs. Levan. He was an expert post fence maker, and many of the farms of Berks county bear evidence of his skill in this line. He and his family were members of the Lutheran Church. His children were: Joseph is a farmer of Berks county; Henry is deceased; William is a farmer; Sallie m. Abraham Trout; Irwin is deceased; Mary Amanda m. Mr. Levan; Jonas is deceased; Elizabeth m. Jacob Levan, deceased; Euphemia, Howard, Nathan and Matilda are deceased.

Nathan E. Levan and his wife are the parents of ten children: Mary m. George E. Wise, a member of the firm of Case & Wise, cathedral glaziers and art glass makers; Joseph D., a brakeman on the Philadelphia & Reading R. R., served four years in the U. S. Navy; Annie m. George Goodhart, who is employed in the car shops of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company; John is a weaver in Brumbach's woolen mill; Abraham is a machinist; Aaron is also employed in the woolen mill; and Margaret A., Arthur, Grace E. and Ruth.

JOSEPH WESLEY ESSICK, prominently engaged in the insurance business at Reading since 1894, was born at Royersford, Pa., in 1877, and there educated in the public schools until he was seventeen years old, when he located at Reading and engaged in the insurance business as the agent of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston, and he has continued to be its agent until the present time. His agency embraces nine counties —Berks, Lebanon, Schuylkill, Lehigh, Northampton, Bucks, Montgomery, Chester and Lancaster—and through his well-directed efforts he has developed his agency into the third largest in the State, the other two ahead of it being Philadelphia and Pittsburg; and in the volume of personal business he has made it the second largest, the first being at Pittsburg. During this time he has also represented the casualty lines of the Aetna Life Insurance Company, of Hartford, Conn., for which Company he has also been very successful.

In 1901, Mr. Essick married Bessie H. Barr, daughter of William U. Barr, of Reading, chief clerk to the General Superintendent of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, and they have one child, Elizabeth McFarland. Their home is in the suburban town of Springmont, four miles west of Reading.

Mr. Essick's father is William Somerfield Essick, born in 1852, at Coventryville, in Chester county, and there educated and brought up on his father's farm where he remained until 1881, when he became the secretary of the Buckwalter Stove Company at Royersford, and he held this position for thirteen years. He then moved to Reading and filled the position of general manager of the Reading Stove Works for five years, when he became associated with his son Joseph W. in the insurance business, and has continued with his son until the present time, being in charge of the Harrisburg branch office, which he established at that place. He married Charlotte March, of Phoenixville (daughter of Hiram March and his wife, Esther Greenwood), and they have two children: Evelyn and Joseph Wesley.

Mr. Essick's grandfather was John Essick, Jr., of Philadelphia, a lineal descendant of Rudolph Essick who emigrated from Wittenberg, Germany, in 1760. His grandfather on his mother's side, Hiram March, was a son of Jacob March, of Chester county, who was married to Ellen Oberholtzer of same county. His wife's grandfather was Elias Barr, of Lancaster City. He married Anna Eby, daughter of Christian Eby, a descendant of Peter Eby who emigrated to Pennsylvania in 1720 and settled in that section of the province which became Lancaster county.

CHRISTIAN WILLIAM GEISSLER, a highly esteemed retired citizen of Mt. Penn, Berks Co., Pa., is a native of Germany, born June 6, 1844, in Wurtemberg, son of John George and Rosina (Eben) Geissler, natives of that country.

John G. Geissler was a tin and copper smith and conducted an extensive business in his native country and after coming to this country in 1845 located in that business in Reading. His first location was at the present site of the Reading National Bank, and he became one of the city's substantial and highly respected citizens. He was a member of the German Lutheran Church, in the faith of which he died in 1880 at the age of seventy-eight years. Mr. Geissler was twice married, his first wife being a Miss Wetzel, who bore him nine children, of whom the following came to America: George, late of Womelsdorf, was engaged in the tin and stove business; John M. is a resident of Minnesota and an ex-member of the Legislature; Fredrica, widow of Christian Mack, of Reading, died in February, 1909, aged eighty years and Christianna is the widow of Martin Streng, of Reading. Mr. Geissler was married (second) to Rosina Eben, by whom he had these children: Henry C., who married Emma Knabb, is a stove dealer; Christian W.; Franklin P. for the past ten years has been steward of the Almshouse, and is now a resident of Reading. The second Mrs. Geissler died in 1876, at the age of sixty-six years.

Christian W. Geissler came with his parents to America and received his education in the public schools of Reading. On Aug. 9, 1862, he enlisted in Company H, 128th Pa. V. I., and was honorably discharged and mustered out of service, in May, 1863, having seen much active service, participating in the battles of South Mountain and Antietam, at the latter place being wounded in the left shin by a piece of shell, a wound that has troubled him to this day. After recovering sufficiently to resume business, he associated himself with his father and brothers in the tinning and stove business, and in 1881 the firm of Geissler & Otto was formed. This partnership was continued sixteen years with much success, at the end of which time Mr. Geissler withdrew and purchased a country seat near the Springs in Lower Alsace township, which property he sold in 1906 to purchase his present residence. Since that time he has lived a retired life in Mt. Penn. For some years he has taken an active part in public matters, being interested in the success of the Democratic party. In 1875-76 he served as a member of the common council of Reading, and from 1879 to 1880 was president of that body, which was one of the strongest bodies ever formed in Reading. During this time he signed the ordinance proposing the construction of Antietam Lake, the filter beds which filter this water being quite near to his present home in Mt. Penn. In 1878 he was the Democratic party's nominee for the Legislature, and was defeated by but twenty-eight votes, and from 1883 to 1887 he served as a member of the school board. He has been active in secret organizations, belonging to Teutonia Lodge No. 367, Excelsior Chapter No. 237, Reading Commandery No. 42, K. T., and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. He also belongs to Keim Post, G. A. R., and to many other fraternal bodies.

Mr. Geissler married Miss Alice C. Fritch, daughter of Henry and Rachel (Haas) Fritch. She was a native of Longswamp township, but was reared in Reading. Both Mr. and Mrs. Geissler were confirmed in the Lutheran Church.

J. ALLEN RIEGEL, a well-known citizen of Reading, who holds the responsible position of chief clerk in the Reading post-office, was born in 1846, in Bernville, Berks county, son of William B. and Mary (Lengel) Riegel, and grandson of Jacob and Christiana (Bohn) Riegel. Grandfather Jacob Riegel was a soldier of the war of 1812-14.

William B. Riegel was born on his father's farm near West Leesport, Pa. He learned the watchmaker's trade with a Mr. Gift, of Hamburg, and later went to Philadelphia and worked under instruction. Returning to Leesport, he there continued until 1845, in which year he went to Bernville, where he engaged in the watchmaking and jewelry business until 1860. During the war he was engaged at the P. & R. shops, Reading, as a machinist, and although he had never learned the trade was considered a first-class mechanic. After the war he resumed the trade of watchmaker, in Reading, and this he continued until his death, Aug. 22, 1897, at the age of seventy-five years. He was one of the best clock and watchmakers in the city, being especially expert at repairing "grandfather" clocks, which he repaired for nearly all the prominent families and banks in the city. He was the only clockmaker in the city who practically made a new clock out of an old one, manufacturing any part needed. He was a genius. He could make almost anything out of iron, brass or wood; he made fishing reels, fishing rods and fishing nets of all kinds and sizes, and manufactured nearly all the tools he used in making clocks and watches. He was a fisherman and a hunter, a good marksman, having shot many deer, bears, wild turkeys and other game. He and his wife had one child, J. Allen.

J. Allen Reigel was educated in the schools of Bernville and also the old Reading Academy, after leaving which he served his time to the watchmaking trade until the war broke out. He enlisted in Company E, 46th Regt., Pennsylvania Volunteers, and served his term of enlistment, being honorably discharged. On his return to Reading he clerked in Col. John Fritz's mercantile establishment, and when in 1869 Col. Fritz was appointed postmaster, he took young Riegel with him, recognizing the young man's ability. Forty consecutive years of public service have made Mr. Riegel one of the best known men of Reading. Capably filling every position given him, he has been steadily promoted, and since 1875 has been chief clerk.

In 1866 Mr. Riegel married Anna Fulmer, a native of Van Reed, Berks county, and a foster daughter of Henry Z. and Mary A. Van Reed, of the well known Van Reed Paper-mill near Reading. Mr. and Mrs. Riegel have the following children: Harry A., purchasing agent for the Textile Machine Works; William B., a druggist of Philadelphia, who has been a machinist and professional bicycle rider; Charles H., also a druggist of Philadelphia; Allen F., a jeweler and watchmaker of Reading; Mary E., a teacher in the public schools and a graduate of the Girls' High School, living at home and engaged in teaching; and Rosa E., a foster daughter, who is a dressmaker. In religious belief the family are members of the Reformed Church. Mr. Riegel is a member of Emblematic Lodge, I. O. O. F., and McLean Post, G. A. R., in which he has held positions.

SHOUP. Among the leading citizens and substantial agriculturists of Berks county, Pa., may be mentioned the brothers, Henry and James G. Shoup, who are prominent residents of Spring township, and worthy representatives of this old and honored German family. The name has been variously spelled—Schorb, Shorp, Shaub, Shoub, Shaup, Sharp and Schaub.

Adam Shaup, the pioneer of the family, in 1774, had settled in Brecknock township, Lancaster Co., Pa., in the territory now embraced in Cumru township, Berks county. In the tax lists preserved in the Historical Society of Berks county from 1774 to 1778 inclusive he is rated a landlord. His name does not appear after 1778 and it is very probable about this time he died. Tradition says he was buried on the bank of the Wyomissing Creek about one half mile northwest of the road leading from Sinking Spring to Wyomissing. The plow share now turns the sod of the old burial-place there.

Johannes Schaub, the great-grandfather of Henry and James G. Shoup, was born in Cumru township, Sept. 24, 1758, and died upon his farm in the same district Aug. 13, 1838, aged seventy-nine years, ten months, 19 days. He was a farmer, and in 1800 paid $3.78 tax; in 1805, paid $5.70 tax; in 1810, $3.90 tax; in 1818, $10.60 tax; in 1830, $11.02 tax. On the tax lists the name is spelled Shoup and Shoub, but his tombstone spells it Schaub. He is buried on the graveyard at Sinking Spring at the side of his wife, Elizabeth Pannebecker. They had a son Johannes, born March 20, 1780.

Johannes Schaub, son of Johannes and Elizabeth, and grandfather of Henry and James G. Shoup, was born March 20, 1780, in Cumru township. He owned the old family homestead in Spring township, and was a lifelong farmer and highly esteemed citizen. He died Dec. 15, 1869, on the homestead, and was buried at Sinking Spring Church, of which he was a leading member. On June 2, 1808, Mr. Schaub married Catherine Huyett, who was born Feb. 13, 1785, and died Sept. 20, 1859. To this union were born: Daniel, July 9, 1809; John, Aug. 21, 1811 (lived in Spring township); Samuel, Feb. 16, 1813 (lived at Sheridan, Pa.); Catherine, April 10, 1815, (m. Solomon Gaul); Abraham, Jan. 8, 1819; Peter, Oct. 16, 1822 (died young); Richard, April 4, 1824 (owned part of the homestead in Spring); and Elizabeth, Sept. 11, 1827 (died in infancy).

Abraham Shoup, father of Henry and James G., was born Jan. 8, 1819, and died Jan. 18, 1899. He spent his entire life on the old farm, and was a useful, industrious citizen. In 1880 he built the large Swiss barn now standing on the property, and made many other improvements. Mr. Shoup was a member of St. John's Reformed Church at Sinking Spring, of which he was a deacon and elder, and where he is buried. He married Jan. 18, 1858, Angeline Gicker (who still lives on the homestead), daughter of Jacob and Sarah (Huyett) Gicker, and granddaughter of Daniel Gicker, and to this union there were born three children: Henry; Mary Ann and James G. Mary Ann, twin of James G., married John Warren of Mohnton, Pa., and resides on the homestead with her mother.

Henry Shoup was reared upon the old homestead, on which he worked for his parents until 1887, and in this year started operating it on shares. After his father's death, Mr. Shoup acquired the property at appraisement, and here he has continued to the present time, with much success. The land is fertile, is well located, level and produces good crops, under Mr. Shoup's able management, and is furnished with excellent buildings and up-to-date machinery, including gasoline engine and chop mill. In politics Mr. Shoup is a Democrat, and he and his family are members of St. John's Reformed Church of Sinking Spring, of which he has been deacon and elder, and is now one of the trustees, and toward the erection of which he contributed liberally.

On October 30, 1886, Mr. Shoup married Mary Weitzel, daughter of Harrison and Sarah (Reber) Weitzel, and granddaughter of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Bichert) Weitzel, the latter of whom still survives, being more than ninety-four years old. Two children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Shoup: Evan Lloyd, born Sept. 12, 1887, and Elenora, born Aug. 5, 1890.

James G. Shoup was born on the old homestead, June 22, 1862, and there worked for his parents until twenty-one years old, when he started farming on a property adjacent (which also belonged to his father and now owned by his sister, Mary A. Warren), continuing there four years. In 1887 he removed to Reading, and for seven months conducted the livery and boarding stable of the United States Hotel. At this time Mr. Shoup purchased the store stand at No. 900 North Tenth street, corner of Windsor, and there conducted a grocery for one and one-half years, but in 1890 removed to Albany, Whiteside Co., Ill., where he remained for some time. Subsequently he removed to Columbus Junction, Louisa Co.,Ia., where he operated a live stock farm for about thirteen years, and in 1902 sold this property, which was a tract of 310 acres, at a handsome figure, and in the following March returned to Berks county. In October, 1903, he settled on Laird street, Springmont, in a nice comfortable home, where he has since lived a quiet, retired life.

On Dec. 4, 1884, Mr. Shoup married Caroline Ruth, daughter of Francis Ruth, a full history of whose family will be found elsewhere, and to this union there was born one child, a son, Allen I., whose death occurred in infancy. Mr. Shoup is a member of St. John's Reformed Church at Sinking Spring.

GEORGE PLANER, a citizen of Mount Penn borough, Berks Co., Pa., residing in his home on Perkiomen avenue, was born March 24, 1837, in Hollenbach, Oberamt-Künzelsau, Kingdom of Wurtemberg, Germany, son of Frederick Planer.

Frederick Planer was a farmer in Germany, owning a tract of eighty acres, a tavern in the town of Hollenbach, and a small brewery, in which he manufactured the beer used in his tavern. He was born about 1794, and died in 1860. At the time of the latter event his son George was sought, and advertisements placed in the newspapers of this country to locate him, but he was not found until it was too late for him, as oldest son, to claim his father's property. Frederick Planer's first wife died when George Planer was eight years old. She was the mother of George; Barbara, who remained single; and Sophia, who died aged four years. Mr. Planer's second wife's name was Barbara, and they had six children, of whom Karl and Sophia are the only surviving members.

George Planer was educated in the German schools of his native country, and after leaving school at the age of fourteen years, he worked for his father for four years, driving a four-horse team, hauling freight. He started for America Feb. 22, 1856, and after a seventy-two-days voyage—sixty days of which were very stormy, during which time thirteen sailors were swept overboard and one of them drowned—he finally landed at Castle Garden, N. Y. He immediately started for Kittanning, Armstrong Co., Pa., where he learned the cabinet making trade from Godlieb Hartig, serving the regular apprenticeship of three full years. For the next three years he traveled from Pittsburg to New Orleans, along the Ohio and Mississippi and up the Wabash river for 100 miles, following cabinet making and carpentering, repairing steamships and building houses. When the war broke out Mr. Planer was in the neutral State of Kentucky, which finally became unpleasant for those following the pursuits of peace and he removed to Philadelphia, where he enlisted in the Union army, although he had been offered $500 in gold to become a Confederate soldier. He enlisted as a private in Company F, 5th Pa. Cav., Aug. 4, 1861, for three years or during the war, and served his full term of service, a part of which time he was detailed by Hon. Edward M. Stanton, Secretary of War, for special duty in erecting of telegraph lines. In this work he rendered faithful and valuable service to his adopted country.

After the war Mr. Planer followed carpentering for several months in Philadelphia, and in 1866 located in Reading, where he worked at his trade for ten years, building houses for himself and working for others, but in the fall of 1876, the day after the Presidential election, he located upon a fifty-two acre farm in Exeter township, below Neversink Station, a property he had purchased some time before. Here he resided twenty-seven years, and on July 28, 1903, he removed to his present home on Perkiomen avenue, Mount Penn, where he has since lived. Mr. Planer is independent in politics, and he and his family are members of the German Lutheran Church of Reading.

On Sept. 3, 1866, Mr. Planer married Lydia Bowman, daughter of Peter and Rebecca (Reissmiller) Bowman, and to them were born eleven children, as follows: Pauline m. John Hart, an iron worker of Seibert's Rolling Mill; William P., who is railroading in Reading, m. Alice Lorah; George died in infancy; Harry F., who is an iron worker of Seibert's Rolling Mill, m. Clara Ludwig; Edward, who is a blacksmith of Naomi, Berks county, m. Nora Price; F. Thomas, who is a carpenter of Reading, m. Marguerite Zeiber; Alfred O., single, is a puddler; Maggie m. Tobias Kerns, a barber of St. Lawrence, Pa.: Miss Clara is at home; Irwin died aged eleven months, fifteen days; and Paul S. is single and resides at home.

JOEL K. WEIDMAN, the veteran telegraph operator at Perry Siding, on the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, below Berne Station, was born April 20, 1852, in Perry township, Berks Co., Pa., son of Benjamin and Anna (Kline) Weidman.

Johannes Weidman, great-grandfather of Joel K., was the founder of this family in Berks county. He came from Germany on the ship "Royal Union," which landed at Philadelphia, August 15, 1750, with 250 passengers. He obtained a number of acres of land in Windsor township, two miles north of Shoemakersville, upon which he settled, and there prospered. He was a Dunkard and reared his children in that faith. The remains of himself and wife, as well as some of their children, are interred on the farm on which he settled, now owned by his great-grandson. He had these children: John; and Jonas, who settled at Myerstown, was a miller by trade and the owner of considerable property.

John Weidman, grandfather of Joel K., was the owner and operator of the homestead, and also engaged in carrying produce to Philadelphia, bringing back merchandise with the big Conestoga wagon, although at this time the roads were bad, the trip requiring a week. A strict Dunkard, Mr. Weidman clung to the customs of his people, wearing a broad-brimmed hat, and his clothes were fastened by hooks and eyes. He married Magdalena Kauffman, and they had children as follows: Magdalena, born Oct. 11, 1803; Joseph, Feb. 22, 1805; Jonathan, Jan. 16, 1809; Sarah, April 17, 1811; Benjamin, —— 5, 1813; Elias, Sept. 2, 1815; John, March 3, 1818; Lydia, Nov. 1, 1820; Reuben, Jan. 15, 1823; Lydia, m. to John Shomo; Syria, born April 17, 1828, m. to Isaac Unger.

Benjamin Weidman, father of Joel K., born on the old homestead in 1813, died in July, 1891. He owned the homestead and was a prosperous farmer, living at the same place all of his life. He was an early educator, teaching school for a period of five years, part of the time in Centre, and in the pay school in his native district. Mr. Weidman was a Democrat in politics, and efficiently served his district as school director for six years, being secretary of the board and auditor of the district for six years. He was a director of the old Windsor Mutual Assistance and Fire Insurance Company for many years, and was a useful and foremost citizen. He and his family worshipped with the Dunkards, their church being located in Centre township, one mile west of Shoemakersville, Pa. They were a Christian family and a credit to the community in which they resided. Mr. Weidman married Anna Kline, and to them were born children as follows: Walter, born Jan. 29, 1845, m. Lenora Michael; Catherine, born Feb. 5, 1847, m. Franklin Althouse; Henry, born Jan. 5, 1849, m. Emma Clauser; Wilhelmina, born Oct. 11, 1850, m. William Kirst, and died March 13, 1874; Joel K., born April 20, 1852, m. Sara Ann Brownmiller; Alfred, born May 20, 1854, m. Ellen Bressler; Sara I., born Jan. 13, 1857, m. William Heckman; Elias, born April 13, 1859, died in childhood; and John, born Nov. 13, 1864, m. Maggie Nies.

Joel K. Weidman obtained a good education in the schools of his native district and later attended Freeland Seminary for two terms, and the Carversville Seminary in Bucks county. After the completion of his education he assisted his father upon the farm until 1871, when he learned the profession of telegraphy in Hamburg with the late Henry H. Beideman. Mr. Weidman was an apt student and after he had passed a very severe test the Reading Railroad Company placed him in charge of the responsible Perry Siding station, established April 1, 1872, and since that time he has been regularly at his post. That he is a painstaking, faithful and efficient operator is best shown by his record of thirty-seven years of continuous service. In this time no accident or error has been charged against him, and he has the honor of one of the cleanest records in the company's service. He goes on duty at 6 a. m. and works until 6 p. m. His habits of life and conduct as a citizen are the best. He is an honest, able, faithful employe, and a citizen who reflects credit on the community in which he resides. In politics he is a Democrat, but has never accepted public office. Mr. Weidman lost his left arm in a threshing machine when but thirteen years of age.

On Jan. 1, 1884, Mr. Weidman married Sara A. Brownmiller, daughter of Joseph and Susanna (Madeira) Brownmiller, and granddaughter of Daniel and Anna (Stoyer) Brownmiller. Mrs. Weidman's sister and brothers were: Charles M., a business man of Shoemakersville; Nora, who died in infancy; and John W., of Chester, Pa. To Mrs. Weidman's grandparents were born children as follows: Samuel, who died aged fourteen years; Emanuel, who lived in Prospect, Ohio; Henry, a farmer of South Allentown, Lehigh county; Joseph; Isabella, m. to Benjamin Oldt, of Mertztown, Pa., Christiana, m. to Jacob Forringer, of Breiningsville, Pa.; and Amelia m. to Charles Fisher, of Tripoli, Pennsylvania.

To Mr. and Mrs. Weidman there have been born six children as follows: Foster Brown, born Dec. 22, 1889, is a graduate of the Shoemakersville high school and of Stoner's Business College, Reading; Warren Miller, born Sept. 2, 1891, also a graduate of the high school and Stoner's Business College, holds a position as bookkeeper in one of the largest merchandise houses in Reading; Rhea Edna, born Oct. 16, 1892, is a graduate of the high school, and is now engaged in teaching music in the city and vicinity; Carl Wendell, born March 25, 1897, is in high school; Lynn Walter, born April 5, 1899, is in grammar school; and Ivan Benjamin, born May 5, 1904, is at home. Mr. and Mrs. Weidman are ambitious for their children, and determined that each one shall receive a good education, and be fitted well for his or her life work.

Mr. Weidman owns the original Weidman homestead of 170 acres, situated in Perry township, two miles north of Shoemakersville. The soil is fertile and yields abundant crops of grain, hay and fruit. Since he has owned the home farm many improvements have been made, and the land is now noted for its various minerals: Red and yellow ochre are found and shipped in bulk to various factories, where they are utilized in the manufacture of paint; casting and molding sand is there in large quantities, and the Bern Sand Company ships extensively to various iron firms from the Weidman farm; clay, for paving and building bricks, is also found. These products are easily shipped by the Pennsylvania and Philadelphia & Reading railroads, the former entering the farm, and the latter bordering it. It is Mr. Weidman's wish that the farm continue to be held in the Weidman name through future generations. Mr. Weidman resides in a fine residence in Shoemakersville, which is surrounded by a large and well-kept lawn, that especially during the summer months, with its abundance of beautiful flowers, presents a charming appearance.

JOHN F. ROTE, a well-known hotel man of Reading, Pa., whose hostelry and restaurant were located at Nos. 15-19 South Sixth street, died Nov. 7, 1907. He was born in Center county, at Brush Valley near the line of Clinton, Sept. 27, 1833, son of Paul and Mary (McKesson) Rote, the former of German descent and the latter of Scotch.

George Rote, the emigrant ancestor of the Rotes, was a farmer during the early days when the unsettled conditions of the country made it necessary for the sturdy pioneers to take their fire arms to the field with them. One of his daughters was captured by the Indians while on her way to milk the cows, but was soon thereafter rescued.

John F. Rote, son of George, settled in Clinton county, Pa., where he owned valuable farms and carried on agricultural pursuits as long as he lived. He married a Miss Keister, and to them were born children as follows: Henry, George, Abraham, Griffith, Simon, Paul, Peter, Elizabeth and Peggy. In religious belief they were Lutherans.

Paul Rote, son of John F., was a farmer in Sugar Valley for many years, but later emigrated to Illinois, thence to Douglas county, Kans., near Lawrence, being there at the time of Quantrell's raid. He purchased 160 acres of land, and there continued to farm all of his life, also owning several residential properties in Lawrence. He died in 1878, aged seventy years, while his wife passed away in 1893, when eighty-three years old. They were the parents of ten children, as follows: William C., John F., Samuel, Paul, Thomas, Rebecca J., Mary C., Alexander, Elizabeth and Lewis. In religious belief they were members of the Evangelical Church. In politics Mr. Rote was a Democrat.

John F. Rote received his early education in the schools of Clinton county, Pa., and worked on a farm in Sugar Valley for his father. At the age of nineteen years he went to Hickory Bottom, Blair county, and taught school during the following winter, later going to Clearfield county. In the spring of 1854, he embarked in the lumber business, at Shawsville, seven miles below Clearfield on the Susquehanna river, rafting lumber down the river, and the following winter he taught school in Goshen township, Clearfield county. The next spring he engaged in the lumber and sawmill business, rafting the lumber from Clearfield to Marietta, Lancaster Co., Pa., and this he continued until 1865, when he became engaged in the carriage manufacturing business at Clearfield. In 1868 he sold out this business and went to Lawrence, Kans., where for some years he was engaged in the live stock and insurance business with his brother, William C., and his brother-in-law, Howard Pemberton, remaining there until 1870, when he returned East and located in Reading. He engaged in the restaurant business, opening the old Delmonico restaurant on Fifth and Cherry streets, but shortly afterward removed to No. 19, and still later to No. 13, Eighth street. In 1887 he purchased the property known as the old "Ream Hotel" on Penn street, between Eighth and Ninth, where John Schultz's tailor shop is now located. He tore down the old building and erected a new, but this he sold in the spring of 1890, at which time he opened his late business on South Sixth street (which is now conducted by his son Everett C. Rote), where he was engaged with much success until his death.

Mr. Rote was married in May, 1859, to Christina Y. Shaw, daughter of Archibald and Rebecca Shaw, of Shawsville, and to this union was born one child: Everett C., who married Sallie E. Fisher, by whom he had these children—Elsie C., a graduate of the Girls' High School and a teacher in the public schools; Rebecca, also a graduate of the high school and now superintendent of her father's business; and Esther. Mrs. John F. Rote died in November, 1861, and Mr. Rote married (second) in December, 1864, Sarah A. Reisinger, daughter of Isaac and Jane Reisinger, of Marietta, Lancaster county, and she died Dec. 4, 1905. To this marriage were born two daughters, Jennie M. and Laura M. Jennie M. m. Edward A. Stoeckel, in the United States government employ, and has two children—Robert R. (m. to Miss Mabel Beears, and has a son, John F. R.) and Rhea; Laura M. m. Harry W. Beard, in the city engineer's office, Reading, and has three children—John, Bessie and Catherine.

Mr. John F. Rote was a member of Chandler Lodge, No. 227, Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, and Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T. He formerly belonged to Clearfield Lodge No. 198, I. O. O. F., which he joined in 1865. He was a Democrat in politics, and was a member of the council from the Eighth ward for the two terms, 1880 and 1882. While in Clearfield he was a member of the school board, and during the Civil war belonged to the Clearfield Rifles. He was an inventor of no mean ability and secured patents on several very useful articles, among them Rote's Vegetable Grater and Slicer, which had a very good sale; an egg beater; and an ice cream freezer.

AARON G. FOX was born Oct. 12, 1841, in Alsace, now Muhlenberg, township, Berks Co., Pa., and was brought up to farming on his father's farms in Bern and Lower Heidelberg townships, and was educated in the public schools. When twenty-three years old he engaged in butchering with the late James Lash, at Sinking Spring, and after remaining with him for three years and learning the business, he started for himself and continued at it on the same premises at Sinking Spring for nearly forty years, which evidences the successful character of his career. He lived there in retirement from 1904 until the fall of 1908, when he bought a residence on the Pike on the east side of Sinking Spring, where he and his wife, who has been his constant and most helpful companion, now make their home. Mr. Fox has served as township auditor for three terms, and for many years served as treasurer of the Lutheran Church at Sinking Spring.

In 1867 Mr. Fox married Ann Elizabeth Yocom, daughter of George and Catharine (Hemmig) Yocom, of Cumru township.

George Yocom was a son of Nicholas Yocom, who was prominently identified with the iron business for a number of years at Yocom's Forge, Cumru township. He married Catharine Thompson. George Yocom and his wife became the parents of twelve children: William, m. to Mary Potteiger; Aaron, m. (first) to Hannah Maurer, and after her decease to Catharine Heffner; Sarah, m. to Frederick Graeff; Amos, m. to Isabella Miller, and after her decease to Rebecca Weitzel; Catharine, m. to Henry Gehret; Benjamin, m. to Catharine Huyett; Ann Elizabeth; Emma, m. to Reuben Beecher; and four who died young.

Jonathan Fox, father of Aaron G., carried on farming for many years, first in Muhlenberg township, then in Spring and next in Heidelberg where he lived a number of years, and the last four years he farmed at Sinking Spring, where he died in 1894, at the advanced age of eighty years. He had lived in retirement for five years before his death. He married Catharine Gaul, daughter of Joseph Gaul, of Cumru township, who died in 1906, at the age of eighty-four years. They were the parents of nine children: Aaron G.; Henry, m. to Mary Ann Hettinger; Adam G., of Mohnton; Reuben, m. to Valeria Fisher; John, m. to Elizabeth Koch; Peter, m. to Catharine L. Fiant; Catharine, m. to Aaron Clauser; and two who died young.

Peter Fox, grandfather of Aaron G., lived near Leize's Bridge in Bern township. In his active days he was a farmer, but lived retired many years before his death. He owned two adjoining farms, and was a substantial citizen. He is buried at Epler's Church, of which he was a Lutheran member. Among others he had children as follows: John, who lived on the homestead; Peter, who lived in Muhlenberg township; Jonathan; Adam, of Reading; a son whose name is not remembered; Mrs. Reuben Hottenstein, whose husband in earlier life lived in Bern township where he was a farmer, but later moved to Reading where he died; and Mrs. Joseph Gaul, whose husband was proprietor of the "Five Mile House," in Cumru township, many years.

RUDOLPH STEFFY, one of Berks county's prominent citizens, who has for many years been before the public in positions of trust and responsibility, is now holding the office of assessor of Brecknock township. Mr. Steffy was born Feb. 23, 1849, in Alleghenyville, Pa., son of John and Catherine (Eshelman) Steffy.

John Steffy was born April 2, 1827, in Brecknock township, and died Dec. 24, 1892, after a long life spent in agricultural pursuits, he being the owner of the farm which in later years belonged to his son Rudolph. He was a charter member of Allegheny Church, where he served as an official for many years, and was a highly respected citizen. Mr. Steffy married Catherine Eshelman, daughter of Martin Eshelman, and to this union there were born ten children: Matilda, m. Benjamin Hetrich, of Spring township; Lydia, m. William Hill, of Indiana; Levi, a farmer of Brecknock township, m. Caroline Borkert; William, who was county auditor of Berks from 1860 to 1863, m. Catherine Krick, of Delaware, where he died; Elizabeth, m. Jacob Gebhart, of Allegheny Church; Richard, an artilleryman during the Civil war, m. Hannah Hill, of Reading; Susannah m. William Blankenbiller, of Brecknock township; Maria m. Adam Schweitzer, of Shillington; John m. Mary Witman, of Plowville; and Rudolph.

Rudolph Steffy was reared upon his father's farm, and his education was secured in the township schools, which he attended until fifteen years of age, obtaining a fair education. In 1871 he started out in life for himself as a farmer in Alleghenyville, having obtained this property from his brother Levi, and here he continued for two years, then selling out to purchase the farm now owned by Harry Ziegler, where he lived for thirty-two years. Since selling this farm Mr. Steffy has made his home with Samuel B. Gehman, a well-known farmer and trucker in the Allegheny Valley.

In politics Mr. Steffy is a Democrat, and when twenty-one years of age he was elected township clerk, an office in which he served for some years, being then elected township assessor, being the incumbent of that office for three years. For many years Mr. Steffy served as school director, and in 1898 he was again elected township assessor, since which time he has been twice elected. Mr. Steffy has always been an honest, fearless public official, and the long period of his holding office indicates his ability and popularity. He and his family are members of Allegheny Union Church, and he is a member of the choir thereof.

In 1871, Mr. Steffy married Emma R. DeTurk, born April 19, 1849, died in August, 1905, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Hollenbach) De Turk, of Leesport, and to this union there were born nine children, as follows: Miss Elizabeth; John, who lives in Spring township; Annette, m. to Henry Ludwig, of Lancaster county; Henry, of Montgomery county; and five children who died in youth.

WILLIAM WALBORN NEWCOMET, whose death in 1903 removed one of Reading's substantial and representative citizens, was prominent in both business and public life. Mr. Newcomet was born in Marion township, Berks county, in 1844, son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Walborn) Newcomet.

Samuel Newcomet was a prominent agriculturist in Marion township, but later sold his farm to engage in a merchandise business. He was a Democrat in his political belief, and an active worker in the ranks of his party. Mr. Newcomet was a Lutheran, as was his wife, Elizabeth Walborn, and they were the parents of: Isaac W., M. D.; Harry, M. D., deceased, was a practicing physician of Philadelphia for some years; John W.; Susan m. Frank Meredith; Priscilla m. Simon Richards; Kate m. a Mr. Carpenter; Isabella m. the Rev. Mr. Keyser; and William W.

William Walborn Newcomet received his early education in Marion township and completed his schooling in Reading. For a time he was in partnership with Mr. John M. Britton, with whom he contracted and built part of the Berks County Railroad. After clerking for nine years in the "Merchants Hotel," he went into partnership with his brother, John W., under the firm name of Newcomet & Newcomet, and for several years they were engaged in the manufacture of cigars. During this time William W. was appointed deputy warden, an office he held for seven years, and he was then elected warden for a term of six years, dying in office in 1903, aged fifty-nine years. In religious belief Mr. Newcomet was a Lutheran. He was fraternally connected with the Knights of the Golden Eagle and the Knights of Pythias, and was also a member of Fire Company No. 3. Like his father he was a Democrat.

Mr. Newcomet was married to Sarah Keyser, daughter of William Keyser, and to this union there were born two children: Harry I., who graduated from high school in 1908, and is now a student in the University of Pennsylvania; Florence E., a member of the class of 1908, high school, and now studying nursing.

SAMUEL S. STEIGER, one of Mount Penn borough's venerable citizens, who for some years lived retired at his comfortable home, was a native of Berks county, Pa., born in Exeter township, March 26, 1830, son of William and Susannah (Strunk) Steiger, and died June 2, 1907, aged seventy-seven years.

William Steiger was born and reared in Exeter township, where his entire life was spent in weaving and farm laboring. He died in October, 1855, being then upward of sixty-three years of age. He married Susannah Strunk, born in Cumru township, one of a large family all of whom attained advanced age, and at her death, in 1875, she was eighty-six years old. Mr. and Mrs. Steiger were the parents of five children: Sarah, who died at the age of ninety-two years, m. David H. Hill; Levi, who died at the age of seventy-seven years, m. Caroline Breiner; Catherine, who died at the age of seventy-eight years, was unmarried; John, who died when thirty years old, m. Hettie Lorah; and Samuel S.

Samuel S. Steiger was educated in the public schools, and remained at home until twenty-four years old, when he removed to Lower Alsace township. He worked in the woolen mills at St. Lawrence for forty-two years, being loom boss for thirty-five years of this time, and then engaged in shoemaking for six years, after which time he lived retired. Mr. Steiger was well known in his community. He was interested in public matters, and was a Democrat. For many years he was a member of Schwartzwald Church, but later connected with Trinity Reformed Church of Mount Penn.

On May 14, 1854, Mr. Steiger married Miss Catherine Haupt, daughter of John and Catherine (Deer) Haupt, born Sept. 11, 1833, in Exeter township, who died Dec. 21, 1900. Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Steiger: Telemachus, who died in childhood; Alice E., born Sept. 8, 1861; and Ida E., who died when twenty-six years of age. Alice E. Steiger was married Oct. 25, 1879, to Henry F. Lutz, son of David Lutz and wife (whose name was Shildt), of Alsace township. Mr. Lutz was born March 28, 1858, and at an early age learned the blacksmith trade, but for the past fifteen years has been engaged in electrical work, now being in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad. He is a member of the Lutheran Church, and is fraternally connected with the K. G. E. and the P. O. S. of A., Reading.

EDMUND H. AHRENS, excellent citizen and general farmer, residing in Ontelaunee township, Berks county, was born on the old family homestead, Sept. 19, 1861, son of Franklin and Sarah (Hughes) Ahrens.

The Ahrens family can trace its ancestry to the great-grandfather, Henry Ahrens, who was born in Bavaria, Germany, April 15, 1754. Family history tells that he left home while still a youth, after having some difference with his father, and went to England, where he joined a party of emigrants who started to America in 1770, landing in Massachusetts. There he served an apprenticeship to the millwright trade. About 1790 he went from New England to Pennsylvania and settled in Lippert's Valley, Ruscombmanor township, Berks county, where he married Catherine Lippert, born Feb. 9, 1772. They had children born to them as follows: John; Henry; Jacob; and Hannah, who married Jacob Miller. Henry Ahrens died Jan. 2, 1836, and his wife, Sept. 14, 1850.

Henry Ahrens (2), the grandfather, was born March 17, 1799. He was a carpenter by trade, and lived in Ontelaunee township, where he died May 2, 1873. He married Anna King, born Oct. 15, 1806, daughter of Abraham and Catherine (Zieber) King, and they had eight children, namely: Franklin, James, Henry, Cyrus, Sarah (m. Henry Sailer), Annetta (m. Daniel Stitzer), Catherine (m. James Leinbach) and Eliza (m. Daniel Rothenberger).

Franklin Ahrens, father of Edmund H., was born Feb. 7, 1827, and died July 30, 1904. He was a carpenter and builder. On Oct. 2, 1855, he married Sarah Hughes and they had three sons: Harry, William (died in 1882) and Edmund H.

Edmund H. Ahrens attended the local schools and has done a large amount of home study and reading. Farming has been his life work and he now owns the old homestead on which he resides. On Dec. 24, 1887, he married Kate Unger, daughter of Reuben and Rebecca Unger, and they have six children, namely: Sallie married Frederick Kraemer, and has had two children, Nellie (deceased) and Erma; Edith died aged eleven years; and Bertha, Marion, Ruth and Nellie are all at home. This pleasant old homestead farm lies on the Kutztown road between Temple and the Half-way House.

WILLIAM G. WERNER, one of the well known citizens of Cumru township, Berks county, who is engaged in shirt manufacturing at Mohnton, Pa., was born Sept. 11, 1860, at Fritztown, in Spring township, son of Jeremiah and Catherine (Goodhart) Werner.

Frederick Wilhelm Werner, the progenitor of the Werner family in America, was a native of Germany, born Jan. 22, 1762. When a young man he came to America, settling in Heidelberg township, Berks county, where he died June 15, 1849, and is buried at the Eck Church in North Heidelberg township. His wife died in 1801. Their children were: Wilhelm, a weaver and farmer of Heidelberg township, m. Elizabeth Lamb and had twelve children; John lived and died at Stauffertown, Pa.; Samuel, who lived near Eck Church, where he was a chorister for many years, m. Elizabeth Knerr, and they had children—Sarah, Mary, Jonas and Samuel; a daughter m. John Hetrich; Jacob, who moved out West, had a son Jacob who became an Evangelical minister and in later years resided in Reading; and Joseph was the grandfather of William G.

Joseph Werner was born in Heidelberg township, May 29, 1806, and died Aug. 18, 1854. He was engaged in carpenter work all of his life. He married Elizabeth Bard, born Jan. 15, 1807, daughter of Jonas Bard, and she died in her eighty-fifth year. To them were born the following children: Ellen, born in 1828, m. August Moyer, and later removed from Tulpehocken to Kansas; Jeremiah is mentioned below; Josiah, born July 8, 1832, died young; Mary, born June 22, 1834, m. George Krick, of Spring township; Sarah, born in 1836, died Sept. 18, 1854; Elizabeth, born June 19, 1837, m. Peter Moyer, of Spring township; Kate, born in 1839, m. Charles Van Reed, of Spring township; Joseph (of whom there is no record); Susan m. Charles Haas, of Reading; and John m. Susanna Sterner, of Mohnton, and had fifteen children, of whom two are deceased.

Jeremiah Werner, who from 1881 up to the time of his death, April 13, 1907, was living at Mohnton, was born Aug. 16, 1830, in Lower Heidelberg township, Berks county. He attended the pay school for a short time, and when fifteen years of age learned the carpenter's and wheelwright's trades, which he followed with much success until 1900, when he retired. He was a well known tradesman of his day, and did much work in Berks and the adjoining counties, employing at times as many as fourteen men. In 1882, one year after coming to Mohnton from Heidelberg township, he purchased a small farm upon which he lived for fifteen years, but this property has since been divided into building lots. In 1897 he erected the home in which he spent the remainder of his life. He also owned several other houses and real estate properties in and about Mohnton, and was considered one of the substantial men of the place. He and his family were members of Zion's U. E. Church, of which he was trustee for many years. At one time he was class leader of the Mohn's Hill Church as well as superintendent of the Sunday-school. Mr. Werner was one of the highly esteemed citizens of Mohnton, where he was known as a good neighbor, a kind husband and father and a public-spirited citizen. Mr. Werner died suddenly of apoplexy at the home of his daughter, Mrs. James Coleman, where he had stopped to rest, while on his way home.

In the year 1849 Mr. Werner married Catherine Goodhart, daughter of Frederick and Catherine (Walfinger) Goodhart, the former a stone mason of Lower Heidelberg township. Mr. and Mrs. Werner had children: Ellen, born May 19, 1850, m. John Smith, of Adamstown; Ephraim; Sarah, born Sept. 18, 1854, m. Isaac Trostle, of Mohnton; Amelia, born Oct. 26, 1856, m. William Boyer, of Leesport; Jeremiah, born Nov. 29, 1858, died in January, 1880; William G.; Catherine, born May 19, 1863, m. James Coleman, of Edison; Charles, born Sept. 10, 1865, m. Annie German, and has children—Katie, Laura, Alice, Paul and Elsie; John G., of Mohnton, born Dec. 9, 1867, m. (first) Katie Hay, had five children—Harry, Ellis, Homer, Goldie and Della—and m. (second) Sallie Wolf, and had one son, Samuel; and Maggie, born Aug. 9, 1870, and Elizabeth, born Dec. 12, 1872, died in childhood.

William G. Werner attended the local schools until the age of seventeen years, having begun three years prior to this to learn the wheelwright's trade with his father, with whom he worked until twenty-one years old. He then learned hat finishing with George Hendel & Co., of Hendleton, remaining in their employ three years, the next two years being with Isaac S. Spatz. He then spent fifteen years at the same trade for J. G. Mohn & Co., at Reading. On Jan. 1, 1899, Mr. Werner began manufacturing gentlemen's shirts, in 1902 erecting his present factory, which he has enlarged several times to meet the demands of his growing business. It is now 28x48 feet, two stories high, and is located at the corner of Main and Walnut streets. Here forty to fifty people are employed, and the factory is fitted with the latest improved machinery, the product amounting to 350 dozen per week. His goods bear the union label, and are all shipped to D. C. France & Co., of Philadelphia, who have taken all of his product for the past eleven years. His principal makes are the "Universal," "Custom Made" and "Bull-dog," these having the reputation of being some of the strongest and most serviceable shirts on the market to-day. In 1885 Mr. Werner built his present residence, situated at the opposite corner of the street from his factory, and in 1903 built two other dwellings on Walnut street, which he rents. He also owns thirty acres of valuable land within the borough limits of Mohnton. Mr. Werner is independent in politics, voting rather for the man than the party. He is a member of the Knights of the Golden Eagle and the P. O. S. of A. at Mohnton, and the Maccabees at Reading. Mr. Werner and his family are members of Zion's United Evangelical Church of Mohnton. Mr. Werner is exceedingly kind of heart and an honest appeal is never without result. In business and social circles he is very popular, and a number of friends enjoy his business prominence and continued prosperity.

On Oct. 15, 1876, Mr. Werner married Maria Fausnacht, daughter of Jonas and Elizabeth (White) Fausnacht, and granddaughter of Daniel Fausnacht, and to this union there have been born: Lillie M. m. Howard M. Angstadt, of Reading, and has one daughter, Marguerite; Miss Lizzie resides at home; William m. Lizzie Heft, and has three children—Bessie, Edith and Mervin; Jeremiah m. Lizzie Grim, and has three children—Edna, Gertie and Emma; and Ella, Harvey, Winfield, Charles and Leroy are all at home.

PIERCE GEORGE SUNDAY KEMP, manager of the large Sunday estate, and one of the well known residents and enterprising business men of Kutztown, was born Aug. 2, 1858, in Richmond township, Berks county, son of George Y. and Amelia (Sunday) Kemp.

(I) Theobault Dewalt Kemp came to America in 1720 from Strassburg, Germany, at that time belonging to France. He was a Protestant, and he was accompanied to the New World by his two brothers, Thomas and Joseph, and two sisters. He settled on land that now belongs to Nathan Kemp, and there died in 1760. He had one son, George.

(V) George Y. Kemp, son of George and Polly (Yoder), is a prominent merchant in Kutztown. He served as a veteran in the Civil war. His wife was in her maidenhood Amelia Sunday, daughter of Jacob Sunday, and their children were: Emma, who died aged twenty-two years; Pierce George Sunday; and Jacob E., a well known musician living in Philadelphia.

(VI) Pierce George Sunday Kemp has been a resident of Kutztown since two years of age, his parents having removed to the town in 1860. He was educated in the public schools of Kutztown and the Keystone State Normal school, and also spent one year at Ursinus College. Later he engaged in a mercantile business with Stein & Brother for one year, at the end of which time he became a partner with V. S. Reinhart in the grocery and dry goods business, this connection continuing successfully for several years. For the last few years Mr. Kemp has been manager of the large Sunday estate.

Mr. Kemp is a member of Adonai Castle No. 70, K. G. E., and has been active in the Order, being at one time district grand chief. He is also connected with the Jr. O. U. A. M., Council No. 1004, Kutztown. In politics he is a Democrat and takes a great interest in the success of his party. Mr. Kemp has acted as chief marshal of the Kutztown Fair for the past sixteen years, and has been active in many parades on public occasions, especially those of the soldiers. He is a stockholder of the Keystone State Normal School, and takes a just pride in the success of this noted institution of learning.

On April 24, 1890, Mr. Kemp married Jennie A. Baer, daughter of David S. and Esther K. (De Turk) Baer, of Oley township, and to this union there were born two children: John Pierce and Esther Amelia, both of whom died in infancy.

MAHLON SHAABER, of Reading, who has been living retired since 1900, was born in Reading April 12, 1844, son of John C. and Elizabeth (Schisler) Shaaber.

The Shaaber family is of German descent and was founded in America by Andrew, who located in Reading in 1754. His son, Andrew Jr., was born in that place and is shown by the records to have been a taxpayer in 1775. He married Elizabeth Sauerbier, and their son, John, grandfather of Mahlon, was born in Reading March 5, 1790. He was the owner of the old family homestead at Ninth and Franklin streets, and followed the calling of a hatter all his life. On Oct. 11, 1810, he married Miss Mary Caldwell, born in Berks county May 14, 1791. He died Nov. 11, 1839, and his wife March 11, 1844. Their children were: Catherine; Elizabeth; Margaret, Mrs. Frederick Dease; Mary; John C.; George; Sarah; Peter; Rebecca; Daniel and Jacob, twins; and Henry W.

John C. Shaaber, father of Mahlon, was born Oct. 30, 1820. He was a natural mechanic and became a blacksmith by trade. He was quite prominent in local affairs, was originally a Whig, but when the Republican party was formed he joined that. He married Miss Elizabeth Schisler, of Lehigh county, and a family of seven children were born to them, namely: Maria, deceased, a music teacher; Ella, Mrs. Frank Knerr; Susan and Elizabeth, who both died young; Adam J., a veteran of the Civil war; John, a mail carrier in Reading; and Mahlon.

Mahlon Shaaber received little regular education as his health did not permit of steady attendance. He was only seventeen when the war broke out, and in October, 1861, he enlisted in Company B, 93d Pa. V. I. A severe wound received in the battle of Fair Oaks May 31, 1862, compelled him to leave the service for a time, but he later re-enlisted in the 42d regiment P. V. M., for three months, with the rank of corporal. At the end of that time he again enlisted in the 196th Regt., 5th Union League, becoming first lieutenant, and served three months more. The wound which he had received never healed, and still gives him much trouble, severely handicapping him.

An ardent Republican, Mr. Shaaber has served as chief of police of Reading under Mayor Kenney. Socially he belongs to McLean Post, No. 16, G. A. R.; and Encampment No 43, Union Veteran Legion. His trade was that of machinist, and for much of his life he followed that calling. On Feb. 1, 1898, however, he purchased the Post-office cigar store and pool room, and while he was conducting it he made it a very popular place. His last position was as superintendent of the car barn for the Reading Street Railway Company, but since 1900 Mr Shaaber has lived retired, his residence being at No. 1215 Chestnut street.

Mahlon Shaaber married Miss Mary A. Hooker, daughter of Amos, a foreman in the railroad shops. To this union children were born as follows: John E. and Arthur Osbeck, both deceased; Minnie, wife of Charles H. Rhein, who is employed as foreman by the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company; Edward Garfield, an engineer and machinist at Exeter Station, who married Miss Mary Lemmer; and Stewart Logan, a stenographer and typewriter in Reading. The youngest son is of unusual height, measuring six feet four inches when only eighteen years old. His father, also of extraordinary height, during the period of his military service owed to the fact of his stature an incident of unusual interest, an account of which follows, as given by himself:

"While the 93d Regiment was passing through Washington and Georgetown, we passed in review on Pennsylvania avenue, and among the thousands who lined the pavements was a small group, among whom was a very tall gaunt man, with a pale looking countenance, dressed in a black frock coat, clinging somewhat indifferently to him, stooped shoulders, a black silk hat, with a thoughtful and serious cast of face, who called out 'Bub!' 'Bub!' Capt. Arthur heard him, and noticing that he was addressing me, informed me of it and gave me permission to leave the ranks. I no more thought when the tall, gaunt looking gentleman, with pleasing friendliness of manner, grasped my hand and said, 'Excuse my manners, it was jealousy on my part, that made me call you out to size you up.' He said, 'How tall are you, and what is your age?' I told him, 'I am six feet, six and one-half inches, and in my seventeenth year, and weigh 140 pounds.' He forthwith drew out of his pocket a black covered memorandum book, and with an ordinary stub pencil noted down my answer. Then he introduced himself in this characteristic way: 'I am old Abe!' I was startled, but felt honored; he next introduced me to Vice-President Hamlin as 'My Son,' and I noticed Gen. Cameron and Governor Curtin stood in the group. He noted our combined heights in the memoranda, giving each full name as follows:

Mahlon Shaaber, B, 93d P. V.	6 ft. 6½ in.
Abraham Lincoln, President	6 ft. 4 in.
Hannibal Hamlin, Vice-President	6 ft. 2½ in.
General Cameron	6 ft. 1 in.
Governor Curtin, Pennsylvania	6 ft. 2 in.
Total	31 ft. 4 in.

"He said jokingly this incident, where so many tall men have met, will not occur again. After quite a prolonged conversation he volunteered good advice to me. He indicated what my habits should be, my diet in camp, that I must eat no pastry, pies, etc., and emphasized the precaution against the use of intoxicating drinks. He told me when lying down to sleep I should always rest the head lower than the chest to expand my lungs, and seriously added 'I am afraid that you will not stand the service.' I essayed to leave, but just then thinking of the orders about stragglers, I asked him to give me a pass, as the patrolmen might gather me in to the guard house. He at once reproduced his memorandum book, tore out a blank, and wrote these words, 'Pass the soldier on his way to camp, by request of, Abe Lincoln.' My knapsack was captured in battle and the memento lost. When the grand old man bade me good bye, he embraced me, virtually putting his arm around my neck, and said with kindly emotion, 'Good-bye, my son. God bless you. Come soon and dine with me.'

"At a subsequent time accompanied by Sergeant Fritz, of Company B, I paid a visit to Washington to exchange clothing drawn by me which were too short. On our return to camp we called on the President at the White House. We were ushered into the Blue Room by a colored attendant, where the President arose from a chair where he was engaged in writing, and at once recalled the former meeting and gave us a kindly welcome to the White House. He showed us the spacious building, and presented us to the invited guests of the day. Being invited to dine I lost courage and made up my mind to decline. Mr. Lincoln insisted and said 'I will give you a seat on my right as my particular guest.' I confessed that I was afraid and ashamed to sit with such elegantly dressed company in my shabby clothes, when the President characteristically replied: 'It's not the clothing that makes the man, my son, it's the heart. I think more of a man dressed in blue for love of his country, than of those gay visitors, whose chief business in these trying times is simply to dress for receptions.' I, however, declined, stating that I would enjoy my bean soup and hard tack better than the reception dinner. The President took both hands in his and gave me a parting blessing and dismissed me saying: 'If you lie around Washington in the future call again.' It was always my great regret in after life, that I did not dine with the President. [Signed] Yours truly, Mahlon Shaaber."

At the National Encampment of the G. A. R., held at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., the week of Sept. 9, 1907, Mr. Shaaber had the honor to be chosen as one of the grenadier guards, composed of men from every Department of the Order, forty-five in all, each over six feet in height. He was the tallest by 3½ inches, being 6 feet, 7½ inches. It was the duty of these guards to bear a huge flag, wide enough to cover the street, in the Grand Parade, and in spite of the down pour of rain that drenched these veterans, they marched proudly on with the same unconcern for the elements that they had learned in bygone years.

HENRY G. WEAVER, a well-known resident of Morgantown, Caernarvon township, Berks Co., Pa., where he is engaged in an undertaking and furniture business, was born Nov. 2, 1849, near Lititz, Lancaster county, son of Moses and Elizabeth (Grube) Weaver.

The ancestors of Henry G. Weaver came from Zurich, Switzerland, in 1709, being sent therefrom by Queen Anne, and settled in New Amsterdam, now the city of New York. In 1717 four brothers, John, Henry, Samuel and Jacob Weber (as the name was then spelled), located in Tulpehocken township, Berks county, and there remained one year. In 1718 three of these brothers removed to Lancaster county and took up property now known as Weaverland, where they died and were buried. One of these brothers is supposed to have been the grandfather of Henry G. Weaver's great-grandfather, who according to tradition was Christian Weber, born Dec. 25, 1731, in Lancaster county, and married Sept. 30, 1749, to Magdalena Ruth. To this union there were born eight sons and nine daughters, and from seven sons and five daughters there were born 99 grandchildren, 188 great-grandchildren and five great-great-grandchildren, all born during Christian Weber's natural life. The majority of this vast progeny attended his funeral, his death occurring Feb. 13, 1820.

Heinrich Weber, a son of Christian, moved into Cumru township (now Brecknock), Berks county, from Weaverland, Lancaster county, in 1784. He purchased a farm of 225 acres, which he cultivated all of his life, and in 1811 he built a barn upon this property, which is still standing. He married Miss Maria Huber, who bore him four sons and two daughters, namely: Samuel settled in Ohio; Henry, born July 7, 1794, died Jan. 16, 1873, married (first) Anna Bowman and (second) Veronica Gehman; Jonathan settled in Weaverland; Christian settled in Dauphin county, Pa.; Anna died single; and Mary married Peter Good.

Henry Weber, son of Heinrich, was a lifelong farmer in the Allegheny Valley, Brecknock township. He was a strict Mennonite, and an elder in his church. By his marriage to Anna Bowman, he had children: Lydia died young; Mary, born July 3, 1818, died Dec. 27, 1893; Soloman, born June 12, 1819, died Aug. 12, 1892; and Leah, born June 14, 1820, died June 26, 1820. He married (second) Veronica Gehman, born Sept. 4, 1805, died Dec. 12, 1894, the mother of seven children, as follows: Anna, born March 15, 1829, died June 7, 1829; Barbara, born June 7, 1830, died Aug. 24, 1830; Elizabeth, born Sept. 5, 1831, died Oct. 3, 1838; Israel, born July 10, 1834, died March 26, 1836; Sara, born Nov. 19, 1837, died Sept. 9, 1838; Veronica, born Nov. 3, 1839, married John Musser, a retired farmer of near Bowmansville, Lancaster county; and Henry G.

Henry G. Weber, son of Henry, was born Jan. 25, 1842, and has spent his life in agricultural pursuits, being now the owner of the old home farm. He is a strict Mennonite in his religious belief. In 1863 he married Elizabeth Mosser, born Oct. 23, 1843, daughter of Jacob and Nancy (Bowman) Mosser, and ten children have been born to this union, as follows: Jacob, born Dec. 17, 1864, a farmer of Lancaster county, m. Hettie Ann Good; John, born March 27, 186-, and conducting the homestead, m. Lizzie Gehman; Noah, born Aug. 13, 1869, a farmer of near Adamstown, m. Hettie Gehman; Fannie, born Dec. 1, 1870, lives at home; Samuel, born May 2, 1872, a farmer of Lancaster county, m. Annie Bowman; Henry, Jr., born Oct. 23, 1873, a farmer near Goodville, Pa., m. Annie Good; Solomon, born May 2, 1875, a farmer near Bowmansville, m. Mary Good; Joseph, born Nov. 18, 1876, a farmer near Bowmansville, is married to Mary Hirsh; Aaron, born May 20, 1880, who is single, lives at home; Annie, born Nov. 11, 1883, is married to Henry Gehman, son of Abram Gehman.

The Webers are an old Mennonite family, and many of them rest from their labors at the Allegheny Meeting House. Henry Weber (1794-1873) was a member of the building committee which erected the Allegheny Meeting House in the spring of 1855, and the ground upon which it stands was donated by Solomon Weber. The first minister was Rev. Christian Gehman, who preached the Word for about forty years, he being succeeded by Rev. Samuel Good, who continued here for a like period. At this time interest in the church began to decline, and Bishop Jacob Moseman, a native of Germany, was sent to the pastorate, he soon reviving the religious fervor. He was buried at the Gehman private burying ground, near the Gehman Meeting House close to Adamstown. Peter Musser succeeded Bishop Moseman, and he in turn was succeeded by Rev. Benjamin Horning, who was followed by Rev. Abram Gehman, the present pastors being Rev. Henry Good and his associates, Rev. Abram Gehman and Rev. Noah Bowman.

The grandfather of Henry G. Weaver, of Morgantown, was Daniel Weber, who was born in 1780, and died in 1860, after spending his life in Cumberland county. He married a Miss Buckwalter, who died in 1815, and among their children was a son, Moses, the father of Henry G. Moses Weaver was born near Manheim, Lancaster Co., Pa., March 4, 1813, and died Jan. 5, 1895. He married Elizabeth Grube, born in February, 1814, who died in July, 1891, and was buried at Weaverland.

When still a boy Henry G. Weaver removed with his parents to the eastern part of Lancaster county, and in 1872 he went to Honey Brook, Chester county, where he learned the cabinet maker's trade. In 1874 he located in Morgantown, and here he established the business in which he is now engaged, and which he has carried on very successfully ever since.

On Sept. 26, 1872, Mr. Weaver was married to Sarah Ellen Spotts, born April 18, 1854, in Chester county, who died at Morgantown, March 15, 1905, and was buried in the Caernarvon cemetery. Six children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Weaver, as follows: Mary F., born Nov. 4, 1873, is a trained nurse; Laura M., born June 27, 1875, is also a trained nurse; Walter, born Aug. 1, 1878, is living with his father at Morgantown; Alice K., born Jan. 2, 1881, married in June, 1907, Morton Edwards, and lives in Morgantown; William C., born Jan. 29, 1885, is a student at the State College; and Katie, born Aug. 6, 1892, lives with her father at Morgantown.

Mr. Weaver is a stanch Republican, and has filled the offices of auditor and judge of election. He is a member of the Lutheran Church, and his family of the Morgantown Methodist Church. He has been an industrious, progressive man, and has done much toward advancing the interests of Morgantown, where he has built three houses, in one of which he lives, the others being sold.

LEWIS KENDALL TOMLINSON, a retired citizen of Berks county, who is now making his home in the borough of Mount Penn, was born Oct. 13, 1848, in Camden, N. J., son of David and Nancy Ann (Emmel) Tomlinson.

The Tomlinson family was founded in America by the grandfather of Lewis K., who came from England when a young man and settled in New Jersey, where he reared a family. One of his sons, David, the father of Lewis K., was born in that State in 1798, was a produce dealer in the Philadelphia markets, and died when fifty-two years of age. He married Nancy Ann Emmel, of Cumberland, N. J., whose father was a native of Germany, coming from that country to America when a boy. One of Mrs. Tomlinson's brothers was a pilot on the Delaware river for a number of years. To Mr. and Mrs. Tomlinson were born these children: Henry F., a truck farmer of Cumberland county, N. J.; a daughter who died in infancy; and Lewis Kendall.

Lewis Kendall Tomlinson obtained a good common school education, and when in his fifteenth year learned the pottering trade with White & Smith, well known potters of Bridgeton, N. J. He remained in this firm's employ for seven years, and then worked as journeyman in different parts of Pennsylvania until 1872, when he settled in Lehigh county for one year. He then removed to Hereford county, where three years were spent at his trade, his next location being Dryville, Berks county. He successfully carried on the pottery business at this location from 1876 to 1890, and then sold out and removed to Reading, where he worked at various employments until April 1, 1898. He then removed with his family to Vaughan, Warren Co., N. C., where he was engaged in farming until November of the same year, at that time returning to Reading. There he remained until the spring of 1904, when he purchased something over an acre of land in Mount Penn borough, where he has since resided. He has made a very comfortable home here, and raises much fruit. He is considered one of the substantial men of the borough, and has many friends. In political matters Mr. Tomlinson is a Republican, and has ever been faithful to the principles of that great party. He is a member of Reading Castle No. 49, K. G. E., in which he has passed all of the chairs, and Muhlenberg Lodge No. 1085, I. O. O. F., in which he is past grand.

On Christmas Day, 1871, Mr. Tomlinson married Emily Jane Newlin, born Feb. 14, 1850, daughter of William K. and Ann Eliza (Gyles) Newlin and granddaughter of John and Elizabeth (Cavinder) Newlin, of Oxford, Chester county. To Mr. and Mrs. Tomlinson have been born eight children: N. Robert, born Oct. 29, 1872, at Slatington, Lehigh county, is an alderman of Reading; Laura E. m. Penrose W. Hawman, of Reading; Lewis B., born June 2, 1875, died March 19, 1879; Maggie E. m. Charles M. Angstatt, of Reading; Josephine and Ross K. are single at home, the latter of whom was born Jan. 19, 1880; Blanche T. is single at home; and Lewis V., born Oct. 2, 1886, died July 3, 1898.

William K. Newlin, who was an iron worker of Pinegrove, Chester Co., Pa., was a soldier of the Mexican war, and later enlisted in the Civil war, giving up his life in the service of his country. He was a member of Company E. Purnell Legion, Maryland Volunteers, enlisting at Pikesville, Md., Sept. 2, 1861. He died in November, 1862, at Oxford, after having been discharged on account of sickness contracted during the service. He was the father of these children: Emily Jane, wife of Lewis K. Tomlinson; Melissa Anne, who died in infancy; Joseph J., who left home when ten years of age to become a cabin boy on a gunboat at Jamestown during the Civil war, serving two and one-half years, and later became a sailor, but of whom since 1866 nothing has been heard; Enos P., who lived at Perryville, Md., and died July 2, 1900, aged forty-six years; William T. G., who died in infancy; and Anson, who died aged one year.

JOHN GEORGE H. MARQUETT, a druggist who died in Lebanon at the age of forty-eight years, was born in Lebanon county, Pa., in 1830, son of John M. and Hellena (Reinhold) Marquett, residents of Annville, Lebanon county, where in his younger days the father taught school, but later kept the toll-gate on the old plank road. He died aged sixty years, and his wife survived him many years, dying at the age of eighty-five.

John George H. Marquett was engaged in the drug business all his life. On Dec. 26, 1854, he married Mary Rebecca Davis, born in Reading, Jan. 17, 1835, daughter of the late Andrew and Mary (Kantner) Davis, and the children born of this union were: John Augustin died when ten years old; Harry A. m. Lillie Welch, of San Jose, Cal., and died Feb. 20, 1894, leaving his widow and a daughter, Lillie, born April 18, 1890; Franklin R. died Feb. 10, 1862, when fifteen months old; Mary H. died Jan. 9, 1870, aged seven years: Emily M. m. Charles E. Reiss, of East Orange, N. J., who is engaged in the automobile business, and they have two children—George L. (born Aug. 1, 1887) and Byron H. (born May 30, 1890); and Annie L. m. Harry C. Geissler, a business man at Reading, and they have had two children—Henry M. (born Sept. 4, 1892, died aged ten months) and Maria L. (born Jan. 24, 1894, is attending the Drexel School of Design, Philadelphia).

Andrew Davis, father of Mrs. Marquett, was a very prominent man in business circles of Reading for a number of years. He kept a hotel at the corner of Seventh and Chestnut streets, and later engaged in the flag-stone business, following this very successfully until his death, which occurred Sept. 27, 1875. He was a director of the Farmer's National Bank, and was well known and highly respected throughout the city. Mr. Davis was a Republican, and was a member of the Reformed Church. Of his family of children, Mrs. Marquett is the only living representative.

Mrs. Marquett, now one of the oldest residents of Reading, makes her home at No. 142 South Eighth street. She received her education in the public schools of this city, also attending several private schools. The handsome residence in which she now lives was given to her by her father. She is a faithful member of the Reformed Church. Although seventy-four years of age, she is very active, and is in possession of all her faculties, using glasses only when she reads or sews. She is greatly interested in history and is a great reader. Mrs. Marquett is well known and universally esteemed in Reading, where her neighbors are well acquainted with her many lovable characteristics.

MARTIN HARNISH operates a fine tract of farming land in Marion township, Berks county, where he is a well known and popular resident. He was born Feb. 21, 1864, in Jackson township, Lebanon Co., Pa., son of Christian Harnish, of Mount Aetna.

Martin Harnish was educated in the schools of Bethel township, and remained at home with his father until twenty-one, when he went to West Lebanon, Lebanon county, and was there employed at the furnace for a period of three years. He returned to Bethel township for one year, when he removed to Tulpehocken township, and remained there fourteen years, at the end of which time he located on his present place in Marion township, where he has since carried on successful agricultural operations.

In 1886 Mr. Harnish married Catherine Walborn, daughter of Henry and S. (Kohr) Walborn, and to this union the following children have been born: Sallie L.; Bertha M., who is now the teacher of Moyer's school in Marion township; Carrie M.; Thomas M.; Christian H., and Paul C.

Mr. Harnish is a Democrat in his political affiliations, and in 1895, while a resident of Tulpehocken township, he served as a member of the school board. He and his family attend Tulpehocken Reformed Church, where he has served as deacon. Mr. Harnish is fraternally connected with the Jr. O. U. A. M., of Myerstown.

LEWIS RINGLER, late a well-to-do business man and representative citizen of Millmont, Cumru township, Berks county, was engaged in the butchering business. He was born March 31, 1845, in Reading, Pa., son of Daniel and Mary (Seiders) Ringler.

Jacob Ringler, grandfather of Lewis, was born in 1799, and died in 1873, having spent many years of his life in Reading, where he owned considerable property on Chestnut street, between Front and Second streets, and where he was engaged in boat-building. He married Susan Lerch, and to them were born these children: Daniel; Sarah m. Joel Sharman; Sophia m. John Bechtel; Germina died in 1908; Priscilla m. Benneville Pike; Septimus is a resident of Gibraltar; and Rebecca m. Charles Armpriester.

Daniel Ringler was born Feb. 4, 1817, in Reading, Pa., and learned the boat-building business from his father, an occupation which he followed all his life. He enlisted Oct. 14, 1863, in Company G, 93d Pa. V. I., and was mustered out of service June 18, 1864, at Philadelphia, on account of disability. His second enlistment occurred July 10, 1864, in Company A, 195th Pa. V. I., and he received his honorable discharge at Harrisburg Nov. 4th of that same year. Mr. Ringler contracted rheumatism while in the service and for fourteen years was incapacitated by that disease. He married Mary Seiders, daughter of Lewis Seiders, and to them were born children as follows: Emma m. William Burns; Jacob m. Catharine Fisher, and served in the Civil war, where he was shot and killed by a member of his own company; Lewis; Septimus m. Amanda Hinsted; Solomon m. Cassie Pfaff; Catharine m. (first) Charles Good, and (second) Charles Seiders; Sophia m. Henry Leader.

Lewis Ringler's school days were spent in his native city, and in 1863 he commenced to learn the boat-building business with his father, following that occupation until 1888, when he embarked in the butchering business in Millmont, at which he continued with much success to the time of his death, Nov. 13, 1908. He attended the Bingaman street market, Reading, and in this way assured his customers of having the best and freshest meats to be obtained. In 1906 Mr. Ringler built his fine residence, and he also owned several other properties in the town.

In 1863 Mr. Ringler married Angeline Lebo, daughter of Jacob and Lydia (Huffert) Lebo, and she died Nov. 19, 1906, aged sixty-four years, nine months, and was buried in the Gouglersville cemetery. Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Ringler, namely: Henry m. Sallie Hiller, of Millmont, and has had five children—Annie, Lewis, Ella (deceased), Bertha and Edna; Elizabeth died in infancy; Sarah M. m. Frank P. Moyer, a cigar-maker by trade, and has had two children—Mamie and Lillie (died aged two years). Mr. Ringler was a Republican in political matters. In religion he was a member of the Gouglersville Reformed Church. He was the first to erect a house in Millmont, Cumru township, and this settlement is now quite a thriving village, commanding an excellent view of the Schuylkill river and the mountains.

WILSON D. ALTHOUSE, of Philadelphia, a very successful miner and shipper of coal, was born in Maiden-creek township, Berks Co., Pa., March 4, 1865, son of Nathan and Ellen Knabb (Zacharias) Althouse.

It is possible to trace the Althouse family to a remote period, the old records having been preserved. The great-great-grandfather of Wilson D. Althouse was John George Althouse, a farmer of Bern, Berks county, who married Maria Barbara Herbein, of Oley, by whom he had four children: Peter, John George, Maria and Catherine. He died in 1811, aged sixty-six years, and his widow in 1822, aged eighty-one years.

Peter Althouse, the great-grandfather, was also a farmer in Bern, born in 1775 and died in 1839. He married Catherine Schaeffer, and they had the following children: Samuel, who married Mary Zacharias; Benjamin, who married Mary Herbein; Peter, who married Matilda Lorah; George; Daniel; and Susan, who married Christian Leinbach.

Daniel Althouse, the grandfather, was a farmer in Bern township. When twenty-seven years of age he purchased a farm in Maiden-creek township, which he carried on until his death, in 1872, at the age of sixty-four years. He married Anna Weidenhammer, daughter of John Weidenhammer, of Richmond township, who lived to be ninety years of age, dying in 1898. They had five children, namely: Franklin W.; Nathan; Ellen, who married Joseph Schaeffer; Catherine, who married Abraham Bieber; and Sarah, who married Daniel Guldin.

Nathan Althouse, father of Wilson D., was born in 1841, in Maiden-creek township, and when twenty-four years of age began farming for himself, continuing at that occupation for twenty years. He then turned his attention to butchering, which he followed for six years, or until 1891, when he moved to Reading, where he has since lived retired. He married Ellen Knabb Zacharias, daughter of Daniel and Sarah Zacharias, the latter a daughter of Peter Knabb, of Oley. Nathan Althouse and his wife had eight children, namely: Wilson Daniel; Zacharias married Lizzie Oberlander; Sallie K. married N. J. Poindexter; Gertrude married Walter Frees; Catherine married Frank Kitzmiller; Winifred married Charles Esterly; Bessie; Raymond died young.

Wilson D. Althouse was reared on his father's farm, which was situated along the Kutztown road, near the "Half-way House." He attended the township schools, and by the time he was sixteen years of age completed a course at Brunner's Business College, at Reading. He then entered the Mellert foundry, at Reading, as shipping clerk, remaining one year, and then became clerk at the Lenhartsville Iron Furnace, operated by Spang and Erb, where he remained less than a year, having become interested in railroading. Returning to the home farm, while remaining there he began the study of telegraphy, putting his knowledge into practice at Blandon, on the East Pennsylvania railroad, a few miles distant, walking the distance daily. He learned the tedious details quickly and in a short time received the appointment of station agent at Belfry, on the Stony Creek railroad. After working there less than two years he was transferred to the Norristown Station, on the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, and after filling this position for two years he was promoted to the station at Ogontz; he was there only a year when he was again promoted, this time to the station at Manayunk, where he remained until 1893, a period of six years.

With this ten years' experience Mr. Althouse gave up telegraphing as a business and engaged in the commission line, selling coal for the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company, and had offices in the Reading Terminal at Philadelphia. In two years he became thoroughly acquainted with this line of trade and began to turn his attention to other promising industries. About this time he embarked for himself in the business of mining and shipping bituminous coal in Somerset county and in three years he had developed a large patronage. These mines he sold to the Somerset Coal Company, and then engaged still more extensively in mining operations, opening coal mines at George's Creek, in Maryland, which he has carried on successfully until the present. During this time he developed large coal properties in Somerset county, Pa., and in Preston county, W. Va., which he has also operated in a successful manner. His offices continued to be at the Reading Terminal until 1905, when he removed to commodious quarters in the Stephen Girard building on South Twelfth street, Philadelphia, from which he directs a constantly increasing business, which reaches into all parts of the United States. His whole business career has been marked by good judgment and conservative methods.

In 1888 Mr. Althouse was married to Carrie E. Kutz, a daughter of Benneville and Sarah (Fisher) Kutz. They had three children: Frederick, George Nathan and Alfred Kutz, the eldest of whom died in infancy.

SOLOMON MENGEL, for many years a prominent and highly esteemed citizen of Reading, was born in Maiden-creek township, Berks county, Feb. 8, 1812, son of Abraham and Magdeline (Dewald) Mengel.

Nicholas Mengel, the grandfather of Solomon, was born in Germany, and was the first of the family to come to America, making the voyage with three other young men. He was a redemptioner, and was bound out to a Mr. Gernand, a farmer of Maiden-creek township, to pay his passage. By industry and frugality he became the owner of 300 acres of land in the same township. After the death of Nicholas, Abraham Mengel took the farm of his father and it has remained in the family to the present time, now being operated by Ephraim Mengel, great-grandson of Nicholas. Abraham Mengel and his wife were the parents of the following children: Isaac, Sarah, Lena, William, Esther, Mary, Lazarus, Absalom, Solomon.

Solomon Mengel was thirteen years of age when his father died, and at this time he located in Reading to learn the trade of a tin and coppersmith, later being in partnership with Mr. Shenfelter, a connection which continued until Mr. Mengel's retirement, when he gave the business over to his sons. He died in 1873, and his wife, who had been Catherine Burns, in 1901. They were the parents of the following children: Margaretta m. Asaph Prutzman; Emma died Dec. 25, 1908; Amelia L. m. Benjamin Parvin, and died Dec. 10, 1905; Milton L. m. Emily Homan; William J. died single; Mary is deceased; James m. Emily Madeira; Charles S. m. Millicent Booth; Howard B. and K. Laura.

In religious belief the family are connected with the Lutheran faith. Politically Mr. Mengel was formerly a Democrat, but at the time of Lincoln's administration became connected with the Republican party, which he stanchly supported throughout the remainder of his life, although he, himself, never sought office. He was a good citizen, a kind and indulgent father and a Christian citizen, and in his death Reading lost one whose place will be hard to fill.

WILLIAM SIEGFRIED, formerly a leading citizen of Maxatawny township, was born on one of the Siegfried homesteads in Siegfried's Dale, Pa., Feb. 19, 1842, and died Oct. 25, 1886, aged forty-four years, eight months, six days. He passed his entire life in the home in which he was born. His parents were Abraham and Lydia (Ziegler) Siegfried.

The Siegfried family of Maxatawny township is representative of the best kind of old Berks county stock. While the larger number of its members are engaged in the pursuits pertaining to agriculture, there are also those who have become prominent in business and professional life. It was in 1752 that two brothers, John and Joseph Siegfried, settled in the section which for more than 100 years has borne the name of Siegfried's Dale. There they owned a large body of land, probably 1,000 acres. In 1759, John Siegfried paid a tax of twenty-one pounds and Joseph paid one of twenty pounds. They increased in numbers as a family and prospered and founded organizations which still bear their honored name. Siegfried's school and Siegfried's Church testify to their progress and the latter was so known for several years, but is now generally known as the Maxatawny Zion's Union Church. In Lehigh county, in the cement district, there is a pretty borough known as Siegfrieds, so named after a prominent member of this family. It has a population of about 1,000. In Siegfried's Dale, in Maxatawny township, about one-fourth mile due west of the school-house, is the private burial ground of this well-known family. It is about 100 feet square and in that enclosure rest the remains of the early pioneers of this name, five generations sleeping there. It is well kept and evidently is regarded as a sacred spot by the present generation.

John Siegfried, brother of Joseph, and co-founder of the Siegfried family in Maxatawny township, died late in the spring of 1766. His widow, Elizabeth, made her last will and testament, June 17, 1766, and she died between that date and the filing of her will, Nov. 10, 1767. She designated her son, Joseph Siegfried, and her trusted and esteemed friend Sebastian Zimmerman as her executors. The children mentioned in the will were: Joseph; Margaret, m. to Jacob Moss, of Lynn township, Lehigh county; Catherine, m. to Frederick Raumich; Susanna, m. to Daniel Levan; Elizabeth, m. to John Rothermel; Magdalena, m. to Anthony Fisher; and Anna, m. to Jacob Fisher.

(I) Joseph Siegfried, one of the founders of the family in Berks county, and great-great-grandfather of the late William Siegfried, died before the close of the eighteenth century. The will of his widow, Anna Mary Siegfried, is dated Dec. 14, 1795, and was probated Jan. 3, 1806. The executors of it were: Gideon Grim and Johannes Siegfried. The children of Joseph Siegfried were: Catherine, Magdalena (m. Abraham Levan), Johannes, Joseph, Henry (born April 17, 1751, died Aug. 9, 1822), Jacob, Abraham, Isaac, and Daniel (born Dec. 29, 1763, died Nov. 20, 1846, m. Magdalena Kline, born 1768, died 1852).

(II) Johannes Siegfried, son of Joseph, born Oct. 1, 1758, died April 4, 1821, aged sixty-two years, six months, three days.

(III) Johannes Siegfried, son of Johannes, grandson of Joseph, born Jan. 20, 1782, died June 18, 1835, aged fifty-three years, five months, twenty-eight days. He was a farmer. In 1819 he erected a barn in Siegfried's Dale that was replaced in 1905 by a modern and improved building that is one of the best barns in Upper Berks county. He was married to Catherine Fetterolf (1776-1850), and they had five sons and two daughters, some of whom died young.

(IV) Johannes Siegfried, son of Johannes and Catherine, was born Aug. 27, 1802, and died July 30, 1840, aged thirty-seven years, eleven months, three days. He was a farmer on the homestead. By his wife, Hannah Grim (1803-1840), he had the following children: Mary; John; Jesse, residing at Allentown, has a son Harry; Alfred, residing at Allentown, has Robert, James and Henry; Hannah; and one died young.

(V) John Siegfried, son of Johannes and Hannah Siegfried, born in 1829, died in 1902. He was a life-long farmer on the Siegfried homestead, which when he acquired it contained 165 acres. He married Catherine Grim, daughter of Joshua Grim, born in 1837, and still living in Siegfried's Dale. Their seven children are: Hannah, John, Mary, Joshua, Sue, Celia, and Jacob.

(II) Jacob Siegfried, son of Joseph the first settler, and great-grandfather of William, was a native of Siegfried's Dale in Maxatawny township. There he was born Aug. 19, 1762, and died March 28, 1829, aged sixty-six years, seven months, nine days. On June 15, 1784, he married Dorothea Levan, born Feb. 2, 1765, died March 14, 1831, aged sixty-six years, one month, twelve days. Their children were: Alexander settled at Sunbury, Pa.; William, born 1797, died 1826, m. Maria Reiser; Samuel; Benjamin; Jonathan; George, who was blind, lived in Ohio; and several daughters (names not preserved). Jacob Siegfried and wife were interred in Siegfried's Burial Ground.

(III) Jonathan Siegfried, son of Jacob, was born Oct. 28, 1790, in Maxatawny township, and died in June, 1853, near Rebersburg, Schuylkill county, and is buried at the Bethel Church. He owned a farm and kept an inn across the Blue Mountains from Rebersburg and was a well-known man. He married Barbara Fiegol (1787-1854). They had the following children: Abraham; William, of Harrisburg; Sarah, born June 25, 1827, m. Philip Boltz, of Annville; B. Matilda, born Jan. 8, 1825, m. (first) an Overholtzer, had one son, Alfred (killed in the Civil war), and m. (second) Thomas Straub (died at Perryville), and they had fifteen children; and Daniel, born Nov. 30, 1818, m. a Kauffman, and went West (after his father's death), where he died.

(IV) Abraham Siegfried, father of the late William Siegfried, was born Aug. 29, 1813, in Siegfried's Dale, and died Jan. 31, 1895, aged eighty-one years, five months, two days. He was a farmer and drover, and for many years was supervisor of Maxatawny township. He owned a farm of seventy acres in Greenwich township, from which he subsequently moved to Topton and later to Reading, where he died at the home of a daughter, Mrs. John Fisher. He was buried at the Maxatawny Zion Church. He married (first) Lydia Ziegler, born April 24, 1816, in Lehigh county, and died June 7, 1873. They had two children: Amelia m. John Fisher, who died at Reading June 27, 1907, aged seventy-five years, ten months, eighteen days; and William. Abraham Siegfried m. (second) Mrs. Sally Ann Kramlich, daughter of Solomon Kuhns, and they had one daughter, Kate.

(V) William Siegfried attended the early schools of his neighborhood and grew to manhood with a knowledge of farming and stock raising. He was a farmer and drover and dealt largely in horses and cattle for many years. He was a man of fine business capacity and of excellent judgment and was frequently elected to local offices on the Democratic ticket. He served Maxatawny township as assessor and also as tax collector and performed his full duty on every occasion. He was a leading member of the Maxatawny Zion Union Church, belonging to the Reformed congregation, and served some years as a deacon, and then was made an elder, sustaining that relation at the time of his death. For a number of years he was the Sunday-school superintendent, and always gave liberally for all religious purposes. In every relation of life he was a most worthy man.

On April 5, 1866, William Siegfried was married to Mary Ellen Hoch, daughter of William and Sallie (Bieber)

Hoch, of Maxatawny township, and a granddaughter of Abraham and Hannah (Doumayer) Hoch of Richmond township. Five children were born to William Siegfried and wife, namely: Sallie H.; Mary Ellen m. Dr. C. Q. Hillegars, of Pennsburg, Pa.; William H. lives at Pennsburg; Edwin A. H. resides in Maxatawny township; and Victor G. H. manages the home farm for his mother.

JOHN BITTING, a well-to-do retired citizen of Shillington, Berks county, who was for over forty years a resident of the old Bitting homestead in Cumru township, was born July 25, 1828, four miles south of Sunbury, Northumberland Co., Pa., son of Jacob and Sarah (Rothermel) Bitting.

Johannes Bitting, grandfather of John, was born May 18, 1764, and died Sept. 25, 1829. He was a prosperous farmer and owned the old stand which consisted of some of the best land in the township. The Bitting farm was a valuable property, nicely located, with good water, near the market on the Lancaster pike, and the place was supplied with good buildings, which greatly enhanced its appearance. Johannes Bitting's wife, Maria, was born Dec. 22, 1766, and died Oct. 3, 1849. They had children as follows: Daniel, born April 2, 1788, died Oct 3, 1849, married Susan Moyer (born April 25, 1786, died March 25, 1852), daughter of Michael and Elizabeth Moyer, and they owned and occupied the old homestead; Susan, born April 15, 1793, died unmarried July 23, 1856; Philip, born Dec. 1, 1795; died unmarried Feb. 1, 1824; Jacob; and Peter, born Oct. 13, 1799, died July 2, 1875, married Maria Elizabeth (born April 20, 1803, died July 25, 1895). Johannes Bitting and his wife had five children—Daniel, Susan, Philip, Jacob and Peter, and the sons' wives, and some of Johannes' grandchildren are buried in a private burying ground, which is situated on the old home farm and surrounded by a wall four feet high.

Jacob Bitting, father of John, was born on the Bitting homestead in Cumru township, Dec. 10, 1797, and died Jan. 13, 1879. For some years he lived in Northumberland county, and later removed to Dauphin county, where he farmed for seven years. He then located in Perry county, where he kept a hotel for two years, after which he located on the old Bitting homestead in Cumru township, where he died in comfortable circumstances. Mr. Bitting married Sarah Rothermel (born Jan. 2, 1802, died June 8, 1876), daughter of Peter and Magdalena (Saeger) Rothermel. Their children were: (1) Jeremiah, an attorney of the Berks County Bar, and from 1859 to 1862 high sheriff of Berks county, was a man of commanding appearance, tall and well-built; he died in Philadelphia after the Civil war. (2) Elizabeth m. Daniel Krum. (3) Charles died young. (4) Harriet m. John Fisher, and died Dec. 18, 1906, aged eighty-three years, twenty-one days. (5) Mary m. George Rebholtz. (6) John. (7) Jacob and (8) Reuben died in Reading. (9) Ellen m. Peter Hebener. (10) Susan m. (first) Peter Zimmerman, and (second) Robert Harner.

John Bitting attended school in Perry county, and in 1848 came with his parents to Berks county, where until 1892 he was engaged in farming. In this year he removed to Shillington, and there has made his home to the present time. In 1890 he sold to William J. Irwin his farm of 102 acres near the Kurtz House. To these lands the Bittings had held title for many years. Mr. Bitting is a hale and hearty, vivacious old gentleman, a pleasing conversationalist, and a well-known stockman and breeder of horses. To him and his son, Frank W., must be given much credit for the present interest displayed in the Shillington race track, for it is largely due to their efforts that the sport is in such a flourishing condition. Among the horses bred by Mr. Bitting may be mentioned: "Prince B.," 2:26¼, at Allentown, for which Mr. Bitting refused $1,200; "Brush Horse," 2:35, at Reading, bred by "Schaeffer Pony"; "Little Dan," 2:34, at Three Mile House, Shillington, Pa.; "Ida," 2:32½, at Manheim, Lancaster Co., Pa., and "Cedar Allen," stallion, 2:48, at Kutztown Fair, bred from the well-known western horse, "The Cedar Allen of the West." All of these horses were trained by Mr. Bitting, and were driven either by him or by his son, Frank W. In political matters Mr. Bitting is a Democrat.

Mr. Bitting married Elizabeth Worley, daughter of John Worley, and to this union were born: Emma m. Joseph Hassler; John died in 1904, aged fifty years; Mary m. Charles W. Berg, a dairyman of Cumru township; Irwin m. Clara Hartman; Amanda m. David Brensinger; Frank W. m. Bessie Potteiger; Lillie m. James Miller; William m. Mattie Adams; Alice m. Elmer Yoder; Wellington m. Katie Schnabel; Ella m. Dr. M. Luther Huyett, a well-known young physician of Shillington; and Charles m. Bertha Curley.

FRANK W. BITTING was born March 23, 1862, and was educated in the township schools, which he left at the age of sixteen years. He was then reared on the homestead, and until twenty-eight years of age he worked for his father. In 1890 he located in Shillington and engaged in training horses, which he has followed with great success to the present time, having trained fully 200 horses, and being known throughout the State as an excellent judge of horse flesh. Among the fast animals that have been trained by Mr. Bitting may be mentioned the following: "Grace C.," 2:11¼; "Jenny Gratten," 2:11¼; "Rockey P.," 2:10½; and "Kid Colyer," 2:16¼. When he was but fifteen years of age he drove his father's "Ida" to 2:32½ at Manheim, then considered very good time, having driven the same mare before in her first race at Kutztown, which she won.

Mr. Bitting was married Dec. 17, 1895, to Bessie C. Potteiger, daughter of Jacob and Eliza (Shannaman) Potteiger (the latter a daughter of John Shannaman), and granddaughter of Jacob and Christian (Minnich) Potteiger (the latter a daughter of Adam Minnich). Mr. Bitting is a member of Lodge No. 485, Knights of Pythias, of Mohnton; Aerie No. 65, F. O. E., of Reading; Shillington Council, No. 186, O. of I. A. Like his father he is a Democrat. He is a good citizen of Cumru township, and was very much interested in the incorporation of Shillington into a borough. Mr. Bitting is very well known in his community, where he has many warm friends.

DANIEL Q. REIDER, a highly esteemed retired citizen of the Butterlane, Mount Penn borough, where he owns a pleasant residence, was born April 1, 1847, in Exeter township, Berks county, son of David and Ellen (Quinter) Reider.

John Reider, great-grandfather of Daniel Q. R., lived near the line of Oley and Pike townships, in the vicinity of Lobachsville. He was a farmer by occupation. His will was probated in 1828, the year of his death, and is on record in Will Book 6, page 221. Among his children were: Jacob, to whom was given the tin-plate stove and pipe; John, a farmer in Ruscombmanor township, whose children were—Rachel, Hettie, Betzy, Mary, William, John, Simon, Israel, Steffy, and Solomon; Mary, married to John Minder, of Friedensburg; and Mrs. Adam Haas, whose husband was one of the executors of his father-in-law's will.

Tradition says that George Casper Reiter, of Rockland township, who died in the prime of life in 1801, was a brother of John Reider. His will is recorded in Will Book 4, page 8. The Christian name of his wife was Catharine, and their children were: Martin, Godfried, and George and Jacob, who were minors in 1801.

Jacob Reider, son of John and grandfather of Daniel Q., was born in Pike township in 1786, and died there on his small tract located three miles above Friedensburg, Feb. 22, 1851, aged about sixty-five years. He and his wife, Maria Breidigan (1788-1834), are buried at Friedensburg. He was a weaver and wove all kinds of linen goods. His five children were: Aaron had children—Lizzie, Ellen, Emma, David, George and a daughter who was burned to death on a boat; Benneville was the father of Jacob and Morris; David is mentioned below; Sarah m. William Schmeck; and Rachel, born in 1828, is unmarried.

David Reider was born early in February, 1818, in Exeter township, where he was a lifelong farmer, and died Jan. 1, 1874, being buried at the Union Schwartzwald Church, of which he and his wife, who is also buried there, were Lutheran members. Mrs. Ellen (Quinter) Reider was the daughter of Peter and Susan (Ulrich) Quinter, the former a shoemaker of Exeter township. Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Reider: Daniel Q.; and Peter and Jacob, twins, born June 20, 1854. Peter Reider, a farmer of near Lenhartsville, in Greenwich township, married Sarah Ritter. He died in the fall of 1908, aged fifty-six years, and is buried at Dunkel's Church. Jacob, who is a fireman of Reading, m. (first) Ellen Border, deceased, and (second) Nettie Bohler.

Daniel Q. Reider attended the public schools until fifteen years of age, when he began working on the farm, continuing at agricultural pursuits for some years. Early in life he worked at Brumbach's woolen mills at St. Lawrence, was later employed as a sizer and blocker in the hat factory at Reading, and from 1888 until 1891 was employed as watchman at the Berks county jail. After leaving the latter position, Mr. Reider was engaged in various employments until his retirement. Since 1884 Mr. Reider has lived in his pleasant home in the Butterlane, with which he has a half-acre of fruit trees. In political matters he is a Democrat, while fraternally he is connected with Camp No. 61, P. O. S. of A., Reading. He and his wife attend Schwartzwald Church, of which they are Lutheran members.

In 1873 Mr. Reider married Sarah S. Sweitzer, daughter of William and Sarah (Bixler) Sweitzer, and to this union there was born one daughter: Alice, born in 1873, who died, aged three years, ten months, twenty-two days.

CHARLES BARTON HULL, the leading general merchant at Sinking Spring, was born in Pennville, Lancaster county, Sept. 2, 1867, son of Hiram R. and Margaret (Connell) Hull. When he was three years old his parents removed to Sinking Spring, Berks county, and he there received his education in the public schools, attending Oberlin's Charter Oak Academy until 1883. In that year he entered the general store of his father and remained with him until his decease in 1902. In the settlement of the estate Mr. Hull purchased the entire stock, and he has successfully carried on the business until now. He has filled numerous township offices, acting as a delegate to the Democratic county conventions; has served as secretary of the Sinking Spring Cemetery Company since the death of his father, the latter filling the same position for upward of twenty years; and succeeded his father as the local agent of the Reading Eagle, the father having been the representative for thirty years. Mr. Hull belongs to St. John's Reformed Church, Sinking Spring. Fraternally he is a charter member and Past Grand of Sinking Spring Lodge No. 660, I. O. O. F., and a charter member and past officer of Loyal Chamber No. 43, O. K. of F.; is a member of the O. U. A. M. at Sinking Spring; and of the Sinking Spring Fire Company.

On Oct. 22, 1890, Mr. Hull married A. Laura Shappell, daughter of Jonas Shappell, of Shoemakersville, Berks county, and they have one child, a son, Hiram.

Hiram R. Hull, who was born in 1828, in Leacock township, Lancaster county, was there brought up. When eighteen years old he located at Pennville, near Lititz, and engaged in the general store business, and this he continued for twenty-five years, and then, in 1871, removed to Sinking Spring, where he continued the general store business for over thirty years until his decease in 1902. He took an active part in the Reformed Church in Sinking Spring, and served as assistant superintendent of the Sunday school for twenty-five years. He was married twice. His first wife was Margaret Connell, daughter of Mark Connell, of Earlville, Lancaster county. She died in 1871, and by her he had eleven children: Franklin m. Lizzie Heffner; Charles; Emma m. John S. Yocom; Annie m. Henry S. Clauser; Maggie m. Milton Yoh; Martha; and five died young. Hiram R. Hull m. (second) Mary Lambert, daughter of John Lambert, of Sinking Spring, and by her he had one child, Louisa.

Samuel Hull, father of Hiram R., lived at Earlville, Lancaster Co., Pa., where he was a merchant for a number of years. He is buried at Ephrata. He was a member of the Lutheran Church, and was prominent in public matters. His children were: Benjamin; Hiram; Martha m. Tristrim Connell; Louisa m. Washington Winters; Emma is unmarried and is the only survivor of the family; Mary Ann m. Jacob Hiestand; Elizabeth was unmarried.

DANIEL HOLTRY, for many years an enterprising business man of Berks county, Pa., died at his home in Reading, Aug. 12, 1902, after having lived a retired life in that city for twelve years. Mr. Holtry was born in Cumru township, Berks county, Sept. 9, 1845, son of Joseph Holtry, who died when Daniel was but a few weeks old, the father of three children: Hiram, who died March 10, 1906; Sarah, wife of Thomas Moyer; and Daniel.

Daniel Holtry was reared in his native locality, and his education was secured in the public schools of the township. When a young man he learned the butchering business, and followed that very successfully for a number of years at Tuckerton, Muhlenberg township, Berks county, coming to Reading in 1890. Here he erected a fine residence at No. 132 North Eighth street, and he continued to live therein until his death, Aug. 12, 1902. Mr. Holtry was buried at the Alsace Church, of which he was a member, and his grave is now marked by a fine monument erected by his widow. His funeral was in charge of the Knights Templars, who turned out in large numbers to do him honor. He had long been active in the Masonic fraternity, belonging to St. John's Lodge, No. 435, F. & A. M., which he joined May 4, 1877; Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, R. A. M.; Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T.; and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.

Mr. Holtry married Adeline Gehret, daughter of Gabriel and Mary (Maurer) Gehret, the former a well known hotel man of Berks county, who also engaged in butchering and farming, and died at the age of sixty-nine years, as did his wife, both being buried at Alsace Church, their last resting places now being appropriately marked. Their children were: Amelia, Ella, Catherine and Adeline (Mrs. Holtry).

Mrs. Daniel Holtry resides at her home on North Eighth street. She is a faithful member of the Alsace Church. She placed a memorial window in the new Grace Reformed Alsace Church, costing $475, and gave $305 toward the masonry besides furnishing all the stone for the foundation from her quarries, located near Tuckerton. She is ever ready to give her aid to the cause of the church, and is very active in the Aid Society.

ISAAC S. HOYER, a successful farmer of Robeson township, Berks county, cultivating an excellent property of eighty acres, was born April 22, 1835, in Robeson township, son of Samuel and Susan (Seifert) Hoyer.

John Hoyer, grandfather of Isaac S., was a native of Berks county, and practically all of his life was spent in wagoning between Philadelphia and Pittsburg. He married Elizabeth Greenewalt, and they were the parents of these children: Peter, George, John, Samuel, and Susan (m. a Monyon). In religious belief the family were Reformed. Mr. Hoyer was a Democrat in politics.

Samuel Hoyer was educated in the schools of Robeson township, and at an early age engaged in farming near the old Quaker Meeting-house, where he continued all of his life, dying in 1849, at the age of fifty-three years. He married Susan Seifert, who died in 1860, when sixty-one years old, and they became the parents of these children: Joseph; John; Samuel; Isaac S.; Isaiah; Elizabeth (m. James Geiger); Susan (m. Henry Miller); Hannah (m. Elisha Wells); and Sarah (m. George Schaeffer). The family was Reformed in religious belief, and Mr. Hoyer was a stanch Democrat in politics.

Isaac S. Hoyer received his early educational training in the schools of his native locality, learned the blacksmith's trade, and later became a helper in the Seyfert-McIlwaine rolling mills at Gibraltar. In 1858 he commenced farming near the Quaker Meeting-house, but in 1867 he took charge of the "Beckerville Hotel," where for six years he served as postmaster. In 1873 Mr. Hoyer purchased his present farm, known as the Daniel Fry property, a tract of eighty acres, and here he has been very successful, his land being one of the valuable farms of the township. He has good substantial buildings and modern farm implements, and keeps a dairy of seven cows.

In the winter of 1858-59 Mr. Hoyer was married to Mary Fry, daughter of John Fry, and four children were born to this union, namely: Sarah E., m. to Jacob Kurtz; Hannah M., m. to John Spatz; John F., m. to Katie Kraemer; and Isaac N., who died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Hoyer are members of the Lutheran Church. In politics he is a Democrat, and he has held several township offices.

ALLEN G. GERY, of Siesholtzville, Berks county, was born in that town Sept. 7, 1856, son of Charles N. Gery. Extensive mention of his father and earlier generations of the family will be found elsewhere.

Mr. Gery attended the public schools of Hereford township and supplemented his early education by study at the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown. In 1873 he was licensed to teach school by the late Prof. D. B. Brunner, and later he received a license from Dr. S. A. Baer. When he left the Normal he was a member of the graduating class, but had to give up his studies because of poor health. He taught for three terms in Hereford township, at Siesholtzville, and later began to assist his father in the general merchandise business there. For six months he was with the J. H. Obold & Co. hardware establishment at Reading, but his father requested him to return to Siesholtzville and the general store, where he has been engaged as clerk ever since. He has been connected with that business for more than thirty years, and his services have been much appreciated. Mr. Gery has served four years as tax collector in Hereford township, having entered that office to fill the unexpired term of Elias Henry, who left these parts, and he was chosen for a full term at the end of his first period of service. He was appointed and served as deputy coroner of Hereford township for three years.

On May 21, 1885, Mr. Gery married Miss Mary L. Bittenbender, daughter of George and Maria (Hunsberger) Bittenbender, of Hereford township, and granddaughter of Jacob and Susanna (Jung) Bittenbender; her maternal grandparents were Henry and Polly (Gery) Hunsberger, of Hereford. Mr. and Mrs. Gery have two children, Leva R. and Allen W., the former a student at the Kutztown Normal School. The family are members of the Reformed congregation of Huff's Church, and Mr. Gery is a Democrat in politics. He has a very comfortable residence at Siesholtzville.

JONATHAN S. KNITTLE, a prosperous farmer residing near Kutztown, Pa., in Maxatawny township, was born Aug. 9, 1866, in Greenwich township, Berks Co., Pa., son of Daniel and Anna (Snyder) Knittle, and grandson of Benjamin Knittle.

To trace the Knittle family in Pennsylvania carries the investigator a long distance back. The only one of the name of Knittle recorded in the Pennsylvania archives up to September 17, 1753, was Joseph Knittle, who came to America on the ship "Patience," which landed him at Philadelphia.

Michael Knittle, probably a son of Joseph, was a resident of Richmond township, Berks county. He made his will May 9, 1789, which was entered June 13 of the same year. It is evident that he died between these two dates. His sons, Michael and Daniel, were the executors. His children are given as follows: Frederick, John Adam, Michael, Daniel, Rosina and Catherine. John Adam was a resident in Richmond township in 1785 and that year paid 18 s., 9 d. tax. In 1758 Michael Knittle was a resident in Maxatawny township, and in that year he paid £1, 1s. 6d. tax. In 1775 he is registered as taxable in Richmond township when he paid £5 tax. In 1815 Michael Knittle, Jr. was a taxpayer in Richmond township, paying 44s. tax.

Benjamin Knittle, grandfather of Jonathan S., was a farmer in Greenwich township, owning forty acres of land, on which he died in 1895, aged over seventy-two years. He was a life-long tiller of the soil. His wife was named Polly Adam and they were members of the Grimville Church, where both are buried. They had the following children: Daniel; Benjamin, whose children were Emeline, Ella, Florenda and Isaac; Hannah, m. to Isaac Strasser; Catherine, m. to Peter Adam; Rebecca, m. to Methusalah Conrad; and Polly, m. to John Lenhart.

Daniel Knittle, father of Jonathan S., was born in Greenwich township, Berks Co., Pa., Dec. 24, 1818, and died May 26, 1884, aged sixty-seven years. Until his marriage he remained under the parental roof and then purchased the farm which is now the property of John Seidel, and there some of his children were born. That tract contained twelve acres. He was a boss carpenter and had two gangs of carpenters in his employ, who erected barns through Upper Berks county, probably 100 of these substantial structures. He kept from eight to fifteen men employed and instructed many in the carpenter's trade. He was a skillful mechanic and physically was a very strong man, capable of long hours of hard work. For twelve years he lived on the farm now owned by Alfred Dietrich, and there his death took place. In politics he was a stanch Democrat and for many years he served in local offices, being useful as a school director and efficient as supervisor of Greenwich township. In religious faith he was a Lutheran and belonged to the Grimville Church, of which he was an official member. He was buried there at the side of his parents. He married Anna Snyder who still survives and makes her home in the families of her children. She was born Dec. 11, 1827, daughter of Harry and Polly (Reinhart) Snyder, of Dunkle's Church. Daniel Knittle and wife had fourteen children, as follows: Maria, deceased, m. James Walbert; Susanna is the widow of Oliver Helbert; Abbie, deceased, m. Daniel Sprenger, of Kutztown; Hettie is unmarried; Kate m. William Rohn, of Greenwich township; William follows the carpenter trade at Kutztown; Daniel is a farmer in Maxatawny township; Benjamin is a carpenter at Allentown; Lucy m. Clinton Angstadt, of Richmond township; Lizzie m. Frank Rohn, of Kutztown; Jonathan S.; Amelia m. Morris Hoch of Wyomissing; Alice m. Daniel Kline, of Kutztown; and Lydia m. Peter Wiltrant, of Richmond.

Jonathan S. Knittle attended the public schools, the last one at Grimville, after which he seriously took up farming and has continued in the same line all his life. He lived from 1892 until 1894 on Willoughby Graver's farm in Greenwich township, and then moved to John Miller's farm in Maxatawny township, not far from Monterey, where he remained three years, when the place was sold. In 1897 he settled on the S. R. Moyer farm, which he continued to operate for eleven years. On that farm is a stone house which was built in 1770, and is of historic interest not only on account of its age and preservation, but for the fact that during the Revolutionary War, on one occasion, General Washington and wife stopped over night under its roof. A hotel was conducted there until about 1840. In the spring of 1908, Mr. Knittle moved to his present place. This is the old Bieber farm and is now the property of Dr. U. S. G. Bieber. It consists of ninety acres and has been in the Bieber family for 100 years. On this property is an old oak tree, whose trunk measures thirty-two feet in circumference, and whose branches spread ninety-nine feet. Under it once stood George Washington and part of his army. Mr. Knittle is a modern, up-to-date farmer. He has fine stock and all kinds of improved farm machinery, including a hay loader, and he utilizes two gasoline engines. He keeps seven head of horses and twelve head of cattle. In addition to attending to his farming operations he has been agent for a considerable time for the Springfield and Domestic gas engines and also handles farm machinery.

On June 8, 1889, Mr. Knittle married Mary S. Sarig, daughter of Daniel and Catherine (Sassaman) Sarig, of Berks county. The parents of Mrs. Knittle had the following children: Charles, residing at Galveston, Ind.; Amanda, wife of Martin Koller, of Kutztown; Sarah, wife of Charles Wentzel, of Reading; Emma, wife of Emanuel Dietrich, of Greenwich township; Mary, wife of Jonathan S. Knittle; Ellis, residing in Kokomo, Ind.; Wilson, residing at Topton; and Albert, residing at Kutztown. Mr. and Mrs. Knittle have four children, namely: Eugene A., Alvin L., Stella I. and Harry W. Mr. Knittle and family are members of the Grimville Lutheran Church, also known as the Grimville Union Church. Mr. Knittle has always been identified with the Democratic party, his whole family having been of that political faith. He has efficiently filled a number of the local offices and for six years has served as school director and has been treasurer of the school board. He is one of the township's reliable and representative men.

JACOB S. ENGEL, one of the well-to-do citizens and prominent residents of Shoemakersville, Berks county, was born on the original Engel homestead, in Perry township, March 14, 1864, son of Israel R. and Rebecca (Strasser) Engel.

Jacob Engel, the progenitor of this family in America, was a native of Germany, and crossed the ocean from Rotterdam in the ship "Friendship," landing at Philadelphia Nov. 2, 1744. He left his native land because of the war of the Austrian Succession (1741-48). After living in his adopted country for some years the French and Indian war broke out (1754-62), and he returned to the Fatherland. During the Seven Years War (1756-1763) he again embarked for the New World, and soon after landing the second time, settled in Windsor (now Perry) township, on the farm in the possession of Jacob S. Engel, and there died from the effects of a kick of a horse.

Jacob Engel, grandfather of Jacob S., was born in Perry township, March 21, 1795, and died March 16, 1870, in his seventy-fifth year. He was the second of the name to own the Engel homestead, and was a good, practical farmer, driving about once a week to Reading. He never was on a train, but did all his traveling on horseback. He owned 212 acres of land and was one of the heavy taxpayers of the township. He was a well-read man and during the latter years of his life found much pleasure in his large and well stocked library. He took much interest in the early educational matters in Berks county, and was one of the firmest believers in free schools of his day. He was very public-spirited, and movements calculated to be of benefit to the community had his heartiest approval. Mr. Engel was a thoroughly representative man of Berks county, and his death was a loss to his township, county and State. Mr. Engel married Catherine, daughter of Adam Rahn, and their children were: Rebecca m. Joseph Bossler; Henry (1820-1900) m. Susanna Baer; John m. Katie Mosser; Susan m. William Koller; Sabilla m. John Kerchner; Israel R.; and Reuben, Sarah and Caroline died in youth.

Israel R. Engel was born July 1, 1834, and died April 27, 1905. He spent his entire life on the farm now occupied by Jacob S. Engel, was very industrious and thrifty, and was a successful agriculturist. He was a man of progress, and like his father was greatly interested in educational matters in his community, being a school director for nine successive years. He was greatly respected in his community, and for upwards of twenty years was a trustee of Mohrsville Union Church. On Oct. 24, 1857, Mr. Engel married Rebecca Strasser, daughter of Jeremiah and Elizabeth (Reichelderfer) Strasser, farming people of Windsor township (mentioned elsewhere). To Mr. and Mrs. Engel were born two children: Simon S., who died March 25, 1893, in his thirty-fifth year; and Jacob S.

Jacob S. Engel was reared upon the home farm, and was educated in the local schools, later attending the Kutztown State Normal School for three full terms. During the school term of 1883-84 Mr. Engel taught school in Bern township, but the following year accepted a clerkship with the large dry goods house of Fowler, Dick & Walker, at Wilkes-Barre, Pa. After filling this position acceptably for one year his father requested his services and he returned to the farm, where he remained until his removal to Shoemakersville in 1908. Mr. Engel was a thrifty and industrious farmer, his fine tract of 180 acres being in an excellent state of cultivation and still is under the efficient care of Mr. Daniel J. Snyder. The house, barns and outbuildings are in the best of condition. In March, 1907, Mr. Engel bought property in Shoemakersville, consisting of a fine house and twelve acres of land. It is located in a choice section of the village, and the land is desirable for building lots. The family moved to this new home March 24, 1908. Mr. Engel is a public-spirited citizen and is much esteemed in his district. He and his family are consistent members of Gernant's Union Church of Ontelaunee township, being members of the Reformed denomination. He takes a deep interest in church work and was for many years treasurer of the church, in which he has been deacon since 1895.

Mr. Engel married on his birthday in 1887, Susan E. Davis, daughter of Cyrus and Priscilla (Kerchner) Davis, of Penn township. She died without issue, March 19, 1898. On Sept. 23, 1899, Mr. Engel married (second) Carrie M. Reinhart, daughter of Solomon and Emma (Geisweid) Reinhart, of Moselem. Mr. and Mrs. Engel have had four children, namely: Helen R., Israel R., Rebecca R. and Ella R.

CLAUSER. The Clauser or Klauser family of Berks county is descended from four brothers of the name—Heinrich, George, Peter and John. The branch represented by Simon B. Clauser of Earl township, and Mahlon B. Clauser of Oley township, claim George as their ancestor. The family records are, however, quite complete, and a brief outline of the other branches is also given herewith: Heinrich Clauser, one of the four brothers, died in 1808 in Earl township. His will is on record in Will Book 5, p. 56, and his wife, Ottillia (Babb), and son George were his executors. The children of Heinrich were: George, Abraham and Heinrich.

George Clauser, son of Heinrich and Ottillia, lived and died in Earl township, where he carried on farming. He died in 1884, when over eighty years old, and is buried at Oley churches. He was twice married. By his first wife he had an only son, Charles, born in 1826, who now lives near Shanesville, in Earl township. George Clauser's second wife, Maria Moser, bore him six children, namely: Henry, Hannah, Maria, Caroline, William and Catharine.

Abraham Clauser, son of Heinrich and Ottillia, passed the greater part of his life in Earl township, but his last years were spent in Reading, where he died aged eighty-four years. His trade was that of a linen weaver. He married Kate Levengood, of Douglass township, and their children were: John; Elijah; Enoch; Mary; Aaron; Matthias; Henry L., born April 10, 1826 (m. in 1850, Lavinah Leh, and had children—Franklin, Henry L., Jr., and Jacob); Elizabeth; Daniel; and Sarah. Of these Henry L., Daniel and Sarah are still living, and Henry L.'s son, Henry L., Jr., is supervisor of Earl township.

Heinrich Clauser, son of Heinrich and Ottillia, was a shoemaker and hatter, and lived at Reading. He married Elizabeth Yerger, and their children were: Augustus, Henry, Catharine and Mrs. Frank Boyer.

John Clauser, one of the four brothers, lived in Robeson township, Berks county, where in 1836 he made his last will and testament. By occupation he was a farmer. He died in 1837, and was survived by his wife, Catharine. His children were: Lydia, Sarah (m. Henry Moyer), Daniel, John, Benjamin and Samuel.

George Clauser, brother of Heinrich, John and Peter, lived in Earl township. In 1782 when Earl township was erected his name and that of his son, George, Jr., appear on the tax list. In 1788 and also in 1806 the names of George, Peter and David Clauser appear on the tax list. Tradition says the Clausers of eastern and western Berks county were of the same branch. George Clauser's will was made Sept. 14, 1812, and probated May 14, 1814, and is recorded in Will Book D, p. 94. His children were: David, Jacob, Edward, George, Henry, Hannah (m. Samuel High), Peter and Mary (m. George Miller).

Peter Clauser, grandfather of Simon B. and Mahlon B., lived at Shanesville, where he died on his son's farm in February, 1857, in his eighty-sixth year. In his earlier life he worked as a blacksmith in Friedensburg, where in 1832 he built the stone house now owned and occupied by his grandson, Simon B. He kept a hotel for a number of years. He built the first barn at Hill Church, and in this church he was an active member and official of the Lutheran congregation. He was tall and strong, and had an abundance of dark hair. He married Anna Maria Moyer, who died aged thirty-five years. Their children were: Tobias, born April 17, 1802, died Feb. 9, 1868, was a drover and a justice of the peace at Leesport, Pa.; Samuel, born Oct. 9, 1807, died April 19, 1864, was a splader, farmer and fall butcher, and lived near Shanesville and later at Friedensburg; Daniel is mentioned below; Esther m. John Brumbach, of Earl township; Polly m. David Koch, of Earl township; Sally m. Samuel Bahr, of Oley township; Mrs. Daniel Acker moved to Ohio before 1848; and Hannah m. Samuel Brumbach.

Daniel Clauser, son of Peter, was born at Shanesville, in Earl township, May 10, 1812, and died April 26, 1878, and is buried at Friedensville Church, Northampton county. He was a foremost farmer in his district, and in his earlier life was proprietor of the Shanesville hotel, conducting it until 1852. In 1872 he moved to Northampton county, where his death occurred. Here he conducted a farm, limestone quarry and store, later renting the store to his son Levi. He was also interested in the furnace business. He was a stanch Democrat, for several years served as township auditor, and for more than forty years he was justice of the peace in Earl township. While in Berks county he attended St. John's Lutheran Church at Hillchurch, but after going to Northampton county became connected with Friedensville church. On Sept. 22, 1833, he married Susanna Brumbach, born in Earl township, daughter of George Brumbach. She died Sept. 11, 1887, and is buried at Hill Church. To Daniel and Susanna Clauser were born eight sons and six daughters, namely: Caroline m. Reuben Updegrove (both deceased); Simon B.; Peter died aged two years; Levi lives at Bethlehem, Pa.; Elizabeth m. (first) Hiram Brumbach, and (second) Ephraim Weidner; Rebecca m. Frank F. Cleaver (both deceased); Orlando lives in Northampton county; Amelia m. Albert Snyder, of Oley township; Hannah m. Frank Y. Kauffman, of Oley township; Mahlon B.; Mary Ann m. Elam Rhoads, of Earl township; Cyrus lives at Bethlehem, Pa.; Tobias lives in Northampton county; and Daniel B. makes his home in Reading. Daniel Clauser, the father, was a major in the old State militia for a number of years. He served as assignee and administrator many times, and was a man of considerable prominence in the county.

Simon B. Clauser, son of Daniel and Susanna, was born July 17, 1837, and for more than a third of a century has conducted a hotel in Shanesville, Berks county. He was brought up on his father's farm, and attended the district school and the Boyertown and Mt. Pleasant Academies. At the age of nineteen he began teaching, and taught for four winters, after which he took the hotel at Shanesville. Later he moved to a farm, and carried on agricultural pursuits until 1866, when he entered the commercial world. In 1871 he sold out and purchased the hotel built by his grandfather, and that he conducted until 1894, when he bought his present place. Farming and stock raising took up part of his time and attention. He bought and sold all kinds of cattle, sheep, hogs and calves, until April 1, 1909, when he sold all his stock to his son Peter.

In politics Mr. Clauser is a Democrat, and for many years was auditor of Earl township, finally declining re-election. He was postmaster at Shanesville from 1866 to 1873, and was urged to accept the office of justice of the peace, but steadfastly refused, although he frequently settled up estates and acted as guardian for many children. In stature he was of medium size. On April 20, 1861, he enlisted in Company D, 7th Pa. V. I., under Capt. George S. Herbst. He is a member of Glenn Crooks Post, No. 597, G. A. R., of which he has been chaplain since its organization.

On Nov. 20, 1858, Mr. Clauser married Hannah Mathias, daughter of Jacob and Hannah (Moatz) Mathias, and granddaughter of Michael Moatz. On Nov. 20, 1908, they celebrated their golden wedding. Their children were: Susan m. William Yerger, a merchant at Friedensburg; Kate m. James Ruppert, a farmer, thresher and sawyer in Oley township; Miss Alice is a dressmaker at home; Peter has farmed the homestead since early in 1909; and three died in infancy.

Mahlon B. Clauser, son of Daniel and Susanna, was born in the old "Clauser Hotel" at Shanesville, Feb. 24, 1851. His education was received in the Boyertown and Mt. Pleasant Academies, and he was but eighteen years old when he began huckstering, buying and selling produce to Philadelphia. He made the trip five times by team himself. For seventeen years he continued this line of work, and then sold out to his brother, Daniel B. Clauser, of Reading. He then engaged in the store and tavern business at Griesemersville, in Oley township. This property he bought in 1890, and until May 1, 1908, he conducted the store and hotel jointly. He then sold out the store to John C. Rothenberger, and continued in the hotel business. Since 1902 he has also conducted a creamery. He disposes of all his butter in Pottstown and Reading, retailing on an average 900 pounds a week. Mr. Clauser has twenty-four acres of fertile land, which he cultivates. The store and hotel building is a large four-story brick, of which the third floor is used as a lodge room, Lodge No. 1109, I. O. O. F., having met there since 1902. Mr. Clauser is a member of that lodge, and also of Oley Castle, K. G. E., which he joined in 1876. He and his family are members of Oley Lutheran Church, in which he is an elder, and since 1902 president. He was also deacon for some years, and a member of the building committee, having charge of the erection of the new church in 1908.

On Dec. 17, 1874, Mr. Clauser married Catharine Frohneiser, daughter of the late Abraham and Catharine (Keene) Frohneiser, of near Bechtelsville. Their children are: Elizabeth m. Thomas Kiefer, of Oley township; Charles F., is of Reading; Sallie m. Charles P. De Turck, a farmer of Oley township; and Dr. Monroe F. was formerly resident physician in Easton Hospital, but is now practising his profession in Oley township. In his political principles Mahlon B. Clauser is a Democrat, and for many years has served ably as a school director.

CONRAD MEINHOLTZ, a well known resident of Reading, Pa., who was for many years extensively engaged in the paper stock business, died Dec. 7, 1908, and was laid to rest in the Charles Evans cemetery. He was born in Brunswick, Germany, in 1844, son of John and Catherine (Heilman) Meinholtz.

John Meinholtz, father of Conrad, came to America about 1848. In his native country he had been engaged in weaving, operating four small looms, and on locating in Reading he embarked in the junk business, an occupation which he followed for the rest of his life in this city. He died in 1890, aged seventy-five years. His wife died in 1885, when sixty-seven years of age. They were the parents of a large family, all of whom are now deceased with the exception of John and Mary (m. Henry Smith). John Meinholtz and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church. In political matters he was a Democrat.

Conrad Meinholtz received his education in the schools of Reading, and when a young man learned the trade of shoemaking, which he gave up, however, when machinery came into general use. He next engaged in the junk business, which he followed for a period of thirty years, but his last years were lived retired from active work. He owned three large houses. Mr. Meinholtz's wife, who was Amanda Maltzberger, died in 1897, aged fifty-two years, leaving three children: George, a contractor; Henry, a blacksmith in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, at Reading; and Elizabeth, m. to Arthur Demarest. Mr. Meinholtz was formerly a member of the I. O. O. F. and the Knights of Pythias. In his political opinions he was a Democrat.

WILLIAM B. SMITH (SCHMIDT), a well known and highly respected citizen of Kutztown, who has retired from active labor and is passing the sunset of his life in peace and quiet, in the enjoyment of a well-earned competency, making his home at Greenwich and Walnut streets, was born March 23, 1841, near "Old Smithville," in Greenwich township, Berks Co., Pa., son of Samuel and Susanna (Baer) Schmidt.

Heinrich Schmidt, grandfather of William B., was a native of Greenwich township, owning and operating the farm now the property of George Buck, and here he died in 1853, aged seventy-seven years, being buried at Grimville. He had these children: Jonathan; Benjamin; Samuel; Mrs. Scharm; Judith m. Reuben Old, and Sally m. Daniel Schlenker. In 1800, Heinrich, John and Jacob Smith were taxables in Greenwich township. Either John or Jacob was the father of Reuben, another brother who settled in Michigan, and Solomon. The latter died of small-pox at Fogelsville, Pa. He had a son, Benneville, the founder of New Smithville, and the latter had an only daughter Clara, who is the wife of Dr. Charles D. Schaeffer, the former mayor of Allentown, Pa. Michael Schmidt (Schmitt, Smith, etc.) was one of the pioneers of Greenwich township, Berks county, where he settled prior to 1752. In 1754, the name of Daniel Smith is recorded as a tax payer across the line from Greenwich, in Albany township, and in 1755 and 1756 and later the names of Henry and Adam Smith appear on the tax list in Greenwich township. It is traditional and probable that Michael, Daniel, Henry and Adam Smith were brothers, or that Michael was the father of the other three. In 1773 Peter Smith and Stophel Schmit were among the taxables in Greenwich township.

Samuel Schmidt, father of William B., was born in Greenwich township in 1813, and died in 1899, after a long life spent at farming and the wheelwright's trade, his farm lying near Eagle Point, along the mill creek in Greenwich township. He is buried at Grimville. His wife was Susanna Baer, daughter of Johannes Baer, and they had these children: Mary m. Henry Shirey; William B.; Susanna m. William Palmer; Henry is of Hynemansville, Pa.; Daniel is of Kuhnsville, Pa.; Jonathan is of Eagle Point; Florenda m. Edward Harwick; and Wilson is of Maxatawny township.

William B. Smith was reared upon the home farm, upon which he continued to live until twenty-three years of age, and learned the wheelwright's trade from his father. He followed this trade for many years, and on reaching his sixty-second year retired. He has lived in Kutztown since 1868, and owns property with a 70-foot frontage and 180 feet deep at Greenwich and Walnut streets. Mr. Smith is a consistent member of the Lutheran Church.

In 1867 Mr. Smith married Catherine Roemer, born Feb. 22, 1835, daughter of John Roemer, and she died Dec. 6, 1902, the mother of seven children.

HENRY A. HELLER, one of the old and highly-esteemed residents of Reading, now living retired at his home in the city, was born in Reading, Dec. 2, 1825, son of William and Esther (Kast) Heller, and grandson of Frederick Heller.

Frederick Heller was born in Reading and owned the well known Heller's Corner, at Sixth and Penn streets, the present site of Sellers' clothing store. Frederick Heller died in Reading at an advanced age, the father of these children: William, Peter, Jacob, George, Lewis, John and Frederick.

William Heller was also born in Reading, and his early life was spent in clerking in his native city. He was a leading citizen of his day and was appointed justice of the peace for the district of Alsace, Maiden-creek and Ruscombmanor townships, his commission from Gov. Joseph Hiester, which was dated Sept. 4, 1821, reading: "that you shall hold that office as long as you shall behave yourself well." This old and interesting document is now in the possession of Henry A. Heller of Reading. While serving as justice of the peace William Heller resided in Pricetown, but after resigning from the office returned to Reading and resumed clerking until his death, which occurred on South Fifth street, below Spruce. In religious faith Mr. Heller was a Lutheran. He married Esther Kast, who died at Grater's Ford, at the age of eighty years, six months, twenty-seven days, and was buried in Montgomery county. He was buried in the Lutheran cemetery, Reading. Three sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Heller, namely: William, who died in Philadelphia; Daniel C., deceased, who married Hannah Heller, was a well known clerk and held position under Sheriff Potteiger of Berks county; and Henry A.

Henry A. Heller attended the schools of Reading at a time there were only two schools in the borough. After completing his education he learned the molder's trade, which he followed throughout life, being for forty years in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company. About eighteen years ago Mr. Heller retired, and since that time has lived quietly at his home, No. 215 North Ninth street, which he erected in 1861.

Mr. Heller married (first) Carrie D. Heilman, and to this union there was born one son, George. He m. (second) Susan Fink, who died Nov. 18, 1896, and was buried at the Charles Evans cemetery. Three children were born to the second marriage: Miss Mary E. resides with her father; Irvin F., a cigar-maker of Reading, m. Katie Spangler, of Harrisburg, Pa.; and Ida M. m. Howard Kock, of the Third ward, Reading. Mr. Heller voted independently, regardless of party lines, although his father was an old-line Whig. He is religiously connected with the Reformed Church.

SHULTZ OR SCHULTZ (Line of Balthaser). The early home of the Schultz or Shultz family of Berks county, Pa., was in Berthelsdorf, Saxony, Germany, where lived Mathias Schultz, born 1612, and died 1682. His son Melchior was born 1647, and died 1708, leaving among other children two sons, Melchior (1680-1734) and Balthaser.

Balthaser Schultz, son of Melchoir, was born in 1682, and died in Saxony, Germany, in 1727. He married Susanna Dieterich, and she with her four children accompanied about forty other followers of Caspar Schwenkfelder to America in 1734. Her children were: George, Susanna, Maria and Barbara.

George Schultz, son of Balthaser and Susanna, was born about Candlemas, in 1710, and died March 21, 1784. He was a farmer in Upper Hanover township, Montgomery county, Pa., and his descendants are quite numerous in that section. He married Anna Hoffman, daughter of Rev. Balthaser Hoffman, in 1737, and she died Jan. 16, 1796. Their children were: Susanna, Balthaser, Christopher, Ursula, Gregory and Eve.

Christopher Schultz, son of George, was born Oct. 7, 1746, and he always made his home in Upper Hanover township, Montgomery county. He died Sept. 10, 1830. He married Maria Yeakel, daughter of Hans Heinrich Yeakel, and she died Aug. 20, 1832, at the age of eighty-four years less forty-five days. Their children were: Johannes, Jacob, Susanna, Samuel, George and Casper (twins, born Dec. 20, 1781) and Anna.

Rev. Johannes Schultz, son of Christopher and Maria, was born March 11, 1772, and he died on his farm near Clayton, in Hereford township, Nov. 3, 1827. He owned the 100-acre property now owned by Daniel Diehl, and this he brought to a high state of cultivation. He was well known for his earnest piety, and was greatly beloved for his kindly heart and upright life. He is buried at the Washington meeting house. He married Regina Huebner, daughter of George Huebner. She was born Jan. 13, 1777, and died at the age of eighty-five years. Their children were: Sarah, Maria, Sophia, George (1801), Henry (1804), William (1806), John (1808), Susanna, Samuel H. (1811), Frederick (1813-1875, unmarried), Christina, Christopher (1818-1851) and Anthony (1827-1882).

Samuel H. Schultz, son of Rev. Johannes, was born in Washington township, near Clayton, Sept. 1, 1811, and died July 7, 1879, and was buried at Washington Church. He was reared upon the farm, and farming was his occupation as long as he lived. About 1842 he came to Hereford township, and bought the farm now owned by his son, Benneville S. He married Elizabeth Schultz, who was born March 21, 1816, daughter of Andrew Schultz, of Clayton. She died May 20, 1877. The children born of this union were as follows: Sarah m. William Hoffman; Lydia died in infancy; Benneville S.; Isaac (whereabouts are unknown); Alfred is of Philadelphia; Susanna died unmarried; and Elizabeth m. Levi Schultz, and lives in Upper Hanover township, Montgomery county, on the old Isaac Schultz farm.

Benneville S. Shultz, son of Samuel H. and Elizabeth (Schultz) Schultz, was born near Treichlersville, Hereford township, Berks county, March 18, 1849. Under his father he early learned the science of agriculture, and in the spring of 1880 began farming for himself, continuing to the present time. He has one hundred acres of excellent land, modern machinery, and his dairy is a model of neatness and is a great source of pride to its owner. He invented a milk-cooler, composed of a number of tin coils, 1¼ inches in diameter over which the milk runs, collecting below in a large receptacle. The water flows through the pipes in the opposite direction from the milk, being forced into the pipes from below and flowing out at the top. He had this cooler manufactured for his own use only, being the first one ever made to embody the above-named principles; but he did not apply for a patent. A Philadelphia corporation made a slight improvement on the device, had it patented and is now manufacturing thousands, selling all over the country. Mr. Shultz has graded Holstein cattle, and his barn is equipped with running water in the stalls. He was one of the organizers and first president of the Clayton Butter and Cheese Company, and for one year he served as a director. He is the owner of the first silo in the county, and is one of the most progressive and up-to-date farmers in the entire community. His farm, which before 1880 was the property of his father, came into the family in 1842, a Marsteller being the previous owner. It is a part of the Thomas Maberry tract, and one part of the house was built long before the war of the Revolution.

Mr. Shultz is a trustee of Perkiomen Seminary, an office he has efficiently filled since its organization in 1892. He is much interested in the cause of education, and has always discharged his duties as trustee of Perkiomen Seminary and member of the Committee on Buildings and Grounds of the school with great zeal and enthusiasm, thus contributing his full share toward making the Seminary a great educational factor in Eastern Pennsylvania. The Shultz family still adhere to the Schwenkfelder church, and Mr. Benneville S. Shultz has been the librarian and trustee of his church for many years. He is a Republican in political principle.

On Feb. 15, 1890, Mr. Shultz married Sarah U. Kriebel, daughter of Andrew and Lydia (Urffer) Kriebel. Five children came to bless this union, namely: Mary, a student at Perkiomen Seminary; Florence, who died aged seven years; Arthur, who died in infancy; Della; and Jerome.

ISAAC PLANK, who was actively and successfully engaged in the mercantile business, at the "Half-way House," in Maiden-creek township, Berks county, was born Aug. 23, 1830, in Caernarvon township, this county, and died at Blandon, May 11, 1908.

His great-grandfather, Dr. Jacob Plank, was as far as is known the pioneer physician of Berks county. He was a French Huguenot and settled in Oley township soon after the first settlement of that region, where in 1729 he signed a petition with other early settlers asking for the erection of that township. It is not known who his wife was, but he had four sons: Michael, John, Peter, and Jacob.

Peter Plank, the grandfather of Isaac, was born in Oley township, in 1748, and some years prior to the Revolution moved to the head-waters of the Conestoga, in Caernarvon township, where he purchased a large tract of farming land, and followed agricultural pursuits all his life. He was married to Frances (Franey) Kauffman, daughter of John Kauffman, a leading farmer of Chester county, and they had these children: Maria, born in 1783; Jacob, in 1785; John, in 1787; Christopher, in 1789; Christian, in 1791; Elizabeth, in 1793; Anna, in 1798; Samuel, 1801, and David in 1804. In religious belief Peter Plank was an Amish Mennonite, and for fifty years prior to his death served as a bishop, having charge of all the congregations in Berks, Chester, and Lancaster counties.

Christian Plank, father of Isaac, married (first) a Miss Look, by whom he had no children, and (second) Mary Hart, there being three children born to the latter marriage: Isaac; Samuel, who resides at Joanna; and Peter, deceased.

Isaac Plank was educated in the Friends' School of Maiden-creek township, and later attended Thomas Willet's pay school and Captain Meredith's school. After completing his education he hired out to George Lee, of Chester county, with whom he learned coach-making; and in 1855 went to Maiden-creek township and engaged in a mercantile business at Evansville. In 1860 he located at the "Half-way House" and conducted a store business there until 1894, when he retired and then established his residence at Blandon, a mile distant, where he lived in retirement until his decease. During his business career he showed great fondness for travel, having made several trips to California, and attended the expositions at Chicago and Buffalo.

Mr. Plank was made a Free Mason in Lodge No. 62, F. & A. M., at Reading, in 1872, and manifested an active interest in the welfare of lodge for many years. On numerous occasions he drove to Reading from the Half-way House to attend the meetings, and being of a friendly, sociable nature enjoyed them very much. He was highly regarded for his superior character, and showed a generous disposition to worthy persons, but without ostentation.

WILLIAM SUNDAY, owner of an excellent farm of 137 acres in Greenwich township, on which he is carrying on operations, was born on the farm adjoining his present home in 1839, son of Jacob and Leah (Dunkel) Sunday. All of Mr. Sunday's ancestors were active members of the New Jerusalem (Dunkel's) Church, and are buried in the cemetery connected therewith.

Christopher Sunday, great-grandfather of William, was born April 9, 1753, and died Dec. 13, 1825. He married Christina Bacharus, born April 19, 1753, died Sept. 7, 1825.

Martin Sunday, son of Christopher, was born Feb. 19, 1784, and died Jan. 13, 1857, and his wife, Christina Schaeffer, was born Oct. 15, 1787, and died June 3, 1852.

Jacob Sunday, son of Martin and father of William, was born Sept. 8, 1813, and died March 11, 1886. He married Leah Dunkel, who was born Sept. 14, 1814, and died July 12, 1888, and they became the parents of nine children, namely: Christina, born in 1837, m. William Sunday received his education in the schools of his native locality, and was reared to agricultural pursuits which he has followed all his life. He now owns a fine tract of 137 acres of land, on which are substantial out-buildings, a large bank barn and a handsome stone house surrounded by a well-kept lawn. He is well known in his locality for his kindness and hospitality, and for his many other sterling traits of character. With his wife he is a member and regular attendant of the New Jerusalem Church.

In 1867 Mr. Sunday married Miss Annie J. Luckenbill, who was born in 1845, and to them there have been born children as follows: Elwood, born in 1869, m. Ellen Levan, and has one son, Earl, born in August, 1900; Mary, born in 1879, m. George Heinly, and has four children, Elda, Elma, George and Edward; William was born Dec. 4, 1892; and Curtis Jacob, born July 24, 1895, died at the age of five years.

Mrs. Sunday's maternal great-grandfather, David Heinly, was born in 1765, and died in 1825. He m. Maria Magdaline Dinour, born Oct. 25, 1770, died Jan. 29, 1863, and among their children was Jacob Heinly, who died in 1876. Jacob Heinly m. The paternal grandfather of Mrs. Sunday, Thomas Lukenbill, m, Anna Wink, and among their children was James Luckenbill, Mrs. Sunday's father, who died Aug. 14, 1905. He m. Elizabeth Heinly, who now lives with her daughter. Although long past the three score and ten mark she is in good health and in full possession of her faculties. Mr. and Mrs. Luckenbill had these children: Elnora m. Rolandus Dreibelbis; James Wilson m. Alice Gerhard; Thomas Jacob m. Ida Mengel; Annie J. became Mrs. Sunday; Mary A. m. James Yeager; Oscar m. Katie Dietrich; Angeline m. George Seidel; Laura m. George Ramer; Charles died at the age of twelve years; and Elwood and Benjamin both died aged seven months.

ENOCH G. ROTHERMEL, a well known hotel-keeper of Perry township, who is owner and proprietor of the popular "Mansion House," at Shoemakersville, Berks county, was born in Maiden-creek township, son of John B. and Maria (Griesemer) Rothermel.

The progenitor of the Rothermel family in this country, Johannes Rothermel, who was a brave soldier of the German wars, was a native of Wachbach, born in 1688. In 1708 he married Sabilla Zimmerman, of royal blood, and in 1730 they, with their one daughter and five sons, crossed the Atlantic for the New World. Johannes Rothermel, however, did not live to see the new country, he dying and being buried at sea. The widow and her children landed at Philadelphia Aug. 29, 1730, the name of the latter being: Anna Maria (m. in 1729 Peter Feterholf, of Lehigh county); Laurence; Paul; Peter; John and Christian.

Paul Rothermel, son of Johannes, settled in Maiden-creek township in 1738. He was naturalized in 1744, and resided on his 250-acre farm all of his life. In 1847 he married Catherine Maurer, of Philadelphia county, and to them were born: Peter, Leonard, Paul, John, Jacob and Barbara.

Leonard Rothermel, son of Paul, married a Miss Barnett, and they had three children: David B., Leonard and John B. (the father of Enoch G.).

John B. Rothermel was a wealthy farmer of Maiden-creek township. He married Anna Maria Griesemer, and they had these children: Louisa, Harrison, Susanna, Enoch G., John, Yarak, Napoleon (died young), Albert, Jeremiah and Nicholas.

Enoch G. Rothermel obtained a limited education in the local schools and spent his youthful days upon his father's farm. He first worked at agricultural pursuits and during his first wife's lifetime he was proprietor of the hotel at Blandon. Immediately after his second marriage he bought the "Market House Hotel," Moss and Buttonwood streets, Reading, but after two years sold it to the Lauer Brewing Company, and bought the "Molltown House," which he conducted six years. He then purchased for $14,000 the "Mansion House" at Shoemakersville, which he has operated successfully since 1905. He is also the owner of the lot of ground opposite his hotel, for which he paid $5,100 in 1906, fifty acres of land at Molltown, in Maiden-creek township, and three tenant houses and one hotel. He is a man of influence in his community, and is highly esteemed by all with whom he has come into contact.

Mr. Rothermel has been twice married, his first wife, to whom he was married in 1872, being Isabella Rothermel, daughter of Peter and Sallie (Wiest) Rothermel. On Dec. 24, 1895, Mr. Rothermel was married (second) to Ida A. Schlear, daughter of John and Katie (Loose) Schlear, and to this union there were born three children: Enoch S., born July 23, 1897; Katie M., Oct. 29, 1899; and Mabel H., July 31, 1901.

DANIEL F. HIESTER, who carries on business as a carpenter and joiner at Reading, is also a surviving soldier of the Civil war, and belongs to one of the old families of Berks county. Mr. Hiester was born Nov. 30, 1843, in Spring township, Berks county, not far from Van Reed's paper mill, son of Benneville and Sarah (Brown) Hiester.

John Hiester, grandfather of Daniel F., passed his whole life in Berks county, where Benneville Hiester was born and reared. He married Sarah Brown, and they had six children, Daniel F. being second in order of birth.

Daniel F. Hiester was educated in the schools of Spring, Ruscombmanor and Heidelberg townships, attending until he was eighteen years old, when he learned the cabinet maker's trade. He continued to work at this trade until Feb. 6, 1865, when he enlisted for service in the Civil war, entering Company F, 192d Pa. V. I., in which he faithfully served until Aug. 24, 1865, when he was mustered out at Harper's Ferry, and honorably discharged at Harrisburg. The officers of this Company were Capt. John Teed and Lieut. Samuel Snyder. Company F was mainly utilized for provost duty. Upon his return from the army he engaged in carpenter work, and has continued in this line ever since, for seventeen and one-half years being connected with the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad as foreman bridge builder, and for nineteen years has been foreman for the firm of L. H. Focht & Son, which is the largest building and contracting firm in the city of Reading.

In 1866 Mr. Hiester married Sylvia Beiber (died Sept. 20, 1908), daughter of Benjamin Beiber, of Rockland township, and they have had eight children, of whom one son died in infancy. The others are as follows: (1) Charles, deceased, married Linnie Huber, who now lives at Harrisburg, and they had six children—Leory (who is married and has a daughter, Katherine), Harry (a private in Co. 88, C. A. C., Fort Mansfield, R. I.), Howard (deceased), Charles, Sylvia and Ivy. (2) Sally married Charles E. Miller, and had two children, Helen E. and Edith F., the latter deceased. (3) George A. married Sallie Levan, and has seven children—Pauline, George, Emma, Daniel, Elizabeth, Lydia and Samuel. (4) Lydia and (5) Corinna M. are both deceased. (6) Emma J. is a graduate nurse from the Reading Hospital, class of 1901. (7) Daniel married Bernie Gregory, and has two sons, Edward F. and James Gregory. In religious belief Mr. Hiester is a member of the Reformed Church, as was also his wife. He belongs to the Carpenters' Union.

C. F. EAGELMAN, a prosperous farmer of Union township, Berks county, who owns an excellent farm of 127 acres, was born Sept. 3, 1841, at Moselem Springs, Pa., son of C. Ferdinand and Catharine (Aulenbach) Eagelman.

Charles Frederick Eagelman, grandfather of C. F., was born at Osnabruck, Hanover, Germany, May 12, 1782, and emigrated to this county in 1802, landing at Baltimore, Md., where he remained a few years, and where he learned the coachmaking trade, his last piece of work executed being the body of a coach for Jerome Bonaparte. He then removed to Berks county, Pa., and engaged in teaching school for a number of years and officiating as organist for several German churches. About 1830 he removed to Reading and was associate editor of a publication called Der Readinger Democrat. He was a man of great scientific attainments and an expert astronomer. For a period of forty-three years he made the astronomical calculations for the principal almanacs published in the United States. He was also a skillful artist in copper plate engraving, and executed a number of superior designs. Mr. Eagelman died in Reading, Nov. 30, 1860, aged nearly seventy-nine years. His residence was at the northwest corner of Ninth and Penn streets, and he left to survive him: C. Ferdinand; Edward; Charlotte, m. to Daniel Hafer; Julia, m. to Henry Hafer; Wilhelmina, m. to Solomon Seidel; Catherine, m. to John Brissel; Amelia, m. to Dr. H. W. Bergner, and two grandchildren, Solomon and Lydia Seidel, children of his daughter Henrietta, who had married Solomon Seidel.

C. Ferdinand Eagelman, father of C. F., was born Jan. 30, 1811, and died in 1885. He was a musician of some note, and for many years was organist in the Moselem Springs Church. He also kept a general merchandise store at Moselem Springs and for a number of years taught school in that vicinity. His wife was Catharine Aulenbach.

C. F. Eagleman owns a fine farm of 127 acres, on which he resides. The land is fertile and in a high state of cultivation. He also is the owner of twelve acres near Birdsboro, on which has been discovered a rich vein of mineral ore, containing gold, silver and copper. Mr. Eagelman is the patentee of a glass burial casket hermetically sealed. In 1906 Mr. Eagelman was a candidate on the Republican ticket for the office of representative from Berks county, and ran far ahead of the ticket. In 1908 he was a candidate for the office of State senator. He is held in high esteem by the citizens of his community.

In 1863 Mr. Eagelman married Mary Beard, born near Joanna, in Robeson township, in 1842, and to them were born the following children: Anne, born in 1865, m. J. R. Langner; Mabel, born in 1868, m. William Allen Knapp, of Washington, D. C., and has one daughter, Margaret Eagelman, born in September, 1907; Alice, born in 1874, m. J. H. Zerr, of Philadelphia, and has two children—Karl (born in September, 1900) and Alice (born in August, 1908); Margaret, born in 1879, m. Arthur Wolf, of near Geigertown, and has one son, Charles Frederick, born in July, 1906; James Garfield, born in 1880, m. Eva Zerr, and has one son, Edward, born in 1908; and C. F., Jr., born in 1883, resides at home with his father.

JACKSON ROTHERMEL, a prosperous farmer of Windsor township, where he was born Oct. 8, 1859, is a descendant of one of the earliest settlers in that section and bears a name that for generations has been known in the annals of Berks county, while the homestead which he occupies has been in the family since the days of the first settler.

(I) Johannes Rothermel, from whom all of the name in America are descended, started with his family for the New World, but did not himself live to reach the land of promise. He was born in Wachbach, Germany, in 1688, and married Sybilla Zimmerman, who was born in 1708, and they had the following family: Anna Maria (m. in Wachbach in 1729, Peter Fetheroff); Laurence; Paul; Peter; John; and Christian. With all these children, the parents started in the summer of 1730 for America but the father died at sea, and on her arrival at Philadelphia that fall, the widow was obliged to make her own way in that strange land. But the grim determination with which she and her young sons set themselves to this hard task won its rightful reward.

(II) Laurence Rothermel, who was born in 1714-15, came to Windsor township in 1738, one of the first white settlers in that region, says tradition, and from that day the Rothermels have been identified with the development of Berks county. In 1746 Laurence Rothermel married a Miss Kuhns, of Alburtis, Lehigh county, and two children were born to them: Leonard; and Maria (m. John C. Romig). Mr. Rothermel died, and was interred in the graveyard of the old Zion's Church in Perry township.

(III) Leonard Rothermel succeeded to a part of the original homestead, and made it a nucleus for an extensive domain. Born in 1751, his whole life was spent in farming, and he became a wealthy and prominent man, at one time owning over 400 acres, as in 1812 he received by patent 176 acres, while he had previously acquired a tract of 225 acres. As his sons grew up, he gave to each in succession a part of the property, thus starting them out well, for in those days, with plenty of timber and stone, houses were put up at small outlay of actual money. Leonard Rothermel died Oct. 26, 1829, aged seventy-eight, and his wife, Susanna, who was born in 1762, passed away in April, 1819, aged fifty-eight. Their remains were interred, side by side, in the Zion's churchyard, where Laurence Rothermel had been buried. Their children were: Catherine, Daniel, Jacob, John, Elizabeth, Laurence, Maria, Peter and Hannah.

(IV) John Rothermel was born in Windsor township, and in the division of his father's property part of the original homestead came to him, and there he passed his life, engaged in farming. The barn, which is still standing on the place, was built by him. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Rev. Joseph Miller, and they became the parents of the following children: Sallie, Mrs. George Bautsch; Joseph; Peter, born in 1799 (m. Elizabeth Reber), and died in 1879; Leonard, who died when fifteen years old; and David, who died unmarried in 1903, aged sixty-eight.

(V) Joseph Rothermel was born on the old homestead, Oct. 11, 1825, and died there May 8, 1893. So eager was he for an education that he earned the money himself to pay his tuition in one of the pay schools. As a young man he learned the trade of a stone mason and worked at it fifteen years, but after that bought the homestead from his father and devoted the rest of his active years to cultivating it. At the time of his purchase the place contained 108 acres, but a small portion has since been sold. Joseph Rothermel married Rebecca, daughter of Jacob Rothermel, and they had issue as follows: Emeline, who died aged twelve; Frank, who lived only three years; James, who was drowned in the canal at Hamburg in 1902; Priscilla, who died of scarlet fever at the age of eight; Jackson, of Hamburg; and Joseph, of Leesport, Pa.

(VI) Jackson Rothermel grew up on the homestead, attending school till he was sixteen, and then remaining at home to help his father six years longer. In 1881 he moved to a farm adjoining his father's which he operated for eight years, while during this period he also did threshing for the farmers over a wide radius of territory. In 1889 he moved back to the old Rothermel farm, which has been his home ever since, and which he purchased in 1893. It now contains ninety-eight acres and is one of the best tracts in the county, for it is both of good soil and very well managed, so that Mr. Rothermel reaps bountiful crops. He is progressive and enterprising in his methods, modern in his ideas and devoted to the cause of education, for which he has worked on the school board for six years. He is an elder in the Reformed Church (Zion's), an office he has held for nine years, and he is one of a committee of five chosen for building the new Zion's Union Church, which is now nearing completion.

On Oct. 6, 1881, Mr. Rothermel married Ella L., the daughter of Alfred and Diana (Williams) Rentschler, the former now deceased. A family of six children has been born to this union, as follows: Diana R., born Feb. 13, 1882, m. William H. Dreibelbis; Joseph A., born May 28, 1884, attended the Keystone Normal, was graduated from Perkiomen Seminary in 1906, and from Franklin and Marshall College in 1909, and is now a professor and teacher at Perkiomen Seminary; Hettie E., born Feb. 26, 1890, m. Oscar C. Hein; Jackson, Jr., was born Nov. 2, 1893; Edna E., May 10, 1896, and Sallie M., Jan 24, 1900. The family are all members of Zion's Union Church, of Perry township.

CHARLES ALBERT LEWIS, who for ten years prior to his death had been a resident of Reading, Pa., was born Aug. 13, 1860, in Blue Ball, Lancaster county, son of Henry and Mary (Francis) Lewis, the former of Lancaster county and the latter of Philadelphia.

Henry Lewis was a farmer in Lancaster county and early in life was also engaged in the harness business, being quite prominent in his locality. He died in 1901, aged sixty-nine years, his wife passing away while in the prime of life, the mother of five children: William, Charles A., Henry, Elizabeth (unmarried) and Mary. The family were active workers in the Reformed Church, Mr. Lewis being an elder therein for a number of years. In politics he was a Democrat.

Charles Albert Lewis was educated in the public schools of Lancaster county, and when a young man learned the cigar-maker's trade. This he followed all his life, and while in the employ of Gumpert Bros., Reading, he died Nov. 7, 1902. He was quiet and unassuming in manner, honest and upright in all his dealings with his fellowmen, and had a kindly, Christian character, which made for him many warm friends. Mr. Lewis was married May 3, 1893, to Anna E. Henninger, daughter of John R. and Mary Ann (Hunter) Henninger. Mr. Lewis was a member of the K. G. E. and the Royal Arcanum. In politics he was a Democrat. He was a member of the Second Reformed Church of Reading, and is buried in the Charles Evans cemetery.

The Henninger family of which Mrs. Lewis is a member is one well known in Berks county. John Henninger, the grandfather of Mrs. Lewis, was born July 17, 1788, in Windsor township, Berks county. He was united in marriage with Sarah Rapp, in Reading, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Mr. Muhlenberg. He died Dec. 19, 1828, aged forty years and five months. Their children were as follows: William, born April 25, 1815; Mary Ann, Sept. 18, 1816 (died in March, 1817); Catharine, April 25, 1818 (m. Jacob Young); Frederick Rapp, June 25, 1820; Sarah Christiana, July 8, 1822; John Rapp, Aug. 18, 1824 (father of Mrs. Lewis); Hiram Lewis, Dec. 11, 1826; and Charles Bastion, Dec. 10, 1828 (died Oct. 24, 1900).

A full account of this Henninger family will be found elsewhere.

CYRUS P. KLOPP, justice of the peace, clerk for Recorder Jeremiah A. Bausher, and a well-known educator of Tulpehocken township, was born in North Heidelberg township, Berks county, Pa., May 18, 1863, son of Ephraim and Matilda (Gruber) Klopp.

Peter Klopp, great-grandfather of Cyrus P., was an early settler in North Heidelberg township. He reared seven sons, namely: Peter, Adam, John, Benjamin, Daniel, Joseph and Isaac.

Joseph Klopp, son of Peter, was reared a farmer and followed agricultural pursuits through all his active life. He married Christianna Stein, and they had eight children, namely: (1) Annie married Benjamin Bickel, who carried on a blacksmith business for many years. She died some time ago, the mother of four children, namely: Reuben, Benjamin, John and Christiana, the latter of whom died young. (2) Jonathan married and then moved to the West, where he died, leaving some children. (3) Jacob was a farmer in both Berks and Lebanon counties. He died on his premises near Myerstown, Lebanon Co., Pa. He married and had the following children: Allison, Ephraim, Lewis, Francis, James and two daughters. (4) Sarah married John Reich, after which they lived for a number of years at Bernville, but subsequently moved to a small farm in North Heidelberg township, where both died in advanced age. They had the following children: William, Harrison, John L., Christiana (m. Lewis Greth), and Kate (m. Albert Knoll). (5) Priscilla married Emanuel Ernst, who carried on farming in North and Lower Heidelberg and in Centre townships. She died on their farm near Belleman's Church. They had the following children: Henry C., George, Charles, Pierce, Lillie, Tillie and James. (6) Ephraim. (7) Darius married and resides in Missouri. (8) Amanda married Reuben Gerhart, who engaged in farming in his younger years. She died in the City of Reading, the mother of Priscilla, Susan, Mary, Henry and Charles.

Ephraim Klopp, father of Cyrus P., was born in North Heidelberg township, in 1830. He engaged in farming for his father until 1873, when he purchased land of his own, on which he lived until his death, which took place when he was but forty-eight years of age. He married (first) Eliza Gruber, a daughter of Daniel and Christiana (Seidel) Gruber. She survived but the birth of one son, Israel, who died in childhood. Some years later he married (second) Matilda Gruber, also a daughter of Daniel Gruber, who survived him for eighteen years. The children born to the second marriage were as follows: one died in infancy; Nathaniel, who is in the employ of the Iron Manufacturing Works at Lebanon, m. Lizzie Peiffer, and they had the following children, Paul and Claude (residing at Harrisburg), Ephraim, Catherine, Herbert and Warren (at home), and Hattie and John (died young); Agnes R. m. Richard F. Miller, a farmer and the manager of the Bethany Orphans' Home, at Womelsdorf, and has two children, Clayton and Claire; Cyrus P.; John Henry, who is engaged in farming on his father-in-law's property, in Jefferson township, m. Florinda Sunday, daughter of Jacob Sunday, of Krick's rolling-mills, and has four children, Lammas C. (a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School), Mabel (deceased), Elvey and Mary; and Reiley E., who is engaged in farming near Myerstown, Lebanon county, m. Mary Fogleman, daughter of Israel Fogleman, and has three children, Amy, Edna and Floyd.

Cyrus P. Klopp attended the public schools in North Heidelberg township until he was seventeen years of age, when he entered the public schools of Cumberland county, and when nineteen years old he was admitted to the high school at Bernville, Prof. M. A. Gruber then being the instructor. This school he attended one term, after which he was successful in securing a teacher's certificate, and he has since followed teaching as a profession, becoming widely known over the county. He has taught twenty-four winter terms and six spring terms, among these being: Peiffer's school in Tulpehocken township for six terms; Artz's school, one term; Livengood's school, four terms; Forge school in North Heidelberg, four terms, and Mt. Aetna Grammar school in Tulpehocken township for nine terms, and he has signed the contract for continued work at this point. In 1893, County Superintendent William M. Zechman granted him a professional certificate, and in 1894 it was made permanent, and in the following year there was added proficiency in algebra, vocal music, bookkeeping and civics. Mr. Klopp takes a deep interest in his professional work and loses no opportunity to advance himself in it. Since he has been teaching he has never failed to be present at the county institute, and has missed only one meeting of the local institute of his district.

In 1900 Mr. Klopp was elected justice of the peace to succeed Aaron Snyder, of Mt. Aetna, an office he has filled with the greatest efficiency. On numerous occasions he has also held minor offices of the township, such as inspector of election, township auditor, etc. In 1902 he was appointed a director of the Farmers' Mutual Assistance and Fire Insurance Company succeeding the late Gereon Deisher. He was appointed to a clerkship in the Recorder's office of Berks county, in January, 1908, by Jeremiah A. Bausher. Since the age of six years, Mr. Klopp has been interested in Sunday-school work. For three years he filled the responsible position of superintendent of the Peiffer Union Sunday-school, at Wintersville, and is serving in the same capacity in St. John's Reformed Sunday-school, at Mt. Aetna. During 1903 and 1904 he had charge during the summers of the general mercantile store of I. J. H. Bordner, at Mt. Aetna, when the latter with his family moved to Washington, Kansas.

In the year 1886 Mr. Klopp was married to Mary A. Stupp, daughter of Ezra E. and Rebecca W. (Keener) Stupp. Ezra E. Stupp was a soldier who served in the Civil war in Company H, 151st Pa. V. I., and was taken prisoner and confined at Belle Isle. Mr. and Mrs. Klopp have two children living: Wallace E., born in North Heidelberg township, Feb. 26, 1887, is preparing to be a pharmacist and to this end is learning the drug business in the store of Mr. Rumsey, on North 41st street, Philadelphia, and at the same time is attending a college of Pharmacy, that city; Elsie M., born in North Heidelberg township, Nov. 11, 1888, married Raymond M. Fisher, and has a daughter, Grace P., born Dec. 24, 1907.

In political sentiment, Mr. Klopp is a stanch Democrat, and on various occasions he has served as a delegate to important conventions. For six years he served as deputy coroner of his township, when residing in Tulpehocken. For two years, after his marriage, he lived in North Heidelberg township, then moved to Wintersville, where he remained twelve years, from there moving to Mt. Aetna, Berks county, his present place of residence. He is a member of Camp No. 69, P. O. S. of A., at Mt. Aetna, and has served in every office in the subordinate camps except treasurer, and at present is serving as financial secretary. He belongs also to Tulpehocken Council, No. 941, O. of I. A., of Myerstown. He takes much interest in both organizations. He is a leading member of the Reformed Church at Host, in Tulpehocken township.

JAMES G. WOLF, a representative agriculturist of Union township, Berks county, where he has served as justice of the peace since 1902, was born on the farm he now owns Oct. 15, 1869, son of the late Samuel L. and Mary L. (Geiger) Wolf.

Jacob Wolf, grandfather of James G., and his wife, Anna Mary Wolf, had the following children: Samuel L., Isaac, William, John, George, Elizabeth (m. to an Eppiheimer), Mary Ann (m. to a Hoffman) and Hannah (m. to a Geiger). With the exception of John all are deceased.

Samuel L. Wolf was born in 1831, and died in March, 1907. He married Mary L. Geiger, born 1832, died 1897, daughter of James and Mary E. Geiger, whose other children were: Sarah J. (Kerst) and Margaret D. (Sponagle), the latter being the only survivor. Samuel L. Wolf had two sons: James G.; and John R., born in 1858, and died in March, 1907, a consistent member of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church.

James G. Wolf was educated in the schools of his native locality and reared to farming pursuits. For eight terms in succession he taught the school which he attended in boyhood and in 1896 was granted a permanent certificate. He now owns an excellent farm of 120 acres which is in a high state of cultivation. Although a young man, Mr. Wolf was elected in 1902 to the office of justice of the peace, which shows the confidence in which he is held by the citizens of his community. He and his family are connected with St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church of which his esteemed father was a member.

On Oct. 15, 1902, Mr. Wolf married Miss Ella K. Hohl, born in Union township, in 1875.

JOHN Y. LEVAN, who died in Reading, Feb. 7, 1885, was for many years closely identified with the hatting business in the city. He was born in 1845, in Philadelphia, Pa., son of Isaac W. Levan, for many years president of the Penn National Bank.

John Y. Levan received his education in the schools of Reading, to which city his father had removed when John Y. was but a child. After receiving his literary training, his first work was at the hatting business, which trade he learned, and at which business he was employed all of his life. Mr. Levan was married to Emma Row, daughter of Henry M. and Angelina (Sitzinger) Row, and to them was born a son, Harry E. In religious belief Mr. and Mrs. Levan were Reformed.

Harry E. Levan, son of John Y. and Emma (Row) Levan, died in 1899, aged thirty-four years. He married Ella Ruth, by whom he had six children: John Y., Florence E., Daniel H., Ruth M., Harry E., and George L. (deceased). Harry E. Levan was a machinist by trade and was working at the Reading Hardware Works. He was a member of the Second Reformed Church, in the work of which he was active, his wife being connected with that religious body. Mr. Levan was popular in the city, and was connected with the Rainbow Fire Company, of which his father had been president for many years.

John Y. Levan, oldest son of Harry E., was born in Reading, Pa., Aug. 14, 1887, and is a tinsmith by trade. On March 22, 1909, he engaged in the grocery business. He married Sept. 10, 1908, Corinne T. Moser.

HOWARD C. RATHMAN, a representative citizen of Berks county, Pa., who is well-known as an educator in Brecknock township, where he conducts a five-acre truck farm during the summer months, was born Jan. 6, 1868, in Brecknock township, son of Samuel and Catherine (Griffith) Rathman.

John Rathman, grandfather of Howard C., was born in Cumru township, where for the major portion of his life he was engaged in farming. He died May 17, 1870, in his eighty-third year. He married Catherine Hoffert, and to them were born these children: Jacob, of Spring township; Henry, of Brecknock township; David, of Reading; William of Brecknock township; Samuel; and Peter, who lived with his brother Samuel and died unmarried.

Samuel Rathman was born in Cumru township, Oct. 21, 1818, and died May 5, 1893. For some years he worked at the trade of carpentering, but for forty years he carried on huckstering and produce dealing, being so engaged at the time of his death. He was a Democrat in political matters, and was one of the first school directors of Brecknock township, helping to establish the public school system in the district. He was one of the early delegates to county conventions, and was well and favorably known throughout the district. He was the organist of Allegheny Reformed Church for more than thirty years. Mr. Rathman's 144-acre farm, in Brecknock township, near Knauer's, is still in the family name. In 1844 Mr. Rathman married Catherine Griffith, born in 1828, daughter of John and Polly (Brendel) Griffith, and to them three children were born: Marguerite, deceased, wife of Peter Shupp; Elbina, m. to Adam Kern, a farmer on the Rathman homestead; and Howard C., who was born eighteen years after his youngest sister.

Howard C. Rathman was reared upon the farm, and at the age of fifteen years he learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed for two years. In 1885 he entered the Keystone State Normal School, attending four terms. He began his teaching career the same year that he entered the Normal, his first school being Trostle's in his native township, where he has taught twelve terms. He has also taught two terms at Allegheny school in Brecknock township, eight terms in Eshelman's school in Cumru township, and two terms at Knauer's school. He has become very popular as an educator, and since 1893 has held a permanent certificate. During the summer months Mr. Rathman conducts a small truck farm of five acres which was a part of the homestead and which has been owned by Mr. Rathman since 1887. In politics he is an ardent Democrat, and served the township as register assessor in 1904, 1905, 1906, 1907, 1908; clerk for the county in the office of Recorder of Deeds in 1903; delegate to various county conventions, and for two years was a member of the county standing committee. He and his family are members of the Allegheny Union Church, and he is much interested in the Sunday-school, where he was organist from 1895 to 1901.

On Dec. 14, 1886, Mr. Rathman married Ellen Steffy, born April 28, 1867, daughter of Ephraim and Elizabeth (Gebhart) Steffy, farming people of Brecknock township, and five children were born to this union: Samuel M., a school teacher in Brecknock township, and a student at the Keystone State Normal School; Henry, a lather, m. to Laura Esterly, daughter of Jacob Esterly, proprietor of "Beckersville Hotel," Robeson township; and Katie; Maggie, and Charles H.

Mr. Rathman was baptized as Charles Howard Rathman, but when he began his teaching career he wrote his name Howard C. and has so continued to the present time.

MARTIN H. WENRICH, a well-known and highly esteemed citizen of Marion township, Berks county, who is now serving as chief clerk in the county commissioner's office at Reading, Pa., was born in Heidelberg township, Berks county, Sept. 13, 1859, son of Mahlon and Harriet (Harp) Wenrich.

Joseph Wenrich, grandfather of Martin H., was born on the original family homestead in 1800, and died at Stouchsburg, Pa., in 1888. He was a lifelong and successful farmer, owning two properties in Heidelberg township, and was an honored and upright citizen. He married Elizabeth Denham, and they had three children: Mahlon; Caroline, m. to George Spangler; and Thomas.

Mahlon Wenrich was born on the original homestead, and lived in Heidelberg township until 1859, when he removed to Stouchsburg, and there resided until his death, Nov. 6, 1869. He was a farmer all of his life and a very successful one, owning a tract of land which is still in the possession of the family. He was greatly interested in all movements calculated to advance his community, especially in an educational way. In religious matters he was connected with Zion's Lutheran Church at Stouchsburg. Mr. Wenrich married Harriet Harp, daughter of Henry and Nancy (Nagel) Harp, of Womelsdorf, and four children were born to this union, namely: Martin H.; Joseph H., of Stouchsburg; and two sons who died in infancy.

Martin H. Wenrich attended the public schools of Stouchsburg, whither he had been brought by his parents when less than a year old, and later entered White Hall Academy, at Stouchsburg, which was then under the tutorage of Prof. W. J. Sechler, Prof. Allen R. Bucks and Prof. Isaac L. Moyer, his last teacher being Prof. W. Z. Deck. At the age of sixteen years Mr. Wenrich engaged in teaching at the Tannery school-house, in Heidelberg township, where he continued two terms, then spending nineteen straight terms in his home district. His last six years in the profession were spent at the Stouchsburg high school, then known as the Stouchsburg grammar school. He was one of the best known educators in his day in this section, and his former pupils speak of him in highest terms. During the interim between the school terms, Mr. Wenrich pursued various occupations, including paper hanging, painting, clerking in a store, and putting up electrical appliances in western Berks county, and in 1889 he was appointed to a clerical position in the Census office, Agricultural Division, under the civil service. Later he was appointed chief of the Filing Division, on G street, Washington, D. C., a position in which he served with great efficiency for some years, when he was appointed county controller's bookkeeper by John F. Ancona, the incumbent at that time. After three years in that position, Mr. Wenrich connected himself with the Reading Telegram, in the capacity of advertising manager for one year, and at the end of that time he was appointed by the county commissioners who took office Jan. 1, 1906, to the position of chief clerk, in which he has served ever since to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Socially Mr. Wenrich is connected with Washington Camp No. 237, P. O. S. of A., and the Ancient Order of Good Fellows, both of Stouchsburg. With his family he attends Zion Lutheran Church, and he has served in various capacities. He was a member of the building committee which erected the present handsome edifice, and was superintendent of the Sunday-school for four years. He has been president of the Marion school board since 1904, and is greatly interested in educational movements, having been a prominent member of the Berks County School Directors' Convention. He is an active Democrat in politics, and a leader of his party in his section, having been delegate to a number of State conventions.

On June 17, 1879, Mr. Wenrich married Emma I. Reed, daughter of Samuel and Leah (Rutter) Reed, of Stouchsburg, and they have two children: Herbert Reed, of Reading; and Miriam Dorothy.

LEANDER SCHNEIDER, who resides at No. 1255 Spruce street, Reading, Pa., is at present acting in the capacity of foreman of the knitting department of the Pennsylvania Knitting Mills. Mr. Schneider was born Oct. 29, 1860, at York, Pa., son of Andrew and Elizabeth (Benkert) Schneider.

Andrew Schneider was a native of Germany, born in 1820, and when a young man came to this country, settling at York, Pa., where he engaged in brick manufacturing until an injury to his leg in 1872 caused his retirement from active life. He removed to Reading in this year, and here died in November, 1876. Mr. Schneider married Elizabeth Benkert, also born in Germany, and to them were born seven children: John, a moulder of Reading, m. Mary Resh; Annie m. John Glaser, an employe of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company; Leander; Ellen m. George Smith, an employe of the Reading Iron Works; Andrew died single at the age of twenty-three years; Michael, a caterer of New York City, is married; and Miss Mary, resides in Reading.

Leander Schneider obtained his early education in the parochial school at York, Pa., and later attended St. Paul's Catholic Church parochial school of Reading, after leaving which, at the age of fourteen years, he began working for the Reading Iron Works. After about three years with this company he became employed by the Reading Hardware Works, where he started as an errand boy and worked his way up to the foremanship of the japanning and bronzing department, continuing in the service of this company for a quarter of a century. In the summer of 1901 Mr. Schneider became "all-'round man" for the Pennsylvania Knitting Mills, and he has continued with this concern to the present time, now being foreman of the knitting department. In political matters Mr. Schneider is a stanch Democrat, and takes an active interest in his party's success, for ten years being register assessor of the Second precinct of the Tenth ward. He is fraternally connected with Commandery No. 271, Knights of St. John of Reading; and Court Conrad Weiser, Foresters, also of Reading. He and his family attend St. Paul's Catholic Church.

On April 20, 1884, Mr. Schneider married Margaret Folk, born Jan. 29, 1861, daughter of Henry and Hannah Folk, natives of Germany, and to this union there were born three children: Joseph, who died in infancy; and Elizabeth Ellen and Catherine Cecilia, at home.

DANIEL B. FOREMAN, one of the prominent and substantial citizens of Caernarvon township, and an honored veteran of the great Civil war, in which struggle he received injuries from which he has never entirely recovered, is a highly esteemed resident of Morgantown, where he owns a comfortable home. Mr. Foreman was born January 9, 1839, near Morgantown, son of Peter and Elizabeth (Stier) Foreman.

Mr. Foreman was left an orphan when quite young, and at a very early age apprenticed himself out as a farm hand, afterward learning the carpenter's trade, which he has followed with much success during the greater portion of his life. His home in Morgantown is one of the substantial residences of his locality, and adjoining it are several acres of land, which also belong to Mr. Foreman. He is a self-made man in every sense of the word, and as such is esteemed and respected by all who know him. On Sept. 11, 1861, Mr. Foreman enlisted for service in the Union army, becoming a private in the 53d Pa. V. I., Col. John R. Brook. During his long and active career as a soldier, Mr. Foreman participated in many bloody battles, and at Fredericksburg he was badly wounded. From the battle-field he was sent to Campbell Hospital, Washington, D. C., from which he was discharged March 10, 1863, but he still carries two bullets.

Mr. Foreman married Miss Ellen Weiler, born Feb. 3, 1845, daughter of Levi and Sarah (Hartz) Weiler, and to this union there was born one son: Howard, of Reading, born Aug. 27, 1864 (m. Miss Florence Morris, of Chester county, and has one child, Edith).

Daniel B. Foreman is a Republican in politics, and at present is serving efficiently as treasurer of the board of township supervisors.

JESSE E. EACHES, junior member of the firm of Runyeon & Eaches, dealers in coal, wood, flour and feed, whose place of business is situated at the corner of Elm and Reed streets, Reading, Pa., was born Aug. 2, 1852, son of John F. and Rebecca (Dunkle) Eaches.

His grandfather, Jesse Evans Eaches, was a native of New England, of Welsh extraction, and spent the latter part of his life in Reading, Berks Co., Pa., where he died. He was at one time well-known as a stage man.

John F. Eaches, son of Jesse Evans, and father of Jesse E. Eaches, was for many years employed as a machinist by the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company. He and his wife had six children, namely: Benjamin F., William R., Albert W., Bessie, Adalaide and Jesse E.

Jesse E. Eaches received his literary training in the public schools of Reading, after leaving which he was employed with F. J. Drake in the manufacture of jewelry, continuing in this position for two and one-half years. He then entered the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, for which he traveled from place to place for thirteen and one-half years as general utility man. On Oct. 11, 1882, Mr. Eaches engaged in his present business with George O. Runyeon, and they now have a well-established trade in Reading, their business honesty and integrity having won them the confidence of the people of the community. In 1892, on account of the large increase in business, the partners were obliged to seek larger quarters, and erected their present building, a three-story brick at Elm and Reed streets.

Mr. Eaches was married in 1877 to Laura A. Runyeon, daughter of George W. and Julianna C. (Strohecker) Runyeon, of Reading, Pa., and children as follows have been born to this union: Lester M., Florence M., Laura M., Beulah C., and Julia A.

In politics Mr. Eaches is neutral, taking only a good citizen's interest in public matters. He is a member of the Reformed Church, while his wife is connected with the Lutheran denomination. Mr. Eaches is a Mason of high standing, being a member of Reading Lodge, No. 435, Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, Reading Commandery, No. 42, and the Mystic Shrine.

DAVID G. MENGEL, residing about two miles southwest of Virginville, in Perry township, Berks Co., Pa., is a retired farmer, and at present is serving his township as supervisor. He was born March 1, 1850, on the place where he now resides, and where he has spent the greater part of his life.

Nicholas Mengel, the first of the family to come to America, was born in Germany, and in the middle of the eighteenth century in company with three other young men of his country came to America. He was a redemptioner, and was bound out until the cost of his passage was paid to a Mr. Gernand, a farmer in Maiden-creek township, Berks Co., Pa. After his freedom was obtained, he remained with his employer for three or more years. By frugality, industry and economy he earned sufficient means to purchase a tract of 300 acres of land in Maiden-creek township, and from that time until his death he engaged in its cultivation. He had a number of children, among whom were: Frederick, Peter and Jacob.

Peter Mengel, son of Nicholas, moved from his native township to Fritztown, in Berks county, and there some years operated a saw-mill. As early as 1789 he moved to Caernarvon township, Berks county, and purchased 300 acres of land, and during the remainder of his life operated a sawmill. His sons were: (1) Henry, born in 1784, m. Hannah Schoener (1788-1868), and had children: Matthias, Peter, Christina, Hannah, Amelia and Eva Ann; (2) Abraham. Matthias Mengel, son of Henry and Hannah (Schoener), was born in 1814, and became an honored member of the Berks county Bar, and held a number of public offices. He died in 1905, at the age of ninety-one, the father of Henry, Jonathan P., Matthias and Levi W.

Jacob Mengel, son of Nicholas the emigrant, was born in 1777, and he died in his eighty-eighth year. He married Elizabeth Reichert, and to this union were born: Anna, Solomon, Jacob, Jeremiah, Elizabeth, Martin, Susanna (wife of John De Turck), Thomas, Jonas and John. Jacob Mengel was a stone mason by trade, working at that occupation for many years, and finally giving it up to engage in agricultural pursuits, purchasing the Mengel homestead, now owned by Mr. David G. Mengel. He and his family are buried at Zion's Church in Perry township, of which church they were members, as have been the Mengels to the present time.

Thomas Mengel, son of Jacob, was born July 29, 1817, and he died in his eighty-sixth year. He married Catherine Gruber, daughter of John Adam Gruber, and she died June 22, 1888, in her seventy-second year, the mother of children as follows: Elizabeth m. Isaac U. Leiby; Susannah m. Elias Hollenbach; Mary m. Jacob Muntz; Abraham m. Sarah Seidel; and David G. Thomas Mengel was a carpenter by trade, and at this he worked for sixteen years, leaving it in 1850 to engage in farming, in which he successfully continued until 1877, when he retired and so lived until his death. He was a trustee of the church for many years.

David G. Mengel, during his active life, was engaged in farming, and he is now living retired, enjoying the fruits of his early labors. The farm is rented to one of his sons-in-law, Charles Kline. Mr. Mengel has a comfortable home, with fresh running water at hand, and a beautiful well kept lawn surrounds it. Mr. Mengel is a Democrat, and on various occasions has served his township in positions of honor and responsibility. He has served as auditor, school director and supervisor, and in his dealings with his fellowmen he has always been straightforward, bearing an enviable reputation for honesty and integrity.

On Sept. 15, 1876, Mr. Mengel married Louisa Bankes, daughter of Benjamin and Esther (Leiby) Bankes. To this union were born: Katie E. m. Lyman Becker, of Shoemakersville, Pa.; Mary L. m. Charles Kline, of Virginville; Hettie C. m. Wilson J. Adam, of Virginville; and Miss Annie B. is at home. The family are much esteemed for their many sterling qualities.

On the Mengel farm is an unexplored cave, of limestone formation. The entrance is large, but up to this time no one has ventured farther than 350 feet into the interior. Occasionally a current of rushing air from the opening is of sufficient strength to take off a man's hat, and during cold winter weather the rush of air caused the limestone rocks at the entrance to be covered with frost. There are a number of similar caves in the vicinity, and many believe that all are connected with the famous Crystal cave a few miles distant.

J. GEORGE ERNST, the popular proprietor of the "Hotel Brunswick," situated at No. 700 Eighth street, one of Reading's well patronized hostelries, was born in Reading, July 21, 1856, son of George and Christina (Buzzard) Ernst.

Johannes Ernst, his grandfather, lived at Omden, Oberamt Kirchheim-unter-Teck, Germany. He was a tailor by trade, and owned a farm of thirty-six acres. He died about 1875, when past seventy years of age. His children were: John located in Irishtown, where his children now live; George; Conrad came to America in 1845, with John, and lives in Reading; Catharine and Michael.

George Ernst was born Aug. 18, 1830, in Omden, Germany, and came to America in 1842, landing at Castle Garden, N. Y., whence he came to Reading, in which city he died July 26, 1907. He was a stone and brick mason by trade, but later made tar pavements, and became a contractor of some reputation as well as a large property owner. From 1866 until his death George Ernst resided at No. 502 South Sixth street. He was a Democrat in political matters, and a consistent member of the German Lutheran Church, to the charities of which he contributed liberally. Mr. Ernst was buried at the Lutheran cemetery. He was married to Christina Buzzard, who was born at Stuttgart, Germany, Aug. 18, 1830, the same date as her husband's birth, and she died at Reading, July 13, 1904. Mr. and Mrs. Ernst had the following seven children: J. George; Barbara died unmarried; Ellen, deceased, m. D. V. Besser, of Philadelphia; Rosa is single; and three died in infancy. Mr. Ernst's large estate was settled up by his son, J. George.

J. George Ernst spent his boyhood days at Reading, his education being secured in the city's public schools, which he left at the age of fifteen years to learn the hatting trade at John R. Miller's hat factory. He continued there for a period of four years, and then he engaged at various occupations for several years. In 1895 he took up the hotel business at Eleventh and Spruce streets. He has been a hotel proprietor ever since, and since 1904 has been conducting the well-known "Hotel Brunswick." Mr. Ernst is popular fraternally, and is connected with Reading Castle No. 49, K. G. E. With his family he attends the German Lutheran Church of Reading, and the family burial ground is at Aulenbach cemetery.

In 1893 Mr. Ernst married Mary Weidner, daughter of James W. and Margaret (Madeira) Weidner. They have had no children.

JOHN P. HOFFMAN, secretary of the board of school directors of Marion township, Berks county, and a leading agriculturist and former school teacher, was born Nov. 14, 1868, in Marion township, son of John and Lavina (Peiffer) Hoffman.

Johannes Hoffman, great-great-grandfather of John P., came with his parents from Germany. His father, the ancestor of this numerous Berks county family, was a taxable in Heidelberg township (now Lebanon county) a year after Berks county had been separated from Lancaster county, and was one of the earliest pioneers of that section. His children were as follows: Johannes, Elizabeth, Maria, Catherine, Conrad, Barbara, Michael, Jacob and David (who was born on the sea while the family was making the trip to America).

John Hoffman, great-grandfather of John P., lived on the Hoffman homestead at Avon, Lebanon county, which consisted of 150 acres and has been in the family for 125 years, it now being owned by Abraham Kreider, who is a double son-in-law. John Hoffman married a Miss Schaeffer, and they had these children: Isaac; Jacob; Michael; Ann, who died unmarried; Catherine, m. to John Witmoyer; Mary m. to Isaac Wengert, of Columbus, Ohio; Elizabeth, m. to Isaac Lutz; and Sarah, who died unmarried. Michael, of the above family, married Elizabeth Hunsicker, daughter of Christian Hunsicker, of Hamlin, Pa., and their ten children were: John, Samuel, David, William, Amanda, Nancy, Michael, Elizabeth (m. Abraham Kreider), Sarah, and Lydia (second wife of Abraham Kreider). Michael Hoffman, son of Michael, grandson of Johannes, great-grandson of Johannes and great-great-grandson of Jost the ancestor, was born at Avon, Lebanon Co., Pa., Sept. 30, 1849, and was reared on the homestead. In 1880 he came to Berks county, settling near Womelsdorf, where he owns a twenty-eight-acre tract of land. Mr. Hoffman owns the old family record, which was kept by the ancestors in book form, and is in a good state of preservation. Mr. Hoffman's wife is Amanda, daughter of George Scholl of Marion township. They have no children.

Isaac Hoffman, grandfather of John P., was born in 1811, in South Lebanon township, where he died in 1890, aged seventy-eight years, after a long life spent in agricultural pursuits. He is buried at Christ Evangelical (Tulpehocken) Church, of which his son John and all his grandchildren are members. He married Catherine Smith (1814-1877), and their children were: Mary m. Evan Shaak; John; Sarah m. Henry Peiffer; Isaac m. Kate Groh, and had children, Mary, Charles, Archie, Hermie, Herbert and Elsie; and Elizabeth m. Adam Hunsicker. All of the above children are deceased with the exception of John.

John Hoffman, father of John P., was born in South Lebanon township, Lebanon Co., Pa., Aug. 28, 1836. He was educated in the common schools and attended Witmer's Academy at Palmyra, later teaching school for one term at Prescott in South Lebanon township. Mr. Hoffman then engaged in farming, and in 1860 with his father moved to the property which he now owns. In 1890 after his father's death he bought the property which consists of 132 acres, on which now stands a barn 40x115 feet, which was built in 1828 by Jacob Stewart. The original part of the residence building is a log house, pebble-dashed, with small windows and thick walls, and a fine spring in the cellar, and was probably used for an Indian fort in the old days. For many years it was used as a distillery and later as a tenant house, and is one of the oldest buildings in this section. The present residence was erected in 1785 by an Etschberger, and the addition in 1829 by Jacob Stewart. The following inscription is an exact transcription of what is cut into a brown sandstone 18x30 inches, walled into the front of the house above the door, a silent witness as to the character of the occupant:

"GOTT. GEASCHE. DISES. HAUS.
UND. WER' DA. GETH. EIN. UND
AUS. ERGERTH. AUS. ODER. EIN
SO. STETH. DER. TOT. UND. WARDET. MEIN. JACOB ETSCHBERGER
UND ESTHER ETSCHBERGER. 1785"

John Hoffman was a school director in his district for many years. In 1863 he married Lavina Peiffer (1844-1907), daughter of Jacob and Sarah (Heide) Peiffer. Their children are as follows: Emma L. (m. William Forry); John P.; and Annie L., Adam I., and Sadie A., at home.

John P. Hoffman was reared to agricultural pursuits, and his early education was secured in the public schools, which he attended until his fifteenth year, his last district school being Fisher's, taught by Prof. Calvin A. Gruber. He then entered Palatinate College, at Myerstown, which he attended for several terms, and was licensed to teach by Prof. D. S. Keck in 1889. He taught four terms at Fisher's school, but since that time has been engaged in agricultural pursuits.

Mr. Hoffman is a Democrat in politics, and first served as a member of the school board to fill an unexpired term. He was elected to the office in 1903, and was re-elected, now serving as secretary of the board.

Adam I. Hoffman, brother of John P., born March 2, 1877, on the old Hoffman stand in Marion township, Berks county, was educated in the schools of his native locality and Stouchsburg Grammar school, which was taught by Samuel B. Spatz and Martin H. Wenrich. He was reared upon the home farm, and has always been engaged in agricultural pursuits.

REV. M. L. HERBEIN, the genial and beloved pastor of Spiess, Trinity, Bern and Shalter's Reformed congregations, is a member of one of the oldest families in this section of the State. The Herbein family is of French origin, the name being originally spelled Harpin, and was founded in America in 1725 by two brothers, one of whom was named Peter, who came from Alsace-Lorraine and settled in Oley township, Berks county, on a farm near the township line. One of these brothers had a son, who settled near Leesport, Pa., and from this son the Herbeins of Reading are directly descended.

William Herbein, the grandfather of Rev. M. L., married Sarah Zacharias, and to them were born children as follows: John died Dec. 31, 1908; William was the father of Rev. M. L.; Thomas died April 30, 1907; Catherine married Percival Baer, who died Feb. 28, 1909; and Amelia, who died Dec. 18, 1904, was married to William R. Bucks, of Reading. In religious belief the family were adherents of the doctrines of the Reformed Church.

M. L. Herbein was at home on the farm until eighteen years of age. He received his early education in the public schools of Spring and Bern townships, Berks county, and during his thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth years attended Professor Brunner's Scientific Academy at Reading, Pa., for which attendance he walked seven miles mornings and evenings. He next entered the Keystone State Normal School, at Kutztown. After teaching for one term in Bern and four terms in Cumru township, and holding a teacher's permanent certificate, he prepared privately in the higher branches, and then entered the theological seminary of the Reformed Church at Franklin and Marshall College, located at Lancaster, Pa., being graduated therefrom May 13, 1897. He was licensed May 28, 1897, to preach the Gospel, and on June 20th of that year was ordained, at the age of twenty-five, pastor of Spiess Reformed congregation. On July 11, 1897, he began conducting services in the public school-house at Dengler's, which resulted in the organization of Trinity Reformed Church at Mt. Penn. On April 1, 1900, he became chaplain of the Berks county almshouse. On Aug. 6, 1905, he was elected pastor of the Bern Reformed Church, where in his youth he was confirmed in this faith. On July 5, 1908, he was unanimously elected pastor of Shalter's Reformed Church. His oratorical talent is very evident.

On Dec. 26, 1898, Rev. Mr. Herbein married Miss Sue Rothermel, daughter of John K. Rothermel, of near Fleetwood, Pa., whose sketch appears in this historical work. In politics he is a Democrat. He resides at No. 1818 Perkiomen avenue, Reading, Pennsylvania.

For some time Rev. Mr. Herbein was employed by the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, of New Haven, Conn., who recognized his skill as a marksman, by which he has excelled professional shooters at different times.

ZION'S (commonly called SPIESS) REFORMED AND LUTHERAN UNION CHURCH, Upper Alsace.—This church is located on a high elevation in the eastern section of the township. It has always been held that the first edifice for religious services was built of logs, in 1774, the year in which Victorius Spiess donated the land for church purposes. The trustees then were Victorius Spiess and Paul Feger, who was an officer at the battle of Paoli. Tradition has it that this log church was built on the tract about five years before Spiess made the donation. The present church book of the Reformed congregation is marked Volume II. On one of the opening pages it is stated to be a continuation of the book started by the congregation in 1774, which is Volume I. Also in the beginning of Volume II., where mention is made of the building of the stone church in 1810, the following is recorded, by which tradition is laid aside and even an earlier date established with certainty. "Diese Zions Kirche ist erbauet worden im Jahr Christi 1810 auf die Stelle einer alten verfallenne Kirche die die ersten Ansiedler im Jahre A. D. 1757 erbauet hatten." There is no reference made to a church built in 1774, or five years previous, but, in plain writing, in 1757. With this year the Reformed congregation begins its history. Why 1774 has always been accepted is because of the donation of the land in that year, and no church record of ministerial acts such as baptisms, confirmations, etc., is in existence bearing an earlier date. This record beginning with 1774 was opened by Rev. John William Boas. Who preceded him is not known, probably irregular supplies, and thus no ministerial acts were recorded. One of the doors of the 1757 church is still in use at the dwelling of Daniel Angstadt, near by.

In 1810 a commodious two-story stone edifice was erected in post-Revolutionary architectural style. The building committee consisted of Paul Baer, John Babb, George Schade, Peter Knabb. Later a pipe-organ was installed. J. P. Harline served as organist from 1839 to 1858. He was succeeded by W. C. Keller, from 1858 to 1891. Mr. Keller became succeeded by Prof. Henry M. Moyer, who has continued to the present time.

A cemetery company was incorporated on April 16, 1861. The charter members were William Knabb, Valentine Hartman, Frederick Hinnershitz, Gottfried Lutz, George Schlottman, Daniel Schmeck, Peter Fies, Benjamin F. Seidel, Jacob Folk, Peter Hartman, George B. Hartman, Jacob Hoch, Matthias Moyer, Nathan Knabb. This "God's acre" occupies a lovely situation and comprises twelve acres. There are many fine tombstones and monuments thereon.

Until the public school system was accepted the congregation had its parochial school in the house still occupied by the janitor, Samuel Folk.

In 1887 the present spacious edifice was erected upon the site of the old church, which on account of its small size and marks of time was demolished. The building committee consisted of Mahlon Knabb, Jeremiah R. Hartman, Harrison Seidel and David Babb. Hiram Hartman had the contract. It is a two-story brick edifice, 85 feet long and 54 feet wide. At the eastern end is a steeple 170 feet high, containing a bell weighing 3,200 pounds. This edifice is an ornament to the community. The basement is out of the ground and is well furnished for Sunday-school and society purposes. In it are two massive hot air furnaces, for heating purposes. The entrance is at the side. The main auditorium is reached by a gradual ascent on the front which leads into the wide vestibule of the church. Beautiful stained glass windows admit subdued light. Three wide aisles extend from the vestibule to the chancel. The frescoing is of a neat design. In the pulpit recess is a beautiful oil painting of the Ascension of Christ. To the right is a panel oil painting of the agony of Christ in Gethsemane, and to the left, one of Christ blessing little children. These paintings are of excellent execution. The architecture is Romanesque. The pews are of oak, with walnut trimmings. On the altar is a beautiful polished brass crucifix. The auditorium, with galleries on both sides and end, has a seating capacity of 1,200. On the end gallery facing the pulpit is the organ and choir loft. Two ante-rooms are behind the pulpit recess, the one for the convenience of the pastor, and from which he enters the chancel at the opening of the service, the other for the business affairs of the consistory. In it is a fire-proof safe, containing church documents, etc. A stairway leads from the basement into the pastor's room, also one from the basement into the vestibule of the main auditorium. In the vestibule are the wide stairways leading to the galleries. Much work was done free of charge, in addition to which $17,000 was expended in building.

The attendance is very encouraging considering the scattered membership. Peace is within the palaces and prosperity within the walls.

M. L. Herbein.

The services were conducted exclusively in the German language until July 4, 1897, when Rev. M. L. Herbein, the Reformed pastor, conducted an English service, preaching on Psalm 44: 1-3. The Reformed congregation then began to have services on two Sundays each month, one rendered in German, the other in English; also four Holy Communion services a year instead of two. Two of these services are in English and two in German.

The Lutheran congregation, worshiping once a month, in 1899 began to render occasional English services, which in 1907 became as regular as the German. The services of both congregations and in both languages are strictly liturgically conducted.

In 1904 Rev. M. L. Herbein obtained from Andrew Carnegie of New York the amount of $750 in behalf of a pipe-organ provided the congregation would raise an equal amount. Plans and specifications were sent to different organ-builders, who returned their bids, asking twenty-five hundred and one twenty-eight hundred dollars. Elmer E. Palm, a reputable organ-builder at Mt. Penn, four miles away, offered to build and guarantee it for $1,500. The contract was awarded to him. On Aug. 21, 1904, the organ, the first of its kind in the new church, was dedicated. During the day it was estimated that 2,500 people were present. At evening, paid subscriptions, contributions, collections, etc., from all sources, amounted to $921.72. The long-felt need of a pipe-organ was overcome. The instrument is a powerful two-manual mechanism with a pedal bass, containing two stops, one of eight-foot and the other of sixteen-foot tone. The two manuals contain fifteen stops; all necessary couplers and accessories are to be found. The organ is on the end gallery farthest from the pulpit. There is an excellent choir.

The Reformed congregation numbers 480 members, the Lutheran 375. This congregation became incorporated by charter given by the court of Common Pleas of Berks county April 18, 1876. This congregation is very liberal. The contributions and collections have already amounted to as high as $4,200 in one year. Substantial sheds accommodate the teams of worshiping members. The Sunday-school meets every Lord's Day during the entire year. Prof. Alvin Seyler is the popular superintendent.

The following pastors have served the Reformed congregation: Unknown, 1757-1774; John William Boas, 1774-1810; Frederick Lebrecht Herman, D. D., 1810-1830; Augustus L. Herman, 1830-1873; Aaron S. Leinbach, D. D., 1873-1895; Mabry L. Herbein, 1897- .

The following pastors have served the Lutheran congregation: C. F. Wildbahn, 1782-1796; Daniel Lehman, 1796-1801; Henry A. Muhlenberg, D. D., 1803-1829; Jacob Miller, D. D., 1829-1850; Reuben S. Wagner, 1850-1854; Thomas T. Iaeger, 1855-1888; E. S. Brownmiller, D. D., 1889- .

In the stained glass window to the right of the pulpit are the names of the Reformed pastors and their period of service, to the left the Lutheran. On May 23, 1908, the congregation heard the glad announcement of the cancellation of the debt. In 1909 the sum of two thousand dollars was expended in newly frescoing and generally renovating the entire edifice. Artist Bertholt Imhoff did the work.—[Contributed by M. L. Herbein.]

Trinity Reformed Church, of Mt. Penn borough, Berks county.—As early as 1873 a Union Sunday-school was conducted in the public school-house at this place. This building stood where the Friedensburg road crosses the Stony Creek electric railroad. This school flourished under the patronage of various denominations, of which the Reformed predominated. In 1890 the Reformed people organized a Sunday-school of their own in the public school-house then located on the north side of Perkiomen avenue, between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets. Mr. David V. R. Ludwig was the superintendent. He was succeeded in turn by Peter B. Keehn, Charles Williams and William Soders. The Sunday-school disbanded on July 26, 1891. It became reorganized on Feb. 3, 1895, under the superintendency of Frederick Yeakel, a member of the First Reformed Church in Reading. The indefatigable labors of Mr. Yeakel were soon evidenced in the purchase, by the Sunday-school, of a lot on the corner of Twenty-fourth and Cumberland streets, at a cost of $387.50. David D. Dundore made the first contribution. The Sunday-school now commenced to hold its meetings in the new two-story public school-house on the corner of Twenty-fourth and Grant streets. Superintendent Yeakel was a man of delicate health and on Jan. 12, 1897, was obliged to resign. The work, however, did not cease. For several Sundays the pious flock assembled and had sessions as best they could afford. On Feb. 7, 1897, Llewellyn F. Schearrer, a member of the First Reformed Church of Reading, was elected superintendent. He took his seat of office on the 14th, and being the right kind of man for the place the spirit of enthusiasm immediately revived in the hearts of the members. Mabry L. Herbein was ordained and installed pastor of Spiess Reformed Congregation on June 20, 1897. By direction of the Classis of Reading and the request of some members of the Mt. Penn Reformed Sunday-school Rev. Mr. Herbein, who at the time being was the youngest Reformed clergyman in Berks county, conducted a church service in the schoolhouse at Mt. Penn on Sunday evening, July 11, 1897. His text was from Luke 6: 36. There were present forty-two people. These services were continued every Sunday evening.

Soon the desire of organizing a congregation prevailed, and a petition with fifty-two signatures was handed to Classis asking permission to organize. This was granted at a special meeting of Classis on Oct. 18, 1897. On the evening of Oct. 29th a meeting was held and a consistory elected as follows: Elders, David D. Dundore and Irwin N. Manwiller; Deacons, William O. Leinbach and William K. Adam. The consistory was ordained and installed on Oct. 31st. At the same time Rev. Mr. Herbein was unanimously elected pastor, and at his suggestion the name of Trinity Reformed Church was selected for the new congregation.

A building committee was appointed, consisting of Rev. M. L. Herbein, Lewis Kraemer, Sr., William K. Adam, David D. Nein and David D. Dundore. They adopted plans for a substantial one-story brick edifice, 40x60 feet, to be erected upon the lot previously purchased by the Sunday-school. D. D. Dundore broke the first ground toward its erection on Dec. 3, 1897. A charter of incorporation was granted by the Berks court on Dec. 7, 1897. Foundation and basement stones were quarried and delivered free of charge, so, also, was the excavating done. This work, at the rate of 12 1-2 cents per hour, was found to amount to $232.18. There was paid for the masonry of foundation and basement walls the sum of $65. David D. Dundore drew the plans, as suggested by the pastor, and thus architects' expenses were avoided. The contract from the basement walls was awarded to D. D. Dundore for $2,400, excluding stained glass windows, furniture, heating and lighting apparatus.

The corner-stone was laid March 13, 1898. The pastor was assisted by Rev. Dr. Henry Mosser, pastor of the First Reformed Church, Reading, who preached the sermon. The building operations now commenced in earnest, but much rainy weather retarded progress. On June 19, 1898, the last day of the pastor's first year's ordained ministry, Trinity Reformed Church was dedicated. The full liturgical service of the Reformed Church was observed. All the responses were chanted, accompanied by the music of the pipe-organ built and installed by Elmer E. Palm, of Mt. Penn. In the morning 10:30 o'clock Rev. Dr. Mosser preached on I Cor. 3: 11. The dedicatory service was conducted by the pastor. In the afternoon Rev. Dr. John W. Steinmetz, pastor of St. John's Reformed Church of Reading, preached on I Kings, 18: 39. Rev. J. P. Stein, D. D., of St. Thomas Church of Reading, and Rev. James R. Brown, of the Schwartzwald Church, took part in the services. Rev. Dr. N. Z. Snyder, of Bethlehem, Pa., visiting in Reading, was also present. At the evening service Rev. Dr. S. R. Bridenbaugh, pastor of the Second Reformed Church, Reading, preached on Psalm 87:3. During the day $127 was realized.

Everybody seemed to be highly pleased with the new edifice, especially its churchly and dignified interior. The architecture is extremely Gothic in design. The stained glass windows admit a subdued and mellow light, blending harmoniously with the oak furniture and other hard wood finish. Within the deep chancel-recess is the beautiful massive altar of oak, a high reredos surmounting it. The super-altar contains the gilded cross with gilded candlestick on each side. To the front and right of the altar is the lectern, to the left the pulpit. To the right of the altar inside the chancel is the pipe-organ, of excellent mechanical construction and sweet musical tone. Back of the chancel are excellently appointed ante-rooms, from which the choir and pastor enter the main auditorium for their respective places. The basement is furnished for church sociables. The entire investment amounts to $4,100. The fact that the structure was built in the time of a severe financial panic accounts for its cheapness.

On July 3, 1898, Holy Communion was celebrated by the congregation for the first time. Forty-eight of the fifty-two who communed expressed themselves desirous of becoming members of the new organization. This included the catechetical class of fifteen young persons. The first confirmation was that of Bertha Estella S. Lutz, on July 1, 1898. The first person to receive Holy Communion was Mrs. William K. Adam. The first baptism in the church took place on July 10, 1898, the child being Arthur Peter Hafer; also, at the same time, Jennie Ellen Nein. The first funeral service conducted in the church was that of William D., a seven-year-old son of Milford H. Nein, on Dec. 29, 1898.

On June 4, 1905, the second graduating class of the Mt. Penn borough school came to this church in a body and the pastor preached the baccalaureate sermon from I Tim. 4:12. The commencement exercises of this class were held in the church on June 16, 1905. The first class, that of 1904, had its commencement exercises, and without a sermon, in the school-house.

In October, 1898, a missionary society was organized, and on Oct. 7, 1902, an active Ladies' Aid Society was organized, which proved its usefulness by contributing its funds toward liquidating the indebtedness incurred by the erection of the church edifice. The Sunday-school paid the interest on the necessary loan, also money toward the liquidation of the church debt. The congregation, small as it is, nevertheless has had years during which from all sources $750 were contributed.

While worship was held in the school-house Miss Naomi Rauenzahn served as organist. When the congregation took possession of the church Miss Jennie Lutz assumed the duty, the family of Rauenzahns having moved to Reading. Miss Lutz is still serving as organist, also of the Sunday-school for the same period of time.

William O. Leinbach served as janitor from the beginning of the organization until January, 1906, when he resigned and was succeeded by John R. Dickinson, who in 1908 was succeeded by Josiah Leinbach.

Mr. Schearrer faithfully performed his duties as Sunday-school superintendent for nine years and nine months. He resigned and presided for the last time on Sept. 30, 1906. When he assumed the duties of the office there was an enrollment of sixty-five; when he relinquished his services there were 105. On Sunday, Oct. 7, 1906, the Sunday-school unanimously elected Prof. Frank J. Fister, principal of the borough schools, to the office of superintendent. He accepted and served until September, 1907, when he became succeeded by John R. Dickinson. William O. Leinbach has been the only secretary in the entire history of the Sunday-school.

This congregation was never a mission nor an organization of some other church. It was obliged to support itself fom the beginning. Daniel Miller, in his "History of the Reformed Church in Reading" published in 1905, says on page 155 that the First Reformed Church of Reading fostered Trinity. This must not be understood to signify in a financial way, as not a cent was ever realized from any congregation. The Classis of Reading out of its treasury at different times contributed sums, the total of which amounts to $250; but Trinity had to raise a double amount, the $750 being then paid on the loan. Regular sustentation was never received. At the time of this writing the congregation consists of 110 members, and Rev. M. L. Herbein continues as pastor. The Sunday-school has 125 members.—[Contributed by M. L. Herbein.]

Bern Reformed and Lutheran Union Church, Bern township.—Early in the eighteenth century the present sections of Bern, Penn and Heidelberg townships were settled by emigrants from the Palatinate and Switzerland. Their religion was not only found in their family Bible, Hymn Book, Palatinate Liturgy and Heidelberg Catechism, but their hearts were the consecrated temples of the living God. They remembered "the assembling of themselves together and to continue steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking bread and in prayers." Thus as early as 1738 Rev. John Henry Goetschey, preaching at New Goshenhoppen Reformed Church, Montgomery Co., Pa., frequented their midst and drew the pioneers together, forming the nucleus from which the present congregation has grown. Divine services evidently were conducted by him in private houses, but the fathers remembered Jehovah's words unto Moses, "In all places where I record my name I will come unto thee, and I will bless thee," and because "The Lord loveth the gates of Zion more than all the dwellings of Jacob" they were moved by the spirit to erect, as tradition has it, a log church at the entrance of the old graveyard. This may have been as early as 1743, in which year about fifteen acres of land was surveyed by the Penns and donated to the German Calvinists, as the Reformed were then sometimes called. It was legally conveyed in 1748 to Henry Rieser, trustee. In 1762 and 1792 additional land was purchased, until the aggregate amounts to about twenty acres. The former purchase was made from Daniel Hiester.

It is certain that the log church was in existence before Feb. 10, 1745, because on that day Rev. Mr. Lischy reports having preached "in" Bern church. [See "Reformed Church Review," January, 1907, page 76.] Sometime about 1762 the log church became succeeded by a larger building, of rough stone. The architecture was according to Colonial church style. Wine-glass pulpit and high galleries were found in the church. Behind the pulpit, on the wall near the ceiling, was a unique picture of a bear. The significance of this was taken from II Kings 2:24. Since the early settlers were familiar with Switzerland, may not the legend of St. Gall have had something to do in suggesting the painting of the bear?

This edifice, with parochial school and schoolmaster's residence, stood in the old graveyard not far from the entrance. The school was attended some time by Joseph Hiester, who later became governor of Pennsylvania. The congregation still possesses and prizes as sacred relics the Communion vessels used in this church. The set consists of a flagon, chalice and plate, all of pewter; there are also four collection plates of pewter. One of the plates bears the inscription "made in London." On the chalice is engraven the following: "Für die Reformirt Gemein 1769 in der Bern Kirche." The double door of the edifice a few years ago was stowed by Rev. George Zacharias into the organist's barn for safe-keeping. The church record wherein Goetschey entered the first baptism, and containing the baptisms for the one hundred following years, is also at hand. The first was that of Elizabeth, daughter of Stephen and Traxeta Brecht, in May, 1738.

In 1837 the present brick edifice was erected by the Reformed congregation assisted by the Lutherans, who were given a right in the property. Now the church became union. The corner-stone was laid on July 30th. The edifice was completed in the fall of the year. Much work was done free of charge, yet $4,325 was expended. The building committee consisted of Conrad Reber, Peter Kershner and George Weber. The church is located in the western extremity of the township of Bern. It is of post-Revolutionary church architecture, almost square, and the doors enter at three sides. The pulpit is on two high pedestals. On three sides are high galleries. On the one opposite the pulpit is the pipe-organ, dedicated on Whit-Sunday, 1850. The church has a seating capacity of about six hundred. The ceiling is very high. Two big stoves in front of the chancel generate the heat during winter. An agitation for remodeling is prevalent at present. In 1867 a dissension began in the Reformed congregation which continued for several years and reduced its membership. This was somewhat repeated from 1900 to 1904.

In 1887 the cemetery company was organized, land inclosed and burial lots sold. Gabriel Hiester's remains were the first to be interred in the cemetery, which contains many graves marked by marble and granite tombstones, and a few monuments.

A flourishing Sunday-school exists during the summer months. The language predominating in the pulpit is the German, although English services are held very frequently.

Henry Zerby is the organist, assisted by his son Francis. He resides in the house on the premises, which with the barn and other outbuildings is kept in excellent condition by the congregation. There is comfortable shedding for a number of teams used by worshipers in coming to divine services.

The following pastors have served the Reformed congregation, which numbers 310 members: 1738-39, John Henry Goetschey; 1743-45, Jacob Lischy (he attempted to unite it with the Congregation of God in the Spirit, a movement of Moravian origin); 1746-47, Frederick Cassimer Muller; 1749-52 (?), numerous baptisms in the record but no name given; 1752-55, baptisms entered by one hand, unknown, but possibly John Henry Decker, since he preached at Hain's Church during those years; 1765-66, John Waldtschmidt, as it appears from his private records; 1772-82, Ludwig Lupp; 1784-88, at least, John William Boas (he may have served longer); 1815, congregation vacant and asks Synod for a minister; 1817-1821, Phillip Moyer; 1822-1830, Benjamin Boyer; 1831-32, John Hautz; 1833-1835, A. Berkey; 1837-38, William T. Gerhard; 1840-64, Isaac Miesse; 1864-73, Frank Schwartz; 1875-83, Aaron S. Leinbach, D. D.; 1883-1904, Samuel A. Leinbach. On Aug. 6, 1905, Mabry L. Herbein was elected and began his pastorate. He was in his youth confirmed in this church by his predecessor, Rev. S. A. Leinbach.

The Lutheran congregation reports 340 members. It has had as pastors the following clergymen: 1836-43, George Minnig; 1843-52, D. Keohler; 1852-65, Thomas T. Iaeger; 1865-69, A. Finfrock; 1870-88, Thomas T. Iaeger; 1889, E. S. Brownmiller, D. D. [Contributed by M. L. Herbein.]

Shalter's (Salem) Reformed and Lutheran Union Church.—Highly located in the northern section of Upper Alsace township, in the midst of a beautiful agricultural district, stands this neat house of worship. As early as 1790 Dietrich Beitelman set apart a small tract of land at this place for burial purposes. His body rests here. On his tombstone is the inscription, "Dietrich Beitelman, Born June 15, 1709, Died Feb. 16, 1793, aged 83 years, 8 months."

The name Shalter's Church is given because Mr. Benjamin Shalter was the most liberal contributor toward its erection. He donated the ground and the sum of $500 in money which made building possible. In 1860 the edifice was erected of rough stone, which constitutes the substantial walls. The corner-stone was laid on April 9th and the dedication was held Oct. 24th. In 1907 the church was entirely renovated. The outside was painted, the inside woodwork was painted and the walls were nicely papered. There are galleries on three sides. Back of the pulpit is a beautiful life-size oil painting of Christ as the Good Shepherd, bearing a lamb in his arms. The cemetery contains about four acres of ground, is well kept, and contains numerous fine tombstones and monuments, some of marble and some of granite.

The Reformed congregation has had for its pastors: Rev. Isaac Miesse, 1860-64; Rev. Aaron S. Leinbach, D. D., 1864-95; Rev. John A. Danner, 1897-1904; Rev. Thomas M. Yundt, 1904-05; Rev. Elam J. Snyder, 1906-08. On July 5, 1908, Rev. Mabry L. Herbein was unanimously elected and serves ever since.

The Lutheran congregation was served by Rev. Thomas T. Iaeger from 1860 to his death, in 1888; Rev. E. S. Brownmiller, D. D., 1889-1906.

Each congregation numbers about 150 members. Prof. Henry M. Moyer is the organist. Services are conducted in German as well as in English.

CHARLES W. GEBHARD, for many years a faithful employe of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company, at Reading, was born in Berks county, just over the line from Lehigh county, Pa., Dec. 17, 1829, only child of George and Rebecca (DeWitt) Gebhard.

George Gebhard was a native of Lehigh county, and by trade was a shoemaker, but on account of ill health was compelled to seek out-of-door employment, subsequently working at the ore mines. He died in 1850, and his wife in 1855, in the faith of the Lutheran Church.

Charles W. Gebhard received his education in the schools of Lehigh and Bucks counties, and at the age of fifteen years was apprenticed to the shoemaker's trade, an occupation which he followed until his father's death, in 1850, when he came to Reading to reside with his widowed mother. He was a very industrious young man, willing to work at anything which would earn an honest dollar, not letting his pride stand in his way, and soon found regular employment with the Philadelphia & Reading Company, remaining with that company over forty-three years, in the foundry department. A steady, hard-working man, he was much esteemed by his employers. He was fond of home, and was of quiet disposition, but at the outbreak of the Civil war, feeling that his country needed his services, he enlisted as one of the first from Berks county, finishing his term of enlistment in Capt. James B. McKnight's Company.

On Nov. 1, 1876, Mr. Gebhard married Sarah A. Gehret a native of Reading, Pa., daughter of David and Elizabeth Gehret. Mr. Gebhard was a member of the Lutheran Church, while his wife attends the First Reformed Church. His fraternal connections were with the I. O. O. F. and the Brotherhood of the Union. Mr. Gebhard died Feb. 22, 1898, and is buried in the Charles Evans cemetery.

Mrs. Gebhard was born in Muhlenberg township, Berks county, June 14, 1832, and came to Reading in her girlhood, and attended the public schools. She joined the First Reformed Church in 1851, being confirmed by the Rev. A. S. Leinbach, and she has always taken an interest in church work. She is kind hearted and benevolent, and has many friends. She resides in the old home at No. 245 Washington street, Reading.

MERKEY. Joseph Merkey, grandfather of Joseph M. Merkey, on the maternal side, was born Nov. 27, 1782. He was a minister of the Church of the Brethren. By his marriage to Christian Kline, he had six children: David, Nathaniel, Saloma, Catharine, Elisabeth and Christian.

David Merkey, grandfather of Joseph M. Merkey, on the paternal side, was a son of John and Hannah (Heckman) Merkey, and was born May 11, 1795, in Bethel township, Berks Co., Pa. He, too, was a minister of the Church of the Brethren. He married Anna Mary Enterline, and this union was blessed with nine children, namely: (1) John E. married (first) Catharine Merkey, daughter of Joseph and Christian Merkey, and (second) Saloma Merkey, his first wife's sister. The first union was blessed with four children, namely: Joseph M., Rebecca, Elizabeth and Mary, all but the first named dying single. (2) Joseph E. m. a Miss Myer, and had eight children, four sons and four daughters. (3) David E.

(5) Amos E. married Eliza Ziegler, and they became the parents of five sons and five daughters. (6) George E. m. Catharine Kline, and had two sons. (7) Solomon E. is unmarried. (8) Catharine died young. (9) Polly (Mary) m. Benjamin Balsbach, and had two sons and one daughter.

JOSEPH M. MERKEY, son of John E. and Catharine Merkey, was born March 19, 1844, in Bethel township, Berks county. He is a member of the Church of the Brethren. He married Sarah Wolf, and this union was blessed with ten children, namely: (1) Rebecca m. Samuel R. Ebling, and they have had five children, Joseph, Ellen, Lilly, Samuel (deceased) and one died in infancy. (2) Miss Kate is at home. (3) Elisabeth married Samuel N. Sherman, and has had six children: Sallie, Stella, Samuel (deceased), John, Hannah and Edna. (4) Mary died young. (5) Emanuel and (6) Amelia were twins. Amelia died young. Emanuel m. Lizzie J. Frantz, and has three children, Mabel (m. David M. Frantz, and she has one son, Martin), Howard and Galen. (7) John m. Elizabeth Kline, and has three children, Rebecca, John and Joseph. (8) Christian m. John K. Moyer, and had five children, namely: Paul, Isaac, Stella (died young), Gertrude and David. (9) Maggie died young. (10) Ellen m. Tildon Edris, and had seven children, Emma, Mary, Carrie (died young), Joseph, Elmer, Mabel and Augustus.

MILTON J. GERHARD, farmer of Washington township, living one mile north of Bechtelsville, belongs to a branch of the Gerhard family of western Berks county which settled around Wintersville and Freystown. Rev. Eli Gerhard is also of this family, whose history has been fully written by Rev. George W. Gerhard, now a resident of West Reading, Berks county.

Jacob Gerhard, grandfather of Milton J. Gerhard, was born March 31, 1803, in Longswamp township, near Henningsville and Fredericksville, and was a farmer, owning the place in that township which is now the property of Mrs. John De Long. He died Nov. 6, 1864, aged sixty-one years, seven months, six days, and is buried at Huff's Church. His wife, Lydia Rohrbach, born Nov. 6, 1805, died Dec. 17, 1880, aged seventy-five years, one month, eleven days. They had five children: Lucinda, who married Amos Rohrbach; Henry, of Longswamp township; Daniel; John, formerly of Longswamp, now living at Topton, Berks county; and Frank, of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Daniel Gerhard, son of Jacob, was born Feb. 1, 1835, in Longswamp township, learned the carpenter's trade, and followed that calling in the part of Longswamp township where he lived as well as in the surrounding region. Since 1900 he has made his home with his son Milton, leading a semi-retired life, and working occasionally on his son's farm. He married Eliza Angstadt, daughter of Jacob and Anna (Kercher) Angstadt, of Rockland township, and they have three children: Torinda, m. to Matthias H. Dotterer, a grocer of Reading; Milton J.; and Amanda, m. to James Hill, of Longswamp township. All of this family belong to Huff's Church.

Milton J. Gerhard, son of Daniel, was born Nov. 11, 1869, in Longswamp township, and there received a fair education in the public schools. When twenty-one years old he began clerking in the store of Matthias H. Dotterer, at Bechtelsville, remaining there for several years. Mr. Dotterer is now of Reading. Mr. Gerhard was next employed in the creamery at Henningsville for over two years, and thence removed to Schofers, in Maxatawny township, where he worked in the creamery for about four years. He then worked in the creameries at Exeter and Womelsdorf, for the same proprietor who conducted the other creameries mentioned, continuing at such work for seven years in all. In the spring of 1899 he came to Washington township, settling on the place where he now resides, and which he bought in the fall of 1899. It was formerly the property of Abraham Dotterer, and before he owned it belonged to Matthias Dotterer. It comprises 107 acres of land, desirably located, and well equipped with substantial buildings, the barn being 35x90 feet in dimensions, and the house a nice stone dwelling. Everything about the place is kept in first-class condition. Mr. Gerhard gives special attention to dairying, keeping seventeen milch cows, and ships his milk to Philadelphia every morning.

In 1896 Mr. Gerhard married Ida L. Benfield, daughter of Abraham Benfield and his wife Leanna Lucinda (Rohrbach), of Huff's Church, and they have become the parents of four children: Paul H., Ralph J., Elsie B. and Elvia B. Mr. Gerhard and his family are members of Huff's Church, belonging to the Reformed congregation.

REILY ZERBE, the well known cigar manufacturer of Stouchsburg, Pa., was born in Marion township, this county, Jan. 11, 1860, son of James and Ellen (Miller) Zerbe, and representative of an old and respected family of Berks county.

James Zerbe was born in Upper Tulpehocken township, near Seibert's Forge, in April, 1837, and now makes his home at Palmyra. During his early years he learned the trade of cigar making, and followed it for some years, and afterward engaged in the manufacturing of cigars at Stouchsburg on his own account, continuing there with good success for twenty years. He then moved to Palmyra, where he opened a corner grocery, and this he conducted until 1906, when he retired, being succeeded in the grocery by his son, Harry M. Mr. Zerbe is a Democrat in politics, and a Lutheran in religious faith, his membership being in the parish of Christ Lutheran Church, Stouchsburg. Mr. Zerbe married Ellen Miller, who was born in 1840, daughter of Philip Miller. Of their children a son and a daughter both died in infancy; Reily is mentioned below; and Harry M. is conducting the grocery so successfully carried on in former years by his father.

Reily Zerbe passed his boyhood days under the parental roof, acquiring a common school education. At the age of twelve years he began learning the cigar maker's trade from his father and mother, the latter being the first cigar maker in her district. This he has followed off and on ever since. In 1883 he began in business for himself at Stouchsburg, employing as high as seventy-five people. In 1889 he made over 4,300,000 cigars, enjoying a large Western trade. For the past four years he has been manager for the A. S. Valentine & Son factory at Stouchsburg, having in his charge an average of forty-five employes. They manufacture high grade cigars, which are marketed all over the country. Mr. Zerbe is one of the foremost men of his town. He has a handsome home, which he erected in 1895, John Weidner, of Reading, being the contractor. This has all modern conveniences, and contains fourteen rooms, all handsomely furnished. He has his own gas plant, and his lawns are so beautifully kept as to add to the charming appearance of the place.

In politics Mr. Zerbe is a Democrat, and he wields an influence in his district in political matters. He very ably served as school director, and has been a delegate to various Congressional and judicial conventions. He and his family belong to Christ Lutheran Church, of which he has been treasurer since 1899. He has traveled and has seen a great deal of his own country. Among the places he has visited may be mentioned the Centennial at Philadelphia in 1876. Accompanied by his wife in 1882 he visited Kansas and Colorado, as far as Denver, and twice visited Pike's Peak, and they were at the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893, and the Buffalo Exposition in 1903.

In 1880 Mr. Zerbe married Mary Killmer, daughter of Henry and Gustina (Batdorf) Killmer, and they have one daughter, Ella Gustina, wife of Joseph A. Gernert, of Myerstown, who is engaged in the grocery business at Palmyra.

EDWARD E. SWEITZER, a well known resident and substantial business man of Reading, Berks Co., Pa., who is engaged in quarrying, was born in Oley township, Berks county, March 26, 1869, son of Abraham and Elizabeth (Schaeffer) Sweitzer.

Abraham Sweitzer received his education in the schools of his township, and his early manhood was spent in work on his father's and their neighbors' farms. Later he went into the ore business in which he was very successful, and after being superintendent of the Wheatfield and Berns mines and of the Clymer Iron Company at Oley and Mount Laurel, he purchased the Bowers quarry, which he operated until his death, June 10, 1905. He was buried in the Charles Evans cemetery. His political sentiments made him a Republican, and fraternally he belonged to the I. O. O. F. and the K. of P. He married Elizabeth Schaeffer, daughter of Benjamin and Catherine (Mengel) Schaeffer, and to this union the following children were born: Katie A. m. Frank Wertz, resides at No. 1125 Marion street, and has children, Bessie, Claude and Esther; William is deceased; Mary m. William Wertz, of Hyde Park, and has children, Edward, William, Grace, Charles, Lottie, George, Earle and Wayne; Edward E.; Ella is single; and Velina m. John Y. Matz, of Shillington, Berks county. Mrs. Sweitzer survives her husband, and lives with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Wertz.

Edward E. Sweitzer received his preliminary education in the public schools and later attended the Keystone State Normal School for two terms, after leaving which he taught school for five terms. He then took a business course, attending Stoner College, and graduating therefrom in 1889. He was first employed with his father, but later engaged in business with him, the partnership continuing until the elder Sweitzer's death, when Edward E. took full charge of the Bowers quarries, still operating them. He sells his product to the Reading Iron Company, and employs about twenty-five hands throughout the year. In political matters Mr. Sweitzer is a Republican, and he is fraternally connected with the Maccabees. He and his wife reside at No. 915 Windsor street, and attend St. Thomas Reformed Church, of which he is a deacon.

In 1892 Mr. Sweitzer married Katie E. Becker, daughter of John A. and Mary (Gauby) Becker, of Muhlenberg township, Berks county, and to this union there have been born children as follows: Abraham, a member of the class of 1910, Reading high school; Oscar; Emily; John; Edward and Katie. Mr. and Mrs. Sweitzer are very popular in their community, and have many friends.

JOHN GOODHART WERNER, a well known citizen of the borough of Mohnton, Pa., who is engaged in the printing business, was born Dec. 9, 1867, in Lower Heidelberg township, Berks county, son of Jeremiah and Catherine (Goodhart) Werner.

Mr. Werner attended the schools of his native township, as well as the Schuylkill Seminary of Reading, after leaving which he learned the trade of millwright with his father. He then took up the hat finishing trade with George Hendel, of Edison, Pa., but in 1885 engaged with J. G. Mohn & Co., with whom he is still employed. In 1886 Mr. Werner built his home in Mohnton, later adding two additions, one of which he uses as a job printing shop, which his son, Ellis H., manages. Since 1889 Mr. Werner has been interested in the poultry business, having a fine line of Plymouth Rock chickens.

Mr. Werner married (first), in 1886, Catherine Hagy, daughter of Obediah and Catherine (Hoyer) Hagy, and to this union there were born these children: Ellis H.; Homer H.; Goldie; and Della M. Mr. Werner m. (second) Sallie Wolf, daughter of Samuel K. and Fannie (Fisher) Wolf, and one child was born to this union: Samuel Jeremiah. In political matters Mr. Werner is a Republican, and he has served his township on the election board and as register assessor for two terms. He is a member of the United Evangelical Church of Mohnton, and teacher of the German Bible class of the Sunday-school. Fraternally Mr. Werner is connected with the Knights of Pythias, which he represented at the Grand Lodge for two years, being deputy of Berks county for eight years and master of the degree team for ten years. He is also a member of the K. G. E., of Mohnton, the O. K. of F., the I. O. O. F., of Sinking Spring, and the Hatters' Union.

ISAAC AMES, a representative citizen of Caernarvon township, Berks Co., Pa., who conducts a blacksmith shop and wagonmaking establishment near Kurtz's Mills, was born April 7, 1854, in York county, Pa., son of Henry and Sarah Ames, and grandson of William and Polly Ames.

Henry Ames, who was a native of Berks county, was engaged in blacksmithing at Morgantown, where he spent his life. He married (first) Mary Pagitt, and to this union two children were born: Morris and Geord. Mr. Ames m. (second) Sarah Ann McCulloch, born Jan. 25, 1815, died Jan. 26, 1893, and both she and her husband are buried in the new cemetery at Morgantown. They were the parents of these children: Ann m. (first) a Zuly and (second) a Martin; Henry lives in Chester county; Isaac; Elizabeth m. Joseph Grubb; Jane m. Christ Bixler; Hayes died June 3, 1892; Katie, born Aug. 14, 1852, died May 7, 1903; Howard; and Emma m. John Rutherford, and lives in Laureltown, Union county, Pennsylvania.

When Isaac Ames was about four years of age his parents took him to Morgantown, where he learned the blacksmith's trade with his father. He now conducts a blacksmith and wagonmaking establishment at Morgantown, in the vicinity of which place he has lived for over half a century.

In 1869 Mr. Ames married Annie Witman, who was born in 1856, in Caernarvon township, and died in Morgantown in 1887. The following children were born to this union: Mae m. Jacob De Haven, and is living in Caernarvon township; Sanford m. a Miss Binder, and conducts a blacksmith establishment in Honey Brook, Chester county; Nellie m. Joseph Gabriel, and lives in Caernarvon township; Jennie lives in Reading; Catherine m. Harry Jones, and resides on Weiser street, Reading; Sherman lives with his father. In 1892 Mr. Ames m. (second) Mary E. Byler, born Nov. 27, 1854, who died Feb. 14, 1907, and was buried in the new Morgantown cemetery. One child was born to this union: Myrtle, born in 1894, who lives with her father. In politics Mr. Ames is a Republican. He and his children attend the Methodist Church of Morgantown.

JOHN S. HENDRICKS, retired, was the senior member of the well known firm of Hendricks & Adams, manufacturers of "The Original Pretzel," of Reading. He was born Dec. 17, 1842, in Hilltown township, Bucks county, son of Benjamin B. Hendricks, a farmer of Bucks, Montgomery and Chester counties, who spent the last few years of his life with his son, John S., in Reading, and there died when almost seventy-seven years of age. He married Elizabeth Swartz, and she died when thirty-five years old. Their children were: Barbara, Abraham, Isaac and John S.

John S. Hendricks received the greater part of his education in the district schools of Chester county, Pa., which he attended until seventeen years old. At the age of eighteen years he enlisted (Sept. 3, 1861) in Company H, 50th Pa. V. I., and after serving his term re-enlisted, and served gallantly through the following large engagements: the second battle of Bull Run, Chancellorsville, Vicksburg, Knoxville, Wilderness, and Spottsylvania Court House, and was captured May 12, 1864, being held prisoner at Andersonville and Charlestown for nine months and fifteen days. He was discharged from the service Feb. 2, 1865, with a gallant record, and returned to Chester county, Pa., where he engaged at farm work until 1871. In that year he returned to Reading, and entered the employ of the late Benjamin Lichtenthaeler, where he remained for the term of twenty-one years and three months, a record of which he may well feel proud. Few men are better known in Berks and surrounding counties than is Mr. Hendricks, and there is none more popular than he.

Mr. Hendricks married, Feb. 4, 1874, Miss Emma Kroninger, daughter of the late David Kroninger, of Reading.

and their children were: Edward; Bessie, deceased; Lillian, wife of Adam O'Harra; Sadie Maude, deceased; Paul, deceased in infancy; Henry, who enlisted in the U. S. Navy, Aug. 31, 1905; Florence, deceased; John W.; Warren, attending school; and Franklin, who died when seven years old.

In politics Mr. Hendricks is a Republican, but has not been active in his party, his extensive business operations having demanded his entire time and attention. He is a consistent member of the First Baptist Church of Reading. In fraternal circles Mr. Hendricks is connected with the Odd Fellows. He and his wife reside at No. 313 Franklin street, and are highly esteemed and respected by all.

CLEAVER. One of the interesting features of a book of the nature of this volume, of biographical and historical information, is the tracing of ancestry from the sturdy pioneers who came from all over the civilized world and found in the New World a veritable Land of Promise. Many such families are to be found in Berks county, Pa., and none is more honored than that which bears the name of Cleaver, and is represented by so many of the enterprising and successful sons and daughters of the Keystone State.

(I) Derrick Cleaver, the ancestor from whom this family is directly traced, was a Quaker in religion, and his name is found among the records of Douglass and Amity townships, he having owned large tracts of land in both districts. When he died in 1768, he was a yeoman and resided in Douglass township. His last will and testament was made Oct. 25, 1767, and probated Feb. 26, 1768, being on record in Vol. 2, page 39. The executors were his only son John, and his friend Samuel Hughes. Items in the will were: "son John shall have 300 pounds in money"; "daughter Mary shall have 150 pounds in money." He also made bequests to these grandchildren: John Hatfield, Nathan Hatfield, Mary Keelv. John Short and William Short.

(II) John Cleaver, son of Derrick, was the first tax collector of Colebrookdale township. In Douglass township he owned an estate of 1,000 acres, and was a very prominent man. Like his father Derrick, he was a Quaker, and belonged to the Quaker community of Maiden-creek township. During the Revolution he served as captain of a company, and upon the death of his first wife, a Quakeress, he married one outside his religious creed, two very serious offenses in that day with the people of his belief, and when his confession of error in both cases was demanded, he refused, and was "read out of Meeting." John Cleaver was a devoted husband and an honorable, upright man. By his first wife he had three children: Joseph, John and Ruth. By his second wife he had seven children: Peter, Derrick, Isaac, Jonathan, Martha, Nathan and Rebecca (m. John Lykens).

(III) —— Cleaver, son of John, had six children: Richard, Derrick, Catharine (Roger), Elizabeth, Mary (Kuser) and Margaret (Lease).

(III) Jonathan Cleaver, son of John Cleaver, was born in 1781, and his children were: Anna; Peter; Jonathan; Eliza; George K., the father of Dr. Israel Cleaver of Reading; Katie; Lewis and Lydia. Jonathan was a wool manufacturer and resided near Pleasantville in Oley township.

(III) Derrick Cleaver, son of John, was a carpenter, and lived one mile south of Pleasantville. His children were: Jonathan and Mary.

(III) Isaac Cleaver, son of John Cleaver, was born on what is now the John Davidheiser farm near Boyertown, in 1783, and died in 1856, and is buried at Hill church. He was a wheelwright by trade, and also owned a farm near Pleasantville where the old paper mill stood for so many years. Earlier in life he owned a tract in Earl township. His wife was Sallie Prutzman (1783-1826), daughter of Adam Prutzman. Their children were: John, of Colebrookdale township; Daniel P., father of William K.; Samuel (grandfather of Chester B. Cleaver, present county commissioner of Berks county), who first lived at Tiltham-mer, but later removed to Pleasantville, and owned the farm now the property of Chester B. Cleaver; Benneville, of Oley township; Mary, m. to William Kelshner; Hannah, m. to Edward Jones; Sarah, m. to Benneville Miller; and Abraham, who died at Philadelphia.

(IV) Daniel P. Cleaver, a son of Isaac Cleaver, was born in Earl township, Aug. 20, 1803, and died in February, 1876, aged seventy-three years. He is buried in a private cemetery at Pleasantville. In early life he was a worker in a woolen mill, but later engaged in farming and lived near Hill Church in Pike township, his property consisting of 212 acres, a portion of which was in that township and the remainder in Washington township. This property he bought in 1842, but later, after greatly improving it, he sold it, and bought an iron forge in Rockland township. This venture did not prove a success and he unfortunately lost considerable money. After this he went to Reading, then to Montgomery county, but finally returned to Pike township, where he died on a small farm he owned. For many years he was a justice of the peace, having been first appointed by Gov. Ritner. Later he was elected by the people, and he was a man very well known throughout the community. His first wife was Susanna Koch, daughter of Jacob and Catharine (Walter) Koch. Their children were: Catherine m. Levi Bechtel; William K.; Aaron, unmarried, was killed during the Civil war, and is buried seven miles from Harper's Ferry near Charlestown; Sarah m. Jacob Glase (deceased), and lives at Williamsport; Daniel died young; and two died at birth. Mr. Cleaver m. (second) Catharine Fraunheiser, and they had these children: Isaac, Samuel, Kimber, Mary Ann and Hettie. As a gentleman he was honored and respected by all who met him, and while in his later days he had the misfortune to meet with financial reverses, his character was not altered and to the end of his days he remained a good friend, a kind father and husband, and was beloved by many.

(IV) Jonathan B. Cleaver, father of Jonathan, son of Jonathan (III), grandson of John (II) and great-grandson of Derrick (I), was born on the old Cleaver farm in Earl township in 1814, and died Aug. 10, 1901, aged eighty-seven years, three months and ten days, and is buried at the Oley Churches in Oley township. He was a well-known farmer of Earl township, his farm consisting of thirty acres. In politics he was a Republican, and for a quarter of a century he served as justice of the peace. For several years prior to his death Mr. Cleaver lived retired. Fraternally he was a member of the I. O. O. F., his period of membership extending over forty-two years. His religious affiliations were with the Lutheran Church. His wife was Susanna Reidenheur, and they had these children: Sallie m. James Bohn, of Earl township; Lizzie died young, and Jonathan. Jonathan B. Cleaver is still remembered as a man of sterling honesty, uprightness of purpose, and he has given to his children an unstained name and unimpeached position in the confidence of the county.

(V) William K. Cleaver, a retired farmer of Berks county, living at the Oley Line, was born in Earl township, near Pleasantville, Jan. 6, 1832. Until he was eighteen he worked upon the farm, and then commenced to learn the blacksmith's trade, which he followed at Pleasantville near the toll gate where a shop stood until 1900. Mr. Cleaver worked as a blacksmith until 1861, when he enlisted in Company D, 7th Pa. V. I., for a period of three months. Company D was organized at Pleasantville, by Capt. George S. Herbst. At the expiration of the three months' service, Mr. Cleaver re-enlisted at Doylestown, Sept. 23, 1861, for three years, in Durrell's Battery D, Pa. Light Artillery. He was in Kelly's Fort, along the Rappahannock, Bristoe Station, Second Battle of Bull Run, Chantilly, South Mountain, Antietam, White Sulphur Springs, Fredericksburg, Vicksburg, Jackson, Miss., Battle of the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, Cold Harbor and Petersburg, and was mustered out at the last named place along the railroad, Sept. 23, 1864.

Mr. Cleaver returned to Oley township, and resumed work at his trade, being in several places. In 1866 he embarked in business for himself once more. About this time he married and commenced farming, for a short time being in Montgomery county, but for eight years he lived at Boyertown, and in 1879 he came to his present home of 175 acres, which he secured through his wife. Since the spring of 1893, Mr. Cleaver has resided here retired from active life. This farm has historic interest as being the property where resided Susanna Cox, who in February, 1808, was convicted of infanticide, and was hanged for the crime at Reading, in June, 1809, 10,000 people witnessing the execution. As she was the first woman hanged in Berks county, her case attracted much attention. She was an ignorant, illiterate girl, but had abundant faith in Divine mercy. She held a handkerchief in her hand at the time of the execution, and said: "I am forgiven. As I will enter Heaven, I will tell you by dropping the handkerchief out of my hand." The spectators witnessed the dropping of the handkerchief while her other hand remained closed.

The present house on the farm is a relic of the eighteenth century, the building having been constructed in 1767, and is of stone in a fine state of preservation. This is the house in which the unfortunate woman had concealed her tiny victim. The barn was built in 1869 by Catharine Geehr to replace a barn built in 1766. The present barn is 44x98 feet. The corner-stone of the old barn, bearing the date of 1769, has been incorporated in the newer structure. With the date is this inscription:

"Wo God nicht Gibt Sein Segend Gedien So Sten Ler Seel Und Scheler. Jahr 1766."

Mr. Cleaver has the old Geehr family Bibles, one of them being a big Bible printed in 1748.

There is a well kept cemetery where Hans Snyder, who died in 1743, is buried, as are many of his descendants. He was a native of Switzerland, as was his wife Catharine, who was born in 1688. The whole place is teeming with historic interest, and is a property of which Mr. Cleaver is naturally very proud.

In politics Mr. Cleaver is a Republican, and was school director of Pleasantville district for three years. He is a Lutheran, while his wife is a member of the Reformed Church, and both attend the Oley Churches.

On Jan. 13, 1866, Mr. Cleaver married Sarah Geiss, daughter of Henry and Susanna (Hoch) Geiss. They had these children: Susan, m. to Oliver Gift; Aaron, of Reading; Mary, m. to Albert Hoppel; Prof. William, of Cheltenham township, Montgomery county, prominent in educational matters and superintendent of schools of Cheltenham; Katie, m. to Harvey Bush; Charles, who is unmarried and at home; Sallie, who is unmarried; and two who died in infancy.

Mr. Cleaver was a brave soldier when the country needed him, and he recalls those days of peril and hardships with pleasure and recounts many thrilling stories to his interested listeners. Both he and his wife are very hospitable and their charming home is a gathering place not only for their children and their families, but also for the many friends these two have made during the years they have resided in Oley township.

(V) Jonathan Cleaver, a prominent retired farmer of Earl township, was born on his present farm, June 7, 1852, son of Jonathan B. Cleaver, and grandson of Jonathan.

After attending the school of his district Jonathan Cleaver went to the Oley Academy at Friedensburg and received a very liberal education. Completing his studies, he assisted his father on the farm until he purchased it in 1878. The property lies in both Earl and Oley townships, and the Boyertown trolley passes through his farm. In addition to this homestead, Mr. Cleaver owns sixty acres of woodland in Earl township, and is a man of substance. In politics he is a Republican and has served the township as supervisor, and in 1900 assisted in taking the census. Fraternally Mr. Cleaver is a member of the Manatawny Castle, No. 161, K. G. E., of which he is now treasurer.

On May 6, 1876, Mr. Cleaver married Maranda Mathias, daughter of Daniel and Wilhelmina (Focht) Mathias, and they had one son, J. Daniel, born June 28, 1879, who is now farming the homestead. He married Sallie Rothenberger, daughter of James Rothenberger, of Oley township, and they had one son who died in infancy. Mr. Cleaver has retired from active labor, and is passing the sunset of life in peace and quiet, and in the enjoyment of a well-earned competency. His farm is finely kept up, and the old stone house, mellowed by the years of residence in it, is an ornament to the well-laid-out fields and neat outbuildings. The fences are substantially built and kept in good repair, and the property is fully equipped with the most highly improved machinery.

Some very valuable records are found on the tombstones beneath which are interred many of the Cleaver family. Investigation has brought to light the following:

"Benneville Cleaver, born June 11, 1813, died Oct. 15, 1899, aged eighty-six years, four months and four days."

"Elizabeth, wife, born Ritter, Nov. 8, 1820, died Feb. 10, 1890, aged sixty-nine years, three months and two days."

"Aaron B. Angstadt, born May 5, 1820, died Dec. 30, 1898, aged seventy-eight years, seven months and twenty-five days."

"Catharine, his wife, born Holl, Oct. 31, 1820, died June 12, 1894, aged seventy-three years, seven months and eleven days."

"Daniel Cleaver, born Aug. 20, 1803, died Feb. 23, 1876, aged seventy-two years, six months, three days."

"Catharine, his wife, born Oct. 9, 1832, died Aug. 24, 1888, aged fifty-five years, ten months and fifteen days."

"Isaac Cleaver, son of Daniel and Catharine, born Nov. 19, 1851, married Amanda Ziegler, died Nov. 6, 1872, aged twenty years, eleven months and seventeen days."

"Cath. Bertolet, wife Hiram K. Cleaver, married June 19, 1853 (1834-1857)."

"Hiram K. Cleaver, born Oct. 31, 1832, died June 6, 1877, aged forty-four years, seven months and five days."

"Maranda Cleaver, born Mathias, born Nov. 25, 1857, died April 20, 1900, aged forty-two years, four months and twenty-five days."

JOHN LEEDOM, for a number of years a leading citizen of Reading, Pa., engaged in pattern-making, was born at Jamisons Corners, Bucks Co., Pa., in 1812, son of John Leedom and wife (whose maiden name was Sterling).

John Leedom learned his trade in Bucks county, where he worked until 1837, and in this year he located in Reading, making the trip in a wagon. He entered into a business partnership with a Mr. Spencer, under the firm name of Spencer & Leedom, manufacturing farming implements and threshing machines, and they also conducted a branch at Lebanon, Pa. The business was carried on until the panic of 1842-47, when they suspended business. From that time until within two years of his death, in 1897, Mr. Leedom worked at his trade of pattern maker, having charge of the Scott Foundry pattern department. During the Civil war he drafted and made plans for cannons used in that struggle for the firm of Seyfert, McManus & Co. He was a very fine mechanic, and a sample of his handiwork may be seen in the fine iron fence surrounding the Charles Evans cemetery.

Mr. Leedom married Louisa A. Wright, daughter of George Wright, of Bustleton, Pa., and to this union there were born: Emma m. David Shirey; George W. was for some time a clerk in the First National Bank of Reading; John N. M.; Susan J. m. John R. Kancher, at one time cashier of the First National Bank; Adelaide, deceased, m. Howard Pierce; Edward J. is deceased; Ellen M. was a teacher in the primary department of the public schools; Howard M. is deceased; and Clara E. In religious connection Mr. Leedom was a member of St. Peter's Methodist Church, and a leader of the choir there for many years.

George W. Leedom first enlisted in the three months' service in the Civil war, becoming a member of Company G, 1st Pa. V. I., and after an honorable discharge, re-enlisted in Company G, 93d Pa. V. I. After his second discharge he again enlisted in the 176th regiment, Hospital Corps, serving until the regiment was mustered out. He again enlisted in the 5th U. S. Vet. Vol. Inf., and was Hospital Steward of the regiment, serving his time, and being honorably discharged at the close of the war. He resides at No. 1567 Mineral Spring Road, Reading.

ELIAS EMRICH. In naming the representative agriculturists of Berks county, Pa., mention should be made of Elias Emrich, a substantial and practical farmer, whose fine tract of land is situated in Bethel township. Mr. Emrich was born Feb. 14, 1844, in Wayne township, Schuylkill Co., Pa., son of Solomon and Elnora (Zechman) Emrich.

The great-grandfather of Elias Emrich, "Stuffel," or Christophel Emrich, came from Germany at a very early day.

John Emrich, grandfather of Elias, was a native of Schuylkill county, and was a blacksmith and farmer, spending his life in his native community, where he died at the age of seventy-six years. His wife, Madeline Philips, was about the same age at the time of her death. They were members of the Lutheran Church. Their children were: John, Benjamin, Joseph, Solomon, Eliza (m. Daniel Roeder), and Michael.

The maternal great-grandfather of Elias Emrich was a native of Germany, from which country he came to America as a young man. His son, George Zechman, was born in Berks county, where he followed farming pursuits all of his life. He was a leading Republican of his community, and a pillar of the Lutheran Church. George Zechman married Sarah Wert, and they had these children: Moses, a tanner in Bern township, Berks county, where he died; William, a watchmaker, went West; Lucy m. William Benner; Elnora became the mother of Elias Emrich; Sarah m. Benneville Berger; Leah m. (first) Joel Henny, and (second) F. Unger; Polly m. (first) Joseph Strouse, (second) John Christ and (third) John Boltz.

Solomon Emrich, father of Elias, was reared in Schuylkill county, where he remained until 1866, and in this year removed to Berks county, settling in Bethel township. Here he engaged in farming, which he followed during the remainder of his active life. He died in 1871, in his fifty-first year. He married Elnora Zechman who has attained more than four score years. Five children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Emrich: Elias; Franklin, a farmer of Custer, Nebr.; Lewis, who died at the age of six years; Leanna, who died young; and Daniel, who died at the age of three years.

Elias Emrich was reared in the public schools of Schuylkill county, and in 1866 came to Bethel township, Berks county, with his parents, he having made his home here ever since. From 1872 until 1895 Mr. Emrich operated the homestead, in the latter year removing to his own farm of twenty-five acres, which is adjacent to Millersburg, although he still owns the old homestead of ninety-nine acres. He was also for some years interested in the timber business, and other enterprises have received his attention, he now being a stockholder in the Berks County Trust Company. He has always been enterprising, progressive and energetic, and is now rated among the most substantial farmers of the community. In politics he is a Democrat, and has been active in the ranks of his party, serving for eleven years on the school board, and as township clerk for some time. He is a member of and past officer in Bethel Lodge No. 820, I. O. O. F. He and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church.

In 1869 Mr. Emrich married Miss Henrietta R. Snyder, daughter of George W. and Mary (Snyder) Snyder, and they have had six children: Charles R., who resides on the homestead, m. Mary Miller, and has one child, Carrie; George T., a farmer and miller of Bethel township, m. Cora Gasser, and has one child; Harry Walter, a storekeeper who resides in Millersburg, m. Hattie Widmer, and has one child, Robert; Sallie is deceased; and two died in infancy.

SAMUEL K. REMP, a well-known resident of Knauer's, in Brecknock township, Berks county, where he has for some years been engaged in a general mercantile business, was born April 29, 1863, in Brecknock township, son of Elijah and Mary (Kachel) Remp.

Elijah Remp, father of Samuel K., was born in 1821, and when a young man learned the carpenter's trade, it being recorded in his diary that he started at his trade July 28, 1844, obtaining in wages $1.50 per week. Mr. Remp continued at his trade until engaging in farming, at which the rest of his life was spent, his tract consisting of fifty acres. He died Feb. 7, 1905. Mr. Remp married Mary Kachel, daughter of Benjamin Kachel, and to them four children were born: Elizabeth, who died young; Aaron, who is a farmer of Knauer's (m. Susan Sweitzer); Catherine, who died young; and Samuel K.

Samuel K. Remp lived on the original Remp homestead near Knauer's until nine years of age, when his parents removed to where Howard Remp now lives, on the road leading from Knauer's to Adamstown. Here he lived until attaining his majority, when he began farming for himself. In 1888 he removed to near Morgantown, where he conducted the Westley's mill for a period of three years, and in 1891 he purchased the good-will and store property of Henry Trostle of Knauer's, where he has since carried on a general merchandise business. In this Mr. Remp has been very successful, and has built up a large and lucrative trade. The store property consists of sixteen acres of excellent soil, upon which Mr. Remp raises all kinds of truck, and here he has repaired the buildings and in 1900 erected a new barn. Mr. Remp also owns a tenant residence at Knauer's, has a half-interest in the Wyomissing grist mill (Schnader's), between Gouglersville and Mohnton, and also owns a residence on Wyomissing avenue, at the latter place. During his youth and young manhood Mr. Remp followed the trades of carpenter and painter, having learned these occupations from August Hartz, who is now deceased.

In politics Mr. Remp is a stanch Democrat, and he takes an active interest in the party's success. He was elected a school director of his township in Brecknock, which office he held for three years, during which time he helped to erect Remp's and Gebhart's schoolhouses, new text books were adopted, and various other improvements taken up. He and Mrs. Remp are Reformed members of Allegheny Union Church, of which for years he was a deacon, also serving as secretary of the Sunday-school. He is a director of the Mohnton National Bank, of Mohnton, organized in December, 1907.

On June 23, 1883, Mr. Remp married Adelia S. Schnader, born Feb. 5, 1863, daughter of Frank K. Schnader, a sketch of whom appears elsewhere. Two children, sons, have been born to this union: Charles F., an employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad, m. Minnie Kissinger, and has two children—Earl Leroy and Aime; and Elmer E., who is engaged in lathing in Reading and lives in Pennwyn, m. Katie Griffith.

AARON K. REMP, son of Elijah, and brother of Samuel K., was born in Cumru township, Sept. 13, 1853, and obtained his education in the township schools. When a young man he learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed for about five years, and in 1882 he began operations on his father's farm, where he continued for two years. In 1895 Mr. Remp purchased his present farm, which now consists of seventy acres of good, fertile land, and on which he raises produce for which he finds a ready market in Reading.

Mr. Remp married, in 1876, Susan Sweitzer, born June 8, 1858, daughter of Isaac and Mary (Hoschour) Sweitzer, and to this union one son has been born: Howard S., born June 1, 1877, m. Lizzie Hoffert, daughter of Nelson Hoffert, and has two children—Mabel M. and Paul E. The family are members of Allegheny Church, belonging to the Lutheran congregation.

FRANK M. DOWLING, a representative citizen of Reading, Pa., is a native of that city, born Nov. 3, 1856, son of James and Catherine (Coleman) Dowling.

James Dowling, who was a well-known citizen and highly esteemed resident of Reading, was a machinist, a trade which he followed all of his life, dying at the age of fifty-eight years. He and his wife, who died at the age of eighty-three years, had these children: George W., James, Henry, Charles, Mary E., and Frank M. Mr. Dowling was a Democrat in politics, but never aspired to public office.

Frank M. Dowling received his education in the schools of Reading, after leaving which he apprenticed himself to the moulders' trade with the Reading Hardware Company, with whom he remained for three years. He then found employment with Orr & Painter, with whom the following five years were spent, but in 1887 he resigned from his position to engage in the hotel business, opening a hostelry on Cotton, between Tenth and Eleventh streets. After continuing there successfully for six years, Mr. Dowling sold out to engage in the coal business where the Cotton and Maple street school is now situated, the board of education purchasing the ground from Mr. Dowling. In 1895 Mr. Dowling opened a hotel at Twelfth and Cotton streets, but retired from the business in 1908.

In 1881 Mr. Dowling married Miss Sarah Lindamuth, daughter of Bennewell and Susan (Boyer) Lindamuth, and to them have been born three children: Charles, Emma and Bessie. Mrs. Dowling is a member of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church. Her husband is fraternally connected with Emblematic Lodge, I. O. O. F., the P. O. S. of A., the Heptasophs, and for the past eighteen years the Washington Fire Company. He has various business interests in the city and was one of the party of twelve who organized and drew patterns for the Wrightsville Hardware Company, he being foreman of the plant.

GEORGE H. GEIGER, a leading agriculturist and influential citizen of Union township, Berks Co., Pa., who is engaged in cultivating his fine tract of 110 acres of land, was born in 1859, in Robeson township, Berks county, only son of Jacob and Anna (Sponagle) Geiger.

Jacob Geiger, grandfather of George H., was born in 1800 and died in 1876, and his wife Susan Geiger was born in 1801, and passed away in 1880. In 1861 this worthy couple erected the barn which stands on Mr. Geiger's farm, and on a marble slab in the wall thereof may be found their names and the date of the building. The house is a large stone structure, erected many years ago. The farm consists of 110 acres of excellent land, and the buildings thereon are in a good state of repair.

Jacob Geiger, father of George H., was born in 1838, and his wife, Anna Sponagle, Sept. 17, 1838.

George H. Geiger married Dec. 24, 1884, Miss Elizabeth Geiger, born in Robeson township, July 21, 1855, and to this union there was born in 1895, a daughter, Anna Margaret.

Mr. Geiger is a stanch Democrat in politics, and his influence in the community is shown by his election to various township offices, including that of judge of election, in a district strongly Republican.

ELLSWORTH PETER URICH, a prosperous business man of Rehrersburg, Berks Co., Pa., who carries on a large trade in saddle and harness making, was born June 10, 1864, at Myerstown, Lebanon county, son of John W. and Mary Ann (Price) Urich.

Christian Urich, grandfather of Ellsworth P., was a farmer and resided in Kutztown. He married Susannah Behney, and to this union there were born children as follows: John W.; Henry was killed at the battle of Gettysburg, during the Civil war; Isaac, who was wounded in the neck during the Civil war, m. Sallie Scholly, and they resided at Bluffton, Ind., where he died aged about sixty years; Amanda m. John Brightbill, resides near Myerstown and has two children; Elias, who also served through the Civil war, m. a daughter of John Depew, and they had three children, one of whom, William, resides at Reading; Sarah m. Moses Gerber, resides on a farm near Greble, Lebanon county, and has had three children, one being deceased; Peter m. Alice Daub, daughter of William Daub, and had one child which died young; and Frank, who resides in Reading near Eleventh and Greenwood streets, m. Sallie DeHart (daughter of Louis DeHart), who died May, 1903, leaving two children.

John W. Urich, father of Ellsworth P., was reared near Myerstown, where his entire life was spent. By trade he was a cabinet maker, having learned that occupation with Peter Stoudt of Myerstown, and this he followed for many years, being later engineer in Loose's tannery at that place. He was married to Mary Ann Price, who was reared in the Stoudt family, where Mr. Urich learned his trade, and seven children were born to this union: Elizabeth, m. to George Kline, son of Jacob Kline, resides near the old homestead, and has two children, Paul and Herbert; Ellsworth Peter; Sallie, m. to Joseph Diehl, resides in Lebanon, and has two children, Joseph and Mazie; Harry C., a blacksmith and machinist, who is manager of of the Reading Metal Body Manufacturing Company, m. Emma Mattes and resides in Fleetwood; Amanda, m. to James Klopp, resides near Myerstown, and has had two children, one of whom, Harry, survives; William died young; and Nettie m. Clement Achey, a farmer of near Myerstown, and has one child, John Leroy. The father of these children died at the old home aged fifty-eight years.

Ellsworth Peter Urich was educated in the public schools of his native locality and the high school of Myerstown and at the age of sixteen years was apprenticed to John N. Shirk to learn the trade of saddler and harness-maker. After completing his trade, Mr. Urich continued to work for Mr. Shirk for some time, being in all about ten years in his employ, and he then engaged in business on his own account at Rehrersburg, where he has built up a fine, steady trade.

On. Aug. 4, 1883, Mr. Urich married Lillie P. Schaeffer, daughter of Adam H. and Sydney C. (Potteiger) Schaeffer, and to this union there have been born children as follows: one child died in infancy; Hattie Viola m. Thomas Keener, a shipping clerk, at Reading, and has one child, Lillian May; and Annie Laura died April 16, 1904, just two days before her thirteenth birthday. The family are members of the old Lutheran Church at Rehrersburg, in the work of which they are active. In politics Mr. Urich is a Republican, but he has never cared for public office. Fraternally he is connected with Myerstown Lodge, No. 358, I. O. O. F., Camp No. 597, P. O. S. of A., of which he is a past officer, having been representative to the grand body, and with the Mortuary Benefit Fund of the P. O. S. of A.

GEORGE A. GANSTER, who died Oct. 8, 1901, was for many years a well-known resident of Reading, and the last five years of his life were spent in the shops of the Philadelphia & Reading R. R. Co. Mr. Ganster was born in 1851 in Berks county, son of Joseph and Sophia (Hasslett) Ganster, whose other children were: William, deceased; Lewis, a dairyman of Chestnut street, Reading; Joseph, a merchant of Thirteenth and Cottonwood streets; Henry, a farmer of the county; Frederick, an iron-worker; John, a paper-hanger; Jacob, in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company; Mrs. Catherine Quinter; and Mary and Sophia, deceased.

George A. Ganster received a common school education and in youth entered the employ of the William McElwaine Rolling Mill, remaining in the same employ until five years before his death when he engaged as a helper in the shops of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company, at Reading. Although a steady, industrious worker, Mr. Ganster found time to do much hunting and fishing, in which recreations he found much pleasure. In his religious belief he was a Lutheran. He was independent in local political matters, although in national issues he was a stanch Republican. Fraternally he was connected with the Washington Fire Company, as was also his son, William H.

In 1868 Mr. Ganster married Miss Emma R. Reeser, daughter of Abraham and Senara Reeser, and to this union there were born: William H., deceased; Emma M., who married Edward Snyder, of Reading; Charles I. and Carrie, deceased; Hattie E., at home; and Howard, who died in infancy. Mrs. Ganster, who survives her husband, is an active worker in St. John's Reformed Church, being especially interested in missionary work. She owns some valuable real estate in Reading, having two properties in the Sixteenth ward and five in the Tenth ward.

GEORGE H. HARTMAN, engaged in the produce business at Boyertown, is of the family founded in this section by German emigrants of the same name in the eighteenth century, they becoming loyal and industrious citizens of their adopted land.

(I) George Hartman, the emigrant ancestor, was a soldier in the Revolution. The date of his emigration is not known, but it was a short time only prior to the outbreak of the war for independence. In the Pennsylvania Archives, Series 2, Vol. 17, is a record of three Hartmans—Jonathan Adam, John and George—who sailed from Rotterdam in the "Union," Andrew Bryson, master, and arrived in Philadelphia Sept. 27, 1773. There is also a record of John George Hartman, who sailed in the "Crawford," Charles Smith, master, from Rotterdam, arriving at Philadelphia, Oct. 25, 1774. There is no record of a George Hartman sailing from Germany prior to that date except in 1764, at which time Frantz Thomas Hartman and George Henry Hartman sailed from Rotterdam on the "Sarah," Francis Stanfell, master, and arrived in Philadelphia, Sept. 20, 1764. George Hartman, the ancestor, was born in Rotenburg, Germany, and when he landed in America, owed for his passage, and was accordingly hired to a man in Oley until this money should have been paid. While there a recruiting officer for the Continental army met him in the field and asked him to enlist. He said he would only that he had to serve his time. The officer told him the farmer could be satisfied, and this would be done if he would get ready to go immediately. Satisfactory arrangements were made, and the young German enlisted, serving, according to tradition, seven years. After the war he settled near Woodchoppertown, and some time later married a Hartline. They had five sons and three daughters: Adam, who settled in Earl township, Berks county, and had eight children; Conrad, who located in Oley, and had eight children; George, of Mohnsville, who was the father of three; Jacob, of Colebrookdale township, who had three children; Daniel, of Earl township, who also had three children; and the daughters, who married respectively, George Meck, Peter Swavely and Peter Miller, all of Rockland. George Hartman died in 1831, and was buried at Oley Church, as was also his wife, who died in 1847.

(II) Conrad Hartman, son of George, was born in Earl township, Dec. 12, 1801. He owned a farm in Colebrookdale township (at Morysville), and he made farming his lifelong occupation. In 1823 he married Elizabeth Richard, who was born June 30, 1801, and who died Oct. 30, 1878. He died Aug. 28, 1878, and both are buried at Boyertown. They had eight children: Daniel R., born March 18, 1824, lived at Boyertown, and died Dec. 15, 1895; Anna, born Oct. 28, 1828, married Silas Fisher, of Reading, and died July 27, 1895; William, born Nov. 27, 1827, died at Phoenixville, April 2, 1907; George, born Jan. 2, 1831, lives in Reading; David, born Feb. 15, 1832, lives at Reading; Amos, born June 13, 1835, died on the old homestead June 15, 1907; Deborah, born July 15, 1839, married W. D. Kehl, and died March 31, 1901; and Jacob, born April 30, 1842, lives at No. 2243 North Sixth street, Philadelphia.

(III) Daniel R. Hartman, son of Conrad, was a native of Oley township, born March 18, 1824, and he died at his home in Boyertown Dec. 15, 1895, and is buried at Fairview cemetery. For six years he farmed in Douglass township, but the greater part of his active life was spent at his trade of shoemaker. In his religious views he was a Lutheran, and he held a number of church offices. While in Exeter he belonged to Schwartzwald Church. He married Phoebe Hafer, born July 31, 1827, daughter of George Hafer, and she died Jan. 10, 1891. They had eight children: Deborah (1852-1872) died unmarried; Frank H. lived at Boyertown; George H.; Ellen married Henry H. Reinert, of Boyertown; Misses Lizzie and Amanda live together at Boyertown; and Daniel H. and William H. also live at Boyertown.

(IV) George H. Hartman, son of Daniel R., is one of the successful business men of Boyertown. He was born in Exeter township June 25, 1855, and his education was acquired in the township schools. As a young man he learned the painter's trade, and this he followed three years. In 1876, Centennial year, he engaged in the produce business, buying butter, eggs, poultry and vegetables from the farmers in Colebrookdale and Earl townships, and shipping them by rail to Philadelphia once a week. The success that attended him in the beginning induced him to continue in this line, and he had trade for all his goods in Germantown, Pa. He is thoroughly familiar with every part of this work, and attends personally to the major details. For four years he was in business with his uncle, William Kehl. He has shipped as many as 1,500 dozen eggs per week, and as high as 2,000 pounds of butter. Mr. Hartman has a comfortable home on Philadelphia avenue. He and his family belong to St. John's Lutheran Church.

In 1879 Mr. Hartman was married to Mary Fox, daughter of Samuel Fox, of New Berlinville, and their three children are: Charles C., Mabel F., and Florence F. In politics Mr. Hartman is a Democrat. For years he was a member of the council, and he served one term as chief burgess. He is active and progressive, keenly alive to the best interests of the town, and is very highly respected.

FRANK D. KRAMER, a prosperous farmer of Berks county, Pa., operating in the southeastern end of Greenwich township, was born Oct. 3, 1859, in Richmond township, son of George and Catherine (Dietrich) Kramer.

John Kramer, grandfather of Frank D., was a farmer and extensive land-owner of Greenwich township, and in addition conducted a distillery near where Schofer's schoolhouse now stands. Mr. Kramer was a captain of militia during the Revolutionary war, his company meeting at Grimville about every two months, and on battalion days all of the companies of the Sixth Battalion of the western section of the county would meet. Captain Kramer was tall and of fine physique, a giant in strength and a great disciplinarian. He married Sarah Shadel, and their children were: John; Mary m. William Adam, a carpenter; Sally m. William Gehret, also a carpenter; George; and a daughter (name not given).

George Kramer, father of Frank D., followed farming in Greenwich township, owning 122 acres of fine land, and in addition carried on carpentering, being an excellent mechanic. He married Catherine Dietrich, daughter of George Dietrich, a prosperous and well-known miller and farmer of Greenwich township. To this union were born: Mary m. John Riegel, a farmer of Richmond township; Sally m. Henry Bower, a miller; Hettie died aged eleven years; Catherine died at the same age; Frank D.; Carrie m. Thomas Rentschler, of Tilden township; Amanda m. Henry Reppert, a farmer of Greenwich township; Chester U. died aged three years; and Rosie m. Simon Driebelbis.

When seven years of age Frank D. Kramer was taken to Greenwich township to the farm now owned by Alfred Dietrich, near Grimville. Here the Kramers resided until 1871, and in this year removed to a farm of over 100 acres in the northwestern part of the same township.

On Jan. 1, 1880, Mr. Frank D. Kramer married Esther A. Frauenfelder, daughter of Adam and Wilhelmina (Lenhart) Frauenfelder, of Greenwich township, and to this union were born: George R. m. Annie Fink, and has one daughter, Erma; Percy died in infancy; Mattie M. m. Henry Adam, and has two children, Edna Mabel and Franklin Henry; Robert P.; Curtis E. J.; Frank A.; Chester U.; Maud M.; Walter W.; Florence; Amanda L.; Herbert H.; Esther C. died in infancy; Edgar P., and Harvey S. J.

Frank D. Kramer is one of the good, practical agriculturists of this locality. He has worked hard ever since his childhood, and his industry and energy have been rewarded with well-merited success. In 1898 Mr. Kramer purchased the Jonas Dietrich homestead, consisting of 243 acres of land. Honest and upright in his dealings with his fellowmen, he has won a high place in the esteem of the people of the community. The family are members of Dunkel's Lutheran Church. Politically Mr. Kramer is a Democrat.

GEORGE L. FICHTHORN, who died at his home in Reading, his native city, May 26, 1902, was engaged all of his life at the tanning trade. He was born April 18, 1852, son of Andrew Fichthorn, his grandfather also being named Andrew.

Andrew Fichthorn, the father, attended the public schools of Reading, after leaving which he learned the carpenter's and later the saddler's trades, continuing at the former but a short time, and at the latter for several years on Penn street, near Fourth. Later he engaged in the tanning business on Chestnut street below Third, under the firm name of Fichthorn & Co., and in 1865 he removed his business to Sinking Spring, this county. In 1870 Mr. Fichthorn returned to Reading, engaging in the real estate business, to which he gave his attention until his death, June 25, 1903. Andrew Fichthorn married Rachel R. Reiff, daughter of Jacob Reiff, of Montgomery county, and she died in April, 1905, aged seventy-nine years, the mother of children as follows: Clara C. resides at the old home, No. 30 South Eighth street, Reading; Andrew R.; Anna M. m. Dr. C. F. G. Bergner, the well known druggist of Reading; Martha E. m. Samuel Yeoman, of Reading; Jacob W.; J. Walter D., a clerk of Reading, m. Rosa E. Selig, and has two children, Emma E. and Mary A.; Hannah E., a teacher in Reading for twenty-three years, died in February, 1906; Grace V., Mary M. and Daniel C. died young; and George L.

George L. Fichthorn was educated in the public schools of Reading, and was then employed in his father's tannery and in attending to the repairs of his father's large estate. The tannery was later purchased by the Kerpers, and Mr. Fichthorn was employed by the Haubners, continuing with this firm until his death.

On Oct. 16, 1873, Mr. Fichthorn married Susan Matilda Wentzel, daughter of the late George and Mary Ann (Fillman) Wentzel, and to them were born a family of eight children: George A. m. Lottie Hilbert, and has two children, George A., Jr. and Catharine; Harry L., single, resides at home; William, a tinsmith, resides at home; John, Florence M., Estella M., Edith E. and Ralph. Mr. Fichthorn was a Lutheran. He was fraternally connected with the Red Men and the Knights of Friendship. In politics he was a Republican.

Mrs. Fichthorn's father, George Wentzel, was a teamster and did a large draying business. He died in 1895, at the age of fifty-two years, the father of the following children: Susan M.; Alice m. Charles Peiper; William m. Katie Cummins; Francis m. Mary Brown; Ida m. James Fisher; Augustus m. Miss Bellman. The family were members of the Reformed Church. In politics Mr. Wentzel was a Democrat.

KENSIE N. YODER, D. D. S., of Reading, was born Aug. 21, 1877, in Wernersville, Berks county, son of Jacob S. Yoder. He is a grandson of William Yoder, and great-grandson of Jacob Yoder.

Jacob Yoder was born June 27, 1792, in Oley township, this county, and there passed his early life. When a young man he learned the shoemaker's trade, which he followed in his native township until he was over thirty years old, when he moved to Lower Heidelberg township and there became the owner of thirteen acres of land. There he died Sept. 23, 1861, and he was buried at the Hain's Church, of which he was a Reformed member. He married (first) Lydia Brown, of Rockland township, and they had these children: Polly m. a Kelchner; Amos m. Elizabeth Ruth; William is mentioned below; John, who lived at Wernersville, where he followed the trade of wheelwright, was the father of Frank and grandfather of Leonard G. Yoder, both of Wernersville; James, who made his home at Adamstown, was a soldier in the Civil war and was killed in battle. The father, Jacob Yoder, m. (second) Catherine Ernst, born Dec. 8, 1800, died Jan. 11, 1875. By this union there were five children: Sarah, Kate, Daniel, Hettie and Benneville.

William Yoder, son of Jacob, lived in Heidelberg township and is buried at Hain's Church. He was a farmer, and owned valuable land, Wernersville being located on what was formerly his property. He married Susan Strunk, a sister of William Strunk, and she lived until 1908, being over sixty at the time of her death. Their children were as follows: Daniel; Lydia m. Darius Bohn; Kate, deceased, m. Aaron Leib; Jacob S.; and Sarah m. William Linsman, and died about a year later, leaving one daughter, who is now Mrs. Kate Hain.

Jacob S. Yoder, son of William, was born Jan. 5, 1847, in Wernersville, was reared a farmer, and followed farming for a number of years. Later he engaged in the timber business in his section, in which he was quite successful, and he then took up lime-burning at Wernersville, where he died March 29, 1909. He was an active member of the fire company of the town, and a member of Lodge No. 835, I. O. O. F., and Camp No. 99, P. O. S. of A., there. He married Jemima M. Wenrich, daughter of Adam and Eliza Wenrich, of Heidelberg, and they had two sons, Kensie N. and Frederick S., both dentists. Mr. Yoder was a member of Hain's Reformed Church., as is his son Dr. Kensie N., while his wife and Dr. Frederick S. are Lutherans.

Kensie N. Yoder spent his boyhood days at Wernersville; and there received his preparatory education in the public schools, graduating from the high school in 1894. Later he attended Palatinate College, at Myerstown, Pa., leaving in the senior year of the course, however, to become a clerk and the assistant postmaster at Wernersville, being employed in the general store of E. S. Hassler, who was postmaster. There he remained four years, at the end of which period he came to Reading and became assistant manager of the Eagle Book Store. After a year there he returned to his former employer, Mr. Hassler, at Wernersville. In 1900 he became a dental student in the Dental Department of the University of Pennsylvania, graduating in 1903, after which he opened offices at his present location, No. 512 Penn Square, Reading. He has built up a large practice and enjoys an enviable reputation, being attentive to his work and successful in acquiring and retaining patronage. He maintains a branch office at Wernersville, and is assisted by his brother, Frederick S.

Dr. Yoder's establishment is equipped with all the latest appliances necessary for his work, and he has facilities for administering all anesthetics.

Dr. Yoder is active in Masonic circles, being a member of Williamson Lodge, No. 307, F. & A. M., of Womelsdorf; Reading Chapter, No. 152, R. A. M.; and Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T. He also belongs to Camp No. 99, P. O. S. of A., of Wernersville, of which he is a past officer, and to the Wernersville Fire Company. He is a member of the Hain's Reformed Church, with which his ancestors back to his great-grandfather have been identified and there many of the family lie buried.

FREDERICK S. YODER, D. D. S., was born at Wernersville March 17, 1885, and there he spent his boyhood and obtained his early education. He graduated from the high school in 1903, and the following year registered as a student in the Dental Department of the University of Pennsylvania, graduating therefrom June 17, 1908. He has since been engaged in practice in partnership with his brother, Dr. Kensie N. Yoder, looking after the office at Wernersville, where both make their home. Dr. Yoder is a member of Camp No. 99, P. O. S. of A., and of the Citizens Hose Company.

MOYER. The first of the Moyer family of whom there is any definite record is William Moyer, born in 1801 on one of the Moyer homesteads. in Marion township. He was a resident of Womelsdorf, and in his younger days he was a teamster who frequently made trips to Philadelphia carrying hides and produce and bringing back merchandise. Later he worked as a farmer for David Laucks and the Grubers. His wife was Hannah Hoyer, sister of the late Mayor Joseph Hoyer of Reading. She was born in 1809, and died in 1884. William Moyer and wife had fifteen children, among whom were: Mary, m. to George Mounts, who survives her, living at Klopps Store at the age of ninety; George and Percival, twins; John and William, twins; Elias and James, twins; Ella, m. to Allen Schell, of Reading; Caroline, m. to David Bricker, of Wernersville; and Eliza m. to Daniel Smith.

Percival Moyer, son of William, was born in the Tulpehocken section of Berks county, Feb. 15, 1831, and died at Reading March 15, 1904. By trade he was a cabinet maker, but later in life he was engaged in a produce business at Womelsdorf. In 1892 he came to Reading where he lived a semi-retired life until his death. He was a Lutheran in religious belief and is buried at Womelsdorf. He was twice married. His first wife, Eliza Bollman, daughter of George Bollman of Spring township, died Sept. 6, 1868, aged twenty-eight. Their children were: George L.; and William J., who died in infancy. The second wife of Percival Moyer was Malinda Heberling, of Meckville, and they had three children: Clara m. Thomas Brown, of Reading; Tillie m. Harry Hays, of Newark, N. J.; Ella m. Arthur Levan, of Reading.

George L. Moyer, son of Percival and Eliza (Bollman), was born at Womelsdorf, Berks county, June 1, 1862. He attended the public schools of his neighborhood, and obtained a fair education. When fifteen years of age he learned the trade of hat making from his uncle George Bollman, at Adamstown, and has followed it ever since. He came to Reading in 1890, and commenced his business life here by working for J. G. Mohn & Bros., hat manufacturers, where he has since continued.

Mr. Moyer is a member of the Hatters' Union; Independent Order of Americans, No. 371; P. O. S. of A., No. 28; Sr. O. U. A. M., No. 60; F. & A. M. Lodge No. 62; Wyomissing Council, No. 1584, Royal Arcanum. In politics he is a Republican, and he served as school director and as auditor of the Adamstown borough while living in that community.

In 1884 Mr. Moyer was married to Mary Jane Mohn, daughter of William and Sarah (Redcay) Mohn, and granddaughter of Wilhelm Mohn, of Adamstown. They have one son, William Mohn Moyer, born in 1885, who graduated from the Reading high school, class of 1904, and is now a clerk in the Reading Hardware Company's establishment.

ROBERT W. MADEIRA, whose popular pharmacy is located at No. 322 North Sixth street, Reading, is a native of Berks county, born in Shoemakersville, Nov. 22, 1865, son of Samuel S. and Caroline (Schumn) Madeira.

Samuel S. Madeira was a lifelong resident of Berks county, born in 1831. When the Reading Railroad was opened he became one of its employes and continued to work for the company thirty years. He retired from this position not long before his death, which occurred in 1884, when he was but fifty-three years of age. He and his wife had nine children, of whom seven lived to grow up, viz.: Sue, Mrs. W. S. Wagner, of Reading; K. S., an employe of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad (m. Miss Ida Reber); Robert W.; Minnie L. (m. Samuel Weaver, of Ephrata); Howard S., postmaster at Shoemakersville (m. Miss Sue Lamey); Annie, now deceased; and Clara, a trained nurse at Walter's Park Sanitarium. Mr. Madeira was a Republican and a member of the United Evangelical Church.

Robert W. Madeira received a good education in the Berks county schools and later taught in them a while. He then entered the Kutztown Normal School, completed his course there and received a permanent certificate as school superintendent. He then resumed teaching and held positions in both Berks and Chester counties. After several years in educational work Mr. Madeira made up his mind to enter the drug business, and in the furtherance of his purpose entered the employ of Leedy Seipel, who was located at the corner of Fourth and Poplar streets, Philadelphia. In due time he became a student in the Philadelphia School of Pharmacy, and in 1888 graduated receiving his degree. He returned to Leedy Seipel, and was assigned to his pharmacy in Cape May, where he remained till 1890. In that year Mr. Madeira came to Reading, worked as a clerk till 1896 and then started in business for himself.

The drug store purchased by Mr. Madeira was the property of John A. Groff, and was located on North Sixth street, where the new proprietor has remained up to the present time. He conducts a first class establishment, with complete stock not only of drugs, but of toilet articles and the various other lines carried now in up-to-date pharmacies. Mr. Madeira carries on both a wholesale and retail business, and also manufacturers a number of proprietary medicines. Among them may be mentioned Dr. Allen's (Dime) Catarrh Cure, Madeira's Ingrowing Nail Cure, Celerine Headache Powders, Madeira Liquid Corn Cure, Madeira's Liver Pills, Camphorene Cold Tablets, Der-Ma-Lyn, White Pine Cough Cure, and a preparation for chapped hands known as "I like it."

On Sept. 14, 1892, Mr. Madeira married Miss Cora A. Ritter, of Allentown, Pa. Two sons have been born to them, Reginald Ritter and Robert Spencer. The parents are members of the First United Evangelical Church on Eighth street, of which Rev. Edward H. Kistler is the pastor. In politics Mr. Madeira is a strong Republican, and fraternally he belongs to the P. O. S. of A., No. 189, of Reading. Mr. Madeira stands high both in business and social circles, and has many warm friends in Reading.

WILLIAM H. MAYS, farmer and dairyman of West Reading, in Spring township, was born July 18, 1848, near historic Schaefferstown, in Heidelberg township, Lebanon Co., Pa. He is a son of the late George W. Mays and great-great-grandson of Nicholas Mays (or Mace), who founded the family in America.

Nicholas Mays was born in Germany, whither his parents had emigrated from Switzerland. In 1715 he came to America, locating in Lancaster (now Lebanon) county, Pa., making the journey from New York by way of Harris Ferry, where Harrisburg is now located. His children were: Nicholas, Philip, George, John, Jacob, Valentine, Henry, Benjamin, and Marguerite Elizabeth.

Jacob Mays (Mace), son of Nicholas, was born at Schaefferstown, Lebanon county, and was a tailor by trade. He married Susan Baseor, daughter of George Baseor, who was massacred by the Indians at what was known as the "Baseor Hotel" in the Blue Mountains. These children were born to Jacob and his wife: John married Susan Missimer; William died at Manheim, Pa.; Henry died at Anderson, Ind.; Jacob is mentioned below; Marguerite E. died unmarried; Daniel died at Schaefferstown.

Jacob Mays, grandfather of William H. Mays and son of Jacob Mays, lived in Heidelberg township, Lebanon Co., Pa., owning land which had formerly been the property of his father. He helped to erect the Schaefferstown Church. His children were: Henry, a farmer of Heidelberg township, Lebanon county, who had children—John, Sarah and Amanda; George W.; Catharine, m. to Abraham Snyder; and Sarah, m. to Henry Yeingst.

George W. Mays, born Oct. 18, 1822, in Heidelberg township, Lebanon county, died Aug. 10, 1890, aged sixty-seven years, nine months, twenty-two days. He owned a tract of forty-three acres, which he cultivated, this being a part of the old homestead in Heidelberg township, and he also acted as surveyor in Lebanon and served many years as a justice of the peace. In politics he was a Democrat, in religion a Reformed member of Kimmerling's Church, where he is buried. His first wife, Sarah Spangler, daughter of Henry Spangler, is buried at Schaefferstown. By her Mr. Mays had five children: Dr. Thomas, of Philadelphia; William H.; Dr. Alfred, who died in California in 1907, at the age of fifty-seven; Emma, deceased wife of William Exely, of Philadelphia; and Jacob, who died unmarried. By his second marriage, to Malinda, daughter of Henry Phillipi, there were eight children: Amelia, m. to David Miller, of Reading, Pa.; Alice (1865-1893), who died unmarried; U. Grant, of Lebanon, Pa.; Agnes, who died young; Sallie, m. to George W. Kreider; Mamie, who died young; Edith, who died young; and Earl, who is the State agent at Hershey, Pennsylvania.

William H. Mays obtained his education in the common schools, alternating his attendance with work on his father's farm until he was thirteen years old, when he began hiring out among farmers. In 1872 he began farming on his own account in North Lebanon township, Lebanon county, near Avon, where he remained for two years. In 1882 he removed to Berks county, settling on the William Stover farm, of 200 acres, in Bern township, which he cultivated for three years. The next fifteen years Mr. Mays worked the well known George Ruth farm of eighty-three acres in Cumru township, in 1900 moving upon the old Seitzinger farm in Spring township, now embraced in the borough confines of West Reading and Wyomissing. This property, which comprises over two hundred acres of the best land in the county, is now owned by the Pennsylvania Trust Company. Mr. Mays is now engaged as a farmer and dairyman at West Reading, in Spring township, and he is successful and up-to-date in his methods, having the most modern and approved machinery and excellent live stock, including sixteen horses and over forty head of cattle. His milk is shipped daily by team to Reading, where it is retailed, the product consisting of about two hundred quarts daily.

Mr. Mays was one of the first directors of West Reading upon the incorporation of the town. He has served two years as school director of Spring township, proving an able and conscientious official, as he has always been a good citizen. He supports the Democratic ticket.

On Dec. 23, 1871, Mr. Mays married Mary A. Dundore, daughter of David and Lovina (Zeller) Dundore, and they have had a family of eleven children: (1) Agnes E. A. (deceased) m. William Bohn, of Shillington. (2) Annie m. Harry F. Baer, of Cumru. (3) George D. m. Jennie Labe, and resides in Reading. (4) Mamie m. Charles Becker, of West Reading. (5) Elsie m. John Miller, of Shillington. (6) William J. m. Helen Summons, of Reading. (7) Katie, (8) Edith, (9) Jennie, (10) Cora and (11) Hattie are all at home. The family are members of St. John's Reformed Church of Sinking Spring.

WILSON E. MOYER, railroad station agent at Wernersville, was born at Robesonia, in Heidelberg, Feb. 4, 1873. He is a grandson of the late Daniel Moyer, of Heidelberg, who was a farmer. He married Katharine Ernst, daughter of Joseph Ernst and wife (whose maiden name was Klopp), and they had twelve children: Emanuel B. m. Clara Wenrich; John E. is mentioned further on; Jeremiah m. a Wenrich; Daniel J. m. Sarah Knoll, and after her decease Emma Kintzer; Mahlon A. m. Ella Noecker; Julius G. m. Isabella Behney; Amelia m. Isaac M. Bechtel; Sarah m. John Miller; Amanda m. William H. Froelich; and three died young.

John E. Moyer, of Robesonia, father of Wilson E. Moyer, was born in April, 1845, in Heidelberg township. He served in the Civil war for three years, enlisting as a private and was mustered out as a sergeant, being promoted for bravery in rolling out an unexploded shell from entrenchments at Cold Harbor, Va. He carried on farming for over thirty years, but has been living in retirement since April, 1904. He married Amanda Ruth, daughter of Francis Ruth, of Heidelberg, and by her he had twelve children: Wilson E. is mentioned below; Maggie C. and John M. both died after becoming of age; Minnie E. m. William E. Fisher, attorney-at-law at Reading; Allen N., a boiler maker, m. Clara Schlenker; Harry F., a farmer, m. Maggie Fidler; Ezra J. is ticket clerk and baggage agent at the Pennsylvania Railroad depot at Reading; Irwin D., a blacksmith at Black Bear, Pa., m. Florence Fister; Samuel N., Susan A., May R. (public school teachers) and Sarah M. are all unmarried.

After a preliminary education in the local schools Wilson E. Moyer attended the York County Academy and also took a special business course in the Batcheldors Business College at York, Pa. Upon returning home, he entered the general store of his uncle, Mahlon A. Moyer, as a clerk. He filled this position for several months, and served as student in telegraphy at the Womelsdorf railroad station in 1892, and as telegraph operator in the Western Union office at Womelsdorf in 1893. With this experience, in 1894 he was employed by the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company as operator and assistant station agent at Richland station, and filled these positions satisfactorily for nine years, when he was transferred to the Wernersville station to become the agent there. This position he has held successfully until the present time.

In February, 1895, Mr. Moyer married Bessie Levengood, daughter of Gabriel Levengood and Mary Wagner, his wife, of Myerstown, and by her he has two children, Mary and Elsie. Gabriel Levengood, father of Mrs. Moyer, served three years in the Civil war, and was an aid to General Doubleday at Gettysburg. He was a son of the late Elias Levengood, who served his country on the frontier and went through both Mexican and Civil wars.

WILLIAM FRANKLIN STIMMEL, a leading brick manufacturer and extensive farmer of Kutztown, Pa., was born Aug. 20, 1846, on the Stimmel homestead in Maxatawny township, Berks county, son of Jacob and Sarah (Heffner) Stimmel.

Jacob Stimmel, great-grandfather of William F., was a son of the immigrant ancestor. He settled in Maxatawny township prior to 1757, as in that year he was taxable in that township, and was a single man.

Jacob Stimmel, son of Jacob, was born Oct. 23, 1773, and died May 7, 1847. He was the original owner of the Stimmel homestead in Maxatawny township, was a farmer, and also engaged in wagoning, was a good mechanic and a useful man in his community. He had children: Jacob, who bought the old homestead, but later sold it to Benneville; Daniel, John and Samuel, who settled in Delaware, Ohio, but Samuel later went to Iowa; and Benneville, who lived on the old homestead until 1862, when he sold it to Henry Biehl of Kutztown, and moved among his brothers in Ohio. There are many Stimmel descendants in that State whose ancestry came from Berks county, and some of these Ohio Stimmels have gained prominence in politics.

Jacob Stimmel, father of William F., was born on the Stimmel homestead in Maxatawny township, Nov. 12, 1814, and died May 8, 1896, at the home of his son William F., in Kutztown. In early life he learned the trade of shoemaker which he followed for many years, but in 1844 he purchased the old homestead. He was a member of Zion's Church of Grimville, of which he was deacon and elder for many years. He married Sarah Heffner, born April 7, 1811, died May 19, 1886, daughter of George Heffner, a full sketch of whom appears elsewhere. Mr. and Mrs. Stimmel had children: Maria, who met death at the age of four years by falling into a kettle of boiling water; Amelia, who married Manasses Greenawalt; and William Franklin.

William Franklin Stimmel lived on the home farm until he was twenty-three years of age, and he then removed to Greenwich township and became a carpenter, which trade he followed for six years. In the spring of 1872 he became proprietor of the "Three Mile House," and while at this place he also conducted a saddlery establishment. In April, 1875, Mr. Stimmel engaged in the saloon business in Kutztown and continued therein until 1888, when he removed to his present residence, No. 45 Noble street. In the spring of this year Mr. Stimmel took charge of the Kutztown branch of the Keystone National Bank of Reading, Pa., and he conducted this very successfully for ten years. In 1884 he was elected a director in the Topton National Bank, and served three years. He was also a charter member of the board of directors of the Keystone Shoe Manufacturing Company, and was connected with that firm for sixteen years. In the spring of 1902 Mr. Stimmel engaged in the manufacture of high-grade brick, an industry he has carried on to the present time. He is also a stockholder and trustee of the Keystone State Normal School, being deeply interested in the success of this famous institution of learning. He is likewise a stockholder in the York Silk Company, the Sacony Shoe Company, and the Keystone Agricultural Society of Kutztown. In 1893 Mr. Stimmel purchased the Balzer Geehr farm, the largest in Maxatawny township, consisting of 232 acres of the best land in the district. His large barn on this property was destroyed by fire Aug. 13, 1905, but he has since erected a new and up-to-date brick barn at a cost of $5,000. Mr. Stimmel began building operations in 1880, erecting nine houses, in addition to the great shoe factories of Kutztown, now owned by L. A. Stein. He also is a member of the building committee of the Keystone State Normal School. Mr. Stimmel and his family are connected with St. Paul's Reformed Church, and he has served as a deacon and elder therein. In 1886 when the church was built he was a member of the building committee. The political life of Mr. Stimmel has been an active one. Like all the Stimmels he has been a strong advocate of the principles of the Democratic party. For twelve years he served the town in which he lives as councilman, was school director for six years, acting during the entire time as treasurer of the board, was a member of the county standing committee for three years, and has been a delegate to numerous county conventions. In 1908 he was again elected to the town council for a term of three years. He is one of the men most active in planning for the Kutztown Centennial in 1915.

On Nov. 17, 1867, William Franklin Stimmel married Mary A. Siegfried, daughter of Henry K. and Lucinda (Stein) Siegfried. To Mr. and Mrs. Stimmel have been born children as follows: Sarah Alice m. Dr. E. L. Hottenstein, a well known physician of Kutztown, Pa.; Elton, a graduate of the Pennsylvania Dental College, class of 1893, is carrying on a large and lucrative dental practice in Reading (he m. Alice C. Fenstermacher, and has one son, William Franklin); Ida m. M. L. Moyer, of Souderton, Pa.; Irvin, a graduate of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, class of 1903, is carrying on a flourishing drug business in the city of Philadelphia (m. Lydia Cunningham, of Berkeley Springs, W. Va.); and George, a graduate of the Pennsylvania College of Dentistry, class of 1905, resides at No. 45 Noble street, Kutztown, and has a good practice. Mr. Stimmel's children have all been well educated. They all attended the Keystone State Normal School, Ida, George and Irvin graduating from the institution of which their father is such a stanch supporter. William F. Stimmel is a citizen of whom Kutztown may well feel proud. Enterprising and public-spirited, strictly honest in all his dealings with his fellowmen, stanch in his support of the church and the school, and withal kind and generous, he has been of monumental good in the community, and may well be called one of Berks county's representative men.

ELTON STIMMEL, D. D. S., of Reading, Pa., one of the leaders of his profession in this city, was born May 1, 1871, in Greenwich township, Berks Co., Pa., son of William F. and Mary Ann (Siegfried) Stimmel, and a grandson of Jacob Stimmel.

Jacob Stimmel was a pioneer settler in the vicinity of Eagle Point, Berks county, where he took up a large tract of land and became a man of agricultural prominence. He married a Miss Heffner and they had these children: William F.; and Amelia, who became the wife of Manasses Greenawalt. Jacob Stimmel and wife were worthy members of the Reformed Church. In religious belief they were consistent and set a good example to their descendants. In politics the family has always been Democratic.

William F. Stimmel is also an extensive farmer and became a large building brick manufacturer. His plant is still in operation, being located on the outskirts of Kutztown, where its output is practically consumed. He is a representative man of his locality and has held a number of the offices, serving on the council, also as school controller, and is a trustee of the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown. He has always taken an active part in public affairs and was one of the organizers of the Keystone Shoe Manufacturing Company. He has been a very useful member of the Reformed Church and was liberal in his assistance in the erection of the church at Kutztown. His children are: Alice married Dr. E. L. Hottenstein, of Kutztown; Elton; Ida married M. L. Moyer, a chemist and prospector of Montgomery county; Irvin, a druggist at Philadelphia; and George, a dentist, at Kutztown.

Dr. Elton Stimmel was primarily educated in the schools of Kutztown and then entered the Keystone State Normal School. In 1889 he entered the Pennsylvania Dental College at Philadelphia and was graduated with the degree of D. D. S., Feb. 28, 1893. For his initial practice he located at Allentown, but in the following year removed to the borough of Kutztown, where he continued until 1895, when he came to Reading. Here he has built up an enviable reputation for skill in dental surgery, and has his offices fully equipped with appliances for the scientific pursuit of his profession.

Dr. Stimmel married, Jan. 1, 1895, Alice C. Fenstermacher, of Mertztown, and they have one son, William F., Jr.; they are members of the Second Reformed Church. Dr. Stimmel belongs to the Modern Woodmen, the Iroquois, the P. O. S. of A., the P. O. S. of A. Commandery, the Pennsylvania Immediate Relief, and the Loyal Americans. Professionally he is a member of the C. N. Pierce Dental Society and Dental Practice Association.

THOMAS F. HEMMICH, a well known and highly esteemed old resident of Reading, Pa., now living retired at No. 28 North Third street, was born April 13, 1828, in Cumru township, Berks county, son of Benjamin and Mary (Fritz) Hemmich, and grandson of Joseph and Margaret (Wanner) Hemmich.

The emigrant ancestor of Thomas F. Hemmich was born at Wurtemberg, near the River Rhine, Germany, and on coming to this country settled in Cumru township, Berks county, where he became an extensive land owner, possessing at one time what later became a portion of the Berks county poor farm. He and his wife were members of the Reformed Church, while in politics he was a Democrat. He had three sons: John, Joseph and David. Joseph Hemmich also owned and cultivated land in Cumru township, and like his father was very prosperous, accumulating much property. He was the owner of a mill near the "Three Mile House," and, in company with his brother David, did a flourishing business, David taking care of the Philadelphia end.

Benjamin Hemmich, son of Joseph and father of Thomas, also farmed and did carpentering. He was a very industrious man, and was noted for his honest and upright methods in transacting business. He and his wife, Mary Fritz, were the parents of four children, as follows: Eliza, of Reading, married John From, now deceased; Thomas; Annie died young, and Benjamin. The family were connected with the Lutheran Church.

Thomas Hemmich received his education in his native township, and until nineteen years of age remained on the home farm. At this time he was apprenticed to the cabinet-maker's trade, at which he was employed for three years, and then he turned his attention to patternmaking, continuing in that line for more than fifty years. Mr.

Hemmich is also an inventor of some note, having several valuable patents, such as heaters, antifriction journals, soft coal consumers, etc.

In 1850 Mr. Hemmich married Lydia Holloway, who died in 1866. He married (second) in 1867, Sarah J. Biehl. To the latter union were born three children: Mary J., Naomi G. and Effie K. Mr. Hemmich is a Lutheran in religious belief. He was made a Mason in Lodge No. 62, F. & A. M., of Reading, but later transferred his membership to St. John Lodge, F. & A. M., when the latter lodge was formed, being a charter member thereof. He formerly belonged to the I. O. O. F. In political matters Mr. Hemmich is independent in his views.

DANIEL B. KEEHN, an old and respected resident of Mt. Penn, has passed his entire life in that section of Berks county. He was born March 1, 1841, in Lower Alsace township, son of Charles and Maria (Biedeman) Keehn, and received his education in the public schools, though his advantages were limited, for he commenced work at his trade when only eleven years old. In his boyhood he was reared to agricultural pursuits, but when he began to learn his trade he entered the St. Lawrence Woolen Mills, where he acquired first a knowledge of weaving and later of spinning. He was employed there for ten years, and later was engaged as a spinner at the Stony Creek Mills, where he remained eight years. For several years he was in the carding-room of the hat factory in Reading, and he was also similarly employed at other points. Since 1897, however, he has not worked at his trade. In that year he became helper to the sexton of the Aulenbach cemetery, and for the past four years he has been employed at Carsonia park. He has been justly esteemed for his sterling qualities as an industrious and thrifty man, and he has an honorable standing among his fellow citizens. Mr. Keehn is a member of St. Andrew's Reformed Church, and in political sentiment he is a Democrat. On Oct. 23, 1862, he was drafted for service in the Union army, and served nine months as a private in Company I, 179th Pennsylvania Militia, being mustered out at Harrisburg July 27, 1863.

On May 28, 1864, Mr. Keehn married Louisa N. Goodhart, who died in September, 1907, aged sixty-four years, seven months, twenty-seven days. The direct cause of her death was pleurisy, though she had been ailing for two years, and was confined to her bed for some time. Like her husband she was an esteemed member of St. Andrew's Reformed Church. To Mr. and Mrs. Keehn were born five children, namely: Evan Devilla is mentioned below; Charles William m. Annie Fisher, and died when twenty-eight years old; Martin Elmer, a molder of Reading, m. Sallie Sidel; Daniel Edwin, a conductor on a trolley line in Reading, m. Irene Reiff; Nora Octavia is living at home. Mr. and Mrs. Keehn also had an adopted daughter, Mabel G., who survives.

Evan Devilla Keehn, son of Daniel B., was born April 17, 1865. He learned the molder's trade and worked at it sixteen years. In April, 1896, he bought a milk route in Reading, which he is now operating. In 1885 he married Hannah E. Dautrich, daughter of Franklin and Susan (Hoffmaster) Dautrich, and granddaughter of Samuel Dautrich. They have three children, Clarence I., Edna L. and Helen I., and they reside in their own home at No. 513 South Fourth street, Reading.

GOODHART. Frederick Goodhart, grandfather of Mrs. Louisa N. (Goodhart) Keehn, was a substantial farmer in Exeter township, owning the original homestead. He married Mary Gertrude Shaffner, and they had a large family, namely: Frederick, Jacob, John, Daniel, Benjamin, Martin, William, Mary (who died unmarried), Hattie (wife of Jacob De Turk), and Catharine (who married John Bechtel). The parents were members of the Reformed Church.

William Goodhart, son of Frederick, was Mrs. Keehn's father. He purchased the parental homestead, which comprised 172 acres, and which his father had improved with a large stone house and barn, William erecting two houses on the property. He followed farming most of his life, which covered the allotted threescore and ten years, his birth having occurred in January, 1796, and his death Aug. 29, 1866. He married Elizabeth Newkirk, and ten children were born to them, as follows: John N., deceased, married Sophia Kline; Reuben died when sixteen years old; Mary Ann, deceased, m. John Christian; Henrietta, unmarried, is of Reading; Amelia Ellen died when twenty-two years old; Lovina died in childhood; Catharine is the widow of Isaac Boyer, of St. Lawrence; Louisa N. was Mrs. Keehn; Elizabeth is the widow of Josiah Ruth, of Reading; and William F. m. Ellen Ruth.

IRWIN G. LEININGER, one of Berks county's representative farmers, who owns and operates the Leininger homestead, a fine tract of seventy-five acres partly in Spring and partly in Lower Heidelberg township, was born May 3, 1858, in Marion township, Berks county, son of John K. and Caroline (Brown) Leininger.

Daniel Leininger, the great-grandfather of Irwin G., was born in 1780, and died in 1860, having spent his life in agricultural pursuits. He married (first) Margaret Hornberger, by whom he had these children: Daniel, who had Darius, Isaac, William and Mary (who m. James Shower); John; George; Kate, m. to Adam Weiler; and Polly, m. to David Gehtz. Daniel Leininger married (second) Hannah Texter, and by this union he had these children: Sally, m. to Samuel Kegerise; Susan, m. to Charles Fix; Joseph; Hannah, m. to Moses Stamm; anad Ann, m. to John Seifert.

George Leininger, grandfather of Irwin G., was born March 12, 1809, and died Jan. 16, 1887, aged seventy-seven years, ten months, four days. He was a lifelong farmer, and owned and conducted the property now occupied by Irwin G. Leininger. He was a man of fine appearance, was well known and influential, and was a representative citizen of his locality. He married Mary Kleinginni, who was born May 10, 1809, and who died March 12, 1890, daughter of John Kleinginni, of Cumru township, and to them were born the following children: Caroline m. Abraham Houser, of Schaefferstown, Pa.; John; Mary m. B. S. Klopp, of Stouchsburg, Pa.; Adam; Hannah m. Abraham Fessler, of Schaefferstown, and had children—Katie, Mary, Hannah, George and Ellen; Charles, born in 1842, died unmarried in 1870; Joshua m. Celinda Kline, and resides in Freeport, Ill.; Katie m. Albert Moyer, and resides in Dayton, Ohio; Daniel L., born Sept. 4, 1848, resides with his sister, Agnes, at Reading; Ellen, born in 1850, died in 1902, unmarried, in Reading; Agnes resides in Reading; and two died in infancy. The parents of these children were members of the Lutheran Church, and were buried in the Sinking Spring cemetery.

John K. Leininger, father of Irwin G., was born Oct. 30, 1833, in Heidelberg township, and died June 2, 1899, at the age of sixty-five years, seven months, two days. He was a lifelong farmer and owned the farm now owned by Irwin G. Leininger. For some years he also engaged in the sale of agricultural implements. He conducted the Bushong farm in Bern township for some time, which was known as Glenside and which consisted of some 560 acres, said to be the best farm in Berks county, yielding in one year 5,500 bushels of wheat. Mr. Leininger had thirty milch cows, carried on a milk route to Reading, owned twenty-six horses, and employed continually a dozen or more employes, at one time having sixty corn huskers in the field. In one year he made 365 loads of hay, which he marketed in Reading. In 1890 he purchased his father's farm, on which he resided until his retirement, several years prior to his death, when he removed to Reading. Mr. Leininger enjoyed a wide acquaintance, and was one of the most highly esteemed men of his township. He was a Lutheran member of the St. John's Church at Sinking Spring, and is buried in the cemetery connected with that church.

John K. Leininger married Caroline Brown, who was born Dec. 7, 1831, and who died Sept. 24, 1901, in her seventieth year, and to them were born the following children: Irwin G.; Martin T., of Reading; John, who went West and has not been heard from since 1881; Mary M., born in 1864, who died unmarried in 1900; and Samuel, of Myerstown, Pa., where he is a telegraph operator.

Irwin G. Leininger obtained his education in the public schools of Reading, and later attended Prof. D. B. Brunner's Reading Academy. His youthful days were spent upon the milk wagons of his father, and he engaged in work upon the farm until 1888, when he located in Fritztown, and engaged in operating the old homestead, which he conducted on shares until 1901, in which year he purchased it. On this seventy-five acre tract is found some of the finest spring water in the world, the historic Cacoosing creek running through the property, and here also is a vein of magnetic ore, which was mined in abundance in the early seventies. Mr. Leininger is an up-to-date farmer, keeping fine live stock on his place, including twelve head of pure Holstein cattle. He has an excellent peach orchard of 500 trees, where some of the finest fruit in the country is grown. In politics Mr. Leininger is a Republican. He and his family are members of St. John's Lutheran Church at Sinking Spring.

In 1891 Mr. Leininger married Miss Kate Miller, born Sept. 3, 1870, daughter of William and Hannah (Leserve) Miller, of Reading, and to this union has been born one son, John, who finished a special course at the West Chester State Normal, class of 1909, and intends entering the University of Pennsylvania to study Electrical Engineering and later Mechanical Engineering.

BENJAMIN K. HUNTZINGER, prominently identified with the fire insurance business of Pennsylvania for upward of thirty years, was born in Lower Heidelberg township, Berks county, May 12, 1846. He was educated in the township schools and brought up on his father's farm. When seventeen years old he became enthusiastic about enlisting in the Civil war and with several school companions of a like age visited a recruiting office in Reading. Having been accepted, they were given a short furlough and upon their return to camp were sworn into the national service. But they had not yet become fully equipped for active service when Mr. Huntzinger was ordered to report at the official headquarters in citizen's garb, and there to his great surprise he met his father, who had secured his release on account of his being under age. Leaving his companions regretfully he accompanied his father home and there resumed labors on the farm for two years, attending school during the winter months. During this time, however, in February, 1864, he and several companions, ambitious like himself to do something for themselves, went to Schuylkill county to secure work about the mines at Mahanoy City, but failing to get satisfactory employment they tramped through deep snow and dense forests to Shenandoah, reaching there at a late hour of the night, complete strangers. Mr. Huntzinger became a teamster and hauled logs to a sawmill to provide lumber for the then booming town of Shenandoah; but he continued thus only a few months, and when the farming season opened he gladly returned to his father's comfortable home to again take up his accustomed work. In the spring and fall of 1866 Mr. Huntzinger took special courses of study in Brunner's Academy at Reading, for the purpose of becoming a teacher, and passing a successful examination secured a school in Lower Heidelberg township, which he taught for two terms, assisting his father on the farm during the season when school was closed. In the fall of 1866 he began soliciting life insurance and carried on that work while teaching. In 1868 he formed a partnership with a companion, Adam G. Fox, for the purpose of conducting a flourmill near Landingville, Schuylkill county, and they operated the mill until 1870, when the partnership was dissolved and Mr. Huntzinger removed to Reading. While at the mill he also taught the public school near by; and it was there that he began soliciting fire insurance.

Upon locating at Reading Mr. Huntzinger directed his attention to the life and fire insurance business, which he continued until 1874, when he relinquished the life insurance branch. He had received two special prizes for his great success as a solicitor in the business, and the general agents of his company complimented him very highly for having secured the largest single premium in the history of the company up to that time. He remained at Reading until 1876, when his business connections necessitated his removal to Harrisburg, and at this prominent center he has been most actively engaged in the same business until the present time. In 1889 he advocated the organization of a fire insurance association for millers, so as to secure for them lower rates, and his well-directed efforts in this behalf were so successful that, in 1890, an association was established under the name of the Millers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company, with office at Harrisburg. Quite naturally the members selected him as their secretary and manager, and he has been filling these positions, by annual re-election, until the present time. However, while at school he had manifested a great fondness and capacity for mathematics and his qualifications in this respect gave him special adaptation for the position which he has filled with marked success for twenty years; and his intelligent management of his company's affairs has won the high esteem of the milling and fire insurance circles throughout the United States. In developing the membership and business of the company he traveled over a great part of the United States, covering the Eastern and Middle States, the Southern to South Carolina, and the Western to the Missouri river, which obliged him to be away from home a considerable portion of his time.

During his extensive travels, Wernersville always appealed to Mr. Huntzinger as the most desirable place for a permanent home, being near his birthplace, in the midst of the surviving friends of his youth. He therefore purchased a finely situated lot of ground on the main thoroughfare in the center of the thriving village, erected a commodious dwelling-house with all modern improvements, and located there in 1908, still retaining his position and business connections at Harrisburg, however.

In 1869 Mr. Huntzinger was married to Jane Gonser, daughter of William Gonser, a farmer of Exeter township, Berks county, whose family is mentioned elsewhere in the sketch of John R. Gonser.

Jared Huntzinger, father of Benjamin K., was a farmer of Lower Heidelberg township, and is mentioned at length in the sketch of Rev. F. K. Huntzinger, elsewhere.

GRUBER FAMILY. Michael Alvin Gruber (son of Richard Michael, of Michael, of John, of John Adam, of Henry), the author of this article, was born April 24, 1855, in North Heidelberg township, on the farm where his mother and mother's father were born and raised. He grew up on his father's farm and assisted in performing the varied labors and duties connected therewith, among which were certain kinds of work once quite common but now almost extinct as farm labor in Berks county, viz., breaking flax, threshing rye with the flail, making thatches and thatching roofs. His education, up to the age of fifteen years, was under the direct and careful supervision of his father, and for five years thereafter he attended the Womelsdorf Academy, taught by that proficient teacher and mathematician, Prof. John S. Krumbine, where he prepared for college. In the fall of 1875 he entered the junior class of Muhlenberg College, Allentown, Pa., from which institution he graduated in June, 1877, at the head of his class, and three years later received the degree of Master of Arts.

He chose teaching as his profession, which he followed for fourteen years (1877-91), during eight of which he was principal of the high school at Bernville, Pa., where, in addition to thorough instruction in the branches of the regular school course, he prepared young men and women for teaching and for admission to higher institutions of learning. His pupils are found in the various occupations and professions of life and are numbered among the graduates of Princeton, Muhlenberg, Franklin and Marshall, and Pennsylvania Colleges and of the Normal Schools at Kutztown and West Chester. During the school term of 1890-91, forty of his pupils were teachers in Berks county.

In March, 1891, he passed the civil service examination and, in May of that year, was appointed to a clerkship in the War Department at Washington, D. C., where he is still employed. His leisure time is occupied in mathematical and genealogical research and in writing an occasional article for "The Pennsylvania-German." In mathematics he has made a special study of integral, rational triangles, solutions by continued fractions, and Diophantine Analysis in general. A number of his problems and solutions are published in the "American Mathematical Monthly," Vols. I to IX. In genealogy he is compiling the Gruber family history, and has made a translation and transcript of the old baptismal record of St. Daniel's church in Heidelberg, in Berks county, to which is added information pertaining to the early history of that church and the pastors thereof.

In his early career as a teacher he devoted considerable time to the study of botany. He also invented a trisector of plane angles.

In 1877 he married Amelia Margaret Petree, daughter of John F. Petree and wife Rosanna (Fidler) and granddaughter of William Witman Petree and wife Margaret (Kantner) and of Daniel M. Fidler and wife Amelia (Reedy). The union resulted in nine children, of whom five are living, as follows: (1) Ralph Arthur, married to Louisa E. Eckert; (2) Grace Evangeline; (3) Ella Florence, married to Harry E. Betz; (4) Anna May; and (5) Mary Amelia. Ralph A. and Anna M. are graduates of the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, and Mary A. of the Inter-State Commercial College, Reading.

Calvin Luther Gruber, brother of Michael Alvin, was born April 8, 1864, in North Heidelberg township, where he grew up on his father's farm a student and admirer of nature. For the first sixteen years of life, his father was his principal teacher, and, with the exception of one year during that period, his studies and recitations were conducted under the parental roof. For about three years thereafter (1881-84) he attended the high school at Bernville taught by his brother, Michael A., where his recitations were models of thoroughness and where he studied Latin, Greek, and the higher mathematics. In 1886 he graduated from the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown and was honored by being appointed one of the speakers on the commencement programme. Since 1889 he has held the position of professor of arithmetic and civil government in that institution and, since 1891, also the secretaryship of the faculty.

Prior to his connection, as teacher, with the Keystone State Normal School, he taught school for three terms in Marion township, two terms in the West Leesport grammar school, and one term at the "Forge school," North Heidelberg township, where his father had taught eleven terms.

He made botany a study from the time he was ten years of age, and later added the specialty of trees, shrubs, and woody vines, having collected specimens of wood of about four hundred fifty species, with fruits, seeds, and leaves to most of them. Since 1901 he has also been assisting Prof. W. W. Ashe, of Raleigh, N. C., and Dr. C. S. Sargent, director of the Arnold Arboretum, of Harvard University, in determining the species of Hawthorns (Crataegus) of the eastern United States. His labors in this field have been rewarded by the discovery of a number of new species and the naming after him of one of them (Crataegus Gruberi, Ashe). He has published several brochures on the Hawthorns of Berks county, has contributed a number of articles to educational journals, is the author of "Recreation Queries in United States History" (1890), and "The Government of the United States and of the State of Pennsylvania" (1909), and has in preparation an excellent treatise on arithmetic. He has also devoted considerable time to the study of birds and insects.

In 1890 he married Sallie G., daughter of Joseph P. Belleman and wife Sarah Isabella (Gicker) and granddaughter of Joseph K. Belleman and wife Christina (Phillips) and of Daniel H. Gicker and wife Elizabeth (Seidel). They have one child, a bright and studious daughter, Florence May, who at the age of eleven years was admitted to the normal course of the Keystone State Normal School, graduating in 1908, and continuing in the post-graduate course of that school.

The Grubers of Berks county are principally descendants of Henry, Christian (brother of Henry), and Simon Gruber, those of the Heidelbergs, Penn, Marion and Bethel descending from Henry; those of Perry and Windsor chiefly from Christian; and those of Greenwich and Albany mostly from Simon. Descendants of these branches are also living in Reading; and besides, there are in that city several Grubers—descendants of Joseph Gruber, who was naturalized in 1872 and who came from Bavaria, Germany, about six years earlier.

Line of Henry Gruber. (I) Henry Gruber was one of the early settlers of the Heidelbergs and is very likely the Henrich Gruber who is shown as having come to this country in the ship "Dragon" and landed (qualified) at Philadelphia Sept. 30, 1732. He appears to have been naturalized April 10 or 11, 1761. No records have been found of his birth or death; but the period of his life can be pretty closely approximated from the fact that his will was admitted to probate on June 17, 1777, and that his brother Christian, who is considered the younger of the two, was born Oct. 18, 1712.

His wife's name was Maria Eva Rosina, or, as the "learned" writer of his will put it, Maria Euphrosina, but nothing has been found as to her parentage.

He belonged to the Lutheran Church, which has been, as a rule, the religious faith of his descendants. For a time he was a member of the "Little Tulpehocken Church," near Bernville; but when, about 1750, the "Lutheran Congregation in Heidelberg," now known as St. Daniel's Church or "Corner Church," was founded, he was one of the original members, and he and his wife are, no doubt, buried in the old graveyard at that place, although no tombstones to that effect have been found. The remains of fully fifty of his descendants, named Gruber, rest in the burial-grounds of that church.

He took up, at different times, about three hundred acres of adjoining land in what is now North Heidelberg township, the survey of the first tract being dated June 17, 1737. In 1761 this land was patented to him by the Penns, and in 1769 he divided it into two almost equal parts, giving, for a certain consideration, the eastern portion to his oldest son, John Adam, and the western to his youngest son, Henry. In the same year John Adam added a patent of thirty-nine acres to his portion, and the greater part of his farm is still in the Gruber name, the owners being as follows: (1) Henry Gruber, 1737 to March, 1769; (2) his son John Adam, March, 1769, to March, 1807; (3) John Adam's son George, March to June, 1807; (4) George's brother John, June, 1807, to 1840; (5) John's son Daniel, 1841 to 1867; (6) Daniel's son Israel, 1868 to 1907; and (7) the estate of Israel Gruber since 1907.

Henry, Jr., sold his farm, in 1785, to John Deppen, and by intermarriage it passed through Scheetz to the present owner, Nathaniel P. Lengel.

In the old baptismal record of the "Little Tulpehocken Church" are found the names of seven children of Henry Gruber, as follows: (1) John Adam, born Oct. 19, 1735; (2) Catharine Elizabeth, born Feb. 6, 1737; (3) Maria Eva Rosina, born Dec. 3, 1738; (4) Christian, born Feb. 18, 1740; (5) Christopher, born Dec. 11, 1741; (6) Henry, born Aug. 19, 1747; and (7) Elizabeth, born Oct. 10, 1749. These children, excepting Christopher, are also mentioned in his will, which was made Feb. 10, 1773.

Of his daughters and son Christopher no further information has been found, excepting that certain records might warrant the statement that Maria Eva Rosina Gruber was the wife of John Nicholas Knobb. As Christopher is not mentioned in the will, he probably died young.

(II) John Adam Grüber (1735-1807), son of Henry, lived and died on the old homestead; married (first) Elizabeth, tradition giving maiden name as Schauer [Shower], and (second) Sarah, maiden name not known; the three buried at St. Daniel's church; eight sons and four daughters, by first wife, two sons dying in childhood, the ten surviving being: (1) Maria Elizabeth, born in 1762, married George Knobb; (2) John George (1764-1841), blacksmith and wheelwright, married Elizabeth Bressler, both buried at St. Daniel's church (no children); (3) Maria Christina, (1766-1825) married John Adam Wilhelm, both buried at Host church (seven children,—John, Jacob, Adam, Catharine, Maria, Barbara, and Elizabeth; numerous descendants with surnames Wilhelm, Smith, Christ, Lengel, Moyer, Himmelberger, Kuehner [Keener], Zeller, Groff, Potteiger, Rauch, Miller, etc.); (4) John (1769-1840), buried at St. Daniel's church, owned the old homestead (1807-40) and at times other farms, but for twenty-seven years (1803-29) lived on Gov. Joseph Hiester's farm near the "Blue Marsh" in Bern township, married Anna Maria Lasch, who is buried at Hain's church (six children,—John, George, Daniel, Maria Barbara, Michael, and William); (5) Henry (1771-1849), buried at Rehrersburg, married Mary Werheim (five children,—David Joseph, Nellie, Catharine, and Elizabeth); (6) John Peter, born 1773, removed from Berks county about 1811 (St. Daniel's Church record shows a son, Henry, born in 1807); (7) John Jacob (1775-1828) married Eva Moyer, both buried at St. Daniel's church, thirteen children,—Elizabeth (1) and Catharine, twins, John Adam, Sarah, Jacob, Rebecca, Hannah, "Poll," Isaac, John, Elizabeth (2), Juliann, and Mary, of whom Elizabeth (1) died young; the other twelve grew up and had families); (8) Catharine married John Keller (a son, John, and a daughter, Margaret, wife of John Zerbe); (9) Anna Maria [Mary], died in 1859, married William Fiehl [Field], both buried at St. Daniel's church (nine children,—William, George, Elias, Reuben, Isaac, "Poll," Elizabeth, Lovina, and Margaret; numerous descendants); and (10) Philip married, in 1812, Elizabeth Werheim, and removed from Berks county between 1814 and 1820.

Tradition has it that the team of John Adam Gruber, with himself as teamster, was impressed into the service during the Revolutionary war, and that he returned with a pair of traces, the horses having died from want of forage. In 1778 and 1779 orders were issued for about two hundred wagons from Berks county to carry provisions and supplies.

(II) Christian Gruber, born in 1740, son of Henry, married Susanna Maria, daughter of the immigrant Andrew Beyer [Boyer]; resident at different times during 1767-84 of Cumru, Heidelberg, and Bern; removed from Berks county about 1785, and a taxable, in 1786, of Penn's township, Northumberland (now Union) county; ten children shown on records of St. Daniel's Church and the church at Bernville, of whom five are known to have died young, the others being: Susanna Maria, born in 1766; Christian, born in 1771; Philip, born in 1777; Anna Engel, born in 1779; and Philippina, born in 1783, and married in 1801 to George Zubler, a son David, 1806-09, being buried at St. Daniel's Church.

On a return of militia officers of Berks county for May 27, 1780, there is shown a Christian Gruber with rank of ensign, commissioned May 10, 1780, as of the 6th Company (Capt. Philip Filbert), 2d Battalion (Col. Henry Spycker), Berks County Militia.

(II) Henry Gruber, born in 1747, son of Henry, sold his farm in 1785, and, as tradition has it, removed to Lancaster and later to York county; married Anna Margaret (probably Klopp); two children shown on St. Daniel's Church record: Peter, born in 1768, and Anna Margaret, born in 1785.

(IV) John Gruber (1791-1861), son of John, of John Adam, married (first) Catharine (1791-1850), daughter of Michael Seidel, and (second) Widow Maria M. Sloat (nee Stiely), the three buried at Hain's church; nine children, by first wife: (1) Daniel (1819-55) married Hannah Krick, and had children, Benneville K. (of Reading), Kittie Ann, Emmeline, Levi, and Ella, Benneville K. having served as private in Company I, 128th Pa. Inf., nine months, in the Civil war; (2) Maria (1820-78) married Samuel Ohnmacht (1814-99); (3) Catharine (1823-64) married Joseph Seitzinger; (4) Susanna (1824-54); (5) Margaret (1826-73) (known as Peggy) married Daniel Bickel; (6) Sarah (1828-47); (7) Anna, born in 1830; (8) Lovina (1832-87) married William Franklin Umbenhower; and (9) Matilda (1835-67) married Aaron T. Dundor.

(IV) George Gruber (1793-1876), son of John, of John Adam, married Anna Maria Lash (1801-75), both buried at St. Daniel's church; no children. From about 1841 until his death he resided about a mile east of Womelsdorf, along the Berks and Dauphin turnpike.

(IV) Daniel Gruber (1795-1867), son of John, of John Adam, resided on the old homestead, which he owned from 1841 to his death; married (first) Christina (1795-1846), daughter of Michael Seidel, and (second) Sarah Fidler (1814-72); the three buried at St. Daniel's church; six children by first wife: (1) Catharine (1825-65) married Gabriel Gerhart (1816-91), both buried at North Heidelberg church (descendants with surnames, Gerhart, Royer, Zerbe, Stump, etc.); (2) Israel S., 1827-1907, resided on old homestead and owner thereof from 1868; married Rebecca, daughter of Joseph Ernst (ten children, —Alandon John Israel, married to Emma K. Werner; Levi Ephraim, married to Vilanda M. Horne; Joseph Samuel, married to Sallie A. Potts; Etillia Sarah Elizabeth, married to Isaac H. Horne; Pierce Emanuel, married to Mary Jane Werner; Calvin Jeremiah, married to Lillie A. Himmelberger; Arabella Rebecca, married to Daniel A. Snyder; Daniel Henry, married to Ellen L. Potteiger; Lillie Mary, married to Charles G. Speicher; and Milton Reuben, married to Annie A. Blatt); (3) Matilda (1830-96), and (4) Elizabeth (1833-54) were the second and first wives, respectively, of Ephraim Klopp (1830-78), the three buried at St. Daniel's church (descendants with surnames, Klopp, Miller, etc.); (5) Mary married Jeremiah Horne (descendants with surnames Horne, Helm, Schmehl, Grimes, Reifsnyder, etc.); and (6) Rebecca (1839-73) married James H. Stoudt, buried at Bern Church (descendants with surnames Stoudt, Ernst, Katzeman, etc.).

(IV) Maria Barbara (known as "Poll") Gruber (1798-1873), daughter of John, of John Adam, buried at St. Daniel's church, married John Lash, five children: Benneville, Adam, John, Sarah (wife of Daniel Glass), and Mary (wife of Eli Yonson).

(IV) Michael Gruber (1802-74), son of John, of John Adam, was a man of sterling qualities and fine physique; in 1834 he bought and removed to a farm in Heidelberg where he lived the remainder of his life; married Eva (1806-1890), daughter of George Bohn and wife Maria (Kissinger) and granddaughter of Frederick Bohn and wife Catharine Elizabeth (Wummer); both buried at St. Daniel's church; five children, the youngest of whom, Emma Maria, died in childhood, the others being: (1) Emanuel B. (1826-1909), resided on and owned (from 1866) his father's farm, married Mary Elizabeth (1834-1908), daughter of Daniel Fidler and wife Elizabeth (Miller) and granddaughter of Henry and Catharine Fidler; one child, a daughter Diana, wife of Albert, son of Levi Gaul and wife Rebecca (Wenrich) (Albert Gaul and wife have one child, a daughter Maggie, wife of Charles Blatt, son of Cornelius L. Blatt and wife Amanda Gruber); (2) John (1827-70), crushed to death on his birthday anniversary (July 14th) by earth and stones caving in on him while working in a stone-quarry in his yard, buried at St. Daniel's church, married Elmira, daughter of John Smaltz, had a daughter who died in youth; (3) Henrietta Matilda (1832-68), buried at Womelsdorf, married Reuben Althouse, three daughters, Emma (wife of Thomas J.

Brossman), Mary (wife of Ezra Hettinger), and Clara Matilda (wife of Adam G. Stump); (4) Richard Michael (1834-1909), a progressive farmer and school teacher and, for forty-eight years, a resident of North Heidelberg, forty-two years of which he lived on one farm; in education and intelligence he was decidedly in advance of the majority of the people in his township; he believed, with Burke and Horace Mann, that school-houses and education are the chief defense of nations, and personally attended to the instruction and education of his children; he was a farmer for forty-four years, from 1856 to his retirement in 1900, during which time he also taught thirteen consecutive terms of school in North Heidelberg (1862-75), eleven of them being spent in school No. 5, then known as the "Forge School"; he had previously (1854-57) taught three successive terms in Penn township; in 1849-50 he learned tailoring with William Kunkelman, but worked at the trade only about three years; he married, in 1854, Mary Ann (1833-1904), daughter of John Schaeffer and wife Susanna (Staudt) and granddaughter of John Schaeffer and wife Magdalene (Richard) and of Daniel Staudt and wife Susanna (Ulrich); after her death he had made his home with his sons, Calvin L. and H. Wayne; there are four sons, as follows: (1) Michael Alvin [see sketch at beginning of this article]. (2) John Emanuel, born March 13, 1857, in North Heidelberg, grew up on his father's farm and worked thereon till forty-three years of age, taught school eleven terms, made a collection of 458 kinds of wood arranged in a fine cabinet constructed by himself of 803 pieces and about 100 kinds of wood, has a collection of eggs of fifty species of birds, for several years has been setting up all kinds of farm implements, wind-towers, fencing, etc., for Klopp & Kalbach of North Heidelberg, besides clerking a number of sales during the winter, is still single. (3) Calvin Luther [see second sketch at beginning of this article]. (4) Horace Wayne, born Jan. 26, 1871, in North Heidelberg, grew up and worked on his father's farm; taught school three terms; clerked for several years in different kinds of stores; since 1901 employed by the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company in their Reading shops; resides in Reading; married in 1897 Sarah Susanna, daughter of Abraham R. Gruber (son of Christian of John Adam of Christian of Christian) has one son, Raymond Abraham Richard. These four sons and their father enjoy a remarkable record as school teachers; the father taught sixteen terms and each of his sons attended his school; the oldest son taught fourteen terms and had as pupils his two younger brothers; the second son taught eleven terms and had as pupil his youngest brother; the third son has been teaching since 1883 and had as pupil his youngest brother; the youngest son taught three terms; and in the same school where the father had taught eleven terms, the second and third sons each taught one term and the youngest son two terms.

(IV) William Gruber (1806-83), son of John, of John Adam, married (first) Lydia Stamm (1810-46) and (second) Maria Catharine German (1810-88), widow of Levi Mease; twelve children, a son and a daughter by first wife dying in infancy; ten surviving children, one son and four daughters by first wife and five daughters by second wife: (1) Angeline married Henry Kissinger (three sons, Frank, Henry and William; (2) Lovina married Benneville Adams; (3) Lydia married Herman Berndt; (4) Rebecca married Joel Haas; (5) William married Catharine Matz, two daughters—Anna Maria (wife of Howard U. Klopp), Sarah Margaret, Helen Regina (wife of Lewis Reese Davis), Charles Daniel (the veterinary surgeon of Bernville, Pa., married to Mary Martha Burkhart; children—Maye Katharine and Anna Laura) and Emily Maye (wife of Harry J. Lambert). Isaac H. Gruber in 1855 founded the carriage factory located in Mount Pleasant (Obold), Berks county, and carried on that business until his death, when the property was bought by his son, William E., who erected, across the street from the old factory, a large and commodious three-story structure in which the business is successfully continued. (5) Franklin H. (1835-1898) married Matilda H. Himmelberger; eight children, three dying in childhood, the others (five sons) being: John William (married to Clara A. Stoudt; children—Franklin Pierce, Annie Lydia, Aetna Amelia and Mary Matilda); Adam Rufusal (married to Rosabella K. Hiester; children—Lizzie E. and Katie H.); Jacob Henry (married to Annie Bright; children—Sallie Irene, Paul Levi and John Adam); George Pierce (married to Kate Schrock; no children); and Levi Franklin (a graduate with first honors of Muhlenberg College and a prominent Lutheran minister of Minneapolis, Minn., married to Amelia Louisa Hoehn, of Rochester, N. Y.). Franklin H. Gruber founded, about 1883, the well-known wheelwright establishment, the Gruber Wagon Works, located at the foot of the hill below Mount Pleasant (Obold), Berks county, having for some years previously followed that trade on his farm about a mile south of that place. After his death his four oldest sons continued the business until the death of Adam Rufusal, in 1903, since which time it has been very successfully conducted by the three brothers, John W., Jacob H. and George P., each an expert in his special trade connected with the business, which is noted for thorough, reliable and conscientious workmanship and the use of up-to-date machinery. (6) Erasmus H., born in 1838, married Rebecca Deppen; children: Annie Mary first married Charles V. R. Addams and second Cyrenius F. Haag; and Daniel Francis married Ellenora Ruth. Erasmus H. Gruber was a private in Company G, 151st Regiment (nine months), Pennsylvania Infantry, Civil war, and was wounded with loss of arm at Gettysburg, Pa., on July 1, 1863. (7) Henrietta, born in 1840, married Nicholas Albright, of Reading. (8) John H. (1843-1901) married Elizabeth Yoder; four children, George Milton, John Calvin, Mary Elizabeth and William Martin.

(IV) Rebecca Gruber, of John Jacob, of John Adam, married Daniel Fessler.

(IV) Hannah Gruber (1807-65), of John Jacob, of John Adam, m. Christian Bricker (1801-72); six children, Jonathan, Jacob, John, Catharine, David, and Daniel; numerous descendants with surnames Bricker, Cox, Kepley, Barlett, Wagner, Batdorf, Shepp, Fidler, Boyer, Lengel, Hetrich, Bright, Parson, Bennett, etc.

(IV) Isaac Gruber (1810-45), of John Jacob, of John Adam, married Elizabeth Groby; three surviving children: (1) Melinda (born in 1838) married Levi J. Kline, of Ohio; (2) Adam (writes name Gruver), of Miamisburg, Ohio, born in 1843, married Sarah Gebhart (three sons and four daughters); (3) Miranda (1845-82) married H. B. Shade.

(IV) John Gruber (1813-38), of John Jacob, of John Adam, married (first) Mary Batdorf and (second) Angeline Rhiel; by first wife four sons, and by second wife one son, namely: (1) Percival, born in 1832, removed to one of the Western States. (2) Levi, born in 1832 (a twin brother of Percival), married (first) Catharine Riegart, and (second) Catharine Fisher; no living children; a resident of Kansas. (3) Rufus, born in 1834, married Jane Ford; three sons and two daughters; a resident of Miami county, Ohio. (4) Ishmael, a resident of Schuylkill county, Pa. (5) John Adam, born in 1856, married Sallie Zeller; children, George David, John Edwin, Samuel and Phoebe Estella.

(IV) Elizabeth Gruber (1815-92), of John Jacob, of John Adam, married William W. Smith; three sons and one daughter; descendants with surnames Smith, Degler, etc.

(IV) Juliann Gruber (1817-1907), of John Jacob, of John Adam, married Peter Behney; four daughters, each married to a Peiffer; numerous descendants with surnames Peiffer, Kline, Klopp, Seidel, Ruth, etc.

(IV) Mary Gruber, of John Jacob, of John Adam, married a Mr. Carver.

Line of Christian Gruber. (I) Christian Gruber (Oct. 18, 1712-Nov. 14, 1781) was one of the early settlers of what was then known as Tulpehocken, and owned a farm in what is now Jefferson township. No record has been found of his immigration, but he appears to have been naturalized April 10, 1760. He married Jan. 26, 1742, Anna Kunigunde Stup (1721-1799), daughter of Martin Stup and wife Anna Catharine (Schultz), and he, his wife, and three of his children are buried in the old graveyard at Bernville, Pennsylvania.

In the old German family Bible (printed in 1736), in the possession of Josiah Gruber, a great-grandson, living near Summit Point, W. Va., are recorded his seven children: (1) John George, born Feb. 16, 1743; (2) Christian, born Jan. 5, 1745; (3) Susanna, born Aug. 22, 1746; (4) Maria Catharine, born Dec. 24, 1749; (5) John Adam, born April 11, 1752; (6) John Albrecht, born May 9, 1754; and (7) Anna Margaret, born April 2, 1759. All the names, except Christian, are also found in Rev. John Caspar Stoever's record of baptisms and marriages, 1730-79. The family record in the Bible referred to contains the evidence in two of the baptismal entries that Christian Gruber was a brother of Henry Gruber, the immigrant, who settled in the Heidelbergs.

(II) John George Gruber (1743-1792), son of Christian, married April 16, 1776, Elizabeth, daughter of Lenhart (Leonard) Emrich, of Bethel township; about 1789 he removed from Berks county to what is now Lower Mahanoy township, Northumberland Co., Pa., where he owned a farm on which he died. He had five children: (1) Catharine Elizabeth, born in 1777, married Frederick Itzweyler; (2) Susanna, born in 1779, married Arthur Rogers; (3) Rosina Elizabeth, born in 1780, married Jonas Wolfgang; (4) Henry, in 1813, got full possession of his father's farm, and shortly afterward appears to have removed to Franklin county, Ind. (descendants are residing in Indiana, Ohio, California and other States); (5) Elizabeth, born in 1785, married Peter Wetzel.

(II) Christian Gruber (1745-1822), son of Christian, married Susanna (maiden name said to be Sligher), owned about 250 acres of land in Windsor (now Perry) township, and from him have descended the Perry township Grubers; he had six children: (1) Susanna (1770-1849) married George Bodey; (2) Christina (1773-1857) married Frederick Bailey; (3) John George (1778-1866) married Hannah Savage (two children—Susanna, 1805-90, wife of Solomon Mengel, and John S.); (4) Barbara (1780-1854) married John Hoffman; (5) John Adam (1786-1871) married Susanna Rieser (six children—Benjamin; Elizabeth, wife of George Adams; Susanna, wife of Jacob Diehl; Catharine, wife of Thomas Mengel; Christian, and John Adam); (6) Elizabeth (1788-1868) married Christian Berger.

(II) Susanna Gruber (1746-1808), daughter of Christian married Matthias Schmidt [Smith]; three sons and two daughters, the youngest son, John Henry Schmidt (1784-1848), being married to Catharine Wilhelm, daughter of John Adam Wilhelm and wife Maria Christina (Gruber) in the line of Henry Gruber.

(II) Maria Catharine Gruber (1749-1796), daughter of Christian, married a Mr. Zuber.

(II) John Adam Gruber (1752-1781), son of Christian, died unmarried; buried with his parents and sisters, Mrs. Schmidt and Mrs. Zuber, in the old graveyard at Bernville, Pennsylvania.

(II) John Albrecht (known also as Albright) Gruber (1754-1825), son of Christian, married Susanna Vilbina [Philippina], daughter of Henry Knobb and wife Maria Catharine (Fidler), of Heidelberg township; removed in 1806 to what is now Jefferson county, W. Va., about two miles from Summit Point, where he owned a farm of about 250 acres on which he died; eight children, all born in Berks county, Pa., namely: (1) Catharine Elizabeth married John Custer; (2) Christian, buried at Marion, Ohio (three sons and three daughters; numerous descendants in Ohio and other Western States); (3) Susanna Vilbina married John Zerbe [the miller], the mill now known as Sunday's mill, along the Tulpehocken, being built by him (both buried at the "Little Tulpehocken Church"; numerous descendants); (4) John Adam married Barbara Bachman (six sons and three daughters; descendants in Virginia, West Virginia, and the West); (5) John Jacob married Martha (or Magdalene) Bachman (four sons and five daughters, descendants principally in Virginia and West Virginia, one of the sons being Josiah Gruber, who has the old family Bible of his great-grandfather, Christian, in which Bible are also recorded the children of his grandfather, John Albrecht, as well as those of his great-grandfather); (6) John had one daughter; (7) Elizabeth married John Bachman (ten children; descendants living in Ohio and other States of the West); and (8) Anna Maria. Albrecht Gruber is shown to have served as a private in the Revolutionary war from Aug. 10 to Sept. 9, 1780, in Capt. Conrad Sherman's Company, 6th Battalion of Berks County Militia, commanded by Lieut. Col. Joseph Hiester, but it has not been ascertained whether this company had service outside of Berks county. Albrecht's sons, John Adam and John Jacob, served in the war of 1812, as privates in (first) Capt. Thomas Cockrell's Company of Infantry, 57th Regiment, Virginia Militia, from Aug. 26 to Oct. 6, 1814; and (second) Capt. John Lyle's Company of Infantry, 1st Regiment, Virginia Militia, from Oct. 6 to Nov. 24, 1814.

(II) Anna Margaret Gruber, daughter of Christian, married William Gieseman, who died in 1843, a resident of Mifflin township, Dauphin Co., Pennsylvania.

(IV) John S. Gruber (1807-1889), son of John George of (II) Christian, married Elizabeth Baer; three children: (1) Hannah was twice married; (2) Elizabeth married Israel M. Becker; and (3) George B., living about two miles east of Shoemakersville, married Tilaria Hamsher, and raised a family of eight sons and six daughters.

(IV) Benjamin Gruber (1809-1870), son of John Adam, of (II) Christian, married Elizabeth Mengel; five children: (1) Daniel M. married Sarah Ann Lesher (a son and a daughter); (2) Susanna remained unmarried; (3) Elizabeth married Joel Stetzler; (4) Amanda married F. Leonard Reber; and (5) Benjamin M., a well known justice of the peace and clerk in the court-house offices, married Louisa M. Hill (a son).

(IV) Christian Gruber (1818-1904), son of John Adam of (II) Christian, married Sarah Rothermel; three children: (1) Abraham R. married Emeline Swoyer (five sons and five daughters, the oldest daughter, Sarah Susanna, being the wife of Horace Wayne Gruber in the line of Henry Gruber); (2) Susanna married Jonathan Trexler; and (3) Sarah married Benneville A. Althouse.

(IV) John Adam Gruber (1823-1862), son of John Adam, of (II) Christian, married Anna Shearer; six children: (1) Samuel S., of Moselem; (2) Amos S., who died in Douglas county, Kans.; (3) David S., drowned in the Susquehanna river; (4) John Adam, of Grimville; (5) Joel S., of Lehigh county; and (6) Mary S., wife of John M. Kutz.

Line of Simon Gruber. (1) Simon Gruber is said to have emigrated from Germany and settled in Greenwich township, Berks county, some time prior to 1790, he and his family, consisting of three males and five females, being shown in the census of 1790. He had five sons, Jacob, Andrew, John, Michael, and Samuel, and several daughters, Samuel being the father of Morgan Gruber of Albany township, from whom this information was obtained. There are numerous descendants, some of whom are living in Mercer county, Pa. A number of this line are buried at Grimville.

Miscellaneous Grubers. There are several Grubers and Gruber descendants in Berks county whose line of descent has not been traced to any of the sources hereinbefore described, although in some instances, if sufficient data could be secured, connection might be made.

1. At Mt. Aetna is buried a Catharine Gruber (1830-80), wife of Levi Wolfersberger. She was the daughter of Jacob Gruber and wife Elizabeth (Imboden), buried at Annville, Lebanon Co., Pa., and granddaughter of Christian Gruber (1761-1814), buried in a private burial-ground about one and a half miles south of Annville.

2. In Maxatawny township there died, in 1843, a Michael Gruber who, it is said, emigrated from Germany. He served in the war of 1812 from Sept. 1 to Dec. 4, 1814, as a private in Capt. George Ritter's Company of the 1st Regiment of Pennsylvania Militia, commanded by Lieut.-Col. Jeremiah Shappell. From his will, made in 1840, are taken the names of his children, Samuel, Daniel, Jacob, Catharine (wife of William Staudt), Susan, Anna, Lydia, and Elizabeth.

3. In Bern township resided an Adam S. Gruber, 1834-1907, married to Rebecca Fessler, who raised a large family of children, namely: Benneville U. (died unmarried), George F. (died unmarried), Isabella R. (wife of Levi Clay), Elizabeth (wife of Abraham Sweitzer), Sarah F. (wife of James Sell), Ellen F. (wife of Daniel F. Baer), Hettie A. (wife of James Reeser), Rosa F. (wife of Charles Dunkelberger), Mary Emma (wife of Daniel Laucks), Clara C. (wife of John Maderia), Adam F. and Minnie F. His father was George Gruber, who died it is said in 1836, residing at the time in Cumru township; he was married to Elizabeth Seitzinger, and besides the son Adam S. had a daughter, Rebecca, first wife of John A. Weitzel. It is said that George Gruber came to Berks from one of the counties near the confluence of the two branches of the Susquehanna, and it is believed that he is connected with the line of Henry or that of Christian.

The surname Gruber is found written in a variety of ways. The more common forms are Gruber, Gruver, and Groover; and among the occasional spellings may be mentioned Groober, Grouber, Kruber, Kruver, Cruver, and Croober.

The name appears to have originated in Upper Germany and is derived from the German word Grube, meaning a mine, quarry, pit or ditch; and, no doubt, when surnames were being introduced, it was applied to persons who worked in mines, quarries or pits, or who dug pits or ditches, or, perhaps, who lived at or near such places. The name may also have been given to owners of mines, quarries or pits; but it is more likely that the owners thereof received the name Grube (omitting the final "r"), now frequently written Grubb or Grubbe.

The proper spelling of the name would, therefore, be Gruber, and that appears to be the form used in Berks county. The name is exclusively spelled in that way in Germany, Austria, and Switzerland, and is very common in some sections of those countries, the writer having been informed that the surname Gruber appears about three hundred times in the Address Book (Directory) of Munich, Bavaria.

The form Gruver came about principally in two ways: (1) Gruber is frequently pronounced as if spelled Gruver, whence the adoption of the latter form in a number of instances; (2) in some English speaking localities a German form of name is disliked, and the change of "b" to "v" was the result. This form has been generally adopted by the descendants of the immigrant Nicholas Gruber, residing in Bucks and Lehigh counties, Pa., and is also found in other parts of the State as well as in some localities of the West.

Groover is the form of the name frequently met with in the South, especially in Georgia, which State bears the same relation to the early Grubers of the South that Pennsylvania bears to the Grubers of the North. The Georgia Groovers are descendants of the Grubers who were among the Salzburgers, German Protestants (largely Lutherans) that settled, in 1734 to 1741, at Ebenezer, Georgia.

Gruber is found also compounded with other names, as, Baumgruber, Frauengruber, Hartmannsgruber, Holzgruber, Kalchgruber, Obergruber, Sassamansgruber, Steingruber, and Wolfsgruber.

A similar name, Grueber, appears to be common to parts of Austria.

ALFRED S. DREIBELBIS, a highly esteemed citizen of Reading, engaged in the nursery business, is a direct descendant of Daniel Dreibelbis, the pioneer of the family in this section, who came from Holland to Berks county between 1680 and 1690, and received a land grant of from 2,000 to 3,000 acres from William Penn.

The father of Alfred S. Dreibelbis was Simon Dreibelbis, a farmer of Richmond and Perry townships, who died in 1890, leaving a large estate. He married Leah Strasser, and they had a family of four sons.

Alfred S. Dreibelbis was born Sept. 25, 1843, in Windsor township, in the same house in which his mother had been born. He was educated in his native township, and worked on his father's farm from the time he was nine years old, when he plowed an eight-acre field, his father being away serving on a jury. He was in the milling business at Shoemakersville in his father's name from April, 1869, for some time, the first year doing a business that netted a profit of $6,000. This was placed in the banking house of Bushong Brothers, at Reading, and the father was greatly elated at the success. Mr. Dreibelbis started a sawmill in 1885, and continued to operate it until 1889. He gave his services to his father for eighteen years after he attained his majority without pay. After discontinuing the sawmill he engaged in the nursery business, and in this he has successfully continued ever since. Unfortunate conditions deprived him of his inheritance, and he has been obliged to carve out his own fortune. Mr. Dreibelbis is the inventor of a railroad tie and fastener for road beds, which is the best safe-guard for travelers ever invented. This he patented Dec. 8, 1903, and Sept. 5, 1905.

Mr. Dreibelbis is a widower, and has one daughter, Ellen S., wife of a Mr. Bair, of Kutztown. Mr. Dreibelbis is very highly regarded in this locality, where his many sterling traits of character are known and appreciated.

ISAAC HOFFA, for several years a prosperous farmer of Cumru township, whose valuable property lies along the Wyomissing road, is now living on South Third street, Reading. He was born Jan. 4, 1851, on the Harrisburg pike, in Marion township, son of Isaac and Lydia (Neff) Hoffa.

Melchoir Haffa (as the name was then spelled), the progenitor of this family in America, was a native of Germany, from which country he emigrated in 1723, settling in the Falkner Swamp, in Montgomery county, Pa. He died Dec. 7, 1768, and is buried at the Falkner Swamp Lutheran Church. He had a son Henry, who was high sheriff of Berks county from 1780 to 1781, and the latter's son, also named Henry, is mentioned in the Berks county court records as the administrator of the estate of his father, the Sheriff, in 1809.

Henry Hoffa, grandfather of Isaac, Jr., was born in Berks county, where he spent his entire life, becoming the possessor of much valuable property. He died in Reading in 1817. Mr. Hoffa married Sarah Ann Boyer, daughter of Henry Boyer, of Reading, and they had the following children: Melchoir; Jacob, born in Reading, May 20, 1800, settled at Milton, and was the father of John, Samuel, Sarah, Cyrus and Reuben (who was born Nov. 9, 1841); Henry settled at Mexico, Northampton county; Rebecca married a Mr. Bright, of Mexico, Pa.; John died on a ship of war; Daniel lived in Exeter township; Isaac is mentioned below.

Isaac Hoffa, father of Isaac, was born Jan. 4, 1810, in Reading, and died March 31, 1896, on a farm about one mile north of Womelsdorf, which he had cultivated for forty-nine years for Elias Fidler. Mr. Hoffa was a miller by trade, and for some years in his earlier life had worked at Hertzog's mill. He then engaged in farming on a property of his own near Womelsdorf, where he continued for about one year, before removing to the farm on which he died. Mr. Hoffa married Lydia Neff (1814-1885) of Kutztown, and to them were born nine children, as follows: William A., of Womelsdorf; Henry, who married Selecta Kintzer, and died at the age of thirty-three years; Mary, who married Samuel B. Myers, of Philadelphia; Sallie, who married Charles Smith, of Reading; John; Isaac; Emma, who married Franklin Strause, of Reading; Jacob, who lives on the old homestead; and Samuel, who lives at Womelsdorf. Both father and mother are buried at Womelsdorf.

Isaac Hoffa obtained his early education in the township schools, later attending the Womelsdorf Academy and the Stouchsburg Academy, continuing school off and on until his twenty-third year. In 1872 he began teaching public school in his native township, at the Charming Forge schoolhouse, spent the following year at Wintersville, and one year at the Leiss School in Heidelberg township. In 1874 he engaged in farming near Stouchsburg, an occupation which he has followed continuously. Later, in 1890, he went West to Illinois, where he was engaged in cattle business, and in the fall of the same year he returned home, and the following spring went to Remsen, Iowa, where there was a German settlement. After remaining in that locality one year, he located in Cumru township, Berks county, and for one year was employed on a farm by W. J. Irwin. Mr. Hoffa at this time embarked in the dairy business, which he has followed successfully ever since. At the start he purchased his milk, but after purchasing a farm of fifty-two acres near West Reading, in 1896, he kept his own cows. This farm he sold at a large profit, after which he spent six years on the old Kurtz homestead, conducting his milk route daily to Reading. In the spring of 1904 he settled on his excellent property along the Wyomissing creek. This property, which Mr. Hoffa purchased from the Harrison Althouse estate, consists of ninety acres, and is one of the finest farms in Berks county, being supplied with the best water, and improved with large, substantial buildings, and the best and most modern farm machinery. He has a herd of twenty-two cows, and furnishes about 150 customers daily with milk. In 1908 Mr. Hoffa moved to Reading, where he now resides on South Third street. In politics he is a Democrat. He and his family are members of St. Stephen's Reformed Church of Reading. Mr. Hoffa was treasurer of the Reading Milk Exchange as long as that body was in existence, as well as treasurer of the Reading Dairymen's Association, which was in existence for about three years.

Mr. Hoffa married (first) March 14, 1874, Clara Catharine Beidler, who was born in 1849, and who died Aug. 31, 1889. He married (second) on March 14, 1896, Loretta Deininger, who was born in 1853, daughter of George Frantz Deininger, of Palmyra, Pa. No children have been born to either union. Mrs. Hoffa, by a former marriage, has two children, Florence C. and Edith M.

QUIMBY. (I) Elijah Quimby is the first of the family of whom there is definite knowledge, and he was a farmer of Maryland, where he was born, and where he lived, died and is buried. During his lifetime he became possessed of a large plantation, and was a man of prominence in his community. His wife's Christian name was Sarah and she bore him these children: Elijah, who lived in Maryland; William, who lived in Philadelphia; Benjamin, who lived on the eastern shore of Maryland; Sprey, who settled in California; and Sarah, who married Enos Jefferson, of Wilmington, Delaware.

(II) John Quimby, son of Elijah Quimby, was born in Maryland in 1812, and died in 1863, aged fifty-one years. In 1840 he came to Reading where he died and he is buried in the Charles Evans cemetery. Being a carpenter by trade, he found plenty of work in Reading and for some time followed boat building. He was a man of considerable education, and taught school on Franklin street, meeting with success in this profession. All of his life he had been a devout Christian, and finally was ordained a preacher, and was made chaplain of the 93d Pa. V. I. during the Civil war. Later in life he proved pipes at the rolling mills and was an earnest, conscientious worker. He was a man who never willingly wronged a single person but sought to do only good, and his memory is still cherished by those who knew him. John Quimby was active in public life and served as alderman of the old Southeast ward, and had his office under the old Mansion House. When his country called upon him for his services, Mr. Quimby nobly responded and organized companies and enrolled men before he himself went to the front as the spiritual guide of his regiment. Early in its history he became a member of Chandler Lodge No. 227, F. & A. M., and at the time of his enlistment was its Senior Warden. He was also active in Montgomery Lodge No. 59, I. O. O. F., and filled a number of its offices. John Quimby married Sarah McDowel, 1811-1861, daughter of Elijah McDowel, of Wilmington. Their children were: William M.; Henry died at Reading; James died in the army hospital at Washington; Laura married Henry Strunk, deceased; Samuel resides at New Castle, Pa.; John resides at Reading; and Thomas resides at Chester, Pennsylvania.

(III) William M. Quimby, son of John Quimby and father of Allen G. Quimby, is a retired resident of Reading and a veteran of the Civil war. He was born in Wilmington, Del., May 1, 1834. When quite a young man he learned the molder's trade at Johnson's foundry and machine shops at Reading, where he came in 1840. He worked at these shops for ten years, and then became an employe of the Reading Hardware Company, and worked for them for more than a quarter of a century, retiring in 1907 after the death of his wife. He now resides with his son, Allen G. Quimby, being an honored member of that household. Mr. Quimby was a very prominent man, and took part in many enterprises looking toward the betterment of Reading. He was an organizer of the Liberty Fire Company No. 6, of Reading, and served as its chief hose director, was assistant enginner, and filled other offices therein. He is a member of the Iron Molders Union, of Veteran Castle, K. G. E., and of the K. of P. For years he served as trustee of St. Peter's Methodist Church, of which he is a consistent member and generous contributor, and he has always taken a deep interest in the church and all its work.

On Sept. 12, 1862, Mr. Quimby enlisted in Company G, 20th Pa. V. I., was made a corporal, at Harrisburg, and during the time he served he was a brave soldier. On March 22, 1857, he married Lavina E. Guiley, daughter of John and Mary (Klinger) Guiley of Reading. Mr. Guiley was a son of a Hessian soldier who came from Hesse-Darmstadt during the Revolution. Mrs. Quimby was born Feb. 17, 1838, and died April 26, 1907, aged sixty-nine years, two months and nine days. Mr. and Mrs. Quimby celebrated their golden anniversary about one month before she died, and no one enjoyed the pleasant affair more than she. Her children all attended and she was the center of attraction. To Mr. and Mrs. Quimby were born these children: James H., of Newcastle, Del., who is superintendent of the Brylgon Steel Casting Company; Allen G.; Mary K., who married John H. Adams, of No. 137½ North Eighth street, Reading.

(IV) Allen G. Quimby, superintendent for the American Coke & Gas Construction Company of New York, with foundry located at Reading, is a native of the city, having been born here Nov. 2, 1866. He was educated in the public schools of Reading, and when but thirteen years of age began learning the molder's trade at Johnson's Foundry and Machine shops. After completing his term of years, he traveled considerably, working at Peoria, Ill., and other western cities, gaining considerable valuable experience at his trade. When only eighteen he was a master of the trade, something very remarkable. Later he located at Chester and worked for the Standard Steel Casting Company, but in 1899 he returned to his native city and began working at the Scott works branch of the Reading Iron Company. In 1900 he took charge of the Penn Iron Works, and when this company sold its plant to the American Coke & Gas Construction Company, in 1904, he continued with the new combination. At present he has charge of over 100 skilled mechanics. His home is pleasantly located at No. 137 North Eighth street. In politics Mr. Quimby is a Republican, and is very active in party work. He was chairman of the Third ward for nine consecutive years; was a State delegate when Hon. William A. Stone was nominated for governor of Pennsylvania, and he has always taken a deep interest in city politics as well. Socially Mr. Quimby is a member of Chandler Lodge No. 227, F. & A. M., of which he has been past master since 1900; Excelsior Chapter No. 237, R. A. M.; Reading Commandery No. 42, K. T.; Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., and a member of the Arab Patrol. He belongs to Meade Camp No. 16, Sons of Veterans, and to Liberty Fire Co. No. 6, Reading. He was active in the Friendship Fire Co. No. 5, and was its vice president for some years. In addition to these other societies, Mr. Quimby was active in the Iona Pioneer Corps, a temperance society, and served as its secretary, treasurer, and first and second lieutenant. He and his family are connected with the Baptist Church.

On July 27, 1886, Mr. Quimby was married to Sallie A. Shunk, daughter of Peter and Sarah (Edwards) Shunk of Reading. Peter Shunk is a grandson of the late Gov. Francis A. Shunk of Pennsylvania. Two children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Quimby—William McDowel, a skilled draughtsman of Reading, and a very promising young man; Lavinia E., a graduate of Deck Business Academy.

MAURER. Berks county, Pennsylvania, is noted for the number of old families within its confines, and perhaps of them all none has reason to be prouder of its history than the Maurer family. The records of the county show that (I) Andrew Maurer was born March 3, 1781, and died Dec. 11, 1847, his remains being interred at Boyertown. In 1804 he married Susanna Hartranft, born Oct. 31, 1786, daughter of Leonard and Christiana (Moyer) Hartranft, and she died when ninety years of age. He lived in Colebrookdale township, Berks county, and followed tailoring. While digging a post hole he discovered iron ore, and the Pottstown Iron Company leased his property during his natural life. His children were: Henry, born Feb. 7, 1805; Tina, Feb. 14, 1807; Sarah, Jan. 14, 1810; Aaron, Dec. 27, 1812; Jeremiah, April 2, 1815; Maria, Oct. 27, 1818; Mahlon, June 8, 1822; Zacharias, Jan. 20, 1825. The old family Bible is now in the possession of Franklin O. Maurer, of Reading.

(II) Zacharias H. Maurer, son of Andrew, was born Jan. 20, 1825, and died in February, 1892, aged sixty-seven years. He was a school teacher for many years, but later was a clerk in the courthouse, and still later was elected clerk of the Quarter Sessions. Having filled these offices with such ability, he was made clerk of the Orphans' Court. During the Civil war he served his country bravely and when honorably discharged was a lieutenant. A public-spirited man, he always took an active part in the politics of his vicinity and belonged to the Democratic party. For many years he was a very prominent figure in Reading where he made his home during the best part of his life, and his many services to the city and county are gratefully remembered. His remains lie in the Trinity Lutheran Church graveyard, Reading.

In 1844 Mr. Maurer married Rebecca Leitheiser, born Oct. 4, 1824, in Muhlenberg township, daughter of George and Anna Maria Leitheiser. She died Aug. 17, 1861, aged thirty-six years, ten months and thirteen days. She bore her husband these children: Franklin O.; Susan M., Sallie A. and Zacharias H., all deceased; and Emma C., who died two days after her mother, and was buried in the same grave. Mr. Maurer m. (second) Sarah Ann Bright, and their children were: George B., Ellen (Brown), Bertha (Batdorf), Gertrude (Miller), Wilmoth, May (Ermantrout) and Harry.

(III) Franklin O. Maurer was born in Reading at the corner of Seventh and Franklin streets, Jan. 18, 1846. His education was acquired in the public schools of Reading. When about seventeen he learned telegraphy, and was stationed at Allentown Junction, whence he came to Reading. On Feb. 18, 1863, he responded to his country's call and enlisted in Company E, 46th Pa. V. I., and served until Feb. 5, 1865, when he was mustered out. On June 15, 1865, he re-enlisted in Company D, 11th United States Infantry. He was in Camp Grant, Richmond, Va., and from there the 11th regiment was ordered to Granada, Miss., where it was consolidated with the 34th United States Infantry, and he was promoted to duty sergeant, and afterward to first sergeant, and honorably discharged Feb. 5, 1870. While in the regular service, at Granada, Mr. Maurer had some exciting experiences in assisting in capturing and ridding the State of Mississippi of the Ku-Klux Klan.

At the close of his military life he returned to Reading, and entered the employ of Levan & Metzer, queensware merchants, on the present location of Koller's ice cream restaurant. There he continued for two years, and then became a clerk in the prothonotary's office in the courthouse under George K. Levan. Later he was appointed chief clerk of the Orphans' court, and thus remained for fifteen years. Mr. Maurer was then made deputy recorder under W. Benton Stoltz, now deceased. He was reappointed deputy recorder under the late James F. Dumn, and when his term expired he became a fur hatter with Beyer Bros., at Hamburg. After four years with them he took a position under G. W. Alexander, of West Reading, a hat manufacturer, and remained with him thirteen years.

Some months after his return home, Aug. 6, 1870, Mr. Maurer married Miss Amanda J. Bright, daughter of Wile and Margaret (Goodhart) Bright of Reading. They have had these children: Wellington Wile is deceased; Milton B.; Edna M.; Laura R.; Paul B.; Franklin B.; Mary A. died in infancy; and Harold B., Clare B., Edith M. and Walter are all four deceased.

KOHL. Cumru township has for its most substantial citizens many whose ancestors came to the New World from Germany and Switzerland. These have left an ineffaceable mark upon the customs of the people, to say nothing of industries established and continued in the family name to the present time. Among the families early settled here is that bearing the name of Kohl, and prominent in the family may be mentioned Henry B., Nathan S., and Milton S. Kohl, of Cumru township, farmers and truckers.

The earliest of the family to come to this country was (I) Georg Kohl, a native of Baden, Germany, who crossed the Atlantic in the ship "Peggy," which landed at Philadelphia Oct. 16, 1754. Soon afterward he settled in Cumru township, Berks county, where he owned land that has been divided and sub-divided by his numerous descendants, some of it to this day being held in the family name. In his family of children was a son, Georg.

(II) Georg Kohl, son of the emigrant, was born Jan. 10, 1759, and died Feb. 28, 1824, aged sixty-five years, one month, eighteen days. He built the "Kohl Hotel," now known as the "Angelica Hotel," and was a man of much enterprise. He married Maria Gietha, who was born Aug. 3, 1761; she died Aug. 28, 1832, aged seventy-one years, twenty-five days. Their children were: Simon, who built a large stone house in 1845, on the property now owned by Peter Gehman, of Cumru; George; William; Peggy, who married Daniel Fritz; and John, who settled on the present site of St. Louis, Mo., one of the earliest settlers in that section.

(III) George Kohl, son of Georg and grandson of the emigrant ancestor, was born Jan. 10, 1784, and became a prominent citizen of Cumru. He was the well-known proprietor of the "Kohl's Hotel," for many years, besides owning considerable land and a number of dwellings. He became rich and prosperous, and was actively interested in public affairs. He was a member of the Allegheny Union Church across the line from where he lived, in Brecknock township, belonging to the German Reformed congregation. He was a useful man in his community, and he befriended many in need, and was greatly esteemed by all. He married Maria Will (born Aug. 9, 1787, died April 8, 1845, aged fifty-seven years, seven months, twenty-nine days). He died April 1, 1845, aged sixty-one years, two months, twenty-one days. Their children were: Joseph (1811-1877) m. Elizabeth Huffert (1817-1897); Mary m. John Fritz; Rebecca m. Samuel Ziegler; Catherine m. William Strunk; Elias m. Betsey Rathman; Henry, Sr., m. Elizabeth McCardy; Benjamin (April 19, 1820-Sept. 1, 1888) m. Amelia Glassmeyer; Levi m. Susan Hoffert; Richard m. Sally Keffer; Elizabeth m. Isaac Westley; Reuben m. Susan Schnabel; and Luzenna m. (first) Isaac Becker, deceased, and (second) Henry Freyberg, a millionaire, of Chicago, Illinois.

(IV) Henry Kohl, Sr., son of George, was born on the old homestead May 10, 1815, and died Nov. 16, 1887. His entire life was devoted to agricultural pursuits, and he owned a fertile farm of eighty-nine acres in Cumru. He was very industrious and a man of exemplary habits. He married Elizabeth McCardy (born July 2, 1818, died Aug. 11, 1903, aged eighty-five years, one month, nine days). Their children were: Hiram; Joanna married John Hoshaur; Mary died young; Henry B., Jr.; Samuel; Katie died young; Elizabeth m. Philip Messner; Clara died young; and Emma (deceased) m. Jacob Gebhart.

(V) Henry B. Kohl, son of Henry, Sr., and one of the highly respected residents of Cumru township, was born on his father's farm Aug. 29, 1848. He early learned the duties pertaining to a farm, and until he was eighteen years of age he attended the township schools and assisted his father. He then learned the carpenter's trade under the guidance of his uncle, Reuben Kohl, and this he followed for twelve years. At the end of that time he turned his attention to farming, and in 1892 he bought his father's farm, and now has 105 acres of rich trucking soil, and is engaged in farming, attending the Reading market. He has erected all the buildings on his property with the exception of the house, which was built by his father in 1858. He has made many improvements, and has been very successful in all his undertakings. In his political principles he is a Republican, and he has been very useful in party work, serving efficiently in any position he is asked to fill. For three years he was roadmaster, and for one year, supervisor. He and his family are Reformed members of the Allegheny Union Church, in which he served as deacon for ten years. He is a member of the Sr. O. U. A. M., Council No. 91, of Angelica.

In 1881 Henry B. Kohl married Mary Ann Steffy, who was born Jan. 5, 1860, daughter of Ephraim and Elizabeth (Gebhart) Steffy. Mrs. Kohl has a son Harvey Fry (who married Annie Moyer, deceased), and he has always made his home with Mr. Kohl. To Mr. and Mrs. Kohl have been born thirteen children: Edwin A. enlisted Aug. 30, 1899, in Company A, 47th U. S. Vols., served eighteen months in Donsol, southern end of Luzon, P. I., and was mustered out July 2, 1901, at San Francisco, Cal., and is now assisting his father; Menton E.; Annie E. m. Henry Lebo, Jr.; Emma S. m. Lewis S. Bixler; Henry M.; Jennie L.; Cora M. m. William Lebo; Laura A.; Mary E.; Marcus M.; Katie E.; Sadie M.; and Maggie E.

(IV) Reuben Kohl, son of George and brother of Henry, Sr., was born on the original Kohl homestead in 1825.

He owned a tract of twenty acres in Cumru, and forty acres across the line in Brecknock township. He was a carpenter, and for many years followed that occupation, erecting many dwellings. Many of the best carpenters in this section gained their training under his watchful eye. The last twelve years of his life were lived retired. He died June 12, 1891. He was a Reformed member of the Allegheny Church, and was very well known. He married Susan Schnabel, and they had six children, as follows: Nathan S., former proprietor of the "Angelica Hotel"; Nelson S., a farmer in Cumru; Milton S., a trucker in Cumru; Wilson S., a farmer on the old homestead; Mary, who married Samuel Wise; and Ida, who married Frank Furlow.

(V) NATHAN S. KOHL, until April 1, 1908, the popular "mine host" of the "Angelica Hotel," was born on the old Kohl place July 21, 1856, son of Reuben. He attended the local schools for a few days each winter until he was sixteen years old, when he began to learn the carpenter's trade from his father. After following that for eight years, he learned the butcher's trade, and for twenty-five years gave it his attention, having his shop one mile from Angelica. He had two men regularly employed, and killed weekly from five to six beeves. During the winters in addition to the beeves he killed as high as ten hogs a week, besides many calves. He attended the Kissinger market in Reading, and also had teams supplying the country trade. He made a great success of his work, but in 1897 gave it up to engage in trucking on his farm of forty acres near Angelica, and this he continued for six years. In the spring of 1904 he became the proprietor of the "Angelica Hotel." He built up a nice trade, and was popular in the locality, keeping a first-class place, and enjoying the good will of the traveling public. He retired from the hotel April 1, 1908, and in 1909 began farming his own lands at Angelica. He purchased his farm in 1891 from his uncle, Benjamin Kohl. He has put up new buildings, and greatly improved the place, its generally up-to-date appearance bearing witness to his thrift and industry. In politics he is a Republican, and he and his family belong to the Reformed congregation at Allegheny Church. He is a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M., Council No. 91, at Angelica.

On Sept. 25, 1885, Mr. Kohl was married to Sarah Ziemer, who was born in Brecknock township, daughter of William and Catharine (Griffith) Ziemer, the former the proprietor of Knauer's Hotel for seventeen years. To this union have been born four children, namely: Emily, born Feb. 13, 1888; Salome, born April 20, 1893, died April 29, 1898; a daughter that died in infancy; and C. Stanley, born Oct. 6, 1901.

(V) NELSON S. KOHL, son of Reuben, born June 20, 1857, and now industriously engaged in winning fortune from a fine truck farm of forty-six acres, is one of the substantial and respected citizens of Cumru. He was but twenty-seven years of age when he began for himself, and in 1889 he purchased the farm which he now occupies. Like his family he is a Republican in politics, and he has always been interested in party work, although his own affairs have engrossed too much of his time to permit him to perform the duties attendant upon official position. He and his family are all faithful members of the Mennonite Brethren in Christ Church, in Brecknock township, and of this he has been class leader and steward.

On Jan. 6, 1883, Mr. Kohl married Ellen Remp, born Jan. 7, 1863, daughter of Samuel and Cassie (Spatz) Remp. Five children have come to brighten their home, as follows: Katie (m. Robert Mosser, a school teacher of Cumru); Stella, born March 7, 1891; Charles, Aug. 29, 1895; Paul, Jan. 21, 1903; and Mabel, Jan. 5, 1907.

(V) MILTON S. KOHL, a well-known trucker and farmer of Cumru, was born in this township, Sept. 28, 1858, son of Reuben Kohl. His education was acquired in the district schools, and in 1883 he began work for himself, hauling ice for the Angelica Ice Company. He continued at this for two years, and then for the following two years was tenant farmer for Henry Kohl. From there he went to the J. R. Blankenbiller truck farm, which he worked for six years, and then spent three years on the Levi Rathman property. After three years on the farm of his father-in-law he, in the spring of 1899, moved upon the property where he now lives. This he had purchased the preceding year, and he has improved it until he has made of it a most valuable property. He raises splendid crops, and his produce has a well-earned and well-established reputation. In 1906 he built a sand-stone house. In politics Mr. Kohl votes in support of Republican principles. He and his family belong to the Reformed congregation at Allegheny Church.

On June 17, 1882, Mr. Kohl married Mary E. Huffert, born Oct. 29, 1863, daughter of Isaac and Elizabeth (Eckemoth) Huffert, the former a farmer who died June 6, 1902, aged ninety-three years, three months, eleven days. To Mr. and Mrs. Kohl have come three children: Howard, born Jan. 20, 1883, m. Lillie Yelk, and has two children, Edward and Miriam; Susan E., born June 19, 1887, m. Owen O. Bixler, and has two children, Reda and Bessie; and William, born Aug. 8, 1891.

JOHN L. WESTLEY, a substantial citizen of the Twelfth ward, Reading, and an honored survivor of the Civil war, was born March 15, 1842, in Schuylkill county, Pa., son of Peter and Esther (Lebo) Westley.

The Westley family of Berks county was formerly of Robeson township, where the ancestor settled during the latter part of the eighteenth century. His descendants spread across the border of Robeson into Brecknock and Cumru townships, where they were numerous for many years. Michael Westley, the grandfather of John L., was a native of Robeson township, where he lived and died, and he, as were also many of his relatives, was buried at the Robeson (Plow) Church. Among the members of the Westley family buried at this graveyard, all relatives of Michael Westley, may be mentioned: John (1779-1856); Christian (1790-1857); Catherine (1790-1859); Elizabeth (1797-1861); William (1799-1875); John (1803-1873); Sarah (1806-1883); Christian (1806-1893); Samuel (1815-1857); William (1817-1859); Peter (1820-1891); Margaret (1826-1886); Mary (1829-1873); Catherine (1827-1896); and Samuel (1851-1883). Among the children of grandfather Michael Westley were: Jacob; John; Peter; Mark; who lived on Bingaman street, Reading, and had two sons, John and Samuel, who live in Reading; and Kate, who died unmarried at the home of her brother Mark.

Peter Westley, father of John L., was born in lower Berks county, but died about 1849, in Schuylkill county, whither he had removed shortly after his marriage. He married Esther Lebo, of Cumru township, and they had eight children, as follows: Sarah m. James B. Brown, of Fleetwood, Pa.; Susan m. Edward Mendelson, of Pottsville; Catherine m. John Kimmel, of Pottsville; Hannah m. Daniel Bausum, of Pottsville; Mary m. Jacob Detamble, of Gibraltar; Edward m. Mary Brendel, of near Chambersburg; John L.; and Hettie, born in January, 1844, is unmarried and resides at Reading.

John L. Westley was but five years old when his parents removed to Gibraltar, Berks county, and in 1857 he took to boating on the Schuylkill canal, a vocation which he followed for five years. When the war broke out his brain was fired with patriotism, and on Oct. 3, 1861, he enlisted at Philadelphia in Company I, 6th Pa. Cav., under Captain Star, and served three years, participating in a number of engagements. On May 12, 1864, near Meadow Bridge, Va., in a charge in which Mr. Westley had just entered the woods, he came unexpectedly on the Confederate line. He had a miraculous escape after a fierce hand-to-hand encounter, but not until he had received a severe wound in the thigh. He was at all times a brave and faithful soldier, and his war record is one of which he may well be proud.

After the war Mr. Westley returned to his home in Cumru township, where his mother lived, and began to work in the McIllivan iron works, located at South Reading. After one and one-half years there he commenced working at the sheet mill, but when the Reading Coal & Iron Company opened its mill, March 9, 1868, he accepted a position there, and continued in that place for fifteen years. Since May, 1885, he has been continuously at work at the sheet mill. In the early fall of 1867 Mr. Westley located in Reading, and in 1869 built his own home at No. 736 North Ninth street, where he resided for sixteen years, then purchasing the property at No. 740 North Ninth street, his present home. He also owns other real estate in Reading. Mr. Westley is a member of St. John's Lodge No. 435, F. & A. M., Reading. He and his family are Lutherans in their religious belief.

On April 27, 1867, Mr. Westley married Mary Keller, daughter of Reuben Keller, of Exeter township, and to this union there have been born twelve children, namely: Anna m. Frank Mosser, of Reading; Emma is at home; Charles E. m. Sarah Evans; William m. Rebecca Schaeffer; Cora M. and Harry W. are unmarried and at home; George I. m. Ada Kline; Florence E. m. Robert Daniels, of Reading; and Luther F. and three other children died in infancy.

GEORGE O. ROMIG, proprietor of the "Hotel Albion," at Mertztown, is one of the enterprising business men of this place. He was born Sept. 24, 1857, at Emaus, Pa., a son of John Owen and Sarah Ann (Xander) Romig.

John Frederick Romig, grandfather of George O., was of German descent, but he was born at Nazareth, Lehigh Co., Pa., Feb. 2, 1782. For a time he owned and conducted a fine farm there, which he later sold and removed to Emaus, in the western part of the same county, where he engaged in a tinsmith business until he was sixty-five years old, when he retired. He died twenty years later, Feb. 20, 1867. He was a member of the Moravian Church, and he was interred in the Moravian cemetery. His four children were: Thomas, Paul, John Owen and Cecelia (m. William Keck, and both are deceased, but are survived by an adopted daughter, a child of Mrs. Keck's brother Thomas; she married Edward Reavely, of Philadelphia).

John Owen Romig was born in Lehigh county on the old homestead before his parents moved to Emaus, April 17, 1825. He was reared in the faith of the Moravian Church, and he learned the tinsmith's trade with his father. Later he became a butcher and carried on a large meat business for some years, supplying the market at Allentown. Later he moved to Mertztown, where he again embarked in a tinware and stove business, which he continued for ten years, and in 1873 he went into the baking business, in partnership with his son Edgar. He died Sept. 9, 1890, and is interred in the Moravian cemetery at Emaus. He married Sarah Ann Xander, born April 20, 1826, daughter of George and Catherine (Smith) Xander, and they had the following children: one died in infancy; Edgar F., born Nov. 15, 1854, m. Eliza Fegley, daughter of John Fegley, and had children, Ida, Harvey, Emma, Richard and John; George Oliver; and Agnes, born Sept. 12, 1867, m. James Barton, son of William Barton, and has children: Lillie (m. Curtis Frauenfelder) and Leroy.

George Oliver Romig was reared and educated at Emaus, and when of proper age he was catechised and confirmed in the Lutheran Church, at Mertztown—the faith of his mother. Like his father and grandfather, he learned the tinsmith's trade and followed it until 1873, when he entered into the baking business with his father and brother Edgar, and continued until 1879, when he became bartender for a Mr. Bortz, and remained with him for eight years. Mr. Romig then learned the barber's trade, and at the same time opened up a soft drink place and carried it on for two years in connection with barbering. He is a good business man, and at this time saw an opportunity to invest to his satisfaction and bought the property southeast from the Mertztown depot. Here he made many improvements, and the "Hotel Albion," as his place is now known, is equipped and conducted along the most modern lines.

In the year 1878 Mr. Romig was married to Sallie C. Haines, daughter of Joseph and Susanna (Schlegel) Haines. Mrs. Romig was born in Upper Macungie, Lehigh Co., Pa. Nine children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Romig, as follows: Carrie Elizabeth, born June 13, 1879, m. John S. Stettler, son of Israel Stettler, and they have three children, Virtie (born March 2, 1902), Erma (March 12, 1904), and Myron (April 20, 1907); William Charles, born April 11, 1881, m. Maud Griesimer, and had one son, Raymond G. (born Oct. 21, 1905, died aged eight months); Ethel Sylvan, born March 18, 1883, died aged six years; Frederick George, born Feb. 20, 1887, m. Katie Schwartz, daughter of Jonathan and Elvina (Warmkessel) Schwartz, and they have one daughter, Verna; Warren Owen, born Dec. 11, 1888, is a silk weaver by trade; and four died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Romig both attend the Congregational Church at Mertztown, although he was reared in the Lutheran and she in the Reformed faith. He belongs to a number of fraternal organizations and in politics is a Republican.

HENRY HUMMA, who is now conducting a flourishing grocery business at No. 1123 Walnut street, Reading, was one of the youngest soldiers in the Civil war. He is a native of Reading, born April 9, 1848, son of Theodore and Catherine (Hachs) Humma.

Theodore Humma, a native of Prussia, Germany, came to America in 1842, and from New York City, where he landed, made his way to Reading. Here he found employment on the construction of the Lebanon Valley Railroad and was residing in the city at the time of his death, May 2, 1854. To him and his wife, Catherine Hachs, were born these children: Benner, of No. 219 North Tenth street, Reading, is a veteran of the Civil war; Lewis, a member of Company H, 88th Pa. V. I., was killed at the second battle of Bull Run; Henry; Catherine is deceased; John H. lives at Manayunk; Peter is deceased; and Annie is of Philadelphia.

Henry Humma attended the public schools of Reading, after leaving which he learned the baker's trade, which he followed for nine months, and then learned the hatting trade, continuing at that occupation for sixteen years. Mr. Humma was then engaged in the sewing machine business for two years, and on Feb. 2, 1880, he and his wife engaged in the grocery business at No. 1123 Walnut street, where they have been engaged to the present time with much success. They erected their present fine building in 1899, and it is well furnished and stocked with a fine, full line of groceries and notions. Both Mr. and Mrs. Humma are kindly, genial people, and their first-class line of goods has won them a constantly increasing trade.

Mr. Humma married June 15, 1866, Elizabeth Reitz, daughter of Adam Reitz, and to this union have been born children as follows: Catherine m. Clayton Potteiger, and lives on North Eleventh street, Reading; Elizabeth m. John Gehris, and lives at Portsmouth, Va.; Emma m. Edward Kortenhorn, of North Tenth street, Reading; Edward J. S. is driving the delivery wagon for his parents; Henry is employed at the Mt. Penn Stove Works; Helen M. m. Alvin Eyrich, of near Shillington, Cumru township, Berks county; Adam J. S. is employed at the Remppis Iron Works; Bernard H. is assisting in the store; Gertrude V. and Viola M. are both at home; Crisulla, Margaret and Johanna are deceased; one died in infancy unnamed.

Mr. Humma is a Republican in politics. He belongs to St. Paul's Catholic Church. He joined the Rainbow Fire Company in August, 1865, and is a member of the Grocers' Association. On June 26, 1863, Henry Humma enlisted from Berks county, to serve until the end of the emergency, and was mustered into the service of Capt. Samuel Harner's Company B, 42d Reg. Pa. Emergency State Militia, Col. Charles H. Hunter, commanding. This regiment was organized in quick response to Governor Curtin's proclamation calling for a number of regiments of emergency troops to protect the State from possible invasion by the Rebel forces, who, after triumphs at Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, Va., were threatening the North. The 42d was stationed at Reading, Pa., guarding the city and its approaches during most of its service. The officers and soldiers evinced the highest soldierly qualities, and fully sustained the excellent record our soldiers have ever attained in the field and camp. Henry Humma was honorably discharged Aug. 11, 1863, at Reading, by reason of service no longer required. He re-enlisted Jan. 23, 1864, at Philadelphia, Pa., to serve three years or during the war, and was mustered into the U. S. service Jan. 25th, in Capt. Samuel H. Bayley's Vol. Cav., Col. Robert M. West, commanding, and May 16, 1864, was transferred to Capt. Bardele Galliseth's Company F, of the same regiment, the 5th Cavalry, of the 65th Regiment of the Pennsylvania line, and served chiefly with Kautz's and Wilson's Division, Cavalry Corps, Army of the Potomac and the James. After his enlistment he took part in the battles of Black Water, Stony Creek Station, Weldon and South Side Railroads, Reams Station, Deep Bottom, Malvern Hill, Yellow Tavern, Lee's Mills, Jerusalem Plank Road, Mechanicsville, Chapin's Farm, Darbytown Road, Boydton Plank Road, Charles City Cross Roads, the Appomattox Campaign, including Dinwiddie Court House, Five Forks, Gravelly Run, Amelia Court House, Rice's Station, Burke's Station, Appomattox Court House (Lee's surrender), and all of the Virginia and minor engagements, raids, etc. He was at all times with his command, and performed most faithful and meritorious service. While building breastworks and engaged in felling trees in front of the same, he cut his foot severely with an axe, but remained with his command, and was treated by a surgeon in camp. He received his final honorable discharge Aug. 7, 1865, at Richmond, Va., by reason of the close of the war.

HENRY EDMUND KAUFFMAN, transcriber of indices under Jeremiah A. Bauscher, recorder of deeds of Berks county, was born July 22, 1859, in Bethel (Millersburg), Bethel township, this county, son of Edmund Kauffman.

Mr. Kauffman numbers among his ancestors some of the earliest settlers of northern Berks county. On the paternal side, besides being farmers, they carried on the manufacture of wooden pumps, some of which are still to be seen in use. On the maternal side were the Wagners and the Dieffenbachs, the former being farmers, while the latter, although owning some good tracts of land and raising their own produce, were largely mechanics, chiefly of the wood-working class. John Jacob Dieffenbach, his great-great-grandfather, is said to have been the first American-born citizen to manufacture pipe organs in this country.

Edmund Kauffman, the father, followed in the footsteps of his father, and engaged in the manufacture of pumps and in carpentering in connection with farming. In the early sixties he obeyed the call of patriotism, and enlisted in Company E, 151st Pa. V. I., being mustered in Oct. 28, 1862, and mustered out with his company July 30, 1863. On July 1, 1863, he was wounded at Gettysburg.

Henry Edmund Kauffman received his education in the schools in the vicinity of his home. He was still quite young when he was trained to all manner of manual labor, being able to do a man's work while still in his teens. At an early age he was apprenticed to A. I. Batdorff, and learned the tinsmith's trade. After completing his term of service, he, in 1877, took a preparatory course under Prof. T. P. Miller, and passed the examination under County Superintendent Prof. Samuel A. Baer, receiving his certificate to teach. He was considered a success in the school room, but, after a number of years at this work, he gave it up and in 1899 moved with his family to Reading. He held various minor positions for a time, and then entered the employ of the late Jesse G. Hawley, proprietor of the Reading Daily, Sunday and Weekly Eagles, where for more than fourteen years he held various responsible positions, during the last seven of which he was market master and assistant to the general superintendent of the Hawley real estate.

On Jan. 11, 1879, Mr. Kauffman married Kate Elizabeth Schlasman, daughter of Isaac and Mary (Livengood) Schlasman, and two daughters and one son blessed this union as follows: Elizabeth Stella, born Oct. 10, 1879, died Oct. 28, 1880; Mary Ella, born Jan. 21, 1881, died May 5, 1897; and Barton Earl, born May 14, 1892, died Feb. 12, 1894. In politics Mr. Kauffman has always been a Democrat, and he has been active in party work. He was confirmed in the Lutheran faith by the Rev. D. D. Trexler, and has always taken an active part in church and Sunday-school work, in the latter having been through the grades from pupil to superintendent. In the Salem Union Church at Millersburg he was a member of the choir; at Rehrersburg, Bible class teacher and member of choir, and now deacon in Grace Lutheran Church, Reading, Rev. William H. Myers, pastor.

LEVI BEILER, who has prospered in agricultural pursuits in the Conestoga Valley, having his home in Caernarvon township, Berks county, was born Jan. 15, 1868, at Intercourse, Lancaster county, son of David S. and Rebecca (Esh) Beiler.

Jacob Beiler, the emigrant ancestor of this family, and the only Beiler known to have come to America, was born in Switzerland, and emigrated to this country to find freedom from religious persecution, making the voyage on the ship "Charming Polly," which landed at Philadelphia Oct. 8, 1737. With his family he located at Myerstown, Lebanon county. Among his children were sons Christian and Christopher S.

Christian Beiler, son of Jacob, was nine years old when the family located at Myerstown. He became the father of a son, Christian.

Christian Beiler, son of Christian, was born in 1752, in Lebanon county. In 1800 he moved to near Strasburg, Lancaster county. He died in 1804. He was the father of three sons: Jacob, who settled in Berks county, near Elverson, Chester county, and whose descendants live in Berks and Chester counties; John, who settled in Mifflin county, and whose descendants live in Mifflin and Lawrence counties, Pa., and in Western States; and David.

David Beiler, son of Christian, was born in Lebanon county in 1786, and he died in Lancaster county in 1871, and is buried at Rancks burying ground in East Lampeter township, that county. He was an able bishop of the Amish Church. His five sons were: Christian, David, John, Samuel and Benjamin.

Christian Beiler, son of David and grandfather of Levi, was born Sept. 21, 1811, and died March 15, 1888. He married Rebecca Stoltzfus, born 1816, died April 28, 1902, a direct descendant of Nicholas Stoltzfus, who in 1766 came from Zweibrucken, Germany, to America, with his children, settling on a farm near Reading. To Christian Beiler and wife were born twelve children, all but one reaching mature years. The descendants live chiefly in Lancaster, Berks and Chester counties.

David S. Beiler, eldest son of Christian, was born Dec. 25, 1834, and now lives near Morgantown, Berks county. He married Rebecca Esh, of Juniata county, Pa., born May 25, 1838, died Jan. 28, 1904. Their children were: Malinda, born Oct. 26, 1861, m. Jacob Hartz; Emma, born Oct. 7, 1863, lives with her father; Christian, born Dec. 21, 1865, m. Fannie King, and died Dec. 21, 1897; Levi, born Jan. 15, 1868; Mary, born May 9, 1870, m. Mast Stoltzfus; Jacob, born Dec. 17, 1872, died 1875; Katie, born June 17, 1875, m. Elam M. Soltzfus; and Susie, born July 3, 1879, m. Jacob Z. Yoder.

Levi Beiler was sixteen at the time he removed from Lancaster to Berks county. He was reared to farming, and in 1899 he purchased his present farm, one of the finest in the locality, consisting of 136 acres of limestone land in Caernarvon township.

On Jan. 17, 1892, Mr. Beiler married Sarah Stoltzfus, of Lancaster county, daughter of Isaac K. Stoltzfus, a descendant of the German emigrant Nicholas Stoltzfus. The following children have been born of this union: Rebecca, born Dec. 10, 1892; Mary S., July 4, 1894; Carrie S., July 8, 1896; Lydia, Nov. 27, 1897 (died Sept. 23, 1898); Martha S., July 16, 1899; Fannie S., Aug. 11, 1900; Levi S., Sept. 9, 1902; David S., Oct. 21, 1903; Isaac K., Oct. 31, 1904; Amos R., Jan. 3, 1906; Christian E., July 3, 1907; and Stephen M., Aug. 25, 1908. Mr. Beiler is a member of the Amish Church, as are nearly all of the name in America. He is a thoroughly upright and industrious man, and his success in life is well merited.

SIMSON BECKER, one of the most prominent business men of Muhlenberg township, Berks county, whose name has been closely associated for a number of years with large and important business enterprises, is president of the Temple Lime & Fertilizer Company and of the Muhlenberg Brewing Company. Mr. Becker was born in 1835, in Alsace township, Berks county, son of Daniel and Magdalina (Schmehl) Becker.

The paternal grandfather of Simson Becker was a son of the German progenitor of this family. He was a farmer in Alsace township, where he became very prosperous. He married a Miss Messersmith, and to them there were born the following children: Daniel, Jacob, David, John, Caroline (m. John Cook), and Fietta (m. John Hillegas). The family were Lutherans in their religious belief.

Daniel Becker, the father of Simson, was a farmer all of his active period in Alsace township, where he died in 1862, at the age of sixty-two years. He and his wife were the parents of the following children: Amos, Henry, Simson, Daniel, John, David, Elizabeth (m. Isaac Glass), Hannah (m. Frederick Picker), Magdalena (m. Franklin Wertz), Amelia (died single) and Catherine (m. Peter Weidner). In religious belief the family were Lutherans. Mr. Becker was a Democrat in politics.

Simson Becker was educated in the schools of Alsace and Ontelaunee townships, and until nineteen years of age worked on a farm. He then learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed for a quarter of a century. In 1891-92-93 he served as recorder of Berks county, and in 1895, with Nicholas Rothermel, Samuel Schmehl, William M. Becker and Henry J. Seidel, built the Muhlenberg Brewery, of which he served as a manager and collector in 1896, manager in 1897, and collector in 1899-1900-01-02, since which time he has been president of the company. From 1899 until 1904 he worked at his trade, and in 1905, with Irvin and Daniel Bechtel, established the Temple Lime & Fertilizer Company, at Moselem, of which he is president.

Mr. Becker married Amelia Marks and to this union there were born fourteen children, of whom ten survive: Emma m. (first) David Bennetham and (second) Jeremiah Rothermel; Sallie m. Charles Curran, deceased; Annie m. William Shadler; Lillie m. Edward Parker; Minnie m. William Brunner; Morris m. Alice Hawkins; William M. is single; Edwin m. Katie Rickenbach; Wellington m. Maggie Snyder; Harry married a Keller; and four others died young. The family are Lutherans. Mr. Becker is a Democrat in politics, and fraternally is connected with Washington Camp No. 107, P. O. S. of A.

HENRY J. FINK, now living retired at Reading, Pa., residing in a pleasant home at No. 425 Chestnut street, was born in the city of Reading, April 22, 1844, son of John and Angelina (Eisenhower) Fink.

John Fink, father of Henry J., was born in 1820, in Lancaster county, Pa., and still survives, one of the venerable but still most active of Reading's citizens. For many years he was engaged in the planing mill business here, and was an extensive builder and contractor. He married Angelina Eisenhower, and their children were: Sarah A.; William A., an architect; Ellen F.; and Henry J. The family has always been Lutheran in its religious belief. Mr. Fink is a Republican, and takes a very active interest in general as well as local affairs.

Henry J. Fink learned the carpenter's trade after he left school, and for many years was associated with his father, whose manager at the planing mill he was for a long period. In 1890 he gave up that business and engaged in the manufacture of cigars, a business he conducted for fourteen years, from which he retired in 1904.

During the Civil war, Mr. Fink enlisted, Aug. 9, 1862, in Company B, 128th Pa. V. I., and served nine months, and then re-enlisted in Company B., 195th Pa. V. I., for the 100-day service. His record is that of a loyal citizen and brave soldier

On Sept. 21, 1869, Mr. Fink married Rebecca B. Graeff, and they have two sons, John W., a master mechanic in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad, with headquarters at Mt. Carbon, Pa.; and George H., of Reading. Mr. Fink is quartermaster of Keim Post, G. A. R., an office he has filled since its organization. He belongs also to Castle No. 49, K. G. E.; St. John's Lodge, F. & A. M.; and Liberty Fire Company, No. 6, of Reading. In politics he is an ardent Republican. He served two terms as a member of the Reading school board, elected from the First ward, in which he resided twenty-eight years. At present Mr. Fink is living retired, attending only to his own real estate.

JOSEPH K. STEFFY. Among the well-known residents of Cumru township, Berks county, may be mentioned Joseph K. Steffy, a retired agriculturist, who is living on his fine tract of fifty-seven and one-half acres. He was born Nov. 14, 1838, across the line in Brecknock township, son of Joseph and Anna (Kohl) Steffy.

Abraham Steffy, grandfather of Joseph K., was a lifelong resident of Cumru township, where he was engaged in laboring and in farming in a small way. He married a Miss Remp, and their children were: Benjamin; Samuel; Joseph, and Abraham. Of these Abraham married Sarah Harding, daughter of Christil Harding, owner of a small farm in Cumru township. His eleven children were: Christil, Samuel, Henry, Benjamin, John, William, Moses, Reuben, Elizabeth (m. Jonathan Epler), Sarah (m. Levi Kohl) and Rachel (died single aged twenty-six). Christil, Samuel, Henry, Benjamin and John of this family served in the Union army during the Civil war, the latter being but eighteen years of age at the time of his enlistment. Samuel Steffy, second son of Abraham, Jr., was born Jan. 8, 1836, and is now a retired hatter, living on his eight-acre tract in Mohnton. He has an honorable Civil war record. He married Mrs. Rebecca (Spangler) Ruth, and their only child, Sarah E., now deceased, was the wife of John Shilling.

Joseph Steffy, father of Joseph K., was born in Brecknock township, March 6, 1809, and died April 13, 1879. He was the owner of a tract of fifty acres of land in Brecknock township, and engaged in farming and charcoal burning all of his life, and was regarded as a substantial man and good citizen. He and his family attended Allegheny Church, of which he was an elder for some years. Mr. Steffy married Anna Kohl, born in 1809, who died in 1846, daughter of William Kohl, of Gouglersville, and to them were born eight children, as follows: Samuel died in 1899, aged seventy-one years; Lydia m. Jonathan Blankenbiller; Benjamin m. Catherine Ruffner, and died in 1908; Daniel m. Amelia Hill; Joseph K.; Peter m. Kate White; Annie m. Jacob Trostle; Susan m. Henry Long.

Joseph K. Steffy attended the old pay schools of his day for a few months during the winter, and when but fifteen years of age began chopping wood during the winter months, while the summer seasons were spent on the farm. When he was eighteen years of age he began burning charcoal during the six warmer months, while the rest of the year was spent at shoemaking. In about 1868 Mr. Steffy located on his farm in Cumru township, which he had purchased in 1862, and which he still owns, it being rented to his son-in-law, John S. Long. The tract of fifty-seven and one-half acres on which he now resides was purchased by him in 1898, and has been furnished with good, substantial buildings. In politics Mr. Steffy is a Democrat, and he is fraternally connected with the Sr. O. U. A. M., Council No. 91, Angelica, Pa. He and his family are Reformed members of Allegheny Union Church, of which he was a deacon and elder for more than twenty years.

On Dec. 24, 1863, Mr. Steffy married Catherine Blankenbiller, born in 1840 and died Dec. 18, 1899, daughter of George and Elizabeth (Seibert) Blankenbiller. The following children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Steffy: Henry, born Jan. 27, 1868, died aged fifteen days; Daniel, born June 22, 1869, died Dec. 16, 1890; Nelson, born Aug. 5, 1871, died Jan. 7, 1873; Emma Elizabeth, born June 23, 1873, m. John S. Long, and has had children, Charley (deceased), William (deceased), Viola, Victor, Lester and Margie; Maggie Ann, born July 11, 1875, m. William Trago; Joseph, born Aug. 12, 1878, m. Alice Kessler, and has a son, Morris Wayne; and Katie Alice, born July 30, 1881, m. Charles Schlabach.

FRANCIS M. HEMMIG, of Reading, Pa., was born there March 31, 1851, son of Benneville M. Hemmig, and grandson of John Hemmig.

(I) John Hemmig was born in Cumru township, Berks county, in 1786, and died March 10, 1873, aged eighty-seven years. He was a resident of Reading for many years, and there his death occurred. His first wife was of the Marstellar family, and their children were: Benneville, Philip, John and Isaac (twins), Amelia and Mary. After the death of his first wife, Mr. Hemmig married Elizabeth Fix, and she bore him Jacob, Sarah and Magdalene (m. a Boyer).

(II) Benneville M. Hemmig, son of John Hemmig and father of Francis M. Hemmig, was born in Cumru township, near the county line, Oct. 17, 1820, and died at Reading June 22, 1901, aged nearly eighty-one years. He was a contractor and builder and erected a great many fine buildings in this city. His success was all the more commendable in that he was left an orphan and dependent upon his own exertions at eleven years of age. He learned the carpenter's trade, and followed it until his retirement seven years prior to his death. He was a man of more than ordinary capacity and was strictly honorable in all his dealings. In politics he was a Democrat, and served in the city council and as a member of the school board. In religious faith he was a member of the Lutheran Church. His remains were interred in the family lot in the Charles Evans cemetery. He m. Sara Lott, born Jan. 19, 1823, daughter of Jacob Lott, and she died Feb. 7, 1888. They had these children: Susan, born Nov. 12, 1845, died Oct. 21, 1897; Mary, born April 20, 1847, married William Fink, and died Aug. 4, 1898; Kate, born Nov. 6, 1848, died May 10, 1850; Francis M., born March 31, 1851; Albert, born Oct. 14, 1852; Kate, born March 29, 1855; Caroline, born Aug. 26, 1859; Emma, born June 14, 1860, died Aug. 1, 1866; Amelia, born Oct. 8, 1864.

(III) Francis M. Hemmig was educated in the schools of Reading, and at about sixteen he left high school to learn the carpenter's trade from his father, and for four and one-half years he worked as an apprentice and journeyman. In April, 1884, he embarked in the contracting and building business in Reading, and since then Mr. Hemmig has built about 115 dwelling houses, many warehouses and stables, giving employment to some fourteen skilled carpenters in addition to laborers. Among other examples of his work may be mentioned the John Roberts building, now the residence of Robert Bland, at No. 38 South Third street; the Isaac From building at No. 211 South Third street; the residence of Miss Jane Evans at No. 115 North Third street, and at No. 117 North Third street; No. 124 North Third street, and many others. He also built a row of houses for William H. Luden on the east side of North Tenth street; and a row for the Hampden Building Association, on the east side of North Tenth street. During 1881 Mr. Hemmig was in Denver and there was busy on a large flour mill, receiving for his services a large amount. During this trip he made an extended journey, traveling through some fourteen States and carefully examining into building conditions. All of his work is characterized by its thoroughness, and he gives it all his personal supervision and leaves nothing undone to insure good results. His success shows that his policy is not only an honorable one, but that it is one that pays materially as well. In 1888 and 1889 he was a member of select council from the Sixth ward.

Mr. Hemmig resides at No. 311 Washington street, in the house where he was born, which was erected by his father, Benneville Hemmig, in 1846, although Mr. Hemmig himself remodeled it in 1907, putting in all modern improvements and conveniences and making it one of the most comfortable homes in Reading. In addition to his other work, from 1894 to 1897 when business was dull in this city Mr. Hemmig had charge of the New England Car Shops and had 100 men under him. These shops are located at East Hartford, Connecticut.

Fraternally Mr. Hemmig is a member of the Carpenters' Union, the Improved Order of Red Men, Metacomet Tribe No. 416, of Reading, of which he was a charter member, and of the Haymakers Association, No. 416½. He and his family are members of St. James Lutheran Church.

Mr. Hemmig married (first) Clara Whitman, born April 4, 1848, and died July 4, 1889. They had two children: Edith m. Samuel Gruber; Grace E. died in 1894, aged seventeen years. Mr. Hemmig m. (second) June 7, 1894, Mrs. Agnes W. Yoder, daughter of George S. and Mary (Werner) Krick, of Sinking Spring, and widow of Reuben Yoder. Mrs. Hemmig had two children by her first marriage, Eva and Ernest. No children have been born of the second union.

CHARLES H. HOPPES, one of the progressive men of Oley township, a school director and a well known man, was born in this township, Nov. 15, 1866, son of Daniel R. Hoppes, and grandson of Solomon Hoppes.

(I) Solomon Hoppes for many years was engaged in making pumps in Oley township, and was one of the well known men of Berks county. His wife was of the Rowe family, and they had three children—Obediah, Amos and Daniel R.

(II) Daniel R. Hoppes was born in Oley township in 1838, and died Feb. 10, 1900, being buried at Friedens cemetery. He was also a pump maker, having learned his trade from a Mr. Derr at Oley or Friedensburg. He followed this calling all of his active life, and was noted for his excellent work and strict integrity of character. He married Amelia Haas, daughter of Abraham Haas, and they had children as follows: John is of Barto, Pa.; Mary m. Peter Fry; Charles H.; Catharine m. Jonas Reider; Daniel H. is a blacksmith by trade, and employed by his brother.

(III) Charles H. Hoppes attended the public schools of Oley township until he was eighteen, when he went to Oley to learn the blacksmith's trade under Jeremiah Hauck. In 1888 he embarked in business for himself, and in 1895 he erected a fine modern shop, and has one of the best stands in Berks county. Mr. Hoppes devotes a good deal of his time to handling farm implements, and in the spring of 1908 he purchased a large stock as well as the good will of Ammon S. Hartman of Oley and is doing a thriving business, which shows a healthy increase.

Mr. Hoppes married Miss Catharine Bower, a daughter of Jeremiah and Catharine Bower, of Oley. They have two children: Amelia B. and Edwin B. Mr. Hoppes is a Democrat, and for fifteen years he served his township as auditor, and in 1907 was elected to the position of school director. He is a Lutheran in religious faith and one of the most liberal contributors to his church in the community. Energetic, hard working and an excellent business man, Mr. Hoppes is easily one of the leading men of his township.

JOHN SPONAGLE is a well known plasterer residing in Reading. He was born in Chester county, Pa., in 1840, son of George and Margaret (Wilson) Sponagle.

John Sponagle, grandfather of John, of Reading, at one time resided in Huntingdon county, then moved to Berks county, and later to Chester county. He was of German extraction, and was a member of the Reformed denomination, as were all the members of his family. His children were: George, John, Samuel and Mary (m. Albert Bell, of Robeson township).

George Sponagle, son of John, was born near Gibraltar, Berks county, but several years of his life were passed in Chester county. He learned the plasterer's trade, and this he followed for some forty years. On his return to Berks county he located in Robeson township, whence after fifty years of residence he removed to Union township, and there he died in 1895, aged eighty-five years. He became an active worker in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and he was prominent in local politics. He cast his first Presidential vote for Andrew Jackson, and he was always loyal to his first party choice. He belonged to the Odd Fellows at Morgantown. He married Margaret Wilson, daughter of Andrew and Ann Wilson, and the nine children of this union were: Susan Jane m. Henry Umstead, and both are deceased; Samuel, deceased, resided in Reading; Ann m. Jacob Geiger, and lives on the Geiger farm in Union township; John, formerly of Robeson, is now in Reading; James W. lives retired in Birdsboro, after many active years in business and public life; Joseph is a plasterer at Geigertown; Mary Elizabeth is the widow of A. Jackson Westley, of Pottstown; George Howard died in young manhood; Harry B. is a plasterer at Birdsboro.

John Sponagle attended school in Robeson township, Berks county, whither his parents had removed, and was only a boy of fifteen when he began to learn the plasterer's trade under his father's instructions, and he is still employed at the same business. He came to Reading in 1901, and located at No. 151 West Douglass street, where he has a comfortable home. He is one of the oldest men in the city at his trade, and his excellent work has made him very popular.

In 1864, Mr. Sponagle married Mary E. Kaler, daughter of Mathias and Esther (Bender) Kaler, the former a prominent farmer in Summit Level, Robeson township. Their children are: Anna L. m. Peter Buchanan, who died in 1905, and she lives on the old Sponagle farm in Robeson township, and has nine children; Elizabeth E. m. Kauffman Kurtz, and lives in Pittsburg; Margaret m. Theodore Sheeler and lives in Robeson township; Mathias K. lives in Reading; Joseph lives in Pittsburg; Edgar is at home in Reading; Susan J. m. Clarence Strubble, of Pittsburg; Florence m. Frank Fall, and lives at Gilbertsville; Ralph is at home. In politics Mr. Sponagle is a Democrat, and while living in Robeson township served twelve years as school director. In 1863 he enlisted in Company A, 53d Pa. Vols., and served three months.

DIETRICH. The common ancestor of the large Dietrich family of Berks county was a native of the Palatinate, Germany, where he was born in 1740, and in 1767 he came to America with his wife Barbara A. Steinbruch, born in 1741, died in 1821, surviving her husband by four years. Both are buried in the Moselem churchyard. They had a family of twelve children, seven sons and five daughters, one of the latter of whom died in girlhood. The others grew to maturity and lived to ages averaging more than seventy years.

Johann Georg Dietrich and his elder brother Johann Adam Dietrich were born in Germany before their parents' emigration, and the date of the birth of the former was May 7, 1767. He died in Greenwich township, in Berks county, Nov. 4, 1845, aged seventy-eight years, five months and twenty-seven days. His wife, Elizabeth Brummer (1773-1850), is buried by his side at Dunkel's church. They were farmers and made a specialty of bee culture. Mrs. Dietrich was a very religious woman and instructed her children from the Bible, which she called the "good book." Eight children were born this worthy couple: Johannes, Kate, Beckie, Polly, George, Daniel, Anna and Lucinda.

Daniel Dietrich, son of Johann Georg, was born in Greenwich township, near Dunkel's Church, Nov. 12, 1809, and died Jan. 18, 1832. He married Katharyn Lesher, who was born in 1812, and who died in 1844.

Aaron Dietrich, son of Daniel, always lived in the vicinity of Lenhartsville, Pa., and always being industrious and honorable grew up into a highly respected man; his powerful build made him one fitted for hard and thorough work. He weighed 225 pounds, and stood six feet, two inches tall, and was excellently proportioned. For many years he was a teamster for George Merkel at Lenhartsville Furnace, and later after this furnace was abandoned, he engaged in other lines. He was united in marriage with Mary Reeser, and they became the parents of two children: Azariah Christian; and Endora, m. to Milton H. Zimmerman, insurance agent at Reading. After the death of Aaron Dietrich, his widow, who had been a milliner for a number of years, married David Hinterleiter. Following her second marriage she removed her store from Lenhartsville to Hamburg, Pa., where she died advanced in years. Aaron Dietrich passed away at Lenhartsville, and is buried in the cemetery there.

Azariah Christian Dietrich, son of Aaron and father of A. Charles Dietrich, was born in Berks county, Aug. 5, 1858, and he died at Reading June 19, 1897. When he was a young man he learned carriage painting at Hamburg. Later he removed to Schuylkill Haven where he worked at his trade until 1887 when he and his family came to Reading. In this city he was employed with the Keystone wagon works in his line, and he thus continued until his death. He is buried in the Charles Evans Cemetery, at Reading. Mr. Dietrich married Lillie Kautner, born April 24, 1856, and they had two children: Charles Carroll, born June 17, 1875, m. Mame Wentzel and lives in Reading; Azariah Charles. As a man Azariah Christian Dietrich was honored and respected by all who met him. Possessing as he did fine natural abilities and those qualities which constitute the true man and valuable citizen, it was not difficult for him to win the esteem and admiration of those about him.

Azariah Charles Dietrich, of Reading, was born at Schuylkill Haven, Feb. 3, 1882. When he was only five years of age his parents moved to Reading, and he attended the public schools of the city until he was fifteen. At that age he commenced to work for the American Iron & Steel Company, of Reading, and remained with them four years. He then became a brakeman on the Reading railroad, and filled that position for three years, after which for two years he was fireman on the Pennsylvania railroad. In 1906 Mr. Dietrich embarked in the hotel business, and in April, 1907, he became proprietor of the "Saint Charles Hotel," at the northwest corner of Tenth and Walnut streets. This hotel Mr. Dietrich has since conducted, meeting with considerable success. It is a favorite stopping place for many visitors of Reading, and its cuisine is noted for its excellence.

Fraternally Mr. Dietrich is a member of Aerie No. 66, F. O. E.; the Elm Leaf Club; the Eighth Ward and the Ninth Ward Democratic Clubs, all of Reading. He is contributing member of the Philharmonic band. Politically Mr. Dietrich is an independent, believing that merit alone should be considered in making a selection for office. He is very conscientious about doing his duty as a citizen. Personally Mr. Dietrich is a tall, active young man, a good manager and pleasant and genial in manner, and one who is very popular with his guests.

In April, 1903, Mr. Dietrich married Anna Stamm, daughter of Martin and Anna (Wickleim) Stamm, of Reading, and they have two children, Margaret Lillie and Charles Melville.

HENRY P. PILGERT, J. P. The Pilgert family is descended from:

(I) George Pilgert, who was born in Longswamp township, and who died in 1872, and was buried in the Mertz-town Church Cemetery. He was a tailor and farmer by occupation, and a lifelong resident of Longswamp township, at what is known as Pilgert's schoolhouse, of which he was supervisor for many years. George Pilgert married Diana Feigley, a daughter of Henry Feigley, born April 19, 1774, who died at the age of ninety-seven years. She was born 1805, in Longswamp township, and died at the advanced age of ninety-five years and is buried in Mertztown Church Cemetery. They had eight children: Isaac; Willoughby m. Mary Eck; Henry E.; Reuben m. Sarah Schoedler, deceased; George M., deceased, m. Maria Howe; Judith died unmarried; Isabella m. a Mr. Bitting, deceased; Rebecca m. William Jacobs.

(II) Henry E. Pilgert, father of Henry P., was born on the homestead Nov. 20, 1831, and is now seventy-seven years old and still active, working every day. He was a cigar maker by trade, but did not follow it after the Civil war. He did not serve in the war on account of a small defect in his ankle. His two brothers, George M. and Willoughby, served, however, for some time, and later were pensioned. On May 31, 1857, Henry E. Pilgert married Maria Smith, born May 31, 1838, died May 3, 1891. They had six children: Sarah died at the age of fifteen years; Helena m. George W. Ketterer, of Allentown, and died at the age of forty-two; Henry P.; Catharine, born Sept. 5, 1868, m. William E. Ketterer, and resides at Reading; George E., born Feb. 11, 1874, m. Maleria Reeser, and they reside at Allentown, where he is bookkeeper for the Trexler Lumber Company; Maria Isabella, born Aug. 22, 1876, m. Luther P. Fritch, and they live at home.

(III) Henry P. Pilgert was born in Mertztown March 9, 1864, and was educated in the local schools of the district, and later at the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown. For some years he was a public school teacher, and for two years he clerked in a wholesale dry goods house in Philadelphia. In the spring of 1891 he took charge of the station of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad as agent and telegrapher, at Mertztown, and at the same time acted as postmaster, from 1893 to 1897. In 1901 he entered the coal, grain and lumber business which he has been conducting successfully ever since. In 1900 he was elected justice of the peace, and this office he still holds with credit, his commission not expiring until 1910, which will complete his two terms.

On Oct. 22, 1887, Mr. Pilgert married Ella J. Dankel, a daughter of Reuben Dankel, and his wife Sophia Staufer. Mr. and Mrs. Pilgert have two children: Henry Payne, born May 11, 1902; Julia Frances, born March 27, 1908. In politics Mr. Pilgert is a Democrat, and he has held various minor offices, such as school controller, treasurer of the board of supervisors, as well as the other offices already mentioned. The family are members of the Lutheran and Reformed churches at Mertztown and Longswamp, and are very highly respected.

SAMUEL H. BELL, druggist, located at No. 817 Penn street, Reading, Pa., was born at West Leesport, Berks county, in 1867, son of Samuel and Emma (Himmelreich) Bell, and a descendant of James Bell, who emigrated from Belfast, Ireland.

James Bell was one of three brothers who came to America from Belfast in their young manhood. One of the brothers was a miller, and built a grist mill which afterward became Bushong's paper mill, but was for a long time known as Bell's mill. Samuel, one of the three brothers, settled in Schuylkill county, and had a son Samuel, and among his descendants is the Hon. James M. Bell, of Philadelphia.

James Bell, son of James, the emigrant, was born in Reading in 1812, and there he died Feb. 3, 1879. He was a clerk in the court house for eighteen years, though in his earlier life worked at the tailor's trade. He was a member of the First Reformed Church of Reading, and was its treasurer at the time the church was rebuilt. His remains rest in the Charles Evans cemetery. He married Sarah Dunkelberger, daughter of Peter and Magdalena (Bohn) Dunkelberger, and their children were: Thomas J. and William both died in infancy; Mary Jane m. the late James Phillips, and resides in Philadelphia; James, a soldier in the 93d P. V. I. was killed in the second battle of Chancellorsville at Salem Heights, in the Civil War; Samuel; Sarah Ann m. Isaac Ritter, and died in Philadelphia; Volney is buried in the Charles Evans cemetery; Robert Bruce is also buried in the Charles Evans cemetery; Rebecca died unmarried; Emma m. Conneberd Leibel of Reading; and Charles is a stationary engineer for the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, at Reading.

Samuel Bell, son of James, and now a successful stove and tinware merchant at West Leesport, was born Sept. 2, 1841, in Maiden-creek (now Ontelaunee) township. His first work was in a brick yard at Leesport, where he remained one season, and then he drove mules on the towpath on the Schuylkill canal during the seasons of 1857, 1858 and 1859. In 1860 he went to Reading and learned the tinsmith's trade with Henry Bennethum, then located at the corner of Fifth and Court streets, and this trade he has followed ever since, still doing repairing, tin-roofing and spouting. In 1863 he opened his present shop at West Leesport, and this he has carried on continuously. He has a full line of tinware, ranges, heaters, etc. In September, 1862, he enlisted at Reading in Co. G, Capt. Charles Bickel's Company, and saw active service at Hagerstown, Md., where they were shelled by Gen. Imboden, who was stationed on the opposite side of the Potomac river. He enlisted again in June, 1863, in Company G, 42d Pennsylvania regiment, for the three months' service. He was at the old Walnut school-house in 1863, and stood at Sixth and Walnut streets, when the soldiers were receiving their pay. Mr. Bell is a member of the United Evangelical Church, which he joined in 1873. He is one of the most active workers of Bethany congregation at West Leesport, where for many years he was class leader, and has been exhorter and trustee. For a quarter of a century he has been superintendent of the Sunday-school, and is present at his post every Sunday. Mr. Bell's residence is on Main street. On Feb. 2, 1862, he married Emma Himmelreich, daughter of Amos D. and Elizabeth (Moyer) Himmelreich, and they have become the parents of seven sons and five daughters, as follows: William H., of West Leesport; Carrie, m. to Jacob Kirby, of Paulsboro, N. J.; Samuel H.; James R., of No. 1005 Oley street, Reading; Rebecca L., unmarried; George, who died in 1907; Emma, m. to Edward Landis, of Reading; Amos H., m. to Ida M. Dietrich, daughter of Charles Dietrich, of Kutztown, and they have a son, Lincoln; Mary, deceased; Laura M. and Edward A., unmarried; and Robert, deceased.

Samuel H. Bell was educated in the West Leesport schools and in Stoner's Business College, Reading, graduating in 1887. He learned telegraphy at the age of fourteen, and followed that profession as an operator and special agent for the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, for eleven years, doing duty at different points. In 1892 he went to New Jersey and accepted a position with the South Amboy Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, where he remained more than a year. From this position he entered the store of the great merchant John Wanamaker at Philadelphia, with whom he continued for three years in the capacity of bookkeeper. From there he entered the employ of the Adams Express Company as bill clerk, in their offices at Seventeenth and Market streets, but failing health caused him to resign and in February, 1894, he came to Reading. Here Mr. Bell became floor walker with the large firm of Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart, where he remained two years.

Mr. Bell then entered the drug business, and was associated with Clarence T. Stubbs, No. 751 Penn street, for eight years, during this time having full charge of the store. On Dec. 13, 1902, he engaged in the drug business on his own account, establishing his drug and prescription store at its present location, No. 817 Penn street.

Mr. Bell is one of Reading's promising business men, having the largest exclusive retail drug store in the City, and in connection has one of the most complete prescription departments, Mr. Charles S. Lebo, a graduate in pharmacy, with first honors in his class at Medico-Chirurgical College, Philadelphia, being the manager of this department.

Mr. Bell married Lillie M. Kershner, daughter of John S. Kershner, of Shoemakersville, Berks county. They have two children, Ethel and Myrle E. Mr. and Mrs. Bell are members of St. Paul's United Evangelical Church. Fraternally he belongs to Neversink Council, No. 371, Jr. O. U. A. M.; Fraternity Castle, No. 302, K. G. E.; Mystic Star Commandery, No. 47, A. and I. O. Knights of Malta; Lodge No. 115, B. P. O. Elks, Reading, and the Modern Woodmen of America.

JOHN M. STRUNK, senior member of the well-known coal, flour and feed firm of Strunk & Son, with main office at Fifth and Woodward streets, Reading, Pa., was born Feb. 20, 1839, in Cumru township, Berks county, at the present site of Mohnsville, son of Daniel Strunk, and grandson of William Strunk. The latter was a soldier in 1814 in the second war with England and died at Baltimore, Maryland.

In the latter years of his life Daniel Strunk was a farmer in Cumru township, but in his youth he was engaged in making gun-barrels at Mohnsville. He died at Reading, in the sixty-sixth year of his age, and was interred in the Charles Evans cemetery at Reading. Mr. Strunk married (first) Rebecca Miller, daughter of John Miller, also of Berks county, and she died at the age of thirty-seven years. He married (second) Catharine Garty. Mr. Strunk was the father of the following children: William, who died at the age of eleven; John M.; Amelia, who m. Daniel Good, and lives in West Reading; Miss Catharine, of Reading; George, who died aged four years: Cyrus, who died at the age of forty-five years; Frank, who died aged three years; and Harriet, who died at the age of thirty-seven

John M. Strunk was educated in the public schools, after leaving which he was engaged in farming until he attained his majority. At this time he learned the milling trade, which he followed for a period of nine years, at the end of which time he came to Reading, and in 1869 established his present business, first locating at Eighth and Cherry streets, on the present site of A. N. Kissinger's storage warehouse. He remained on that property for about twenty years and then came to his present location on the northeast corner of Fifth and Woodward streets, where he has been successful. He owns and operates one of the finest farms in the county, located at Lorane Station, in Exeter township, consisting of 121 acres of land, well improved with good buildings. He is also the owner of valuable real estate in the city of Reading.

Mr. Strunk married Catharine A., daughter of Isaac Weinhold, and they reside at No. 441 Woodward street. Their children are: (1) D. Webster is married and has one daughter, Lillian C.; he resides in Reading. (2) Anna M. is at home. (3) J. Arthur is chairman of Strunk & Moyer, Limited, and is the active member of the firm of Strunk & Son, of which he became a member in 1901. He married Elizabeth M. Christian and has one daughter, Catharine C., and they reside at No. 826 North Fourth street, Reading.

THOMAS H. SCHWARTZ, of Cumru township, belongs to a family long identified with that general section of the State, and one that has from generation to generation been concerned almost wholly with agricultural pursuits.

The first of the name to settle in Pennsylvania came from Germany, but was married after his arrival in this country to a Miss Nye, who became the mother of his son John. Mrs. Schwartz died a few years after the birth of the boy, and the father afterward moved to Shamokin and there married again.

John Schwartz, son of the above and great-grandfather of Thomas H., was born Jan. 11, 1769, and died Aug. 10, 1807, aged thirty-eight. In early life he ran the "Black Horse Tavern," near Adamstown, Lancaster county, and while there met and married his wife, Rachel Adam. She was born July 4, 1769, daughter of Bernhart Adam, the founder of Adamstown. She long survived her husband, as she lived till July 2, 1851, being within two days of her eighty-second birthday when she died. After marriage John Schwartz moved to Cumru township, bought a farm and operated it until his death. This sad event was due to a fall from a barn door at night, causing injuries which resulted in death nine days later. He left five children, viz.: Thomas, born Feb. 6, 1795, died at Pine Grove, Schuylkill county, Jan. 11, 1854; Joseph; William, a retired farmer, died at Reading; Peggy m. Nicholas Madeira, of Reading; and James, born June 6, 1805, died Aug. 12, 1879 (m. Susan ——, born June 19, 1814, died aged seventy-six years and eight months).

Joseph Schwartz was born Jan. 9, 1797. For the earlier part of his life he was a boatman, first upon the Schuylkill river and then on the Union canal, but he was also familiar with the milling trade, which he had learned at Leesport, and he later turned his attention to that occupation. He operated the Schwartz mill for some time, and then in middle life took up farming, locating in Cumru township, where he owned a tract of thirty acres besides some woodland and a five-acre tract of fine farming land, now forming part of the Joseph Davis estate. Joseph Schwartz married Sarah Homan, born Jan. 14, 1797, daughter of Henry and Mary (Rotzmoyer) Homan. She died Dec. 8, 1870, while Mr. Schwartz survived until Oct. 6, 1874. Their children were: Adam, a merchant in Reading, m. Miss Margaret Breidigan; Emma m. Levi Templin, a prosperous Reading merchant; Sarah died unmarried; Tamson m. Rufus Davis, a farmer in Penn, and later in Cumru township; and Joseph H.

Joseph H. Schwartz was born in Cumru township, Sept. 9, 1835. Brought up to farm work, it became his life-long calling, and from 1857 till his death he was operating on his own account. He began on the old farm, which he afterward bought and made it his permanent home. He also owned a thirty-four acre timber tract in the same township. In 1858 he married Ellen D. Hornberger, daughter of William and Ellen (Deeds) Hornberger, and children were born to them as follows: Thomas H.; C. Franklin, a farmer near Pottstown, m. Mary E. Crummins; Rufus died unmarried when twenty-two years old; George, of West Reading, m. Miss Lydia Wiesser; Charles m. Alice Eyrich, and lives on the old Seitzinger farm in Cumru township; Joseph, a farmer at Angelica, m. Lillie Steffey; and Wellington m. Annie Rathman, and assists his brother Thomas on the old homestead. Joseph Schwartz died May 12, 1891, in his fifty-sixth year. Like all his family he was a member of Yocom's Union Church of the Reformed faith.

Thomas H. Schwartz was born on the farm which is still his home, April 10, 1860. Farming interests have always occupied his attention except for one period of three years, dating from the time he was eighteen, as a hatmaker. After his father's death the entire responsibility of the homestead fell upon his shoulders and he has been in charge of it ever since. It is situated on the Wyomissing road with the creek running through it, and is a most valuable property, comprising ninety-three acres. In politics like all the family Mr. Schwartz is a stalwart Republican.

Mr. Schwartz married Jennie Seitzinger, and they have four children, William, Ellen E., Rufus and Charles. Mrs. Schwartz is a daughter of William R. and Elizabeth (Hahn) Seitzinger.

HENRY G. FISHER, a well-known contractor and builder of Reading, Pa., residing at No. 149 West Buttonwood street, was born in 1849, in Boyertown, Pa., son of Aaron W. and Rebecca (Gilbert) Fisher.

Aaron W. Fisher was born in Berks county, and early in life engaged in farming, at which occupation in connection with droving he worked for many years. He also operated a general store. In politics a Democrat, he was active in the ranks of his party in his day, serving as assessor, tax collector and constable for many years. Mr. Fisher and his wife, Rebecca Gilbert, became the parents of nine children: Tamzon married Mahlon Maurer; John; Jacob; Mary A. m. Frederick Steltz; Levi; Emma m. Andrew Gruber; Annie died at the age of seven years; Henry G.; and Sarah is deceased. In religious belief the family were Lutherans.

Henry G. Fisher was educated in the schools of Boyertown, and at the age of eleven years began stripping tobacco, later learning the cigar-making trade, at which he became an expert, taking the prize in the Berks district with a record of sixty cigars made in an hour. He averaged forty cigars in an hour, this being long filler, hand work. Mr. Fisher continued at cigar-making until twenty-one years of age, when he engaged in packing cigars, but one year later left to engage in the iron ore mining business. He helped to sink the famous Warwick shaft, at Boyertown, 600 feet deep, where he worked until 1886, in this year again taking up the cigar business as a packer for Glaser & Frame. He remained in their employ until they dissolved partnership, when George Frame started in business alone, and for him Mr. Fisher worked until the fall of 1890. In this year Mr. Fisher took charge of the factory of Gumpert Bros., Seventh and Washington streets, where he continued until the fall of 1899. Mr. Fisher then started in the building business with Morris R. Keen, with whom he has continued to the present time, the firm name being Keen & Fisher. This firm has been successful from the start, and they now own valuable property, including lots in Miami, Florida.

Mr. Fisher married Hannah L. Endy, daughter of Benjamin Endy, and five children have been born to this union: Benjamin, a cigar packer; William, M. D.; John, a mail clerk; Lulu, m. to Erwin Mergott; and Sarah, m. to Howard Gillings. Mr. Fisher is liberal in his religious views, believing the Bible to be the inspired word of God.

NATHAN G. CHRISTMAN, one of the prosperous residents of Oley township, was born in Frederick township, Montgomery county, Pa., Sept. 11, 1841, a son of Nathan and grandson of Henry Christman.

(I) Henry Christman was one of four brothers, the others being, John, Daniel and Jacob. He lived in Macungie township on the homestead property. A heavy land owner, he possessed three farms of large extent, a gristmill conducted by his son Jacob, and was a man of prominence in his community. His wife was a member of the Radler family. Their children were: Jonas; Ephraim; Jacob; Samuel; Nathan; Mrs. John Kerchner; Mrs. George Geiger, and Mrs. William Geiger, the last two marrying brothers.

(II) Nathan Christman, son of Henry, was born in Macungie township, Lehigh county, in 1815, and died at Zieglersville, Montgomery county, in 1887, aged over seventy-two years. He was reared on the home property, but after his marriage he went to Frederick, where he purchased a good farm of 124 acres. Later he retired, bought a small farm of fifteen acres, and there lived until within six years of his death, when he purchased a pleasant modern house. At the time of his death he was a very wealthy man. Mr. Christman was married twice. His first wife was Esther Garman, who died in 1863, the mother of: Matilda (died young); Lucinda; Nathan G.; James; Wilson; Jonathan and Henry. His second wife was Elizabeth Huber of Falkner Swamp, Montgomery county, who died in 1892, the mother of three children: Lizzie (m. Edwin Erdman); Civilla (m. Hiram Hartzel) and Augustus.

(III) Nathan G. Christman spent his early days upon the homestead, and when twenty years of age learned the milling trade which he followed five years. In 1866 he removed to Oley township, and resided upon the farm of his father-in-law until 1891, when he sold his farm stock and located in Friedensburg, and there, in 1867, he embarked in his present lumber business. He now owns sixteen acres in Oley, on the main street, south of Friedensburg, on which there is a tenant's house; and he also owns thirty acres in Exeter township, of woodland, and four acres in Earl township. Mr. Christman conducts the old Herbein's sawmill, and owns the old Herbein homestead of 125 acres of excellent farm land which came into his possession through his wife. The house upon it was built by Peter Herbein, and the barn was standing when Jonas Herbein came into possession. The original set of buildings stood north of the present ones in one of the meadows. Mr. Christman is a large stockholder in the First National Bank of Oley, and is a man of large interests and much public spirit. His present commodious home was built by him in 1894, and is on Main street near Friedensburg. In politics he is a Democrat. He and his family are members of the Reformed Church of Friedensburg, although they were formerly connected with the Schwartzwald Church. Mr. Christman is an elder ,and has been since 1895. His daughter sang in the choir for many years in both churches.

On Oct. 28, 1866, Mr. Christman married Rachel Herbein, daughter of Jonas and Lydia (Herbein) Herbein, of Oley township, and their children were: Lydia H., born in 1869, died in 1901, m. Gideon A. D. Hoch, and had children, Gideon, Maud, Thermuthis, Webster, Edna and Elwood; Olivia m. Sylvanius Mertz, of Exeter township, and has children, Carrie, Nathan, Jacob, Maggie, Helen, Mabel and Sue; Jonas, born Aug. 18, 1871 (lives in Oley township, he assisting his father at the sawmill), m. Mary Bush, and has children, Harvey, Florence, Nathan, William, Edna and Cora; Ella L. m. William Deagler, of Friedensburg (where he has a R. F. D. route) and has had children, Blanche, Harvey, John, Ella and Sara, living, and Catherine and James, deceased; Edwin M., born in 1879, died in 1880; Stella M. is unmarried and at home, keeping house for her father.

Mrs. Christman was born April 4, 1843, and died Feb. 8, 1907, aged sixty-three years, ten months and four days. Mr. Christman is a fair example of the respresentative men of Berks county, who have helped so materially to develop the resources and maintain the prestige of the commonwealth. Although no longer a young man he is active and deeply interested in his many affairs, while in his church he is a power.

LEVI M. MILLER. The typical American spirit of enterprise and progressiveness has been significantly shown in the signally successful business career of Levi M. Miller, of Reading, who is the executive and financial head of the Mount Penn Underwear Mill.

Mr. Miller is a native of Berks county, born on the homestead farm, in Upper Bern township, July 12, 1855, son of Jonathan and Mary (Machmer) Miller, both of whom were of German lineage and representatives of families early founded in the old Keystone State.

Jonathan Miller was a prosperous farmer, and continued to be actively identified with agricultural pursuits in this county until his death, in 1864, when about forty-five years of age. His widow, whose maiden name was Mary Machmer, died in 1878, both having been devoted members of the Lutheran church and known for sterling integrity of character. To Jonathan Miller and wife were born three children, namely: Levi M.; Andora, m. to James Glick; and Emma, m. to William Phillips.

Levi M. Miller was afforded the advantages of the schools of Bern township, and on the home farm early learned the lessons and the value of practical industry. After leaving the common schools he completed a course in Professor Brunner's business college, in Reading, from which he graduated. When twenty-one years of age he started for himself by establishing a general store at Mount Zion, Lebanon county, Pa. He took possession of the business, Jan. 1, 1878, and continued at that place successfully for three years, nine months. He was appointed postmaster by President Hayes, at Mt. Zion, serving three years, 1878-1881. He then engaged in the same line of business at Lyons, Berks county, where he met with distinctive success. At the expiration of four years he disposed of his business at that point, and located at Bern liam H.; Charles Adam, and Walter Leroy, the last named dying in infancy.

In 1899 Mr. Heckman served as assessor of the township, but resigned the office in 1900, on starting the hosiery mill. In 1905 he was elected a school director, and he is still serving in this term, acting as secretary of the board. Mr. Heckman is a deacon of the Shoemakersville Lutheran Church, having served in that office for nine years. He is fraternally affiliated with the Knights of the Golden Eagle and the Modern Woodmen of America.

HAMILTON GODFREY. Conspicuous among the well known business men of Reading is Hamilton Godfrey, owner of the "Farmers' Hotel and Rathskeller" and successful real estate dealer. He was born in Cape May county, New Jersey, where the Godfrey family has been known for several generations.

Nicholas Godfrey, grandfather of Hamilton, lived and died on the family homestead in New Jersey.

Samuel Godfrey, son of Nicholas, became the owner of the old farm in Cape May county, located two miles from property owned by his son Hamilton, situated in Great Egg Harbor, at Beesley Point. He married Martha Corson, and their children were: Bradford, dealer in real estate in New York; Carlton, president of the Guarantee Trust Company, and of the West Jersey Title Company, Atlantic City, N. J.; Hamilton; and Lottie, wife of Somers Ross, of Ocean City, N. J. Samuel Godfrey, the father, died in June, 1907.

Hamilton Godfrey was reared on a farm, receiving the advantages usual with farmers' sons. The schools of the neighborhood afforded him his only educational opportunities. At the age of twenty he engaged in the real estate business at Ocean City, at that time in its incipiency. This was the beginning of a successful career, and two years later he went to Atlantic City, where for eleven years he was engaged in the same line of business, meeting with unvarying success. He still holds valuable interests there. In 1891 he came to Reading, and opened an office and prosperity has attended his efforts. In 1905 he purchased the "Farmers' Hotel" property at the corner of Fifth and Washington streets, the title from the Penns being but four transfers removed. The building was erected in 1760, but additions have been made since then. Mr. Godfrey has also acquired other holdings in Reading. He belongs to Lodge No. 115, B. P. O. Elks.

Mr. Godfrey married Anna E. Donohower, daughter of William Donohower, of Reading.

HARVEY A. MILLER, who is serving his second term as justice of the peace of the borough of Topton, of which he is also treasurer, is one of the prominent and useful citizens of his community. He was born at Topton, Berks Co., Pa., June 15, 1868, son of J. H. and Eliza Ann Miller.

Harvey A. Miller was educated in the Topton schools and the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, Pa., where he was graduated in the class of 1884. For five consecutive terms he followed teaching but later connected himself with Rohrbach Bros. & Co., in the flour business, and remained several years, after which he entered into partnership with his father in the wholesale coal, roofing slate and flagging business under the firm style of J. H. Miller & Son. This firm is also general agents for Eastern Pennsylvania for the York Safe & Lock Company, and for the last quarter century has supplied some of the largest banking institutions in the country with vaults. Mr. Miller is further interested in manufacturing fine, seamless half hose for a corporation known as the Crown Knitting Company, for which he acts as superintendent, general manager and secretary. This is a large industry, and employment is given the year round to from seventy-five to eighty hands.

On Oct. 24, 1895, Mr. Miller married Jennie C. Trexler, daughter of Charles D. and Catherine (Haas) Trexler, the former being a merchant at Topton. They have two daughters, namely: Marie, born March 12, 1898; and Mae, born May 12, 1903. Mrs. Miller is a member of the Lutheran Church, and Mr. Miller of the Reformed Church. He has been very active in church and Sunday-school work, and has been superintendent of the school.

In politics Mr. Miller is a Democrat, and exerts considerable influence in party matters in this section. He is frequently sent as a delegate to conventions and made a member of important committees. In addition to the offices named, he has served as deputy coroner for several years.

JOHN DETSCH, who for many years was in the employ of the Reading Railroad, was born Aug. 4, 1820, in Niederasphe, Kurhessen, Germany, and died March 3, 1888, in Reading, Pa. He was a son of John and Catharine (Kranz) Detsch, and had one sister, Catharine. The father was a large land owner, and was engaged in the manufacture of potash.

John Detsch attended the academic schools of his native country, and came to the United States in 1848, first settling at Leesport, Pa., where he clerked in a hotel. He then removed to Reading, becoming an employe of the Reading Railroad, with which he was connected at the time of his demise. He was a Democrat in politics, and was fraternally connected with the Odd Fellows, the Harugari (a German social order), and Teutonia Lodge, F. & A. M., of Reading. He and his family were members of the Lutheran Church.

Mr. Detsch was twice married. In 1852 he married Mary Wahinger, a native of Germany, who died in 1861, leaving one son: John H., who lives in Reading, Pa. He married (second) in 1862, Anna Marie Staiger, born June 14, 1840, and to them were born two children: Dorothea and Amelia. Mrs. Detsch and her two daughters reside in their comfortable residence at No. 1133 North Ninth street, Reading, Pa. Mrs. Detsch was born in Endingen, Wurtemberg, Germany, and came to the United States in 1854. She was a daughter of Johan Martin Staiger (a contractor and builder of the Fatherland, who was in comfortable circumstances) and his wife Dorothea Link. To Johan Martin and Dorothea Staiger were born children as follows: Anna, Johan Martin, Christina and Anna Marie.

BIXLER. For a century and a half the name of Bixler has been known among the agricultural sections of Berks county, and today are found in Brecknock township Augustus S. and Manasses Bixler, and in Cumru township Joseph Bixler, all substantial and highly respected citizens.

(I) Christian Bixler, the first of the family of whom there is definite record, was a farmer in Robeson township, Berks county. His will, probated in 1811, the year of his death, mentions the following children: Henry, Abraham (who had a son, Daniel), Philip, Jacob and Michael (who had two children, Christian and Mary, who married Simon Blankenbiller). Daniel, son of Abraham, and Christian, son of Michael, were both soldiers in 1781, in Capt. Michael Wolf's company in the war of the Revolution.

(II) Philip Bixler, son of Christian, was an auctioneer in Brecknock township. He owned considerable property, and as each of his children married he or she was given a big farm. He is buried in the cemetery at the Mennonite meeting-house near Allegheny. His wife was a firm believer in Mennonite doctrines. Their children were: Christian, born May 25, 1783; Catharine, Aug. 27, 1785; Elizabeth, Feb. 2, 1787; Daniel, June 24, 1791; Maria, Aug. 15, 1793; Susanna, March 20, 1795; John, Sept. 21, 1798.

(III) Christian Bixler, son of Philip, born May 25, 1783, was a farmer in Brecknock township, where he owned the old original Bixler homestead, which consisted of upward of one hundred acres. He also operated a sawmill. He erected a comfortable home in which he spent his declining years, and there his death occurred in 1852. He married Margaret Breidenstein, and they had three children, one son and two daughters, namely: Isaac; Sallie, who married William Sweitzer; and Hannah, who married Isaac Seyfrit.

schweitzer

(IV) Isaac Bixler, son of Christian and father of Joseph, was born Jan. 12, 1807, and died May 25, 1886, in the eightieth year of his age. He was a farmer and sawmill operator in Brecknock, and was a good man and useful citizen. In time he came into possession of his father's farm of 120 acres and there he built a house in 1852, and rebuilt the sawmill in 1857. He and his family belonged to the Plow Church in Robeson township, and he was an official member of same. He married Barbara Beam, who bore him nine children, as follows: Manasses, who lives on the old homestead; Anna, married to Daniel Yelk; Isaac, married to Linda Hertz; Joseph; Barbara, married to Allison Gring; Christian, married to Ellen Zeamer; Elizabeth, married to Samuel Jacobs; Margaret, married to John Westley; and Catharine, married to James Westley.

(V) Manasses Bixler, son of Isaac, and a well-known citizen of Brecknock township, was born April 24, 1836. He remained upon the home farm until he was twenty-three years of age, when he learned the trade of carpenter under William Seyfrit, a cousin, for whom he worked for seven years, after which he followed it as a journeyman many years. In 1868 he began farming on his father-in-law's farm, where he lived twenty years. He then bought the old Bixler homestead of 110 acres, and there he has since made his home. Since 1887 he has conducted a sawmill, which occupies him the greater part of his time. Besides all this he finds time to repair furniture, engage in the undertaking business, and also to keep his farm in a fine state of cultivation. Mr. Bixler is a stanch supporter of the Democratic party, and has held township offices many years. He was assessor for nine consecutive years, auditor several years, township clerk two years. He was deacon, and is now elder, in the Plow Church, of which he has been a Reformed member for many years. He is known as an honest and upright man, and has many warm friends. In 1861 he married Sarah Wert, born March 26, 1842, daughter of Philip and Elizabeth (Beam) Wert. They have become the parents of seven children: Augustus, a farmer in Robeson township, married Ellen Moyer; Amanda married Jacob E. Griffith of Brecknock township; Philip is at home; William, a trucker in Brecknock township, married Margaret Hoschaur; Alvin is at home; Charles is at home; Isaac died in infancy.

(V) Joseph Bixler, son of Isaac, now a retired merchant and farmer of Cumru township, was born on the Bixler homestead in Brecknock township, April 2, 1844. He was brought up on the farm and attended the district schools, after the manner of farmers' boys of his day. In 1870 he began farming for himself, conducting his father's farm for three years; in 1874 he went to Caernarvon township, this county, where he rented for six years, and then went to Robeson township, where he farmed four years, at the end of that time returning to his father's farm for a like period. Once again he went to Robeson township and remained four years, after which he bought the old Messner farm in Cumru township (1891), consisting of 144 acres, fifty-six of which are woodland. Here he has since farmed successfully with the exception of 1905, when he conducted a general store, mill and his farm at Angelica. He is an up-to-date farmer, and his buildings, all of which he has erected himself, are neat and modern. His house was built in 1894, and the barn, which was destroyed by fire, was rebuilt in 1900. In politics Mr. Bixler is a Democrat. His family attend the Allegheny Church.

On Nov. 6, 1870, Joseph Bixler married Hannah Sweitzer, daughter of Daniel and Leah (Bixler) Sweitzer. Nine children have come of this union: Aquilla died aged four years; Howard died aged ten years; Mary married Henry Hoshour; Lillie married Monroe Ruffner; Lewis married Emma Kohl; Edwin married Nora Miller, of Lehigh county; Joseph died aged four years, the same day as his brother Howard, and both were buried in one coffin, at the Allegheny Church; Irwin and Minnie are both at home.

(III) Daniel Bixler, son of Philip and grandson of Christian, the founder of the family in this section, was born June 24, 1791, and became a miller and farmer in Brecknock township. He married a Miss Wert, and they had four children, namely: Daniel, Philip, Peter and Leah (married Daniel Schweitzer).

(IV) Peter Bixler, son of Daniel and father of Augustus S., was born in Brecknock township, Dec. 3, 1820, and died Aug. 25, 1879. He was a stone-mason by trade, and followed that occupation all his life in connection with farming. He owned the farm which is now the property of John Kramer. In politics he was a Republican. His wife was Elizabeth Schweitzer (daughter of John), born April 3, 1820, died Jan. 9, 1892, in the seventy-second year of her age. They were the parents of the following children: Augustus S.; Nelson, who conducts a portable sawmill in Berks county; Benneville, who died aged fourteen years; Sarah, married to Peter Griffith; Mary, who lives in Reading; John, a farmer of Robeson township; and Peter, who lives in Reading.

(V) Augustus S. Bixler, son of Peter, was born July 16, 1846, on his father's farm, and in the neighboring schools obtained a good substantial education, furthering his early training in the Spring Grove Forge Academy, in Lancaster county, where he studied during one term. He has devoted his entire life to farming, engaging for himself in 1887 on Samuel Z. Schweitzer's farm in Brecknock township, where he still lives. In political faith he is a Republican, but he takes little part in public affairs, being of a quiet and retiring disposition. He is highly respected by all for his sterling worth and his kindly disposition. He is a Lutheran, and for six years was a deacon in the Allegheny Church.

On Sept. 19, 1881, Augustus S. Bixler married Susan Hoschaur, daughter of Daniel and Amelia (Ziemer) Hoschaur. Six children were born of this union: Lizzie married John Neathock, of Brecknock; Samuel married Susan Schweitzer, and lives in Brecknock township; Augustus lives at home; Stella married Clayton Slouch, and they live with Samuel Z. Schweitzer, in Brecknock; Cora keeps house for her father; Charles lives at home. Mrs. Bixler died April 6, 1896.

WILLIAM S. HOLLENBACK, who has been known to the people of Reading as a professional musician and expert piano tuner for some years, was born in Shamokin, Pa., in 1866, son of Dr. Reuben and Dorcas (Sober) Hollenback.

Dr. Reuben Hollenback, father of William S., is one of the leading dental practitioners of Northumberland county, Pa., where he has been engaged in a general practice of his profession since 1864. To him and his wife, Dorcas Sober, were born children as follows: William S.; Hudson S., D. D. S., of Mt. Carmel; Edwin E., D. D. S., of Shamokin, Pa.; and a son who died in infancy. In religious belief the family are connected with the Reformed Church, attending St. John's at Shamokin.

William S. Hollenback attended the schools of his native town and graduated from the Shamokin high school in 1884. He went to Boston in the fall of 1885, and entered the New England Conservatory of Music, not completing the course at this time, but he returned in 1887, and graduated from that well-known institution in the spring of 1888, in the tuning department. Soon afterward he located in Pottstown, but later transferred his attention to Reading, and since June, 1889, he has been successfully engaged in this city. He accepted the position of organist in St. Barnabas P. E. Church, and there continued for two and one-half years, spending a like term at St. John's Reformed Church as organist and director of music. In April, 1897, he was engaged as organist and choir-master at the Second Reformed Church, which position he still holds. As an expert piano tuner, his reputation is not merely local, as he is well and favorably known throughout Berks and adjoining counties. Since May, 1907, he has been engaged in the sale of reliable pianos, being senior member of the firm of William S. Hollenback & Co. Columbia graphophones and records were added in January, 1909.

Mr. Hollenback was married in 1893 to Miss Ida M. Elliott, of Shamokin, Pa., daughter of James M. and Sarah (Francis) Elliott, and two children have been born to this union: Grace, now (1909) aged thirteen years, who has had favorable mention as a child pianist; and Elliott H., aged nine years.

KRONINGER. The good ship "Peggy," which landed at Philadelphia, Sept. 24, 1753, had on board 108 passengers, one of whom was Jacob Kroninger, from the German Palatinate, who was then thirty years old, as appears in the State records. He settled in Macungie township, Northampton (now Lehigh) county, shortly after landing. There is record of his four sons, as follows: (1) Nicholas and (2) Henry both settled in Mahanoy township, Northumberland county, prior to 1783, in which year Nicholas owned 100 acres of land and had two horses and four head of cattle, and paid the federal tax of £4, 8s. Henry had one cow and paid a tax of 3s. In the following year Nicholas paid a tax of £7, 3s., and Henry of 4s. (3) The third son, tradition says, as does also a brief reference in history, was carried away by the Indians. (4) Daniel lived in Macungie township, Lehigh county, until 1787. In 1785 in the federal tax register, in the Pennsylvania archives, he is recorded as having owned 100 acres of land, two horses, one cow, and paid a tax of £1, 1s. In 1787 he moved to Weisenburg township, Northumberland (now Lehigh) county, where he owned 150 acres, and the federal tax lists show he paid a tax of £1, 1s. He was a carpenter by occupation. His children were: John (1775-1853); Peter, who settled in Ohio; Margaret; Susan; and three sons who died close together.

John Kroninger, son of Daniel and grandson of Jacob, the emigrant, was born in Macungie township Oct. 4, 1775, and there he lived until he was twelve years of age. His parents then removed to Weisenburg township, Lehigh county, and there young John lived until he attained his majority. He married Margaret Kob, born Christmas Day, 1779, who died April 1, 1864. Mr. Kroninger was a soldier in the war of 1812. For many years he lived on the road leading from Roth's school house to Grimville, in Greenwich township, on the farm now the property of John M. Fry. Here his death occurred May 17, 1853. His children were: (1) Daniel (1803-1884) m. , in 1824, Esther Reifinger (April 15, 1808—April 23, 1901, aged ninety-three years, eight days) and had five sons and six daughters. (2) Jonas died in childhood. (3) Maria (1808-1878) m. (first) Abraham Merkel and (second) Charles Ott. (4) Catharine m. Jacob Lutz. (5) John settled at Delaware, Ohio, in 1835, and there m. and reared a family. (6) David m. (first) Maria Gruber, and (second) Harriet Heiser. (7) Joseph m. Eliza Schlonecker, and settled in Chickasaw county, Iowa. (8) Miss Lydia, born May 3, 1827, has lived in Reading since 1856. (9) Johan Peter (Aug. 18, 1824—Oct. 28, 1906, aged 82 years, 2 months, 10 days) lived two miles east of Grimville, where his death occurred. His wife, Rebecca Lautenstein, preceded him to the grave at the age of sixty-nine. Their children were: Elmer T., Mrs. Charles Leiby, Mrs. Peter Schlenker (all of Grimville); Morris, of Philadelphia; Sylvester, of Weedsport, N. Y.; Frank, of Auburn, N. Y.; and Mrs. Ellen Leiby, of Mahanoy City, Pennsylvania.

Daniel Kroninger, son of John, was born in 1803, and his death occurred in 1884. In 1824 he was united in marriage with Miss Esther Reifinger, who was born April 15, 1808, and died April 23, 1901, at the advanced age of ninety-three years and eight days. Eleven children, five sons and six daughters, blessed their union, as follows: (1) Florenda m. Samuel Lesher, of Mohrsville. (2) David J. m. Catharine Kunkel, and they lived in Weisenburg. Their children are: Mary, Emma and Penrose. (3) Brigetta m. J. P. T. Haas, of Eagle Point and Lancaster. (4) Daniel P. m. Lavina Schwartz, and lives at Eagle Point. Their children are: Elmer, Alonzo, Howard, Arthur O. and Richard. (5) Noah is mentioned below. (6) John m. Sarah Schmick, and resides at Allentown. Their children are: Edward, Laura, Daniel, Regina, Mame, Amelia and Stella. (7) Sarah m. Daniel Saul, and lived at Eagle Point. (8) Annie m. Augustus Bortz, of Temple. (9) A son. (10) Esther. (11) Amelia m. James Trollinger. The youngest three children preceded their mother to the grave.

Noah Kroninger, son of Daniel, was born in Maxatawny township, in March, 1845. For some years he lived in "Yammerthal" in Greenwich township, and in 1879 moved to his present home at Eagle Point, in Maxatawny township. This village was formerly called Kroningersville, after this family. Noah Kroninger married Hettie Dunkel, daughter of David and Annie (Lesher) Dunkel, of near Mohrsville. Their children are: Nora m. Ben Schmoyer of Breinigsville, and they live in Allentown, where he has a bakery business; Theodore J.; Lizzie m. Wallace P. Kunkel, of Westfield, Tioga Co., Pa.; Oscar m. May Eastman, of Chico, Cal., where they reside; George and Elton both died in childhood; Irwin is a clerk in a foundry at Kutztown; and Daisy, the youngest, is a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown.

THEODORE JOSEPH KRONINGER, son of Noah and the subject proper of this sketch, was born in Greenwich township, Jan. 30, 1876. He obtained a good practical education in the public schools of his district which he attended until he was twenty-one years of age. Under his cousin, Edwin Kroninger, of Allentown, he learned the florist's business and followed this vocation for some time. He traveled in nearly all the counties in eastern Pennsylvania for pleasure and business combined, all the while learning new methods and customs from them. These he put into practical use when he returned to his native county in 1899. He then worked as a servant for Clinton Angstadt, who lived upon the Pierce Kemp farm in Maxatawny township, remaining in that position for four years. In the spring of 1902 he began farming where he had lived the preceding four years as a servant. He is in the best sense of the term a self-made man. He owns valuable farm stock, and is prospering as the result of his intelligent and well directed efforts. The milk from his dairy is sold daily in Kutztown. In all his work he is very exact, and in his business relations he is scrupulously honest, and he and his wife are highly esteemed in the community. They attend the Lutheran Church at Kutztown.

On Dec. 25, 1902, Mr. Kroninger was united in marriage with Katie Judith Loch, who was born Nov. 4, 1877, eldest daughter of Joel and Hettie (Dietrich) Loch, farming people of Seiberlingville, Lehigh county, and granddaughter of Joel, Sr., and Bevvy (Fisher) Loch, also farming people of Lehigh county.

JAMES G. UBIL. Among the well known contractors and builders and representative citizens of Reading, Pa., may be mentioned James G. Ubil, a native of the city, born Aug. 7, 1854, and now residing at No. 251 South Tenth street. His parents, William B. and Jane (Gabriel) Ubil, came from Chester county to Reading when young people, and here the father followed ore mining for many years, dying in 1888, aged seventy-one. His widow is still living. Their children were: Joseph; Oliver and James G., twins; Daniel; and Mary Ellen and Hannah M., single. In religious belief the family are Presbyterians. William B. Ubil was a Republican in politics. Fraternally he belonged to the I. O. O. F.

James G. Ubil was educated in the schools of Reading, and until sixteen years of age worked in the ore mines with his father during the summer months. After leaving school he apprenticed himself to Fink & Eisenhower for three years, spending some time as a journeyman laborer with various contractors. In 1880 he went to St. Louis, Mo., working there at his trade for one year, when he returned East and with Joshua Wise built the Thomas Willson mansion, at the corner of Fourth and Washington streets, Reading. The partnership continued for several years, during which time they built the Manhattan Hardware Works, where Wilhelm's paint works are now located, in Riverside, and did much work about the city of Reading, building the Woodvale Athletic Club, the first on the mountain. After Mr. Wise's death Mr. Ubil continued alone for some time, but in 1889 accepted a position with Joshua Koch. This connection continued until in 1890, when Mr. Ubil went into the wood pulley business with a Mr. Fister. During the time he was with the latter gentleman Mohn's Hat Factory was destroyed by fire, and Mr. Ubil equipped the new plant with these pulleys. Since that time he has been engaged in contracting and building, and has erected many of Reading's finest dwellings. He built the first apartment house in the city and has since erected two more apartment houses for the same man, Daniel Miller; the janitor's residence of the English Reformed Church; the Pennsylvania Optical Company's plant on South Fifth street; the Oberly building at No. 19 North Ninth street; the Kauffman block on North Eighth street; an addition to the "Black Horse Hotel" at Kutztown and hotel on Madison avenue, for Franklin B. Maning, of Brooklyn, New York; a hotel for the Lauer Brewing Co. at Auburn; a plant at Schuylkill Haven; built and remodeled a large block for McClosky at Pottsville; John Roehrich's ice plant on Third near Buttonwood street; Obediah Sanders' modern residence at Wyomissing; the Prutzman building on Pine street; the large apartment house called Palmer House, in 1907; and many other buildings and residences throughout the city. In 1903 Mr. Ubil's son, Ralph, was admitted as a partner, the firm now being known as Ubil & Son. They are now erecting a hotel at Reinhold's Station for John Barbey, at a cost of $8,000.

In 1876 Mr. Ubil married Ellen Evans, a niece of Mayor Evans, and to this union have been born eleven children, Lizzie, Ray, Clara, Helen, Ralph, Carl, Harry, David, Marie, Jennie and George W., the last two being deceased. In religious belief the family are Lutherans. In politics a Republican, Mr. Ubil was for two years city carpenter. He is a member of the F. O. E.; Wyomissing Council, Royal Arcanum; Twentieth Century Quakers; the Friendship Fire Company; the Washington Firemen's Association and the Veteran Firemen's Association.

NATHAN SCHAEFFER, for many years one of the substantial men of Oley township, was born July 19, 1829, son of Georg and Esther (Merckel) Schaeffer, of Richmond, and died upon his farm near Pleasantville, Sept. 17, 1880, aged fifty-one years, one month and twenty-eight days, and his remains are interred at Oley churches.

Residing in Maxatawny township on the farm where he was born until he attained his majority, Mr. Schaeffer later removed to Fleetwood, and thence, in 1865, to Oley township, where for eight years he farmed for his father-in-law, David Yoder. He then bought the George Yoder farm near Pleasantville, consisting of 100 acres, as good as can be found in the township. The house on this property antedates the Revolution, and was erected by a Yoder, being a very fine sample of the excellent work of those days. The barn was built by Mrs. Schaeffer in 1890, and is a commodious and modern one.

In 1860 Mr. Schaeffer married Catharine Yoder, daughter of David Yoder, of Oley township, and four children were born to them: Hannah m. David Nein, of Mount Penn; Mary m. James Hafer, a farmer of Oley township; David is a farmer residing near Engelsville; Annie m. Casper C. K. Griesemer, who farms Mrs. Schaeffer's property, and they have had five children, Leroy, Nathan (who died at the age of two years, five months and seven days), Clarence, and two infants.

Mrs. Schaeffer is a charming woman, well educated in both English and German, and speaking both languages fluently. She is an excellent business woman and since her husband's death has managed her own affairs. Pleasant in manner, intelligent and possessed of a delightful personality, Mrs. Schaeffer has many warm personal friends and is much beloved in her own family. The Schaeffer family is an old one and is counted among the representative names of Berks county.

B. F. HUNSICKER, who is prominently connected with the iron manufacturing industry of Reading, Pa., as chief bookkeeper of the Scott foundry, was born Dec. 8, 1858, in Lebanon, Lebanon Co., Pa., son of David and Lovina (Ely) Hunsicker.

David Hunsicker, who was a carpenter by occupation, located in Reading in 1870, where he engaged at his trade until his death in 1885, at the age of sixty-five years. He married Lovina Ely, who died in 1894, at the age of seventy years, and to them there were born five children, as follows: Clara S. m. George W. Moore, of Philadelphia, Pa.; John E. is of Los Angeles, Cal.; B. F. resides at Reading; Emma L. m. John F. Byerle, a jeweler of Reading; and William H. is deceased. In religious matters the family are connected with the Reformed Church. Mr. Hunsicker was a stanch Republican in politics, and during the Civil war he served as a carpenter in the Union army from 1861 to 1865, engaged in building pontoon bridges. He also assisted to erect the arch at Washington, D. C., under which the Lincoln funeral procession passed.

B. F. Hunsicker was educated in the public schools of Reading, after leaving which he entered the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway, being with that company from 1874 until 1888, and with the Pennsylvania Bolt & Nut Company, for two years. In 1890 he engaged with the Reading Iron Company, as bookkeeper, and was later appointed chief bookkeeper of the Scott works, now having an office force of five assistants. Mr. Hunsicker is fraternally connected with the P. O. S. of A., the K. G. E., Reading Lodge, No. 115, B. P. O. E., and the K. O. T. M. He and his family are connected with the Second Reformed Church. A stanch Republican in politics, Mr. Hunsicker has been active in the ranks of his party, serving as a member of the council from the Ninth ward in 1887 and 1888, and as a member of the school board eight years, six years of which he was president of the board, a position to which he was re-elected five times without opposition.

In 1884 Mr. Hunsicker married Lydia Richwein, born in Reading, daughter of Joseph and Matilda (Eschelman) Richwein, and one child has blessed this union: Eda L., a graduate of the Reading high school, class of 1903, who is now the wife of Amos P. Breneiser.

GEHMAN. The Gehman family, one of the earliest in this part of the State, is well represented in the present generation by Peter B. and Samuel B. Gehman, brothers, both of whom are engaged in farming and trucking and are highly esteemed as honorable business men and useful citizens.

The Gehmans are of Swiss origin. On Aug. 11, 1732, the good ship "Samuel" from Rotterdam, Holland, brought to Philadelphia one hundred and two natives of Switzerland, and of these a large number settled in what is now Brecknock township, Berks county, formerly a part of Lancaster. Among these emigrants were the ancestors of many of the well known Berks county families, namely: the Gehmans, Hornings, Kachels, Kramers, Behlers, Zieglers, Millers, Kieffers, Brendels, Gerhards and others. Tradition says that three Gehman brothers (also spelled Gayman and Geeman) came to America together, and that their names were Christian, Benedict (or Bentz) and Hans. The Pennsylvania archives record the names of but two: "Christian, aged twenty-four years; and Benedigt (Bentz), aged twenty years." Mention is also made of "Anna Geeman, aged twenty-three years."

It is further stated that Bentz or Benedict Gehman (born in 1711-12) settled in Brecknock township, in the vicinity of the present location of Gehman's Meeting House, and there took up land, and there to this day are found many of his descendants. Christian settled in Montgomery county, and there to-day is a large Gehman settlement. The oldest members now living recall hearing their parents and grandparents talk of the relationship through the original emigrants.

Daniel Gehman, the great-grandfather of Peter B. and Samuel B., was a son of the emigrant Benedict. He lived near Adamstown, at Gehman's Meeting House (so named in his honor), which was built on his land. He owned considerable property, which is now cut up into a number of farms, some of which are still in the family. On the farm of Solomon Gehman is the old private burying ground of the family. Daniel Gehman had four sons, namely: (1) Christian, born July 20, 1775, died March 26, 1856, the father of five children: Samuel, who had a daughter Salome; Daniel, who went West; John, who died unmarried; Elias, who reared a large family, in which was a son John; and Christian, born Sept. 17, 1817, who had a family of four children, Reuben, Samuel, Elijah and Anna. (2) Daniel married a Bowman, and had eleven children: Benjamin, born Feb. 15, 1808, died Sept. 5, 1882, had eleven children, Lovina, Solomon (born Jan. 15, 1835, m. in 1861, Barbara, daughter of Bishop Jacob Moseman, a native of Germany, and had children, Jacob, Samuel, Manno, Isaac and Amos), Fannie, Lydia, Maria, Israel (1836-1862), Joseph, Elizabeth, Benjamin, John and Noah; Joseph, born June 10, 1810, died Nov. 17, 1894, had three children, Henry, Lydia and Annie; Samuel, born Aug. 25, 1812, m. Elizabeth Messner, and died Dec. 23, 1891, the father of five children, Hannah, Eliza, Sarah, Daniel (born Nov. 5, 1845, has five sons and two daughters) and Richard; Judith m. Isaac Bowman; Lydia m. Jonas Bowman; Leah m. Isaac Bowman; Mary died unmarried; Susan m. Jacob Leinbach; Nancy m. Henry Eberly; Hettie m. Jonas Leinbach, and they moved to Michigan; and Elizabeth died unmarried. (3) Johan, born 1783, m. Betsy Brendel, and died in 1838. They had no children. (4) Samuel became the grandfather of Samuel B. and Peter B., and is mentioned below.

Samuel Gehman, son of Daniel, was born near Adamstown, and he died at the advanced age of eighty-four years, eight months and twenty-six days. He was a wheelwright by trade, and carried on that occupation at his home near Adamstown, together with the cultivation of his small farm, and also did some work at carpentering. He was active in the Mennonite Church, and is buried at Allegheny Meeting House. His wife, Fannie Bowman, died aged seventy-two years, three months, twenty-six days. Of their children the first two were twins, one of whom died in infancy, and the other, Lydia m. Jonathan Good; and John was the third child.

John Gehman, son of Samuel, was born near Adamstown, Lancaster county, Jan. 6, 1821, and he died Nov. 29, 1885, in his sixty-fifth year. He made his home in the vicinity of his birthplace until 1852, when he bought the old Simon Kohl farm in Cumru township. This property is now in the possession of his son, Peter B. John Gehman devoted his entire life to farming, and prospered greatly in his undertakings. He was honest and industrious, and was esteemed by all. In his religious faith he was a Mennonite. He married Lydia A. Bowman, who was born Nov. 10, 1821, daughter of John Bowman. She died March 25, 1895, in the seventy-fourth year of her age. Ten children were born to them, as follows: Joshua, born March 15, 1847, is unmarried, and lives with his brother; Abraham, a minister of the Mennonite Church, m. (first) Nancy Bowman, and (second) Elizabeth Leinbach; Miss Susan lives with her brothers; Fannie died in childhood; Peter B.; Jonathan, a minister at the old Wissler Mennonite Church, died in Michigan, where he had a large family; Hannah m. Noah Gehman, and lives in Lancaster county; Samuel B.; John, a mute, died aged nineteen years; and Lydia died in youth.

Peter B. Gehman, son of John, was born July 19, 1853. His education was obtained in the township schools, and he was early trained to the duties of the farm. On this farm he has spent his entire life with the exception of about five years, four of which he worked on a farm in Lancaster county, and one for a relative in Canada. In 1879 he came into possession of the homestead, which consists of 120 acres including woodland. He pays especial attention to trucking, and attends the Reading market, having had stands Nos. 219-220 at the Bingaman street markethouse since 1879. He is very successful in his work, being thorough in all that he undertakes. In politics Mr. Gehman is strictly independent, and in 1892 he was elected a school director of Cumru township, serving in the office with credit three years, and being president of the board for one year. He and his family are members of the Mennonite congregation located in Brecknock township.

On Dec. 26, 1878, Peter B. Gehman married Susanna Longnecker, born Nov. 28, 1850, daughter of John and Nancy (Martin) Longnecker, of Lancaster county. They have become the parents of seven children, namely: Lydia A.; Maria; Emma and John, twins, of whom John died aged six months and eight days; David died in childhood; Peter was born Oct. 22, 1887; Samuel died in infancy.

Samuel B. Gehman, son of John and brother of Peter B., was born on his father's farm in Cumru township Sept. 7, 1860. He was reared upon the farm, and began for himself in the same line of work in 1887, on a farm belonging to his mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Ann Good (widow of Jacob Good), and there he has continued to make his home. He is progressive in his methods, and as a truck farmer he has proved himself one of the very best. He raises all kinds of vegetables, fruits and berries, and attends the Reading market three times a week in the summer and twice in the winter, having stands Nos. 19-20 in the Crystal Palace market, and Nos. 114-115 at Kissinger's market. His farm of forty-seven acres has a rich, black sandy soil, well adapted for profitable trucking. He has a large hot house in which he raises his early vegetables. He and his family belong to the Mennonite Church, attending the Allegheny Meeting House.

In 1886 Samuel B. Gehman was married to Elizabeth Good, born June 1, 1867, daughter of Jacob B. and Mary Ann (Donehower) Good. Four children have blessed this marriage, namely: Edwin, born Aug. 6, 1888; Edith, born in 1904, died aged twenty days; Marie, born April 8, 1905; and Samuel, born March 21, 1907.

Jacob B. Good, father of Mrs. Gehman, was born Sept. 10, 1817, and died May 19, 1879, aged sixty-one years, eight months, nine days. He was a son of Jacob Good, a native of Brecknock township, grandson of Jacob Good, Sr., and great-great-grandson of Christal Good, a native of Switzerland. Mrs. Mary Ann (Donehower) Good, mother of Mrs. Gehman, was born July 30, 1837, and is still living making her home with Mrs. Gehman, her only daughter.

AMOS S. GUTH, a highly esteemed, retired citizen of Reading, Pa., who has been a deacon of the Baptist Church for more than thirty years, descends from one of the old and honorable families of Pennsylvania, descendants of which have attained distinction in all the noble trades and professions. Mr. Guth was born June 6, 1836, in South Whitehall, Lehigh county, son of Henry and Catherine (Hoffman) Guth.

Lorentz Guth, great-grandfather of Amos, with his wife, Mary, emigrated from the German Rhine provinces to Pennsylvania, then known as the "Asylum of the Distressed Pilgrims," crossing the Atlantic in the summer of 1738, on the ship "Thistle," Capt John Wilson, of Rotterdam, and on Sept. 19th landed at Philadelphia. They settled on the banks of the Jordan, the present site of the old homestead, Mr. Guth having owned 369 acres of land in this country prior to coming over, as the deed is dated May 11, 1732. Later he bought certain tracts from Thomas and Richard Penn and Peter Kohler, until he had in his possession 1,000 acres. His children were: Lorentz, Jr.; Adam; Peter; Julian (m. Peter Kohler); Eva Barbara (m. George Henry Mertz); Margarette (m. Adam Dorney).

Lorentz Guth, Jr., son of Lorentz, also settled on the old homestead in Lehigh county, and became extensively engaged in agricultural pursuits. He and his wife had children: Adam, who moved to Ohio; Daniel; John; Peter; Henry; Susanna, who married a Mr. Nerver; and Mrs. Christian Derr. The family were members of the Reformed Church.

Henry Guth, father of Amos, settled in South Whitehall township, where he learned the stone mason's trade and later engaged in farming. During the war of 1812-14 he served at Marcus Hook, and for this service received from the United States Government a tract of forty acres of land. It is believed that he served but three months when honorably discharged. He died Jan. 1, 1865, aged about sixty-nine years, his wife, Catherine Hoffman, July 17, 1849. Their children were: Eliza, Calvin, Flora, Horace and Amos S. By his first wife, whose maiden name was Hammon, Mr. Guth had two children, Deborah and Levi.

Amos S. Guth received his education in the schools of Lehigh county, and Kessler's boarding school, in Allentown, which he attended one season, and a boarding school in Easton, Pa. He assisted in the work on the home farm until nineteen years of age, when he became clerk in Seiple & Erdman's store at Ruchville, where he remained four years. In 1861 he came to Reading and engaged in the photograph business, having a gallery at Fourth and Penn streets, but later sold out to engage in work with his father-in-law, Samuel Nyce, who was conducting a produce commission business. When the firm of Nyce Bros. & Co. was formed he became a partner, but withdrew to engage in the shoe business, which he carried on two years, then spent two years in the produce business at Lewisburg. After following the same line for a time at Wilkes-Barre, he returned to Reading and was employed by the firm of which he had formerly been a partner. In 1897 Mr. Guth retired from active life.

Mr. Guth married Catherine Nyce, who was born in Montgomery county, Feb. 16, 1838, daughter of Samuel Nyce. To this union there were born children as follows: Elmira died at the age of six months; Annie m. Allen Messinger, and has two daughters, Lilian (m. Charles Phillips, of Philadelphia, and has a son, C. Alan, who represents the seventh generation of the Guths in America) and Madeleine (m. Burton Kline, of Boston, Mass.); Lillie m. Howard F. Hoffmaster and has two sons, Floyd and Howard Jr.; and Rosa m. Harry Nyce, a cousin, and lives in Philadelphia.

Mr. Amos S. Guth is a self-made man, and has always held a high reputation for honesty and integrity, being regarded as one of Reading's substantial citizens. He is a member of the Baptist Church, in which he has been a deacon for more than thirty years, and a teacher in the Sunday-school, a capacity in which he has served for forty years. He is also a charter member of the Reading Baptist Association, which is composed of Baptist Churches in the counties of Berks, Lehigh, Bucks, Montgomery, Schuylkill, Lancaster, Northampton and Monroe.

BENTON K. BODEY is the owner of a valuable tract of fifty-five acres in Bern township, Berks county, and is engaged successfully in its cultivation. He was born in Muhlenberg township, same county, May 8, 1859, son of Nathan and Ann (Koenig) Bodey.

Henry K. Bodey, grandfather of Benton K., was a son of Heinrich Bodey, a native of Germany. He became a successful farmer in Muhlenberg township, owning two farms there, of sixty acres each, near Leize's Bridge, and close to Bodey's school-house. The latter was so named because of the large number of the name attending there. Mr. Bodey was born Nov. 27, 1800, and died Sept. 8, 1861, and is buried at Epler's Church. His wife, Elizabeth Tobias, whom he married Jan. 11, 1824, was born Dec. 20, 1803, and died May 24, 1845. Their children were: John, born Aug. 27, 1828, lived on the homestead, and died Jan. 3, 1894; Nathan is mentioned below; Henry, born Jan. 1, 1839, lived on his father's other farm, and died April 11, 1882; Matilda m. Samuel Dunkelberger; and Eliza m. Frank Moser, of Muhlenberg.

Nathan Bodey, son of Henry K., was born in Muhlenberg township, July 8, 1836, and became a farmer in Bern township, owning ninety-seven acres of land now the property of Wellington Leinbach. He died Dec. 29, 1893, and was buried at Epler's Church, of which both he and his wife were members, and in which he served as a deacon. He married Ann Koenig, daughter of Christil Koenig, a farmer of Bern township. Their children were: Benton K. and John H. K., the latter of Reading.

Benton K. Bodey was reared to farm work, and on reaching maturity adopted it as his life work. He began for himself in 1892, farming the Cyrus Althouse farm in Bern township, and continuing there for eleven years. In the spring of 1904 he came into possession of the William Fisher homestead, on which are good substantial buildings, and the whole place is in excellent condition. In 1905 Mr. Bodey erected an addition to the barn of 36 x 58 feet. He keeps four horses and seven head of cattle.

Mr. Bodey gives his ballot in support of the men and measures of the Democratic party. He and his family are Reformed members of Epler's church.

On Aug. 13, 1881, Mr. Bodey was married to Ellen R. Fisher, daughter of William and Catharine (Rothenberger) Fisher, of the oldest families in the district. Two children have been born to this union, namely: Katie R. Dunkelberger and Annie R.

BENNEVILLE KLEMMER, of No. 604 North Tenth street, one of the best known citizens of the Twelfth ward of Reading, and a retired railroad engineer, was born May 11, 1837, in Washington township, Berks Co., Pa., son of Jacob Klemmer. His ancestors came from Wales and landed a short distance above Philadelphia on the Schuylkill river before William Penn came to Pennsylvania. Later they scattered through Montgomery, Bucks and Berks counties.

The great-grandfather of Benneville Klemmer was a resident of Washington township, Berks county, where he was an early settler and one of the well known men of his locality. For many years he carried on farming and owned a large tract of land. He was a Mennonite in religious belief, and is buried at Bally, Berks county.

Christian Klemmer, grandfather of Benneville, was born in Washington township, and was also a farmer and landowner there. He married Catherine Buck, a French Catholic, of Haycock, Bucks county, whose brother was a quartermaster in the Revolutionary war. Christian Klemmer was first a Mennonite in religious matters, but died in the Catholic faith, aged seventy years, his wife surviving until ninety-six years of age. He was buried at Bally. They had these children: Mrs. Charles Rehr; Sarah m. Reuben Richard; Kate m. David Greth; John B. died in Reading; Joseph died in Washington township; Jacob; George died in Reading; and Samuel died at Norristown.

Jacob Klemmer, father of Benneville, was born in 1804, in Germantown, Pa., and died in August, 1867. Early in life he followed shoe-making for a short time, but subsequently engaged in hauling and draying in Reading, whither he had come in 1844, when the city had a population of but 12,000. Four years prior to his death he retired from active life. He was a member of St. Paul's Catholic Church, and he and his aged mother were buried the same day at the Catholic cemetery, Reading. His children were: Benneville; William; Daniel; Lucy (m. Daniel Siegfried, deceased); Carolina, deceased (m. Peter Rasch); Salinda, deceased (m. John A. Bechtel, deceased); Mary (m. Joseph Bruder, deceased); Katie (m. Lewis Bower, deceased); and four children died young.

Benneville Klemmer came to Reading with his father when seven years old, and attended the public schools of Reading and later a boarding school. He learned to manufacture wool, cotton and silk, and even to this day can prepare the coarse wool from the sheep's back into cloth ready for the tailor. He spent a short time at West Philadelphia finishing his trade, but in 1857 engaged in railroading, starting as a brakeman. He then became a conductor and during the early part of the Civil war, 1861, he was made a fireman, and in 1865 became an engineer. He was employed in the freight service until 1869, when he was promoted and given a passenger train, and remained in that capacity until July, 1902, when he was transferred to the yard at his own request. He was assigned to a shifter, and retired because of the age limit,

May 11, 1907. During the many years that Mr. Klemmer was employed in the passenger service he hauled hundreds of thousands of passengers, and has a record of never having met with an accident which resulted in the injury of a passenger. The month of April, 1861, brought about the call for volunteers in the Civil war and Mr. Klemmer enlisted in Company A, 14th Pa. V. I., serving 100 days. For some time thereafter he was engaged in hauling soldiers, ammunition and provisions over the road, and can relate many interesting experiences while thus engaged.

Mr. Klemmer is a member of the Boniface Brotherhood and the Philadelphia & Reading Veterans and the Reading Relief Associations. He is a charter member of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church of Reading. In politics he is a Democrat, and he was recently a candidate for the common council from the Twelfth ward. For a period of thirty years he was connected with the building associations, being a director of four of these organizations at different times. In 1881 the premium sold up to 95, for loan of $200, and this practice he broke up, and established a plan for the workingman to buy his own home without being closed out by the sheriff. He spends nearly all of his spare time in prospecting for minerals, and since 1866 has made some valuable finds in and around Berks county. For some years he has advocated the boring of artesian wells on the west side of Mount Penn with a view of securing a better supply of water for the city, claiming there is an abundance of it which could be tapped at a small cost. He is a remarkably active man for his age, and takes much pleasure in travel, in 1905 making a trip to the Pacific coast, visiting Los Angeles, Cal., Oregon and Washington States, and, on his way back, Yellowstone Park.
